THE FORMER DEPUTY TREASURER OF POLK COUNTY SEEN ALIVE

Joseph Matthews Supposed to Have Died in London.

Defaulted for $6,000 and Skipped From Crookston in 1897.

Expects to Return Soon and Make Good His Shortage.

Crookston, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—News from a source that is considered thoroughly reliable has been received in this city to the effect that Joseph Matthews, who as deputy treasurer of Polk county, defaulted to the extent of about $6,000, and who was thought to have died in a London hotel in 1898, is alive and well at the present time, located in a prosperous city in the United States, has about half of the amount of his defalcation saved up, and expects in a comparatively short time to return to Crookston, reimburse the bondsmen of County Treasurer Beaudry, who settled with Polk county on a basis of 50 per cent, and start life over again.

The news came as a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. Matthews disappeared in 1897, while he was acting as deputy treasurer, and was never seen here again. A man was found dead in a London hotel, and on his person was found a prescription, written by a Crookston physician. The authorities here were wired, and the identification was thought to be complete, as a photograph, taken of the remains, strongly resembled the missing man, and in addition, Matthews' watch and ring were found upon the dead man, together with other papers.

Now, it is thought that Matthews was in London at the time, and changed clothing with the dead man, to confuse identification. Credence is given the story of the gentleman who claims that he saw and conversed with Matthews on Feb. 17 last, because he was a close personal friend of the absconding deputy, is a responsible business man, and tells a connected story as to Matthews' intentions.

One serious complication that will arise, if the story is true, is the fact that Mrs. Matthews collected $5,000 life insurance, and not long after his supposed death married another man—a former sweetheart. The state of affairs that would arise, should Matthews put in an appearance, would be exceedingly embarrassing, and the children that have resulted from the marriage would be in a peculiar position. It is an open question as to whether Matthews would be prosecuted or not should he return voluntarily and restore the money he abstracted from the strong box of Polk county. His peculations covered a period of several years, and as he was an expert bookkeeper, he had the defalcations very skillfully concealed.

His return to Crookston would cause the largest-sized sensation that this section has experienced in a number of years. The story, as told by an old resident of the city, is given credence by his intimate friends. He refused to give the exact location of Matthews to anyone but one or two of his closest friends, but the fact that he has seen and conversed with the missing man he told to a number of people about the city.

SAILORS ON KEARSARGE REWARDED FOR BRAVERY.

Washington, May 8.—High praise and such reward as the navy department is able to extend, is accorded to the brave sailors who at risk of life rendered first aid to the injured in the Kearsarge disaster, through general orders printed by the navy department yesterday. Acting Secretary Newberry has indicted letters personally to each of these men. To George N. Breeman, seaman, he awarded a medal of honor and a gratituity of $100 for extraordinary heroism, and also suspended the rules of the department so as to permit him to appear at the next examination as a candidate for boatswain.

Letters of similar tenor were sent to William Meininger, boatswain mate, who assisted in getting out the injured; to William C. Carpenter, boatswain's mate, who did the same; to John Packard, boatswain's mate, who is thanked and permitted to take the boatswain's examination; to James Herrick, boatswain's mate, who carried the hose into the turret and put out the fire, who is allowed the same privilege; to Charles J. Cavanaugh, chief machinist's mate, who was among the first to enter the turret after the fire, who may take the examination for warrant machinist, and to Isidor Nordstrom, chief boatswain's mate, also among the first to aid, who is allowed to take the boatswain's examination.

KILLS SELF BECAUSE WIFE URGES MOVING.

Sterling, Ill., May 8.—Jacob Hengri, residing north of Milledgeville, has committed suicide because his wife persisted in moving from the country to Savannah.

SEATTLE DOCK BURNS.

Seattle, May 8.—Arlington dock, filled with government supplies intended for shipment to the Philippines, on the transport Sherman, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The transport Sherman was slightly damaged. The total loss was $185,000.

BLUNDERS CONTINUE

Liberals Dumfounded by Promulgation of Fundamental Law.

St. Petersburg, May 8.—The danger of an early conflict between the government and parliament has been greatly increased by what has happened within the last twenty-four hours. The good impression produced by the official intimation of the new premier that the emperor and the government were sincerely desirous of working in harmony with parliament, which was accepted in good faith by the leaders of the Constitutional Democrats, enabling them to counsel moderation, has largely been dissipated, and in its place the old feeling of mistrust has been revived. The Liberals are utterly dumbfounded, in view of the semi-official assurances on the subject, by the unexpected promulgation, late last night, of the obnoxious fundamental law, in a slightly modified form. At one stroke it put an end to the claim which the new cabinet tried to foster, namely, that the downfall of the Witte cabinet was due to imperial disapproval of the original draft of the law. An article in the law not mentioned in last night's dispatches, exempting crown lands from taxation and appropriation, and another reserving the power of amnesty for political prisoners to the emperor, run counter to the already expressed will of the majority, and are bound to produce a clash. The only commendable new feature of the fundamental law is a provision to the effect that imperial orders must be countersigned by the president of the council of ministers, or the members of the cabinet, whose department is affected. But so long as the cabinet is not responsible to parliament, it is easy for the emperor to dismiss an unwilling minister and replace him by one who will do his bidding.

The indignation aroused by the emperor's attempt to build an artificial dyke around the prerogatives of the crown has been intensified by the astounding action of the police last night in dispersing a meeting of some members of the lower house of parliament, and of the upper house, or new council of the empire, at the hall of the Economical society. Without any warning the building was surrounded by the Ismailovsky Guard regiment, and a detachment of cavalry, and 100 policemen marched into the hall where Count Heyden, marshal of the nobility and a member of parliament for St. Petersburg, was presiding, and ordered the meeting to disperse, under instructions from the chief of police.

In spite of vigorous protests that the meeting was entirely legal under the regulations governing the society the police captain who was in charge of the police and troops was inexorable and the members of parliament were compelled to yield to force and left the hall after drawing upa formal protest which was signed by twenty-eight members of parliament.

Roditcheff, a member of parliament for St. Petersburg hurried after midnight to the hall, where the Constitutional Democrats were holding their convention and announced to the members there assembled, the action taken by the police. An indescribable scene of fury followed after which Roditcheff in an impressive speech, which was cheered to the echo, declared that the government appeal for confidence again been false and that the people must rely upon themselves. It was decided that one of the first things after the assembling of parliament shall be a demand for the dismissal of the chief of police.

As if these incidents were not sufficient to excite the members of parliament the local authorities with a fatuous fitness for blundering flamed the working classes yesterday. Without warning they ordered many of the leaders of the workmen to leave their city. They were not even given time to remove their families. The matter was brought to the attention of a meeting of one hundred and twenty-two peasant workmen members of parliament who denounced it as an attempt on the part of the government to bring about a strike on the eve of the asembling of parliament for the purpose of provoking a struggle and under cover of the disorder to dissolve parliament. Nevertheless they appealed to the workmen at this critical juncture to do nothing rash and to trust in parliament to fight for liberty against repression.

This meeting also appointed a "Scandal committee," to collect evidence of violations of the rights of members of parliament, two of whom, one a priest, have been searched since their arrival in St. Petersburg and also to investigate the conspiracy on the part of the authorities to induce members of parliament to lodge in government buildings.

BRYAN FAST IN DESERT.

Lincoln, Neb., May 8.—Word has been received here that W. J. Bryan is quarantined in the desert on account of an outbreak of the bubonic plague near Suez.

IMMENSE FLOOD CAUSES GREAT LOSS OF LIFE

Washington, May 8.—The state department today received the following cablegram from the American consul at Hankau, China:

EXTRADITION OF M. GORKY

From U. S. May be Asked by Russian Government.

Is Charged With Participation in December Uprising.

Moscow, May 8.—In addition to the accusation against Maxim Gorky of engaging in a political propaganda, the procurator has charged him with participation in the December uprising here and it is rumored that his extradition from the United States will be asked for.

The Gostu has been confiscated and prohibited from publishing pictures taken by an American photographer, showing the life led in prison by Mlle Spiridonovo, who killed Police Chief Luzhenoffsky at Tamboff. She was sentenced to be hanged but her sentence was commuted to twenty years' imprisonment, after she had been most brutally treated by Cossack officers, one of whom was assassinated for so doing.

FIXED TEETH IN HIS THROAT

Kurdish Chieftain Murders General in Sensational Manner.

Constantinople, May 8.—Nedjim Eddin Bey, procurator-general of the Vilayet of Tripoli, North Africa, has been murdered in a highly sensational manner by Ali Shamyi Pasha former military governor of Scutari. According to the reports received here, Ali Shamyi who is a Kurdish chieftain and who recently was exiled to Tripoli on the charge of being concerned in the murder of Redvan Pasha at Constantinople, was undergoing an examination when he suddenly rushed upon the procurator general, fixed his teeth in his throat and held on like a bulldog until his victim was throttled to death.

ANTHRACITE MINERS RATIFY THE AGREEMENT MADE WITH OPERATORS

Award of Strike Commission is Extended for Three Years.

Report of Committee Adopted Unanimously by Convention.

Work Will be Resumed at the Mines on Next Monday.

Scranton, Pa., May 8.—The convention of anthracite miners reassembled here today and ratified the action taken by its sub-scale committee in conference with the operators' committee in New York yesterday afternoon, declaring operative the award of the coal strike commission of 1903 for a further period of three years, ending March 31, 1909. The convention was presided over by John Mitchell. The report of the committees' action was adopted unanimously. Today, notices were posted by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Delaware & Hudson, Erie, Penn Coal company and Scranton Coal company, announcing the resumption of work next Monday.

ELECTING MAYOR AT KANSAS CITY

Voters Choosing a Man to Fill Out an Unexpired Term.

Kansas City, May 8.—A special election is being held at Kansas City, Kas., today for mayor to finish out the unexpired term of W. W. Rose, Democrat, who resigned recently pending state ouster proceedings for nonenforcement of the prohibitory and other laws. Later, Rose was ousted by the supreme court which disregarded his resignation. There are three candidates today: W. W. Rose, who seeks vindication of his course and who openly declares a majority of the people want the joints, or illicit saloons, as the license they pay in fines is necessary to maintain the city's institutions; E. E. Venard, Republican, who has declared for law enforcement, and David Clark, Socialist.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Red Wing, Minn., May 8.—Thomas Thompson was seriously injured yesterday by the breaking of the mechanism operating a peanut roaster. Part of a wheel hit him a terrific blow above the temple, and cut his face badly. Three doctors attended him.

PROBABLY A SUICIDE

Police Believe Rogers' Confidential Agent Shot Himself.

Nothing About House to Indicate Presence of Burglar.

New York, May 8.—Police officials who have been investigating the mysterious death of Charles L. Spier, confidential agent of H. H. Rogers, who was found dead in his room in Staten Island yesterday, reported today that the evidence indicated that Spier had committed suicide. Mrs. Snier had informed the police that Spier left his bed chamber to go to the dining room in search of a burglar and that she afterward heard shots. Except that the furnishings of the dining room in which the body was found were disarranged, the police say that there was nothing about the house to indicate the presence of a burglar. One door was found unlocked but without signs of having been forced and an active bulldog, which accompanied Mr. Spier to the dining room, took no part in the reported duel with a burglar, if there was one.

On the other hand the police have ascertained that one month before his death Spier had insured his life for $57,000 and had been obliged to discount a note for $1,357 to pay the premium on one of the policies when it became payable last Saturday. The policies were payable regardless of the cause of death, and the beneficiary had been changed from Mrs. Spier to a trustee of his estate.

The police have discovered also that a judgment in bankruptcy for $50,870 had been outstanding against Mr. Spier and others since February last. These judgments were entered after the Yetman Transmitting Typewriter Company, of which Mr. Spier was president, went into bankruptcy.

Dr. H. W. Patterson, Mr. Spiers' family physician, who was one of the first to reach the Spier residence after the shooting said today that he does not believe Mr. Spier committed suicide, but thinks he was killed in a fight with a burglar.

PREMATURE GRAY HAIR CRAZE OF WOMAN NOW.

New York, May 8.—Peroxide is out of date, and henna is discounted. The too golden blondes may hide their diminished heads. Prematurely gray hair of pepper and salt effect is the latest—the very latest. It took the prize of honor at the annual exhibition of the American Ladies' Hairdressers' association at the Murray Hill Lyceum and is now the envy of all womanhood.

SAFETY BOXES PROVE SAFE

Receptacles in Deposit Vaults Are Opened at Frisco.

San Francisco, May 8.—Safety deposit boxes in several big institutions that provide these fireproof receptacles for the public were made accessible yesterday. The vaults opened were those of the Union Trust, Crocker Woolworth, Canadian Bank of Commerce and Mercantile Trust institutions. Steel and asbestos had performed their trust well. All the contents of the steel boxes were found intact. Nothing was harmed.

The total amount of goods sent to this city by railroads up to and including May 1 amounts to 2,200 carloads, according to Dr. Edward T. Devine, head of the Red Cross work. "This represents a large amount of supplies," he said yesterday, "but nothing like the amount we will have to have."

Oakland, Cal., May 8.—Major J. B. Erwin, Ninth cavalry, U. S. A., will take charge of the distribution of relief supplies in this city today.

Estimates indicate that there are 40,000 persons in this city who are dependent upon relief supplies for necessary food. The general food supply is limited but under the strict supervision of the army it is expected enough can be procured to meet immediate demands.

SENSATIONAL PUBLICATION

St. Petersburg, April 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—An interesting manifestation of the comparative liberty which the Russian press, in spite of the frequent arrests of editors and sequestrations of papers, now enjoys is the publication this month of a number of important historical documents and sketches on which the censorship had hitherto set its most rigorous ban. They include the memoirs of Catherine II and of her favorite princess, Dashkoff, both long since published abroad, painting such a startling and realistic picture of the Russian court life of the eighteenth century, the meeting ground of Asiatic pomp and sensuality with western pseudo-refinement; such details of the lives and loves of Russian sovereigns including Elizabeth, Peter III and Catherine II, that their publication in Russia even today is looked upon almost as lese majeste. A magazine, Past Events, ventures upon hitherto forbidden ground by printing the whole history of the assassination of Alexander II, with portraits and glorifying biographies of the assassins, and another political article, "The Yakutsk Tragedy of 1889," describing the revolt and execution of a number of political prisoners and assailing men yet in power for wild arbitrariness in playing with human lives.

Even pure literature under present political conditions has assumed a strongly political trend and all Russia is talking of a new sketch of Leonid Andreiff, the talented young disciple of Gorky, whose "Red Laugh" inspired by the reek of blood on Manchurian battlefields and the slaughter in the streets of St. Petersburg caused such a sensation when published after "Red Sunday," Jan. 22, 1905. His new sketch, entitled "The Governor," is a psychological study of a provincial official who had ordered the troops to fire upon an assemblage of workmen and who was condemned and executed by a revolutionary tribunal. It is a powerful piece of writing, without the affectations and tricks of style which marred "The Red Laugh," and in its description of the slow awakening, through the ever-present picture of the heaps of sprawling corpses to a sense of culpability and responsibility, will rank high in Russian literature.

LEADER STORE COMPANY

Organized to Operate a Dry Goods Store in Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A stock company is now in process of organization, with the object of operating a dry goods store in Virginia. It will be known as the Leader Store company, capitalized at $10,000. The stockholders will be range merchants, and the manager will either be Sam Lippman of Mountain Iron or Max Lewis of Chisholm. The store will occupy quarters in the new Minnesota block, and will open for business about June 1. A preliminary organization resulted in the election of Sam Lippman, Mountain Iron, as president; B. M. Lippman, Virginia, vice president; Max Lewis, Chisholm, secretary and treasurer. It is expected that other local business men will take stock in the concern.

Vesselmen Say Keefe Has Been Deceived as to Number.

Think Strike Will be Called Off on Ascertaining Facts.

Cleveland, May 8.—It has been practically settled that the dock managers will not attempt to replace the striking longshoremen with outside help until President Keefe of the Longshoremen's union can complete his investigation of the Mates' union.

The vesselmen and dock managers believe that if Keefe ascertains the real facts in the case he will call the strike off as soon as a conference can be arranged. According to the vessel owners, Keefe, as well as the longshoremen, has been deceived as to the number of men in the mates' union.

There is said to be one significant thing in the developments of the past three days. Capt. Bush, president of the Lake Pilots' association—the mates' union—has not been included in the conferences of the strikers, and has been practically ignored by President Keefe and the presidents of subordinate unions.

The lake engineers have been instructed by their union officials to keep up steam for the preservation of their vessels and cargo, but not to fire the boilers except in stress of storm. This is for fear of creating a troublesome precedent.

Milwaukee, May 8.—The Wawatam and Maruba, Steel corporation boats, are tied up here as a result of a walkout of six firemen and four oilers. The steamer America is also tied up because of the desertion of five members of her crew.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 8.—There was no change in the situation on the docks here this forenoon. No attempt will be made to unload grain from the vessels in the harbor. John J. Joyce, president of the local Grain Shovelers' union, who returned from Detroit today where he had a conference with President Keefe, said the reports of weakness among the men were untrue. Asked if it was likely that an order would be issued for an extension of the strike in the upper lakes, Joyce replied:

"That rests with President Keefe. His plan was to make the main fight along Lake Erie. It is working well."

TOWER CHINAMAN CUTS HIS THROAT

Tower, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 9 o'clock yesterday morning persons leaving their laundry at what is known as the Sam Kee laundry, next door to the Hotel Sheridan, found the proprietor dying, with his throat cut from ear to ear, and holding a razor in his hand. People who visited the laundry earlier in the morning found the fellow in his usual good spirits. Being a young man, and able to speak English fairly well, he went by the name of Duck.

Two weeks ago he cut of his queue, and declared that he was a citizen of the United States. He had not been here very long, but was seemingly a very bright fellow. Why he committed suicide is a mystery.

FRUIT SHIPMENTS

From the California Orchards Will be Large This Year.

San Francisco, May 8.—The prospects are good for large fruit shipments to the East during the season which has just opened. Fully 7,000 cars of green fruit and grapes will be sent East of the Rocky mountains before the season closes next fall. This volume of business will mean between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 to the California orchardists.

The cherry crop throughout the state is splendid and shipments are now going forward rapidly. The peach, pear and apple crops promise large yields, particularly of apples and pears. Apricots and plums do not promise so well. What is lost by these will be more than made up it is said on pears, apples and grapes.

E. H. POLK IN COURT.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 8.—Charged with the theft of $20 from H. C. Shuttleworth, E. H. Polk of Brainerd, Minn., who says he is a prominent Elk, was fined $100 in police court yesterday, or given the alternative of going to jail for thirty days.

According to Shuttleworth Polk got into the good graces of the Elks here by representing himself to be a member of the organization. The alleged larceny of the money followed. Polk has been stopping at the Kirkwood for several days.

ALBERTSON'S

WOMEN AT THE BANK.

Boston Daily Advertiser: Many women depositors do humorous things in banks. They draw checks for 10 cents and frequently have new bills tested lest they should be counterfeit. Some of them insist upon having coins and bank notes disinfected while they wait instead of taking new ones, while others ask for two $25 bills in exchange for one $50.

Drawing checks when they've no money to their credit and depositing bills that they have carefully rolled into small wads are a few of the peculiarities of women who have bank accounts.

"Women who deposit thousands of dollars each year do the most extraordinary things," said a bank official. "In handing in bills, instead of laying them out flat, face up, as they should, they push them in, rolled in most unusual shapes, evidently twisted to fit their purses, some of them in small round balls, others in triangles, ropelike rolls or squares, folded eight or ten times.

"Many if the women have certain days for depositing their money and frequently keep large sums in their strong boxes at home because they have but one banking day and do all business at that time.

"There are two women, well known in society too, who for years have deposited the same amount each time they came to the bank. One always hands in $100, and several times when the checks has been for a few cents less I have seen her take the change from her purse to make the deposit the required amount.

"One of the smallest accounts we were ever asked to receive was brought in by a woman, who destroyed the check when she found that exchange was charged on it. This depositor had a check for 10 cents drawn by a relative in Idaho and when she handed it in the clerk told her that an extra charge of 10 cents was due on it. 'Well, what will I get out of it if the charge is 10 cents and the check is made for the same amount,' she asked in an indignant tone. The clerk explained to her in the most conciliatory manner that it was a rule the banks had with the clearing house that on all sums from out of town an exchange of 10 cents should be charged on amounts of $100 and under.

"Why then should I hand in the check if I don't get the money," she queried. 'I'd rather destroy it,' and taking the paper in her fingers, tore it into a hundred pieces and walked out.

"There are several of our depositors who stop in on their way home from shopping to have money disinfected before they put it into their purses. One of them, who believes that disease germs are transmitted by bills, coins, etc., puts all the money she gets while shopping into a leather wallet which has been well fumigated and then turns the contents in here to be cleaned before she will place it in her purse. Another one always puts money she receives in a long paper envelope in which there are several moth balls and brings it to us for cleaning.

"Some of the women are possessed with the idea that they are always getting bad money and one of them frequently asks us to test a new note issued by our own bank and signed by the president and cashier. She never deposits a dollar that she doesn't first ask if it is counterfeit."

DIPLOMATIC SCHEME.

Boston Transcript: When President Cleveland and his sagacious secretary, Col. Daniel S. Lamont, arrived in Washington in the spring of 1885, these two Northerners were not so experienced on the race question as they eventually became. A quarrel broke out over the emancipation parade of the colored people, which is an annual feature of Washington, between two factions of the race which were struggling for control. The leader of one of these was W. Calvin Chase, a celebrated colored editor, lawyer and politician.

From Col. Lamont's Albany point of view, it seemed a natural thing to send his colored messenger, Arthur Simmons, who now serves the board of review in the patent office, to see the warring colored leaders in an endeavor to effect a reconciliation. Simmons was delighted with the honor, and promptly betook himself to the house of Chase. He had been promoted, in his opinion, from messenger to ambassador. He even overlooked Lamont, and represented himself as coming from the president himself.

As soon as the editor of the Bee understood the nature of Simmin's errand, he ordered the conversation stopped, and passing out his card, said: "Will you be kind enough to carry this to Hon. Grover Cleveland? Tell him that it contains an address at which he can communicate with me in writing any time that he desires, and so save the trouble of sending me his black messenger. Good day, sir."

Simmons was ever after that an anti-Chase man in the factional rivalry of the colored politicians of the city.

COAL PRICE IS REDUCED

Announcement Expected Locally Within Next Day or Two.

A reduction of 40 cents a ton in all except steam sizes of anthracite coal was announced yesterday by the Lehigh Valley Railroad company. This announcement followed the news that the committees representing the operators and the miners had reached an agreement. It is understood that the Reading company will make a similar decrease in price today.

Local offices of coal companies said this morning that they had received no notification of the reduction in the price of anthracite, but said such notice was likely to come at any time. The reduction will mean that the consumer will be able to get hard coal at the price he could have obtained it had the usual 50 cent reduction gone into effect April 1.

In the past it has been the custom to drop the price 50 cents a ton the first day of April, and then to raise it 10 cents a month for five months. The 40-cent drop places the price the same as if the 50-cent reduction had been made a month ago, for there would have been a 10-cent raise May 1.

The prices of Youghiougheny, Pittsburg and West Virginia grades of coal f. o. b. on docks at the Head of the Lakes, are about 50 cents higher a ton than a year ago. They are $3.30 for three-quarter run of pile and $3.50 for screened lump. If the marine strike continues until June 1, it is believed there will be less coal on the docks than at the opening of navigation, although there was quite a rush of boats in the local harbor to unload during April.

SHERIFFS SHOOT RIOTOUS MINERS

One Man Killed and Two Others Wounded at Pueblo.

Pueblo, Colo., May 8.—Deputy sheriffs today fired into a crowd of riotous strikers at the Pueblo smelter. Mike Merino, an Italian, was killed, and two other strikers were seriously wounded. Two deputies were previously badly beaten in an effort to disarm the strikers. The deputies are still on guard at the smelter, but no further trouble is expected. The trouble arose over the inauguration of an 8-hour day. The men demanded the same pay for eight hours as formerly was paid for ten hours. One hundred strikers gathered at the plant and endeavored to keep strike breakers from entering. Several fights were in progress when the sheriff and his deputies arrived. There were many women in the crowd, and when the sheriff ordered it to disperse, the women attacked them, and some one fired a shot. Immediately the deputies fired a volley, killing one man and wounding two others. The strikers at once scattered.

"KING OF BUMS FROM NOWHERE"

Given Six Months in Jail for Abusing the American Flag.

New York, May 8.—An unknown man who walked down the main street of Hoboken kicking an American flag along in the dirt was mobbed by indignant citizens, clubbed by a policeman, sentenced by a court, and put to work breaking stones in a pen before the day was over. The man refused to disclose his identity when questioned by the court, but said he was the "King of Bums," and came from "Nowhere." When Recorder Stanton read a lecture to him in court for abusing the flag, he interrupted, declaring, "That is all it is good for." The recorder imposed a sentence of six months.

Two Million Little Children Starving

Poor and Rich Alike Suffer From Lack of Good Food.

We notice that John Spargo, in his new book, "The Bitter Cry of the Children," says no less than 2,000,000 American children, between the ages of 5 and 14, are victims of chronic underfeeding. They are the easy prey of disease, nervous, irritable, weakened both physically and mentally, and unfit for that perfect development which nature intended for them.

Mr. Spargo speaks particularly of the children of the poor, but what he says is, in thousands of casses, true of the children of the wealthy and the comfortably well-to-do. Many children who have "all they can eat" are really underfed. For the food which they are given is not food from which they can get the nutrition they need.

There is no other food, so far as we know, so nutritious, so strengthening for children as Malta-Vita, the perfect malted whole-wheat food. This is not only because Malta-Vita is so rich in all the nutrition the body needs for sustaining health and strength. More important by far is the fact that the nutrition of the malted wheat is so easily digested and assimilated that all its life-giving elements are taken up by the system, forming rich, red blood in abundance and giving growth and vigor to body and brain. Malta-Vita is insurance of perfect health for children. And it is so good to eat!

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, mannufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BEGINS FOURTH TERM.

Dr. Charles L. Codding Has Served on Library Board Nine Years.

With the confirmation of his appointment last evening, by the council, Dr. Charles L. Codding begins his fourth term as a member of the library board. He is now oldest in point of service of any member.

He has already served nine years on the board, and when he completes his present term will have given his services to the library for a period of twelve years.

Dr. Codding was largely responsible for the manner in which the American department has been built up. He and Giles Gilbert worked together to establish this branch of the library, which has become one of the most interesting and valuable departments.

The other members of the board just appointed are M. M. Clark and Dr. T. H. Cleland. Mr. Clark begins his second term.

Not If as Rich as Rockefeller.

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by all leading druggists.

BREAKING OF DAM FLOODS MARINETTE.

Marinette, Wis., May 8.—The dam of the Crivitz Paper & Pulp Company was carried out last night and the town is flooded with five to ten feet of water. Farmers lost heavily in stock drowned. James Henderson's house was nearly washed away and his family was forced to flee. Pigs, cows and chickens were drowned in the rush of water.

EARTH SHOCK DISTURBS PEOPLE OF CONNECTICUT.

East Hampton, Conn., May 8.—Several families along North High street, in the northwestern section of this town, felt a slight tremble of the earth early today, the "shock" lasting about a second. This section of the town is located on a ridge and at different times persons being thereabouts have noticed a quiver of the ground underneath them. The cause of the disturbances is not known. A few dishes are reported to have rattled in one of the houses, but there is no damage.

RECEIVER FOR SUGAR PLANT.

Omaha, May 8.—Judge Munger in the United States court today appointed W. H. Ferguson as receiver for the plant of the Standard Beet Sugar Company at Leavitt, Dodge county, Neb. This is one of the largest plants of its kind in the West, having cost $1,277,000 to build. Failure of the beet crop is given as the cause of the trouble.

MELODRAMA.

"I met him in London," he said, "at a dinner given by a charity society. I found him very learned and very witty.

"Seaman made a speech at this dinner wherein he said that charity was a profession in itself, and that our almsgiving should be done through trained organizations if it was to achieve any good result.

"He said that professional beggars were amazingly clever. Only professional almsgivers could keep up with them. He said that even among children and infants wily professional beggars were to be found.

"Then he told how a woman beggar, a professional, with her little daughter of 6 or 7 years, was once admitted to the hall of a countess's house, and, as they passed from the hall to the drawing-room, the mother whispered:

"'What will you say when you come into the drawing-room where the countess is?'

"The child, smiling, whispered in reply:

CANDIDATES EXAMINED

Civil Service Board Holds Examinations for Three Departments.

Candidates for positions in the city's service were examined this morning by the board of civil service commissioners, in the council chamber.

The examinations covered the fire and police departments, the library, and promotions in the fire department.

Only four candidates for positions in the fire department appeared. They were, O. M. Chalman, W. H. Morder, J. A. Finlayson and L. A. Root.

Five tried the examination prescribed for the police department, their names being as follows: Oscar Peterson, George Robillard, J. B. Connor, George Ritzman and Mike Mason.

Four young women tried the examination for assistant librarian, as follows. Miss Mildred Hobbs, Miss Marion Morrison, Miss Alice Gaylord and Miss Jennie Lancetot.

Those who tried for promotion to the position of lieutenant in the fire department, were as follows: Frank Clure, L. J. Baine, George Shaw, W. A. Johnson, J. F. Payne, William J. Lee and F. Fisher.

The papers will be examined by the secretary, Reuben Johnson, and the results reviewed by the board at its next meeting.

At the last examination, held a month ago, the questions asked the candidates for the position of assistant librarian, were so difficult that none of the young women succeded in passing. The questions touched upon odd happenings and matters that were not familiar to even the best scholars. The paper today was a much fairer test, and touched upon more general subjects. The general information required was no more than an assistant librarian should have at her disposal, and the questions on experience and technical knowledge of the library system were fair.

There is a vacancy in the library and the most successful candidate will probably be given the place.

There are also several vacancies on the fire department, and the applicants are assured of a position.

In the police department, there is no vacancy at the present time, but there are likely to be some changes during the summer which will give the successful candidates an opening.

NEBRASKA MAN KILLED WHILE STEALING RIDE.

Boone, Iowa, May 8.—Albert Davidson of Champion, Neb., was killed and his son, Earl, fatally injured yesterday afternoon in the Northwestern yards. They were stealing a ride in a car filled with radiator pipes. A switch engine kicked the car on a switch and shifted the pipes. The father's head was crushed and the boy's collar bone, legs and chest were crushed. The two were on their way home from visiting the father's sister, Mrs. Mary Wells, of Harvard, Ill.

HARRIMAN IS TRAVELING FAST

Special Train Reaches Cleveland After Quick Run From Chicago.

Cleveland, May 8.—A special train carrying E. H. Harriman acros sthe continent from San Francisco to New York arrived here over the Lake Shore this morning at 7:35 after a very fast run from Chicago. The train was scheduled to make the trip across the continent in 71 hours and 27 minutes. It left Oakland at 7:29 p. m. Saturday, arriving in Chicago at 1:08 this morning, one hour ahead of the schedule. On the Union Pacific the highest spurt of speed was 80 miles an hour.

The Lake Shore office says no attempt is being made to lower the record, although the train is running faster than the Lake Shore Twentieth Century Limited. During the brief stop of the train here, Mr. Harriman said:

"San Francisco will reach a point far beyond that which it occupied before the earthquake and fire. It will be rebuilt at once."

Piles

Don't Suffer Longer, You Can Have Instant Relief and a Lasting Cure by Using Pyramid Pile Cure.

A Trial Package Mailed Free to All.

The rectum, like the mouth, is lined with that soft, satiny material known as mucous membrane. Piles is a disease of that membrane and the blood vessels that lie under it.

Fissure and Fistula affect the same membrane and belong to the same family. Pyramid Pile Cure slipped into the bowel, melt and spread themselves over the diseased and painful surface, and act just as salve would if the trouble was on the outside of the body and could be easily seen and gotten at.

The immediate relief they give even in the most agonizing cases will startle you, as it has already startled many thousands of "doubting" Thomases" before you, who have tried everything and sent for the sample package, firmly convinced that they would again be disappointed.

But they weren't. Pyramid Pile Cure don't disappoint. They cure. They are for sale at all druggists at 50 cents a box and worth an even hundred to the person who needs them.

Mr. John Byrne of 2306 Second avenue, New York city, writing under date of Jan. 17th, 1906, says: "I received the sample and used it right away. I got so much relief from it after twenty years' suffering, that I bought a 50-cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone and my fistula has almost disappeared. I had given up all hope of ever being cured. I assure you, gentlemen, I will use every effort to make any of my friends try them, as I can guarantee they are a sure cure."

Or if you want to prove this matter at our expense before purchasing, send your name and address to the Pyramid Drug Co., 4840 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan, and receive a trial package free by return mail.

COUNTRY'S CRIME CENTER.

Chicago has been famed for its dirtiest river, its biggest stock yards, its busiest corners. Now, says the Chicago Tribune, a new item must be added to these spreaders of its fame. It has the wickedest police district in the world.

Concentrated in a district less than two miles long and not more than one wide, is the crime center of the country. Murderers, robbers and thieves of the worst kind are here born, reared and grown to maturity in numbers that far exceed the record of any similar district anywhere on the face of the globe.

The center of this region is the Maxwell street police station. On all sides of it are saloons and houses which have seen the rise and often the death of some of the worst criminals the country has known.

Two blocks from the station, at the corner of Sangamon street and Fourteenth place, is a strip of ground that on various occasions has been literally soaked with blood. Sometimes the blood was that of criminals killed in revolver fights with the police; oftener it was that of policemen who met their death at the hands of the gangs of ruffians who made the district unsafe to all who were without the sacred folds of "the gang."

More policemen were killed on this one corner than any place in the city. It was here that "Buff" Higgins shot and killed McCue, it was here that the Henry street gang held off a detail of police for two hours one afternoon, and it was here that the notorious Mortell-McGraw faction won the record for killing officers in fight after fight with the men from the Maxwell street station.

Within this territory there live, in some fashion or other, 205,000 persons, including specimens of humanity from every race, creed and nation in the world, with only a sparse scattering of Americans. The streets on pleasant days are so packed with children that it is hard to walk without stepping on two or three in every block.

Fully 100,000 children are receiving their first impressions of life in the crowded, sweaty tenements and dirty streets; and thousands of them are growing up with only a vague idea of what the law is and with a well defined hatred for anything that resembles a policeman's uniform.

It is not an infrequent occurrence for a child of nine years to attempt murder. Not long ago a 9-year-old boy stabbed and mortally wounded another child of the same age. When asked why he did it he said:

"Oh, gwan! Didn't he call me names?"

A few weeks ago an officer investigating a broken window was shot at from within the building. He broke in the door and groped his way through the shop till his hand fell to the arm of a small boy. Taking the child under one arm, the policeman found a gas jet and lighted it. The burglar proved to be 9 years old.

"What are you doing in here, son?" demanded the officer.

"I'm stickin' up the place," was the proud answer. "If I'd had another bullet I'd 'a' got you w'en youse came in t'rough deh door, all right, all right."

It is as hard to catch a criminal in "Bloody Maxwell" as to find the traditional needle in a haystack.

In many blocks every house is open to welcome and hide the criminal, whether the crime for which he is wanted be a murder or a case of petty thievery.

In through a dark court the criminal may fly, into a hall that leads into a big tenement, up one, two or three flights of stairs, and through a door which closes behind him, and he is as safely hidden from the police as if he were a thousand miles out of the city. The Chinatown of San Francisco and these precious blocks in the Maxwell street district are not to be compared in the matter of furnishing ways and means for the escape and hiding of criminals when pursued by the police.

Considering the hundreds of thieves that the district turns out annually, the enmity of a good portion of the population toward the police, the congested conditions which exist, and the hundreds of secret hiding places known to the criminals, it is evident that the police of the Maxwell street station have a difficult problem on their hands if they are to suppress the activities of the bad men to any considerable degree.

It is doubtful if there is any district in the world where it would be so hard for the ordinary detective to find a criminal, even after his identity was established.

DIPLOMATIC SET.

Kansas City Journal: In the diplomatic set in Washington the leader is Mme. Von Hengelmuller, wife of the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, acting dean of the corps. She is the ranking woman in the foreign contingent in point of residence in the capital and personally she is the dominant power in determining the social prestige of all women in the diplomatic corps. Mme. Von Heugelmuller can claim two titles, but because her husband, to whom she is devotedly attached, is not of titled rank she is known simply as madam. She inherited from her father the title of countess. He was the last of the line of the Counts Dunin-Borlowski, famous in Hungary. All her stationery and private possessions bear the coronet of her house.

THE LADY BARBER.

Los Angeles Times: Orville Wright, in the office of his bicycle factory in Dayton, was being congratulated on his aeronautical achievements.

"Well," he said modestly, "our success, such as it has been, was due to hard work. We were not content to let well enough alone. We tried for perfection in every detail. We did not rest on our oars like the lady barber that Dayton used to have.

"You remember the lady barber of Dayton? A machinist of mine, out of curiosity, allowed her to shave him once. He had a stiff beard. The ordeal must have been terrible.

"All through the operation, tears flowed from the machinist's eyes as he squirmed and twisted in his chair with pain, and low groans escaped from him.

"At the end, regarding in the mirror the little pin-points of blood that oozed from nearly every pore, he said:

"'If it is skinning, Miss, it's tolerable; but if it's shaving, it's awful, awful.'"

LUCKY PASSENGERS.

Old Mr. Brownson was reading the paper to his wife one morning, and exclaimed in a louder tone of voice:

"How fortunate," placidly said old Mrs. Brownson, "I can't imagine how glad those passengers were to get on dry land."

GROUND ROCK FOR PLANTS

Washington, May 8.—One series of experiments just concluded by the department of agriculture promises to be of immense value to the farmers of the country in furnishing them with a new supply of fertilizer at very much cheaper rates than has ever been possible before, and at the same time emancipating this country from Germany, which has heretofore furnished our whole supply of carbonate of potash and fertilizer. The idea originated in the bureau of roads, which nominally has nothing to do with fertilizers.

Last summer, when Dr. Cushman of the roads office was working on some granite road material, he was working in the laboratory with very finely powdered rock, and the idea struck him, as it has struck a good many other chemists, that this country with an unlimited supply of rock high in its percentage of potash ought not be dependent on other countries for its potash salts, for there has never been any commercial deposit of the salts found in this country as it is in Germany. He extracted some of the potash by electricity, though it is by no means certain yet that this can be done on a paying commercial basis. But then he decided that as ground rock was very cheap it might be worth while to try the experiment of letting the plants do their own extracting. He tried the experiment on his own place in the country and found that the powdered rock did actually act as a fertilizer, though the potash it carried was so tied up that it took the chemistry of nature to extract it and feed it into the plant. But the first trial promised well.

The work was then turned over to the bureau of plant industry, and three plots of tobacco were planted in the greenhouse. One of these was treated with the imported German fertilizer, another was left without any fertilizer at all and the third was fertilized with finely ground granite. The granite was high in potash, but it had not been treated in any way, and if the experiment succeeded it simply meant that there was a big new field of home-grown fertilizer open to the farmer. Recently the crops of tobacco were cut. The imported fertilizer had produced a crop of green that weighed 155 pounds. The powdered rock produced a crop of 154 pounds and the unfertilized crop was spotted and ran about 120 pounds or a little under. This crop was examined by experts and so far as could be told, the leaf was not only just as heavy, but of just as good texture in the rock fertilized patch as in the patch on which the imported fertilizer had been used. The crop is being dried now, and it will take a long time before it is all fermented and properly cured so that it can be made up for smoking and tested in that way.

But that was a greenhouse experiment, and greenhouse work to field work is about like laboratory experiments to commercial work. What succeeds under glass may or may not go out of doors. But the department was so well pleased with the results that it has tried the new fetilizer on crops of tobacco up in Connecticut, in Virginia, Kentucky and Florida. These crops are now just getting under way, and there is a great deal of interest felt in the success of the work out of doors. The principal question seems to be whether there will be enough water in the natural rainfall to make the potash in the ground rock available for the plants. During anything like a decently wet season there is little question that there would be water in plenty. But it is possible that for a very dry crop there will have to be as much as a tenth of imported fertilierz added to the native rock.

Now the commercial value of the work is in the fact that the imported fertilizer costs in this country about $100 a ton. It is an absolutely necessary fertilizer in the tobacco field, and there are a number of other crops on which it is used. The ground rock, on the other hand, can be produced for about $3 a ton, and there is so much of it in the country that runs high in potash, and is available for use, that the supply could never be cornered. It is true that the native fertilizer takes about two tons to the acre to give the same results as one ton of the soluble imported salts. But it amounts to $6 an acre for fertilizer against $100. So the result is not bad. Several mills are already being erected—one in Maryland and one in New England—for grinding rock for just this purpose, and there are a number of other concerns that have talked of going into the business before even the field experiments of the department are finished.

JOHN ALLEN'S CONSOLATION.

Boston Transcript: John Allen of Mississippi was the wag of congress as long as he remained in the house of representatives. His recognized good fellowship then brougat him an appointment from President McKinley, as one of the commissioners of the St. Louis exposition. One night, when Democratic prospects were darkest, just after Bryan's second defeat, Allen was called upon at dinner to tell of all the consolations that could be derived from his party's plight.

He related the story of the colored preached in Tupelo, Miss., who, at the funeral of one of his best known parishioners thus summarized the outlook in the undiscovered country: "There is a great difference of opinion in dis community as to de merits of our departed brother's life," began the preacher. "Some brethren and sistern tainK he was a good man and that he has gone to heaven. Other bretnren and sistern thinks he was a bad man and that he was gone to de bad place. Dis dispute I have no idea how to settle. I cannot tell whether he has gone to de good place or gone to de bad place. But in de uncertainty and de gloom of dis hour, perplexed as we are by dis problem, we have one supreme consolation—we know that he is dead."

DEFINED.

Los Angeles Times: "What's this man charged with?" asked the judge.

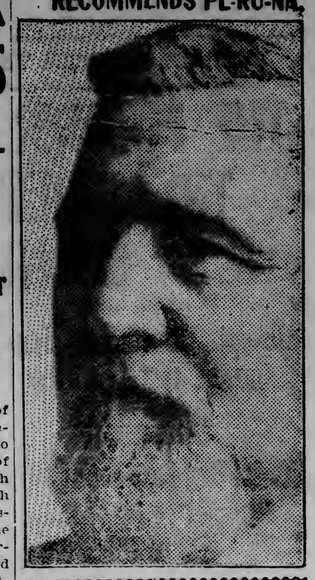
"Bigotry? Why, what's he been doing?"

"Married three women, yer honor."

"Three! That's not bigotry; that's trigonometry."

EX-MAYOR CRUMBO RECOMMENDS PE-RU-NA.



"My Endorsement of Pe-ru-na is Based On Its Merits."

—Ed. Crumbo.

ED CRUMBO, Ex-Mayor of New Albany, Ind., writes from 511 E. Oak street:

"My endorsement of Peruna is based on its merits.

"If a man is sick he looks anxiously for something which will cure him, and Peruna will do the work.

"I know that it will cure catarrh of the head or stomach, indigestion, headache and any weary or sick feeling.

"It is bound to help anyone, if used according to directions.

"I also know dozens of men who speak in the highest terms of Peruna and have yet to hear of anyone being disappointed in it."

Mr. Crumbo, in a later letter, dated Aug. 25, 1904, says:

"My health is good, at present, but if I should have to take any more medicine I will fall back on Peruna."

Revised Formula.

"For a number of years requests have come to me from a multitude of grateful friends, urging that Peruna be given a slight laxative quality. I have been experimenting with a laxative addition for quite a length of time, and now feel gratified to announce to the friends of Peruna that I have incorporated such a quality in the medicine which, in my opinion, can only enhance its well-known beneficial character.

DIVIDE THE ROAD FUNDS

All Commissioner Districts Get Increases Except Ryan's.

Total Amount to be Spent This Year is $65,000.

The division of the county road funds among the various commissioner districts was the matter of most importance before the county board at this morning's session, and there was some discussion in which the commissioners having roads to look after, urged their claims for larger appropriations before the resolution fixing the amounts was passed.

The resolution was passed by Commissioner John Sundeen and provided for the following division:

Second district (Kugler)	$10,000
Fourth district (Morcom)	10,000
Fifth district (Kauppi)	12,500
Sixth district (McInnis)	10,000
Seventh district (Ryan)	12,500
City of Duluth	3,000
Miller Trunk road, north	500
Miller Trunk road, south	5,500
Total	$65,000

The road appropriation of $65,000 this year is an increase of $10,000 over that of 1905. All the districts except Commissioner Ryan's have the benefit of the increase.

When the resolution was read, Commissioner Ryan asked to amend it by adding $500 to his appropriation.

Commissioner Patterson claimed the north end of the county has been given $32,000 of the $65,000 and should be satisfied.

"We have got a large and more thickly settled district in the south end of the county to take care of," said Commissioner Patterson. "No doubt Mr. Ryan could spend $30,000 to good advantage in his district if it were available; but he has few settlers who are paying taxes. I believe the people who have gone in there to take up claims are honest in their intentions, but they cannot expect to get graded roads yet."

"I don't dispute the fact that Mr. Kauppi has a larger district to look after," said Commissioner Ryan, "but where he has thirty-nine towns in his district I have fifty-nine towns, and the settlers are coming to me from all directions and asking why they cannot get roads. There has not been $25,000 spent on the roads in my district. Because Mr. Kauppi has so many roads to look out for is no reason why the appropriation for the Seventh district should be held down."

Commissioner Ryan then moved to amend the resolution by making his appropriation $13,000, and providing $2,500 for the Miller trunk road south of the Whiteface river, $2,500 north of the river, and $1,000 for the same road north of the Tower and Itasca road.

Commissioner Kauppi admitted that Commissioner Ryan has a large claim on the appropriation, but claimed that his district is more settled. Mr. Kauppi claimed that $13,500 is not sufficient for his district, and that he does not see how he can give any satisfaction to his constituency.

"If I spend the money on a few of the roads," declared Mr. Kauppi, "the remainder of the roads will remain almost impassable."

After the discussion, the original resolution was passed. The amendments received no seconds.

John Dugal made application for a liquor license in section 15-58-19, town of Great Scott. Superintendent Hendricks of the Consumers' Ore company appeared before the board and remonstrated against any saloon near the operations of his company or those of the Republic Iron & Steel company. He said from 400 to 500 men will be employed there this summer and the proximity of a saloon will seriously handicap the work of the large contracting companies, especially for some time after pay days.

The board opened bids for the painting and papering of several rooms and halls at the courthouse, and adjourned until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

SHOOTS HIS SUPERIOR

Philadelphia Policeman Fatally Wounds a Lieutenant.

Philadelphia, May 8.—John Devere, police lieutenant of the First police district of this city, was shot and probably fatally wounded today by Edward Nichols, a policeman under his command. The shooting occurred in the corridor of the city hall. Nichols was under suspension for lighting on the street in uniform. Lieutenant Devere had gone to the city hall to attend a meeting of lieutenants. He was called into the corridor by Nichols who without warning shot his superior officer. Devere was promoted to a lieutenancy by Mayor Weaver following the political upheaval in this city last fall. Nichols was committed to prison to await the result of the shooting

THE TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

Of Estate of Mrs. Lizette Schandein Are Made Public.

Milwaukee, May 8.—Terms of the final settlement of the will of Mrs. Lisette Schandein were made public in the probate court today. Mrs. Ella E. Frank and Emil Schandein, who contested the will, are each given $50,000 in cash and 300 shares of stock in a Milwaukee brewing company, the shares having a face value of $1,000 each, in addition to the $812,500 of property bequeathed by the will of their mother. Johann Philip Erik Heyl, son of Jacob Heyl by his first wife, Louise Schandein, will receive $500,000 of 5 per cent bonds of a Milwaukee brewing company. The will made no specific provision for him. The Schandein will gave the bulk of the property, estimated at several millions of dollars, to Clara S. Heyl, wife of Jacob Heyl, a son-in-law of Mrs. Schandein. Mrs. Frank and Emil Schandein contested the will in a long and sensational suit in the probate court, which ended in the will being admitted to probate. An appeal was taken, which was suddenly terminated by all parties to the contest coming to an agreement.

BURNED HIS OWN CHURCH.

Waterloo, N. Y., May 8.—Rev. C. C. Stuart Bain, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waterloo, was arrested here Sunday on a charge of arson in the third degree, and arraigned in the police court. The hearing was adjourned until today and Mr. Bain was committed to jail. His church here was burned March 6 last. The pastor's arrest followed a long examination before District Attorney Bodine, during which Mr. Bain was asked to explain certain letters he is alleged to have received concerning the church, and which the prosecution claims he wrote himself. Mr. Bain denied having set fire to the church. He came here last October from Newburgh, and no cause can be assigned for his alleged acts.

DELICATE QUESTION

Central Passenger Association and Live Animal Fares.

The Matter Will be Taken Up at Meeting Wednesday.

The Central Passenger association at its next meeting will try to advance the minimum rate on live animals. The association recently has given itself some hard jobs. Not long ago it tried to decide whether Mr. Dowie was a minister. Now it is going into the question of live animals. The Cleveland Leader tells of the seriousness of the proposition as follows:

"Livestock comes under control of the freight department. The passenger departments usually wrestle only with problems pertaining to human beings. Of course, a man is an animal, but it is pretty hard on the human race to have it stated so badly. It is just possible that the G. P. A.'s, since the recent legislative activity in Ohio, are disposed to look upon legislators and others merely as animals, omitting any consideration of the existence of a soul which raises them above that dead level of mere flesh and blood.

"But when it comes down to the question of live animals the general passenger agents are having a mighty difficult question to solve. There are live ones and dead ones in the human race. The G. P. A.'s are likely to run up against a stump when they endeavor to discriminate. It is not always possible to tell a live one by his looks, and some of the deadest looking timber possesses the most ginger when it comes to the test. The meeting, probably, will determine whether the ticket agents are supposed to size up a man by his appearance, or whether the agent is supposed to put the buyer of tickets through his paces.

"Of course there are some general passenger agents who insist that this is not at all what was meant. They say that by live animals in the passenger department they mean pets, such as cats, dogs, parrots and elephants. A few years ago the same question arose over whether an elephant could be shipped as excess baggage or whether he belonged in the livestock class. The decision was never reached. Maybe the G. P. A.'s will settle this momentous question now. Is an elephant freight or baggage, therefore, is expected to be the subject for debate at the next meeting, which will be held Wednesday at Chicago.

HELSTROM CASE REACHES JURY

Trial is Started of Tulla Brothers, for Assault.

The trial of Albert Helstrom, charged with assaulting Peter Winthrall in a tie camp near Rush lake last March, was finished this noon, the case going to the jury at 12 o'clock. The morning session was given mostly to arguments to the jury.

Helstrom was on the witness stand yesterday afternoon to tell his side of the story. He admitted driving Winthrall behind the woodpile and stoving in the sleeping shanty, with a revolver, but claimed that he did not point the revolver at Winthrall and that the shots were fired high above his head simply to scare him. Helstrom claimed that Winthrall started the quarrel in the shanty and hit him on the wrist with a stick of wood.

Other witnesses yesterday were some of the men in the camp who saw the shooting and claimed they heard Helstrom make threats to kill Winthrall.

This afternoon the trial of Jake and George Tulla on an indictment for assault in the second degree was started in Judge Dibell's room. It is claimed that the Tulla brothers assaulted John Saari with a hammer and shoemaker's knife at Sparta, April 8 last.

Found Out

Trained Nurse vs. Coffee

No one is in better position to know the value of food and drink than a trained nurse.

Speaking of coffee a nurse of Wilkes Barre, Pa., writes: "I used to drink strong coffee myself and suffered greatly from headaches and indigestion. While on a visit to my brothers I had a good chance to try Postum Food Coffee, for they drank it altogether in place of ordinary coffee. In two weeks, after using Postum, I found I was much benefited and finally my headaches disappeared and also the indigestion.

"Naturally I have since used Postum among my patients, and have noticed a marked benefit where coffee has been left off and Postum used.

"I observe a curious fact about Postum used among mothers. It greatly helps the flow of milk in cases where coffee is inclined to dry it up, and where tea causes nervousness.

"I find trouble in getting servants to make Postum properly. They most always serve it before it has been boiled long enough. It should be boiled 15 or 20 minutes and served with cream, when it is certainly a delicious beverage."

"There's a reason" for Postum.

EXPLAINS HIS OFFER

John M. Root Talks Regarding His Garbage Collection System.

Says He Will Give Modern Service for Moderate Cost.

"I am going to do for the city what it can't afford to do for itself at the present time—establish a first-class, modern garbage collection department, and give the citizens first-class service at less than the same service would cost them under present conditions," said John M. Root, who last evening submitted a bid to the council, for the collection of garbage and refuse.

"Of course there will be objections raised to this. There are always objections to anything that will result in municipal progress.

"Last evening after leaving the council, I walked along with one of the aldermen. He said to me that it was the laboring people we would have to consider in this matter. Near Lake avenue we met one of the men who work on the street garg, and the alderman stopped him and began talking. He asked the man how many rooms he had, and the man said four. He asked him what he did with his garbage, and the man said he had it drawn away.

"'How much does it cost you?' the alderman asked.

"'Twenty-five cents a month,' was the answer.

"I figured out the cost under my specifications, and found it would be 22 cents a month, with two collections a week and oftener if necessary.

"There is one thing that must be considered, and that is that I will make two collections a week, while at the present time the people are paying for but one and sometimes not that. That is not my fault. If you want to change that you will have to change your ordinance. I am compelled, under the new ordinance, to make two collections a week during the summer, and in some parts of the city one a day.

"Another feature must be considered. Supposing I collect from a certain house in the East end on Tuesdays and Fridays. Tuesday night the woman gives a party of some kind or a big dinner, and the next morning she calls me up and says her garbage pail is full. I have to send a wagon out there on a special trip for that pail of garbage, or forfeit my bond of $10,000. That means I must keep a special cart for these extra trips.

"The ash question has been raised, but that is not an important point. Ashes can always be readily disposed of, and if I get this contract, I intend to put in a factory here to make concrete building blocks out of a combination of sifted ashes and cement, and I will collect my own material.

"Ashes can be stored away without becoming unsanitary, and be collected once a month or once a year.

"When I discontinue making collections because the bill has not been paid, I notify the health department. This is not for the purpose of making the health department a collection agency for me, but it will save the inspectors a lot of trouble. They will know the houses from which garbage is not being collected. If the owner finds some other way of disposing of it, all right. He can burn it or destroy it in any way that is satisfactory to the health department.

"I have studied the garbage question from New Orleans to Minneapolis and from New York to Los Angeles, and I know how to handle it on a business basis. I can do it cheaper than the city can and still make a fair profit from it. Of course I expect to make money on it, but not more than a fair profit, and I think if the people will study the question out, they will find that the charges are very reasonable, considering the service."

The Future of the Airship.

An airship inventor, who recently sailed the first airship over New York successfully, confesses frankly the shortcomings of his invention and acknowledges that it could never be adapted for carrying passengers nor for express service. The only commercial value of an airship is for exhibition purposes, and the day of practical flying-machines is still far distant. If you want a practical medicine for that poor, tired stomach of yours why don't you try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has been used successfully for over 50 years in cases of belching, bloating, heartburn, flatulency, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, female ills, biliousness and malaria, fever and ague, often effecting a cure when other remedies have failed. Give it a chance to prove its merit and you'll be thankful for taking the hint.

NEW MINISTER FOR HOPE CHURCH

St. Paul Pastor Will Succeed C. A. Tesch Who Goes to Faribault.

The thirty-ninth annual conference of the Minnesota German Evangelical association has just come to a close at Sleepy Eye, Minn.

THE KING'S MASTER

A Story of the Civil War

By Martha McCulloch-Williams.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

It was a bright May morning in the fifties. The mist-colored bloom was dewy in the pasture at Fairfield when the King came galloping along the turnpike.

Blood and beauty showed through even his present plight. He had broken out, and run the twenty miles home, hard as he could leg it; yet, after the manner of May foals, had stopped to wallow in the handiest wayside pond.

Over the hedge went the King, grazed industriously a matter of ten minutes, then flung up head and tail, and galloped straight to the piazza steps.

Baby Winchester saw him and saw nothing else clearly for a long time. She stood upon the steps, giving him lumps of sugar, her arms about his neck, quite heedless of mud.

She was young and tall—foolish, of course—else why did she lay her cheek so often to the place on the mane where she knew the King's rider was wont to lay his hand? If her eyes had been clear she would not have failed to notice a rider's approach, even though his mount was a light-stepping mule.

The rider also was young and tall—possibly unlike. There was the same oval outline, the same delicately angular profile, dropping inward the least bit at the chin. But Baby was fair-colored as the dawn, all blue eyes, yellow hair, and rose-leaf skin, whereas the rider was black-browed, and throughout of a ruddy Spanish darkness.

He sprang down noiselessly, save for a tinkle of spur. Baby started violently, faced half about, and cried: Maury! How—how dare you? My father—"

"I know," Maury Fontaine said, "but I have only come for—my own. Uncle Roger even will hardly deny my right to do that."

"You mean the King? How did you know? I never thought he would run away from you," Baby said. Maury smiled softly.

"I mean the King—and you," he said.

Baby was very white. Childishly she locked her hands behind. Somehow her eyes cleared; the tears seemed to freeze at their source. "I cannot go with you," she said very low. "I have promised—promised—not to think of you—to—to disown you as of our blood—unless you—"

"Cease to show yourself a traitor and a rebel," a man's voice cracked yet hoarse, thundered out behind her, as she made a grasping pause. Col. Roger Winchester, owner and master of Fairfield, had come stumping out of his office in the wing, drawn by the noise of hoofs and voices. Thin, straight, upheaded in spits of pure silver hair, his eyes flashed at sight of his nephew—his sister's son, whom he had brought up and loved as his own.

All through his young manhood the colonel had sat politically at the feet of Old Hickory. What wonder, then, that his unionism was a fiery passion? What wonder, either, that he raged to find Maury hot after strange gods—babbling of state rights, of secession, and at last going out to fight for them? He had disowned the lad, disinherited him—at least potentially. They had not met before since Maury had ridden away to the muster camp, and the drilling, something like four weeks back.

Maury swallowed hard, but his head went up obstinately. He fingered his gray jacket. "I can't take it off," he said. "It's hard to have you and Baby despise me for wearing it; but I should have the right to despise myself if, feeling as I do, I had not put it on."

"Then go! Go to your own destruction! Never show your face here again!" Col. Winchester shouted. Maury caught both Baby's hands. "I am going—never to come back again until you ask me," he said. "But—Baby, will you let me go alone?"

His tense voice sounded deadly cold. Baby went white to the lips, looked thrice from one to the other, then fled into the house without a word.

Maury and the King went down the drive alone.

• • •

When the long fight was over, and hope had become heart-break, Maury and the King were still together.

It was little short of a miracle; but there they were, the man with an empty sleeve, the horse raw-boned starved out of all likeness of his old gallant self.

A man may still do a man's work with one arm if he has also a right good will. Maury proved that when he set himself and the King to plowing out cotton for a planter who was sadly in the grass.

By time frost came the King was really a horse—a caricature of his old self, it is true, but reasonably sleek in a new winter coat, that was more than ever blotched and splotched with white, this, together with his crop-ear, gave him a somewhat waggish, not so say rakish, aspect. In genuine kindliness the plantation master advised Maury to get rid of him, adding that it would be mighty hard for a stranger either to live up to, or live down, such a looking horse. Maury smiled thanks, and said he would think the matter over. Next week he bought a mule—blind, but quick-stepping—on credit, and agreed to work a little outlying farm the next year on shares.

The King came through the second spring's plowing in fair fettle. But age was making him lazy and sourly tricksy—to everybody, that is, save his master. He quite disdained his simple stall-mate, the blind mule, and hectored her unceasingly, without, however, in the least disturbing her dog like devotion to him. She had quick ears, and followed him as far as she could hear him, braying piteously to him if he got too far away. He never answered. Still, she was better—a long way better—than no comrade. How the King proved that you shall shortly hear.

April came in with gusty rain dashes inset between hours of translucent blue sky. Underneath, the stir of new life strengthened. Something else strengthened with it—the mysterious impulse—instinct or memory—that sends dumb things, and flying ones, straight to their earliest home.

The first April Monday, and quarterly court day, Maury had let himself be carried off to the county town, in his landlord's buggy. The King was left loose in the shambling door yard. Maury knew the fence would never have held him back in the old days—but, then, no fence quite did that, and latterly, what with age and temper, the king had got in the way of refusing to do more than step over two rails laid one on the other.

As the buggy vanished round a turn of the road, the King gazed fretfully for five minutes. Stock-still, the very moral of sleepy innocence, the King stood. Then his head went up; he took three fences one after another, never so much as tipping a rail with his heels, and was out on the road. A minute he seemed to listen, then, head and tail up, he plunged into the woods and made for the nearest creek.

The creek ran westerly. He grazed an hour in its valley, then struck across the boundary hills, his course due north. Night found him at another stream-side. Again he grazed and drank, and at last lay down to rest. But he was awake at dawn, and away, snatching at richly budded twigs as he passed.

He might well have been in love with such vagrancy; but there was something strong—something that whipped him imperiously forward, always to northward.

Two weeks he wandered. Then one day the King came to the top of a rise whence he could see the spread of two whole countries. Then—he remembered. Loitering ended. Away he went at a pounding trot, now and then slackening to a walk, now and then quickening to a run. Toward nightfall, whinnying triumph, he found himself at Fairfield's gateway.

The King had grazed there three days, when he heard Maury's whistle, and looked up to see the blind mule's head well over the stone wall. Instantly he ran, neighing welcome as he ran, to thrust his nose into his master's outstretched hand, while his master said, reproachfully: "Lad, I didn't think you'd do it—go and leave me in the lurch! What will become of the crop?"

"Over lad! quick!" he cried. "We have no time to lose. You see, I can't come inside."

The King wagged his crop-ear, but did not budge. Again Maury said: "Over!" this time in deepest chest tones. When the King stood stock-still, nipping his master's sleeve, Maury wheeled upon him scornfully, crying out: "Ho, ho! A deserter! At this late day! I thought you feared nothing, but find out you're afraid of work."

"No! It's only that he has more sense than his master—sense enough to come home, where he so sadly wanted," Col. Winchester said behind Maury. He had ridden up unseen, and was fighting hard to keep his old pose of testy dignity.

The first glimpse of Maury's empty sleeve put an end to that. He dropped reins, caught Maury in his arms, and said, hoarsely: "My boy—they said you were dead. Thank God! Thank God! Now He has given you back, I shall never let you go away."

Fairfield house stood bare, and almost empty. But why say more than that the place had been for months at a stretch army headquarters? Thus fate's grim irony had ordained that the only citizen in the county should be worse despoiled than any of his neighbors.

Col. Winchester looked about, smiling whimsically, and said, pretending to speak low: "Well, Maury, you see they left me my land."

"And your loyalty?" Maury hazarded. The colonel's eyes twinkled. "I have sworn not to talk politics for the next five years," he said.

But Maury had no ears for him. Somebody came through the door—somebody older, maybe wiser, but still fresh-colored as the dawn.

Her eyes were starry, her voice a sweet tenor, and she said, kneeling beside Maury: "I have looked for you three days. When the King came to his own, I knew you could not long stay away."

Sciatica Cured After Twenty Years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey of 3322 Clinton street, Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism, why not try a 25-cent bottle of Pain Balm, and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by all the leading druggists.

PLAN WELL RECEIVED

East Enders Favor the Purchase of Lake Shore Park.

Part of Money Will be Raised by Popular Subscription.

The plan of purchasing land owned by the Northern Pacific Railway company, lying between London road and the lake shore, from Eighth to Thirteenth avenues east, as broached by Mayor Cullum, met with an enthusiastic reception at a meeting held last evening in the mayor's office.

A number of East end property owners were present, and all were strongly in favor of securing the land, both for its value as a breathing spot and for the sake of keeping the lake view from London road uninterrupted.

Mayor Cullom stated that he had had some negotiations with the land commissioner of the Northern Pacific road, and that he intended to go to St. Paul this week to see him again regarding the matter, and that he wanted to feel warranted in laying some definite proposition before him.

"I want to feel that I have the support of the property owners in that vicinity and of the people at large," said the mayor, "before I go ahead with the scheme."

Luther Mendenhall, president of the park board, pointed out that the board has but $12,000 a year, and that the general maintenance expenses amount to $10,000, leaving but a small amount available for the purchase of land.

F. A. Patrick, B. F. Myers, Victor Stearns, John G Williams, F. W. Paine and L. S. Loeb all spoke strongly in favor of securing the site.

"The plan has my hearty approval," said Mr. Patrick. "I am in favor of the city securing just as many available tracts of land as possible, for breathing places and playgrounds. There is no place from Lake avenue to Lester park along the lake shore, which is available for such a park, with the exception of this one spot, and I think the city should secure it just as soon as possible. I would also like to see the city get other tracts of land at suitable intervals where the boys could play ball, and where little breathing spots could be laid out."

Mayor Cullum stated that he had had such a plan under consideration for some time, and had twice been on the point of starting a popular subscription, but was stopped by the Y. M. C. A. movement and the fund for the San Francisco sufferers.

All the other men present expressed their warm approval of the plan to secure this strip of land.

"The lake is the main attraction of the city," said B. F. Meyers, "and when visitors come here they have to go five or six miles to get down to it."

The lack of money is the chief obstacle in the way. The mayor has not yet been able to secure any definite offer from the company, but the assessed value of the land is $19,400. It was decided to raise a part of the money among the property owners in the vicinity of the park, either by an assessment or by a popular subscription, and have the city provide the balance. A committee, composed of B. F. Myers, Victor Stearns, L. S. Loeb and George C. Stone was appointed to consult owners of property in the vicinity of the park and ascertain what chance there is of securing half of the purchase price from them, either by subscription or assessment. The committee will report to the mayor before Thursday, and he will leave for St. Paul Thursday night to have another interview with the land commissioner.

WILL URGE NEED OF A HILL ROAD

East Fourth Street Citizens Hold Meeting and Organize.

A meeting of the business men and property owners in the vicinity of Sixth avenue east and Fourth street was held at the store of A. J. Harker last evening to discuss the closing up of a highway from Seventh avenue east to Piedmont avenue with a view of determining some way to get relief.

About thirty people attended the meeting and it was the concensus of opinion that the closing of the road by a man who owns the land that it crossed has seriously inconvenienced the farmers on the Rice Lake road who formerly came into the city through the East Fourth street hill district.

A committee composed of A. J. Harker, L. K. Dougherty, Charles Le Richeaux and Robert Luech was appointed to bring the matter to the attention of the mayor, city council and board of public works.

It is claimed that a highway has been used from Seventh avenue east and the boulevard to Piedmont avenue for more than twenty years. Some people who have been looking up the matter claim that if a road has never been surveyed through there is a question whether or not it can be maintained against the homesteader's right, even though the city has spent some money to improve the road.

The East Fourth street citizens believe that some easy route to the Rice Lake road must be had anyway and Alderman Staples' resolution has been passed by the city council asking that the city engineer make a plat of the most feasible route for a road to Fifth, Sixth or Seventh avenues east from Mesaba avenue.

To give the farmers some relief while the road matter is pending the park board has consented that they may drive with their loads over two blocks of the boulevard in coming in from the Rice Lake road.

The meeting last evening developed a strong sentiment for a Commercial club or Business Men's association for the hill district with a view of looking after matters of import to the residents in that district. A temporary organization was formed with A. J. Harker, president, and John Gouska, secretary. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

BOTH FOOD AND MEDICINE.

We like best to call Scott's Emulsion a food-medicine. It is a term that aptly describes the character and action of our Emulsion. More than a medicine—more than a food, yet combining the vital principles of both. It is for this reason that Scott's Emulsion has a distinct and special value in all wasting diseases. There is nothing better to remedy the troubles of imperfect growth and delicate health in children. The action of Scott's Emulsion is just as effective in treating weakness and wasting in adults.

POWER TO TEST SEALED LETTERS

Said to Have Made New Yorker a Letter Thief.

New York, May 8.—"Is any man safe from the temptation to steal?"

This question is now being seriously asked by every official, high and low, in the New York postoffice. It is prompted by the strange discovery made a few days ago about Timothy Keegan, one of the oldest, apparently most faithful, and certainly one of the most respected and trusted men in the office.

And yet, after nearly twenty-four years' service, Keegan has just turned out to be, according to the sworn allegations of Postal Inspectors Joseph E. Jacobs and W. T. Meyer, a plain, ordinary letter thief—a "burglar," too, inasmuch as he was caught with the decoy letters on him, right at his work.

An unusual, indeed pathetic, feature of Keegan's case, is that he had aided the inspectors many times in ferreting out other thieves in the service, having personally acted as the "test" to trap them. At last he fell into the trap set by some other "test."

Keegan, it is said by the government detectives, is a typical illustration of the power which temptation exerts over a postal clerk once he has acquired that almost extraordinary faculty of positively determining by the smell or the feel which of the letters that he handles contains money. That many of the clerks who are constantly handling letters acquire this faculty is attested by Chief Inspector Walter S. Mayer.

"There is no doubt of the fact," he said yesterday. "I have personally proved it to be true. I have put a greenback in one of ten letters and have placed dummy bills or crumpled slips of paper in the nine other envelopes. The clerk under test—one who had been caught rifling the mails—was then given the ten letters.

"He put them to his nose, one after the other, sniffing only an instant at a corner of each with a motion as quick and deft as though he were merely scratching his nose with the corner of the envelope. Then he quietly selected one—they were all sealed—and handed it back to me, saying:

"'That one has money in it.'

"When that letter was opened it was found to contain the greenback."

Keegan entered the New York postoffice Oct. 22, 1882, as a subordinate and rose through all the grades until he became chief clerk, or foreman in a section of the third division. This is the section which handles all the incoming mail at the general postoffice. In addition Keegan had access to all classes of mail except the registered mail.

He held the confidence of his supporters year by year to such an extent that, as already stated, he was frequently used as a "test" against suspected clerks, and helped to get evidence against them. It was in a curious manner that there came to be directed against him that undefinable suspicion to which all men in the postal service, be they good or bad, are ever likely to be subjected. The governmental supervision of the postal service is a cold-blooded proposition. It amounts to a very practical assumption that every man in the service either is or may be a theif. Consequently the system of espionage is well-nigh universal.

Recently it was noticed that a number of investigations in which Keegan was used, as before, as the "test" failed. The letters were vanishing, but Keegan could not find out who was taking them.

So Jacobs and Meyer applied to Keegan himself the inevitable, deadly test. They caused to reach his hands, in the ordinary course of business, a letter addressed to a firm in the city. It contained four $1 bills and a silver half dollar. When the letter did not reach its destination the detectives pounced on Keegan and found, they swear, the letter and the money on him. They took him before Commissioner Shields, who held him in $2,500 bail for a hearing. He confessed, and, like all the others, he declared, on his honor, that he had begun to steal letters only the day before his detection.

"I don't know why I did it," he said; only I found I was in debt." He has a family at No. 313 West One Hundred and Seventeenth street.

He did not gamble. It was simply a case, it is said, of succumbing to the fascination of the strange power to determine the nature of the contents of a sealed letter.

VEST POCKET TELEPHONE

Has Been Invented by New York Electrical Wizard.

Of Wireless Variety and Has Already Caused Sensation.

Cottage City, Mass., May 8.—Charles E. Alden of New York, who has been pursuing experiments here since last fall in wireless telephoning, has, he says, solved the problem of wireless telephoning, and the result is so simple that it is likely to create a sensation in the business world as well as in scientific circles.

Mr. Alden, while studying the problem, constructed an instrument so small that it can be put into a vest pocket, which, attached to a wireless battery such as is used by the Marconi system, at once begins catching conversations carried along ordinary telephone wires, the distance depending only upon the energy behind the telephones that are sending the messages.

It was one stormy night a few weeks ago, when Mr. Alden had perfected his little receiver and set it up in his studio here on Martha's Vineyard Island, that he sat smoking his after dinner pipe and wondering where he had better set up his standing apparatus, that he was startled by the sound of a voice in the room, of which he was the only occupant. Outside the storm howled along the coast and beat the waves against the rocks of the island.

"Hello! Hello! Is that Mrs. Smith? Yes? Come over this evening if you can."

"All right. Good-bye!"

Mr. Alden sat bolt upright. Then he got up and went to the door. There was no one there. The little instrument on the table began to buzz again, and then came another voice, a different one this time, asking the price of eggs and ordering a groceryman to send up some potatoes first thing in the morning.

Like a flash Mr. Alden realized the situation. His little instrument was not waiting for his sending instrument to be put up, but was pilfering messages from the New England Telephone company's wire which ran along a road three miles away. Wild with delight, Mr. Alden rushed acros lots and got some of his friends to come in and witness the success of his discovery. When they arrived the little apparatus was still busy disclosing neighborhood gossip and all sorts of messages that were buzzing over the wires of the island.

To a reporter who called upon him Mr. Alden told the story of his discovery and how the voices of the night came to him unsolicited, like the talk of spirits.

"I was sitting in my room one night when it dawned upon me that with the wireless telegraph comparatively simple the wireless telephone must go equally simple. I jotted down on paper my ideas as they came to me, and the next morning went to work upon my machine. I was merely experimenting, not having the remotest idea that I was anywhere near success. Suddenly, when I did not dream I had perfected the machine, I received the messages from neighboring ordinary telephones as I have told you. The revelation took me off my feet."

The basis of the system is like that of the wireless telegraph. But a small invention, the details of which he does not make public, completes it. This is called the "new detector." It is this machine, attached to the wireless batteries, which is responsible for the results.

No wire was attached to the receiving instrument, the latter simply being placed on a table in a room. At present Mr. Alden is working on the sending parts of the apparatus.

The possibilities are almost limitless. With the new invention one may yet be able to carry around in his pocket a private telephone, with which he can call up his house and talk with his family wherever he may be. Persons sitting in the grand stand at the race track may telephone to their friends in the city the results of the races undetected.

Messages sent by telephones keyed to ordinary tension may be received by any man within miles who has a pocket telephone. And the perfection of the attuning apparatus, by which individual telephones are keyed to any fraction of a "note" or degree of tension, may make it possible to have comparative secrecy, as receivers will take the message only when attuned to perfect accord. And the wireless telegraph experiments have shown that there can in time be thousands of these fractions of tension.

FOR FEDERAL SERVICE.

Examinations Announced for Various Professions and Departments.

The United States civil service commission has announced a number of examinations to take place here this month and next. The only one additional to those already announced to take place this month will be on May 23 and that will be for the position of poultry assistant in the department of agriculture. The salary to be paid will be $1,200 a year.

On June 6, a number of examinations are scheduled. One of these is for agriculturist in dry-land agriculture and the compensation given in this position is $2,750 a year. Another position to be tried for on that date is that of wheelwright and blacksmith, vacancies occuring at Fort McPherson, Ga., and at Fort Mackenzie, Wyo., the salaries in each place being $900 a year. On June 6 and 7 the position of topographical draftsman in the Panama canal service is to be tried for. The salaries in this run from $100 to $125 a month, the usual entrance salary being $100 a month.

RECEPTION TO CANNON

Speaker the Guest of Event to Honor His Seventieth Birthday.

Washington, May 8.—Speaker Cannon was the guest at a reception given him last night at the Arlington hotel by his colleagues in the house of representatives in honor of his seventieth birthday. It was a notable occasion, made so by the presence of President Roosevelt and almost every official of note in Washington and others from outside cities, who called to extend their congratulations. All the members of the cabinet now in Washington, the members of the supreme court with a large contingent of both houses besides heads of the various bureaus of the executive departments, and prominent residents found time during the evening to come in and shake the speaker's hand, and to wish him many happy returns of the day. President Roosevelt arrived about 10 o'clock and for an hour or more chatted with the speaker and mixed freely with the large crowd. Vice President Fairbanks was among the early arrivals. The parlors where the reception was given were handsomely decorated. The speaker stood before a perfect bower of potted plants and cut flowers in the middle of which was hung an immense gold wreath tied with a ribbon made of the national colors on which was inscribed, "From the speaker's friends." "The Noblest Roman of them All." Away in the distance was a miniature illuminated representation in white of the national capitol with tiny American flags flying over either end, indicating that the respective branches of congress were in session. As Speaker Cannon knew everyone who called to congratulate him, introductions were unnecessary. He gave a cordial welcome to all his friends and heartily responded to the good wishes. The reception lasted from 9 to 12 o'clock and was attended by probably 1,200 persons. There were no ladies present.

GOODHUE COMPLAINT TO GO BEFORE FULL COMMISSION.

St. Paul, May 8.—What was apparently a hearing of little significance before an interstate commerce commissioner, at the federal building yesterday, developed into such importance during the progress of the testimony that E. A. Prouty, representing the interstate commerce commission, announced that the hearing would have to be before the full commission at Washington. The complaint, upon the determination of which practically hinges the readjustment of interstate rates, with reference to all cities and towns of importance in Southern Minnesota and in Northern Iowa, is on the petition of the village of Goodhue, which maitains that on flat wheat rates to Chicago it is discriminated against in favor of Red Wing.

NOT SURE OF NATIVITY.

William Taylor Taking Citizenship Papers to Clear the Doubt.

William Taylor, aged 45, yesterday afternoon took out first citizenship papers in United States court and as soon as Judge Morris returns from Fergus Falls where he is holding court, will try to take out second papers. Taylor believes that he was born in the United States but is not positive of this, and in order to remove doubts as to his citizenship by right of birth is taking out papers.

His parents were born in Scotland and came to this country either before Taylor was born or very shortly afterwards. They died and Taylor was raised by an aunt; and therefore is not sure of his birthplace.

Taylor says he has been molested by unions and wished to establish his citizenship in order that he should be free from this. Citizenship is requisite in unions, but whether Taylor wished to join a union or defy one, could not be learned; he merely said that he wished to be free from the obstacles put in his way by unions to get work.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Iron Mountain—While suffering from delirium tremens, Bragini Giacomo, an Italian miner at Iron Mountain, entered the house of Enric Montonatta, another miner, where Mrs. Montonatto sat nursing her 4-months'-old child. Giacomo asked to hold the child, and when refused tore it from its mother's arms and pounded its brains out against the wall of the room. He then threw the body on the floor and jumped on it. The fiend then attempted a criminal assault upon Mrs. Montonatto, but the arival of her husband prevented it. The murderer fled, pursued by a crowd of excited men, and was finally arrested after a desperate fight in which several were injured. The people are mad with rage, and threaten to demolish the jail and lynch the prisoner. Giacomo is 28 and single.

The wedding of Miss Marinette Lombard, daughter of J. W. P. Lombard, to Richard Sterling Powell of Iron Mountain, occurred last week at the residence of the bride's parents, 205 Prospect avenue, Milwaukee, the Rev. William Austin Smith officiating. Dr. Henry Newkirk of Iron Mountain was best man. The groom is cashier of the First National bank of the Menominee range metropolis.

Menominee—Although Ole Johnson, charged with murder, has secured bondsmen to furnish his $4,000 bail, he is still in jail. His wife has moved the household furniture and all her belongings to Green Bay and has commenced a suit for divorce. She accuses her husband of cruelty and says that he tried to kill her. Johnson is a miser and has hoards of money hiden over his farm. One day he showed a friend a stone pile and then lifting the stone took out an old salmon can full of $10 gold pieces. It is alleged that the case against him is simply a means to beat him out of his fortune.

John L. Mercier of this city, who conducted a tobacco business in Santa Rosa, Cal., lost everything in the earthquake on April 18.

The city of Peshtigo is distracted by a row in the high school. Principal R. C. Wendt expelled several disorderly junior class pupils from the high school but the school board insisted on reinstating them, whereupon he and his two assistants imediately resigned. It is feared that the high school will have to be closed the rest of the year.

George L. Risdale, a sewing machine company's representative in Marinette, caused the arrest of Mrs. Anna Dobeck and Mrs. Stefan, Menominee women. They were taken before Judge Opsahl on the charge of stealing lace and fancy work valued at $20 from the Risdale store. The houses were searched, but no evidence could be found against the women, and they were dismissed. Two actions were at once comenced against Ridsdale to collect $1,000 in each case for malicious prosecution.

Ishpeming—That Ishpeming will be given a company in the state militia, taking the place of Ironwood, mustered out for inefficiency, in the Third regiment, M. N. G., is considered practically assured as a result of a visit of inspection on the part of Assistant Adjutant General Cox and Colonels Thiefman and Rogers.

PIONEERS WILL MEET.

Minnesota Old Settlers Will Make a Day of It May 11.

St. Paul, May 8.—Old settlers from all parts of the state will hold a reunion at the old capitol on May 11, when the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers' association will hold its annual meeting. It is expected that about 300 members of the association will attend. The women's auxiliary will meet at the same time.

An interesting part of the program will be a memorial service conducted by James B. Ghfillan, William Pitt Murray, and Frank G. O'Brien, composing the committee on obituaries. Taps will be sounded by Bugler Calzer. After a social session, dinner will be served in the building by the ladies.

In the afternoon addresses will be made by Dr. Cyrus Northrop of the state university, former Governor Samuel R. Van Sant, Charles E. Staples, president of the association; John D. O'Brien, Judge Bazille, Levi Longfellow, department commander of the G. A. R., and others. The election of officers and the presentation of annual reports will take place at the afternoon session.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Lack of Witnesses Delays Extradition of Larron at Fargo.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The hearing of Alexander Larron on a horse stealing extradition charge is prolonged because of the inability to get certain witnesses here. Having just completed a sentence for horse stealing, Larron is wanted in Canada and in two North Dakota counties on similar charges.

Soil survey work is being done this summer in Williams and Ransom counties. It has formerly been carried on in other counties and will be continued till the entire state is covered. It is being done under the co-operation of the bureau of soil surveys at Washington and Prof. Willard, director of the agricultural college survey. This year a biological survey is also being conducted at the same time.

Negotiations which have been in progress for some time between the master plumbers of the city and the members of the plumbers' union have resulted in a temporary agreement. A new one will be prepared for signature in a month or so. At present some of the establishments are running an open shop.

With the selection of Mrs. O. J. de Lendrecie as president of the Fargo Civic Improvement league, it is expected some results will be attained. She is an enthusiast in the work.

Grand Forks—Rev. Frank H. Hays has tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He has been with the church eight years, and has endeared himself to the Christian people of the city, regardless of denomination.

Rev. J. Kregstad, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, has received a call to the church at Minnewaukan, this state, and has tendered his resignation.

John Dinnie has sold a strip of land along the Great Northern track at the university for $6,300. The land will be used in building a double track between the city and Grand Forks Junction, a distance of three miles.

The Bartles Oil company has leased land from the Northern Pacific and awarded contracts for the buildings needed for a general agency in this city, and expects to be ready for business in a few weeks. This is the first independent oil company to invade North Dakota, where the Standard Oil company has undisputed control of the business.

A large brick barn on the farm of John Dinnie, near the university, burned, together with 2,000 bushels of grain, many tons of hay and a large stock of harness, used at the brickyards of Dinnie Bros. The loss is estimated at $4,000, with an insurance of $2,700. Martin Malby and Peter Johnson, sleeping on the second floor of the building, were awakened after the structure was wrapped in flames and had a narrow escape. Sixteen horses were removed.

The trustees of the university of North Dakota have decided that the $30,000 donated by Andrew Carnegie for a library building is not sufficient, and $30,000 will be added and a $60,000 building constructed this year. Something like $15,000 will be expended on repairs and changes in the main building, where a large section is devoted to library purposes now.

Grand Forks lodge of Elks met in regular session Saturday evening to discuss the question of building. There are two plans, one to build a home for Elks and the other a business block, with the Elks on the top floor.

The contract for the construction of a new warehouse and office building of the International Harvester company has been awarded to Berge & Hodson, Fergus Falls. The structure complete will cost about $100,000. Work will begin at once.

Hankinson—The board of education has appointed teachers as follows: Superintendent, R. E. Smith, re-elected with an increase in salary of $200; principal, Mrs. K. R. Whitcomb, re-elected and salary increased; Miss Jeanne M. Palmer, Miss F. O. Lee, Miss Nina Carter, Miss C. Olson, Miss Mary Franklin. Two more teachers will be elected as soon as the new board meets. The year closing was the most successful in the history of the school, it having been raised to the rank of a second-grade high school.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Yankton—A novel shipment passed through this city in a bunch of 739 head of stock bound from Mexico to Canada. The total freight bill was over $5,000, or over $7 a head.

At Wagner Thursday night a 9-year-old boy named Bud Harney, son of Tom Harney of that place, was thrown from a horse and dragged by the stirrup along the Milwaukee tack. His neck was broken and he lived only half an hour. The horse took fright at a freight train.

Crofton, a small town about eighteen miles south of here, is in the midst of a substantial boom as the direct results of the Omaha extension from Hartington. The First National and Farmers' State banks, just organized, are doing a good business; the residence and business portions are showing more activity than ever before and property is advancing rapidly.

Aberdeen—The suit of J. Allen, manager at Redfield for the Edwards-Wood Commission company, for salary alleged to be due, was disposed of, the plaintiff winning the case. This is the second trial, the jury at the first hearing having failed to agree. The defendant company will appeal. The amount involved is about $350.

Groton—Attorney W. J. Ellwood has been practicing law under peculiar circumstances the past few days. He is attorney in a land contest case in which the other principal to the suit has been pending to retain possession by chasing away farmers to whom Ellwood rented the property in behalf of his client. Pending a settlement of the suit in the courts, Ellwood employed a husky farmer. Now the two are doing the seeding, the laborer driving the drill and the attorney running the drag. Ellwood held his ground, literally despite the efforts of the contestant to drive him away.

Watertown—Mayor J. W. Martin has made it known that cardrooms and gambling houses must be closed and remain closed during his term of office.

It is well known that gambling has been going on in Watertown for several years, but the gambling houses have only occasionally been disturbed. Mayor Martin's policy included the prohibition of open gambling in the city or the toleration of cardrooms kept for such purposes.

Pierre—Adj.-Gen. Englesby is in the city on matter pertaining to the national guard, and says it is being brought to a point where the state can afford to give it liberal support, it having been cut down to one regiment of infantry, the Fourth, two troops of cavalry at Pierre and Evarts and a signal corps at Redfield. The state is entitled to the equipment of a modern battery of artillery with breech-loading guns, but it would require a company of 134 men, and the expense would be greater than the benefit. Consequently it would not be put into commission at present.

The encampment this year will begin July 6 on the state grounds at Watertown. For five Saturdays preceding the encampment an officers' school will be held there under the instruction of Capt. George D. Geyer of the regular army, now stationed at Brookings. The officers have agreed to serve without pay for this purpose.

SUICIDE PACT PRINCIPAL LIVES TO BE ARRESTED.

Edmonton, Sask., May 8.—George McLean, a white man 19 years old, and Mary Fortier, a breedwoman of 18, resolved to die together and ate chocolate containing poison.

The woman is dead, but the man is recovering and has been placed under arrest, having been found at the coroner's inquest a party to the poisoning.

When dying the woman said: "Goodby, George, are you dying yet?" and in agony he replied, "Goodby, Mary."

WEST END

KEEPS UP TO SCHEDULE

Contractor Hugh Steele Paving West Superior Street Rapidly.

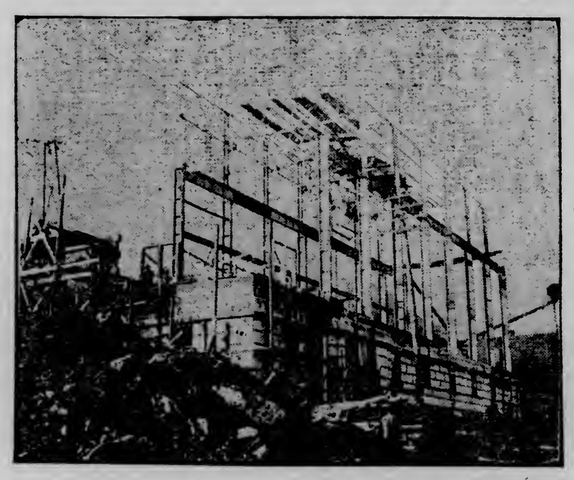
Contractor Hugh Steele is keeping up the pace he started this spring on the West Superior street paving, and last night was laying the tar between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues west. By tonight the greater part of that block will have been finished. He began this year at Twenty-first avenue west heading east and while he had met with a few interruptions from up to his schedule in almost coming up to his setschedule of two blocks a week. The street is being used as far down as Nineteenth and probably today will be used as far as Eighteenth.

Mr. Steele says that eas of Eighteenth avenue will be easier paving than west of that point for between Eighteenth and Twenty-first avenues in particular the ground is almost a bog. Water can be struck at a depth of two feet at any time. Men who have been acquainted with this piece of ground say that in all the time they have been in Duluth they have never seen the street as dry in that part as it has been this spring. That was the part which Mr. Steele dreaded and now that he is over it, he is happy. Barring interruptions by weather, it is expected that very rapid progress will be made hereafter.

When Fifteenth avenue is reached, the laying of tar macadam will cease for two blocks, Telford macadam being the contract material for the two blocks from Fifteenth to Thirteenth avenues. Then the laying of tar macadam will resume from Thirteenth to Eighth avenues west. About eighty men are employed on the job.

West end people are very much pleased with the progress that is being made by the contractor.



GREAT NORTHERN POWER CO.'S DISTRIBUTING STATION.

Work is being pushed on the construction of the distributing station of the Great Northern Power company at Fifteenth avenue west and Superior street. The accompanying picture shows the steel frame work already in place, and also some of the concrete work which has been set. Contractor Hilliard says that from now on the growth of the building will be more perceptible.

BAPTIST UNION

To Hold Social at First Swedish Church Wednesday Evening.

The Duluth Baptist union will hold a gathering and social time tomorrow evening at the First Swedish Baptist church, corner Nineteenth avenue west and First street. This will take in all of the Baptist denomination in the city and it is expected that the attendance will be large. The program will be as follows:

Chorus—"Nearer My God to Thee"
Prayer ..... K. A. Ostergren
Piano solo—Selected ..... Prof. N. E. Ericson
Address—"Baptist Oportunity" ... W. B. Patton.
Vocal—"Who Shall Abide?" ..... Male quartet.
Piano solo—Selected ..... Rev. L. S. Mitchell.
Address—"Baptist Unity" ..... Rev. Arthur J. Hoag.
Duet—"Hope Beyond" ..... White
O. G. Olson and August Hagberg.

LAYING OFF ORE MEN.

West End Begins to Feel Effects of Marine Strike.

The strike has caused the laying off of a great many men at the ore docks and the West end is beginning to feel the effects. Thirty-nine men were released at the docks last night and it is expected that more will be released soon if the strike is not settled.

The docks are being guarded with a force of deputy police, twenty being assigned to duty yesterday. Most of the extras are sworn in among the laborers who have been laid off so they are being given employment for the present. They went to work yesterday afternoon, and another squad may be sworn in today to guard the boats loading ore at the dock.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY.

Two Old Comrades in Arms Celebrate Important Anniversary.

J. S. Forward and A. M. Hopkins and their families, all residents of the West end, celebrated the birth anniversary of Messrs. Forward and Hopkins at the former's home, 2501 West First street, last evening. These two fought side by side through the Civil war and later came to Duluth together. It was not until after coming to Duluth, however, that they found that their birth anniversary was on the same day. This year it occurred on Sunday so the event was celebrated yesterday.

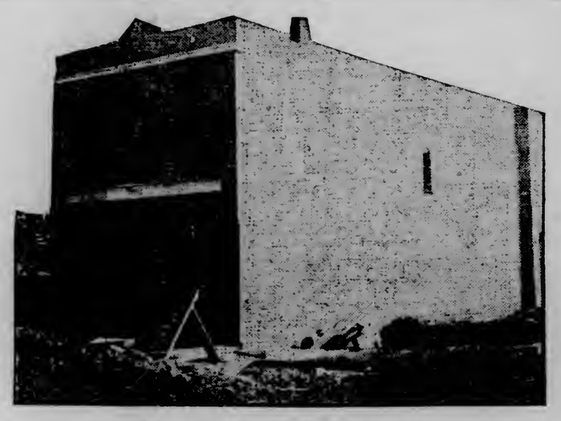
The two old soldiers have been celebrating the day together ever since they discovered the fact that the date was significant to both. A most enjoyable time was held last night.

REARRANGES LODGE ROOMS.

Beta Council of Samaritans Refitting Columbia Hall.

Beta council of Modern Samaritans which has taken a lease of Columbia hall for the current year, is fixing the hall over to a considerable extent. The second floor of the building which is the part under lease is being altered to a considerable extent and the walls and ceilings are being renovated and repapered throughout. The platforms and positions for officers are being rearranged and consequently the seating will also be arranged.

New seats will be furnished. The old style common chairs will not be used but up-to-date and comfortable seats will be substituted. It is expected that the hall will be a beauty when it will have been prepared.



HENRY GUJER'S NEW BUILDING.

The business building being erected on Twentieth avenue west between Superior and First streets, by Henry Gujer, is rapidly nearing completion. The exterior part of the work is about all done while the interior is being rushed. The building is of brick and is up-to-date in every way. The whole of the ground floor will be occupied by the Anchor laundry, while the upper floor will be made into two flats.

Temperance Union Officers.

The Duluth Union Temperance society held its annual meeting at the First Swedish M. E. church, last evening, and elected officers for the ensuing year. Very little business was done otherwise. The officers elected for the year are as follows:

President, Rev. E. H. Stenberg; vice president, John Bodin; secretary, Gust Hedman (re-elected); treasurer, John Sundeen (re-elected).

St. Luke's Church News.

This evening a meeting of the parish committee of St. Luke's Episcopal church will be held at the residence of the rector, Rev. R. J. Mooney, 1927 West Third street. A full attendance is asked.

Tomorrow afternoon the young women of the What-So-Ever guild will meet with Miss Myrtle McKenzie of 620 Twenty-fourth avenue west.

West End Shortrails.

The Young People's society of the First Swedish Baptist church will have its monthly business meeting this evening at the church, corner of Nineteenth avenue west and First street, at 8 o'clock.

The Young Ladies' society of the First Swedish Baptist church will have a meeting for Bible study at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fredin, 3 Eleventh avenue west, on Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Enblom of Two Harbors visited with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hurtig of 613 Twenty-third avenue, last Sunday.

A son has ben born to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson of 515 Nineteen-and-a-half avenue west.

Rev. John A. Anderson, pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church, will leave tomorrow for Ishpeming to attend the annual district conference of the Swedish M. E. churches in Michigan and the iron country of Minnesota, including Duluth. He will preach at Ishpeming Sunday and at Iron Mountain on Monday.

Mesdames T. Hanson and T. Olson wish to announce to those who have subscribed for the purchase of an artificial limb for Miss Ellen Holmsted, that the subscription amounted to $57.70.

MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1906

Formally Constituted Tuesday Evening by Sheldon L. Frazer, G. S. D.

Virginia Lodge No. 264, A. F. & A. M., was formally constituted at the lodge hall of the order in the handsome new Minnesota Block, the impressive ceremonies being conducted by Sheldon L. Fraser, Grand Senior Deacon, assisted by J. E. Cooley, W. E. Hoyt, H. Burgo, Henry Van Brunt, L. A. Barnes and W. H. Wurtel, who installed the following charter officials according to the solemn and impressive Masonic ceremony

W. M.—C. T. Fairbairn.
S. W.—Adelbert Trotter.
J. W.—Chas. B. Lenont.
Treas.—D. B. McDonald.
Sec'y—W. R. Wasson.
S. D.—John H. Crowe.
J. D.—Geo. O. Hastings
S. S.—W. J. Schultz.
J. S.—John D. Lamont.
Tyler—Guy H. Moore.

The new lodge home of the order is furnished throughout in Karpen Mission Oak, the suite of rooms occupied comprising a commodious lodge room, ladies' parlor, gent's parlor, banquet hall and kitchen. The complete furnishings, including furniture, carpets, piano, dishes, etc., were installed by Panton & White, Duluth, and the rooms are certainly the most commodious and most handsomely furnished of any lodge home on the ranges.

The evening's exercises were attended by many visitors from the Duluth, Eveleth and Two Harbors lodges, while numbered among the guests of the evening were members of the order from Michigan, Ohio and New York lodges.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies an adjournment was taken to the banquet hall, where M. E. Fanning presided as toastmaster and a pleasant hour was spent in caring for the inner man and in listening to many expressions of good will by visiting members.

LONGFELLOW SAID:

"We lead but one life here on earth;
We must make that beautiful,
And to do this, health and elasticity of mind are needful,
And whatever endangers or impedes these must be avoided."

Just a plain bit of good,
old-fashioned common sense.
Now apply common sense to your "health of body and mind."
It's largely a question of Food

When "run down" or ailing in any way you may be sure the life forces are not taking up, from your present food, the things required to keep Body and Brain well. It is very sure you will discover help when the food is changed properly. The reason for advocating GRAPE-NUTS is that this food contains the natural Phosphate of Potash obtained from Wheat and Barley from which Nature makes (in combination with Albumen of the food) the gray filling of Brain and Nerve centres.

Build Brain and Nerves up strong and vigorous and you have achieved the power to "make this life beautiful."

There's a Reason.

10 days trial of Grape-Nuts will prove.

A DR.'S FOOD.

Found a Food That Lifted Him Out of Trouble.

The food experience of a doctor experimenting with himself is worth knowing. He says:

"I had acid dyspepsia since I have any knowledge, from eight years old, I know.

"It worked down from stomach to intestines locating at the umbilicus in enteritis until six years ago the agony every few days was something terrible. I walked the floors for hours unable to eat or digest if I should eat.

"Medicine would not relieve me at all. Four years ago I began the use of Grape-Nuts and since the first dish I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I take four tablespoonfuls once a day with my supper which is composed only of whole wheat bread and the Grape-Nuts.

"The wonderful part of my case is that I have never had an attack or even any of the dreadful symptoms since the very first meal of Grape-Nuts. Most of my patients know how suddenly and promptly Grape-Nuts cured me and I have prescribed the food with good results in many cases." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Grape-Nuts is regularly prescribed in place of medicine by many physicians for stomach or intestinal trouble lack of nourishment, brain-fag and nervous prostration. The result usually shows immediate improvement and a speedy complete cure.

AN IOWA SUICIDE.

H. M. Wilson, While Despondent, Sends Bullet Through His Head.

Webster City, Iowa, May 8.—H. M. Wilson of Eagle Grove committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head with a 38-caliber revolver. His wife was getting breakfast when she heard the report of a gun from his bedroom, and upon entering found him lying upon the bed, dead, the ball having entered the forehead and passed through the head. A wife and two sons survive him. Wilson was 40 years of age.

THE SKIES ARE CLEARING.

Affairs in the commercial world appear to be adjusting themselves very rapidly, with the prospects good that before the summer is far along the sky will be clear and no threatening clouds will linger upon the horizon.

The coming of peace to the anthracite coal fields appears to clear away the last remaining storm cloud that affects the general situation, though the lake strike cannot fail to have considerable effect through widespread channels. But a long, bitter hard coal strike would have meant the suspension of more or less industry, and if continued long enough would have brought bitter hardships in connection with the scarcity and dearness of coal next winter. Now, however, the strike is over, the men are going back to work, and the award of the strike commission of 1903 is continued in force for three years, insuring peace for that length of time.

In the soft coal fields there is practicaly no strike, most of the operators having conceded the demands of the men, and today there is scarcely enough trouble to affect the soft coal output noticeably.

The announcement has been made by the large coal companies, promptly following the settlement of the strike, that a reduction of 40 cents a ton in the price of hard coal will be made. This gives the public an immediate dividend upon the peaceful outcome, and will make the price of coal just what it would have been in Duluth had the customary reduction of 50 cents a ton been made April 1, and the customary advance of 10 cents made May 1.

GO SLOWLY.

This plan of arranging for the disposal of the city's garbage is a very important matter, and one that should be studied very carefully by the city council before the final arrangements are made. While it is being done, it must be done properly, and in the light of the best interests of the city and its citizens.

The fact that the proposed contract purports to be exclusive, and has a life of ten years, makes it doubly important that the city should look into it with exceptional care, for it is much easier to get into such a contract than it is to get out of it. It has its advantages, and they are many; but it seems to have its disadvantages, too, and these should be weighed most carefully.

Briefly, the contractor agrees to handle all garbage for a period of ten years, and have it burned in the city garbage-burner, collecting it twice a week in summer and once in winter. A scale of prices is submitted, and these should be considered well. The cost for residences is guaranteed not to exceed $1.25 per month in summer and $1 in winter; but many householders now have both garbage and ashes removed for 50 cents a month, and the new deal does not include ashes. It might be possible that when the householder pays even a reasonable price for garbage disposal, and then takes care of his ashes in addition, the expense would be greater than it is at present.

The whole proposition is new to the people, and it should not be closed with until it has had very close consideration. It may be that upon examination all seeming disadvantages will turn into advantages. But even though the city has the right to buy the contractor's outfit in five years, it is a long-time contract, and exclusive, and it must not be entered into hastily and without deepest consideration.

MR. BEDE'S PLAN.

It is a little baffling at times to be quite certain whether one is supposed to take Congressman Bede seriously in his proposals. It is rather discouraging to take him seriously and then find out that he was but jesting, so people are sometimes justified in seeking the safe side by assuming that he is joking even if they fail to see the point.

It is very likely, however, that in his proposition to make another speech before congress adjourns, in which he will advocate taking the tariff out of politics by having a federal commission to revise it every decade, he is thoroughly serious. That would be a very sensible proposition, if it could be arranged, yet there are difficulties in the way. The tariff question should not be in politics at all. Politics and the tariff never did get on well together, and never will until politics becomes strictly public business untainted and uncomplicated by personal and party ambitions that rise superior to public business.

But unless some operation could be performed upon the members of the tariff commission that would remove their partisanship, the tariff would still be in politics, because the commission would doubtless be composed of protectionists, free traders, believers in tariff for revenue only, and all the various grades of tariff thinkers.

The success of such a commission would come when this country had a clearly defined and well understood tariff policy, which it has not now. Theoretically, this nation stands unalterably committed to protection, to a protection that will nurse our infant industries and protect our American labor. Practically, it is saddled with a tariff that is ridiculous, absurd and oppressive, in that it protects industries that need no protection, and enables them to charge grossly unfair prices in this country while making decent profits on lower prices abroad.

And when we want to change this tariff, and make it serve us and give us a more comfortable distribution of prosperity, Mr. Bede says "wait until the hard times come and let the people learn that a high protective tariff cannot assure continuous and uninterrupted prosperity, and then it will be safe to take up the question and enact legislation correcting existing evils in tariff schedules."

"Let the tariff be revised by its friends," shout the partisan leaders; but its friends show absolutely no intention of revising it if they can help it. Instead they tell us that to revise it would disturb business and interrupt prosperity, and that we must wait. It is always "wait". A few more waits, and the friends of the tariff are likely to find that their opportunity to revise is gone, and that the tariff has slipped into the hands of its enemies.

A LAKE SHORE PARK.

The prospects of having a park on the lake front at Twelfth avenue east, between London road and the lake, is very alluring indeed, and it is to be hoped that the work of Mayor Cullum, who has been laboring upon the plan for some time, will have a successful outcome.

The spot is most attractive, and to improve it into a beautiful park will add immensely to the comeliness of that section of the city. The proposed park area extends from Eighth avenue east to Fourteenth avenue east, and is bordered on the east by Chester creek. The property is owned by the Northern Pacific railroad, and the success of the park plan depends upon the terms the road is willing to grant, and also the amount the property-owners of that vicinity are willing to contribute. They have shown a disposition to do their part, and this is helpful, because the park fund is small, and to buy the tract outright and improve it would be too heavy a drain upon it.

Parks are valuable assets to cities, and Duluth has many natural advantages that make park-building easy. Should this area be made into a park, it will be the only one in that section of the city, and it is, for that matter, practically the only tract there that could be easily made into a park.

If the financial arrangements can be conveniently made, the plan is a very good one indeed, and a park of which all Duluth would be proud should result.

CURES BY SHOCK.

A curious feature of the San Francisco earthquake was the number of miraculous cures it wrought.

In the excitement of the moment when the earth trembled, buildings tottered, and mankind, in wildest panic, fled to the open air, cripples walked, the dumb spoke, and the bed-ridden forgot their disabilities.

One paralytic, who had been crippled for fifteen years, is now entirely cured, and numerous other recoveries have been recorded. Another curious manifestation was that of a young girl who was stricken dumb by the shock, but who recovered her voice when overcome by emotion at the sight of her mother.

The New York Sun tells of an incident during the war between Russia and Japan where similar results came from a sudden shock. A party of foreigners gave a dinner to one of their number in a Japanese city. The feast was ample and generous, and there was abundant provision for washing it down with liquids more or less potent. At a late stage of the dinner came the time when men found their natures changed by the insidious influence of drink. The grave became gay, the light-hearted became ponderously and foolishly solemn, and everybody was afflicted with the delusion that he was having a tremendously good time.

Then the dinner was suddenly ended by an earthquake, and the shock abruptly cleared away the mists of alcohol and the guests became sobered. A dignified European military officer of middle life found himself upon the table howling a famous drinking song. Another man of high estate was dancing to illustrate a story he had just told. The rest were engaged in pursuits and occupying attitudes of which they suddenly became much ashamed. The party broke up in confusion and blushes.

There is nothing new about this. The effect of fright or other powerful emotion has often been noted. When fires broke out or grim death loomed in violent form, cripples have before forgotten their ills and acted like well people. Very likely such incidents will afford much encouragement to those who are so impressed with the obvious influence of "mind over matter" that they have come to the conclusion that all illness is a delusion, and that all man needs to be well is to think he is well.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"River drivers are very independent people this spring," said F. I. Crowley of Tower, at the Lenox. "Jobs seem to be more numerous than men to take them, on some of the rivers, at least, and consequently the drivers can do about as they please. They are naturally an independent lot, anyway, and don't seem to care much whether they are working or not. The very nature of their business has a tendency to make them that way, I suppose.

"To the ordinary person river driving doesn't look difficult, except in the case of a jam, but it is not so easy as it looks. Anybody can stand on a big log, with a pole braced against another, and ride down stream, but when it comes to riding one tiny log, that will barely hold a man above water, it is a different proposition. And take it when a swift stream is filled with logs, little and big, and a man has to travel about over them, leaping ones, every bit of science he has is ones, every bit of science he has is brought into play.

"The best drivers sometimes slip, and that means they will have to work during the day in clothes that are wringing wet, no matter what the temperature of the atmosphere may be, unless the boat carrying the camp outfit is close behind. Early in the season cakes of ice are mixed with the logs, which doesn't in the least add to the pleasantness of the situation.

"It will not be many years now before river driving in this part of the country will be a thing of the past. The timber is rapidly being cut, and where bunches of it are left they are tapped by railroads, making driving unnecessary. The railroad is fast taking the place of the river as a means of getting logs to the mill in all parts of the country."

"I heard the advance man of Ringlings' circus tell a pretty good monkey story down in Southern Wisconsin a few weeks ago," said A. S. Grimes of Milwaukee, at the St. Louis. "Hamlet was the monkey hero of the tale. The big shows were preparing for the summer campaign down at Baraboo, Wis., winter headquarters, and an army of workmen was swarming around the establishment. A careless painter left a pail of blue paint on the ledge of the monkey cage, and Hamlet did the rest.

"He was known as a bearded monkey, and he proceeded at once to color his beard the color of the sky, meeting with excellent success in his efforts. He plastered the stuff all around his face, not letting a single hair escape. His debut among his associates after the make-up was complete brought chatters of approval, and, if there had been any paint left, blue whiskers would have become the rage in monkey society than and there. Hamlet was the lion of the hour, but only for an hour. For when the paint dried and glued his hair into chunky, sticky balls, that pulled and tortured his skin, he became the most miserable little monk that ever had the blues, internally or externally.

"The animal grooms discovered him, and tried to wash him out of his predicament, but water proved useless, acids were painful, and it was finally decided that the only remedy would be to give him a shave. It took four or five men to accomplish this simple feat. He was then replaced in his cage, happy in his cleanliness, but his social doom had been sealed, for his former companions fled from him in fright. His naked head was too much for them, and since the ill-fated event he has had no part in the joys of his companions."

R. L. McCormick, who was defeated in his candidacy for mayor of Tacoma, Wash., at the last election, is registered at the Spalding. The fact that he ran on the Republican ticket, in a town that is Democratic, resulted in his defeat. Mr. McCormick is secretary and general manager of the Weyerhauser Timber company at Tacoma.

"The saloon element was against me in the campaign," he said, "because I would not agree to take the lid off. We put up a good, clean fight, and I lost by a small majority. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that the ministers were also against me because I would not agree to screw the lid down perfectly tight. I took the middle ground and won the opposition of the saloons and the ministers.

"Opposition also developed from the fact that many people thought I would not be as fair to the Union Pacific road as my opponent, owing to my long-standing relations with the Northern roads. I think I made a pretty good showing, considering the opposition I have told of, and the fact that my opponent was already mayor, and in control of the administration.

"I left San Francisco by train the evening before the big earthquake, but came near staying over to attend grand opera. I was on a train at Red Cliff, Cal., when we felt the shock of the earthquake. San Francisco will be built on a greater and more magnificent scale than before the disaster."

THE WEATHER.

Summer has evidently gone away for a spring vacation. The fine, warm weather of a week or so ago, which brought people suddenly into spring clothes, has been succeeded by cold weather that has sent them as suddenly back into their winter apparel. Last night it was cloudy and windy and cold, and though it was clear and bright for a while this morning, later it clouded up again, and the wind blew a chilling breath from the lake. Last night's lowest temperature was 32 deg. and yesterday's highest was 44 deg. The weather man's view of prospects for tonight and tomorrow includes cloudiness, frost and easterly winds, which promises no immediate improvement. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"The slight disturbance central Monday morning over Western North Dakota has moved its center to Lake Michigan, causing light rains over the Red River, Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys and southern lake region. The depression off the New England coast also caused some rain in East Gulf and Atlantic states. High pressure areas overlie Southeastern states and the Northwest, attended by slightly lower temperatures. It is somewhat warmer over the Lower Mississippi valley. Another disturbance is developing over Arizona. The easterly movement of the Dakota high pressure area will doubtless be attended by mostly clearer weather in this section tonight and Wednesday, with variable winds, mostly easterly."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; heavy frost tonight; warmer Wednesday; westerly winds becoming variable.

Cuddle Time.

As the evening shadows gather,
Then 'tis cuddle time, I know,
When my baby, dressed for Dreamland,
Comes a-romping to me so;
Comes and begs of me to hold him
On my knees and "rock-a-bye,"
As the purpling sun sinks lower
In the gleaming western sky.

And he cuddles to me nearer,
As the firelight softly glows,
And across the dusky portals
Ghostly flickering shadows throws;
And two dimpled arms about me
Are clasped tighter for a kiss—
Ah, was richer, rarer necklace
Placed about one's neck than this?

And I clasp and hold him closer,
Little tousled head of gold,
As he begs dad for a "story"
Which a hundred times I've told;
Begs to have me "tell it over"—
Of the quaint Red Riding Hood,
Or the bears—that happy family
Living in the deep, dark wood.

Soon the drooping, drooping lashes,
Cover up two eyes of brown,
And the tousled head so golden
On my breast sinks lower down;
Lower yet, till, deep in slumber,
Cuddled close to me he lies,
With the glory of the sunset
In his sleeping, dreaming eyes.

In his eyes, in whose rare luster
Shines the beauty of the dawn,
Till I know that into Dreamland
My wee golden-head has gone.
Ah, the sweetness of the pleasure,
Making life one golden rhyme,
With a dimpled babe to fondle
When it cometh Cuddle Time!

New Industry for Bovey.

Bovey, Minn., Iron News: Col. Klink, late of Northome, has set up a roulette wheel in Halvor Oas' place. The colonel and his little dog "Klondike" are known far and wide, and his friends line the routes between Minnesota and Alaska.

Mr. Klink knows a good town and is very much pleased with Bovey. The old gentleman is also very much elated over the near approach of a pension which Representative Bede has just secured for him. Col. Klink has a reputation of being a fair dealer, and his stand will be a popular one.

Mary Turned Out Wrong.

Detroit Journal: Frank Stockton undertook to raise chickens at one time by way of diversion. He gave his first brood a great deal of attention, naming each one of the chicks after some literary friend, among the rest Mary Mapes Dodge. One day Mrs. Dodge visited the chicken farm and inquired after her namesake. "Funny thing about little Mary Mapes Dodge," said Stockton. "Do you know, she turns out to be Thomas Bailey Aldrich."

A Moral and a Warning.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Guilty!" says the law in answer to the plea made by Henry G. Goll of Milwaukee, that in performing shady deeds as assistant cashier of the First National bank of that city he was merely "obeying orders." The plea does not hold good at all under the law. The law expects every man to do his duty and, above all things, his duty is to be honest. A superior's orders do not excuse or justify wrongful acts. Dishonesty "under orders" is no less unlawful than dishonesty on one's own initiative. Because he obeyed the instructions of President Bigelow, now in a penitentiary, the assistant cashier must go, too, to a penitentiary. Here is a case which at once teaches a moral and serves warning.

A Family Affair.

Harper's Weekly: "Once upon a time there lived a good man in New York, who was soliciting contributions for the erection of an orphan asylum," said the story-teller. "He had been to many rich people and received liberal contributions, which were entered in a book he had for that purpose. Among those many names there appeared 'Mrs. Russell Sage, $25.' The good man went to Mr. Sage's office, and showing him the contribution entered in the book by Mrs. Sage, asked if he would not give a like sum. And what do you suppose he did?"

"Well, I suppose he at least doubled it," remarked a listener.

"Doubled it! Not Russell," exclaimed the teller of the story. "Why, he simply took his pen and wrote 'Mr. and' before his wife's name, and handed the book back to the good man."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Sauk Center Herald: We don't believe there is any more corporate influence in Duluth than there is in St. Paul, St. Peter or Sauk Center, but if there was, if the Republican party sends delegates that can be influenced by corrupt interests, they can be influenced in one place as well as another.

Littlefork Times: The best remedy to take for a red nose is generally to quit taking too much.—Big Fork Compass.

Sunbeam Sunbeam: Any one that is of the opinion that Bob Dunn is politically dead is liable to find out that he is mistaken before the close of that convention June 13th. There is one thing certain and that is that Dunn is in the house of his friends when he is at Duluth.

Rochester Post and Record: If the Republican party is to stand it must change its leaders and live up to the principles it professes, principles which, conscientiously carried out, will ensure "a government by the people, of the people and for the people," and respected in the future as it has been in the past. Otherwise it is doomed. The independent voter is in the land.

Lancaster Herald: By buying American made goods abroad, summer tourists going to Europe should be able to save the cost of the trip.

Anoka Herald: Cannon is mentioned for the presidency. It will end right there—in being mentioned.

Pine City Pine Poker: An Eastern paper says one California cherry was auctioned off in Philadelphia for $105. One cherry in a glass has often cost an individual more than that, and not for charity, either.

Rochester Post and Record: It is said that C. F. Macdonald, editor of the St. Cloud Times, can have the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor if he will accept it. Brother Macdonald is one of the cleanest, biggest-hearted men in the state, and an ornament to his profession. He has been commander of the G. A. R., and president of the Minnesota Editorial association, and is respected and admired by all who know him. His only failing is his obliquity of vision politically. Should he be nominated the Democrats would have an editorial ticket, so far as its head is concerned.

Minneota Mascot: The new code is receiving some hard knocks from the state press. Well, it might be a good deal better, that we admit. It might also be a good deal worse. It certainly is convenient in size, condensed and plainly worded. Even a man of ordinary intelligence can, after reading a paragraph of the code, form a pretty accurate idea of what it means, which is more than can be said for most legal documents. It has its faults, of course, but time and coming legislatures can remedy these.

Hinckley Enterprise: No interest appears to be taken in the governorship fight by anyone except the candidates and their friends. There are various reasons for this, the main one being that there is really no issue on which to awaken enthusiasm. The satisfaction given by Governor Johnson also tends to keep down the enthusiasm.

The Garden.

I know a garden, sweet and beautiful,
Where tall flowers grow, as fragrant all as those
Which make the longed-for country wonderful,
The lily and the rose.
And smaller blossoms of forgotten naming
That kindle its dim corners into flaming,
Or welcomed the tired eyesight to repose.

Beyond, the noisy city keeps her march
With fevered step, with shoutings and with cries;
Her iron streets beneath the hot sun parch;
She glares at glaring skies.
Within these charmed high walls a hidden fountain
Whispers lost memories of moor and mountain,
Singing to heavy hearts low lullabies.

The weary city girdles it with stone
And breathes her sodden breath about the walls—
The city seeks to slay it there alone;
Peace still upon it falls.
For the soft breeze that stirs its heavy roses
Comes laden with the scent of country posies,
And in its rustling all the country calls.

Imprisoned! Are you in me or without,
Strange garden, all unknown to alien sight?
The cruel city presses all about,
But flushed with fair light,
Your moving branches by far winds set blowing,
And mystic flowers in your borders growing,
I know you mine by right.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

It's no use to deny that a dimple tastes the sweetest of all.

It makes a man pretty cross to have his wife act as if he had a good temper, too.

The louder a man hollers about not being willing to work for anybody but himself, the smaller the salary he could earn.

Maybe babies would learn to talk much earlier than they do if they had a real language talked to them by the women folk.

The People Lose in This Game.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Philadelphia Press: McJigger — Of course, you've heard about Meekley. Poor fellow! he's lost his power of speech.

Thingumbob—Nonsense! Why only this morning he was married to Miss Strongmind and—

McJigger—Well?

Watson's Magazine: She (indignantly)—Stop, sir! You shall not kiss me again! How rude you are! Don't you know any better?

He (cheerily)—I haven't kissed every girl in town, it is true, but as far as I have gone I certainly don't know any better.

Washington Star: "How do you know your husband really works hard at his office at night?" asked the suspicious woman.

"Because he hasn't any headache next morning," answered Mrs. Wise.

Columbus Dispatch: The old man came into the parlor just in time to catch the young man kissing his daughter.

"Sir," said the stern parent, "what do you mean by that kind of business?"

"Pardon me," rejoined the young man, calmly; "but it isn't business at all; it's the pleasantest kind of pleasure."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Would you give your seat in a car to a plain woman?"

"Not if I imagined she would suspect why I gave it to her."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Ruth—I see, Aunt Hannah, that a San Francisco jeweler has sent a rush order East for 100 wedding rings.

Aunt Hannah (aged 39)—What is the fare to San Francisco?

Sleepy Boarder—That's all right, Mrs. Irons. "He that hath thriven may lie till 7." I've thriven. I proposed to Miss Bullion last night and was accepted. (Snores softly.)

Congressional Benevolence.

Washington Post: It having been settled by the house that the policy of free seed distribution is to be continued, it seems pertinent to ask why, now that it has been determined to be correct in principle and beneficial in its results, it should not be made broader and more general in its application to the farmers throughout the country. Next in value after the crops come the animal and poultry interests, and it is of the utmost importance to agriculture that the best stock should be secured and propagated. Would it not be well to provide for a great poultry establishment at Washington, where the choicest breeds of fowls can be raised and their eggs distributed under congressional franks? There is no telling what might be accomplished. Some one with the genius and skill of Burbank in the plant line might succeed by skillful crossing in evolving new breeds of the greatest use. We might have cocks that wouldn't crow or fight, hens that would lay three times a day, warranted never to scratch, and whose flesh would be as tender and toothsome at 10 years of age as at 6 months. Buy a few thousand acres in Maryland or Virginia, properly equip the farm, and have fifty or so employes, and eggs enough could be turned out to give every farmer at least one sitting.

Then, too, their live stock ought to be improved, and large numbers of them haven't the knowledge or means to do it. The government ought to send abroad and buy 15,000 or 20,000 of the choicest bulls and stallions, build model stables for them here in the district, and then start them off in squads under proper supervision to improve the breeds of cattle and horses all over the United States. Think what a change it would make in a few years; and isn't agriculture the cornerstone of everything, and are not the honest, toiling farmers the most deserving of any class of recognition and encouragement?

A Test of Reason.

New York World: "The recent outbursts from the orators of the Republican party against tariff revision remind me of the story of the old Irish woman who thought her dying husband insane," Representative Champ Clark of Missouri said.

"The old woman, a covetous old soul, was in the room listening to her husband making his last will and testament.

"'Now, tell me exactly what is owing you,' the lawyer said.

"'Timothy Brown owes me $300,' answered the old man. 'Casey owes me $175 and'—

"'Lake Brown owes me $80,' continued the old man.

"'To Mike Lafferty I owe $375'—

"'Ah, interrupted the old woman, 'hear him rave, hear him rave!'"

Wisdom of an Elephant.

A writer in a Bombay journal describes an instance of an elephant's sagacity that is out of the ordinary. He says: "The battering train was going to the siege of Seringapatam, when an artilleryman, who was seated on the tumbril of one of the guns, by some accident fell almost under the hind wheel. The elephant stationed behind the gun, seeing the man's danger, instantly and without any order from its keeper, lifted up the wheel with its trunk and kept it suspended till the carriage had passed clear of him."

EXCLUSIVE FRANCHISE TO COLLECT GARBAGE

John M. Root Submits Bid Showing Schedule of Prices.

Will Provide Steel Wagons and Make Semi-Weekly Collections.

The Council Last Evening:

Received a bid for ten years' contract for the collection of garbarge.

Considered the growing nuisance of telephone poles in alleys.

Voted $500 to improve the Hermantown road, provided the county spends a like amount.

Approved the award of contracts for paving Second street and Seventeenth avenue east.

Gave first reading to ordinance extending cement sidewalk limits.

Called attention of congressmen and senators to needs of the Duluth harbor.

Asking for a ten years' exclusive franchise for the collection of garbage and waste material in the city, John M. Root last evening submitted to the council an offer to pay the city $5,000 for such a contract, in twenty semi-annual installments.

Mr. Root was formerly connected with the Decarie Manufacturing company, and sold the city its incinerator. His bid has the approval of Messrs. W. S. Moore, R. D. Haven, A. C. Weiss and D. D. Murray of the garbage commission. The bid was referred to the committee on drains, sewers and sanitation.

Mr. Root proposes to collect all kitchen refuse, decayed fruit, fish, vegetables, store sweepings, waste paper, rags, and all combustible refuse under the provisions of the ordinance recently passed by the council. The collections are to be made at least twice a week, and oftener where necessary, and steel wagons of a type approved by the health department, are to be used.

All collections are to be made under the supervision of the health department, and he is to furnish a bond of $10,000 for the faithful observance of the conditions.

There is a provision that the city may purchase the plant at the end of five years.

The schedule of charges is based upon the number of square feet in a house, and for an ordinary dwelling of from six to eight rooms, it would amount to from 60 to 80 cents per month.

All charges must be paid monthly in advance to a central office which will be maintained, and if they are not paid the seivice will be discontinued, and the case reported to the health department. He offers to begin work on June 1, if his offer is accepted.

His schedule of charges per month based upon each 100 feet of floor space, for two collections weekly, is as follows:

Hospitals, not to exceed	3c
Meat markets, not to exceed	6c
Fish markets, not to exceed	10c
Saloons, not to exceed	8c
Flats, not to exceed	5c
Restaurants, not to exceed	20c
Hotels, not to exceed	5c
Boarding houses, not to exceed	10c
Residences, not to exceed	5c
Confectionaries and bakeries, not to exceed	7c
Commission houses, not to exceed	40c
Rooming houses, not to exceed	3c
Department stores, not to exceed	2c
All other stores of various kinds not mentioned	3c

The attic, basement and halls of a house are not included in estimating the floor space.

All refuse collected between Thirteenth avenue east and Thirty-third avenue west from the lake to the boulevard, is to be taken to the crematory to be burned, and that collected in other parts of the city is to be taken to dumping grounds designated by the health department.

Ashes are not included in the collection, but they will have to be disposed of separately.

Collections can be ordered by the health department at any time, and property owners may also demand service oftener than twice a week, if it is necessary.

"Where people dispose of their own garbage by burning it, this service of course, will not be necessary," said Mr. Root. "Where there is no garbage, you can't collect any."

* * *

Alderman McEwen, in a resolution, called attention to the growing nuisance of the telephone and telegraph poles in the narrow alleys, and called upon the board of public works to investigate and learn whether the telephone companies and the electric light company could not use one system of poles.

Alderman Haven supported the resolution, and it passed without opposition.

* * *

Asserting that the Hermantown road is in an impassable condition, and that it is almost impossible for funeral processions to reach the cemeteries, a petition with a large number of signatures was presented to the council asking that the sum of $300 be expended in improving the road at once.

On a motion by Alderman Haven, the board of public works was directed to spend this amount, on condition that the county board would spend a like amount.

* * *

Alderman Moore stated that under the present system of making expenditures from the board of public works fund, it was impossible for the council to act intelligently, and he submitted a resolution asking the board to present a report of the manner in which it purposes expending the money at its disposal for the remainder of the year.

"It is not fair to the council or to the board to allow these expenditures to be made blindly," said Mr. Moore. "I do not want to vote for an expenditure from the fund which may cripple the board in its work."

* * *

The board of public works submitted the award of contracts for paving Second street and Seventeenth avenue east for approval.

Tar macadam was the unanimous choice of the property owners on Second street, at the meeting held in the afternoon, and the board, immediately after the meeting, met and let the contract to George R. King, the lowest bidder for tar macadam. His bid was $61,246.65.

The council approved the award.

* * *

An ordinance was submitted by Alderman Wilson extending the limits of the cement sidewalk district to include London road from Forty-third avenue east to Sixtieth avenue east, Seventeenth avenue east from London road to Superior street, and Fourth street from Sixth avenue east to Twenty-fifth avenue east.

The two latter districts were included at the request of Alderman Moore.

"That London road district is a big one," said Alderman Wilson, "and if there are any objections from the property owners along there, I would like to hear them."

* * *

The ordinance extending the limits of the district within which electric wires must be placed underground passed its final reading. The district added was Second street from Sixth avenue west to Seventh avenue east, and Tenth avenue east from London road to Fourth street.

* * *

On a motion by Alderman Barnes, the aldermen from the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth wards, and the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks will look over the point of rocks, and report on its condition.

* * *

The sidewalk between West Duluth and Proctor will be inspected by the board of public works, as a result of the motion by Alderman Barnes.

"Proctor is one of the greatest feeders Duluth has," said Alderman Barnes, "and the least we can do is to keep the roads and sidewalks between the two towns in good shape."

* * *

At the request of the Public Affairs committee of the Commercial club, the council passed a resolution calling the attention of the senators and representatives at Washington to the fact that the Duluth harbor is in need of some more improvements before it will be safe as a harbor of refuge, and urging them to use their influence to have a board of army engineers appointed to look into the problem.

* * *

On a motion of Alderman Schaffer, the city engineer will prepare an estimate of the cost of a viaduct on Thirteenth avenue west from Railroad street to Michigan street.

Malt Gives Beer High Nutrition

Eight-Day Malt, Exclusive Product of an American Brewery, Makes the Richest Beer.

Malt is the life of beer. Our readers understand, of course, that in brewing beer the first thing to do is make the malt from which to make the beer. The richer the malt the more nutritious, the more wholesome the beer. Pabst learned years ago that the forced method of making malt in three or four days could not possibly be accomplished without losing in large degree the life-giving, strength-giving elements of the barley. Most breweries use this old process. It is quicker, easier and less expensive. The Pabst way gives the full richness of the grain to the beer. It doubles the expense of brewing, but it makes Pabst Beer the leader of all beers.

Pabst Beer is the richest beer in actual food value and strength-building elements because it is made only with Pabst eight-day malt. Careful test, practical experience in brewing always with an eye single to the very best product possible, has taught Pabst that malt made of grain grown in this country must have eight days in which to properly mature. Malt perfect in nutritious elements can only be made by following the process of Nature without crowding, and that is what Pabst does. He makes his own malt by an exclusive eight-day process, double the time and double the expense of the common four-day method. This Pabst process gets all the good out of the barley and into the malt. No other process does.

Pabst eight-day malt, made from finest barley, grows as naturally as it would if put in the ground, moistened by the rain and warmed by the sun. Nature abhors waste and in the eight-day process there is no forced unnatural growth that wastes food elements of the grain. The result is a beer that has the greatest food value, the greatest tonic value, yet is mild and pleasant, superior in taste and flavor, perfect in age, purity and strength. This is Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer, the best beer brewed.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Red Lake Indian Charged With Shooting His Wife.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 7.—The case against Joseph Jordan, the Red Lake Indian who is accused of shooting his wife, Ay-ah-be-quay, is on trial in the United States court in this city, District Attorney Houpt and Assistant District Attorney Dickie appearing for the government and M. J. Daly and James A. Brown for the defense.

The crime was committed on July 19 last. That date is a festival day, a sort of Indian Fourth of July, and a band of fifty Red Yakers had come from their reservation to join the White Earth band in a general jollification. The prohibited firewater was secured and Jordan drank heavily and became ugly.

Toward evening he and Ay-ah-be-quay were in a tent alone. The squaw sat on a sack of oats near the entrance, her head buried in her hands. Jordan had borrowed a revolver from a boy, and persons outside the tent heard him threaten to shoot. A shot was fired and the woman rolled off the sack, where she was sitting and expired almost instantly. The bullet had struck her in the right temple.

Be-wah-e-co-bin-air-eak, another Indian woman, had heard Jordan making threats and started toward the tent, arriving at the entrance just in time to see him fire the shot. This, in brief, is the state's case as outlined by Mr. Houpt in his opening address to the jury.

Joseph Clark, Alexis Jordain, Jacob Fairchilds and Antoine Garneau were charged with breaking into the Red Lake postoffice and stealing whisky. They pleaded guilty and were sentenced to four months in the St. Cloud reformatory and to pay fines of $100 each.

Sam English, Fred Bolland, Louis J. Carpenter, John Spears and Francis Garneau were charged with introducing liquor on the reservation, and sentenced to sixty days in jail and to pay fines of $100 each.

William Prentice was sent to jail for four months for furnishing two Indian schoolgirls with whisky, and was sentenced to pay a $100 fine.

Notwithstanding the strong circumstantial evidence, and the fact that the government has one witness who testified positively that she saw the shooting, it is by no means certain that a conviction will be secured. The defense has been endeavoring to discredit the testimony of the eyewitness by showing that she was a "medicine woman" among the Indians, and giving the impression that her testimony is about on par with that of the average fortune teller.

The witnesses for the defense flatly contradict much of the circumstantial testimony introduced by the prosecution, and two points are being kept in view, the first being that Jordan was so drunk that he could not have fired the fatal shot, and the second that the woman had suicidal tendencies and that the position of the revolver indicates that she committed suicide.

Stockholders Will Organize.

The stockholders of the amusement park company will hold a meeting Thursday evening, at the Commercial club, to complete the business details for a corporation to complete the project. Officers of the company will be elected at that meeting. It is understood that the company will be incorporated under the name of the Duluth-Oatka Park company. Ninety per cent of the stockholders are said to have agreed on starting the amusement park on the basis of $30,000 capital, instead of $50,000, as first planned. As soon as the business details are arranged, the construction work will be rushed.

Right Shoulder, Shift

REACHED AN AGREEMENT

Anthracite Operators and Miners Conclude Negotiations.

New York, May 8.—After carrying on negotiations for nearly three months, the subcommittees representing the anthracite mine workers and operators of eastern Pennsylvania yesterday agreed to continue the award of the strike commission for another three years and the men will return to work as soon as practicable, probably Monday.

All miners who have not committed violence against persons or property will be re-employed and no one will be discriminated against because of any activity he may have taken in the strike movement. The agreement is subject to the ratification of the tri-district convention of mine workers at Scranton, but there is not the slightest doubt that the delegates will approve the action of their representatives.

This outcome of a dispute, which threatened to develop to a long, bitter struggle and paralyze a great industry, was looked upon with considerable satisfaction by the coal road presidents, as the agreement entered into is their proposition made early in March in reply to the mine workers' original demands.

The miners had little to say regarding the agreement, except that it was the best they could get. They pointed out, however, that the agreement entered into is the first general agreement that has ever been signed between the operators and miners, and they look upon it as a step forward in their efforts to have regular agreements with their employers.

While the compact entered into yesterday was predicted last week, the agreement was not reached without a final struggle on the part of the miners to get something more. President Mitchell, in stating to the operators the action of the Scranton convention, asked that the proposed agreement be made for two years. In arguing for the two year term he said the cost of living might increase considerably in three years and that other changes in the mining industry might come that would make the present wage scale unfair to the men.

The operators, in their reply, said that they felt that any contingency that might arise was covered by the award of the strike commission, and they concluded by asking that the award be continued for three years. This was then agreed to. It was the intention of the mine owners to take back only such men as they chose to re-employ, but President Mitchell contested this point so strongly that the operators withdrew it.

After the meeting adjourned, Mr. Baer handed a copy of the agreement to a representative of the operators, who read it to the waiting newspaper men.

No date has been set for the resumption of work. It was thought Thursday would be selected, but as some of the mines are not in good condition for an immediate resumption, the beginning of operations may be delayed until Monday. This is the sixth week of the suspension, and represents a loss in production of about 5,000,000 tons.

RESTRICTIONS TO BE PLACED

On the Review Propositions of the Railroad Rate Bill.

Washington, May 8.—The situation of the railroad rate bill took another decided change today and at the same time there was an additional step toward final agreement as to what the judicial review amendment shall be. The Allison compromise proposition met with such determined opposition from those senators who have fought against a "broad" court review, that despite President Roosevelt's acceptance of it and his declaration that other provisions he had advocated were not vital, an agreement was reached by which several restrictions will be placed on the review proposition. These were agreed upon in consequence of many informal conferences on the floor of the senate during the debate. The result is that in return for the amendment conferring jurisdiction on circuit courts to review orders of the commission, friends of the bill demanded and by agreement of senate leaders, will secure counter concessions as follows:

That no order of the commission shall be suspended or set aside by an interlocutory order or decree without a hearing had on the application therefor, unless at least five days notice shall be given to the commission of the time and place fixed for said hearing;

That such order shall not be made unless two judges of the court to which application is made shall concur in such interlocutory order or decree;

That an appeal from such interlocutory order or decree may be taken within thirty days from the entry thereof, but shall lie only to the supreme court of the United States.

CASS LAKERS BUSY.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Commercial club was held last evening, and the interest displayed gave evidence that all classes of the community are doing their utmost to co-operate with the club in making Cass Lake the most attractive summer resort in the state. The articles of incorporation were presented to the club and adopted. The club is now incorporated under the laws of the state. The boat landing, owned by James Cardle, was purchased by the club, and over $700 has been subscribed by the citizens, to be spent on the dock. Already many improvements have been made, and neither time nor expense will be considered until the people at large are fully satisfied that Cass Lake is really the place for sportsmen. The club will also, in the near future, issue a booklet, describing the many attractions of Cass Lake as a summer resort.

DOWIE VS. VOLIVA.

Arguments Begin on Injunction Proceedings on Zion City.

Rockford, Ill., May 8.—Judge Wright and Judge Donnelly of the circuit court were engaged today at Belvidere hearing the argument in the first battle in the injunction proceedings brought by John Alexander Dowie against Wilbur Glenn Voliva and others to set aside conveyances of property and re-establish Dowie in power at Zion City. When the case was called, the argument was expected to take up the afternoon. A number of followers of both Voliva and Dowie were present.

SIX PERSONS KILLED BY FALLING WALLS.

Havana, May 8.—The pillars supporting the second floor and roof of the rear part of a large, new cigarette factory belonging to Jose Gener collapsed today and of the forty men and women working in that part of the factory half were caught in the falling stone, brick and timbers. Six persons were taken out dead and a dozen more were injured.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Boston Herald: Judge Moore of Augusta, who is related to ex-Mayor Luther R. Moore of Saco, was telling his experience with a jury while he was trying cases in Kennebec county some years ago. He appeared as counsel for a man who had been indicted for a minor crime, and as he opened the case he saw a man on the jury who had been a close friend of his for years, and he decided that the juror, because of past friendship, would stand by him in the case on trial.

Finally the case went to the jury. For hours they fought and argued in the jury room in an effort to agree upon a verdict. They came in for instruction, and were again sent out by the judge, who asked them to agree, if such a thing was possible. All night the jury argued and wrangled, and on the opening of court in the morning reported disagreement and were dismissed.

Judge Moore hunted up his friend on the jury and asked why he could not swing the men into line.

"Strangest case I ever heard of," said the juror, "and we ain't found out yet about it. After we had talked the case over a while, we balloted. There were eleven for acquittal, and the twelfth man did not vote. We talked it over for a while, balloting again, and it stood just the same, the twelfth man refusing to vote. We asked every man how he stood on the case, and they all favored acquittal, and I'll be hanged if, when we voted, it wasn't eleven for acquittal, with the confounded twelfth hog refusing to vote. We kept it up all night, but he wouldn't vote, and we finally gave up in disgust."

"For heaven's sake," exclaimed Judge Moore, "don't you remember that we agreed to try that case with eleven jurors, as one member of the panel was taken sick just before the court came in?"

"Well, I'll be darned," shouted the juror; "that accounts for the whole business."

TO LEAD THE CHEESE.

Boston Herald: Fred W. Prentiss of 10 Preston street, Worcester, and P. H. Keefe, now a manufacturer in Rockville, Conn., for a number of years worked in a general store in Millbury, Mass., and were noted for their practical jokes and bonicks. The writer was in the store on one occasion when James Hill of Sutton called to make 6-darn about the d-dispensation, but if he comes to m-me I'll give him a li-some purchases. Keefe was in the basement and Prentiss was at the counter when Hill came in and complained because they never seemed able to sell him a piece of good strong cheese.

Prentiss listened to the complaint for some minutes, and then, going to the door leading to the cellar, took from a hook a leather halter. He threw the halter down the cellar stairs, and as he did so called out: "Say, Pat, take that halter and catch a cheese." "What for?" called back Pat. Prentiss replied: "Jim Hill of Sutton is up here again kicking because we don't have cheese strong enough to suit him. If you can get a halter on one of these old cheeses in the back cellar I guess it will be strong enough so he can lead it home at any speed that old horse of his will go."

CRESCENT CITY MOVED

Her Stern is Shifted Five Feet Off the Rocks.

The Craft May be Afloat Again Within Two Weeks.

Bad weathered has interfered with the work during the past few weeks, but despite the delays which have been unavoidable, the stranded steamer Crescent City at Lakewood has been moved out at the stern.

The Pittsburg Steamship company's own wrecking crew, with Capt. W. W. Smith in charge, is at work on the vessel, and while not caring to say positively, Capt. Smith declares that the vessel may be released within the next two weeks.

Until the end of last week all the work had been of a preparatory nature, but on Friday afternoon jacks were put in place and the boat's stern moved out eighteen inches. Since that time it has been moved out five feet.

Jacks are being placed directly under the boat, and she will be practically lifted off the rocks. This work will necessarily be gradual, and every precaution must be taken to insure the success of the attempt to release the boat which has clung so steadfastly to the shore, near the city pumping station, ever since left high and dry there by the storm of last November.

A crib has been laid as a means of protection, and Capt. Smith and his men do not expect to have their work undone by high waves. Sixteen stout jacks are being used, and two 80-ton purchases have been made an important part of the wrecking paraphernalia.

The jacking will continue all this week, and the boat may be released even sooner than expected.

FIVE BOATS

Clear From Buffalo for Upper Lakes With Non-Union Men.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 8.—Five boats cleared for upper lake ports yesterday with nonunion men in the places of the striking firemen, mates and oilers. None of the 2,250,000 bushels of grain afloat was elevated. The vessel owners state that the elevators are now so full that their boats would not be unloaded even if there were no strike, while the men assert that the threat of the monthly men to walk out of the elevators the moment nonunion scoopers are sent into the hold of a boat effectively checkmates the efforts of the lake carriers to begin unloading the grain with nonunion men.

"The unloading of cargoes of grain may not begin for two or three days. There are now 8,000,000 bushels of export grain in the elevators and it is being moved very slowly, owing to the inability of the railroads to furnish cars. It was expected that 1,500,000 bushels of wheat would be placed on the rail yesterday, but cars enough for only 200,000 bushels were sent to us by the railroads. Until this congestion is relieved, there will be no great hurry to elevate the grain from the holds of our boats."

Joseph R. Blanchette, business manager of the marine engineers, yesterday issued a letter to subordinate lodges, defining the position of that organization in the present strike.

The engineers, he says, occupy strictly neutral grounds and its members must not be led to favor either of the contending parties. He instructs engineers to keep up steam for the purpose of protecting ship and cargo, but says they must not do firemen's work for commercial purposes.

NO INVESTIGATION

Of the Mates' Union Is Being Conducted by Keefe.

Detroit, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the quarters of the Longshoremen's union in this city Secretary Barter said today that no delegation from the Cleveland unions had arrived for a conference with President Keefe, and that no advices had been received that a delegation had left Cleveland on last night's boat for that port, as was reported from that city.

"You may also say positively that President Keefe is not conducting an investigation of the Mates' union with a view of calling off the strike if he finds that the officers of the longshoremen have been deceived as to the strength of the mates," said Secretary Barter.

DREDGE GOES BELOW.

The big and powerful tug Schenck, belonging to the Great Lakes Towing & Wrecking company and in service at Sault Ste. Marie, arrived here this noon. She will leave tonight for Ogdensburg, N. Y. with the new dredge Industry and scow, belonging to the Duluth Dredge & Dock company, the new concern just organized last fall. The dredge and scow which the Schenck will tow to Lake Ontario are brand new and this will be their first trip.

They will go to work on a dredging contract which their owners have on a piece of river work at Mesina, N. Y., about 25 miles below Ogdensburg.

STEAMER SHERWIN ARRIVES.

New Gilchrist Freighter Gets Into Port for Ore Cargo.

The new Gilchrist steamer John Sherwin, which was launched not very long ago, arrived in Duluth today on her first trip here; in fact, this being her maiden trip. The Gilchrist is a sister ship of the Wood and is a model vessel in every way, being of the latest type and of excellent workmanship, both in hull and machinery.

Following the fashion of most of the new ships this year, the Sherwin started out with an accident. Week before last she started out of Bay City on her maiden trip, but collided with the Michigan Central railway bridge there and sustained four broken plates. She had to put back at once for repairs. This time she got away without accident. She will load ore at the Missabe.

SITUATION THE SAME.

Non-Union Crews for Docks and Ships Reported.

The strike situation remains unchanged. No more boats have started new trips from here, all of those which have left this port since the Tomlinson boats, starting their trips from below. No more desertions have been reported in consequence.

It is understood that at the lower lake docks preparations are fully under way for the placing in boats of non-union men where union men have been called off, and also for the substitution of non-union men on the various docks. Sunday morning the Mutual Transit company's dock at Cleveland was worked with a non-union crew. At Chicago large numbers of Hungarians are being stockaded at the Illinois Steel company's yards for use on the steel corporation's boats as firemen.

On board the boats it seems that about the only provision for crews that seem necessary is in regard to firemen, the mates, over whom the strike is started, not quitting to any great extent.

INTERESTS PILOTS.

Changes of Buoys and Lights on Lakes Are Announced.

Announcement has been made that a gas buoy, painted red and showing an intermittent light every twenty seconds is being installed at the Grand Island harbor entrance, Lake Superior, to mark the wreck of the steamer Manhattan. The wreck is on the western side of the eastern entrance to the harbor, about a mile from the lighthouse.

It was also announced that at the Grand Haven pierhead light station, Lake Michigan, a rear range light has been established for the guidance of navigators. The light is 61 feet above the mean lake level, located on the south pier at the entrance to the harbor, and forms a range therewith for entering the harbor.

At the Detroit river light station, Lake Erie, a temporary change in the characteristics of the light has gone into effect. The light, located at the mouth of the river, was a fixed white, but will for a time hereafter be a flashing white every five seconds. It is announced that the regular characteristics of the light will be restored as soon as practicable.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Expected in the Longshoremen's Strike Within Short Time.

Detroit, May 8.—President Daniel J. Keefe of the longshoremen's union is in Cleveland today holding a conference with regard to the strike of the longshoremen, firemen, oilers and mates which has tied up shipping on the lakes. President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association stated this afternoon that while he knew Mr. Keefe went to Cleveland last night on the steamer City of Detroit, he could not discuss the purpose of Mr. Keefe's trip or whether it meant that the beginning of the end of the strike was in sight. A prominent marine man, however, gave it as his opinion that Mr. Keefe had gone to Cleveland to confer with the officers of the Cleveland locals and also to talk over with the dock managers there a possible settlement of the strike before broaching the question to the Lake Carriers' association. This vessleman gave it as his opinion that within twenty-four or forty-eight hours there would be developments of great importance in the strike situation.

PATENTS ISSUED TO DULUTH MEN.

Washington, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patents have been issued to residents of Duluth as follows: Alexander A. Forbes, machine for making artificial stone; Simeon C. Lawler, mop head and implement clamp.

TWO FRENCHMEN HURT BY BOMB EXPLOSION.

Paris, May 8.—A striking carpenter, named Habert, and another man were wounded today by the explosion of a bomb, which they were engaged in loading in the garret of a house situated in one of the districts inhabited by people of the working classes. After the man had been arrested, Prefect of Police Lepine searched the garret and found other bombs. It is believed that the bombs were being prepared for use in connection with an anarchistic plot.

POLICE ACTIVE.

Mineral Water From Muenter Home Sent for Analysis.

Cambridge, Mass., May 8.—Sudden activity was shown today by the police in connection with the death of Mrs. Leone Muenter, wife of Erich Muenter, for whom the authorities are seeking on the charge of poisoning the woman. The police ambulance was driven to police headquarters and in the vehicle were placed a carboy and a jug of mineral water which were seized at the Muenter home after the body of Mrs. Muenter had been removed to Chicago. The ambulance was driven to the Harvard Medical school and given into the care of Prof. W. H. Whitney, who will make a chemical analysis of the contents of the vessels.

Copper Country Enthusiastic Over Prospects of New Ball League.

Calumet and Lake Linden Teams Will Figure in Race.

Houghton, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the opening of the baseball season but little more than a week away, the Copper country fans have had little opportunity to get a good line on the men who are to represent thenr respective towns in the Northern-Copper Country league, the coming season. Cold weather and rain have seriously interfered with the practice, and what games have been played have been attended by chilly blasts, which prevented satisfactory work on the part of the men.

As things look at the present time, at the opening of the season, Lake Linden and Calumet will jump into the front ranks of the Copper country teams. With the star men of their teams for the past two or three years as a nucleus, and a few additional men with good records, those two towns will doubtless be represented by finished teams at the very outset. Nearly every man representing the two towns has been tried before in the Copper country, and they have not been found wanting, for Calumet and Lake Linden have plucked the plums from the championship tree in the Copper country for some years past.

The bunch which Manager Morrison of the Calumet team has gathered around him is as follows: Catcher, Leahy; pitchers, Morrison (manager), Grimes, Foulkes and Cook; first base, Mutter; second base, Wallace and Kaiser; third base, Vorpagel; short stop, Monahan; left field, Bufka; center field, Laughlin; right field, Slear and Corrigan. All of them, with the exception of Cook, Wallace, Slear and Corrigan, have been seen in the Copper country before, and as the new men have already proved their merit, it is likely that the Calumet team will remain substantially as above throughout the season.

The Lake Linden line-up also looms up formidably. The men whom the management of Secretary Glass' own team has signed, are: Catcher, Dettman, Kurke; pitchers, Newcombe, Keil and Schurch; first base, Salabra, McIntosh; second base, O'Hare; short stop, Schubert; third base, Lynch and Myers; outield, Wotell, Foster, Orth, Lellvet and Becker. All of the men have already reported, with the exception of Schurch, Kurke and Becker, and as they were with the team last year, and were numbered among its mainstays, there is little likelihood of their not making good. The other men are working hard to land the different places, and the weeding out will be a task for a baseball expert, and can only be performed after a thorough trial. With such a list to work on, it is practically certain that by June 1, when all the teams will have to get down to their regular quota of men, the smallest town represented in the league will have a team which will bear watching in the final run for the pennant.

Of the Houghton and Hancock teams, little can be told at the present time. Manager Wreath of Hancock has but two of last year's team, Wares and Rogers. To fill the other places he has made every effort to get good men, but, as far as can be seen at the present time, but few of them are capable of putting up the kind of ball expected by the Copper country fans. Though the game with Houghton Sunday was played with the mercury hovering around the freezing point, and allowances must, of course, be made for that, the team was a disappointment to the few shivering fans, who gathered to see the men work out.

The team at present is composed of the following: Catchers, Gallagher and Rick; pitchers, Rogers, Spicer, Hopkins and Goulet; first base, Gillen; second base, ———; third base, Cox; short stop, Wares; outfielders, Terry, Boden and Walker. Several more men have been ordered to report and are expected here within a few days, including Charles Steward, a catcher. Of the men named, only the pitchers and Wares, Cox and Terry showed good form Sunday and the others will doubtless be back in slower company before the league season opens. Manager Wreath, who came to Hancock from New York to manage the team this year, has promised the fans a first division team and as he has lines on any number of good men, he will doubtless make good his promise and make some substitutions immediately.

There will undoubtedly be some changes in the Houghton lineup also. Sunday's game with Hancock was the first of the season for the new team and although it won, 7 to 2, poor playing on the part of Hancock and not good playing on the part of Houghton was responsible for the victory. The men, whom Manager Cassiboine has in Houghton at present are: Catchers, Boyer, Wegman and F. Smith; pitchers, Hastings, Wagner, Franks and McGraw; first base, W. Smith; second base, Brand; third base, Sundhim; short stop, Taylor; outfield, McHaic. Manager Cassiboine has several new men on the way to Houghton now and the team, which will appear on the diamond in the opening game, May 17, will substantially differ from the above. The present is Houghton's first venture into baseball for a number of years and the business men who are backing it do not intend to put an inferior team in the field, if men are available for a first-class team and money can bring them to the Copper country."

The ante-season games have served to stir up interest in the game among the fans, and the prospects for the success of the Northern-Copper Country league in this section this season are most bright. The close proximity of the towns and the rivalry which has always existed between them, particularly between Calumet and Lake Linden and Houghton and Hancock will bring out record-breaking crowds to games in which those teams contest against each other.

It is thought that the eight-team league will prove a boon to baseball in this section. In former years four Copper country teams played among themselves, and, though the class of ball was high, the continual playing of the small number of teams became monotonous, and though close pennant races, in which Calumet figured, brought out the fans in that town, the attendance in the other towns was anything but encouraging to the managers. But sectional rivalry will lend added interest to every game this year, and as the league magnates have set the salary limit at a point, within which good teams can be secured and a good class of ball given to the fans, there is no reason apparent at the present time why the league should not be a success.

Everything will be in readiness by May 17 in the Copper country. The Portage Lake Park association, which is to furnish the park in which the Houghton and Hancock games will be played, has let the contract, and a large force of men has been at work for more than a week on it. The park is to be situated between the two towns, accessible by street car and ferry, and it will be much more convenient for the fans of both towns than the old Hancock park, which was situated away out of town and far too distant for the Houghton fans.

The season will be opened with the usual ceremonies, including the attendance of bands and the opening of the game by city officials. Houghton and Hancock will meet at their joint park and Lake Linden and Calumet will play at Calumet. If the weather man is kind, there should be no hitch in the proceedings, and the starting gun will be fired in a pennant race in which the Copper country figures on taking no small part.

CLUB LIFE ECONOMY.

Democracy Where Rich Men and Poor Men Are Equal.

A good many country visitors are disappointed when they learn the sober truth that New York has no clubs composed exclusively of millionaries, says the New York Sun. It is harder still to make country folk believe that hundreds of men join the so-called swell clubs in large part from motives of economy.

There are scarcely three clubs in the city that do not include a considerable number of poor men in their membership. The average income of the whole membership of the ten best known clubs in the city is probably nearer $10,000 a year than $50,000 a year, and almost every one of those clubs includes some scores of men with incomes well below $5,000.

There is a real democracy of New York club life. Youths in their early twenties and just beginning their careers on very moderate salaries frequent truly palatial clubhouses, breakfast in rooms such as few princes ever use and lounge before fireplaces that are to be matched only in the most splendid buildings of Europe.

The poor man in the palatial club is just as well treated as the rich. The servants look as salicitously to his wants and the chef ordinarily cooks his dinner with the same care that he bestows upon that of the richest member.

The poor man's credit at the club is as good as the rich man's, and both are impartially posted when they neglect to pay their bills in good season. There are a good many instances also in which the monthly bills of the poor man are higher than those of the rich fellow member, for the frequenters of the clubs are apt to be the poorer rather than the richer members.

Many a man of small means regards his membership in a first rate club in the light of a profitable investment. Such a man, if a confirmed bachelor, has probably lived for twenty years within half a block of the club, paying a few hundreds a year for a small bedroom and finding all his luxuries in the apartments of the clubhouse.

Without being in the least mean he makes of the club a money saving institution for himself. Its comfortable lounging rooms save him annually from $300 to $1,000 a year in rent, according to the location in which he has his modest lodgings. After that he saves a fair percentage on everything he eats and drinks at the club.

His simple breakfast costs him perhaps 10 per cent less than it would cost at any restaurant he would be likely to frequent and the same is true of his dinners. If he takes three-fourths of his meals at the club he saves annually about $100 in tips.

If he drinks wine at dinner he saves from 10 to 25 per cent upon every bottle. If he permits himself the luxury of a cab he saves a handsome percentage by ordering it through the club, and avoids all possibility of a row with the cabby over the amount of the fare. Many a man writes all his letters of a social character at the club, and thus saves from $15 to $40 a year in stationery.

He need buy no new books, nor need he subscribe to a library, for there is the club library free for his use. He never need buy a periodical or even a newspaper, save when he travels, for all that he reads are freely supplied by the club. And the enjoyment of all these things imposes upon him no considerable expenditure for extravagant luxuries. He is sure, especially in the college clubs, to find plenty of men with like modest incomes and simple tastes as himself, and he may sit for hours with cronies over the cafe table without spending money that he cannot afford, and without giving offence to the servants or the house committee.

Most club members probably do not keep a debit and credit account with the club, but the man of modest means and moderate habits would find the examination of such an account a matter of great satisfaction. Such a man, paying $250 as an entrance fee and $75 a year in dues, is likely to find himself at the end of twenty years a long way ahead of the game. The club in twenty years has cost him rather less than $2,000 for entrance fees, dues and contributions to the Christmas box, and his savings by reason of the club have been from $10,900 to $16,000.

BROKEN PLEDGES.

"And how," he said, "Is Blank doing?"

The San Franciscan smiled.

"I met Blank at the beginning of Lent," he said, "and he told me that he had sworn off smoking, drinking and bridge till Easter Monday. From later reports, however——"

The San Franciscan smiled significantly, and Mr. Mizner said:

"Elmer Muzzle, after a debauch that lost him two teeth and his job, took the pledge.

"The magistrate (he swore off in a police court) met his little son a couple of weeks later.

"'Well, Johnny,' said the magistrate in a kindly tone, 'how's your father doing? Does he still keep the pledge?'

"Johnny nodded solemnly.

"'Yes, sir, sometimes, sir,' he said."

EASTER IN ROME.

Los Angeles Times: Congressman J. Adam Bede said of an impressionistic painter:

"You know his work, of course. Beautiful, no doubt, in a vague, delicate, dreamy way; but not the kind of work to please the public. Our friend, I'm afraid, is a painter's painter, as Shelley was a poet's poet.

"A Cleveland millionaire visited his studio last week. This millionaire is forming an art gallery, and a critic advised him to include one of our friend's pieces.

"So the millionaire with his diamond collar button, his gold-headed cane, and his 25-cent cigar stalked through the quiet studio, inspecting this canvas and that.

"They were all beautiful, but they were vague, elusive, without detail.

"A piece of very bright, rich coloring caught the millionaire's eye. It was the stately Ara Coeli stairway, with the wolves and palms of the Campidoglio on the right, and it was called 'Easter in Rome.'

"The millionaire looked at the vague, rich picture, steeped in Italian color, and as the painter watched him his hopes rose high, for he considered 'Easter in Rome' his masterpiece.

"'Um, 'Easter in Rome.' Yes,' said the millionaire. 'Pretty little sketch. Not bad. Look here, you can finish that up for me on approval if you want to.'"

UNSYMPATHETIC.

Los Angeles Times: Julian Story, the successful painter, was talking at a diner party in Philadelphia about sympathy. He said:

"Without sympathy, without the power of putting ourselves in another person's place, we cannot understand people, and we cannot escape from being extremely disagreeable.

"There is a pretty little princess in Rome who lacks sympathy. She is married to a rich old prince. But, when she drives on the Pincio, the rich old prince is seldom beside her. I fear he got a rather poor bargain in his pretty but unsympathetic wife.

"The prince, the other day, uttered a low groan as he passed from the cold, gray drawing-room to the cold, gray dining-room of his large palace.

"'Oh!' he cried. 'Oh, dear! Oh, dear me! The rheumatim in my shoulder is coming on again. Oh, oh!'

"'Well,' exclaimed the princess, 'isn't that too bad. Here I was going automobiling with Count Zuppa Inglese tomorrow, and your rheumatism is a sure sign of ruin. What wretched luck!'"

AN ABERDEEN ANECDOTE.

Kansas City Journal: Here is a little anecdote of how Lord Aberdeen met his future wife. When a young man he was visiting at a shooting lodge in the highlands. One day his host could not accompany him on the moors, so he went alone, and by accident crossed the "march," or boundary, of a neighboring estate. He was tramping along, gun on shoulder, when a gentleman asked him if he was aware that he was trespassing. "Oh, no," said Lord Aberdeen, "I am the guest of So-and-so!" "Very probably," said the gentleman, "but you are now on my property." Lord Aberdeen apoligized profusely, and handed him his card. The owner of the soil was Mr. Marjoribanks, afterward Lord Tweedlemouth, who promptly invited the trespasser to luncheon at Guisachan. The unwitting poacher accepted, and in that way met Miss Isobel Majoribanks, who became Lady Aberdeen.

In almost every line of manufacture there is one article that is recognized as the standard—one that is made a basis for comparison by all competing articles.

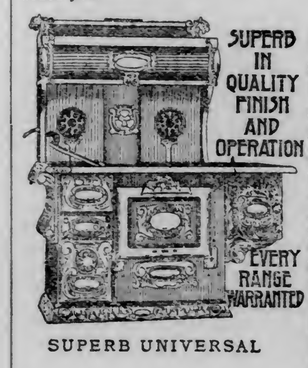
The Universal

Go into what corner of this great United States you will the name and fame of the "Universals" will be found to have preceded you.



SUPERB UNIVERSAL

The interest that such a fact has for the intending purchaser of a Stove or Range is just this: It stands to reason that the article which can enter every market in this United States, TAKING THE PRE-EMINENT POSITION IN EVERY INSTANCE, must be possessed of unusual and remarkable merit. The Universal has today a greater sale and popularity than that of all other stoves together.

Discriminating buyers of today understood that the best article of its class is the cheapest in the end, especially when it costs no more than "the next best." Every Universal sold FULLY warranted.

$1 Down and $1 a Week, or $5 Down and $5 a Month

Will place any Universal stove or steel range in your home. If you intend buying a new stove this spring by all means have a Universal—you'll have stove satisfaction for the rest of your days.

Bohn Syphon Refrigerators

The Bohn Dry Air Syphon White Enamel-Lined Refrigerator

Is constructed on scientific principles, and is the latest product of advanced experiment in this direction. We claim superiority and challenge comparison and competition on the following points:

1st—Low and uniform temperature, ranging from 38 to 48 degrees.

4th—Free circulation and absence of odors.
5th—Freedom from moisture.
6th—Economy in the consumption of ice.
7th—Perfect drainage.
8th—Enameled lining of provision chamber.

FREEDOM FROM MOISTURE.

Dampness causes food to become moldy and stale and consequently unwholesome. In the BOHN AIR SYPHON SYSTEM it is impossible for moisture to accumulate on the walls of the provision chamber, as already explained. The result is that our White Enamel-Lined Refrigerators are dryer than the external air. An experiment will show that a wet cloth placed in the provision chamber will become dry in a shorter time than if suspended in the air without.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

THE MOTOR CARS IN WAR

London, May 8.—Excepting Rudyard Kipling, perhaps, there isn't an author in this country who takes a greater interest in military matters than Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and probably not even Mr. Kipling spends as much time in considering how Great Britain can best be defended in case of another war as does the burly doctor, who would a little rather not be reminded, nowadays, that he created the redoubtable Sherlock Holmes.

No one, for instance, has taken a more prominent part than Sir Arthur in the movement that is now on foot to increase the number of effective fighting men by encouraging rifle shooting in all parts of the United Kingdom. Beside making many speeches, and writing frequent articles on the subject, he recently set a practical example by having a miniature rifle range built on his picturesque estate at Hindhead, and inviting the young men of the neighborhood to use it. The result is that a regular rifle club now exists in the locality, of which the novelist is said to be one of the best marksmen, and one of the hottest members generally.

Now Sir Arthur has been struck with the idea that the motorists of this country would be able to render an important service in case Great Britain were invaded by a foreign enemy. Like Mr. Kipling, Dr. Doyle is an ecstatic devotee of the motor car—having been fined once or twice for exceeding the speed limit—and he has written a letter to the London Times in which he explains how he believes that the automobilists of Great Britain could be utilized in case a foreign army had landed on the coast.

"Supposing," says Dr. Doyle, "that such an event had happened. Everything would depend upon swift action so as to prevent any cavalry that force might possess from pushing on in small parties, cutting wires, blowing up bridges, and generally disorganizing the defense." So Sir Arthur goes on to suggest that a thousand English motorists should pledge themselves on the first news of such an invasion instantly to fill up their cars with picked riflemen drawn from their own immediate neighborhood, and to convey them with a week's food, their rifles and their ammunition, to the danger point. "Food, rifles and motor cars," he says, "are already to hand, and the only factor missing is the ammunition, 2,000 rounds of which should be given by the government to the keeping of the motorist who signifies his willingness to serve—such ammunition to be stored in his garage in time of peace.

"In this way," says Dr. Doyle, "within a very few hours such a fringe of irregular, self-supporting riflemen would be formed round the enemy that they could not push swiftly on, or collect supplies without their patrol being cut off, and an immediate line of resistance would be formed behind which the regular defence could be prepared—all this without putting any tax on the railways."

Dr. Doyle adds that, once the motorists of Great Britain had been organized in this way, it would be easy to test their efficacy, and evidently the author is interesting in learning how his idea appeals to his fellow automobilists, for he has asked those who approve of it to communicate with the secretary of the Legion of Frontiersmen, the newly formed volunteer organization, of which he is an enthusiastic member.

It must be admitted, too, that Dr. Doyle is quite in the literary fashion with his new plan of defense for England, for at no previous time have so many authors on both sides of the channel been occupied with anticipations of a coming great war between this country and some continental power—Germany for choice. There is William le Queux, for instance, whose story of the Invasion of 1910 is now running in the columns of the London Mail—not to mention two German novelists, Seester and Beowulf, who have recently published romances dealing with a supposed conflict between Great Britain and the fatherland. But these writers and one or two others either made England successful in the coming war, or else made the struggle indecisive, and this conclusion has been denounced as "false, misleading and humiliating for the German nation," by still another Teuton romancer—Morlturus by nom de guerre—who has just published a work of his own, which is called, "With the German Army via Paris to London."

Here we have an attempt to describe "the real course of an Anglo-German war," and this, according to Morlturus, is as follows: Germany, first involved in hostilities against the combined forces of England and France, inflicts defeats so crushing on the French army that the French government is obliged to abandon its alliance with Britain and unconditionally to accept the German terms. Germany thereupon compels France to join her in war against Great Britain, and the united German and French navies annihilate two British fleets in two successive engagements, thereby enabling the German army to carry out a successful invasion of England. After the occupation of London, the German emperor dictates his own terms of peace to the humiliated English nation. So if Teutons generally have not been satisfied with the anticipatory wars conducted by Beowulf, Sestern and the rest, they ought to be enchanted with that which has been provided in something over 400 closely printed pages, by the triupmhant Morlturus.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in Three Days.

Morton L. Hill, of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had inflammatory Rheumatism in every muscle and joint; her suffering was terrible and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians, but received no benefit until she tried the Mystic Cure for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by all druggists.

PREACHER TOO GAY

With Fair Member of His Flock and Is Dismissed.

Marshalltown, Ia., May 7.—Rev. D. S. Staebler, of Shell Rock, pastor of the Methodist church there, has resigned by request of the church board. His resignation is the sequel to a sensational scandal in which the wife of C. W. Moore, a prominent farmer living near Shell Rock is involved. It develops that Staebler was in the habit of meeting Mrs. Moore at various places, and that he wrote her many notes filled with endearing and passionate utterances. Recently Moore began to suspect all was not right between his wife and the minister, and his suspicions were aroused by finding his wife reading a note which she had evidently tried to conceal from him.

He took some of his neighbors into his confidence, and last Sunday night, while he and his wife and children were at church Moore's house was searched, resulting in the finding of a drawer full of notes and letters from the pastor. The notes were filled with burning love expressions and some of them named meeting places. One or two asked the woman to meet him at a certain place in Waterloo.

Another informed Mrs. Moore that Rev. Staebler would attend a conference at North Springs and for her to meet him at Marble Rock a certain night. One contained this sentence:

Another said:

"How can I preach next Sunday morning unless I see your face in the congregation?"

Staebler, when confronted with the evidence, admitted his guilt, and immediately tendered his resignation and turned over what money he had belonging to the church. The case has caused a great sensation at Shell Rock. Staebler formerly preached at Montlcello, Ia., and La Porte, Ia. He has a wife and two children, who are highly respected.

TWO DROWNED

By the Capsizing of a Boat in Susquehanna River.

Tunkhannock, Pa., May 8.—Orin V. Love, a wealthy lumberman of Mehoopany, this county, and his son, George, aged 18, were drowned in the Susquehanna river at Meshophon yesterday. Mr. Love owned a ferry at Meshophon and an effort was being made to string a new cable for it. The two Loves and Charles Shoemaker were out in a boat handling the heavy wire when the craft was capsized. Shoemaker was rescued about fifteen or twenty rods down the river. The body of George Love has not been found.

LIABILITY IS DENIED

Cloquet Lumber Company Files Answer in Insurance Case.

Trustee for Creditors of Mutual Insurance Company Sues.

One of the civil cases for trial this month that will be of some interest, because of the questions of law and fact that are involved, will be that brought by James B. Swing, trustee for the Union Mutual Life Insurance company of Cincinnati, against the Cloquet Lumber company. The action has been instituted by the trustee to recover $1,106, which he claims represents the the lumber company's liability to the creditors of the defunct insurance company.

In the complaint the trustee sets up a claim that the company was organized under the laws of Ohio, which provide that in mutual insurance companies the policyholders and members are liable for losses and expenses in proportion to their interest in the company. He alleges that the Cloquet Lumber company has several lightning and fire insurance policies in the Union Mutual company that total $27,000, which sum covered some of the Cloquet concern's lumber. As a policyholder the lumber company is claimed to be liable for five times the amount of premiums that it paid, or $1,106.

The answer of the company was filed in the district court yesterday afternoon. The company admits that it had some policies with the Union Mutual Insurance company, but claims they were duly surrendered and cancelled long ago, before the losses mentioned in the complaint occurred. It is also claimed that they were all short term, non-participating policies, and the insurance therein was provided for cash premiums that were duly paid at the time they were issued.

Another point which the lumber company raises in its answer is that the insurance company never complied with a law in Minnesota so as to be entitled to do business within this state.

The verdict that will be reached in this case, for it is set for jury trial this week, will probably determine, to some extent, how far an outside mutual insurance company can enforce the collection of its obligations within this state, particularly as in this case, where it is claimed that the mutual company is not entitled, under the Minnesota laws, to do business in this state.

The trustee for the insurance company is represented by Davis & Hollister, and the Cloquet Lumber company by W. B. Phelps.

Judge Dibell made the following new setting of jury cases yesterday afternoon:

Tuesday, May 8—J. A. Robert against W. J. Green; James B. Swing, trustee, against the Cloquet Lumber company.

Wednesday, May 9—Wilfred Berneche against John W. Hilliard; Fred Miller against Edward Johnson, and Emma Carlson, administratrix, against George H. Lounsberry.

Thursday, May 10—A. H. Grieser against the Chisholm Light & Power company, and Joseph Sheehy against Thomas J. McKeon.

Decides Against Peterson.

Judge Dibell has filed his findings in the adverse possession case of the Western Land association against William Peterson in which he determines that the association is entitled not only to possession of lot 310, block 54, Duluth proper, Second division, but that Peterson shall pay $110.42, which sum represents the rental and profits due the association during the time Peterson occupied the lot. The court holds that Peterson occupied the land unlawfully from Jan. 1, 1902, to the time of the trial.

CONFIRMED BY SENATE.

Washington, May 8.—The senate in executive session yesterday confirmed the following nominations: Postmasters, Minnesota—C. Atkinson, Hibbing; F. B. Lamson, Buffalo; J. T. Hamar, Madison; F. A. Swartwood, Wascen, Wisconsin—R. C. Lybrand, Richland Center.

COPPER IS VERY FIRM

Prices Still Showing Tendency to Advance Rather Than Decline.

Producers Selling to Consumers and Not to Speculators.

Copper continues very strong with prices inclined to stiffen, says George L. Walker in his weekly review of the market. If speculators were in the metal market the price would be much higher but the producers are selling only to consumers which has the effect of keeping prices steadier. He says:

"Copper continues very strong, with domestic prices showing a decided tendency to harden. Lake is generally held at 18¾ to 18⅞ cents; electrolytic is 18½ to 18¾ cents, and casting 18¼ to 18½ cents a pound.

"A large lake company is reported to have made sales at 19 cents a week ago, and it is understood that it is holding its copper at 19 cents. Several large producers have sold their production well up to August 1. One of the largest producing interests has recently been reported as having sold its entire productions up to September 1. A representative of the company denied this statement, saying that they had made only a few sales for delivery in August. Several lake producing interests who sell their own copper state that they are sold up to July 1.

"The representative of a prominent selling interest says: 'We could not deliver a pound of electrolytic for May or June, and we are well sold up through July. We are asking 18¾ cents for July delivery. Almost any price could be had for electrolytic for May or June delivery, but there is very little to be had.

"'Domestic inquiry is increasing every day, and this, with the strong foreign demand, has placed the metal market in the strongest position ever known to the trade.

"'If speculators were in the market, prices could be forced to almost any limit. Producers, however, are now selling their copper to consumers only, and have thus eliminated speculation from the market. The present high level of prices is the natural result of a demand being larger than the supply.

"'With the present volume of consumption, there seems to be very little chance for a recession in prices for the remainder of the year. An advance in prices is more to be expected.'

COPPER SHARES.

"The decline in copper share prices was wholly due to sympathy with the bad break in the railroad and industrial stocks on the New York list. In so far as the decline is the result of monetary stringency, however, the influence on all speculative markets must be much the same. It cannot be denied that bank reserves are too low at present to permit of broad and active trading for the rise in any one group of stocks. It was recognition of this fact and a realization that the rebuilding of San Francisco would greatly increase the already excessive demand for cash that led some of the largest individual traders and speculative pools to throw their stocks on the market last week.

"Unless the supply of money increases soon, general business will suffer. When merchants and manufacturers have to pay 6 per cent or more for money, they usually resort to what is known as the 'hand to mouth' method, reducing their purchases of raw materials and merchandise to the minimum, and cancelling all plans for further expansion of plants, warehouses and stores. The big break in security prices is expected to greatly curtail the volume of speculation and to encourage investors to withdraw bank deposits and purchase outright many of the stocks that have recently been carried on borrowed money by speculators. Some of the best authorities on finance feel confident that this check to speculation will furnish the required relief to the money market, that bank reserves will be rebuilt quickly, and that conditions will soon be ripe for a renewal of the appreciation in security prices which is so fully warranted by the unparalleled prosperity of the country.

"It seems to me that this is a time for reasonable conservatism, but not for loss of confidence. No one should borrow too much money or aspire to carry too many stocks. The better class of copper stocks, especially the dividend payers, should be bought every time they are weak, and stocks of doubtful present and future value should be sold on the rallies.

"The copper market is extremely strong, and its future prospects are brighter even than those of iron and steel. Copper mining will continue the most profitable industry in the world for many years to come. Holders of the stocks of the growing producing mines will unquestionably receive splendid returns on their investment."

TO TRACE THE BRAHMAPUTRA

Part of Great River Never Seen by Any Explorer.

London, May 8.—The council of the Scottish Geographical society has submitted to the secretary of state for India an appeal for the completion by the Indian government of the exploration of the Brahmaputra river where it burst through the eastern ranges of the Himalayas to flow across the plains of Assam and Bengal to the Ganges. Here is a stretch of one of the great world rivers, extending about 150 miles north and south, and probably more than 200 miles following the course of the river through the mountain valleys that has never been seen by a white or Indian explorer. The petition, which is signed by Professor James Geikie, the geologist and president of the society, expresses regret that the Tibetan mission did not carry out its original plan, after it had completed its work at Lhasa, of returning by way of the Brahmaputra to Assam. It trusts that the Indian government will now see its way clear to complete the exploration of the river. The proposed work is viewed with extreme interest in the geographical circles of the world and its importance is urged on the following grounds.

The question would finally be settled of the connection of the Sangpo of Tibet with the Dibong (Brahmaputra) of Assam. Since about 1888 the Sangpo has been believed to be the upper course of the Brahmaputra. The known difference of levels renders it certain that the river must descend from Tiber to the plains of India by great waterfalls exceeding all others in height and volume. If these falls, which are said by the Tibetans to exist, should be discovered, much light would be thrown on the geology of the river. Exact information might be expected as to the structure of the country traversed and the relation borne by the vast Himalayan ranges to the elevated plateau against which they abut. Nothing at present is known of the tribes who inhabit the tract through which this part of the river passes, and it is their hospitality that has heretofore prevented the exploration of this region. Valuable collections of fauna and flora would probably be obtained and a good route might be discovered through the valley of the river leading from Assam into Tibet which would have much importance in promoting British trade with that country.

This has been one of the geographical connundrums for many years. Several white explorers have tried to get through the mountains along the river, but their parties were too small to force their way among the hostile Mishmi tribes. They are independent and semi-savage, and have always shown determination to prevent strangers from crossing their country. The trained Indian explorer, A—K., reached the edge of the Mishmi country, but dared not face the probability of being killed if he attempted to cross it. Years ago two French missionaries (Krick and Boury,) were murdered as they were trying to make their way up the river from Assam to Tibet, Needham, Molesworth, Gordon and others had this exploration in view but wisely decided not to attempt it. Some of the Mishmis living on the border have had trade relations with the British, but most of them, living up the river valley, are known only by name. There is really no doubt that the Sangpo of Tibet, which flows for about 1,000 miles east on that plateau, is the upper course of the Brahmaputra. Marked logs that were set afloat in the Sangpo and were picked up in the Brahmaputra, supplied conclusive evidence; but the weighty reasons why this exploration should now be carried out are well set forth in the Scottish petition. Now that Rawling and Ryder have traced the upper Sangpo to its source, the part of the river in the Hishmi country is the only unknown portion of the Brahmaputra.

Lagering

Lagering or ageing (storing for maturity) has much to do with the quality and healthfulness of beer. With our exceeding that of any two other breweries in the World, we are enabled to lager our beer from four to five months before being marketed. This lagering brings out, to the utmost, that exquisite taste and fine flavor characteristic only of Anheuser-Busch Beer.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 30th, 1906.

On reading and filing the petition of S. R. Van Sant and N. G. Van Sant, executors, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into their hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said diseased died siczed, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to them granted to sell Lot 3, Block 76, in Endlon Division of Duluth, Minnesota; and it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said executors to pay the expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such expenses, to sell all of said real estate;

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Monday, the 28th day of May, 1906, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Court House in Duluth, in said County, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said executors to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.

IN A CLASS ALL BY THEMSELVES.

WHATEVER may be said or written for or against so-called patent medicines, there is this to be truthfully said of Dr. Pierce's medicines that applies to very few other medicines put up for sale through druggists: They are entitled to a place all by themselves because they are neither patent nor secret medicines—all their ingredients being openly printed in plain English on their bottle-wrappers. Then again they are entitled to a place all by themselves because they contain not a drop of alcohol in their composition, or make-up.

Send your address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N.Y., with a request for a free booklet, compiled by him from standard medical works and you will learn on reading it that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name, or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College; Prof. Hare, of the University of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula on the bottle-wrapper is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming agents and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful ingredient in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editoral Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invaribly acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues, "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women, constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent Ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

"In the painful conditions incident to imperfect menstruation, its remedial action is fully displayed. By its special affinity for the female reproductive organs, it is an efficient agent for the restoration of suppressed menses. In dysmenorrhœa (painful periods), it is surpassed by no other drug, being of greatest utility in irritative and congestive conditions of the uterus and appendages, characterized by tensive, dragging pains, resembling the pains of rheumatism. It is a good remedy for the reflex 'side-ache' of women. It should be remembered in rheumatism of the uterus, and in uterine leucorrhœa."

Blue Cohosh root, and Yellow Lady's Slipper root, the two remaining ingredients not mentioned above, have just as strong endorsements for their curative merits in diseases peculiar to women, but we have room for no more. "Favorite Prescription" is a happy and harmonious compound of the above mentioned ingredients and faithfully represents them in curative results.

The foregoing are only a few brief extracts taken from amongst the voluminous endorsements which the several ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription have received from the most eminent medical writers of all the different schools of medicine. After reading them who can doubt that Dr. Pierce has selected and compounded his "Prescription" from the most valuable ingredients known to the medical profession for the cure of those chronic diseases of women for which he recommends it? A far more extensive endorsement will be mailed free, in form of a booklet of extracts from standard medical works, to any one sending name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same.

IS DISEASE A CRIME?

NOT so very long ago, a popular magazine published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws, which if understood and implicitly followed, would result in the prevention of much of the sickness and suffering of humanity. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must, on a little sober reflection, appeal to every reasonable and intelligent individual as radically wrong.

Thousands suffer from contagious and infectious diseases most innocently and unconsciously contracted. Other thousands suffer and die of cancerous affections, the cause of which no medical man has yet been wise enough to ferret out and determine, and which can not, therefore, be avoided. Then too, many times stress of circumstances compel people to expose themselves to various disease-producing agencies, such as malaria, bad air in overheated factories, coal mines, and many other situations, and surely those who suffer therefrom should not be branded as criminals.

In-so-far as disease is contracted or brought on one's self from harmful excesses, over-eating, intemperance and other like indulgencies and debauchery, we think, with our editor friend, that it should be regarded as little less than criminal. On the other hand, we think it would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the heavy load of household cares and burdens which she is obliged to struggle along under until she succumbs to the strain and over-exertion, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

The too frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of weakness, derangements and debility which the mother has to bear and which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which she is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, overworked housewife can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment fails by reason of the patient's inability to abstain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, ante-version and retro-version of the uterus or other displacement of the womanly organs, it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription" they abstain from being very much, or for long periods, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much out-door air as possible, with moderate, light exercise is also very important.

It is Dr. Pierce's observation that many housewives suffer much in a weakened condition of their system from too close confinement in-doors. Often the kitchen, where they spend most of their time, is illy ventilated and the bad air and over-heating thereof act most unfavorably upon the woman's strength, until she finds herself suffering from various weaknesses attended by backache, bearing-down pains, or dragging-down sensations that are extremely hard to bear. A catarrhal, pelvic drain, of most debilitating and disagreeable nature, is a common symptom of the congested or inflamed condition of the lining membranes of the pelvic organs, attended, perhaps, with tenderness and pain in these regions.

Now, while all the foregoing disagreeable symptoms and sensations will generally yield to the faithful and somewhat persistent use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, to realize the very best results from its use, the patient must, as far as possible, abstain from over-work, worry and too close confinement in-doors.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household duties or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, the "Favorite Prescription" has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be resorted to if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. This "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, to which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their harmless character, but is a medicine of known composition, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, that does not contain alcohol, and that too in large quantities. Furthermore, it is the only medicine for woman's special diseases, the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Don't forget that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for woman's weaknesses and delicate ailments, is not a patent or secret medicine, being the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and graduated physician, engaged in the practice of his chosen specialty—that of diseases of women—that its ingredients are printed in plain English on every bottle-wrapper; that it is the only medicine especially designed for the cure of woman's diseases that contains no alcohol, and the only one that has a professional endorsement worth more than all the so-called "testimonials" ever published for other medicines.

An invitation is extended by Dr. Pierce to every sick and ailing woman to consult him by letter. There is absolutely no charge or fee for this. Every letter is carefully considered, fully answered, and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address as above directed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good."

SPORTS

LEAD LIFE OF GYPSIES

Y. M. C. A. Boys Are Planning Novel Journey to Solon Springs.

Swimming Instruction Will be Given Every Thursday Afternoon.

A gypsy trip to Solon Springs and a three days' hike to French river are among the things planned by the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming vacation.

The boys will engage a team of horses and a large covered wagon to carry their tents and provisions, and will walk to Solon Springs and back, camping each night wherever they happen to find themselves.

The trip will probably require several days.

The hike to French river will require three days. The boys will cook their own meals on the way, and sleep in the open.

Both of these trips were planned at a meeting of the Outing club, in the boys' department building, last evening.

The club named Thursday afternoon as the regular swimming day for the summer vacation, and every Thursday the secretary and the physical director will devote their attention to teaching the younger boys to swim.

An outing of some kind will be held every Saturday afternoon during the summer months.

The first outing of the season will be held Friday evening, when the boys will take a tally-ho ride to Lakeside, and return to the building, where ice cream will be served.

On Saturday the annual picnic of the Knights of Sir Galahad, the Sunday club for younger boys, will be held.

Wednesday evening a meeting will be held for the purpose of organizing a bicycle club.

Friday evening there will be a practical talk in the gymnasium on "How to Save From Drowning," and instructions will also be given the boys on what to do when a person is taken from the water in an unconscious condition.

The following members of the committee were present last evening: William Eklund, chairman; Robert McGonagle, Arthur Helmer, Frank Scribner, and Robert McGiffert.

PLAYING WITH ALL STAR TEAM

White Sox in First of a Series of Three Games.

The first of a series of three games with the local all star team, is being played at Athletic park this afternoon by the White Sox.

The all star team is picked from the various local amateur aggregations, and the lineup is a good one.

Larson, the old West Duluth pitcher, who has been working for the Millers this year, will pitch and Charles Leonard who caught for Hibbing Sunday, will be behind the plate. Wendtlandt, Deetz, McLaughlin and Peterson will compose the infield, and Coons, Strum and McGraw will play the outfield positions.

The team is by no means an easy mark, and the leaguers will have to show some speed to win out.

BILLIARD TOURNEY.

Chicago, Ill., May 8.—The most important professional billiard tournament held in the West in many years was begun here last night at Orchestra hall. Five of the best players in the country will take part in the ten games to be played for a purse of $2,500. The style of game is 18.2 balk line at 500 points. The contestants are George Slosson, who won the championship at the recent tournament in New York, George Sutton, Jake Schaefer, "Willie" Hoppe and Louis Cure of Paris.

The opening game last night between Hoppe and Cure was won by Hoppe, who defeated Cure by the score of 500 to 296. Hoppe played a steady game throughout. On the other hand, Cure was very erratic, and while scoring the high run of the game, 104, he missed shots several times that most any good amateur would have had little trouble in making.

CASS LAKE WON.

Defeated the Bena Indians in Well Played Ball Game.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass Lake baseball team played their first game last Sunday against the Bena team and won by the score of 7 to 0. The Cass Lakers outplayed their opponents at every stage of the game. Ferrell did the twisting for Cass Lake and his work was easily the feature of the game. Fleming was behind the bat and played an errorless game. Seaman at first, Yates at second and Grady at third ably demonstrated that they are good men and promise to do great work for the team. Oman at short played his usual good game. Goss, Dugas and Fennessy in the field showed fine form. Wakahanaso, who did the twirling for Bena, pitcher a steady game. His support, however, was weak.

The Cass Lake team showed that they have material that promises to give Bemidji, Deer River and Grand Rapids a lose run for the championship.

ATHLETIC LEAGUE

Is Formed by the Schools of the Red River Valley.

Crookston, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Red River Valley Inter-scholastic Athletic league, including the schools from this city, Warren, East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls Thief River Falls and probably Fosston, Fertile, Hallock and Argyle, was formed last Saturday at St. Hilaire, where an athletic conference was held for the purpose of forming a permanent organization. The meeting was attended by delegates from the first four towns named, and all of the final arrangements were completed for a field meet to be held at Thief River Falls on May 26.

Thirteen events were arranged for in the schedule that will be followed when the final contest comes off. A board of control consisting of Messrs. Thoreson of Crookston, Young of Warren and Chamberlain of Red Lake Falls, together with student members from Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, will have complete charge of the affairs of the league.

NEW YORK, 7; WASHINGTON, 2.

New York, May 8.—At American league park yesterday, New York defeated Washington, 7 to 2. The local men bunched hits and were assisted by errors on the part of the visitors. There was a good deal of excitement during the progress of the fifth inning, when some of the players had to run in between Manager Clark Griffith and Umpire Tim Hurst. Griffith objected to a decision rendered by Hurst. The umpire ordered Griffith off the field and grabbed him by the arm. Griffith shoved Hurst away and Stahl and Elberfield got between them. When Griffith went to the players' bench, Hurst followed him and struck him in the mouth. After the game, Griffith said:

"Hurst did not hit me." Then pointing to his swollen mouth, he added: "I had this swollen lip before the game." Hurst refused to talk of the fracas further than to say: "I ordered him off the field for kicking." The score:

Washington	1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—2	9	3

Batteries—Patten, Falkenburg, Sudhoff and Heydon; Orth and Kleinow. Umpires—Evans and Hurst.

DETROIT, 8; CLEVELAND, 3.

Cleveland, O., May 8.—Detroit had no difficulty in defeating Cleveland. Donovan being very effective. Donovan's base running was the feature. He stole second, third and home in succession. Score:

Cleveland	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—3	11	1

PHILADELPHIA, 4; BOSTON, 0.

Boston, May 8.—Waddell pitched one of his best games yesterday and Philadelphia's hits were opportune, the combination resulting in a 4 to 0 victory for the visitors. Score:

GOTCH DEFEATS APOLLO.

Kansas City, May 8.—Frank Gotch last night defeated Apollo, the "Irish Giant," in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match, winning the first fall in 36 minutes and the second in 20 minutes.

FORMERLY OF TWO HARBORS

Two Harbors, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Woolsey, who was killed near Edmonton, Alberta, last Friday evening, was formerly an engineer on the Duluth & Iron Range here. He went to Winnipeg about two years ago to accept a position on the Canadian Northern road.

Mrs. Laner and Mrs. T. J. Slattery of Elk River, Minn., who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. D. A. Burke here the past few weeks, have returned to their homes.

Ore business is very light at present, only the product of the shafts being received. Some men have been laid off at the docks and the shops, and also switch and train crews. There was no work done at the docks loading boats Sunday or Sunday night, and very few boats are due.

Work on the steel construction at the coal dock is being pushed as fast as the material arrives. The steel tower will be finished this week. The timber work on the pockets is not progressing as rapidly as expected, on account of lack of material, but some cents are being raised. When completed the pocket capacity will be 2,000 tons. They will be 600 feet in length.

The old postoffice quarters are being remodeled and refitted and Alex. Holliday will move into the same next week with his barber shop and undertaking establishment.

L. P. Christenson, for the past several years village marshal, has resigned and will go on his homestead to live. Pete Larson has been appointed to succeed him as marshal.

Numerous fishermen took to the woods Sunday, but no fish were caught, the weather being too cold. Some snow formed and a thin coating of ice formed in the ditches during the night.

Ed. Moulton of Owatonna, Minn., has accepted a position in the Schreiner Bros. & Moulton store.

Miss Adele McClaren of Duluth will give a recital at the Norden hall, Friday evening. Louis Dworshak and Theodore Tossom of Duluth will assist.

The social given by the Royal Neighbors at the Norden hall last evening was a very enjoyable and successful affair.

The Republican county convention has been called for Wednesday, June 6th. The folowing representation is allowed: Two Harbors—First precinct three; second precinct, five; third precinct, four; fourth precinct, three; fifth precinct, four; Beaver Bay, two; Fall Lake, two; Crystal Bay, one; Silver Creek, one.

W. A. Johnston has returned from Ely.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A church service of which George Bernard Shaw, socialist, vegetarian, atheist and married man, would approve took place last evening, when Horace W. Reynor of Montreal was heard in an organ recital at the First Methodist church. Mr. Reynor is organist of the Douglas Methodist church of Montreal and was heard with rare pleasure last evening in a program of the glorious music of the great composers played on the splendid organ of the First church of this city. The program included many of the masterpieces of organ music and an evening of rare pleasure was the reward for those who attended.

While in the city Mr. and Mrs. Reynor are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Christensen of 1919 East Second street.

Events of Interest.

Greysolon duLhut chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Harbison of 905 London road. Names of Pilgrim Fathers will be given in response to roll call and the study for the afternoon will be child life in New England and Southern colonies.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Summer squash, 15 cents each.
Peas, 7 cents a quart.
Cucumbers, 10 cents each.
Fresh perch, 12 cents a pound.

Each day a new fish seems to arrive. The season for Lake Superior whitefish, silver shining and lovely looking things, arrived yesterday, and this morning a box, filled with delicious-looking perch, coaxed fish lovers to once more have fish for dinner or breakfast tomorrow morning.

The cucumbers are getting cheap; so that that delightful adjunct of fish may be served without fear of having an everlastingly large bill at the end of the week. A bushel basket of peas in one of the markets this morning were only 7 cents a quart. They are worth 15 cents for two pints, but they were bargaining them off because the outside looked wilted, but the peas in the pod were numerous, plump and hard. The summer squash is really fine, and is one of the delicate and delightful things in the market. In fact, almost everything one can name is in, and at good and reasonable prices.

"Only $40 for this beautiful Colonial secretary and cabinet, ladies and gentlemen? Shocking! Do you realize what I'm offering you, a real genuine antique that can't be reproduced for double the money nor duplicated for thrice the sum? Why, this is a terrible slaughter," and the wily auctioneer gazed sadly and deprecatingly over the audience of fashionably gowned women.

It was at the antique furniture auction sale which is the Mecca of feminine New York just now that colonial goods were so ruthlessly torn from their pedestals and the sensitive soul of the auctioneer so sorely wounded. "Any old relic," is the banner cry of the feminine antique fiends just now, for to possess antiques in these days, argues one a perfect lady, if not an actual descendant of the Mayflower. It is the Hall mark of respectability and quite as necessary as the family Bible. One's standing in society is affected by it, for otherwise it might be suspected that the family tree was of scrub oak instead of San Domingo mahogany.

Women Flock in Throngs.

And thus it is that to make their calling and election sure women have been flocking in throngs for the past few weeks to this region of enchantment, located near the heart of the shopping district, where pedigrees can be polished up and ancestry relations bought for a song. Of course, this method of adding to the family tree may be fraught with some embarrassment in case the real descendant should take it into her head to appear on the scene and claim the sanguinary tie.

Such a contretemps, however, is evidently not for a moment considered, for daily smart broughams wait at the door and patient footmen stand motionless holding costly robes against the moment that madame shall appear. But the hour generally waxes late before the blandishments of the sale can be resisted, and the only reason that she comes at all is because the sale is over and her money is spent.

In the shops where relics of departed folks are sold under the hammer for whatever they will bring, the goods are piled together in a haphazard manner. Thomas Jefferson's armchair may stand in close juxtaposition to Martin Van Buren's grandfather's clock. An old mahogany sideboard will flank a Louis XV cabinet and a colonial secretary a Spanish altar of richly carved oak. But it is the colonial relics of old mahogany that are much sought after, and anything in the line of high boys or low boys, drop leaf card tables, grandfather's clocks, Chippendale or Hepplewaite chairs, Sheffield plate and the like are watched for with eagle eyes. Much of the silver bears the mark of its former owner and the family portraits of high bred men and women now dead and gone which hang from the walls make mute protest to the stranger at the desecration.

Knows Human Nature.

No respecter of persons is the shrewd wielder of the hammer, for he knows human nature. To sell a green plush "parlor suite" from a Grand street shop would afford him quite as much happiness as to dispose of one of Rennaissance design in the uptown auction room. It's the victim that counts. He can tell at a glance if a woman is one who pays court to society and being sure on this point his course is clear. Like a moth to the candle she flutters into the net and is lost.

One richly gowned woman of suspiciously youthful countenance, her breast ablaze with jeweled ornaments, was almost immediately transfixed by the hypnotic spell of the auctioneer, and though she came for old mahogany she left with a van load of bric-a-brac and furniture representing every known period.

"Just look at this Louis the Fifteenth boudoir suite," persuasively remarked the auctioneer in a familiar conversational tone, his eagle eyes fastened on the woman. "Why, few families on Fifth avenue have any better. Even Mr. Rockefeller himself would be proud to own it. It is a magnificent set, ladies and gentlemen' —the gentlemen being out of courtesy to a few masculine connoisseurs present, whose bald heads shone like the polished surface of a skating rink among the picture hat and dainty millinery creations of the women.

"What, $50?" he exclaimed, in high disgust, as his victim started to bid. I might as well give it away. Think of it, brocade that can't be bought for less than $10 a yard, each piece stuffed with the finest curled hair, and only $50 I'm offered. It's disgraceful."

Some one bid $55. It proved to be the woman raising her own bid, she was that flustrated.

"Take it—take it away," wearily remarked the auctioneer. "Let her have it, but—Oh, it's a shame," and he bowed his head overcome with grief at the thought.

Auctioneer Scents a Sale.

Next a Louis Fifteenth writing desk occupied the attention of the audience, and the auctioneer brightened up perceptibly as he gazed challengingly at a middle aged blonde victim in the front row.

"What am I offered for it? $500—$400—$300—well, $100? It isn't often you get a piece like that. Ladies, you ought not to hesitate a moment. Why, I'm giving it away. You'd pay more than that for a mere sewing table. There's nothing better in the St. Regis, and that fellow Louis did his best over there. A hundred and twenty-five? Is that all I'm going to get for it? Well, there you are," and the piece was "knocked down" to the blonde in the front row, who giggled like a schoolgirl at her bargain.

Next is a tip table—finest San Domingo mahogany." At these magic words all the ears pricked up and there ensued a great craning of necks to see. Some of the women stood up to get a better view, and others mounted on chairs to get a look at the sacred relic.

"I'm glad you're interested in something genuine," sarcastically commented the auctioneer as he saw his opportunity. "I had begun to think that objects d'art were not appreciated, but perhaps I'm mistaken." And thus badgered, the women grab the bait temptingly offered and bid lively.

"What, only $30? Don't let me sell it for that," beseechingly implored the auctioneer. "Set it on the floor"—this to the attendants—"Turn it around so they can appreciate its beauty. That's one grand piece of mahogany; there's no veneer about that. And"—confidentially—"it belonged to no less a personage than Henry Clay. That's straight. Oh, so you raise the bid on the strength of that. It's not necessary He'll never know how his historic relics were sacrificed.

"Forty, madam; thank you, small favors thankfully received," sarcastically. "Well, it's yours at $40, and you have a bargain and no mistake.

Women Bidders Sensitive.

One funny thing about women at auctions is that they will bid fearlessly while there is opposition, but the moment the auctioneer says, "It's yours," or "The lady on the right takes it," and the eyes of all are upon her she shrinks into her shell like a snail and looks as if she had been caught stealing sheep. The winner of the tip table became so embarrassed that she quite forgot her name when the cashier came for her deposit.

"Next is 718, a beautiful Sheffield plate tray, with a Queen Anne border —what am I bid? Fourteen I'm bid. Hod it up higher. Only $17? These prices are something awful. Talk about fire sales, this isn't in it. Any one might think I was in this for my health. Can't you use that, madam," appealing to the woman in the second row, who had just bought the mahogany sofas. Thank you," said the man, bowing deferentially as she acquiesced.

"Now I come to this superb Sheraton sideboard, made of the finest San Domingo mahogany. How much am I offered?—$250—$150—$100—$50, then, Seventy-five? Good—$85"—the lady way back there takes it. I'm sorry, but you're too late, madam," turning to a disappointed bidder across the room. "You must look sharper next time."

Women Try to Make Converts.

Not content with spending their own money at the auction, many of the women are fired with the missionary spirit, and they work most zealously to secure converts.

"Just try your luck," urged one smartly gowned matron to a young housewife who had just been lured onto the firing line by her companion. "Luck," fatal word, was the temptation, and an Oriental lamp, the bait that caused her downfall. The latter she had no more use for in her little Harlem flat than a grand piano.

"It's all silver plated repousse work," came the blandishing tones of the auctioneer. "It ought to bring $100 at the very least. Just look at the work on it—was once owned by the Sultan of Sulu."

"But what would I do with it," feebly protested the little woman. It was started at $20, and before she knew how it happened the lamp was hers for $30. More advice followed, and at the end of an hour the novice found herself in the possession of a collection of articles that she didn't need and couldn't afford, and could have lived happily without all her life, and much less economically.

"But what will my husband say," the little woman was overheard to remark tearfully to her companion as she passed out—a sentiment that was echoed in the minds of half the women who heard it. But most of them argued the expenditure a wise one on account of the social prestige their relics would bring, and they passed out smiling.

The EVENING STORY.

THE EDITOR SPEAKS PLAINLY

By Walter Malone.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph R. Bowles.)

Mr. Jack Jefferson, editor of the Southern Household Magazine, was not displaying his wonted good humor this morning. Subscribers were few and advertisers were shy. Was the great Southern magazine to make another link in the long chain of failures?

As to contributions, however, there could be no complaint on the score of quantity. Every mail brought a flood, and every mail carried a flood away.

Manuscript after manuscript was stowed away like a corpse, and returned with the printed note of rejection as a wreath of regret.

As he quickly glanced over the last one, the editor remembered having returned several of the same author's attempts before. It was signed "Nora Baird," in a girlish, informal hand. It was a hopeless effort—one of the seventeen spring poems, through whose lines the lambs went skipping and the bees went buzzing in the same old way.

He was about to return it with the usual printed slip when the office boy announced Miss Nora Baird herself. The editor dropped the printed slip in astonishment at the coincidence.

Seeing a mere slip of a girl, confused, blushing, there was no difficulty in fixing her in his mind as the author of the various crude stories and poems he had hitherto read over her signature.

"I suppose you came to see about your poem," he said. "Here it is. I regret very much that we cannot use it, but the fact is that we already have on hand much more poetry than we need."

The poor girl, ashamed, blushing violently, and stammering "Thank you, sir," awkwardly made her way out of the room.

But that was not the end of it. Two days later another manuscript came. It was a story this time, and a bulky one at that. With it came this note:

"Dear Mr. Jefferson: When I saw you last Monday I had come prepared to tell you a great many things, but when you told me so quickly you could not take my poem, I was just so confused I couldn't say a word. Oh, Mr. Jefferson! you don't know how hard I worked on that poem. But, of course, you know best, and you did exactly right about it. My father, you know, died some years ago, and I live alone with my mother. My friends all tell me I can write well, and mamma thinks I ought to be able to make a living by my poetry. Oh, I do love poetry—don't you? But sometimes I get so discouraged I feel like giving up everything. It's a terrible thing to be discouraged that way, isn't it? But as you do not seem to like my poetry, I now send you a story which I hope—oh, I do hope so much!—you can use. I know it was very foolish of me, but I just cried the other night after I brought home the poem you handed back. If you can't take the story I send you, I hope you won't send it back with any of those printed slips, but will return it with a note telling me where you think it might be improved. Awaiting your early answer, I am

"Yours cordially,

"NORA BAIRD."

For once Mr. Jefferson was perplexed. Here was a young girl whom he pitied, and yet whom he could not conscientiously encourage.

Nevertheless, he wrote her a little note asking her to call the next day.

The next afternoon Nora came to see him. It was plain that she was very much agitated, poor child, and trembled as she conjectured the meaning of the interview.

"You received my note?" he asked.

"Yes," she stammered.

"Well, I have thought very carefully over the letter you sent me. It is not my duty, and, in fact, is against our rules, to communicate with contributors in regard to rejected manuscripts, but feeling kindly disposed to you, I have taken the liberty of speaking plainly. I see you are quite young—not more than 18, probably. You are naturally bright, have a good disposition, and mean to do well. But I must say to you that I do not think any of your writings which I have seen justify you in seeking to enter a literary life. I know I ought not to give this advice. It is bad policy on my part. You will never thank me for it, but I pledge you my word that I speak from all kindness and sincerity."

He handed her back the manuscript, but it fell from her trembling hands. Her little face was white from agitation. He could not but pity her. She was so young, so foolish, so misguided.

Finally she raised her eyes, wet with tears, and said: "Thank you for your advice, but it is so hard on me!" Then followed bursts of sobs.

"Nora," he said, unconsciously dropping the "Miss," "you must not feel hard toward me because I have spoken so plainly. It was all for your own good."

She arose and went to the window. It was getting gray and misty and dim, and there she stood with her dying hopes in the dying daylight.

"Listen!" he said. "You know nothing of life. You have only begun to suffer, and not till after years of suffering can great works of genius be produced. You will find this a practical world. I learned that lesson. I was once considered rich. I was in love with a girl who, as I thought, loved me in return. Then a lawsuit arose and swept away my entire fortune. I appealed the case to a higher court, where it is now pending, but my lawyer has given up all hope of ever winning it. As soon as I lost the suit, the girl whom I liked best threw me overboard, and so here I am slaving away on this old magazine."

He appeared to be talking to himself. He seemed to have forgotten her entirely, else this reserved, taciturn man would never have confided in a silly girl whom he scarcely knew.

Recovering himself, he quickly rose, and she, taking the hint, grasped her rejected manuscript and hurried away.

Spring had indeed arrived at last—true to the predictions of her poet-lovers. The air was so balmy, the sunlight so genial, that Jack determined, one Saturday afternoon, to take a walk through the suburbs. Passing out of the noisy, dirty streets, he walked through the green lanes beyond the city limits. At last he reached the limits of the town itself, and as he passed by a modest little brown cottage he met face to face with Nora herself at the gate.

He was not only startled by seeing her so suddenly, but by seeing her so changed in appearance. She was evidently just out after a long illness. Her big brown eyes seemed bigger than ever in her little, thin, white face; under them were dark circles. Her hair had been cut short like a boy's, and only a few little brown ringlets were left. She was leaning for support against the gate, and her small hand was emaciated by long suffering.

"You have been ill," he said. "I am very sorry."

"Yes; a few days after I saw you last I was taken with a slow fever, and have never been out of the house until today."

"I am sorry I did not know you were sick, Nora. I hope you will soon be entirely well," he said.

As he passed by her house the next day he brought her some flowers—beautiful red roses—and hoped that her cheeks would soon be as red as they. Was it a coincidence that brought Nora to the gate just as he passed by?

The Southern Household Magazine was fast becoming a burden on its owner's hands. Jack saw his stock in it depreciating every day. Each month showed a financial loss. It bade fair to soon join the long list of defunct Southern magazines.

During those days he often found time to pass by Nora's house, though he seldom went in. He found that with her he could be perfectly frank, and he liked to talk to some one with whom he was not compelled to adopt the usual rigid reserve. This simple girl appealed to him in a peculiar way.

One day, in passing by, he asked her to walk a short distance with him. She ran in the house for her hat, then returned and went with him.

"Well," he said after a while, "the Household Magazine has gone to the wall."

Had he said: "The rock of Gibraltar has toppled over," Nora could not have been more astonished. To think of the Southern Household Magazine, that august periodical which she and all other rejected contributors held in such awe—to think of its being fallible!

Nevertheless it was true.

"And I have made up my mind to leave town and go East," he said.

"Leave town—go East!" she gasped. He looked at the great brown eyes uplifted to his in astonishment, and at the sweet face, which was pale with pain.

"Yes," he replied, simply.

"And are you going away, never, never to come back?" she asked.

"Yes."

They had both stopped still. She said nothing.

"I go alone," he said. "You will remember that I once told you I loved a girl who deserted me when I lost my money. I would have felt able to stand anything had she not turned against me, but I had to fight the battle alone. There, just as here, I shall be alone."

"Oh!" she replied, "why do you care for her longer? If I were a man I would not care for any girl that did not care for me. Why, if I loved a man, I'd stand by him always, and follow him to the end of the world!"

"I do not care for her any longer," he answered.

They had in the meantime resumed their walk, and silent, and dejected, found themselves in front of the Household Magazine office. Expecting to find some mail on his desk, he took her with him up to the office. It was now deserted, as the magazine had suspended, and the few employes still connected with it had gone away for the evening. On his desk was a telegram and a note.

He hastily read the telegram; it was from his lawyer, and said:

"The supreme court has reversed your case. You win a great victory. Accept hearty congratulations."

His head swam in a delirium of joy. He grasped the note; it was from his former fiancee, and said:

"I have just heard of your winning the great lawsuit. Accept my warmest congratulations. Why don't you come out to see me? Yours, always, Rose."

He took her hand in his and led her to the window. She did not attempt to take it away, but drew close to him, as any child might have done.

"Nora," he said, simply, "I love you. Do you love me?"

"Yes," she said, simply, dropping her eyes and drawing nearer still.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Accidental Discharge of Revolver Kills Daughter of Minister.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Devils Lake—Ruth Armstrong, 17 years old, was accidentally shot and killed last Saturday. Just how the accident happened probably never will be known. The girl was assisting a younger brother, who was preparing for a hunting expedition, and in the handling of a 38-caliber revolver the weapon in some manner was discharged. The bullet entered her stomach and perforated the liver. Miss Armstrong was brought to Mercy hospital where an operation was performed, but without avail. She was the daughter of Rev. J. H. Armstrong, the Presbyterian minister at Webster. Her parents were away from home when the accident happened.

Dickinson—C. F. Merry of this city has been arrested on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. John Dolan of La Crosse, Wis., is the complaining witness. The hearing comes before Justice Folsom on May 10, and in the meantime Merry is out on a $500 bond signed by his wife and C. A. Tear.

Dolen says that he gave Merry $50 for locating him on government land, and that the land shown on a thorough investigation, proved to be a different description from that represented, his United States filing receipt taken at the Dickinson office showing him to be in a worthless quarter some two miles distant from the fine land actually shown him.

The prosecuting attorney says he has a strong case against Merry, and that there are several other cases of the same nature against him which can be prosecuted.

Minot—The case of George W. Hecker against L. S. Chapine, Frank L. Wilson, John S. Wilson, Robert R. Wilson and the Minot State bank, to recover property known as Hecker's addition to Minot, has been settled out of court.

According to the provisions of the settlement Hecker is to receive a portion of the unplatted land in Hecker addition. In return for this he is to relinquish the deeds to property at Lewiston, Mont., and which he accepted in trade for Minot property, and a money consideration.

Last fall Mr. Hecker became interested in a land proposition in Montana whereby he expected to become a millionaire. In order to secure interest in the Montana property he traded his Minot real estate for an interest in the Lewiston property, purchasing the part owned by Frank L. Wilson. On making a thorough examination of his new possessions, Mr. Hecker was not satisfied with his bargain and started this suit to regain his Minot property.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—After having occupied the attention of the courts for several years, an interesting insurance case, that of William Wilka vs. the Farmers' Mutual Fire & Lightning Insurance company of Moody county, has been settled out of court.

A farm house belonging to Wilka, and insured in the company, was destroyed by fire, and when Wilka put in a claim for the amount of the $800 policy which he held, the company refused to pay. An action was then instituted in the state circuit court for Moody county for the recovery of the $800.

The case was tried in Moody county, the jury returning a verdict in favor of the company. Wilka was then granted a new trial, and immediately asked for a change of venue to Minnehaha county. His application was based on the ground that so many of the farmers of Moody county were financially interested in the insurance company that it would be impossible to secure an impartial jury in that county.

He was granted a change of venue, and was ready to go ahead with the trial of the case, when the insurance company notified his attorney that it was ready to settle the claim in full.

The settlement of the case gives Wilka his original $800, together with interest and costs, amounting in the aggregate to between $1,100 and $1,200.

Elk Point—A curfew ordinance has just gone into effect, the youngsters being required to be off the street and at home at 9 o'clock.

A fine specimen of an elk's head is on permanent exhibition in the main corridor of the courthouse, the county commissioners and business men having contributed $150 for that purpose. The elk was shot by George A. Woods of this city in October, 1904, in the West Gallatin mountains, at the head of Beaver creek, fifteen miles northwest of Yellowstone Park.

Salem—The dates for the annual reunion of the McCook County Veterans' association are June 14 and 15, Spencer will do the entertaining this year. Arrangements are being made by the various committees for the program. The Salem concert band has been secured to furnish the music.

Salem chapter, Royal Arch Masons, conferred the last degree upon two teams here Saturday night, winding the affair up with a banquet and smoker.

I. L. Noggle, who has held the position of agent for the North-Western & Omaha Railway companies in Salem for fifteen years, has decided to retire, his resignation to take effect May 15.

THE MILLINER EASY.

Women Customers Who Are Not Above Petty Swindling.

New York Sun: "When I first went into business for myself it astonished me to find how many women there were who considered it smart to beat a milliner, but nothing that women do in the way of business meanness or underhandedness is capable of surprising me any more," said a woman milliner.

"Look at this, for example," and she exhibited a check for $45, filled out in a feminine hand, folding the name under so that it could not be read. "This check represents as deliberately mean a transaction as could be imagined, and yet it is a dodge that has been worked upon me four or five times by different women since I started in business.

"The woman whose name is on this check is the wife of a prosperous man, and she lives in a beautiful house. It is well known to tradespeople that her husband lets her have all the money that any woman, even one with extravagant tastes, could possibly need.

"And yet she is not above turning so contemptible a trick as this. She came here for the first time yesterday. I recognized her at once, was pleased to think that I was going to have her for a customer, and would have given her any amount of credit she asked for. But she didn't ask me for any credit. She picked out two hats that she liked, each of them costing $45.

"'Send them to my home this evening,' she said to me, 'and I will return you a check.'

"Well, that looked even better—she was going to be a fine new cash customer, it seemed.

"I sent the two hats to her, together with a receipted bill for the full amount, $90. She gave my delivery man this check for $45. She handed the man the check in a sealed envelope, took the hats and the receipted bill for $90, and there you are. I had had this thing, as I say, worked upon me before, but I could not think it possible that this woman would do it. I thought she must have made some mistake. So I went up to see her this forenoon. I explained the situation to her, but she simply would not listen to me—in fact, boldly told me that I was trying to cheat her, and all but showed me the door. That ends the transaction. I am $45 out.

"There is no way to guard against such meanness as that. When the dodge was first worked upon me, about two years ago, I was so angry that I instructed my delivery man not to accept any more money or checks placed in sealed envelopes, but to open the envelope and examine the contents before giving up the receipted bill. He did this in a couple of cases where regular women customers gave him checks in sealed envelopes, and found everything all right. The women became very angry and withdrew their patronage from me, so I had to instruct him not to open the envelopes any more.

"This woman whose check I have in my hand gets two hats for the price of one, and of course she will not come back to my place any more. She will no doubt work the same game upon other milliners and different sorts of business houses that deal in women's wear, and I cannot believe, from the way she treated me this morning, that she will suffer the least compunction of conscience over her catty meanness.

"Her dodge, of course, is merely another version of the old money-in-the envelope dodge that professional swindlers used to employ before it became too stale. I would not, of course, permit my delivery man to accept payment in that way from a strange woman, one who received the goods sent to her at a hotel, for instance. That old scheme was worked time and again years ago, as everybody knows. But this woman presumed upon her credit, and upon my knowing that she was what we call 'good,' to cheat me out of just half the amount of my bill.

"I couldn't begin to name half of the downright dishonest things that some women will do in their efforts to get the best of milliners. Not long ago a woman who had been a customer of mine for some time came to me in a state of great apparent distress. I had a bill of $120 against her.

"'My husband is very angry over that bill,' she told me. 'He declares that I am borrowing money and having my trades-people put the borrowed money on their bills for goods, and he is perfectly unreasonable. Now, here is what I wish you'd do for me. Cut your bill down to $75 and I will pay you $50 now and the rest later, and you give me the bill receipted in full so that I can show it to him and tell him how good you had been to me in chopping down the bill. Then I can get some more hats.'

"I told her that I couldn't cut the bill down at all—that it was a just bill, and so on.

"'Well,' she said then, 'I will pay you the $50 now, and then won't you let me have the bill receipted in full just to show him? And I'll send you the remainder of the amount in a couple of weeks.'

"I didn't like the sound of this, either, naturally enough, since I've been fooled so often by these dodges.

"'No,' said I; 'I will do this: You pay me the $50 now, and I shall let you have the bill receipted in full if you will let me have your personal note for the remaining $70.'

"She agreed, and I took her $50 and handed her the bill for $120 receipted in full. Then I sat down to make out the personal note for the remaining $70 for her to sign, when she calmly turned and walked out of the place. She was stepping into her automobile before I had a chance to realize what was happening. There would have been no use in my flying out after her, especially when the store was full of people, and so I simply let her go, with a piece of paper showing that she had paid me a full $120 when she had really only given me $50 on account. That's another one that, I think, it would be pretty hard to match for meanness.

"Last fall a woman whom I knew to be perfectly good, so far as what we call the blue book showed, came to my place for the first time and selected three very expensive hats. One of them cost $130, the second $85 and the third $80.

"She gave a gasp when I told the aggregate cost of the three hats she picked out.

"'Oh, I know that my husband would never agree to that bill in the wide world,' she said.

"'But do you need all three of the hats at the same time?' I asked her. 'Perhaps if you took them separately, at short intervals, and he received the three separate bills, he would—'

"'No,' she interrupted, 'we'll do it this way: Make out the total bill for the three hats an even $150—he isn't really stingy, but he thinks that even $150 for a hat is a frightful price. And I'll pay you the difference now, and he'll never know about it—I must have those three hats.'

"So we arranged it that way. She paid me the difference, $145, and the hats were sent to her. The bill followed a month or so later, and her husband's check for the $150 promptly came back. About three days after receiving her husband's check the woman got out of her carriage and came in to me.

"'I am so embarrassed,' she said, hastily. 'I am out to do a little shopping, and I've left my pocketbook and my checkbook at home, and I haven't the time to drive down to my husband's office. I'd be so obliged if you'd let me have—oh, a hundred dollars, say, till tomorrow, and I will drop in by and by and let you have it back—or, better, I'll send you a check this evening.'

"Why, certainly I would. I let her have the $100 without a thought of any wrong intent on her part. But she didn't 'drop by' the next day with the money, nor did she send me any check for the $100 loan, and it wasn't long before I became reduced to the opinion that she had deliberately chiselled me out of that hundred just because it seemed so easy and simple for her to do it. She has bought her millinery elsewhere since then, and I've found out that she has told everybody that I overcharged her frightfully, but that she 'found a way to get even with me.' The last part of her assertion is perfectly true.

"I have no way to get the hundred from her. Of course, I have absolutely nothing to show for having loaned it to her. I could write a statement of the transaction to her husband if I were foolish enough to do that, but I'm not. He'd simply send me back a flaming letter of denial, or, worse, come storming down here himself and accuse me of no end of things, and I know better than to do anything of the sort. So I simply pocketed my $100 loss, and let it go at that.

"Women who do not belong to the wealthy class, but who are regular customers, do just as mean things on a smaller scale. It is no uncommon thing for a woman of this class who is dissatisfied with her stock of hats to come down here and pick out, say, a pretty evening hat.

"'I'll take it if my husband likes it,' she says. 'Send it up and I'll show it to him this evening, and if he approves of it I'll take it.'

"Then she wears it to the theater, or to a party, and returns it in the morning, with a note to the effect that her husband doesn't like the hat. How do we know that she has worn the hat? Why, by the hatpin marks in it, bless your simple heart! There are no hatpin jabs in a hat when it is sent out of a milliner's establishment, for the pins are not used in trying on hats.

"We don't often say anything in a case of this sort. It isn't good policy. But if one woman repeats the trick two or three times, then, of course, we have to say something to her about it, and in almost every case she flares up and declares with all the solemness in the world that she wouldn't think of doing such a thing, and then quits the establishment.

"One night at the opera I saw six of my hats on the heads of women—hats that had been sent to them 'on their husband's approval,' that is to say. They were all expensive hats, too. Well, every blessed one of those hats came back on the following morning, accompanied by notes that their husbands' didn't like them. To one of these women—she had done the trick several times before—I said, the next time she visited the store, 'But I saw that hat on your head at the opera that night.' She almost went into hysterics, she was so angry with me, and of course I lost her trade. But I didn't mind that. And, by the way, few of the milliners send any hats 'on approval' except to the very cream of their customers during Horse Shoe week. They long ago found out what a poor scheme that was.

"Milliners and dressmakers in New York frequently get badly stung, as the saying goes, through the announcement in certain newspapers of purely fictitious marriage engagements. I was one of the victims last autumn, when certain theatrical and gossipy publications in New York more than hinted at an engagement between a 'show girl' and a very well-known New York man of great wealth.

"The announcement had hardly been put forth before this young woman was on her travels in a big motor car hired for the occasion to visit the milliners and mantua makers. The rich young man to whom she was said to be engaged was traveling abroad at the time, and so there was no immediate denial of the story.

"Milliners and dressmakers know what is going on in the circles to which they cater, and I read of this engagement. So, when the young woman appeared at my place and got $500 and more worth of hats, I was rather pleased. She obtained many thousands of dollars' worth of beautiful things all over New York on the strength of this engagement story before it reached the young man where he was traveling in the Orient. He cabled an instant denial of the story, but that was too late for the people who had let her have the goods. Of course, not a cent could be got from the girl. She simply stated that the 'engagement had fallen through.' It was the first time I had been bitten in just that way. I think I may safely venture to say that it will be the last."

BOARD WILL NOT APPEAL

Kugler Asks County Board to Object to Condemnation Proceedings.

Motion is Laid Over on the Table After Spirited Discussion.

County Commissioner Kugler sprang to the front in the new courthouse matter again today when the county commissioners met. This afternoon Mr. Kugler introduced a resolution instructing the county attorney to take immediate appeal from the decision of the court house commissioners in the choice of a courthouse site.

This brought the matter up in a new form and caused something of a stir. Of course it raised a brisk and spirited discussion in which nearly all of the commissioners took part, and in which Mr. Kugler gave a vigorous talk.

A motion to table the resolution finally carried. The vote stood as follows:

Yeas—Commissioners Patterson, Ryan, Kauppi and Morcom.

Nays—Kugler and McInnis. Commissioner Sundeen was absent serving on a jury.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by all leading druggists.

HASTINGS' COMPLAINT IS HEARD BY PROUTY.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today's work of the interstate commerce commission was the hearing of the complaints of Hastings business men of unjust discrimination in respect to the rate on coal as against Afton, a small village in part of the country.

The complaint of Hastings is levelled at the rates on coal, grain, cattle and malt, and Commissioner Prouty selected the coal question as the first for his examination.

COL. POWELL, "WHITE BEAVER," DIES ON TRAIN.

El Paso, Tex., May 8.—Col. Frank D. Powell, a famous Indian scout, known as "White Beaver," died yesterday on a train eastbound from Los Angeles. His body was taken from the train here, and an inquest was held, a verdict of death from heart disease being found.

Col. Powell had been in charge of Col. William F. Cody's interests at Cody, Wyo., for several years.

AT PIKE'S PEAK.

Kansas City Journal: One of the interesting celebrations of the year will be the centenary of the discovery of Pike's peak, in Colorado, by Capt. Z. Pike, who made his expedition under the auspices of the army, of which he was then an officer. The date for the celebration has been fixed for Sept. 23 to 26, and as it will follow the maneuvers at Fort Riley, United States troops will be sent from there to grace the occasion.

COUNT IGNATIEFF.

Count Ignatieff was with Gen. Trepoff, the instigator of the conspiracy to induce Emperor Nicholas to withdraw the reforms and return to the old path of absolutism. He was one of two sons of the famous first Count Ignatieff, who from a common soldier in the imperial guard rose to be president of the committee of ministers, governor general of St. Petersburg and founder of one of the richest families of Russia.

EAGLES GROWING FEWER.

Kansas City Journal: The eagle has grown scarce in the British Isles. The eggs of the bird grow yearly higher priced. A couple of eggs from Scotland recently brought $10 apiece. An old record states that in the season's 1831-34, inclusive, no fewwer than 171 mature specimens of the eagle, together with fifty-three young and eggs, were destroyed in a single county of Scotland—Sutherland; from which statement one can well imagine the cruel havoc that has been wrought in the ranks of a once very common bird of prey. No one denies that the eagle is destructive to game and lambs, but it seems a pity that so noble a bird should be so utterly wiped out of existence, for the eagle has many interesting associations with the past. In Scotland a century or two back eagle's feathers were a badge of a chief, two of a chieftan and one of a gentleman; but more interesting still is the fact that the flesh of the eagle was considered in the seventeenth century "a valuable medicine against the gout." The same authority also states that the bird was sometimes eaten by the hardy Highlander as part of his ordinary diet.

FLOWERS IN COUPE.

Kansas City Journal: Most fashionable women have the cushions of their carriages perfumed with sachet bags, but the Baroness Elizabeth Rosen, daughter of the Russian ambassador to this country, has more poetic ideas. She has a charming little coupe, and at the sides where another woman would have a mirror, a powder puff and hairpins, she has two contrivances which hold water and keep a handful of violets fresh and fragrant. It is a delight to step into this carriage. The baroness is going to have additional flower stands in the coupe, and, unlike the girl who had rings on her fingers and bells on her shoes, she will have perfume and color wherever she goes.

ALLISON'S AMENDMENT

To the Railroad Rate Bill Presented to the Senate.

Ordered Printed and Laid Over for Later Consideration.

Washington, May 8.—In the absence today of Senator Allison from the senate, Senator Cullom offered the Iowa senator's compromise amendment to the railroad rate bill. He said that Mr. Allison would himself have offered them but for the fact that he was ill. He asked that the amendments be printed and laid over, saying that Mr. Allison would be in the senate later and take charge of them himself.

Senator Aldrich asked unanimous consent for a reprint of the bill, showing the effect of the amendments, but Senator Culberson objected on the ground that the amendments were merely those of an individual senator and there should be no discrimination.

Mr. Aldrich said he had no ulterior purpose in making the request.

A compromise was reached by providing for the reprinting of the sections affected as they would when amended as proposed.

Senator Rayner offered an amendment to the amendment, making specifications to be made in applying for a court review. The Rayner amendment to the amendment is as follows:

"Whenever, under the provisions of this act, jurisdiction is conferred upon the circuit courts to hear and determine a suit upon the bill or petition of a carrier for the purpose of enjoining, setting aside, annulling or suspending any order of the commission, such jurisdiction shall not attach unless the carrier alleges in its bill or petition that its property has been taken in violation of the fifth amendment of the constitution of the United States, or that the commission has exceeded the jurisdiction conferred upon it by law. And in the hearing and determination of such suit the court shall be limited to the allegations set forth in said bill or petition.

Discussion of the Elkins amendment to the railroad rate bill was resumed in the senate today. This amendment proposes to prevent interstate carriers from owning and operating coal mines or dealing in commodities which they transport.

The senate today passed the following bill: Donating six condemned cannon as material for a statue of the late Governor S. T. Mason of Michigan.

PUSH BEATS PULL.

In India a man digging in the garden does not throw the earth from him as the English gardener does, but pulls it toward him. The carpenter sawing wood does not drive the saw, but pulls it, in token of which fact the teeth of an Indian saw are set in the opposite way from those of an English saw, says the Philadelphia Record. Even when the Indian workman has been induced to adopt the labor-saving machinery introduced from Europe he shows a strange perversity in sacrificing part of the benefit through his habit of preferring to pull rather than to push.

Thus, in turning a wheel, as in raising water from a well or working a crane, instead of pushing the handle down and so getting the benefit of the weight of his body, he pulls it up, and so sacrifices that natural advantage. For the same reason the wheelbarrow has never become naturalized in India, although specially suited for a country where roads are still comparatively few, but footpaths abound. The Indian drill works in the opposite direction from the European bit and brace, and the pot is stirred not from left to right, as in the West, but from right to left.

The same rule holds good in weapons of warfare. The Indian sword is made for cutting, not for thrusting, and the common daos and daggers are on the same principle.

The Indian, in the use of the weapons nature has provided for offense and defense, does not hit out straight from the shoulder like the European, but strikes from above downward, or from right to left with a sweeping movement. Nor is the back-handed slap of which most English schoolboys have had personal experience known in the East.

Kicking out is also rare, although it is coming in with football. Another physical exercise in which the difference is very marked is swimming. In India the arms are not extended outward, as in Europe, but the stroke is downward and inward.

Nor does the Indian take a header into the water with arms extended. Those who have seen the famous divers at Delhi and elsewhere diving from the roofs of mosques into adjacent tanks will remember that they came down feet foremost and assumed a squatting attitude before reaching the water.

Then in riding the Indian horseman keeps his position, not like the European (by holding on by the extensor muscles of the thigh, with toes directed inward), but by grasping the saddle with the flexors—that is to say, with the calves of the legs, the toes being directed outward. An Indian scavenger sweeps toward himself, not away, like his brother in the West.

When the Indian beckons some one to approach he does so with the palm of the hand downward; the European in the corresponding act turns the palm upward. Even in Indian writing there is an avoidance of movement of extension.

This is very apparent in the case of Persian, which is written from right to left, but it also holds goods in Hindi and other Sanscrit languages. Nearly all the strokes are written downward; the upward sweeps common in English writing are very rare.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Los Angeles Times: "The late G. C. Reichhelm, the chess expert of Philadelphia," said a lawyer, "believed theoretically in vegetarianism, as many of us do, and occasionally, for days at a time, he would eschew meat.

"He told me one day he was going to give up meat forever. I asked him why, and he said it was on account of a shocking incident that had happened the week before in Norristown.

"A loom fixer in a Norristown mill said to a rigger on Monday morning: "'What do you usually have for Sunday dinner, Jack?'

"'Oh, a roast of beef, or a leg of mutton,' the rigger answered. 'My wife attends to that end of it.'

"'Ever try a bit of pork?' said the loom fixer.

"'Sure,' replied the rigger. 'It's fine, too.'

"'How'd you like a bit of pork on Sunday—a nice loin of pork?' said the loom fixer seductively. 'I got a pig, and I'm going to kill him this week. He's a dandy. I'll sell you a loin off him cheap. Half a dollar.'

"'I'll take it,' said the rigger promptly. 'Send it around Saturday morning.'

"The rigger was delighted with the thought of a sweet and juicy loin from a fresh-killed pig. He talked about it all the week looking forward to his Sunday dinner with a joy he had never shown before.

"But on Saturday the loin was not delivered. Saturday evening came, and still no loin.

"So the rigger sent his little son to the loom fixer's to see what the trouble was. On his return empty-handed the boy said:

"'You can't have that loin, for they ain't going to kill the pig. It's getting better.'"

SHE WON OUT.

Los Angeles Times: Bishop Olmstead of Colorado, in an address on perseverance, said:

"Let me underscore this word 'perseverance' with an anecdote about a little girl I used to know.

"This little girl, whose father was a clergyman, lay abed one day with a bad cold, and in the afternoon, being bored, she decided that she wanted to see her father—to get him to tell her a fairy story, or something of that sort.

"But her father was busy.

"'He is writing his Sunday morning sermon,' said the mother, 'and he must not be disturbed.'

"'But I want to see him badly,' the little girl persisted.

"'No, dear,' her mother repeated. 'He is busy. We can't interrupt him.'

"The little girl, persevering, frowned. She glared at her mother, and, sitting up in bed, she said:

"'I am a sick woman, and I want to see my minister.'"

TRAVELING ON HIS RIBS.

Los Angeles Times: Poultney Bigelow, who knows Russia well, was describing the Russian mujhik.

"The mujhik is naive," he said. "Here is a story that they tell about him.

"A mujhik of Moscow boarded the Petersburg train, and in due time the conductor came and asked for his ticket.

"'I have no ticket,' said the mujhik naively.

"'No ticket?' cried the conductor. 'Then off you go, you scoundrel, at the very next station.'

"He waited till another Petersburg train came along, he boarded this train, too, and at the next station, with more thumps in the ribs, he was again put off.

"Undaunted, he boarded a third train, and a third time he was beaten and put off.

"A passenger who alighted at the same place was interested in the mujhik, and said sympathetically:

"'Where is it you are going, my friend?'

"The mujhik with a patient smile replied:

"'To St. Petersburg, if my ribs will stand it.'"

SIGNATURE GOOD.

Boston Herald: A story is told of how the late ex-Governor Joseph A. Gilmore of New Hampshire, when he was superintendent of the Concord & Claremont railroad, once wrote a letter to one of his section bosses who had done something to displease him. All the man could make out was the date and Supt. Gilmore's signature.

Some time afterward, being in Concord, the man went to call on the superintendent at his office.

"Hello, John, how do you do?" said Mr. Gilmore. "Well, what are you doing now?"

"Why, I'm up here at the same place on the section, Mr. Gilmore," replied John.

"What!" said Mr. Gilmore; "didn't you get a letter from me?" naming the date.

"Why, yes, certainly," answered John.

"Well, didn't you know that that was a letter of dismissal?"

"Letter of dismissal!" cried the astonished John. "No! I couldn't make it out, except that it was from headquarters and signed by you, sir. But after some study I concluded it was a pass. As none of the conductors on the road could read it, they all accepted my statement that it was a pass from Mr. Gilmore, and I have been riding on it ever since."

John kept his place on the section.

TOO RAINY.

Boston Herald: In Sutton, a generation ago, lived a man named Marsh. He decided, after due consideration, to marry a young lady in an adjoining town. The day was set, preparations were made for the wedding and the guests were assembled. The appointed hour arrived and the bridegroom did not appear. Another hour of waiting, and still he tarried.

The young lady's father became impatient. "I'm going to hunt him up," he said.

A half hour's drive brought him to the Marsh home.

"Where is Frank?" he demanded.

"He went down cellar to pick over some potatoes, seeing it's so rainy," was the response.

"What do you mean by not coming to the wedding?" demanded the irate prospective father-in-law of the tardy bridegroom.

"It rains so hard, I thought you wouldn't have the wedding," Marsh replied; "but I'll fix up and ride back with you, seeing everybody's there."

THE VOODOO DOCTOR.

Many Negroes Still Use His Queer Remedies and Charms.

Kansas City World: "Voodooism isn't dead by a long chalk," said the proprietor of the corner drugstore.

"There are hundreds of charlatans or Voodoo doctors practicing their arts on both the colored and the white population in Kansas City and sometimes I believe there is some scientific basis to their claims.

"We sell love charms and philters every day. The goods are as staple in our trade as quinine or calomel.

"Did you se that negress that came in just now with a handkerchief wrapped around her head? She had a frightful attack of neuralgia, the worst I ever saw. The nerve over the left eye became affected and throbbed and pained so she couldn't sleep day or night. She told me she had no sleep and had eaten scarcely anything for three weeks.

"She had three doctors. She was running in here every half hour for some narcotic or other remedy. She bought headache powders by the box and morphine and cocaine by the dram. She walked the floor moaning, groaning and shrieking aloud with pain, yelling: 'Doctor, doctor, give me something to take this devil out of my eyes. I thought she was going crazy.

"Finally she disappeared for a day or two; and then she came back—cured! That was today. Her brow over the eye was puffed and swollen, but the pain was gone.

"'Do you know what did it? Voodoo!

"That's what she told me:

"'Doctor,' she said, 'you know Ah ain't no superstitious niggah. Ah don't believe in no hoodoo nohow. But you all know how near Ah went crazy wid dat neuralgium pain?

"'Well, day befo' yistidy Ah met the ole hoodoo 'oman at the market. Ah was so weak and painful Ah could hahdly stan' up. De hoodoo 'oman says:

"'Ah cure dat pain. Ah gib you a chahm. Now you tek his chahm an' you do jes what Ah done tole you. You all go to do grocery and you buy 10 cents' wuf ob green coffee. Den you tek dat coffee and you poun' hit up on a rock hittin' it wid another rock one hundred and fifty-free times. And all de time you is hittin' dat coffee you say dese words ober an' ober:

"'Obi kajusan taboo laboo koraa.'

"'Den when you got dat coffee poun' up just like twis' terbacker you put hit en a pipe an' you smoke and smoke an' smoke. An' fas' ez you smoke you knocks out de ashes and you eats de ashes and you smokes and' eats twell your pain am gone.

"'Well, sah, Ah done bought dat coffee an' Ah done smoke an' Ah say dem words—Obi kajusan toboo laboo karoo. En Ah smoke in bed; an' Ah eats de ashes an' Ah goes ter sleep an' when Ah wake up de pain am gone.'

"Now," said the druggist, "there was a scientific reason for this cure, though the Voodoo doctor did not know it. In smoking the green coffee and eating the ashes the patient consumed and took into her system the caffein and teine in the green coffee.

"Caffein and theine are the alkaloid or active principle of tea and coffee and the chief ingredients of all headache powders and tablets. Perhaps the patient's system absorbed these ingredients more readily from smoking the green coffee than any other application could effect. Who knows?"

UP TO DATE.

Philadelphia Ledger: A progressive farmer of Westfield, Ind., is making his own electricity. He gathers it out of the air, but in no more mysterious way than by means of a windmill. Others have harnessed the windmill to a dynamo, but the result has never been satisfactory on account of the variability of the wind power. Mr. Wilson of Westfield allows his windmill to perform primarily its customary function of pumping water. The water flows into a hydraulic regulator—a chamber fitted with automatic valves; through these it passes under uniform pressure into a water motor, to which a dynamo is attached. Blow high, blow low, the dynamo works at even speed, brilliantly lighting Mr. Wilson's house and barn and doing the chores, all for an original investment of $200. With a telephone in his house, through which he can talk, over wire fences with the whole county, receiving his letters more punctually by the rural delivery service than he would in town, the trolley line past his gate and electricity slaving for him in house, barn and field, the lot of the new farmer is far from a forlorn one.

WHEAT IS MORE FIRM

Forecasts of Frosts Cause Strength in the American Markets.

Flax is Quiet With Lower Prices in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 8.—In the face of lower cables and Broomhall's favorable report on crop conditions abroad, wheat was stronger in the American markets today. The July option was higher everywhere save at Winnipeg, where it was unchanged. Official forecasts of frost for tonight caused the firmness. Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d lower, Paris unchanged to ¼c lower, Antwerp unchanged, Berlin ⅞c higher and Budapest ⅝c higher.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and Kansas City, ⅝c in Chicago and Minneapolis, ½c in New York, was unchanged in St. Louis and ⅛c up in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth and St. Louis, ⅜-½c in Chicago and Kansas City, ½-⅝c in Minneapolis, and ½c in New York.

Corn was stronger in Chicago, the July option closing ¼-⅜c up. Corn was ¼d to ⅜d lower in Liverpool. July oats were ⅛-¼c up in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 265,000 bus., last year 181,000 bus. Shipments 298,000 bus., last year 336,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 125,000 bus.

Bradstreet reports a decrease of 5,592,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat. East of the Rockies, there was a decrease of 3,592,000 and in Europe and afloat, a decrease of 2,000,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 402,000 bus., last year 155,000 bus. Shipments 424,000 bus., last year 324,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 18,000 bus. The world's visible supply of corn decreased 968,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet and stronger in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at 80c, advanced to 80⅝c and closed at 80¾c, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at 80⅛c, advanced to 80⅝c at 10 and ranged between that and 80¼-⅜c during the rest of the session. The closing price was 80⅜c, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. September wheat closed unchanged at 79c.

Flax was quiet, with slightly lower price at the close. It was ⅝c higher in Antwerp and 1½c lower to ⅝c higher in London. Some flax was worked for export from here.

May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.15, advanced to $1.15¾, and ranged between that and $1.15½ during the rest of the session. The closing price was $1.15¾, unchanged from yesterday. July flax opened ⅝c lower at $1.17, advanced to $1.17½, declined to $1.17, rallied to $1.17½, declined to $1.17⅛, and closed at $1.17¼, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September flax was inactive at the opening, sold as high as $1.17¾, sold as low as $1.17½, and closed at $1.17⅜, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. October flax was inactive at the opening, sold at $1.16½, and $1.16⅞, and closed at $1.16 unchanged from yesterday.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ⅛c higher, and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Official Forecast of Frost Causes Firmness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 8.—The wheat market opened firm today, the chief cause of the strength being an official forecast of frost tonight. July opened unchanged to ¼c up at 79c to 79¼c and sold up to 79⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 181 cars against 240 cars last week and 75 cars a year ago.

The market was firm all day. The high point for July was 79⅝. The close was firm, with July 3⅛@¼c higher at 79⅝@¾c.

The corn market was firm, chiefly because of the predicted cold weather. July opened ⅛c to ¼c up at 45½c and advanced to 45⅝c, where for a time it held steady. Local receipts were 202 cars with 68 of contract grade.

The oats market was very quiet. July was a shade higher at 31c and declined to 30⅞@31c. Local receipts were 293 cars.

Provisions were quiet but firm. July pork was 5c higher at $15.27½. Lard was up 2½c at $8.47½. Ribs advanced 2½c@5c to $8.62½.

Close: Wheat—May 81½c; July, 79⅝@¾c. Corn—May, 47¼c; July, 45¾c. Oats—May 32¼c; July 31¼c. Pork—May $15; July, $15.15@15.17½. Lard—May, $9.32½; July, $8.42½. Ribs—May, $8.45; July, $8.57½@8.60. Rye—May, 58@60; July, 57@60. Flax—Cash northwestern, $1.13½; southwestern, $1.07½; May, $1.11½. Timothy—Sept., $3.60. Clover—Cash, $11.25. Barley—Cash 38½@54c. Cash wheat—2 red, 88@90c; 2 red, 84@85c; 2 hard, 81@88c; 3 hard,79@81c;1 northern,84@85c; 2 northern, 81@83c; 3 spring, 79@83c. Corn—2, 48½c; 3, 45½@47c. Oats—2, 31½c; 3, 31@¾c.

Minneapolis Wheat.

Minneapolis, May 8.—Close: Wheat—May, 77⅝c; July, 78½c; September, 77½c; 1 hard, 81¼c; 1 northern, 80¼c; 2 northern, 78¼c; 3 northern, 76½@77½c.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, May 8.—The flour market was firm. Apathy continues in the flour market. Shipping directions come in slowly. Buyers still show a lack of confidence in the price. Shipments 40,479 barrels. First patents, $4.10 @4.20; second patents, $3.90@4. First clears, $3.50@3.40; second clears, $2.45@2.55

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market had a steadier tone today, price movements being more uniform, with the erratic changes witnessed yesterday in May missing. Outside markets reported a better cash situation, this being particularly true of St. Louis, with No. 2 hard wheat strong and 1c higher. It seems as if scarcity of offerings in all months is more responsible for today's strength than any buying demand. At no time was the trade active, nor did it give any indication of getting out of its rut. News was of a routine character, some damage complaints being received from Illinois and Missouri, but it was noticeable buying orders did not accompany these complaints. We see nothing ahead for the immediate future but a scalping market, eW incline to the short side, and would take advantage of the sudden spurts to sell Jul yand September, preferably the latter.

Corn recovered yesterday's loss, and a little more, closing strong, but trade intensely dull. There is more or less talk of the lake strike being in process of settlement. Cash prices were steady and unchanged, business being light in this department. Estimated small receipts for tomorrow, and the belief that the strike is about to be settled, were the factors responsible for the day's strength. Farm work is practically completed, and if the price is made inviting by an advance in the speculative market farmers will be free sellers. We think it is well to take the selling side on the bulges.

United Kingdom—Weather is improved and the crops are in a fair condition.

Germany—There are moderate complaints heard regarding the crop.

Hungary—and Roumania—The crops promises well after the beneficial rains which have fallen.

Russia—The drought in the Southeast has not been relieved, elsewhere the crops are in excellent condition. The railroads are working better.

North Africa—The outlook for the crop is favorable.

STOCKS ARE STRONGER

New York, May 8.—The prevailing tendency of prices in the opening dealings in the stock market today was upwards for the majority of issues including the speculative favorites. There was a sprinkling of losses amongst the less important stocks. Reading, Union Pacific and Smelting rose large fractions. United States Reduction preferred rose 1½ and Pacific Coast 2¼. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred lost 1¼ after yesterday's wide advance. The dealings were on a moderate scale.

The undertone grew gradually stronger led by Reading, which was taken with confidence up to 130¼. Other favorites were then bought largely, notably the Harriman Pacifics and the principal metal stocks. Amalgamated Copper and Smelting sustained the market after the early leaders showed some signs of reaction. Amongst the important gains were Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo 4, the preferred 2¾, Smelting 3, Great Northern preferred 2½, Republic Steel preferred, Lead, Colorado Fuel, Wisconsin Central preferred and Union Pacific 1¼ to 1¾ and Copper and United States Steel a point.

The market showed great breadth and variety during the second hour. Realizing in earlier strong stocks was carried on successfully without impairing the strength at new points. The rise in Amalgamated Copper reached 2, Union Pacific and Pressed Steel Car 1⅝, St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande and Locomotive ½ and Erie, Atchison, United States Steel preferred and many other less prominent stocks a point or more. Reading second preferred sold at an advance of 3¾. Norfolk & Western preferred 5, Anaconda and Republic Steel preferred 2½. Consolidated Gas lost 1. Bonds were firm at noon.

Stocks weakened perceptibly when the usual contraction of dealings occurred during the noon hour. Later, however, the advance was resumed, and Reading, Union Pacific, Amalgamated Copper and Brooklyn Transit, as well as other representative stocks, sold above the best prices of the morning. Anaconda extended its advance to 9⅝. Locomotive 3¾, Delaware & Hudson and Central Railroads of New Jersey 3, Amalgamated Copper and Pressed Steel Car 2½, Distillers' Securities 2¼, Union Pacific 2, Brooklyn Transit and Northern Pacific 1½ and Louisville & Nashville 1¼.

Specialties stocks were eagerly sought for in the afternoon. The more active features kept pace with the improvement elsewhere, but gave way more readily when the realizing began. The market steadied again after a narrow reaction. Reading, after a period of rest, moved forward again 3¼. Other gains reached 5 in Great Northern preferred and Central of Jersey, 4¾ in Delaware & Hudson, 4¼ in Lackawanna, 4 in Northwestern and Northern Pacific, 2¾ in People's Gas, 2 in St. Paul and United States Realty and 1 in Pennsylvania.

Only slight recessions occurred in late prices. There was a marked decrease in the activity in the demand, but fresh points of strength developed. Chicago & Northwestern rose 5, Pacific Coast 4½, St. Paul 3, National Lead 2¾, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio and General Electric 2, United States Steel 1¾, and Baltimore & Ohio and Missouri Pacific 1. Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha and New York Central & St. Louis second preferred dropped 2. The closing was strong near best prices.

Stock Gossip.

Chicago Journal: One of the most powerful factors in the stock market at any time is sentiment, and there is no denying that sentiment is more hopeful than it was. There are houses which, having been out of sympathy with the market for months, are now advising the purchase of stock on the idea that the cleaning out of weak bull accounts, the enormous liquidation, the inflow of gold and the continuance, withal, of industrial prosperity, give safer ground for bulling stocks.

As was assrted in this correspondence last week, there is hardly an influential banking house in the street which has not adopted a more friendly attitude toward the market. This means that we shall have a conservative buying power in evidence as often as prices are depressed. It means that we shall have the leadership of the right sort of people on the bull side for a while. The liquidation which the street knew to be inevitable in the autumn, when there would not be money enough to go around, was precipitated unexpectedly by the San Francisco calamity, so that the bull interests are able to contemplate a longer pull than would otherwise have been thought of.

The bull campaign which was laid out in the first fortnight of April could not have carried beyond the beginning of autumn, the limitations of the money market forbidding, but now it seems likely that the money market conditions will be easier, and that this ease will be of longer duration than could have been hoped for without the liquidation of the last three weeks, and the enormous inpouring of foreign gold.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: This has been a big, strong market, closing practically at the top prices, in some cases being sharply higher. It has been short covering right from the opening of the market. There is a more hopeful feeling in insurance circles and this with imports of gold and continued easy money, seem to be the factors forcing short covering. We have had a sharp recovery from the recent decline and think the market has gone far enough without some reaction. While it is generally held that the market has had its severe decline, we doubt if prices can hold at this time. Aside from short covering in the general list, and a little outside buying in specialties, there is no buying demand, at least buying of a character capable of sustaining prices.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today continued to show strength all through the copper list, with Copper Range, North Butte, Osceola, Shannon and Mohawk leaders. There is a distinctly better feeling on the copper stocks and it is hard to get stocks at present prices. We still favor, aowever, selling stock on any further rise, as the market has had a good run. We may look for last Thursday, and we shall probably have some weak days before long.

* * *

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The Boston News Bureau says: "It is estimated that for March the Shannon Copper company earned about $45,000 net upon a production of 922,000 pounds of copper. For April, upon production of 1,312,000 pounds, it is estimated to have earned about $60,000 net. The company is now running two furnaces part of the time and its smelting operations have been materially improved through the treatment of custom ores. The company is saving one-half cent per pound on copper through the conversion of its own copper and it is estimated that it will save enough money thereby within a year to pay for the cost of its new plant, $57,000. The large April output gives the Shannon company an average of 1,000,000 pounds of copper per month this year.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 8.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 2 points. On better weather news bears succeeded in forcing prices off 2 or 3 points from last night's figures on the old crop months, but the new crop was relatively steady. A renewal of bull support steadied the market at a net advance of 2 to 3 points.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.10; ditto gulf, 12.05. Sales 2,615 bales. Futures closed firm; closing bids: May, 11.19; June, 11.11; July, 11.11; August, 10.91; September, 10.71; October, 10.63; November, 10.62; December, 10.61; January, 10.68; February, 10.70; March, 10.74.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

IS FINALLY PATCHED UP

Republican Leaders of All Factions Agree on Rate Bill.

Complete Basis of Agreement is Prepared and Exchanged.

Washington, May 8.—The conferences in the senate yesterday, which resulted in positive agreements on six propositions to be incorporated in the Allison amendment to the railroad bill were ratified today by additional conference of senate leaders, representing all Republican factions. That there could be no further misunderstanding, this data for the basis of the agreement was prepared and exchanged:

"The Allison amendment is to comprise six propositions:

"First—The words 'fairly remunerative,' in section 4 of the bill, to be stricken out:

"Second—The words, 'in its judgment,' in the same section, are to be retained.

"Third—Jurisdiction is vested in the United States circuit courts to hear and determine suits against the commission.

"Fourth—No preliminary injunction or interlocutory order is to be granted without a hearing and notices.

"Fifth—The application for preliminary injunction or interlocutory decree is to be heard by three judges.

"Sixth—A direct appeal from the interlocutory order or decree to lie only to the supreme court of the United States."

Under the first and second clauses of the agreement the rate making section of the bill will authorize the interstate commerce commission when, after full hearing, it shall be of the opinion that rates are unjust or unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial to "determine and prescribe what will, in its judgment be the just and reasonable rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such cases as the maximum to be charged."

The third clause is the original Allison compromise amendment and simply confers jurisdiction on the circuit courts to hear and determine suits against the commission. The fourth, fifth and sixth clauses place certain restrictions upon the granting of injunctions and provide for the appeal from such orders direct to the supreme court.

Notice was served by Senator Allison on the conservative forces headed by Senators Aldrich, Spooner, Crane, Lodge, Knox, Foraker and others, that he would not offer any amendment that was not satisfactory to his colleague, Senator Dolliver, and to Senators Cullom and Clapp, who fought against amendments of the house bill when it was pending before the committee on interstate commerce. The stand taken by the senior Iowa senator upset the former alleged agreement. He made no secret of his belief that advantage had been taken of his illness to attempt to force through an amendment which was offered solely as a basis for compromise and not as full agreement of the controverted questions. When it was made clear that Senator Allison did not believe the amendment given his name would reach all of the questions, negotiations were reopened and the final agreement on all of the points involved was reached at the conference last night, which was attended by Senators Aldrich, Carter, Knox, Cullom, Crane, Fulton, Hopkins and Spooner. The questions which needed final adjustment at the conference were those relating to Section 4 of the bill, retaining the words "in its judgment" and striking out of the words "fairly remunerative" and that relating to the number of judges authorized to hear an application for interlocutory or preliminary injunction. It was determined originally that the Bacon amendment should be adopted.

This would provide for a hearing before two judges. Later it was decided to apply the expediting act, passed to facilitate action under the Sherman anti-trust act, to hearings on applications for such preliminary decrees or orders. The action of the conference was agreed to today by senate leaders representing all of the disputant factions.

Carlyle said: "Make yourself an honest man, and then you may be sure that there is one rascal less in the world." Also—read The Herald ads. and you may be sure that there is one less "easy mark" in the world.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS

People Have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home.

It's not words, but deeds that prove true merit.
The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills,
For Duluth kidney sufferers,
Have made their local reputation.

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, dressmaker, living at 109 First St. E., Duluth, Minn., says: "Since giving a testimonial for publication in 1898, telling of the gratifying results obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills my faith in them has continually increased, for besides my own experience I have known of numerous friends and acquaintances who have learned the reliability of Doan's Kidney Pills in severe cases of kidney trouble. I suffered a great deal from heavy dull pains in the small of the back, and it was impossible for me to bend over or rest at night with any degree of comfort. I used only about half a box of Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed a wonderful improvement. The kidney secretions was entirely free from my former trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

WEST DULUTH

IS FEELING THE EFFECT

Brass Works Walls Going Up—Wessinger Plant Starts Soon.

The building which is being erected at the corner of Fiftieth and Ramsey by the Duluth Brass works is progressing rapidly. The foundation is all in and the superstructure is well under way. About three feet of the wall on all four sides is up. The walls will be of cement block, and as they will be of rough exterior the building, it is believed, will be of good appearance. It is substantial looking and will be quite an addition to West Duluth's rapidly growing industrial colony.

With the Wessinger plant, which it is understood, will be started soon, and other plants, which will soon be under way, West Duluth will present a busy appearance before next fall. The buildings and extensions which the carbolite company are to erect, will soon be in shape.

It is understood that a number of other concerns are looking this way for location and conditions and prospects are such that business of local merchants in West Duluth is already feeling the effect.

BURNED WITH TAR.

O. Ellstrom Meets With Painful and Serious Accident.

O. Ellstrom, who tars roofs, met with a very painful accident a day or two ago while at work and as a result both of his hands are out of commission now, in fact, he will be unable to work for some little time and it is hoped that nothing more serious than he now has will set in.

He was at work tarring a roof and while engaged in carrying a bucket of hot tar up a slanting roof, he slipped. In trying to save himself he thrust both hands into the pail of boiling hot tar and before they could be removed it had simply cooked the flesh. In the meantime and ever since, he has suffered terrible agony. He is confined to his home on Sixtieth avenue and is unable to perform any duties.

EMINENT DIVINE.

Rev. S. G. Smith Here to Help Work at Plymouth Church.

Rev. Samuel G. Smith, pastor of the People's church, St. Paul, is meeting with the officers of Plymouth Congregational church this afternoon to consider ways and means for helping the church along. This evening he will preach at the church, beginning at 8 o'clock. Dr. Smith is considered to be one of the most advanced religious thinkers in the country and is a speaker of exceptional ability.

He is one of three leading clergymen which the state organization of the Congregational church has chosen to go through the state and rejuvenate the spirit of the congregations. The other clergymen are Rev. W. T. Sallmon, president of Carlton college, and Rev. F. A. Sumner, pastor of the Pilgrim church of Minneapolis.

West Duluth Briefs.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Plymouth Congregational church will meet Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Cox, Fifty-second avenue west and Wadena street.

The young women of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church will meet tomorrow evening with Miss Campbell, 823 Fifty-sixth avenue west.

Wilfred Lirette is now at work in the Phillips hotel barber shop. He left Brotherton's a few days ago, and has begun suit against his former employer for alleged salary balance.

Duluth Chapter No. 50, R. A. M., will meet this evening at Masonic hall, at 7:30.

WATCH REPAIRING—HURST, 301 CENtral avenue.

E. E. Wolf of Ironwood, was in West Duluth on business yesterday.

The funeral of Miss Florence Cashin will take place from St. James Catholic church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. and the sodality of the Blessed Virgin will take part in the services.

Final practice is taking place these days among the hundred or so young people who will take part in the kermiss which the ladies of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church will give at Great Eastern hall next week.

Dr. Paynette has returned from a four weeks' visit in Chicago during which he took a post-graduate course in medics and surgery.

The West Duluth lodge, A. O. U. W., will consider a resolution tomorrow evening to raise the assessment for the general fund $1 a year in order to establish a fund for emergency cases.

Miss Clara Juvelin has gone to Minneapolis to spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. A. Fleisher.

Wanted—Maid for June 6, German preferred. Mrs. Richard Schell, 5613 Highland avenue.

MAD DOGS IN BECKER COUNTY

Several Persons Who Were Bitten Have Developed Rabies.

Frazee, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—After biting three cows and another dog, a mad dog was killed at Lake View yesterday. The dog had all the appearances of rabies and the cows are being watched carefully to see if any sign of rabies appears. After the dog had bitten two cows, Nels Nelson followed it to Tom Richmond's farm at Shoreham. Here the mad dog attacked the farm dog, then rushed over to another farm near and bit one of John Swanson's cows. Richmond followed the dog and shot him with a rifle after great danger of being bitten. Several persons in Becker county have been recently bitten by dogs, and rabies developed in some cases. In Detroit several dogs have been killed and about 100 shot in the county.

The call for the Republican county convention has been issued by Chairman George D. Hamilton and Secretary Charles G. Sturtevant, of the county committee. It will be held in Detroit City on June 6. The purpose is to select delegates to the state convention at Duluth, June 13. The primaries in the villages will be held June 2nd.

George W. Clayton of Frazee has started the political pot boiling by declaring himself a candidate for the office of register of deeds, now occupied by Phil Converse of Detroit. Mr. Clayton was for many years a newspaper owner and editor, and is also an old soldier.

Prof. Rudolph Geiser, principal of the public schools here, was appointed the vice president of the Northwestern Educational association of Minnesota at the last meeting at Moorhead on Saturday. C. S. Yaeger of Fosston was elected president. Mr. Geiser is a graduate of the Minnesota state university and has served here for three years. The first class from the high school will graduate the last week in May, and the school will hold its commencement exercises the first Monday in June when Prof. Weld of Moorhead will be the orator.

DIETZ'S PARTNER

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 8.—In court here one of the much talked of cases was that of Valentine Weisenbach, John Dietz's partner in the Thornapple river trouble.

Weisenbach was on trial for attempted murder. His neighbors in the Thornapple district have testified in his favor, while the men whose lives he is accused of having attempted to take are willing to swear that he did shoot at them. One witness testified that he found four bullet holes in the wagon, and that Weisenbach, who wore spiked shoes, kicked him.

William Giblin, former deputy sheriff of Sawyer county, was sworn into that office to bring Dietz, "dead or alive," into court. It was while going to the Dietz home that the alleged shooting occurred.

After being out some time, Weisenbach was found guilty by the jury. Judge Vinje has not yet pronounced his sentence.

COSTS THAW $25,000 TO BE COLLEGE EDITOR.

New Haven, Conn., May 8.—After spending $25,000 in less than three months to gratify his desire to be editor of a de luxe college magazine, Stephen Dows Thaw of Yale, son of Benjamin Thaw, Pittsburg's multi-millionaire and brother-in-law of the Earl of Yarmouth, announced that he has enough.

The decision follows the arrival in New Haven of Mr. and Mrs. Thaw, a long conversation between them and the young editor, and the signing of many checks by Papa Thaw. The Pittsburger is reputed to have $50,000,000, but he is believed to have opposed the idea of his son spending $150,000 a year for the satisfaction of being an editor and publisher.

Young Thaw, who is 21 years old, a junior in the academic department and a lover of literature, started the Yale Monthly Magazine in January. The publication was handsomely gotten up, and contained matter quite usual to college publications, but the students didn't buy it.

COMMISSION IS ROASTED

Its Report on Niagara Falls is Warmly Condemned.

An Effort to be Made to Prevent Its Acceptance.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 9.—J. Horace McFarland of this city, president of the American Civic association, which organization has led the effort for the preservation of Niagara falls, made a statement today regarding the report of the International Waterways commission transmitted to congress on Monday by President Roosevelt. He said:

"This report merely reiterates the recommendations of the American section of the waterways commission as transmitted to congress March 27, against which we protested to Mr. Roosevelt April 4. The report recommends the authorization of a total diversion of Niagara water of 64,500 cubic feet per second, which is 40 per cent of the minimum flow of the falls, and would, in the opinion of all but the power companies and the waterways commission, seriously damage the great cataract as a scenic feature.

"After careful study and after consultation with Mr. Roosevelt, this report was disregarded by Mr. Burton, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the house of representatives, who framed the Niagara preservation act now known as the Burton-Lodge bill. This bill upon which many hearings have been had stops the Niagara destruction at the present point by prohibiting the importation of Niagara-made electric power from Canada, which would restrain Canadian diversion. It would be operative for three years only, giving time for diplomatic action without permitting the destruction of Niagara to continue meanwhile.

"The report of the international waterways commission is hard to understand, if the commissioners believe what they assert, that it would be a sacrilege to destroy the scenic effect of Niagara Falls. Saying this, they yet propose to bleed 40 per cent from the falls, giving full vitality to all existing franchises except one, and that one an American franchise. It is as if they proposed to allow as many mosquitos to sting a defenseless man as they thought he could stand without tumbling over.

"We will renew our protest to President Roosevelt at once, against this vicious report, so favorable to the Niagara grabbers and so dangerous to the falls. We have advices from all over America that lead us to believe that the people want the falls preserved unharmed and not tapped for private gain to the danger point or beyond."

Mr. McFarland stated that letters in his possession assured strong congressional support to the Burton-Lodge bills.

BRITISH FLEET AT GREEK PORT

Athens, May 9.—The British fleet, consisting of twenty-one warships, is lying at Piraeus with steam up. It will be further augmented today by the arrival of the second cruiser squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg, which in November last, was in American waters.

Constantinople, May 9.—The arbitrary detention of the German sailing ship Odysseus by the Turkish authorities recently threatened friction between Turkey and another European power, but the energetic action of the German ambassador, Baron Von Bierberstein, quickly solved hte difficulty.

The Odysseus was discharging her cargo at Chibukiu when she was boarded by the authorities and removed to Kavak where she was anchored beneath the batteries, the Turks falsely claiming that the vessel had explosives on board. The ambassador protested urgently but unavailingly, whereupon he took a few sailors from the German guardship here, the Dorcley, boarded the Odysseus, hoisted the diplomatic flag and took the ship from under the guns of Kavak to her dock at Chibukiu where a watch was kept over her while she completed the discharge of her cargo. On returning to the embassy the ambassador found a state councillor awaiting him with apologies and explanations.

The records available do not refer to a German sailing ship named Odysseus but there is a German steamer of that name and she was in the Mediterranean recently.

INDIAN CHILDREN ARE SOLD INTO SLAVERY.

Ottawa, May 9.—According to returns secured by Mr. Borden there seem to have been ample grounds for the statements that Indian children were being sold into slavery in British Columbia. One official report says:

"Girls with white skins, thick brown hair braided down their backs, and big innocent childish eyes, are being sold today, and have been sold for years, in Columbia, to the highest bidders."

The report points out that many of the girls are sent into the logging camps for immoral purposes, and urges that this practice should be stamped out. It says "Persons come here in the garb of missionaries, start a store, commence trading with the Indians, taking what they can out of them, ride rough shod over the Indian act, and are then upheld by the Indian department. As far as the criminal code goes, it is about the same.

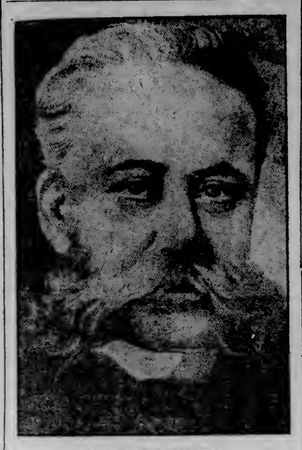
"All manner of crimes are committed among the Indians, even murder, and it is seldom that any of them are brought to justice."

A FORMER INSURANCE COMMISSIONER OF MINN. WAS BRIBED FOR $5,000

According to Statement Made at the Trial of W. F. Bechtel.

Serious Charges Are Brought Against Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

Used in Defense of President of Northwestern National Life.



M. GOREMYKIN,

The new premier of Russia, and successor to Witte, who has been described as "An ordinary, mediocre man, resembling an English butler, who takes great pride in his whiskers."

Minneapolis, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—"We (officers of the National Mutual Life association) were brought about the first of December, 1901, into contact with the then insurance commissioner (O'Shaughnessy). We were told by him very positively, and very definitely, and very emphatically, that he was in a position to make a good report or a bad one (as to the condition of the Northwestern Life association, with which the National Mutual Life association desired to consolidate, to form the Northwestern National Life Insurance company) that he was in a position to assist the consolidation, or to defeat it. He did not solicit the payment of money; he demanded it.

"This was known to at least six persons. We were told that if money was paid—and the price demanded was $5,000—that the report would be favorable, that the consolidation would be assisted; that we would receive his help in procuring the necessary legislation (from the state legislature as to a change in the insurance laws). We endeavored to have the amount reduced, to cut it in two. His reply was, 'This or nothing. You know there are two of us.'

"On the 11th day of December, 1901, in the Ryan hotel (St. Paul), almost in the presence of witnesses, with witnesses at the outer door, this money was paid to him.

"I was indebted to a certain gentleman in Kansas City in this amount of money. I used his money to make this payment (to O'Shaughnessy). Later on he (the Kansas City man) was paid with a check from the company."

This statement is said to have been written April 26, 1905, by W. F. Bechtel, former president of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company and of the National Mutual Life association, both of Minneapolis. Yesterday afternoon, at the beginning of the trial of Mr. Bechtel, before Judge Brooks of the Hennepin county district court, on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree, this statement figured as the sheet anchor of both the prosecution and the defense. The state sought to prove that "the Kansas City gentleman was paid with a check from the company," claiming to prove later that such payment, in the sum of $3,500, was grand larceny from the National Mutual Life association. The defense, apparently, will be eager to prove that, if Mr. Bechtel did pay "the Kansas City gentleman" with a check from the company, it was because Mr. Bechtel had already paid out his own funds, to a large amount, on the company's behalf for the purpose of bribing the state insurance commissioner. Thus Mr. Bechtel, it is promised, will be shown to be innocent of evil intent.

The possibilities of double-barreled vindication in this statement are sufficiently marvelous. No less strange is the fact that the statement was prepared for publication in a Minneapolis newspaper, but was never sent to the paper, nor otherwise made public.

Opening the case for the state yesterday, Assistant District Attorney John F. Dale, explained to the jury that the state expected to prove its charges by the defendant's own admissions. It would be shown "that he sent the $3,500 check to Kansas City to pay a personal debt of his own."

STEENERSON'S DRAINAGE BILL

Public Lands Committee Likely to Extend Its Operations.

Washington, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Director Wolcott and Mr. Wilson of the Geological survey, Representative Steenerson and A. G. Bernard of Cass Lake, had a hearing before the house committee on public lands this morning on Congressman Steenerson's drainage bill. Director Wolcott occupied most of the time and strongly urged that the committee endorse the measure. Though there was no action on the bill, questions asked by members of the committee indicated a desire to amend it, so as to include in its operation that part of North and South Dakota east of the 100th meridian. This would embrace the valleys of the Red River of the North in North Dakota and the lowlands of the Missouri river in South Dakota. Another hearing will be held next Wednesday.

The conferees on the Indian appropriation bill have agreed on an appropriation of $15,000 for an investigation of drainage possibilities on the ceded porton of the Red Lake Indian reservation, and the money will be available when the bill becomes a law.

FROST IN MISSOURI.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 9.—Frost last night did considerable damage to small fruit and early vegetables in northwest Missouri and northeast Kansas.

BARTRAM IS RE-ELECTED

Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Minnesota.

Minneapolis, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—By re-election Carroll S. Bartram of St. Paul was yesterday restored to the office of grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, which he had resigned a few days before, that Thomas H. Hineline, then vice chancellor, might succeed to it, and thus gain membership in the supreme lodge through the title of past grand chancellor. There was practically no opposition to Mr. Bartram's election. Other grand lodge officers were elected, as follows: G. V. C., William Malgren, St. Peter; G. P., Rev. Carl Reed Taylor, Fergus Falls; G. K. R. & S., Fred E. Wheaton, Minneapolis; G. M. E., Charles W. Farrell, Minneapolis; G. M. A., David Fisher, Montevideo; G. I. G., Harry C. Higgins, Albert Lea; G. O. G., Joseph Kahn, Faribault; grand trustee, William R. Hodges, Sleepy Eye.

The grand lodge opened its thirty-fourth annual convention yesterday at Minneapolis with 250 members from different parts of the state in attendance, and Thomas Hineline, after being installed as grand chancellor, presided at the opening session. The annual meeting of the grand temple of the Rathbone Sisters also opened yesterday at Minneapolis. There are thirty temples represented.

FUNERAL IS POSTPONED

Burial Denied Spier Until Bullet Which Killed Him is Found.

Manner of Death as Much of a Mystery as Ever.

New York, May 9.—Plans had been made to have the funeral today of Charles L. Spier, the Staten Island business man who was shot in so mysterious a manner that the authorities cannot determine whether he was murdered or committed suicide. The bullet which caused Mr. Spier's death had not been located and the authorities desisted from an attempt to find it because Mrs. Spier objected to the mutilation of her husband's body. As the authorities differed as to whether the bullet came from Mr. Spier's own revolver, it was reported today that District Attorney John J. Kenny of Staten Island, would refuse to allow the funeral to proceed until a complete autopsy had been made. Mr. Kenny said the bullet that killed Mr. Spier should be found in order to determine whether or not he was killed by his own revolver.

Mrs. Spier, widow of the dead man, said: "I do not see any good of an autopsy to find the bullet that killed him. To get it would require a great deal of mutilation. Dr. Patterson, Coroner Cahill and the assistant district attorney thought that it would not be necessary. What would it prove even if the bullet was found to be a 32-calibre and fitted Mr. Spier's revolver? I am told that is a very common size and most men carry them. The burglar might have had a 32-calibre weapon, too. So the bullet itself would prove nothing.

"No matter what they say, I know my husband was murdered.

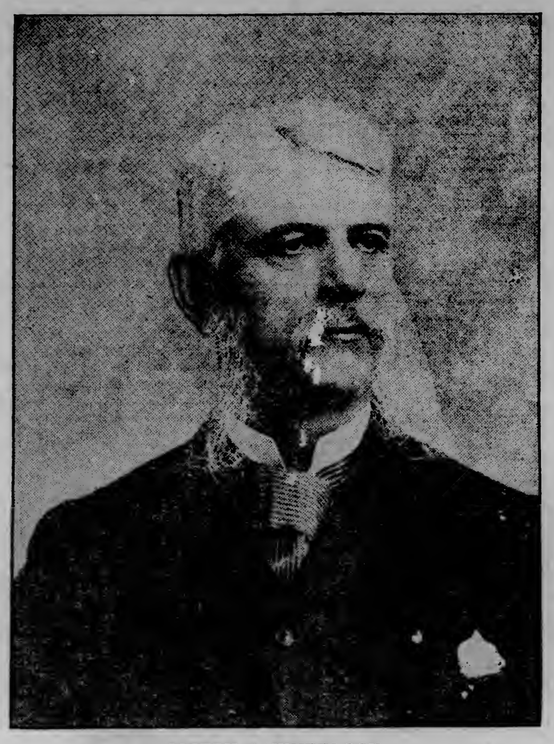
"We were perfectly happy. I cannot imagine any reason why he should take his own life. There was not the slightest cloud in our lives. Mr. Spier was fond of his home. We had no differences. We had no troubles. I know nothing of the $75,000 insurance policy he is said to have taken recently."

A report was published today, that there was a scene at a prominent Staten island club recently which resulted in a request that Mr. Spier leave the club. The cause of it is unknown

NAVAL BUREAU WILLING TO BUILD BIG WARSHIP.

Washington, May 9.—The construction bureau of the navy is willing to undertake to build the leviathan 20,600 ton battleship provided for in the pending naval appropriation bill and on the basis of the experience acquired in the construction of the battleship Connecticut at the New York navy yard, the constructors feel sure that they can execute this task with reasonable dispatch at a minimum of cost. A careful estimate limits the time allowed for construction to forty-eight months, and the cost to be $10,000,000. The New York navy yard is found to be the only place available and suitable for this work, having the necessary slip room and the machine plant and cranes required for economical ship work on the large scale involved in the building of such a ship.

JOSEPH WHEELOCK, THE VETERAN EDITOR, IS DEAD



JOSEPH A. WHEELOCK.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph A. Wheelock, editor-in-chief of the Pioneer Press, died at his home, 421 Summit avenue, in this city at 9 o'clock today. Mr. Wheelock had been in ill health for several years and had returned but two days ago from California where he had spent the winter.

Joseph A. Wheelock was born in Bridgetown, Nova Scotia, Feb. 8, 1831. He was educated in Sackville academy and came to Minnesota in 1850 at the age of 19. He began his business life as clerk in a sutler's store at Mendota, then a lively trading post. In 1856 he became editor of the Real Estate and Financial Advertiser, published in St. Paul and in 1858 he was attached to the editorial staff of the St. Paul Pioneer, where he remained for two years. In 1861 he was appointed commissioner of statistics for Minnesota, being the first to occupy that position. The report compiled by him was the first important collection of Minnesota statistics ever published and is something more than statistical for it reveals the discrimination and far-seeing judgment of the man who saw Minnesota's great possibilities and from them argued her mighty future.

In 1861 Mr. Wheelock was married to Miss Kate French, daughter of Theodore French of Concord, N. H. At about the same period he, in association with William R. Marshall, founded the St. Paul Press, and thus begun his actual editorial career. He continued as editor-in-chief of the Press up to the time and after its union with the Pioneer and his work in this capacity established his reputation in journalism and gave the Northwest its first great newspaper.

From 1871 to 1875 Mr. Wheelock held the office of postmaster of St. Paul. Although with the exception of this term and his appointment as commissioner of statistics he has not held office in the state of his adoption, he nevertheless figured actively in some of the exciting crises of St. Paul's early history.

Among the important services Mr. Wheelock has rendered St. Paul, outside his profession, is his work on the park board of the city, of which he was an active member for years. To his active, untiring, yet judicious interest, St. Paul owes some of the most important improvements in its admirable park system.

LENROOT WILL NOT WITHDRAW

Good Chance in Wisconsin for Three-Cornered Fight.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—Irving L. Lenroot of Superior, declines to withdraw from the gubernatorial race. James O. Davidson is in the contest to stay, and now there is talk that the "stalwarts" will make it a three-cornered contest by placing a candidate in the field against both Davidson and Lenroot.

M. J. Jeffris of Janesville, who made a stump campaign against La Follette the last time he was chosen governor, and who led the "stalwarts" in the famous bolt convention, has already been mentioned as the choice of the "conservatives." However, he is a candidate for congress, and it is not at all likely that he will consent to drop out of that race to run for governor.

Madison Democrats are feeling jubilant over the possibility of a fight among the Republicans. They say they will surely win. And still it is far from a certainty that the "stalwarts" will again have a gubernatorial candidate. Many believe that this faction of the Republican party is satisfied with the candidacy of Mr. Davidson, and it is freely predicted it will support him rather than make it a three-cornered fight.

This much is certain, politics is warm in the state capital, and a few days may see important developments. The "stalwarts" will not support Lenroot because they regard him as La Follette's choice. It is even said that the junior senator from Wisconsin will campaign in behalf of the Superior man. Davidson is regarded as a compromise by many.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE

Done to Vessels at San Francisco by the Earthquake.

San Francisco, May 9.—A survey by the underwriters shows the damage done to vessels at the Union Iron works by the earthquake to have been considerable. The two 500 feet long freighters, Mexican and the Columbia, in course of construction for the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, were found forward in their cradles and damaged to the extent of $15,000 each.

The Harriman steamship, Columbia, on the drydock, was thrown on one side, wrecking the dock and damaging the vessel to the extent of $100,000. The Columbia and the dock later sank and have not yet been recovered. A pair of shear legs fell on the City of Puebla inflicting damages of about $15,000. The Puebla will be in commission in about a month.

Washington, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mina D. Hulle has been appointed postmaster at Myron, Beltrami county, Minn., vice F. B. Gustafson, resigned.

PAY $60,000 INDEMNITY

Chinese Recompense Missionaries for Loss of Property.

Hongkong, May 9.—The viceroy of Canton has paid to the American consul at Canton, Julius G. Lay, the sum of $60,000 as indemnity for the mission buildings, the personal property of the missionaries and the claims of convents, as a result of the destruction of property during the rioting at Lienchow in October last. The money will be transferred to the Presbyterian mission settlement at Lienchow.

Five Americans belonging to the Presbyterian mission at Lienchow in the western part of the province of Kwang-Tung, were murdered Oct. 28, and the mission buildings destroyed as the result of a dispute between the missionaries and natives over an apparently trival incident at a Chinese festival. The persons who lost their lives were Mrs. E. C. Machle and her daughter, Amy, the Rev. and Mrs. John Rogers Peale and Dr. Eleanor Chestnut. Mr. Mackle and Miss Elda G. Patterson, also of the mission, succeeded in escaping.

Soon after the occurrence the American minister at Pekin cabled to Washington that he had been requested by the Chinese minister for foreign affairs to inform the United States government that China was profoundly humillated and distressed over the affairs at Lienchow and had promised that prompt and vigorous action would be taken to punish those responsible for the disturbance and to prevent a repetition of such outrages at Lienchow or elsewhere. Later the three actual murderers were decapitated, four men were imprisoned for five years, two for three years, two for one year and one for six months. Others of those implicated were sentenced to minor punishments.

SCHOONER GOES DOWN

Algeria Sinks Off Harbor of Cleveland in Heavy Blow.

Thought That the Crew of Three Men Are Drowned.

Cleveland, May 9.—The schooner Algeria sank about two miles off the harbor of Cleveland this morning, and possibly three men lost their lives.

The schooner Iron Queen is in a sinking condition outside the breakwater and the crew of eight was taken off by the members of the life saving crew.

The storm of last night and early today with the heavy sea it kicked up was a menace to shipping outside the harbor.

The big steamers that had been tied up there by the strike came inside the breakwater, but the small schooners could not get in. Signals of distress came to the life saving station and Captain Motley of the life saving crew went out to the Iron Queen, rescuing the eight members of the crew with difficulty.

They could not reach the Algeria, which went down about two miles out.

Capt. Motley thinks there were at least three men on the Algeria, but does not know whether that is the actual number. Neither are the names known.

The Algeria was owned by Capt. James Davidson of Port Huron, Mich. She was built in 1896, and was of 2,000 tons burden. She was loaded with iron ore.

The Algeria generally carried a crew of seven men. It is known that three or four of these men came ashore last night. It is believed that at least three went down with the schooner.

The Iron Queen is sinking slowly. She sprung a leak during the height of the storm, and rapidly filled with water. She was built at Detroit in 1887, and has a gross tonnage of 1,384 tons. The present storm is said by vesselmen to be the most violent experienced during the month of May on the lakes in many years.

Chicago, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Algeria, which foundered off Cleveland last night with three of her crew, was insured for $35,000. The schooner Iron Queen reported in trouble off Cleveland, was insured for $25,500. Both were wooden vessels that were placed with large steel fleets. The fate of the Iron Queen is still in doubt, but the crew has been taken off by the life-savers.

ARE PHOTOGRAPHING FRISCO FROM BALLOON.

San Francisco, May 9.—The signal corps of the United States army is photographing San Francisco's ruins from balloons. A series of pictures is being taken to be kept on file by the war department in Washington. Several hundred pictures have already been taken of the different buildings and an order sent for three balloons so that a complete panoramic picture of the city can be had.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

To Be Investigated by House Committee on Expenditures.

Washington, May 9.—The agricultural department is to be investigated. The house today by vote empowered the committee on expenditures, in the agricultural department, of which Representative Littlefield of Maine, is chairman, to conduct such an examination.

Mr. Williams of Mississippi, the minority leader, said that this investigation was a step in the right direction and he hoped the other committees of the house dealing with the expenditures in the several departments would follow suit. He believed that such investigations would tend to economy in the departments, and if this be accomplished even in a small degree, the cost of the investigation would be money well expended.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, May 9.—The senate was prompt today in resuming consideration road rate bill, prohibiting interstate railroad rate bill, prohobiting interstate railroads from engaging in the production of coal or other commodities. The vice president announced the amendment of Senator Dryden to the Elkins provision to be in order. That amendment extends to July, 1911, the time when the provision shall go into effect. Several senators made objection that the time suggested was too remote and Mr. Dryden altered the date to July, 1909. A roll call was promptly ordered and resulted in the adoption of the amendment 44 to 29.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

Will Occur at the Winter Palace Thursday Afternoon.

St. Petersburg, May 9.—The final preparations for the great ceremony at the winter palace on the occasion of the opening of parliament tomorrow are being completed. Three imperial yachts which will convey their majesties and the members of the imperial family, the court and suites to St. Petersburg are lying in wait with steam up in the river. The route and other plans for the journey are guarded with the greatest secrecy, but it is understood that the imperial party will travel by train frim Tsarasksoe Selo to the palace at Peterhof tonight, where in the morning they will board the yachts and come up the river and land at the imperial dock in front of the winter palace, thus avoiding the necessity of passing through the streets of the capital. Immediately after the ceremony their majesties will return to Peterhof, where they will spend the summer.

Owing to the lateness of the hour at which the services at the winter palace will be completed, it has been decided not to open the council of the empire until Friday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The law providing for the reorganization of the council of the empire was published today.

CANADIAN PACIFIC TRAIN IS HELD UP

Vancouver, May 9.—The imperial limited was held up on the main line of the Canadian Pacific railroad near Kamloops, 250 miles from here, early today. The robbers compelled the engineer to uncouple the mail car from the rest of the train and haul it a mile away, where they rifled it of the registered letters.

The robbers were under the impression that the express packages were in the mail car, but when they found that the express was in another car, they had not nerve enough to go back for it, and slipped into the hills.

The robbery occurred near a small station called Furrel, between Kamloops and Ducks. Special officers have been sent out from Vancouver to pursue the robbers. The bandits made no attempt to interfere with the passengers.

NEW EDICT MAY AFFECT STATUS OF ROBERT HART.

Pekin, May 9.—An imperial edict which may radically affect the status of Sir Robert Hart, director general of the Chinese customs, and the customs establishment, was published today as follows:

"Tong Shao, junior vice-president of the foreign board, is appointed associate minister of customs affairs.

"All Chinese and foreigners employed in the various customs are placed under their control."

Both these offices are new creations in the customs service. Hitherto they have nominally been under the direction of the foreign board, but practically Sir Robert Hart has exercised absolute control.

CONFIDENTIAL CLERK

Philadelphia, May 9.—The brokerage firm of Harrison Snyder & Co. announced today that a defalcation amounting to at least $100,000 had been committed by Edwin S. Greenfield, a confidential clerk. The discovery was made by expert accountants employed to examine the books of the firm. The peculations had been going on, it is said, for about six years. Greenfield has not been arrested, but is under surveillance. The firm today filed a petition in bankruptcy, and Richard M. Vollum was appointed receiver.

MARINE

FIRE ON WRECKER

Manistique is Damaged While Tied at Dock in Duluth.

Arrived Early in Morning—One of the Reid Boats.

The wrecking steamer, Manistique, belonging to the Reid Wrecking company of Sarnia, Ont., arrived here this morning at an early hour to work on some of the wrecks on which the Reid people have contracts here. About 5:45, while the steamer was lying at the Singer dock, on Lake avenue, fire was discovered in her forecastle under the decks, and it gained such headway that the fire department had to be called. The people all along Lake avenue and the bay front were frightened half to death by the whistles which started screeching for help at that hour and the population of that part of town probably rose earlier this morning in consequence than at any time since the storm of last November, at least.

The department on arriving at the wharf, soon extinguished the fire which burned out a few partitions in the forecastle and practically put the crew's quarters out of commission but was confined to that part of the boat. No traces of the fire's damage can be seen upon the exterior of the cabins, deck or sides of the boat, and it is believed that less than $500 will cover the loss. Capt. Reynolds of the steamer says he cannot tell how the fire started for there was no fire near that part of the vessel. It is believed that some one of the crew must have dropped a match in some inflammable material and thus started the blaze.

The Manistique is now lying alongside of the barge Manila in the bay and will likely go to work on her in a day or two.

EXPECT A FIZZLE.

Marine Men Here Look for Early End of Strike.

The general impression among marine men here is that the marine strike will fizzle out within a few days. They believe that President Keefe of the Longshoremen, has been deceived as to the strength and stability of the Mates' union and that he has now found out in a measure how much he has been duped. He is now in Cleveland, according to dispatches from there, and the marine interests and workers here fully expect to hear of a settlement in a very short time.

It is expected that before he lets up, however, after casting aside the mates' affair, he will insist on a ten-hour day scale; and it is understood that the Lake Carriers will not be awfully averse to granting this. In this way President Keefe will have saved his laurels by getting something out of the strike even if the original object will not have been attained.

There is nothing new in connection with the strike in Duluth. The Ball Brothers of the Tomlinson line arrived in Duluth last night, completing a round trip. She was the first boat to leave here on a round trip after the strike was started.

COMMANDS THE JENKS.

Captain William D. Ames has been appointed master of the steamer J. M. Jenks, and is now in Buffalo, having taken charge of the steamer yesterday. The Jenks is one of the modern type of carriers operated by W. A. Hawgood & Co., and Captain Ames' many friends will again see him in Duluth occasionally this season.

He has for some years been in charge of some steamer or other of the Tomlinson fleet, and last season brought out and sailed for the season the new steamer Hoover & Mason. This spring he resigned from the Tomlinson line and has now engaged with the Hawgoods.

CONVERTED INTO STEAMER.

Schooner Sprague Now the Propeller Reliance, a Wrecker.

The schooner, H. C. Sprague, belonging to Clow & Nicholson, has been converted into a steamer and is now known as the Reliance.

This firm will form the Duluth Sand & Gravel company, a corporation, and the steamer will be operated by that concern. She will be used to carry sand and gravel and lumber, etc., along the shores of Lake Superior, and will also be used in wrecking when wanted, having been fitted out with a heavy derrick, scoop, etc. It is claimed that the steamer will be excellent for wrecking purposes. The work of changing the schooner into a steamer was done during the past winter at Grignon's yards in Duluth. The new steamer is 145 feet long, 30 feet beam and 9 feet depth. She is of 316 gross tons capacity.

The Reliance got back this morning from the wreck of the Crescent City where she filled the crib on which the pulling is to be done.

SOMETHING IMPORTANT

Likely to Occur Soon in the Longshoremen's Strike.

Cleveland, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Keefe of the Longshoremen's union, although known to be in the city since yesterday has thus far kept his whereabouts a secret. His reported movements and his conferences with different persons, would indicate, however, that something important is about to be due. It is pretty well established that negotiations are underway loking toward an early settlement of the strike, but nothing definite can be announced. Conferences were held today between Keefe and several dock managers, President Bush of the Lake Pilots' Protective association and John Patton, local delegate of the Longshoremen's union. It is believed that other conferences are to follow. It is reported that Keefe visited one of the headquarters of the strikers today and that after coming out said in response to questions, to what was doing: "You boys may expect to go back to work the coming week." This is interpreted by some to mean that a settlement will be effected the last of this week. The rank and file are being kept in ignorance of everything that is being done.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association, reported to be in the city, has not yet been located by newspaper men.

An important feature of Keefe's visit was the quitting of ten mates serving on boats now in harbor. Simultaneously six men quit at Toledo, sixteen at Erie, twelve at Ashtabula and ten at Conneaut.

This move is believed to have been taken under Keefe's advice and is taken to indicate that Keefe will drop the lake pilots and send his men back to work without concessions by the dock managers.

HAD NO BOAT.

Men on the Algeria Had No Way of Escaping.

Cleveland, May 9.—Following are the names of those who are known to have gone down with the Algeria:

Capt. Matthew Elen, aged 65 years, married, residence Detroit.

Thomas Sullivan, cook, aged 43, Cleveland.

"Our coming on shore on Tuesday afternoon was really the cause of the death of Capt. Elen and the other two men," said Charles Johnson, one of the seamen of the Algeria, who escaped. "We took the only boat the barge possessed and it was therefore impossible for the others to leave the craft when they finally found that it was sinking. We were to return to the Chauda, Chieftain, Emily, Hattie, Schuyck, 10:40.

Up yesterday: Angeline, 11:30; Utica, 12:15 p. m.; Codorus, 2:20; Charles Neff, 7. Down: Yuma, 11:40; Orinoco, Montezuma, Leonard, 12:40 p. m.; B. L. Smith, 2; Victory, 4:30; Bradley and barges, 6; Tampa, 6:40.

schooner at 10 o'clock last night, but at that time the storm was raging so furiously that we could not make the trip."

WASHBURN NOT TROUBLED.

Its Traffic Not Materially Impeded by the Walkout.

Washburn, Wis., May 9.—The lake marine strike has not ben felt much at this port, and unless it assumes a more serious aspect, will not interfere with shipping materially.

The bulk of the shipping done from this port is in the lumber trade, and the majority of the boats engaged in hauling the lumber are members of the Lumber Carriers' association, which has recognized the Pilots' union, so that the boats can proceed as usual without being interfered with by the unions. The only difficulty that the boats have is in getting tugs at the lower lake ports with which to do the towing.

The grain shipments from here have been unusually good since May 1, when the strike was called, and the boats have found very little difficulty thus far in getting unloaded at the lower ports.

The coal strike has had a very bad effect on the coal trade to this place. Thus far only one boat has arrived with a cargo, and consequently the coal supply is becoming low at this point. There is very little anthracite coal on the docks.

The M. I. Wilcox Wrecked.

Detroit, May 9.—A News special from Colchester, Ont., says a barge with two masts lies sunk off here, one quarter of a mile from shore. The decks are under water, but there are evidences that the crew escaped. The wreck is the M. I. Wilcox of Vermillion, Ohio, bound up with coal. Thus far it has been impossible to get particulars, but the vessel foundered some time during the night.

Weitzel Lock Disabled.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The gate of the Wentzel lock became disabled when it had been partly closed after the steamer Wade had entered upbound, at 1 o'clock this morning. Repairs will likely be completed this afternoon.

Boats In Demand.

Chicago, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Shippers were bidding for boats to take grain to Buffalo today, and a fair volume of business could have been done by vesselmen had guarantees been given that boats could be unloaded on arrival. These guarentees the shippers could not give and boats will be kept in idleness at the docks here rather than be caught in a crush at Buffalo later on.

Work Begins on Coal Docks.

Buffalo, May 9.—Work on the coal docks which have been idle since the strike began was resumed at the Lehigh and Erie docks today. At the former, the steamer Case is being loaded. At the Erie dock the men were on hand, but there was nothing to do. An extra detail of police was stationed at the docks.

Picked Up Crew.

Erie, May 9.—Capt. D. C. Girardine of the steamer Fayette Brown reported at the custom house that he had picked up three men from a water-logged schooner on Lake Erie, about eight miles from Southeast shoal.

A Dangerous Derelict.

Detroit, May 9.—A dangerous derelict, supposed to be the wreck of the schooner from which the crew was saved by the steamer Fayette Brown is reported by Capt. Gleason of the steamer Robert Wallace. The wreck is that of a small schooner or scow which lies on her beam ends and is apparently held by an anchor. The Southeast shoals lightship bears due west about six miles. Capt. Gleason says that boats making a close course for the lightship at night would be liable to strike the wreck, which is large enough to be a menace to vessels.

FOUR INDIANS DEAD FROM FLORIDA WATER DEBAUCH.

Winnipeg, Man., May 9.—Word was received today from Rosthern, Saskatchewan, that four Indians are dead and three others are in a serious condition, as the result of a Florida water debauch at Duck Lake reserve. Coroner Stewart of Rosthern, after investigation, found no evidence of foul play, and decided an inquest unnecessary. The inspector general of Prince Albert is investigating the matter for the government.

ONLY CIGAR IN ITS CLASS.

S. F. Boyce Never Saw Cigar Before That Equaled Chico for Same Money.

While there are many cigars that are just as good as Wadsworth Bros.' Chico, it is in reality in a class by itself, for no other as good sells for 5c. Cigars that equal it sell for 10c and more.

In asking S. F. Boyce, who has the local agency for the Wadsworth Bros.' Chico, how this could be done, Mr. Boyce said that it was owing to cutting out the middleman. "I buy the Chico direct from the factory in Binghamton, and while it costs me more than any other 5c cigar in my case, yet I am glad to sell it, for it makes new friends and customers for my cigar department."

Anyone who enjoys a clear Havana smoke, whose taste is cultivated so that he knows a good cigar when he smokes it, should try a Wadsworth Bros.' Chico. It's in the blue ribbon class, and all alone.

MUST QUIT SPITTING

Police Trying to Remedy Disgusting Condition of Superior Street.

Nearly a Dozen Persons Arrested in Last Two Days.

In an effort to remedy the disgusting condition of certain parts of Superior street, which are bespattered with tobacco juice, the police have been given orders to rigidly enforce the ordinance which forbids spitting on the sidewalk, and during the last two days there have been nearly a dozen prisoners brought before the municipal court judges, charged with this offense.

The usual fine imposed has been $1 and costs, amounting to $3 in all, but the fine may be increased if an improvement in conditions is not apparent.

The chief offenders have been the members of a gang of young bums who spend the greater part of their time hanging about saloons, hotels and street corners. Loafing about the streets, and chewing tobacco, they make a public nuisance of themselves by their habit of letting loose a stream of tobacco juice wherever they happen to be standing.

Officer Barber, who is on the Superior street beat during the day time, has been especially active in his efforts to keep the sidewalks in a clean and sanitary condition, and he has arrested six offenders since yesterday morning.

Persons who have not yet acquired the habit of going to the curb when they wish to expectorate, would do well to adopt that custom, as it might save them some money in police court fines. The officers have been instructed to show no favoritism or leniency but to arrest everyone found expectorating on the sidewalks.

RAILROADS

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Passenger Association Wants a Better Mileage Book System.

Commercial Interests Are Against Continuance of The Present Books.

The Western Passenger association has appointed a committee to look after the matter of rearranging the present unsatisfactory system of issuing mileage books.

The books now issued were put out in 1903. Their continuance is not favored by the railroads nor by the commercial interests. They are for 1,000 miles, and sell at $25, good on issuing road; interchangeable 2,000-mile, sold at $60, with $19.50 rebate, good on all lines of the association east of the Mississippi river: credential mileage, with rebate of 1 cent a mile at end of year, if more than 4,000 miles have been traveled, good east of the Missouri river.

Passenger Rate Fight.

It is an exceptional month when the Chicago-St. Paul lines do not get into a controversy over rates. Special rates are now causing trouble, which was started by the Great Western quoting a round-trip rate of $12 for the B'nai B'rith gathering at St. Paul in June. The other roads promptly met the rate.

After this, it is understood, one road quoted a rate of $10 for the sangerfest, and some believe there may be a further $2 cut, bringing the net round-trip rate to $8.

Railroad Notes.

The Duluth & Northeastern has ordered two locomotives from the American Locomotive company.

The members of the Chinese high commission entertained by the Great Northern road in St. Paul and elsewhere along the line have sent expressions of regard and thanks to the company officials for the manner in which they were treated.

Otto Schaffer, ticket auditor of the Great Western road, who has been in the service of the company for sixteen years, has resigned. The office is consolidated with that of freight auditor, and H. Ernest, who has been freight auditor, takes charge.

Railroad Personals.

E. H. Wilde of St. Paul, division passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, is in the city today.

R. P. McCune of Minneapolis, commercial agent for the Wabash, is in the city.

J. J. Conley of Marquette, Mich., superintendent of motive power on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Iron Range lines, is in the city.

Columbus, O., May 9.—Columbus people are wrapped up in heavy overcoats today and a flurry of snow about 11 o'clock added to the aspect of winter. Reports from central Ohio are to the effect that the strawberry crop is badly damaged by the cold snap, but fruit is said to be safe.

PITTSBURG BANK FAILS.

Pittsburg, May 8.—The Columbia Savings and Trust company of this city closed its doors today by order of the commissioner of banking. Hon. William J. Diehl, former mayor of Pittsburg is president and J. M. Volan, secretary and treasurer. The capital is $145,000; deposits, $200,000; loans, $290,000 and surplus, $6,000.

REVERSES JUDGMENT

New Evidence in Reopened Case Alters Court's Findings.

Charles Quinn's Title to His Brother's Property Recognized.

By his decision in the Quinn case, Judge Cant has vacated and set aside his findings of fact, conclusions of law and judgment in favor of the widow and children of John J. Quinn, deceased, and has ordered findings and judgment for Charles Quinn, a brother, and Isaac Litchfield, who was made a party defendant through the purchase of some of the property involved.

The case attracted some interest at the time of its trial in May, 1905, and when the findings and judgment in favor of Maria E. Quinn and minor children were filed in October, last year.

Last March Charles Quinn and his co-defendant moved the court to set aside the findings and judgment already entered, and for a reopening of the case, for the purpose of taking the evidence of William C. Sargent, who was alleged to have knowledge of the transactions between the brothers that was of much importance to the defense of Charles H. Quinn, the suriving brother.

The court permitted a reopening of the case, under a stipulation that no other evidence should be received, except Mr. Sargent's testimony on matters relating to money transactions between the Quinn brothers, with a view of finding out what money, if any, John Quinn borrowed from Charles Quinn during the former's lifetime, and how much of it he repaid.

The case was tried March 17, and on motion of Charles Quinn and the other defendants, Judge Cant vacated and set aside his former findings and judgment, and filed findings and judgment in accordance with the answer set up by the defendants.

Judge Cant holds that John J. Quinn was the owner of lots 1, 2, 3, 4 and 16, block 26; lot 16, block 29, and lots 13 and 14, block 94, London addition; also the west half of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 34-51-13. It is found that before his death, and in 1899, when he was unmarried, John J. Quinn executed a warranty deed covering the property to his brother, Charles Quinn, for a sufficient and valuable consideration. The court holds this transfer to have been made in good faith and valid. He also holds that the transfer of the property from Charles Quinn to Isaac Litchfield was made in good faith, the consideration being $1,000.

Mrs. Maria Quinn and her minor children were represented by J. B. Richards and D. G. Cash, and Charles Quinn and the other defendants were represented by W. G. Bonham.

EIGHTIETH YEAR ONE OF ADVANCE

Chicago, May 9.—Today's meeting of the Congregational Home Missionary society was devoted to the hearing of annual reports upon all branches of the work undertaken by the organization. The principal reports were those of the executive committee and of the treasurer. They were in substance as follows:

Financially, the eightieth year is one of advance. An increase of more than $70,000 in the gifts of the churches and individuals for immediate use and an addition of $130,000 to the invested funds of the society bring encouragement, even though a shrinkage of $60,000 in legacy receipts prevented the reduction of the debt with which the year began.

Southern California no longer needs the aid of the society being now a "constituent state," and Nebraska stands upon the same threshold.

The number of missionary laborers in the service of the society last year, together with those engaged in superintending the work was 1,660, the distribution being as follows:

New England states, 443; middle states, 124; southern states, 778; southwestern states, 82; Pacific coast, 163; western states and territories, 764; Cuba, 7.

The number of congregations and missionary districts fully supplied, or where the gospel was preached at stated intervals was 2,236 and the number of Sunday school and bible class scholars not far from 115,824. The number of new schools organized was 107 and the number under the special care of the missionaries, 1,659. The number of converts reported by 459 missionaries was 5,100. The additions to the churches were 7,315, and 57 houses of worship were erected.

The report of the treasurer, William B. Howland of New York showed that the society began the year with a net debt of $180,688. The receipts were $253,435 and the expenditures $256,707. The net debt March 31, 1906, was $183,971. The auxiliary societies raised and expended in their own field during the year, $240,894. The grand total of expenditures for missionary labor and expenses was $497,601.

An Enterprising House.

While Duluth contains many institutions that can truthfully lay claim to being gifted with proverbial Western "push" and enterprise, there can be no question as to "The Union Clothing House" being just a "length ahead." Their recent purchase of the colossal stock of H. Cohn & Son, wholesale clothing manufacturers, of Chicago, and placing the same before the people of Duluth at prices less than the cost of manufacture, was a stroke of enterprise that can truthfully be called "nerve." The number of green packages, bearing the name of the Union Clothing House seen on the streets Saturday, amply testified to the fact that the Duluth people are alive in their oportunities. * * *

COTTAGE IS DESTROYED

Another Fire Breaks Out in Park Point Summer Colony.

The summer cottage owned by Frank Breeze of the Oak Hall Clothing company, at Thirty-first street, Park Point, was burned to the ground shortly before noon today.

Mr. Breeze was in the cottage at the time, placing it in readiness for the summer, and had lighted a fire in the stove. The roof was ignited from some defect in the pipe or the chimney, and there was no way to check the blaze.

The house, which was a cottage of five rooms, is a total loss.

No other houses were close enough to the flames to be in any danger.

An alarm was turned in to the fire department, and the chemical engine was dispatched from headquarters. The cottage was located so far down the point, however, that the department could not reach the scene in time to be of any assistance.

Owners of summer cottages on the point are warned by the fire department to exercise great care in lighting fires in their stoves which have been standing all winter.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The annual meeting of the association members, the annual May morning breakfast, a gymnasium frolic, an informal reception for the members of the educational classes, an excursion to Thomson, and the annual moonlight excursion, are among the social meetings and events which are being planned by the local Young Women's Christian association for the next month.

The annual meeting of the association will take place Monday evening of next week, at the rooms. The principal speaker of the evening will be Miss Belle Jeffery, general secretary of the Minneapolis association. The opening of the building fund boxes will also be a feature of this meeting. It was decided at the last annual meeting to have a number of these boxes distributed among the members, and the offerings secured in this way to be the initial fund for the Y. W. C. A. home, which is so much needed.

Tuesday morning of next week the annual May morning breakfast will be held, and as during the past two years, a delightful event is anticipated.

The closing of the year of gymnasium work will be marked by a frolic of some sort, and plans are being made by the committees in charge to have a unique and jolly entertainment. This affair will be given Monday evening, May 28. An informal reception of some sort will be held Friday evening, May 25, in honor of the closing term of the educational classes, and upon Decoration day an excursion to Thomson to inspect the work of the power company will be given under the auspices of the association. The date for the moonlight excursion with the members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. as hosts has not as yet been definitely decided upon, but the next several weeks promise to be eventful ones for the local association.

Farrell-Jeffery.

The wedding of Miss Isabelle G. Farrell, daughter of Mrs. B. Farrell of 225 Eleventh avenue east, and Frederick Jeffrey took place this morning at the residence of Bishop McGolrick. The bride was attended by Miss Cleo Phelan, and the best man was Bertine Daugherty, and the marriage service was read by Rev. Father Corbett. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery left for a wedding trip, and they will return to this city where they will be at home.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ives of St. Hilaire, Minn., are in the city on their way home from a wedding trip in Southern Minnesota.

* * *

Miss Grace Scribner, who has been studying at the Deaconess' Training school at Chicago, returned to the city today.

* * *

Mrs. J. D. Titcomb, who has spent the winter in California, has returned to St. Paul, and is expected in the city the latter part of the week.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen of 1612 East Third street, are entertaining Mrs. Christensen's mother, Mrs. J. J. Skuse of Spokane. Mr. Skuse will arrive tomorrow.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Reynor, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Christensen for a few days, returned last evening to Montreal.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Silver skin onions, 7 cents a lb.
Little new boiling onions, 5 cents a lb.
New potatoes, 5 cents a lb.
Porterhouse steak, 25 cents a lb.
Veal cutlets, 18 cents a lb.
Veal steak, 20 cents a lb.
New potatoes, creamed onions and porterhouse steak! Enough said. Everybody who can get together these three real delicacies, and have them all at one meal, might, in the ecstatic intervals that follow on good digestion, forget the worry of choosing spring garments and paying for spring hats, and the lack of long black silk gloves, and other wearing of life's troubles. The little new onions are delicious to the taste, a splendid spring tonic, as odorless as a turnip, as delicate as a mushroom, and as cheap as need be. These nice onions will be welcomed after the old and growing variety and the anything but delicate green ones. Onions are the change that the market offers.

The EVENING STORY.

THE PASSION OF POOR LO

By Philip Verrill Mighels.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles).

This, after much mental incubation and the coming of a long-famous statement, occurred to the mind of Winslow, as he gazed from his window across the street at a pair of warring squaws. They were taking each other's scalp-locks out by the double fistful, using a pulling force that in a field of stumps had been well-nigh invaluable.

But the original, epigrammatic person who first questioned—nay denied Lo's goodness in other capacity than that of a corpse—must certainly have reckoned without a knowledge of his eminent fitness as a decoration for a small municipality. Instance the capital city, Carson, of the Silver, Sagebrush state, Nevada. There the Pah Ute and the Washoe flourish and abound, ranging in age from the toothless, blubber-like papooses, to the toothless, parchment-resembling patriarch who in summer is certainly 120 in the shade.

A park was over the way from Winslow's house. On any day when the air is warm and heaven pours no crystal benedictions down, a crowd of Mr. and Mrs. Loes can be seen there, to say no word of little Loes and half-grown Loes, with nothing worthy of a boast upon their rounded persons.

But alas! for picturesqueness and the gaudy deception of a gay outside. While the brown little Loes are playing about, taking baths in the sun and dust, and storing up health their parents are committing two atrocities—gambling and chewing gum.

Winslow, watching the battling squaws, presently noted the approach of a warrior armed with a bottle. With this he thumped a light tattoo on the knuckles and hands of the combatants. Thereupon one female departed in haste, whilst the other, who was wife to the doughty chief with the bottle, remained to contemplate the possibilities of extracting her husband's eyes with her claws. The peculiar pose of the bottle in the grasp of her "man" had, however, a gentle, dissuading effect. She merely shook her hair and combed it back a trifle with her fingers, rearranged her red bandanna handkerchief, and proceeded to find her gum in the grass and chew it—somewhat sullenly.

Just about as the misunderstanding concluded, a man came around from the rear of Winslow's house and accosted him.

"You're back in time to miss a scrap," said the latter.

"Sorry."

"So am I. Do you see that buck with the bottle?"

Winslow pointed across the street.

"Yes."

"Well, he's the fellow who found my horse."

"What horse?"

"Why, didn't I tell you the story?" Winslow's voice expressed surprise.

"Never that I now recall."

"That's funny. You know I was out in the mountains, camping. I had a horse—a good-for-nothing old scoundrel—and of course a saddle, with bags for a few necessities, etc. One evening I rode him up the ravine that leads to Three-lake creek, and left him a moment, tied to a brush. When I came back he was gone. I had fishing-tackle, a pair of shoes, a cartridge belt, a hunting-knife, a thin vest, and a pair of field glasses in the bags, or I shouldn't have cared.

"I searched high and low, chased hither and yon, but had to go back to camp on foot at last. Three days then I hunted for that scalawag of a horse without success. At the end of that time, behold appeared Mr. Grunthard Injun, the fellow yonder—whose other name is Jim, to which the title 'captain' is often superadded by himself.

"He was leading the nag, and was grinning with a self-satisfaction that was truly edifying. The saddle was there, but scratched, bruised, torn and worthless. In the bags was a tangled mass of stuff, mostly tackle, which Grunthard exhibited in glee to assure me of his honesty. The lenses of the glass were ruined, but everything, except the knife and a shoe, was there.

"'Me pind 'um,' said Jim. 'Heap hard ketch 'um hoss, you sabe.'

"'Where'd you find him?' I replied.

"'H-e-a-p far. Pind 'um pish-hook, pish-line—heap pind 'um. Pretty good Injun.'

"'Yes,' I said, 'pretty good Injun, but the fish-hooks, lines, horse and all ain't worth two bits.'

"He seemed dejected, so I gave him a dollar and the fish-line and sent him off. I thought it a wonder he brought me back a thing, and I guess a dollar was little enough."

Winslow's friend seemed to think the same.

The Indian in question now joined a number, who were come upon the square to sit down to the daily round of gambling. One by one newcomers straggled across the lot to squat upon the edge of the blanket and mingle in the mysteries of "pass the stick."

At length the game grew far too slow and the cards came forth, as befitting the increasing value of the bets.

Capt. Jim lost all the change he had. As the last of his pieces of silver went he arose and looked about. Not a banker, not even a backer did he see in the assemblage. He presently noted that Winslow was out in his garden, at the rear of his house, and wandered over with the easy, indifferent manner of the most friendly neighbor. Winslow's friend was sitting near as Jim approached.

"Hullo, Jim, how are you?" said the host, continuing to sprinkle with the hose.

"H-e-a-p sick," replied the buck. Then he shifted about, as no one manifested an interest in his being or condition, whistled under his breath, looked at the garden and grunted not a little.

"How's yoh hoss?" he asked at last.

"Pretty well."

More shifting and whistling.

"Jim heap pind 'um."

"Yes, I know you found him," Winslow answered.

"Heap pind 'um pish-hook."

"True for you. You're all right," said Winslow. Then to his friend: "Our aboriginal acquaintance here is endeavoring to intimate that a further remuneration for services rendered would not be refused with scorn and indignation."

A silence followed, and the white men were smiling.

"Heap bring 'um glass, heap belt, heap all," the Washoe resumed.

"Oh! I know," said Winslow; "pretty good Injun, but you know I gave you a dollar—that's enough."

The Indian pondered, and not in vain. A brilliant thought was born in his mind. "My wife—she's heap want a dollar," said he, with utmost gravity.

The two men burst into uncontrollable laughter.

"Your wife—the devil she does—by jingo! that's worth a dollar!" and Winslow unlocked the cash to the tune and stood there red with mirth as the fellow walked solemnly away to the gay "rosette" of gamblers over the way.

At the coming of Jim, a place was made in the circle, he was given dimes for his dollar, and the play was resumed. The two common players soon lost their coins to Jim, who then possessed an additional 60 cents. He squared himself to "bust the bank" of Mingo, a wily chief sitting opposite.

Now was waged a mighty war with "pots" as great as 40 cents. Backward and forward went the money, and the circle closed about the antagonists. Steadily, inexorably, the skill of Mingo was draining the purse of Captain Jim. At the end of an hour 90 cents were gone; the eyes of the men were glinting with excitement and the bosoms of the squaws were heaving. About this time came Winslow across from his place, to see in what manner his coin was being employed.

On and on went the silent play. Jim was dropping piece after piece, as if in the maw of a hungry machine. At length his final dime was gone. He searched his pockets for the wherewithal to continue the play. Half a dozen fish-hooks, a six inch piece of gaspipe and a hunting knife appeared.

The hooks and the pipe went speedily across the cloth to his foe. The knife he yearned to keep. Looking about, like a tiger at bay he espied his wife.

"I'll stake my squaw against a dollar pour-bits," said the captain in Washoe and English.

And Winslow fancied he saw a gleam, half of appeal, half of reckless bravado, in the glance the Indian threw to the youthful squaw.

"One dollar," said he.

And they played again.

The fate of the bronze-tinted daughter of the soil hung in the balance for half an hour. At the end of that time she joined the faithless dimes, hooks and piece of pipe. The excitement was now intense. Not a few of the onlookers, including Mrs. Captain Jim, were smiling, just a little, for the prowess of Mingo had made him a hero. Jim picked up his knife.

"Two dollars for this," he said, palpably laboring with the demon passion of poker.

The other glanced it over critically, and counted out a dollar and 25 cents.

With a grunt of anguish, in which vengeance and unwarranted confidence in his final ability to win his treasures back, Jim began once more to play. This time the issue was forced by the wily Mingo, and the betting rose till 80 cents got into a single pot. Jim even won a hand, and raked two dimes in with a grasping claw. It seemed to him that his fortune had changed.

The bucks and squaws closed in, and the day was growing old. Finally, with an Indian oath, the captain hurled his cards to the blanket, and saw his last wee coin plump down by his knife.

He was "busted flat."

Lookin gabout the circle, the loser found a pitiless array of eyes upon him. Oh! for just a dollar—a dime—anything! He knew that his luck must turn, and his silver and precious things come back if only he could get another chance. The passion was burning out his very heart!

He snarled out a fierce, defiant offer of a last desperate stake, which raised a murmur of approbation and enjoyment, and caused the eager crowd to close in even more. Only the women laughed, and theirs was a weak and silly simper.

The smooth, emotionless Mingo dealt the cards as if the stakes were as little in value as a couple of thimblefuls of water.

It was brief and sharp, that final hand. Captain Jim held formidably. With the wild, unthinkable abandon of a player poker-mad, he tossed his whole gleaming pile, which summed up 60 cents, to the fore.

"What you got?" he yelled triumphantly. He threw his cards on the cloth, face up, exhibiting three jacks, a deuce and a four-spot.

Mingo said no word at all, but merely laid four kings in sight.

With a whoop of rage, Captain Jim shot up. Two or three quick, nervous movements he made—and divested himself of every stitch of clothing upon his person.

He had lost everything he had on earth, down to the very buff.

A howling chorus of laughter and derision burst on the air. From the midst of his people like a wild, scared thing, the utterly naked Indian bounded away for the sagebrush that lay toward the setting sun. Against the slanting light his figure cut a moving silhouette, until he seemed to merge into the distant and radiant West, flooding with beams that clothed anew his disappearing form.

CURE FOR UGLINESS.

"Make faces if you want to improve your face!"

This piece of advice is seriously presented to all those ambitious persons who want to improve on nature's ideas of what they should look like. It is the conclusion of Prof. Anthony Barker, who can and does merge faces to beat the band, says the New York Sun.

"I admit," he says, "that it sounds both simple and silly to tell anybody that in order to become handsome he should make faces which are undeniably ugly, but it is neither simple nor silly. If you make the right kind of faces and do it regularly for ten or fifteen minutes, either in the morning or at night, you will find that it will work wonders in your appearance."

The sceptic didn't doubt this. When he looked at the professor making faces he was bound to admit that they worked wonders, all right enough, but he didn't feel himself stirred to emulation.

The face-maker went on to explain, though, that he'd look better after a while; better even than before he began pushing his face to such extremities.

"Whoever makes these faces," said he, "will be blessed with features which are full of vitality. He or she will have that constant power of attraction which is possessed by any one who is the picture of health.

"You can't learn to make these faces properly without practice. You mustn't think that any old face will do. No, not any more than squirming and wriggling the body any which way will take the place of scientific physical exercises.

"You practice for a while, and you will find that you are bringing into play facial muscles that haven't been doing a day's work for years. These muscles will thus be filled with a bountiful supply of fresh blood, making the skin clear and rosy, the flesh firm and rounded."

The professor has devised five faces, varying from a Gorgon-like, staring apparition of frozen horror to a twister the mere beholding of which gives the fascinated spectator a cramp in his own face.

Here is a sample of the directions for this method of embellishing one's beauty:

"Exercise II—Starting with the mouth shut, thrust out the lower jaw as far as possible, and while holding it there, draw the lower lip and adjacent muscles up toward the nose. Try to make the lip touch the tip of the nose. Bring all the muscles around the shut eye as close together as you possibly can. Then try to open the eyes without succeeding. Do this until the muscles are tired.

"This stretching of the chin muscles takes away double chins and fills out hatchet ones. By concentrating numerous muscles around the eyes, it broadens noses that are too thin between the eyes and fills out sunken eye sockets and takes away puffs.

"It is better to do all the exercises gently at first. In this way possible rupture of small facial blood vessels will be made impossible. Making these faces also develops the neck and throat, filling them out when scrawny, and hardening them so as to render them less liable to disease.

"The chewing muscles also will be made stronger, so that thorough mastication will be materially aided; and that, in turn, will contribute to better digestion and assimilation of food. The exercises will correct excessive paleness as well as the other extreme of violent blushing."

The professor makes out a very strong case for his pet plan. Almost too strong, in fact. For when he says as he does that after using these exercises, "sunken eyes, hollow cheeks and abnormally thin noses will disappear," one feels inclined to put up with the features one happens to have, rather than to have them "disappear" without perhaps leaving even a wrack behind.

TRUE GHOST STORY.

Occult Review: A lady I met in Ireland related the following facts to me just as they occurred. She was staying at a house near Bardon, County Cork. One evening she was walking up the long carriage drive to the house—it was bright moonlight, and nearly as light as day—when she saw a tall figure coming down the narrow footpath beside the "drive" toward her. On coming closer she saw it was a man dressed all in black, wearing a tall silk hat, and she wondered who it could be. His head was bent forward, so that the face was in shadow; but as they came close to each other he raised his head and looked at her, and showed the most horrible face imaginable. With a gasp of terror she stepped off the path, and at the same moment he did the same, and, putting out a clawlike hand, touched her arm, and as she shrieked out in fear he completely vanished. She did not see him go, but he dissolved like mist. His face was not that of a human being, and the horror of it was quite indescribable. Her arm, that the specter touched, was paralized and remained so for two weeks after. This apparition had been seen by other people, but only at a distance, and but few believe the stories current about the place being "haunted."

IMPORTANCE OF AIR.

New York Press: Everything on, in and under the earth breathes—animals, minerals, vegetables, etc. The tides are caused by the breathing of the earth itself. This old globe must take two long breaths a day, each inspiration requiring six hours, and each expiration the same period of time. The wily Japanese got their notions of deep breathing from the tides. I merely assert that, because it seems reasonable. No one else ever dreamed of mentioning such a fool thing! If Mother Earth did not breathe she would in all probability "bust" and blow up. When she breaths too hard, as if in a panic, or because of some geological excitement, she cracks the ground, and we have the earthquake. Her ordinary respiratory movement merely expands and contracts the water volume.

Singularly enough, air is the most important element provided by nature. A man can live forty-five days without food, several days without water and about three or four minutes without air. Take away his lungs, as by pneumonia, and death is as certain as sin. Does the heartbeat make the circulation of the blood, or does the circulation make the heart beat? What causes breathing? Does breathing make the circulation? Important, vitally important, are these questions. You may remove a man's liver, kidneys, stomach, intestines; you may sever arteries and veins; you may even stab him through the heart or withdraw his brains, and he will still live. But take away his lungs and he is dead. The lungs are the life.

THE CROWN OF GOLD.

Los Angeles Times: "The late Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the negro poet," said an editor, "once addressed a Sunday school in New York. I heard the address. It was delightful. An odd incident happened, though, at its end—an incident that Dunbar laughed at as heartily as the rest of us.

"'And, my little friends, if you do all these things, some day you will wear a gold crown.'

"A little chap on the front row, catching the poet's friendly eye, piped:

"'My faver wears one now.'

"'No!' said the poet.

"'Yes, he does—on his toof,' said the little chap."

MANY KNEW GEN. WELLES

Ex-Secretary of Duluth Board of Trade is Dead.

Former Duluthian Was Stricken at His Home in Ohio City.

Gen. George E. Welles, who died April 27, was known to many Duluthians. He was secretary of the Duluth Board of Trade from 1887 to 1894, and earned a host of friends during his stay in this city. He died at his home in Toledo from paralysis, contracted in the War of the Rebellion, wherein he served with distinction.

Gen. Welles was born at Cleveland, Ohio, July 3, 1840. He went to Toledo in 1859, and was one of the first to volunteer when Lincoln asked for 75,000 men to maintain the Union. He enlisted as private in Company G, Fourteenth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was promoted to a lieutenancy shortly afterward.

He rose from the ranks rapidly, and the end of the war saw him a colonel of volunteers. He was made a brevet brigadier general. He was in all the battles of the Army of the Tennessee, and was one of those with Sherman in his famous march from Atlanta to the sea.

After the war, Gen. Welles went back to Toledo, and there engaged in the grain shipping business, in partnership with W. A. Colton. Shortly afterward he was appointed assessor of internal revenue by President Grant, and held the post until the office was abolished.

In Duluth Gen. Welles was a very popular man. He was a valuable secretary of the board of trade during an important period of its existence, and was beloved by all the members. He was very courteous in manner, and a man of fine ability. He resigned because of ill health, and the members regretted his loss very much.

Much of Gen. Welles' life was spent in Toledo, and he had resided there continuously for the past few years. After the war he suffered paralytic attacks, which three years ago made him take to his bed, never to get up again for any length of time.

He was an enthusiastic member of the G. A. R., and the Toledo posts of that organization took a prominent part in the funeral services. Gen. Welles leaves a wife, two sons, William and George, and two brothers and sisters, who live at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

BOY CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR

Had Climbed on Top of Lift Unknown to Operator.

While riding on top of the freight elevator in the building of the Aroma Coffee company at 128 West Michigan street, Tony Runca, a young Italian boy employed by the Western Union company, received injuries which may result fatally.

The boy was off duty at the time, and had gone into the building for reasons known only to himself. In a spirit of adventure he climbed on to the top framework of the elevator, while it was on the floor beneath him, and he was not seen by the operator. When the elevator ascended, the boy was caught between it and the beam at the top of the shaft.

His legs were terribly crushed before the elevator could be stopped.

The boy was taken to St. Mary's hospital. His parents live at 118 West Michigan street.

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYE TRIES TO END HIS LIFE.

New York, May 9.—Jacob Luckstone, chief clerk in the register department of the general postoffice, and for eighteen years an employe there, tried to kill himself last night in the postoffice building under extraordinary circumstances. The postoffice inspectors yesterday had been given orders to find where $2,000 bills, sent to the First National bank of Tallahassee, Fla., had gone. The inspectors kept nine postal clerks, including Luckstone, for eight hours in a room in the federal building, after telling them that they would not be released until information of the money was forthcoming. Luckstone said he was weak from hunger, entered another room by the excuse, and tried to end his life by cutting his throat and wrists. He did not severely injure himself, and was arrested. The Chemical National bank is the loser through the disappearance of the money.

FIVE BEST ARE NAMED

Pupils Who Will Appear on Commencement Night Are Selected.

Literary and Oratorical Ability Determined the Successful Ones.

This morning in chapel, Principal Smith announced the names of the fortunate ones who will have the honor of delivering their essays on commencement night, Friday, June 8. They are:

Elsie Crassweller.
Arthur Dunning.
Nellie Gamble.
Florence Howe.
Freeman Randall.

This list represents not only the best literary ability, as delivery was also taken into consideration in making the decision. This is the second year this system has been used to decide upon those who take part in the commencement night program. Before last year it was customary for the honor students to deliver essays, regardless of oratorical and literary ability, and it often happened that those who had the highest averages were entirely without talent in these lines.

Now standing has absolutely nothing to do with the decision, and the program is fixed simply in accordance with the abilities of the aspirants for honors. Mr. Neal and Miss Mogford of the English department divided the essays between them, and each selected six and the final decision was left to Mr. Smith.

Miss Crassweller wrote on "The Red Cross Society," Arthur Dunning on "The Independent Man," and Miss Gamble wrote a story. Miss Howe's essay was on "Elizabeth Barret Browning," and Freeman Randall wrote on "Graft in the Public Service."

THE LID GOES ON AT BEMIDJI

Gamblers Given Hour's Notice to Remove Paraphernalia.

Bemidji, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gambling is at an end in Bemidji, according to a statement made by Mayor A. A. Carter, on Tuesday, and judging from the action taken, his honor is in earnest, and no more will the little roulette ball, the "hosses" and the trap table be a part of the paraphernalia of the thirty odd saloons doing business in this city. Mayor Carter issued an order forbidding the operation of gambling devices of any sort in the city, and immediately thereafter Chief of Police Bailey visited the saloons and saw that the order was carried out. The chief, under orders from the mayor, gave the gamblers one hour's notice in which to remove all roulette wheels, tub games and poker tables, and warned all concerned that if the orders were not carried out to the letter, the paraphernalia would be seized and carried away. The fourteen places in which gambling has been carried on complied with the order. The mayor says, regarding his action: "You may quote me as saying that I have decided to close up gambling in Bemidji, and to close it for good. Further than this, I have nothing to say." And the lid is on.

The city prisoners who are serving sentences of various length of time have been put to work cleaning the boulevard along the lake shore.

The saloon license of Mrs. Fannie Meyers has been revoked by the city council, and the saloon and hotel kept in connection with the bar have been closed. This place was where Emma Davids died a week or so ago, under peculiar circumstances, and as the general reputation of the place was bad, radical action was taken by the council to rid the community of an undesirable joint.

A handcar was blown up by a stick of dynamite, yesterday morning, at a point on the Great Northern tracks, four miles east of Bemidji. The section crew was aboard the car when it struck the explosive, which wrecked the car, and Harold Swanson, a member of the crew, was quite badly injured.

A reconciliation between a runaway wife and her pursuing husband was effected here yesterday, after a rather stormy session between the couple. A Mr. Sutherland of Thief River Falls came here, and after looking about the town, found his wife living in a house in the outskirts of town. He claimed that the woman had run away from her home, and he was desirous of getting her back. The woman at first refused to return, but after a session with Chief of Police Bailey, who took her before Judge Pendergast, she paid a fine of $5 and costs and was taken to the train by her "lord and master."

SNOW STORM AT ALBERT LEA.

Albert Lea, Minn., May 9.—A heavy snow storm the 8th of May is not as common in Minnesota as in some places, but Albert Lea was treated to such a luxury yesterday morning, the snow following a heavy thunder storm." The ground was covered with snow and the temperature dropped suddenly to fur overcoat proportions. Fruit and tender garden vegetables sufered severely.

SPARTA VILLAGE NOT TO BE MOVED

Business Men Are Satisfied With the Present Location.

Sparta, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The citizens of Sparta have become very much amused as well as disgusted with the frequently published stories about the moving of this village. The facts are that there is no more indication of the town being moved at this time than there was two years ago. About every ten days an Eveleth correspondent, evidently short of "stuff," moves Sparta and moves it to or near Eveleth, and adds that the citizens of Sparta would have no serious objection to being moved to Eveleth. The Herald correspondent has taken the trouble to talk with ten of the most prominent citizens and business men on the subject. The universal answer to questions put as to moving was: "We are well satisfied with the present location, but if we move at all it will not be one inch nearer Eveleth, unless the parties that are interested in moving want to buy us outright. Then they can move the buildings to Eveleth or any other point they see fit." The Eveleth correspondent took occasion to state that Eveleth could get along without Sparta people, although they would welcome some of the citizens. The feeling is mutual. Sparta can get along very well without Eveleth, while the citizens feel that should the mining company decide to actually move the town in one night they would be awakened and notified to this effect.

One of the most enjoyable and successful entertainments by local talent was the one given by the public school children in village hall last Friday evening, under the direction of Prof. A. V. Jones and his assistants. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity, there being barely standing room. Boys and girls from 5 up to 15 years took part and acted their parts beyond all expectations. Fond parents fairly became hysterical when they recognized their little ones taking part in the various drills, dialogues and speeches, which they delivered much better than the parents could have done themselves. The climax was reached when twelve little boys, all under 8, who attended Miss Whalen's room, marched on the stage dressed as colored men with flashy costumes and high plug hats and sang, "Old Kentucky Home." The crowd cheered until the noise became deafening. The citizens of Sparta have always been proud of their schools and their able instructors, but this was beyond an expectations.

AN OIL PROTEGE FLAYS PRESIDENT

Chancellor Day of Syracuse Talks of Anarchism and Roosevelt.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 9.—Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse university has issued a statement violently attacking President Roosevelt for his recent utterances against the Standard Oil trust, and, incidentally, berating W. R. Hearst, the press, Thomas W. Lawson, the magazine "muck-rakers," Wall street, congress and the public generally.

The chancellor's warm proclamation will naturally be ranked with his address in which he eulogized John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company, patrons of Syracuse university, and heatedly declared the term "tainted money" all "tommyrot."

In his latest statement the chancellor says:

"The amazing blunder is in the chief executive of this great nation attacking the business interests, judges and persons, in proclamations to congress and in interviews for the daily press. It is so unconstitutional and in violation of such sacred individual rights that it cannot be continued with safety in our country.

"There are two general forms of anarchism. The late practices of our president are more dangerous than these two forms. That is the form of anarchism for which William R. Hearst is harmless in comparison with that which takes on the forms of our institutions and laws and does unlawful, unjust and tyrannous things officially. Hearst can do little because his cloven foot instantly is seen whenever he steps, but anarchism clothed with official authority is covert, deceptive and perilous in the extreme. The press and people, who applaud it in the official form, shudder at it as Hearstism.

"The president of the United States has positively no right, constitutionally or morally, to attack corporate business or private business by name, or courts or judges who decide cases in opposition to his views. There are regularly constituted methods of process in our country, national and state.

"The senate made an amazing blunder in applauding the ex parte, passionate appeal upon the incomplete, immature, unproven report from a young man who has been seriously discredited in a previous work of a similar kind. How will it affect the great business interests of the country, now victims of the Wall street bears, frenzied magazine writers and advertisers, if the president of the United States is to bear the markets and railway and manufacturing properties by an excited cry of alarm over the undigested, unverified and untrue reports of criminal practice by these corporations?

"I have no financial interest in the Standard Oil, or the sugar trust, or the great railways, but an intimate acquaintance with some of their managers forces me to the conviction that the president has been deceived."

Why take a dozen of things to cure that cough? Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar allays the congestion, stops that tickling, drives the cold out through your bowels. Sold by all druggists.

FATAL AUTO COLLISION

Rapid Running Machine Bumps Into Street Car, Killing One.

Cleveland, May 9.—As a result of a collision between an automobile and a street car, at Scoville and Woodlawn avenues, just before midnight, R. B. Robertson is dead, John Chambers and H. Bonne and another person, whose identity is unknown as yet, are seriously injured, and may die.

The dead man, and those who were injured, were in the automobile, which carried six men. The machine was going at a high rate of speed, and crashed into a street car which was standing at the corner. The machine was wrecked. No one on the street car was hurt. The accident, it is supposed, was caused by the chauffeur's losing control of the automobile.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Secretary Metcalf, of the department of commerce and labor, returned to Washington Tuesday from San Francisco. At the cabinet meeting he discussed the situation with the president and his fellow members.

A tornado accompanied by an electrical storm did $10,000 damage at Ann Arbor, Mich., Tuesday. The Methodist church steeple was struck by lightning and burned. Most of the wind damage was in the valley of Allen's creek, the Cornwell coal sheds suffering heavily.

The Sunday school class of L. Miles, a prominent manufacturer and Republican leader of Akron, O., left for a week's visit in Washington Tuesday night, sixty strong, to be the guests of Senator Dick. A person whose identity was not revealed, presented $2,000 to pay the expenses of the trip.

Sam Sims, a negro, who on Sunday morning killed the horse upon which Constable Lamar Hendricks, who was attempting to arrest him, was riding, was taken from his captor Monday night and lynched near the public road about six miles west of Jackson, Miss.

A message was received at the navy department Tuesday from Rear Admiral Harrington, commanding the navy yard at Norfolk, saying that the battleship Rhode Island, which ran aground off York Spit Saturday, is now lying off Yorktown uninjured.

RUSSIAN WOLF HOUND

Chicago, May 9.—President Edward Tilden of the Chicago board of education, a monster Russian wolf hound, a United States rural mail carrier, a butcher, liveryman, town marshal and most of the Chicagoans who own property around Lake Delavan have figured in a queer sensation. It all comes from the antics of a slim-legged, sharp-nosed, long-tailed creature that Mr. Tilden took up to his lake farm in Wisconsin and there turned loose.

The dog is now in restraint in the hands of Town Marshal Davis of Delavan, but all of the townspeople are in fear that he will slip his leash and eat up the few remaining poodles that he has left alive in the township, for within the last week he has thrashed every dog from a 9-ounce terrier to the weightiest mastiff that has been unlucky enough to get in his way.

All the "sports" in the town and the country are marveling at his fighting prowess, but the owners of valuable dog flesh that he has whipped want to dynamite him.

Orliff is the name of the dog. He fell out with Mr. Tilden's farm people the day he arrived. The next thing he did was to escape. Then he turned up at the home of W. C. Weeks, Mr. Tilden's brother-in-law, in Delavan. He at once picked a fuss with Mr. Weeks' hunting dog and promptly was penned up in the stable, when he emitted a series of howls that split the weather boarding, and he was given a chance to leave.

He chose to follow Harry Lillibridge, a rural mail carrier, who was starting out on a 25-mile route. This route leads around the lake, where Chicagoans keep their blooded dogs. Lillibridge says that each of these high-priced animals challenged the Russian hound, and each in turn was glad to skulk into the handiest hiding place.

POWER FOR FARMERS.

Motors Will Operate Anything From Pump to Thresher.

Mondovi, Wis., May 9.—Only a few minor details of the bargain remain to be agreed uuon when our local electric light plant will go out of business as an independent plant, as A. D. Alt, proprietor, and the stockholders of the Durand Electric Light & Power company are considering the proposition of furnishing this city with current from Eau Galle, twenty-five miles west of Durand. The Durand company has for a number of years obtained their power from this source and have much more power than they can possibly use. Mr. Alt is also considering giving continuous service night and day and will do so if there is large enough demand for power to run machinery in the city and surrounding country. Many of our leading farmers between Mondovi and Durand will throw out their present powers, in the form of gasoline or steam engines and horsepowers, wind mills, etc., and will supplant them by electric motors, which will be the ideal power for all work from running a pump to a thrashing machine.

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, postmaster at Riverton, Iowa, nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For twenty years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters; which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." Sure cure for Billiousness, Neuralgia, Weakness and all Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At all drug stores. 50 cents.

Tulla Brothers Prove Alibi.

George and Jacob Tulla, who were indicted for assault in the second degree, were acquited yesterday afternoon after a trial lasting a few hours. They were charged with striking John Saari with a hammer and cutting him with a knife during a rumpus at Sparta on the evening of April 8 last. The Tulla brothers set up an alibi, claiming that at the time Saari received his wounds they were dissipating in another part of the town.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has cured so many cases that seemed almost beyond the reach of medicine, that people ask, Why?

An examination of our well-known formula from which Hood's Sarsaparilla is and always has been carefully and scientifically prepared, confirms the fact that it contains those well-known and valuable medicinal ingredients, which, when intelligently combined and properly administered, are sure to bring about good results.

It is the properly balanced proportion, combination and process in combining those ingredients known to have specific action upon the blood, stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, which make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar to itself and enable it to produce results unequaled by any similar medicine. It cures when others fail. Give it a trial.

THE ULTIMATE DULUTH.

While people are talking of beautifying Duluth, it might be said in passing that the plan of the Commercial club, to have a comprehensive system of building a greater and more beautiful Duluth arranged by a professional engineer, seems to be very much worth while.

The idea is to have an expert come to Duluth and look the field over carefully, and then plan out the ultimate Duluth as he thinks it should be from his viewpoint of artistic effect and utility. He would point out where the parks should be, where roadways should run, and would, in general, adapt to the natural conditions prevailing here an artistic plan of a great city, with ample parks and boulevards and other man-made adornments of the scheme of nature.

With this plan in hand, Duuth, as it grew, could expand upon the lines laid down therein. This is the modern way of building a city. In the old days they built cities just as they happened to find it convenient. The result, in many cases, was straggling masses of homely city blocks, and when attempts were made to arrange them upon anything like artistic lines infinite difficulties and enormous expenses were encountered. In Duluth, which has only fairly started, the work could be done much more easily, and with a plan schemed out by an expert it would be comparatively simple, with all the natural advantages at hand, to make a great and beautiful city.

Washington, which will ultimately be the most beautiful city in the world, and which today is excelled in attractiveness by few, was laid out by the French engineer L'Enfant, and the city's growth has followed his scheme closely. San Francisco had, not long before the earthquake, prepared a scheme for making an orderly and sightly city, and now that the community has been practically destroyed it will be rebuilt upon the lines laid down by the engineer Burnham, who devised the plan. Cleveland is also being built according to this system, and with valuable and charming effect.

The Commercial club has requested the park board to ascertain the cost of making such a plan for Duluth, and of course something depends upon the result of this inquiry. As the park board's resources are not large, and the demands upon its funds are very large, it is not proposed to ask the board to stand this expense. Instead the club plans to raise the money among the public-spirited citizens of Duluth.

This city has such unparalleled natural advantages that it seems a shame not to take advantage of them by building the city in keeping with their attractions, and the plan suggested seems to be the only feasible way of making the most of them.

PROGRESS IS GROWTH.

The attitude of certain amiable friends of the railroads is pretty well illustrated by a comment in the New York Globe on the railroad rate regulation measure. The Globe pleads against any sort of concession by the railroads, saying that a taste of public control will only whet the public appetite for more.

"But their appetites grow the more they are fed," says the Globe; "and it is by no means unlikely that a successful Hepburn bill this session means pressure for a La Follette bill at the next. Recognize the principle that public authority may fix some rates, and it is an easy jump to the proposition that public authority may fix all rates."

An easy jump? Decidedly easy. The Herald knows, because it made it long ago. It is foolish to attempt to question the right of the people, through their government, to fix all rates if they want to. That does not mean that they can compel a railroad to accept rates that are so low that it amounts to confiscation, though the people's might could even make that right if it wished. But the railroads are public highways, just as much as any county road, and the mere fact that they have carelessly been allowed to come into private ownership does not alter the fact that the government has the right to control them in all things, and to make them serve the people fairly and honestly.

It is true that the appetite for justice grows by what it feeds upon. When man first began to dimly realize that it was not necessary for him to wear the shackles of king, prince and potentate, his first demands for liberty were modest indeed. He hardly dared ask for much of anything, but he did ask for a little, and when he got it his appetite for freedom grew, and it is still growing and will continue to grow until it is satisfied.

The same thing is true of the relations of the people with the railroads. They are not asking very much now, but they will never be satisfied until they get complete justice, even if they have to own the railroads to get it. While it is true that the Hepburn bill is but a step, and that it will breed a desire for still better things, it is also true that if congress refuses the relief now asked for, the demands will grow until the next measure pressed by the public will be something much more radical, perhaps more radical than the time is yet ripe for. The better policy on the part of the railroads would be to concede the modest things asked for now, else they may have to concede a little later much more than they will find comfortable.

STATE DEVELOPMENT.

Development of Northern Minnesota, which has been the favorite game of the north country press for several years, has spread out now until it covers the state, and "state development" is the cry. That is good. It cannot spread too far. It cannot get into too many political platforms, nor can there be too many candidates and newspapers supporting it.

State development includes development of Northern Minnesota, since it is most in need of development, but it has many other aspects. For instance, it has lately been discovered that while Minnesota makes the best butter in the world, Eastern dealers put Eastern labels on it, so its fame is circumscribed. There is now in prospect a campaign to give Minnesota butter the fame it deserves.

In Northern Minnesota development means drainage of state swamp lands, the sale of state lands, and better roads. In other parts of the state it means the development of local industries. There is not a part of the state that is not susceptible of development; not a county whose promises and possibilities are not greater than its achievements. There is much to do, and it is fine to see how rapidly the spirit that is going to do it is growing.

Advertising must be the keynote of the campaign. We have advantages and openings and opportunities. We must let the people in other states know about them. To do that we must advertise. California gained her immense tourist trade and a high stage of development solely through judicious advertising. Canada is crowding her vacant lands with settlers and tillers of the soil, and she is doing it by persistent and intelligent advertising. Minnesota must do the same thing.

Five years ago New Jersey officially recognized the advantages of advertising her resources by issuing an industrial directory wherein is set forth such information regarding her towns as is likely to be required by capitalists seeking favorable locations for manufacturing plants. This directory is issued annually, but its worth is limited because few people know it exists, or if they do know of its existence, they do not know how to get it. Advertising in the newspapers and magazines must be used to supplement such efforts, or they will be of no use.

By an intelligent, systematic, organized effort, Minnesota could double her population and wealth in ten years. By draining her swamp lands, appropriating generously for road work, gathering up information about suitable sites for factories and new enterprises, and then by advertising her opportunities to the world, she could make herself bigger and better and busier.

PRESIDENT AND TARIFF.

It is reported that the president will send to congress, shortly before its adjournment, a message on the tariff.

What this message is going to be nobody seems to know, though plenty have been prompt to hazard guesses upon it. All seem to be agreed that he will favor tariff revision, because his attitude has always been that of a revisionist, though in his solicitude for the fate of the railroad rate regulation measure he did enter into an agreement with the standpatters to let the tariff alone at the present session of congress.

One guess is that the president will declare that there is a general demand for tariff revision, and indicate his purpose of calling a special session immediately after the close of the next short session, for the consideration of tariff legislation.

The short session begins next December and ends March 4, 1907, nearly a year hence. The congress that will be called in special session, if this guess is correct, will not be the present congress, but the next, the sixtieth. That congress will be materially different from this one. The fifty-ninth congress is clearly controlled by the standpat element of the Republican party, and it is not at all unlikely that the next congress—at least the next house—will not be controlled by Republicans at all. It is certain that the enormous Republican majority in the house will be cut down materially, and many Republicans believe that it will be wiped out altogether.

The senate will not be Democratic, however, unless there should be a landslide which the Democratic party, in its present disorganized and unsettled condition, is hardly in a position to arrange. The turning of the house to the Democratic side will not be so much a reaction to Democracy as a revolt from standpat Republicanism.

Again, there is every probability that standpat congressmen of the Republican faith will be rejected by their party this year in large numbers, and progressive Republicans nominated in their places. This alone can save the house to Republicanism. If enough progressive Republicans are nominated, replacing standpat Republicans, their party may retain the house. If the standpat Republicans are renominated, the house is pretty nearly certain to go Democratic.

But at any rate, the outlook for some form of tariff revision in the next congress is excellent, which is some comfort, for the present congress appears to be too much devoted to the gods of standpatism and trust protection to do much of anything of substantial benefit to the people. At present the Republican organization is in a rut of excuses on the tariff question. The long session is a bad time for tariff revision, because it is on the eve of an election. The short session is a bad time for revision, because there is no time to give it due consideration. Unfortunately, there are no other sessions except special ones, and if the president calls such a gathering it offers tangible hope of relief.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The Indian's love for jewelry and ornaments is well known," said F. N. Lang of Ardmore, I. T., at the Spalding, "but I sometimes believe members of the tribes down in our part of the country have others of the race beaten when it comes to the foolish expenditure of money for ornaments and otherwise.

"It is a great fad in the territory to have gold teeth. An Indian who hasn't from two to four or five gold front teeth or plated front teeth, has no social position at all. The Indian as a rule has perfectly good teeth until he reaches a very old age, but this fact does not prevent their paying a visit to the dentist. They go to him and ask that gold teeth be placed over the others, and while some of the dentists refuse to do this, others accede to the request, and charge a fancy price for the job. After that the redskin smiles at every opportunity, and some of them disclose to view a veritable gold mine in so doing.

"Some of the best stories of Indian extravagance come from the territory. There was the man who paid $200 for a wooden horse he saw displayed before a harness-maker's shop, taking the thing home and putting it in his front yard. The purchase of pianos and organs is an ordinary occurance. Like as not the instruments are left on the porch for all time when their owner gets them home.

"The agents having in charge the distribution of Indian funds are wise to the weaknesses of their wards, and now refuse to give out large sums at one time. While I was at Ardmore a squaw by the name of Lucy came into the agency one day and asked for $15. The man in charge had been giving her money intsead of her husband because the latter used it in buying liquor instead of food. Lucy said she wanted to pay a $5 debt and that with the remainder she desired to purchase household necessities.

"The money was given her, and in two or three days she was back again. The agent knew $10 worth of provisions had not been eaten up in that short time, and asked what she had done with the money. After hesitating a while she admitted that all of the bill had gone to pay the fees of a merry-go-round man. Lucy and half a dozen children had climbed on the gaily-painted wooden horses and ridden round and round $10 worth, and then gone home hungery, for there were no provisions in the house."

"Cobalt, way up in Canada, near Hudson's bay, is almost the newest thing in mining camps on the American continent," said E. Roberg of Chicago at the St. Louis. "I just came down from there a short time ago. Silver is the ore that is drawing hundreds of men into this northern region. There certainly is a lot of silver through the district. Some immensely rich fields have been discovered and are being worked, although development work has barely begun. The country is still being prospected, and probably a lot of rich discoveries will yet be made.

"Cobalt is a typical mining town. To a fellow from the United States the accommodations seem pretty poor. The hotels are of the sort that he wouldn't look at back home, and the food set before him is something fierce. The sheets on the beds were probably clean when the hotels opened a few months ago, but don't believe they have been changed since. About all one gets to eat is pea soup and sour bread, a combination that appeals to the Frenchmen that swarm over the camp, but that is hardly of the sort to tickle the palates of the Americans. Then they give you a black tea that doesn't taste exactly right. In a few days I got so I could eat scarcely anything, and was glad enough to get out of the country. To make matters worse, the water is not exactly right either.

"Cobalt has grown rapidly, and will be quite a town within a few months' time. New buildings are springing up, and they are being occupied as fast as they are erected."

"If I am up in this part of the country during the summer, when the excursion boats are running, I am going to make the trip up the St. Louis river to Fond du Lac," said T. C. Osborne of St. Paul at the McKay. "I boarded the steamer Newsboy one summer morning two years ago, down here at the foot of Fifth avenue, having nothing better to do, and was surprised at the amount of satisfaction I got out of my half dollar. It really is a pretty ride up the river, and I know of no more pleasant way to spend a Sunday than to make it, provided the weather is all right.

"I knew the head of the Lakes was a good place for taking rides on the water, but didn't suppose any so pretty as up the St. Louis river were afforded. I decided then to try some of the other excursions, but have never gotten around to it. Some time I am going up the north shore to Two Harbors on one of the Sunday excursions, and it is my ambition to spend a week fishing at Isle Royale. I have never been down there. They say it is well worth the trip. I see no reason why the island shouldn't become quite a famous summer resort, if it has all the attractions claimed for it, and I guess there is no doubt on that score."

The Bar.

The saloon is sometimes called a bar, that's true—
A bar to Heaven, a door to hell;
Whoever named it, named it well.
A bar to manliness and wealth,
A door to want and broken health.
A bar to honor, pride and fame,
A door to sin, and grief and shame.
A bar to hope, a bar to prayer,
A door to darkness and despair.
A bar to honored, useful life,
A door to brawling, senseless strife.
A bar to all that's true and brave,
A door to every drunkard's grave.
A bar to joys that home imparts,
A door to tears and aching hearts.
A bar to Heaven, a door to hell,
Whoever named it, named it well.

THE WEATHER.

The departure of the northeast wind, which took place last night, was a very joyful event. This morning the west wind was blowing freshly, the sky was cloudless and the sun shone merrily. A little later scattering clouds came up, but they were neither alarming nor disturbing. However, the weather man expects the winds to become easterly tomorrow, though warmer weather is indicated. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 deg. and the highest yesterday was 46 deg. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"The movement of the Lake Michigan low pressure area to Lake Ontario caused light rains in the lake region, Upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys and New England states. The northwestern high pressure has moved its center to Eastern Kansas, attended by cooler weather in the Middle Mississippi valley and light to heavy frosts in the western lake region, Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys, but temperatures have begun to rise throughout the entire Northwest, due to the influence of a disturbance developing over Alberta. This latter condition will cause a further rise in temperature in this locality tonight and Thursday, attended by partly cloudy weather."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, May 9.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday: Duluth, Superior and Vicinity: Fair weather tonight and Thursday with rising temperature and variable winds, becoming easterly.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 9.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Thursday: Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Thursday. Possibly light frost tonight. Slowly rising temperature.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Thursday. Rising temperature.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Crookston Times: Minnesota's income for April was $400,000. How would you like that? But its expenses were $500,000; how would you like that?

Hutchinson Leader: The fact that the house of representatives has continued that ancient graft, the free seed distribution, in the bill passed last Tuesday, indicates that the United States senate is not the only branch of the federal government open to suspicion.

Virginia Virginian: The tariff on lumber is no longer an issue in this country. The price is now regulated by the law of supply and demand, and the supply is so limited and the demand so great that the price grows faster than mushrooms.

Virginia Enterprise: While the rich man may say he was happier when he was poor he continues to put in all his spare moments in the endeavor to get richer.

Red Wing Republican: It is currently reported that John D. Rockefeller is sorry he voted for Roosevelt.

Ely Miner: All the country papers from the southern part of the state are expressing themselves as pleased with the location of the state convention in Duluth, and from all accounts a large delegation will be in attendance. "Seeing Duluth" will be a lesson many of the delegation will never forget. A trip to the prosperous range towns would further strengthen St. Louis county in the estimation of the southern delegates.

Crookston Times: Taft has been sent to the bench and the other presidential batters have higher hopes of being able to make a home run.

Breckenridge Gazette: Somebody has started a boom for Gen. Frederick Funston for president in 1908. How would Jadam Bede do for a running mate?

Northfield News: The great and burning question is, are the railroads subject to the government, or in practice, is not the government and are not the people subject to the railroads? We cannot know too soon where we stand.

Walker Pilot: With so many candidates for governor in this state, it will be strange if some toes are not stepped upon. And a man who has been walked over is a very poor candidate for the harmony column.

Appleton Press: Senator Platt of New York, who was the indirect if not the direct cause of President Garfield's assassination, says he has had honor enough and does not wish another term as United States senator. The state of New York is to be congratulated.

Conscience.

Life: The business conscience and the Christian conscience are often confounded, owing, it is likely, to the fact that both are what may be termed modern conveniences. They exhibit marked differences, however, when closely scrutinized.

For instance, nothing touches the Christian conscience like misgovernment in heathen countries, while the business conscience rises to its highest frenzy of protest only when that Populists propose some way of repudiating debts which doesn't give the banks a rake-off. That is to say, while the business conscience, on the one hand, is the breath in the nostrils of high finance, the Christian conscience, on the other hand, is what makes world politics respectable. This distinction between them is further illustrated in the persons whom they particularly won't stand for, namely, in the case of Christian conscience, Abdul Hamid, and, in the case of the business conscience, William Jennings Bryan.

The conscience which should distinguish between right and wrong, and obligate a man to choose the former and shun the latter, the conscience, in other words, which would make monkeys of us all, this we have outgrown. In a primitive state of society, perhaps, when plenty was approximately enough, such things might be, but now that every man's high purpose is to be rich further beyond the dreams of avarice than the next man, a conscience of that sort would be right in the way.

Deduction By Analogy.

American Spectator: "Mamma, I'se got a stomach ache," said Nellie Bly, 6 years old.

"That's because you've been without lunch. It's because your stomach is empty. You would feel better if you had something in it."

That afternoon the pastor called, and, in the course of conversation, remarked that he had been suffering all day with a very severe headache.

"That's because it is empty," said Nellie. "You'd feel much better if you had something in it."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

D. Clark of Rice's Point, has moved with his family to Barnum, where he intends to remain for the summer.

W. G. Crawshaw has disposed of his drug store to a gentleman from Mankato, who will open it again about June 1. Mr. Crawshaw will make Pennsylvania his future home.

W. J. Seymour of Tacoma, has arrived in the city. He heard so much talk about Duluth's prosperity even way out on the Pacific coast that he concluded to come and look over the city, and possibly locate.

O. P. Stearns to J. F. Stearns, lot 11, block 2, Banning & Ray's subdivision, $650.

J. Howard Nixon to Maud Timlin, part lots 13 and 15, West First street, First division, $2,100.

Mayor Sutphin, Chief of Police Doran, Jay Anderson and others went to St. Paul to witness the first league game of baseball played by the Duluth club there. Duluth won, the score standing 14 to 7.

McDonald, the Duluth pugilist, says he is not afraid of Patsy Cardiff and he is anxious to have that celebrity attempt to knock him out.

Indian Agent Gregory is over from Ashland and will take the first boat for Two Harbors, whence he will go to Tower on official business.

D. T. Wade, Samuel S. Page and Morgan R. Kavanaugh of New York are looking over Duluth realty with a view to investment.

Mrs. McLeod was expected to arrive today on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Ensign. She is a daughter of Dr. Burd Aitkins and her husband is general manager of the Utica, Ithaca & Elmira railroad.

John Burns, Jr., the 16-year-old son of John Burns of Fourth street, was severely injured last evening. He was turning a switch on the trestle at the Northwestern Fuel Company's dock, when he missed his footing and fell to the dock below, a distance of twenty-five feet, being rendered unconscious.

R. W. Seager has concluded arrangements with C. C. Way, an experienced banker and real estate operator, and his son, Thomas A. Way, secretary of the Minneapolis Benefit association, to join him in business here.

ECHOES OF HARMONY.

Stillwater Gazette: There are several Republican newspapers indulging in left-handed compliments to aspiring candidates for governor, that are not conducive to harmony. Let the entries get away, a fair start and no crowding the pole horse; then the best one will be in the lead when the wire is reached.

Cloquet Independent: Bob Dunn, for a dead 'un, is certainly a corpse of great and growing influence. Some people won't stay killed and Bob is one of them. That he will wield a potent influence at the Republican state convention is apparent and that means confusion to the Minneapolis gang of political parasites and their friends.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: A few foolish ones who ran the Minnesota G. O. P. engine off the track two years ago think they have the exclusive right to select the next engineer. Now wouldn't that make Dick O'Connor smile?

Princeton Union: A report from Minneapolis says that Mount Vansant is again in a state of eruption. The correspondent is surely in error, for the guide book classifies Vansant with the volcanoes which are extinct.

Warren Register: Several Minnesota papers are saying that Jacobson must be given the Republican nomination, or Johnson will be re-elected. That isn't the proper spirit for any paper calling itself Republican to manifest at this time. The party is bigger than Jacobson or any other candidate or bunch of candidates that can be chosen. Jacobson would make a strong candidate, but he is not the only pebble on the beach.

Crookston Times: Those of us who are still insisting that our own particular choice for governor is the only man who can be elected, evidently did not learn our lesson two years ago.

Princeton Union: The people of Miller, S. D., are greatly perturbed over the peculiar antics of the artesian wells there, says a dispatch says that the phenomenon consists of "the throwing of mud and stones, indistinct mutterings and hot and cold spouting." This reads to us like a chapter from the proceedings of the insurgents in the last Minnesota state campaign.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Hon. R. C. Dunn is beginning to have a clear understanding of the political situation. In the last issue of the Princeton Union, he well says:

"If the traitors are permitted to control the Duluth convention, it does not require much of a prophet to foretell the outcome at the polls next November. Loyal Republicans will not be dictated to by hirelings and traitors."

That is the truth, forcibly stated. Two years ago the corporation hirelings and traitors to the Republican party did things at the state convention, and the loyal Republicans of the state refused to accept their dictation. There is just as much loyalty in the party today as there was two years ago. These corporation hirelings and traitors are now busy trying to prevent the nomination of J. F. Jacobson. Mr. Dunn can serve his party well by helping nominate this friend of the people.

Battle Lake Review: It would be a miracle indeed if war can be averted in the Minnesota wing of the Republican party this spring. Candidates for governor are looming up in every direction, and each has his element of strength. Profiting by past experience, the level-headed men of the party are trying to avoid a calamity, but it looks as though a dark horse would have to be nominated to avoid friction. It may be necessary to nominate Bob Dunn in the interest of harmony.

Who Was the Loser?

Kansas City Journal: A banker going home for his dinner saw a $10 bill on the curbstone. He picked it up and took the number home in order to find the owner. While at home his wife remarked that the butcher had sent a bill amounting to $10. The only money he had with him was the bill he had found, which he gave to her and she paid the butcher. The butcher paid it to the farmer for a calf and the farmer paid it to a washwoman, and she, owing the banker a note of $10, went to the bank and paid the note. The banker recognized the bill as the one he had found, and which, up to that time, had paid $50 of debt. On careful investigation he discovered that the bill was counterfeit. Now, will some of our friends tell us what has been lost in this transaction, and by whom?

Seeds and Fences.

New York Sun: When the house committee on agriculture adopted the motion of one of its expert members, the Hon. William W. Cocks of Long Island, to strike out and down the appropriation for free seeds, we made the distressingly safe bet of 40 to 1—a small package of government turnip seed to two of the Hon. Bourke Cockran's speeches—that the house would overrule the committee. The Democratic members of the committee voted solidly for free seeds, the Republican members solidly against free seeds. Evidently free seeds were a necessity of the government honestly administered. When the hour came the house overwhelmed the Republican conspirators against an honest yeomanry, its country's pride. What else was to be expected, with the congressional elections only a little more than six months away? The good old pieces were spouted on the virtues of the sturdy farmer. More and more he ceases to speed the plough and speeds the devil wagon instead, but eloquence is conservative. Looking over the palpitating pages of our valued contemporary, the Congressional Record, what sound comes to our ears? Surely this is declamation day in the Sumphville high school, and the Congressional Record is but a dogeared school "Speaker," with one of Mr. Beadle's dime novels lying perdu in the bowels of it.

What Mr. Towne Did.

Lincoln State Journal: Charley Towne promised to do something when he got back to Washington, and he has. He has kept very still.

Miss Fowler's Mishap.

Grindstone, S. D., Bee: Miss Fowler, the accomplished cook at the Fowler Inn, had quite an accident last week. She baked a batch of biscuits which weighed less than a pound each.

SMILING LINES.

Washington Star: "We must all be capable of some sort of sacrifice," said the philosopher.

"Well," answered Mr. Van Root, "a sacrifice is all right in its place. But I prefer a line drive over second base."

Harper's Bazar: Steward—Did you ring, sir?

Traveler—Yes, steward, I—I rang.

Steward—Anything I can bring you, sir?

Traveler—Y-yes, st-steward. Bub-bring me a sandwich if you have one, or an island—anything, steward, so I-lul-long as it's solid. If you can't, sus-sink the ship.

Brooklyn Eagle: The Bashful—Ah! I am so happy. I wouldn't let myself even hope that you would accept me.

The Girl—Well, you see, a fortune-teller told me yesterday that my second marriage would make me happy and wealthy, and you know, of course, I had to get my first marriage over with.

Cleveland Leader: Man—Do you think I'd better ask your father for your hand this morning?

Girl—No. Wait until this evening when he has his slippers on.

Detroit Free Press: "These street car seats are awfully uncomfortable, aren't they?" said the first passenger.

"Mine is," said No. 2. "There's an awfully pretty girl standing in front of me, and I'm too tired to get up."

Philadelphia Press: "Good morning," said the piano stool. "By the way, I observed that you started to smoke last night when Miss Yerner was entertaining Mr. Sloman."

"Yes," replied the parlor lamp. "I saw she was waiting for an excuse to turn me down."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: An easy way to get popular with a man is to tell him he is.

The more times you can swear off in a week the easier it becomes.

A girl is pretty sure she is in love even when she doesn't know who it is.

A woman will always believe you like her if you pretend to believe she doesn't like you.

Written On the Chicago Fire.

Men said at vespers: "All is well!"
In one wild night the city fell;
Fell shrines of prayer and marts of gain
Before the fiery hurricane.

On threescore spires had sunset shone,
Where ghastly sunrise shone on none.
Men clasped each other's hands and said:
"The City of the West is dead."

Brave hearts who fought, in slow retreat,
The fiends of fire from street to street,
Turned, powerless, to the blinding glare,
The dumb defiance of despair.

A sudden impulse thrilled each wire
That signaled round that sea of fire;
Swift words of cheer, warm heart-throbs came;
In tears of pity died the flame!

From East, from West, from South and North,
The messages of hope shot forth,
And underneath the severing wave,
The world, full-handed, reached to save.

Fair seemed the old; but fairer still
The new, the dreary void shall fill
With dearer homes than those o'erthrown,
For love shall lay each cornerstone.

Rise, stricken city! from thee throw
The ashen sackcloth of thy woe;
And build, as to Amphion's strain,
To songs of cheer thy walls again!

How shriveled in thy hot distress
The primal sin of selfishness!
How instant rose, to take thy part,
The angel in the human heart!

Ah, not in vain the flames that tossed
The Christ again has preached through thee
The Gospel of Humanity!

Then lift once more thy towers on high,
And fret with spires the western sky,
To tell that God is yet with us,
And love is still miraculous!
—WHITTIER.

Turn On the Light.

Baltimore American: No honest public officer need fear the attack of newspapers, magazines or book scoring, and, instead of kicking at the press, he should be glad to court, and even defy, investigation and publicity. No man or party in this nation can muzzle the press for one day, and those who attempt suppression of investigation will be mashed. Turn on the X-rays and let us see the inside workings of the political skeletons. Who's who?

You Must!

If you're not a politician,
From the public view you slip.
You must be one to get a chance
To show your statesmanship.

—Would Be Considered Bargains at $35.00.

A New York maker of high rank can be thanked for a most unusual opportunity to purchase the newest Eton suits at a third under their real value.

This maker, whose productions are seen in many Eastern stores, makes it a point not to carry any surplus stock, and when his orders are filled, he naturally prefers to sell, at these low figures, away from home. There were three other Western buyers who were eager to share the 250 suits, but we secured the first choice. They took the remainder.

All are beautiful Eton styles, but varied in material, color and detail of trimming. If you have planned to spend $35.00 for a suit—don't. Instead, see these suits at $25.00 and judge them by any $35.00 suits you have seen in Duluth.

Also a few Suits at $12.50 and $15, worth $18 and $20

Dress and Wash Goods.

Folks with materials to buy for spring and summer dresses will find some splendid bargains tomorrow.

TROUBLE FEARED
When the Miners Are Evicted From Company's Houses Saturday.

Pittsburg, May 9.—The armed guard has been increased at the Harwick mine of the Allegheny Coal company, in anticipation of trouble, next Saturday, when the striking miners are evicted from the company houses. No violence has been shown as yet, but the company's officials fear an outbreak at any time. Groups of strikers are constantly congregating on the streets, non-union miners are insulted, and the feeling is ugly.

The order to move followed the refusal of the miners to accept the terms offered by the company.

So far but one family of the seventy-five still remaining at Harwick have obeyed the eviction decree.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

FIVE ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

London, May 9.—A dispatch to the Central News from Berlin says that five anarchists, charged with high treason, have been arrested at Urville, near Metz. The men had explosives in their possession and a quantity of dynamite when found, near the imperial palace, where Emperor William is expected to arrive tomorrow.

WILL TELL OF ROME'S RUINS
Rev. T. B. Barratt of Norway to Lecture Thursday Evening.

Tomorrow evening at the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church, corner of Twenty-first avenue west and First street, Rev. T. B. Barratt of Christiania, Norway, will deliver a lecture in the English language on "My Tour to Rome." In the course of which he will tell of the ancient ruins there, describing the Catacombs and many other places famous in history.

Rev. Barratt is a man of much prominence in his own country for, although he was born in England, he is a Norwegian and has made his home in Norway for thirty-three years. His father was a miner and he started out to follow that profession himself, being a mining engineer at the outset of his career. Later he entered the ministry and was at Oxford college in England for a time. In Christiania he is a member of the municipal board and one of the electors who chooses the members of the storthing, the Norwegian senate.

REV. T. B. BARRATT
Of Christiania, Norway.

Rev. Barratt is also a cultured musician. He sings and plays and tomorrow evening will give exhibitions of his musical talent, as well as lecturing. For a time he studied with Grieg, the noted Danish composer.

The visit of Rev. Barratt to this country is for the purpose of working among his countrymen and all to whom his cause may appeal in the interest of the Christiania city mission of which he is the founder and which is to be the coronation gift of the people to Norway. By direction of his majesty, King Haakon VII, the place is to bear the name "Haakonsborgen," mean the Castle of Haakon. Although Rev. Barratt is associated with the Methodist church the mission has been founded on such a broad basis that anybody who is a Christian may become a member of the movement.

During his stay here Rev. Barratt has visited the Mesaba range and having been a mining engineer early in his life it was a most interesting trip for him.

To Get More Strength from Your Food

You know, it's not how much we Eat, but how we Digest that makes us Strong, or Brainy, or Successful.

When the Bowels are filled with undigested food we may be a great deal worse off than if we were half starved for want of Food.

Because, food that stays too long in the Bowels decays there, just as if it stayed too long in the open air.

* * *

Well, when food decays in the Bowels, through delayed and overdue action, what happens?

The millions of little Suction Pumps that line the Bowels and Intestines then draw Poison from the decayed Food, instead of the Nourishment they were intended to draw.

This Poison gets into the blood and, in time, spreads all over the body, unless the Cause of Constipation is promptly removed.

That Cause of Constipation is Weak, or Lazy, Bowel Muscles.

* * *

When your Bowel-Muscles grow flabby they need Exercise to strengthen them—not "Physic" to pamper them.

Its name is "CASCARETS," and its price is Ten Cents a box.

Cascarets act like Exercise on the Muscles of the Bowels, and make them stronger every time they force these Muscles to act naturally.

The stronger these Muscles propel the food, the stronger does the friction of the food act on the flow of Digestive Juices.

The more of these Juices that act on food, the more Nutriment does that food turn into, and the richer nourishment do the little Suction Pumps of the Intestines draw out of it.

It needs only one Cascaret at a time to stimulate all the Bowel-Muscles enough, without purging, discomfort or loss of nutrition.

So, if you want the same natural action that a six-mile walk in the country would give you, (without the weariness) take one Cascaret at a time, with intervals between, till you reach the exact condition you desire.

* * *

One Cascaret at a time will properly cleanse a foul Breath, or Coated Tongue, thus proving clearly its ready, steady, sure, but mild and effective action.

A coming Headache can be warded off, in short order, by a single Cascaret, and the cause removed.

Heartburn, Gas-belching, Acid-risings in the throat, and Colicky feeling are sure signs of Bowel trouble from food poisons, and should be dealt with promptly.

One Cascaret will stop the coming trouble, move on the Bowel load, and free the Digestive Juices, if that one Cascaret is taken as soon as the first signs are noticed.

* * *

Don't fail to carry the Vest Pocket Cascaret Box with you constantly.

All Druggists sell them—over ten million boxes a year, for six years past.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

AFTER THE DRUG TRUST
United States Asks Injunction Against Druggists' Associations.
Are Charged With Violations of Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Washington, May 9.—The attorney general made public the following statement:

"The government has today filed in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Indiana a petition for an injunction against certain stores, corporations and individuals, comprising what is commonly known as "the drug trust of the United States." The parties defendant specifically named in the bill have voluntarily combined together to control the price at which proprietary medicines and drugs shall be sold to the consumer through the retail druggists, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The parties to the combination include the Proprietary Association of America, the National Wholesale Druggists' association, and the National Association of Retail Druggists.

Continuing, the statement says:

"The Proprietary Association of America is an unincorporated association of 90 per cent of all manufacturers and proprietaries of patent medicines, drugs and proprietary articles in the United States. The various members of this association reside in and do business in the various states, and the products in which they deal are manufactured in the several states of the union and sold and distributed from the states in which they are manufactured, to wholesale and retail druggists throughout the United States.

"The National Wholesale Druggists association is also an unincorporated association composed of nearly all the wholesale druggists in the United States. These wholesale druggists act as the distributing agents for the manufacturers and proprietaries of patent medicines, chemicals, drugs and proprietary articles, purchasing the same direct from the manufacturers and supplying the same to the retail druggists in various parts of the country.

"The National Association of Retail Drugists is also an unincorporated association, composed of delegates from affiliated local associations of retail druggists located in the various states of the United States and it is claimed that this association through its affiliations has a membership of about 20,000 or nearly all the retail druggists in the United States, who purchase and sell patent medicines, chemicals, drugs and proprietary articles to the consumer.

"Each of these three associations have officers who are charged with the transactions of the business of the respective associations. These officers are made party defendant to the suit as well as certain other individuals, firms and corporations who are members of the respective associations."

The bill charges in substance, "that these associations, their officers, delegates and members are all engaged in a common undertaking, to-wit, the business of manufacturing, buying and selling patent medicines and drugs and proprietary articles throughout the United States. That these associations and the members thereof, have entered into a conspiracy to arbitrarily fix and regulate the price at which such articles shall be sold to the consumer and that they have established rules and regulations to enforce such unlawful agreement by restricting the purchase and sale of such commodities to those members of the several associations who shall live up to and observe the rules and regulations thus arbitrarily prescribed by the respective associations.

"There is but one ultimate object of the conspiracy, viz: To fix the price which shall be observed by all retail druggists in selling to the consumer the various commodities manufactured by the several members of the proprietary association. The plan by which such object is effected is in brief as follows:

"No retail druggist can obtain goods from a wholesale druggist or a manufacturer of a proprietary medicine unless such retail druggist becomes a member of the National Association of Retail Druggists, and in order to become such member he must agree to observe the established price as which such proprietary medicines shall be sold to the consumer.

"If such retail druggist, after becoming a member of the National Association of Retail Druggists, cuts prices in the sale of such articles to the consumer, he is immediately placed upon the list of what is known as "aggressive cutters," and thereafter such retail druggist is unable to obtain from any manufacturer who is a member of the proprietary association, or from any other wholesale druggist who is a member of the Wholesale Druggists' association, any of the commodities which may be manufactured and sold by them or any of them.

"Henry W. Loder of Philadelphia brought suit recently in the United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania under section 7 of the Sherman anti-trust act, against these three associations. The evidence produced upon the trial for the purpose of showing the existence of a conspiracy established a case substantially the same as that charged in the government's bill. Judge Holland, before whom that case was tried, within his charge to the jury held that such evidence was sufficient to show a combination in restraint of trade within a meaning of the first section of the federal anti-trust act. The plaintiff obtained a substantial verdict.

"For several months prior to the trial of the Loder case in Philadelphia the department of justice had been engaged in the investigation of this conspiracy. The attorney general having reached the conclusion that the combination is one prohibited by the terms of the Sherman anti-trust act, has directed the district attorney for the district of Indiana to file this bill.

"An injunction is prayed for prohibiting these associations from acting in concert for the purpose of maintaining prices, and the individuals, firms and corporations who are members of the respective associations from acting together for the purpose of maintaining uniform prices to the consumers throughout the United States."

RUNNING SORES COVERED LIMBS
Little Girl's Obstinate Case of Eczema — Instantaneous Relief By Cuticura—Little Boy's Hands and Arms Also Were a Mass of Torturing Sores — Grateful Mother Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES A HOUSEHOLD STANDBY"

"In reply to your letter I write you my experience, and you are privileged to use it as you see fit. Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. When we commenced with the Cuticura Remedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

"In July of this year a little boy in our family poisoned his hands and arms with poison oak, and in twenty-four hours his hands and arms were a mass of torturing sores. We used only the Cuticura Remedies, washing his hands and arms with the Cuticura Soap, and anointed them with the Cuticura Ointment, and then gave him the Cuticura Resolvent. In about three weeks his hands and arms healed up; so we have lots of cause for feeling grateful for the Cuticura Remedies. We find that the Cuticura Remedies are a valuable household standby, living as we do twelve miles from a doctor, and where it costs from twenty to twenty-five dollars to come up on the mountain. Respectfully, Mrs. Lizzie Vincent Thomas, Fairmount, Walden's Ridge, Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures the most distressing cases when all else fails. Potter Drug & Chem. ENGELS LOSES DAMAGE CASE
Duluth Street Railway Company Wins Personal Injury Action.

A verdict was returned this morning in favor of the Duluth Street Railway company in the personal injury case brought against it by Henry Engels. The jury reached a verdict after deliberating about an hour.

Engels was struck by a car at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street last summer and suffered a broken leg and numerous bruises. While he was recovering at the hospital he signed a release to the company from all claims of damages for a consideration said to have been $400. After the settlement was made, he started an action against the company for $10,000 damages through his attorney, J. De LaMotte.

In Judge Cant's room the adverse possession case of Peters against Tackaberry was argued to the jury this morning.

The trial of the action of J. A. Robert against W. G. Green was started in Judge Ensign's room this morning. Mr. Robert is a building contractor and erected a house for Mr. Green in 1903. He claims that he was paid the contract price, with the exception of $50, which Mr. Green has refused to turn over.

Mr. Green admits that the balance of the contract price has not been paid, and claims that the contractor did not live up to the plans and specifications and, for that reason, the building is defective. He claims that he stood willing to pay the full amount of the contract price when the contractor made his work right. Mr. Green sets up counter claims of damages resulting from alleged defective work that amount to more than the sum sued for by Robert.

The contractor is represented by C. F. Hopkins, and Mr. Green by John H. Norton.

CROMWELL OBSTINATE
Persistently Refuses to Answer Questions of Senator Morgan.

Washington, May 9.—"I will not reply to hypothetical questions. If you will be good enough to ask a question that is pertinent, I will answer it," thus William Nelson Cromwell, counsel for the Panama Canal company and in that capacity an official of the United States, defied Senator Morgan in his quest for information as to the meaning of a letter written by Cromwell to the late Secretary Hay concerning the original concession to the Panama Canal company. After replying that the letter spoke for itself and that questions relating to that transaction were not germane to the inquiry of the senate committee on interoceanic canal, Mr. Cromwell met a rapid-fire of questions with prompt refusals to answer.

The inquiry promised to be a resumption of the sparring match between Senator Morgan and Mr. Cromwell, the reports of which attracted national attention several weeks ago. The session today was attended by Senator Millard, chairman; Dryden, Knox, Morgan and Taliafero.

Mr. Morgan found it impracticable to pursue an examination which concerned the relations of Mr. Cromwell to the old Panama Canal company, and he turned to inquiries regarding the services of Cromwell to the Panama railroad. The witness said he was first invited to become a director of the road by Mr. Bayard, formerly commercial agent of the old canal company in the United States, to represent him, but in order to become a bona fide director he had purchased fourteen shares of stock.

The examination for some time then continued on the subject of bond issues and sales, Mr. Cromwell answering these questions freely, but his recollection on the subject was limited. He said that in the books of the executive committee which Mr. Morgan had before him, were recorded all of the transactions.

CHARGED WITH CUTTING MAN

Edward Hill, who was indicted with John Loytty for assault in the second degree, was tried before Judge Dibell today. The state claims that Hill and Loytty assaulted August Koho in a saloon on Lake avenue south some weeks ago and cut him in both arms. One of the wounds is said to be serious enough to keep Koho in the hospital up to the present time. He appeared as a witness this morning, but was unable to even lift his right arm. It is alleged that an artery was cut by either Hill or Loytty during the scuffle, Koho becoming unconscious from loss of blood before assistance reached him.

According to Koho's story, he entered the saloon with some of his relatives and friends and there saw Hill, Loytty and several of their friends. He alleges that he had never before seen either of his assailants and that they started a quarrel and went after him with knives before he knew what had happened. Koho's testimony was taken through an interpreter.

Hill, who is defended by J. D. Holmes, is a young man of small stature and very bushy hair, which is parted with great exactness in the center. He smiles at the proceedings and hardly seems to comprehend the gravity of his position.

One of the state's witnesses is a brother of Hill, the accused. The witness is serving a 15-day sentence for contempt of court, having failed to appear before the grand jury in answer to a summons.

One of the state's exhibits is a bloody knife that was picked up from the floor of the saloon after the trouble and which is said to belong to either Hill or Loytty. It is alleged that both of the accused had knives out and that one of them was seen to put his knife back in his pocket after the cutting.

COPPER STOCKS HOLD STEADY
Prices About Unchanged at Close—Bisbees Are Somewhat Weaker.

Copper stocks were steady today. North Butte opened at $92.50, declined to $91, rallied to $93.12½ and closed at $92.50 bid and $92.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $105.37½, sold as low as $104.50, rallied to $106.62½ and closed at $105.75 bid and $105.87½ asked.

Anaconda opened at $251, sold as low as $248.75, advanced to $257 and closed at $254.50 bid. Butte Coalition sold at $34 and $33.62½, closing at $33.50 bid and $34 asked. United Copper opened at $61.25, advanced to $61.37½ and closed at $61 bid and $61.50 asked.

The Bisbees had a weaker tone at the close. Calumet & Pittsburg sold at $30 and $29.25 and closed weaker at $29 asked. Penn-Arizona closed at $15 asked, and Junction sold at $26.25 and $26 and closed at $25.75 asked. Lake Superior & Pittsburg sold at $35.25 and closed at $34 bid and $34.75 asked and Pittsburg & Duluth closed at $19 bid and $19.75 asked, after selling at $20.12½.

Black Mountain was inactive and closed at $11 bid, Warren at $16 asked, Keweenaw at $11 asked, Copper Queen of Idaho at $2 bid and $2.25 asked and Ophir Tunnel at 18 cents bid and 20 cents asked, after selling at 20 cents. The sales at that price were small.

Mrs. Sargent Praises Duffy's
The dear old lady was given up to die by the family doctor, but she is now strong and well, without an ache or pain, thanks to the great life-giving tonic-stimulant, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

MRS. SARGENT.

"I have not had a doctor since my sickness and I think Duffy's is the best medicine I can take for my old age, and for anyone else, young or old."

"Before using your Pure Malt Whiskey I was sick four springs running, and our family doctor did not think I could live any time; but since using your Malt Whiskey I have not been sick a bed once, and am up and around and quite smart. I have not had a doctor since my sickness, and I think Duffy's is the best medicine that I can take in my old age, and for anyone else, young or old."

MRS LUCINDA SARGENT, Lynn Mass.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

has enabled hundreds of old men and women to pass the century mark and to enjoy the blessings of a healthy and vigorous old age. Duffy's is endorsed and recommended by ministers of the gospel and prescribed by doctors as the most nourishing, purest, health-giving tonic-stimulant and invigorator known to medicine. It purifies the blood, quickens the circulation, repairs and builds up the weak and decayed nerves and tissues, and keeps every organ of the body in a strong, healthy condition, so as to resist the attacks of disease.

It is absolutely free from fusel oil and is the only whiskey recognized by the government as a medicine.

Duffy's is the only positive cure and preventive of consumption, pneumonia, dyspepsia, indigestion, grip, malaria, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all bowel and stomach troubles.

BEWARE of dangerous imitations and substitutes. They are positively harmful and are sold for profit only by unscrupulous dealers. LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Life and Death of Walter Van Norman a Mystery.

Sault Ste. Marie—Walter Van Norman died Tuesday under mysterious circumstances at Goulais Bay, aged 40 years. The coroner is unable to determine what was the cause of death. Van Norman lived on a little farm and was found by his neighbors speechless and never regained his faculties. Nobody knows where he came from, and all efforts to trace his past are unavailing. He went to Goulais Bay several months ago and bought land and worked alone. He would never discuss his past, and all efforts to learn if he had relatives have been unavailing. He was well educated and had seen better days.

Calumet—Another step in the movement instituted a year ago by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company for the reforestration of its 1,000,000 acres of cutover lands, will be the establishment of a forest tree nursery at Coalwood, Alger county, this spring. The work is already under way, and within a few weeks there will be about four acres of two-year-old white pine seedlings under cultivation, as well as other varieties of forest trees transplanted from the Negaunee nursery of the company.

Assistant State Geologist Gordon, who has had charge of the Houghton station, has resigned to accept a position with the United States Steel corporation at Duluth.

That touch of human nature which is said to make the whole world kin is found among the miners here. Fred Jenkin has been brought from British Columbia to care for his brother, John Jenkin, on his trip to Cornwall, Eng., where it is hoped to have the latter's sight, destroyed by the explosion of a box of dynamite caps, restored. Subscriptions for his expenses were raised by his compatriots.

Euslid Dery, a young man of Menominee, became violently insane and was taken to jail for safekeeping. It is stated that he has lost his mind over a perpetual motion idea on which he had been working for some time. He thinks that some one is continually after him.

Paul Olson, aged 9 years, a son of John Olson of Wallace, Menominee county, was seriously injured while playing with dynamite caps. One of the caps exploded and the concussion carried away the ends of the thumb and finger on the left hand and lacerated and burned the remainder of the hand as well as the boy's face. The sufferer was taken to the Marinette hospital. It is thought that the remainder of the fingers on the hand can be saved, although the thumb and first finder were so badly mutilated that amputation was necessary.

Escanaba—Early Saturday morning Officer Beltzer of Escanaba was called down to one of the resorts on Thomas street, where a disturbance was being created by some of the inmates. In trying to restore peace and harmony on the street the officer was attacked by two women and called names by four others. He secured the services of Officer McCauley, and the six women were taken to the lockup, where they remained until taken before Justice Glaser. Two of the most aggressive ones were forced to pay fines and costs amounting to $30.35. The other four were each fined $15.35.

Mrs. James Pryal, at 210 North Sarah street, Escanaba, narrowly escaped fatal injury by placing in the cook stove a paper sack full of gun powder. Mrs. Pryal was cleaning her pantry and gathered together a number of paper bags containing different kinds of flour and cereals and threw them into the fire. There happened to be a sack containing powder in the lot and an explosion followed at once. The top of the stove was blown off and the fire scattered about the room. Neighbors came to the assistance and put out the flames. Mrs. Pryal was burned about the face, head and hands.

CUT OFF WITH DOLLAR, SHE'S HAPPY IN LOVE.

New York, May 9.—"I have no regrets. I married the man I loved. We are happy. We could not be more happy if my father had willed me all of his fortune instead of cutting me off with $1."

This is the philosophical manner in which Mrs. Fannie T. Rotham received the news that under the will of her father, who died last week, she will receive only $1 instead of her share in his estate of $250,000. John C. Snyder, the father, made his money in the rubber-tire business.

"Father would never become reconciled to my marriage," said Mrs. Rothman. "He did everything he could to prevent it, even to the extent of taking me for a trip around the world and leaving me in charge of relatives in California for two years. I shall not contest the will."

One fare plus $1 for the round trip, good going May 31st to June 9th, inclusive. Return limit by depositing ticket July 15th.

EFFECT NOT PERMANENT

Flutter in Stocks Will Not Injure the Country's Business.

Money Now Flowing From Europe Will Ease Conditions.

New York, May 9.—Here in the hotels clubs, banks and the offices of bankers and brokers the sole topic of discussion is stock market conditions and the cause of the decline in market values of the leading securities.

On Wednesday last the slump was very great and the comparison with the famous Northern Pacific panic was frequently made, but the losses are as yet not at all as great as in that memorable affair, nor so disastrous to so many people.

The oscillations, to use an earthquake phrase, have not been so violent nor so widespread as in the prior shakeup, but some of the influences which are powerful in raising or lowering prices in Wall street are firmly in favor of still lower prices, and will endeavor to bring them to what they term a sound and conservative valuation. These gentlemen have been in favor of lower prices for many months. Long prior to the disaster to San Francisco timidity was evinced and caution expressed by leading financiers and certain policies were inaugurated relative to loans that would surely demonstrate that the timidity and caution was well founded.

The country should remember that financiers and railway magnates are very frequently the same persons, and when not the same individual their interests may be identical or mutual Politically, legally and publicly, for the past year the strong financiers, the powerful railway authorities, the great corporation managers have not had their usual peace of mind, but have been seriously inconvenienced by inside disclosures and outside proposed limitations, controls and investigations.

The entire tendency of public thought, sentiment and action is to change of conditions and all of the proposed changes are destructive to the existing system, and some of them are regarded as positively dangerous to individual fortunes. With this display of unrest and dissatisfaction by the public it can readily be appreciated that it has been difficult for those in charge of great interests or of large financial institutions to calculate results as in former days. As the railway rate bill was discussed in congress and out of congress the public sentiment became less and less amenable to railway influence, less tractable and wider range was given to the discussion, other questions were interjected and the difficulties have continued to grow with every week, piling up mountain high, as regards great national economic questions. The men who control large sums of money desired information as to the future which they could not obtain, and many of them preferred to see a decline in values of stocks rather than invest upon an uncertainty.

The market was not held up by these people, and to add to the pressure came the destruction of San Francisco and the tremendous change in the business affairs of millions of people. It affected every individual of the 400,000 residing in that city; it demoralized the business of all the states of the Pacific slope for the time being, and as the tremors of nature were registered in Japan and Vienna, so the commercial and financial disturbances were recorded in every country and every large city of the world. The insurance companies, foreign and domestic, had to meet their great losses with the cash, and that cash had to come from Berlin, London, Paris and the Atlantic states of this country.

There has been the greatest shifting of actual cash in the last two weeks that this country ever experienced in the same length of time. With an import movement of more than $40,000,000 gold within three months, all drawn from Europe, it will take a few weeks for the foreign bankers to replace the actual coin, but by Aug. 1 Africa and Australia will more than do it, and Europe will have as much money as ever, and we will have the $40,000,000, plus fully $30,000,000 additional from Alaska and our nearby territories and states by that date.

There is nothing in this temporary disturbance in the money market and in Wall street that will injuriously affect, hamper or lessen the great volume of business throughout the country. On the contrary, when the funds to cover the insurance losses are disbursed in San Francisco, and then go into circulation, the general business of the country will at once feel the beneficial effects of the rapid increase of the currency. The per capita of circulation in the United States on May 1 was $32.22, the highest record the country ever attained.

The June 1 record will undoubtedly show a large gain on that of May 1, for many millions of dollars in gold are now on their way across the Atlantic, and other millions will follow them before the close of the present month. July and August will witness the arrival of new gold from Alaska and the Klondike, and the news from there is that Alaska will add fully $5,000,000 to the amount sent out in 1905. It can be predicted with mathematical certainty that each month from now to September will show an increase in the per capita circulation of money in the United States. That money will be busier than ever in our history, and its use and the results of its use will be confined to no one state or section of the country. For the next sixty days it will go steadily to California, but from there it will be sent to Oregon and Washington for lumber, to Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois for steel, to New England for the innumerable articles there manufactured, to New York for interest dues, for loans made, for freights and for purchases of merchandise.

Within thirty days the money market of the country will become normally quiet, but it will have a greater volume than ever before, and business will be correspondingly increased. The country will suffer nothing if stocks and securities go to 10, 20 or 50 per cent less than they are today. They represent only indebtedness, in many cases, "water," formed into evidences of value, and while individual owners suffer from reductions in price, if compelled to sell, the country, as a whole, suffers neither loss of currency nor the loss of the property the securities are supposed to represent. If weak owners are compelled to let go good securities, other parties buy them, so it is only a change of ownership in the certificates, with no change in location, extent or values of the properties themselves. The solid, substantial business interests of the country comprising the manufacturers, the merchants and the producers understand this much better than in past decades, and with good crops and easy money, this summer and fall business will move right along satisfactory to the masses of the people, and Wall street will soon recognize the steady earnestness of the country, and recover tone as far as values are concerned. Predictions of 8 per cent call money for June are freely made here.

STOP DRINKING!

Orrine Will Destroy all Desire for —Whiskey or Beer—A Guaranteed Cure.

Nearly every drinking man thinks that sometime he will quit. He often swears off, but can not resist the craving for drink, and the disease, for this is what it really is, becomes so firmly fixed that it cannot be cured without medical treatment.

A Michgan druggist, H. C. Coleman, has made a thorough study of the various cures for the liquor habit, and gives this as a result of his investigations: "Before taking the agency of Orrine, I went to considerable trouble to learn about it and became confident that it was a thoroughly honest preparation and put out by an honorable firm. I have sold it for years and can truthfully say that my confidence in it grows stronger the more I see of its results. I believe that any man who really desires to be cured of the liquor habit can cure himself with the help of Orrine and be rid of the bad effects which the habit has upon himself and family."

Orrine is in two forms, No. 1, the secret remedy which can be given without the knowledge of the patient; No. 2 for those who take the remedy of their own free will. A cure is absolutely guaranteed with either form of treatment. Write for free pamphlet on the cure of alcoholism to the Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. In every box is a registered guarantee which entitles you to a refund of your money if Orrine fails to effect a cure. The price of either form is $1 a box.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Teamster at Fargo Kept Family in Barn With Horses.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Living in a barn stall with horses on one side and cattle on the other is the condition in which the authorities found the family of Teamster Miller, when the case was reported by the neighbors.

Miller has not been working for some time. He says it is a case of rheumatism, but his neighbors say it is too much whisky. His wife and two small boys were compelled to live in a barn, under the most unsanitary conditions imaginable.

Pastor Graves of the Broadway Methodist church has arranged to give Fargoans an old-fashioned camp meeting this summer. The services will be held in a tent and conducted by Dr. Carradlen of St. Louis from June 15 to 25.

There were no drunks in the Fargo police court Monday as a result of Mayor Nye closing the lid in Moorhead.

The Fargo city council let contracts for repaving thirteen blocks on Broadway. Part of this will be cedar blocks and the rest creosoted blocks, both on concrete foundation. Bids were ordered for a dozen more blocks. Large sewer, water and sidewalk contracts were also let.

An investigation shows that Harry Spencer of St. Paul and the woman he has attempted to kill two or three times were married at Moorhead, Oct. 5, 1903. The bride gave her name as Elsie Ferry and her home as St. Louis. They stated to Clerk of Court Cubrey that they came to Moorhead to be married to get away from their friends. The ceremony was performed by Judge Sharp.

The fact that Mayor Nye of Moorhead put the lid down tight on Moorhead Sunday made things hard for some of the thirsty individuals on the Fargo side, but much easier for the police. Usually the Fargo police court is crowded with drunks on Monday. This week there were none and the only arrest was made late in the day, when a celebrant tried to make up for the enforced drouth Sunday.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Several years ago the auditor of Brule county left without the formality of a general leave-taking, and an examination of his books showed that they were in a badly muddled condition. Because he neglected to extend the state taxes on the records the state claimed $536 from Brule county. The matter has been one of correspondence between the county officials of Brule and the state auditor's office for some time, and recently the county officials agreed to pay the amount if the attorney general held it to be a valid claim. He has so held, and the county will pay.

Governor Elrod has appointed as game warden for Day county John Chapman of Webster. He has also commisioned as commissioner of deeds for South Dakota in Illinois Frank P. Crandon of Chicago.

It is not often that a holder of a notarial commission considers it incumbent upon himself to resign, but one man has done so, giving as his reason removal from the state. W. D. Holly, a former resident of McCook county, who has moved to Sacramento, Cal., has sent his resignation to the governor.

Watertown—Some excitement has been created in Codington county by the discovery of a good grade of petroleum two miles southwest of South Shore. The find was made on a section of wild land owned by one Doremus of Iowa, who recently purchased the tract of Dr. E. F. Harington of Watertown. While inspecting the land on the trip out, Doremus noticed a peculiar scum on the top of the water in a small creek. He spoke of it, but was assured it had been that way for years.

A few weeks later he again visited the farm and made a closer investigation of the "scum" on the creek. He found that it extended for a mile or so along the water, and that it came from a peculiar oily liquid which oozed out of the bank at certain points.

Believing it to be oil, he obtained the services of a local chemist, who visited the spot and found that small depressions along the creek were filled with crude oil. Dipped out these holes rapidly filled again with the oil, which seped out and spread over the water, forming the scum. In a few minutes several quarts of this oil were obtained from the surface of the ground.

Further investigations are to be made. It is believed that where the oil thus comes to the surface of the ground it will probably be found in paying quantities.

BRIDEGROOM HAD VISION OF DEATH

Moved by a Premonition, He Changed His Employment.

Red Lodge, Mont., May 9.—When Oscar Pantana secured the promise about thirty days ago of his sweetheart to marry him, and the two had fixed the wedding day and had planned a honeymoon trip to Finland, their native home, he appears to have had a premonition of death.

At any rate he went to the boss of the coal mine where he was employed and asked that he be given another job, as he did not want to take any chances of an accident befalling him on the eve of his marriage. Accordingly, he was given work above ground, being placed with a logging crew on the mountainside near Rock creek.

Fate, however, seems to have been against Pantana. Sunday, while the men were engaged in chuting logs down the flume into the creek, two of the logs became stuck and Pantana went into the flume in order to loosen the jam.

His companions working on the mountainside half a mile above him, heard him shout that all was right and started the logs down again. When they next looked down they saw that Pantana was not in his accustomed position. Fearing that an accident had happened they hastened down and found him lying by the side of the flume with his skull crushed.

They hastily summoned medical assistance and he was brought to the hospital at Red Lodge and an operation was performed. In spite of all that could be done, however, he died the same night.

There are two theories as to the cause of the accident. One is that he was struck on the head by a rapidly descending log; the other that in jumping from the flume he lost his balance, and, falling about six feet to the ground struck his head on a rock.

Don't be fooled and made to believe that rheumatism can be cured with local applications. Hollisters' Rocky Mountain Tea is the only positive cure for rheumatism. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

THRILLING STORY TOLD

Of the Dajo Fight by Officer Who Took Part.

Native Women Fought as Desperately as the Male Warriors.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 9.—A Manila newspaper just received in Pittsburg tells the story of the recent fight at Dajo between United States soldiers and the Moros. One of the officers who participated in the fight tells the story as follows:

The hill upon which the fight took place is in the shape of a cone, the top is quite flat and measures about 500 yards in diameter in one direction and 600 in another. There is a crater at the top which forms a huge basin. On the southern spur of the crest was erected one of the best fortified of the Moro forts, and it was there where the main attack was made against the stubborn resistance of the Moros.

There were 600 American troops against 600 Moros; this, of course, includes the women, who were as able fighters and just as dangerous as the men. They wore trousers the same as the men, and at a distance it was impossible to tell one from the other. The command was in charge of Col. Joseph W. Duncan, Sixth Infantry, and consisted of the following troops: Four companies Sixth Infantry, two companies Nineteenth Infantry, four troops Fourth Cavalry, the Twenty-eighth battery of field artillery, about a dozen bluejackets from the gunboat Pampanga and a detachment of forty-two constabulary. With the naval force there were two Colts' automatic guns, and the artillery had one Maxim.

There were three main trails up the mountain side, and the forces were divided into three columns, one under the command of Maj. Omar Bundy, Sixth Infantry; another under Capt. Tyree Rivers, Fourth Cavalry, and the third column was commanded by Capt. E. P. Lawton, Nineteenth Infantry. In the first fight soon after the ascent began Capt. Rivers was wounded and he was succeeded by Capt. Lewis M. Koeler, Fourth Cavalry. The trails were so steep that in many places ropes were required for the soldiers to pull themselves by. There were three main works of the enemy, with fifteen to twenty series of trenches, and the whole rim was barricaded with trenches.

On the morning of March 5 Maj. Bundy, with the constabulary detachment and two companies of the Sixteenth Infantry, worked themselves up the trail. They had to go single file and on their hands and feet, the trail was so narrow and precipitous. They were at the head of the column and bivouaced on the mountain side on the first night. Then Capt. Rivers' column worked its way up the slope, and Capt. E. P. Lawton, Nineteenth Inantry, came up the main slope. In Capt. Lawton's advance on the evening of March 6 he doubtless realized that he had got beyond the point where he was expected to be, and retraced his steps and camped at the bottom of the hill, awaiting orders. The orders for the assault were sent the night before, but they did not get to Capt. Lawton, so Maj. Bundy made the assault on the morning of March 7, and took the works at the top of that particular trail after about an hour's fighting. At the main stronghold on the southern spur of the mountain the troops managed to get under the parapet, and, with all the bravery and daring which could possibly be imagined, struggled and fought their way through the apertures of the parapets and encountered the enraged Moros in a hand-to-hand combat.

After a large portion of the men had gained their way to the entrance of this fort, the Moros threw in hand grenades, spears, krises and barongs which had deadly effect on our troops. Lieut. Johnson, who had charge of the signal station, made an attempt to get into one of these forts, and while he was climbing to the top of the fort he was shot just above the right lung, and was blown off the parapet by one of the grenades down a 30-foot embankment. This fall would have killed any ordinary men, but Lieut. Johnson when last seen was doing well.

Just before the crest was reached the men encountered a terrific fire through the bamboo tubes, but as cautions had previously been given the men regarding this, the soldiers took care to keep out of the range of these primitive but dangerous weapons, and but few were hurt from that source. During the struggle to gain the crest of the crater the Moros fought desperately, realizing that upon losing that advantage their resistance would be practically at an end.

Like a wild beast who is cornered, these Moros became maddened at this stage, and with desperate fanaticism jumped from the ridge of the crest over the steep cliffs on to the heads and shoulders of our men, cutting and slashing right and left with their murderous barongs.

Finally the machine guns, which had to be hoisted by means of ropes and block and tackle, were placed in position on the ridge, when bullets were pumped into the crater, killing everything in sight. Many of the Moros preferred "suicide," and three of the soldiers were killed thinking the Moros were dead. One hospital corps man was killed by a Moro man who was dressed like a woman.

The Moros were determined to fight to a finish, which was clearly demonstrated in the fact that during the first night's bivouac when they must have realized what their fate would be, not a man, woman or child attempted to escape. On the morning of the 8th the final fort was captured, and the fight was at an end. A number of times during the fight the Moros were given a chance to surrender, but they were determined to fight to the death.

The Moros who were killed were taken care of by their relatives, who were living not far away from the base of the hill; it was done quickly and without any outward sign of feeling or resentment.

BRIDEGROOM A BURGLER.

Paris, May 9.—A disguised burglar, who was about to marry the pretty daughter of a stock broker's clerk, was arrested at a feast preceding the wedding a few days ago, owing to the diligent inquiries of the bride-elect's cousin, who was himself in love with her. Henry Vouvray, the burglar, was a man of good appearance, and faultless manners. He became acquainted with Jeanne Davignon by meeting her father in a cafe and accepting an invitation to visit the Davignons' house. The family thought him charming, he became a regular visitor and it was arranged that he should marry Jeanne.

Jeanne's cousin, Gabriel Hormot, lived with the Davignons, and set to work to find out the antecedents of Henry Vouvray. At a dinner given by the Davignons to celebrate the signing of the marriage contract, Gabriel suddenly appeared with a pile of papers and a policeman.

"That man," he said, pointing at Vouvray, "is an 'Apache.' He is known to the police as the 'Knight of the Jemmy,' and by his friend instructing him how he was to commit several burglaries in this neighborhood."

The bride-elect fainted and Vouvray made a desperate effort to escape, overturning the feast table and all in his struggles. Ten minutes later he was marched off to jail.

MONTE CARLO'S WINNINGS.

Records Year With Profits of at Least $500,000.

Nice, May 9.—The Casino at Monte Carlo has had a record year. The bank's winnings amount to $500,000 more than last year.

The remarkable fact is that, notwithstanding that all this money has been lost by the public, so many of the public should be winners. Some never lose! True, it is seldom that visitors have the good fortune of the young Pole count, Jean Sobansky, who recently late in the evening won some $70,000, from which he made a large present to a lady who brought him luck.

Perhaps nothing amazes the novice more than to see a punter leave his pile of notes untouched on the table. The punter has won again, and the croupier picks up the notes and counts them deliberately, spreading out each note in front of him on the table—replaces them on the winning color, takes $2,400 from the packet on his right, and again counts solemnly $2,400 and throws them on top of the punter's packet.

Where is the punter? Why does he not take his money? He has actually gone to another table and is punting there also. Will he come back? No; and the deal goes on, and perhaps the pile is again increased by another $2,400.

WONDERFUL BUILDING.

England's New War Office Recently Built at Whitehall.

London, May 9.—The new war office in Whitehall, which has taken just six years to complete, is undoubtedly one of the most wonderful and up-to-date building in all London.

Magnificent and imposing as the exterior is, it gives but a small idea of the vast undertaking involved in its construction. Some interesting details showing the actual quantity of materials used in the building follow:

Ordinary bricks, 25,000,000.
Glazed bricks, 1,500,000.
Portland stone, 26,000 tons.
Lead, 1,500 tons.
Steel, 3,500 tons (used for floors, etc., the building not being of steel construction.)
Concrete, 35,000 cubic yards.
The immense size of the building is indicated by the fact that there are:
Six hundred rooms.
Two and one-half miles of corridors.
Seventeen miles of cornice.
Nine miles of chimney flues.
Seven acres of asphalt.
Fifty-four acres of plasterers' work.
One hundred miles of piping—heat, water, drains, covering for electric wires.
Four acres of mosaic paving in the corridors.
Seventeen hundred windows.
The circumference of the building is 1,500 feet, and the entire height from the concrete foundation to the top of the towers is 150 feet.

WHAT THE CURATE DID.

Escaped to Nearest Town on Account of Vesuvius Eruption.

Rome, May 9.—During the king's inspection of the village of Ottajano, the local curate was presented to his majesty, who asked him what he had done for his parishioners at the time of the greatest distress on account of the Vesuvius eruption. The curate naively replied that he had escaped to the nearest town.

The king became very red in the face, and, turning his back abruptly upon him, exclaimed: "Shame, shame! I do wish to hear anything from you. You have committed a gross dereliction of duty!"

SECOND SIGHT INCIDENT.

Young Woman on Deathbed Announced Death of Her Father.

London, May 9.—An unusually interesting instance of "second sight" has just been reported from Accrington, Lancashire. A young woman on her deathbed not only announced her father's death, but described the spot where his body lay, the fact of her father's death not being known to anybody at the time. The man in question was Isaac Marsden, 53 years old, who lived in Stevenson street, Accrington. His daughter, 25 years old, had been wasting away from consumption for some months. About a week ago Mr. Marsden disappeared from home under mysterious circumstances—that is, no reason was known for his going away, and nothing could be learned of his whereabouts. Miss Marsden was deeply distressed by the event. Finally she told those who were at her bedside that she had seen her father's form.

"You will find his body in the water at Aspen bridge, Oswaldstone," she said.

About an hour later Miss Marsden died. Mr. Marsden's body was found in the canal at the spot named by his daughter.

TO FERRET OUT CRIME

Experience in Berlin Shows That Trained Dogs Are Valuable.

Chicago Chief Thinks Conditions in This Country Are Different.

Chicago, May 9.—The recent remarkable exhibition of the effectiveness of police dogs as demonstrated in Berlin has attracted the attention of police officers throughout the country. It has been proved that in a large number of cases the sagacious animals are more effective than men and quite as intelligent.

The chief of police in Ghent, Belgium, says: "I find that my dogs are cheaper and more effective. Men get tired and their uniforms are a hindrance when running after an escaping thief. The dog possesses a fine sense of smell and hearing and can crawl noiselessly into places where man cannot go. Furthermore, they inspire an unaccountable fear in the heart of the evil-doer and greatly sustain the courage of a policeman. Theft has decreased 60 per cent since my dog service became properly organized."

Chief Collins of Chicago, when asked to give an opinion on the effectiveness of the new system, was inclined to be conservative. He thought conditions in this country were different.

"The great difference we are confronted with here," he said, "are the number and easy ways of escape our criminals have. The 'get way' game here, with our rapid transit and big country, is very different from abroad. It is almost impossible for criminals to escape in Italy, for instance, because of infrequent train service and the narrow boundaries of the country."

"But in the petty cases would dogs not be useful?"

"I should say the trouble would be that they would too often get the patrolmen into trouble by nailing the wrong man. A dog is apt to chase any running man and might make the mistake of attacking some innocent citizen."

"But at that he would not do more harm, would he, than the average policeman who will shoot late at night at any one who refuses to stop at his command."

"The policemen shoot only to frighten."

"And the dog would scarcely do more than that. They are trained not to bite."

But the chief was still sceptical, although he admitted that in suburban sections they might be useful.

"Dogs have been tried here and in many other parts of the country, but on the whole they have not proved especially valuable," he said.

But there are many chiefs of other cities who are studying the scheme with the posibility of adopting it.

The Berlin chief of police was led to adopt the system through a series of hold-ups and depredations in the suburbs such as not long ago terrorized the smaller places of Massachusetts. A gang of men corresponding to our yeggmen committed a number of more or less serious depredations. Owing to the small force and isolation of the houses they operated easily. In addition to this a number of petty holdups in the city proper, late at night, such as have been frequent in Boston, completely baffled the police. The chief found himself almost powerless to cope with the situation. It was then that he organized his force of dogs.

He began a systematic course of training, kindness being the one essential rule. By means of dummy figures, the dogs were encouraged to seize a man who might resemble in manner or dress an escaping thief. Great patience was necessary, played the cardinal principle was that the dogs must seize and hold their quarry without inflicting serious injury.

The first step was to teach them to hunt a hiding man, a trait that the dogs readily acquired. They were then taught to seize their quarry in the water, to save people from drowning and to overcome every possible obstacle in this task. Each animal is equipped with a steel collar armed with sharp spikes and experience has shown that no man, however powerful, can handle one of them barehanded. As to their sagacity outside of the things they have given proof that they are in many ways superior to the men.

Last spring there was a most atrocious murder in a remote village, Schlessing, and the local men telegraphed to Berlin for help. The chief sent on a couple of men and several dogs. Arriving there they could not find what seemed to be the least clue.

Another and more thorough examination of the house was made in the hope of discovering further proof. The search was rewarded by the finding of a small piece of blood-stained cloth, which had evidently been torn from the garments of the murderer. The dogs were at once allowed to smell of this, and were then taken to the jail. They whined about, but signified a wish to get outside again. The door was opened and they made a rush into the crowd of waiting villagers. In another second they had both pounced upon a white-faced and trembling apprentice. He fell to the ground in a faint, and when revived confessed to the crime.

But it is not only in the detection of these major crimess that these sagacious animals are helpful. They are the terror of the pickpockets and the hold-up men. A nimble-footed thief can outrun easily the average policeman. Even when the latter has the advantage of a gun he loses his man three times out of five. A quick turn around a corner, a jump into a doorway or up a flight of stairs and he is safe.

It has been proved that the mere knowledge that dogs are patrolling a street with the police has been sufficient to make all bad men give the locality a wide berth. Take away the chance of escape and even the worst men will think twice before snatching a pocketbook.

It is further asserted that the mere presence of these dogs adds to the courage of the policeman. In the company of a friend, as the dogs soon grow to be to the men to whom they are assigned, they venture anything. The long patrols in deserted sections of the city or in sections known to be bad lose their terror. There is no shirking of duty by the Berlin policeman.

YOUNG MACHINIST MEETS AWFUL DEATH.

Pittsburg, May 9.—Challoner Dickson, 27 years old, was cut to pieces by revolving shears at the McKeesport tube plant yesterday. Dickson was in charge of the machine and in some manner his hand became caught in the machinery. He attempted to draw it out but the shears slowly drew his hand deeper into the jaws of the machine. Before the machinery could be stopped Dickson had been dragged into contact with the shear blades. The machinery was finally stopped and the body was removed in fragments.

VESUVIUS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Naples, May 9.—Vesuvius is again showing considerable activity. Yesterday a dense column of smoke rose from the crater and spread like an umbrella accompanied by loud detonations and electrical discharges, which are especially noticeable from Resina. The main crater is discharging sand and cinders.

An English engineer, one Moser, ascended to within eighty yards of the crater, which now is 400 feet lower toward Resina, than it was before the recent eruption.

SPORTING MEN HELD PENDING INQUEST.

Sharon, Pa., May 9.—Constable William Sayres yesterday arrested Dave Skirboll, manager of the Nonpareil Athletic club, Referee Fred Ferinbaugh, Young Asberry, pugilist, Owen Zeigler of Youngstown, Tommy Feltz of Brooklyn, and Jimmy Dunn of New Castle, and they are being held pending the coroner's inquest into the case of Harry McCarthy, who died as the result of a six round fight with Young Asberry Monday night at South Sharon.

GLUE FACTORY WILL PREVENT BATHING.

Washington, May 9.—Echoes of the fight over the location of the naval training station on the Great Lakes were heard in the house yesterday when an item of $20,000 for that project was reached in the naval bill. Although more than an hour was used in discussion it successfully ran the gauntlet and remains in the bill.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, emphasized particularly that it was desired to locate the station on a beach suited for bathing. At the Lake Bluff site, which had been selected, he said, present conditions were such from the stench and pollution of the waters from a nearby glue factory that the sailors could not get down the bank to bathe and if they should, the water would be so sticky they could not swim.

MEDALS FOR DULUTHIANS.

Four Louisiana Purchase exposition medals will be distributed in Duluth by Thomas L. Hayes, secretary of the Minnesota state board of managers of the exhibition at the St. Louis fair.

One of these will go to the United States Steel corporation, for its exhibit of iron ore. High grade ores from every one of its working mines was exhibited at the fair.

W. J. Olcott, vice president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, will receive a gold medal for mineral recourses. It was largely through his efforts that an exhigition was made. Thomas F. Cole, president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, will receive a medal for his work as Mr. Olcott's collaborator. S. George Stevens will receive a medal for his models of the city of Duluth, the Fayal mines and others.

MADMAN IN A CHURCH.

Ordered Congregation Out of the Pews With a Rifle.

Geneva, May 6.—A dramatic incident occurred in the church of the little village of Horw, a few miles from Lucerne the other day. During the communion service a lunatic, who had escaped from an asylum in the vicinity, rushed into the building, and, leveling his rifle, ordered the congregation out of the church.

The people rushed behind the pews, pillars and choir, leaving their vicar, an old man, to face the madman. The courageous vicar approached the lunatic, and succeeded, after some time, in calming his anger, and taking away his rifle. The male members of the congregation subsequently conducted the madman to the asylum, whence his flight had not been noticed.

NO MORE CHILD LABOR.

No Board of Education Authorized to Issue Permits.

St. Paul, May 9.—Stringent prohibitions against child labor have been discovered in the new code and now no child under 14 years of age can be employed in a factory or workshop at any time and no child under 16 shall be employed at any time in any place or any occupation dangerous to life, health or morals. Under the old laws the same provisions were included but they were nullified by the section permitting such employments if permits were first obtained from the board of education.

Attorney General Young has rendered an opinion that no board of education can issue a permit which will tend to nullify these provisions. Steps will be taken to see that the provisions are carried out and it is expected that there will be a material decrease in child labor within a very short time.

FOOLED THE DOCTOR.

Tunis, May 9.—The physicians report a most remarkable experience in the case of a Frenchman who came to Tunis a strong, energetic man, and a few months afterward he became weak, worn and thin, the shadow of his former self. The Tunis doctors affirmed that he was suffering from tuberculosis, of which, indeed, he had all symptoms. The patient was finally examined by Dr. Mantel, who looked down his throat and saw what seemed to be a tumor at the back of the pharynx. It was nearly as large as the thumb of a man's hand. The doctor washed the supposed tumor with water in which boric acid was put, and sent the patient away until the following morning. When the man returned to the doctor, the latter again looked down his throat, and saw clearly that the tumor was a full grown leech. The horrible blood-sucker was, as the doctor says, bloated after a meal. Dr. Mantel carefully removed the leech, with an instrument, and the thing has been preserved in spirits.

A few days after the operation the man became quite cured, and is now himself again. He believes he drank the water containing the leech in an inn, near the ruins of Ed Djem. The water was so bad that he had to mix coffee with it. Dr. Mantel notes that this is the only case of the kind that has come under his observation, but medical history is full of instances of leeches living in men.

HAVE POLICE IN PARIS.

Keep an Eye on Bad Men for Czar and Sultan.

Paris, May 9.—One of the first results of M. Clemenceau being installed in the Place Beauvau as minister of the interior has been that the prefecture of police and the department de la surete generale (or detective department) have been ordered to break off all relations with the secret police of the Russian and Turkish governments in the French capital. For both the czar and the sultan keep a large and well equipped private police force in Paris. Their business is to keep an eye on Russian nihilists (for the Russian police anyone whose views do not square with those of the imperial government). The police in the pay of the Turkish embassy are expected to watch young Turks, Armenians, and other "dangerous" persons as the word "dangerous" is interpreted at the Yildiz kiosk. It need not be said that the means which two such irresponsible police bodies employ are reprehensible in the extreme, especially those in the pay of the sultan. The latter are recruited from the flotsam and jetsam of broken down Turkish officials, with here and there a dismissed employe of the French or Belgian police. When some two or three years ago France broke off diplomatic relations with France apropos of the quays question and the Turkish ambassador was given his passports, the government took advantage of the fact to ship the whole of the secret police, bag and baggage, across the frontier.

Since Munief Bay's return to Paris a few of these have returned and a fresh force has been recruited, just as precious rascals as their predecessors. To the credit of the French police it must be admitted that they furnished the Turkish secret police with as little assistance as possible; but since M. Clemenceau's circular they will cease to have any relations with them whatever. It will not be the same thing with the Russian secret police. On account of the alliance and for political reasons the Russian secret police had its grande et petits entres at the prefecture and the surete, and services were rendered by the French police of a more than doubtful kind.

A case in point recently came to light. M. Michail Aschinasi, a distinguished and well known writer, better known under his nom de plume of Michael Delines, being a man of culture, was naturally a political refugee. He had been on the staff of a paper in Odessa and had dared to write an article criticising some of the acts of the imperial government. The matter was reported to St. Petersburg and M. Aschinasi had to choose between exile and Siberia. He naturally chose exile and established himself in Paris, where he won a prominent place among the writers on Russian affairs. He had with him in Paris a young nephew who had been studying at the university. This fact alone served to bring him under the observation of the Russian police and, strange as it may appear, he has been subject to police hounding ever since.

HAS FOUR WIVES ALONG.

Exiled Ex-King of Dahomey on His Way to Blida.

Bordeaux, May 9.—The ex-king of Dahomey, Behanzin, has been here on his way to Algiers, where he will take up his residence in Blida. He is accompanied by his four wives, three daughters, his son and three grandchildren, all of whom have shared his exile. He came from Martinique in a small steamer, and was accommodated with a special suite of cabins.

The ex-king's traveling costumb is a black velvet cloak covered with mauve flowers. He wears a tam o'shanter cap. In one hand he carries a little ivory scepter, and in the other a silver mounted cigarholder as the insignia of royalty. He smokes forty cigars a day.

During his stay at Bordeaux the king did not go sightseeing as the French authorities declined to permit one of his wives to walk behind him, holding an immense sunshade over him, as required by the etiquette of the court of Dahomey.

DISCUSSION OVER SITE FOR COURTHOUSE LIVELY

Several Routine Matters Are Disposed of at Important Meeting.

With only four more days left in which to make an appeal from the award of the appraisers for the proposed courthouse site, the board of county commissioners took decisive action yesterday in the way of accepting the $136,900 award, by tabling a resolution directing the county auditor to take an immediate appeal.

The board then followed up its action by a resolution that $136,900 be appropriated from the county revenue fund to be used in paying the several persons who are entitled to the award, if no appeal is taken by the property owners. As soon as this money is paid over, the county will come into absolute title of the lots on First and Second streets at Fourth avenue west, that the county board and the courthouse commission have selected as a site for the new courthouse.

It was expected that the courthouse question would come up at the meeting yesterday in some form, so that Commissioner Kugler's resolution for an appeal from the award was not altogether a surprise. It gave the commissioners an opportunity to tell just where they stood in the matter and they made the best of it before killing the resolution.

"I am not going to vote for it," said Commissioner E. M. Patterson. "It means another hanging fire of the new courthouse and a lawsuit. The court appointed the appraisers. They were sworn to do their duty and so long as no taxpayer has seen fit to raise an objection, it seems that this resolution is out of place. Why need we get tangled up in another complication?"

"I don't believe in paying that price for the property," declared Commissioner Kugler in way of explanation of his resolution.

"I think it would be wise for us to appeal. We represent the taxpayers and I believe they feel as I do about it. If we are to go down town, let us build along business lines. We don't need the Second street lots to build a business block on. If we pay $136,900 for a site we won't get a courthouse in ten years. I have had people galore stop me on the street and advocate an appeal and advise a business block."

Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby called the board's attention to the award figures on the several lots and stated that about $95,000 of the total award is spread over the First street lots and the remainder over the Second street lots. He did not believe the lots could be separated without consent of the owners or unless the county takes them all and then sells what it does not need.

Mr. Crosby cited legal steps that have been taken under the special law for the condemnation of a courthouse site, and said that Saturday, May 12, was the last day for the filing of an appeal from the award. The assistant county attorney said he did not know of any steps being taken by any of the owners, although he had been told by one of the parties interested that he would appeal.

"I would suggest," said Mr. Crosby, "that unless there is some gross error or mistake on the part of the appraisers that the matter be permitted to rest as it is. The judgment of the jury is just as likely to be higher in prices than lower. Before a jury, the county might not receive the benefit of a doubt, as may have happened in other cases.

"If you think that a jury will fix a lower valuation, it is for you to say whether you want to appeal or not, but I want to say that the three men who acted as appraisers would be qualified witnesses for the property owners, as would all the other real estate men in town. If an appeal is taken, the case will not come on for trial before next September or October."

"I move that the resolution be tabled," said Commissioner Patterson. "I believe that the game has been blocked enough. We can't afford to wait any longer. This property may be higher. If we wait another year we may have to pay $25,000 more for it. We ought to have bought it two years ago."

"I second the motion to table, or to put it in the waste paper basket," said Commissioner Kauppi.

"I can see where we have put our feet in it," said Commissioner McInnis. "What people told us right along would happen, has come to pass. The move to put the courthouse down town was made to boom Duluth real estate, and we find this very situation confronting us now. I think myself that we have got to knuckle down to the situation. All I am troubled about now is whether we can get a permit to build a courthouse without being held up for a big price for it."

Commissioner McInnis' resignation to the situation caused the rest of the board considerable amusement.

"This delay will not be a bad thing," usrged Commissioner Kugler. "We will not be able to build at this time, anyway. It will take pretty nearly all that we have ahead to pay for the site. The delay don't cut any ice if we are going to pay that price for the site anyway."

"We can't build until we have a site," said Commissioner Kauppi. "We need this site. The board has decided to build down town. There is no use in backing up now. We ought to stand by our actions. I believe it is a good thing if we have raised the real estate prices in Duluth, for then we can get more taxes from the owners."

"I believe that the purpose of this resolution was to create a discussion," declared Commissioner Ryan. "For my part, I have heard several heavy taxpayers express themselves and the general sentiment is that this county should not let the matter of a few thousand dollars stand in the way of its object, that of a new courthouse. I think that Mr. Kugler should withdraw his resolution."

"I'll not do that," declared Commissioner Kugler.

The vote was then taken to table the resolution and it was passed by a vote of four to two, Commissioners Patterson, Kauppi, Ryan and Morcom voting affirmatively, and Commissioners Kugler and McInnis negatively. Commissioner Sundeen was not present as he is doing jury duty in the district court.

For the first time in several years, the county will undertake some road improvements by contract. A resolution introduced by Commissioner Kugler, and passed by the board, directs the county auditor to call for bids for the corduroying, grading and ditching, the placing of culverts and otherwise improving the Rice Lake road, the Howard and Gensen road and the Ryan road. Commissioner Kugler is authorized to employ an engineer to get out the plans and specifications. The bids will be opened at the meeting to be held June 7.

Following the appropriations out of the general road funds yesterday morning, for the various commissioner road districts, the board also passed resolutions in the afternoon making appropriations from the special road funds for certain roads in some of the districts. These were as follows:

Commissioner Ryan's district—An appropriation of $10,500 for improving the following named roads: Sturgeon Lake, $2,000; Lavelle, $2,000; Anderson, $1,000; Willow River, $800; Byrnes, $500; Tower and Itasca, $1,000; Lindstrom, $500; Edholm, $400; Morrison, $600; Morrison extension, $600; Town Line, $500; Eaton, $800.

Commissioner Kauppi's district—An appropriation of $7,450 to be used for improving the following named roads: Martz extension, $850; Swan Lake road south of Alborn, $600; bridge over Midway river on the Proctorknott road, $300; Swan Lake road at Floodwood, $800; Prairie Lake, $600; Lowry, $700; East Kelsey, $800; Haldin, $400; for fixing the approaches over the St. Louis river bridge at Floodwood, $600; for repairing a bridge over a creek on the Cloquet river road, $300; Swan Lake road from city limits to Cloquet river, $1,000; Schultz road, $500.

Commissioner Morcom's district—An appropriation of $7,500 to improve the following named roads: White Iron, $1,400; Burnside, $300; Tower and Ely, $1,000; Sherman, $800; Pike River in township 61-16, $600; Old Vermillion $200; Tower and Mesaba, $600; Tower and Itasca, $1,400; Crane Lake, $300; Wilcely, $600; Ashawa, $200.

County Superintendent of Schools S. W. Gilpin was instructed to employ an assistant for the remainder of the year at a monthly salary of $60.

* * *

The application of Frank Dugal for a liquor license to operate a saloon near Buhl was granted, Commissioners Morcom and Ryan voting against it.

* * *

The county attorney was directed to collect $1,000 from M. H. Schussler, of Floodwood, that amount having been pledged in part payment for the new bridge over the St. Louis river near that town.

* * *

The board has awarded the following contracts. For papering and painting several of the rooms and halls at the courthouse, Ringsred Paint & Wall Paper company, $280; for 150 binders to be used by the county treasurer, Duluth Printing & Manufacturing company, 50 cents each; for thirty-six cots in the county jail, Poirier & company, $108.

* * *

The salaries of George K. Swan, janitor, and R. S. Cowden, watchman at the courthouse have been raised from $65 to $70 per month.

* * *

Township 61-17 was organized into a new school district, to be known as No. 59, and township 59-17 was attached to the town of Great Scott, at the request of a requisite number of freeholders.

* * *

The board granted the petitions for a new road, beginning in township 49-15, and extending to the Midway road in New Duluth, a road beginning at the Tower and Itasca road in 61-15, and terminating in section 18-61-14.

* * *

Hearings were set for July 6 for a new road in township 51-18, and for the McArthur extension road, from the Culver road through 51-17 to Burnett station.

All of the townships 50-20 and 50-21 has been organized into a new town, by the name of Prairie Lake, and the first town meeting will be held at the school house, in section 30-50-20, Saturday, May 26.

* * *

Because there is another town in the state with the same name, that of Vermillion has been changed to Beatty.

* * *

E. P. Alexander, agent for the Torrey building, notified the county board that the rent of the county attorney's offices has been raised from $30 to $60 per month. A resolution was passed directing that the coroner, the county attorney, the county superintendent of schools and the county surveyor be provided with suitable offices.

* * *

The residents of Pike Lake presented another petition with the board, remonstrating against the granting of a liquor license in that district, but as there was no application before the board, the petition was filed.

* * *

The quarterly report of the poor commission showed the total expenditures to have been $1,198.66, and the total receipts $303.83.

* * *

Sheriff W. J. Bates reported the cash receipts of his office during April to have been $1,212.19, and work done for the county amounting to $794.50.

* * *

M. C. Palmer, as register of deeds, reported receipts of $824.18, in addition to work for the county, amounting to $187. As register of titles he received $138.80 during April.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

THE KING OF BLOOD PURIFIERS

No other remedy has given such perfect satisfaction as a blood purifier and tonic or is so reliable in the cure of blood diseases of every character as S. S. S. It is known as "The King of Blood Purifiers," and the secret of its success and its right to this title is because "IT CURES DISEASE." It is an honest medicine, made entirely of purifying, healing roots, herbs and barks, which are acknowledged to be specifics for diseases arising from an impure or poisoned condition of the blood and possessing tonic properties that act gently and admirably in the up-building of a run-down, weakened or disordered condition of the system.

One of the greatest points in favor of S. S. S. is that it is the only blood remedy on the market which does not contain a mineral ingredient of some kind to derange or damage the system. It is the one medicine that can be taken with absolute safety by the youngest child or the oldest member of the family, and persons who have allowed their systems to get in such condition that most medicines are repulsive to the stomach will find that S. S. S., while thorough, is gentle and pleasant in its action, and has none of the nauseating effects of the different mineral mixtures and concoctions offered as blood purifiers.

As every part of the body is dependent on the blood for nourishment and strength, it is necessary that this vital fluid be kept free from germs and poisons. So long as it remains uncontaminated we are fortified against disease, and health is assured; but any impurity, humor or poison acts injuriously on the system and affects the general health. Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes and the different skin affections show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition as a result of too much acid or the presence of some irritating humor. Sores and Ulcers are the result of morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood, and Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders that continue to grow worse as long as the poison remains.

Gentlemen:—S. S. S. is used as a family medicine in our home. I myself have taken and always found it what it is claimed to be. It thoroughly cleanses the system of impurities, increases the appetite, improves the digestion, and builds up the general health. I have given it to my children with fine results. It promptly restores the appetite and clears the skin of all eruptions. It is a very fine blood tonic and has my hearty endorsement.

But all blood diseases are not acquired; some persons are born with an hereditary taint in the blood and we see this great affliction manifested in many ways. The skin has a waxy, pallid appearance, the eyes are often weak, glands of the neck enlarged, and as the taint has been in the blood since birth the entire health is usually affected.

In all blood troubles S. S. S. has proved itself a perfect remedy and has well earned the title of "KING OF BLOOD PURIFIERS." It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, humors, waste or foreign matter, and makes this stream of life pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited blood troubles like S. S. S.; it removes every particle of the taint, purifies and strengthens the weak, deteriorated blood, and supplies it with the healthful properties it needs and establishes the foundation for good health. As a tonic this great medicine has no equal, and it will be found especially bracing to weak, anaemic persons. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all other blood troubles are cured permanently by S. S. S., and so thorough is the cleansing of the blood that no trace of the disease is left to break out in future years or to be transmitted to offspring. If you are in need of a blood purifier get "THE KING" of them all, S. S. S.—and good results are assured. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired furnished without charge to all who write.

MAYOR ROSE IS RE-ELECTED

People of Kansas City, Kas., Endorse Licensing of Gambling Halls.

Kansas City, May 9.—William W. Rose, Democrat, who resigned the office of mayor of Kansas City, Kas., recently, pending ouster proceedings against him for non-enforcement of certain laws, and who was later ousted by the supreme court, which disregarded his resignation, was re-elected mayor by 1,600 plurality over E. E. Venard, Republican, and David Harris, Socialist, at a special election yesterday.

The issue of the election was the enforcement of the prohibition and anti-gambling laws. Rose was supported by the element which believes that the best interests of the city demand the licensing of joints and gambling halls, as they maintain that a strict enforcement of the law against such places deprives the city of necessary revenue. Many women voted and most of them supported Venard.

The position of Rose's right to hold the office will now be tested. The supreme court held that its action in ousting Rose rendered him ineligible at this time. Rose contends that as he had resigned before the supreme court acted in his case the ouster proceedings against him were ineffective.

ASKS COUNCIL TO ACT.

Mayor Linley Outlines His Policy on Water Question.

Mayor Victor Linley of Superior remonstrated to the city council last evening against procrastination in the campaign for a better water supply in Superior and urged that an expert be employed immediately not only to test the water for sanitary purposes, but to collect evidence preparatory to starting legal proceedings to ascertain the city's rights, including grounds for the forfeiture of the water company's franchise.

Some of the aldermen thought there would be plenty of time to take action after the water company relays its intake pipe and the matter was laid on the table for another week.

GIVE LOCAL MEN CHANCE

Board of Education Offers School Bonds to Duluth Investors.

Small Buyers Will Have an Opportunity to Purchase Them.

Believing that the bonds of the Duluth school district will easily bring par, if disposed of in small lots, among the people of Duluth, the board of education has decided to offer the remaining $25,000 of the $125,000, issue to local investors in small lots.

The voters at the election, two years ago, authorized an issue of $125,000, of which only $100,000 has been placed on the market. The remaining $25,000 is needed in the construction of the two new school buildings under way.

The board at the last meeting received an offer from a bond buyer to take the bonds at par, less a 2 per cent commission for placing them. He stated that in the present condition of the market, this was the best figure he could offer.

The members of the board have decided, therefore, to offer the bonds in small lots to local investors, and it is believed that they will be readily taken.

"This will give the man with $1,000 or $2,000 to invest, an opportunity to get some of the bonds of the Duluth school district," said Chairman Charles L. Codding. "The bonds offer safe investment, which will yield a return of 4 per cent interest yearly. This is more than the savings banks offer, and a man who has from $1,000 to $10,000, which he wishes to invest, could do much worse than put it into school district bonds.

"The bonds are negotiable at any time, and the money is almost as readily available as if it were deposited in the bank, and yet it draws 4 per cent interest in place of 2 to 3.

"We believe we can dispose of the $25,000 issue in this way, and get par, save the 2 per cent commission, and in addition we will keep the interest in Duluth instead of sending it East."

DREAD AFRICAN MALADY.

Science Baffled by Sleeping Sickness Which is Absolutely Fatal.

London, May 9.—The authorities are investigating the death of John Mahon, one of the first English victims of the dread African malady, the sleeping sickness which so far, has baffled science, and is still classed as absolutely fatal. Two years ago Mr. Mahon was the superintendent of the botanic gardens at Entebbe, Uganda, when he was bitten by the fly which carries the trypanosomes, or germs, of the deadly disease. He was invalided from an undefined complaint, which proved, after some months' residence in England, to be the dreaded sickness.

For the first eighteen months after his return he performed light duties at Colonial institute. After that the torpor which is characteristic of the disease seized him, and he went to University College hospital for treatment. From the first it was known that his case was hopeless, but everything possible was done. A gentleman who saw Mr. Mahon during the latter stages of his illness describes him as lying in a bed in a bright sunlit ward, curled up on his right side, his face almost hidden in the pillow. His cheeks were flushed and sunken and he was breathing heavily.

"His wife, who was present at the bedside," said the gentleman, "remarked to me that she had practically lost her husband; it was only the form of him that lay there, although she quite believed that Mr. Mahon knew her voice. As a matter of fact, he stirred in his stupor as she was speaking to me. Poor Mr. Mahon was wasted almost to a skeleton, in fact, a mere mass of skin and bone; this is one of the phases of the later stage of the disease. Nasal feeding was resorted to in his case from the time that the more serious symptoms began."

Lieut. Forbes Tulloch has been invalided home from Entebbe suffering from the same disease.

SOX STRIKE THEIR GAIT

Trim All Star Aggregation by Score of 14 to 1.

O'Dea's Men Put Up Good Game in Spite of Cold.

The White Sox struck their gait yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, and the all-star aggregation proved easy picking for the leaguers.

O'Dea's men batted in fourteen runs in eight innings, while the amateurs didn't get a tally until the ninth.

Three pitchers were tried out by the Duluth captain, Pool, Nordstrom and Ludington. The amateurs were unable to solve any one of the three, and but four hits were marked up to their credit.

The weather was too cold to allow the players to get limbered up, but they put up a very fair exhibition of ball considering the circumstances.

Baer, the big left fielder of the Duluth team, carried off the batting honors, with two singles and a double to his credit, while Ludwig and Krick each had two singles.

One of the features of the game was the sensational catch by Schaefer in the seventh, and the long throw to the plate which cut off Hunchie from scoring.

The two teams will meet again this afternoon, when a local left-hander by the name of Borgenson will twirl for the amateurs.

GEORGE SLOSSON IS DEFEATED

Chicago, May 9.—George Slosson, the champion 18.2 billiard player, was defeated here last night in the professional tournament now in progress in Orchestra hall, by Jake Schaefer by the score of 500 to 465.

Slosson's failure to get the balls out of balk when he had but five points to go, cost him the game. At the time Schaefer had 420 points. Slosson left the spheres in easy position and the Chicago man soon got them together and with in and out play clicked off the necessary eighty.

It was a hard game for Slosson to lose, as he played the better billiards. Both men played safety all the time and on this account their average was low, as they were called upon to execute all sorts of difficult shots from false angles. Schaefer made a shot in the seventeenth inning that seemed an impossibility. The object balls were lined up at one end of the table, while the cue ball was almost against the far rail in a straight line. Schaefer played a masse, the whole length of the table, hit the near ball on a curve, curved to the cushion and caught up with the red ball a foot and a half from the cushion, where it had been driven by impact of the first object ball. The high run for the game was made by Schaefer, with 103. Slosson's best score was 88. Schaefer's average was 17 7-29, and Slosson's 17 2-29.

BEGIN TRAINING.

Winnipeg Oarsmen Will Have Twenty-Four Crews in Club Regatta.

Winnipeg crews have begun spring training and a club regatta will be held on May 26.

In Winnipeg the rowing committee names a number of strokes for the club regattas, and the strokes make arrangements with the other men to fill out their boats. The Winnipeg papers publish a list of twenty-four four-oared crews which will take part in the club regatta.

Lake Linden Men Let Go.

George Myers, third base; Will Orth, outfielder, and Fred A. Dettman of the Lake Linden baseball team, have been released by the management. Dettman asked for his release as a result of Orth's being let go.

CREWS ARE CLASSIFIED

Rowing Committee Announces List of Junior and Senior Oarsmen.

Classes Will be Observed Through Season in Club Regattas.

The classification of the oarsmen for the coming year has been announced by the rowing committee of the Duluth Boat club.

The men are divided into two classes, A and B, and they will keep their standing throughout the season. Juniors may compete in a senior race and then return and row against the seniors, but the victory will make them seniors in next year's classification.

Under no circumstances can a senior row in a junior race.

This classification gives the new oarsmen every advantage. If they show up well enough, they can compete in the senior events and try for the senior medals as well as for the medals in their own class.

There are but sixteen oarsmen in the senior class. The members of last year's eight-oared crew, Whyte, L'Estrange, Alworth, Church, Haroldson, Deighton, Glass and Talboys, and eight others are classed as seniors. Of the others Anthony Puck, John Peyton and Dr. G. H. Jones rowed in last year's regatta. The remaining five senors are old oarsmen who intend to return to the sport this year.

Seniors—M. H. Alworth, F. E. Church, S. D. Glass, Hans Haroldson, W. L'Estrange, Anthony Puck, G. H. Spencer, J. H. Upham, Jr., Guy Colquhoun, D. H. Dolghton, F. W. Helmick, Dr. G. H. Jones, W. L. McLennan, John Peyton, Henry Talboys and Elmer Whyte.

Juniors—M. C. Anneke, E. C. Alstead, C. E. Adams, Sam Atkins, Frank Bradley, C. D. Brewer, W. D. Brewer, Al Cummings, James Cargill, E. C. Congdon, P. N. Dennis, A. R. De Vohn, A. C. Eggers, Richard Grant, C. P. Grady, Carroll Graff, E. G. Gridley, H. C. Gravatt, W. M. Gravatt, P. F. Helmick, E. H. Harbison, M. F. Jamar, S. M. Levy, Ed Mapp, Charles J. McBride, Miller McDougall, J. E. McGregor, Bernard G. Marshall, Frank E. Maxwell, W. N. Norton, A. S. Osborne, J. H. Ogle, C. W. Oppel, E. C. Peterson, Claus Puck, J. E. Rockwell, Joseph Sellwood, Jr., George Suffel, W. J. Sullivan, O. H. Sorenson and W. S. Telford.

Three fours were out last evening in spite of the chilly weather and the work of training for the July regatta has begun in earnest.

"SI" MAKES HIT.

Former Duluth Player Has Become Popular With the Springfield Fans.

"Si" Bennett has made a big hit with the fans in Springfield, according to a brief item which appeared in the Chicago Sunday Tribune, as a Springfield dispatch.

The dispatch says that the fans have taken a liking to the former Duluth player, and that the management is receiving congratulations on all sides for having secured him.

NEW HOCKEY RINK.

Plans Said to be Complete for Large Central Ice Rink.

Arrangements are said to have been completed for the erection of a new $25,000 rink, which will be used next winter for hockey.

The negotiations are known to have been under way for some time past, and it is said that they are now practically complete. The rink will be 100 by 140 feet and will have a seating capacity of 5,000 in the large double galleries which will be constructed.

This will enable Duluth to get into the International hockey league before next winter.

HORSES RACE TO THEIR DEATH

Runaway Team Plunges Off End of Fifth Avenue Dock.

Two horses, attached to one of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company's delivery wagons plunged headlong off the dock into the bay at the foot of Fifth avenue west, yesterday afternoon. The animals sank out of sight and did not come up again. The bodies and the wagon were recovered later in the afternoon, being towed up the slip by a tug.

The horses were standing on the dock in the rear of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company's building, where the wagons are loaded, when they suddenly became frightened at a tug, and started to run. They raced out of the alleyway between the buildings, and started down Fifth avenue, straight for the bay.

The driver was not aboard, and there was nothing to check the mad flight of the spirited young horses. As they neared the brink, one horse seemed to scent the danger ahead, but the other plunged, and the unwilling one could do aught but follow.

The outfit struck the water, and the bay swallowed it up. The team was one of the most valuable owned by the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, and was valued at $500. A man sitting on the edge of the dock is said to have had a narrow escape from death, as the maddened team passed within four feet of him.

CUPID WINS AT CHISHOLM.

Chisholm, Minn., May 9.—Cupid won a noted and unexpected triumph in the face of strenuous opposition when Conrad Sullivan and pretty Lucy St. Lawrence, aged 16, were married at the Catholic church.

A week or so ago the mother of the bride had Sullivan arrested on a charge of annoying and slandering Lucy to such an extent that she was forced to resign her position in the local postoffice. The hearing was scheduled for Monday. Instead, the wedding took place. Mrs. St. Lawrence withdrew her charges against Sullivan because her daughter during the past week has cried most of the time, refused to eat, and was threatened with serious illness because the romance of her life seemed to have been shattered.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Father Bilbon. It was witnessed only by Ulrick St. Lawrence, best man, and Stila Kuse, bridesmaid. The couple left for Eveleth for a few days' visit with relatives of the groom. They will make their home there.

REVERENCE IS NEEDED

Rev. S. G. Smith Says Indifference is Character of Age.

Rev. Samuel G. Smith, pastor of the People's church, St. Paul, talked interestingly to those who gathered in Plymouth Congregational church, Bristol street and Fifty-fourth avenue west last night. The church people of Duluth failed to turn out very well to hear Mr. Smith, who is considered one of the most remarkable platform speakers in church work in the country. Plymouth Congregational church is small, and it was not even well filled. Very few people from uptown were present.

The services were conducted by Rev. H. W. Johnson, pastor of the church. Mr. Smith explained that the object of his visit to the church is to do what he could to brace it up. As was published in The Herald of yesterday, Mr. Smith was appointed one of a committee of three to visit the churches receiving state missionary aid and Plymouth church is one of these.

In his talk Mr. Smith endeavored to point out the qualities lacking in the present generation, and the coincident reason why the churches do not prosper as they once did. Briefly speaking he declared that lack of reverence is the abounding charcateristic of the present age. There is not even a bit of strenuosity about the present day unbelievers. In the old days he said—thirty years ago, when he began to preach—the infidels of that day were fighting doubters, but today the doubter is merely indifferent. Nobody seems to take religion seriously. As a text he took a part of the second chapter of Joel and pointed out that Joel in those days—eight centuries before Christ—tried to make the people arouse from their indifference and repent. Dr. Smith said that those days and these are quite parallel insofar as the condition of the time is concerned. Then as now, the combines of rich were oppressing the poor, and then as now, the spirit of indifference to religious had seized the people.

"What we need," said Mr. Smith, "is the prophet voice of a Joel or a Micah to sound the doom that has always come to people who try to live without God."

He went on to say that thirty years ago when he began to preach, in all communities the church was the center of all life. Everybody went to church; probably they did not listen to the sermon much, but everything centered at the church.

"The churches of those days," he said, "were not very friendly. The preachers did not exchange pulpits and we had no union meetings. We admitted, of course, that in the other church there were a few who stood a chance of going to heaven, but because of their wrongness in belief, the great number of them were bound for the other place; and we had no doubt about it. There was always one man who was sure to go to hell. Everybody know that. He was the infidel of the community. Do you notice, we do not have infidels any more. Of course we find the man occasionally who thinks it is quite the thing to say he does not believe in this or that, but he only thinks he does not believe. In the old days we had real infidels who really believed and were positive that they did not believe in the religious teaching which they heard. Today there is no strenuosity about the unbelief of these people. Those were fighting doubters then. In those days there were no refreshments in the church and it was pretty dry sometimes, but the people ha dno doubt that religion was the great essential."

Mr. Smith declared that there are three great social values which are necessary to religious life, and which the people of today have very little of, and these are reverence, righteousness and charity. In regard to reverence, he declared it to be almost totally lackign, and it shows a lack of a belief in God, for when one believes in God and His works, and that He is all in all, one must get a feeling of reverence. As to righteousness, he pointed out that did the church stand for wrong rather than right, it could not stand a week; and the fact that it lasts is a tribute to righteousness. Justice and equity, he said, cannot be had except where the spirit of the brotherhood of man exists, and this spirit is the very essence of Christianity. As to charity, he claimed, the church is unrivalled. When Christ was crucified the world was steeped in selfishness, but the gospel of Christ changed that. Charity he declared to be the basis on which entrance to heaven is obtained.

After explaining these three great social values, he turned his attention to substitutes for the church in teaching them. He declared that many claim that the school, the newspaper or the theater could substitute for the church in these teachings. Then he dissected the situation. As to the school, he said that there it is permitted the teachers to teach their pupils to be good and moral, but the teachers are not permitted to tell the pupils why, for if they did it would be teaching "sectarianism."

"In other words," said Mr. Smith, "the teacher can show the pupils a few branches and blooms from the tree of life, but dare not tell them that there is such a tree."

As to the newspapers, Mr. Smith was slightly more merciless. He said that the newspaper of today is somewhat better and somewhat worse than the newspaper of a generation ago.

"The editorial columns of the newspaper," said Mr. Smith, "are almost always right, but the news columns are almost always wrong. It takes a good editorial writer about all his time balancing up for the errors of the news columns. You see the news columns are edited from 'down stairs'—that is, the business office. The business office wants news that will sell the papers. A man may be the greatest saint that ever lived, but he would not be worth an item; were he a devil, he would be worth a page. The papers want sensations, for sensations will sell papers. So we cannot consider a newspaper as a substitute in teaching the three great social values.

"Some people say that the theaters are educators. Did you ever see anybody go to the theater to be educated? People go to the theater to be amused, not to see morals taught. The theaters amuse—if the play is good; but they are too terrible to contemplate if they are bad."

Mr. Smith then pointed out that in teaching these great moral values the church stands alone, and he also asserted that the right minded public man and business man will support these great things. The church must be supported, for God made the world a school, not a despotism—a place where character is cultured; a birthplace for human souls, and a place for their development.

CERTIFIED TO SUPREME COURT

Constitutionality of John Day Smith Law at Issue.

St. Paul, May 9.—The constitutionality of the socalled John Day Smith law, which prohibits the publication of details of a public execution, will be passed upon by the supreme court. Judge Bunn, who held the law constitutional in the case of the Pioneer Press and the other city papers charged with violation of the law in printing details of the hanging of William Williams for the murder of John Keller, has certified the case to the supreme court for review.

The certificate and report to the supreme court gave the proceedings in the case before Judge Bunn, and sets out the five questions raised in the argument. The five questions upon which the supreme court will pass are as follows:

Whether the law upon which the indictment was based (Chapter 20 of the general laws of 1889) violated article 4 ,section 27 of the state constitution, which provides that "no law shall embrace more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title."

Whether it violated article 1, section 3 of the constitution providing that "the liberty of the press shall remain forever inviolate," etc.

Whether the law contravenes the spirit if not the letter of article 1, section 1 of the constitution, which provides that "the accused shall enjoy the right of a speedy and public trial."

Whether the law is unconstitutional because it is inequal in its operation and violates section 1, article 14, of the federal constitution, providing that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of the citizens of the United States, nor shall any state deprive any person of life or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law."

Whether the facts stated in the indictment constitute a public offense.

EVELETH ENJOINED

From Carrying Out Contract With the Mining News.

Eveleth, Minn., May 9.—Injunction papers were served yesterday on the officials of the city, the city council, the Mining News and George A. Perham, publisher of the paper, prohibiting the carrying out of the contract made by the city council whereby the Mining News was made the official paper of the city.

The injunction is sought by P. Eliard Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star, who claims that the contract is illegal for various reasons.

Two Shots Cost $100.

Albert Helstrom, who was indicted for assault in the second degree, was found guilty of assault in the third degree yesterday afternoon in the district court. Judge Dibell sentenced him to pay a fine of $100, and he was taken back to jail to await the payment by his friends of the amount assessed. Helstrom was accused of firing two shots at Peter Winthrall in a tie camp near Rush Lake. He claimed that he fired over Winthrall's head simply to scare him. The court advised Helstrom to leave his revolver at home next time he set out to scare anybody.

NO MAN STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body.* * * * *." He continues, "so we may be said to live by (and he might well have said through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. He says "the function of digestion in its several stages is to prepare the food in forms which are suitable to be added to the structure," meaning the structure of our bodies. He continues, "every physical action from simple breathing, thinking and circulating of the blood to the most active bodily exertion wears out portions of the structure (of our bodies) and they become dead and so require to be taken away speedily. Much of the food which we take, and especially when unwholesome or in excess, adds to the waste material, and when it has undergone chemical changes it is still more mischievous." Then he goes on to the effect that the nervous system prompts every part of the circulating system. He says "it gives its message every moment to the infinate number of glands and follicles to unload themselves of waste material so that the current of blood may carry it away."

"When these two processes of nutrition and excretion are thus carried on with equal assiduity we are in health, but when this equilibrium does not exist there comes disorder and disease. The common form of such derangement is indigestion or dyspepsia. The function of nutrition is interrupted and all the operations which depend upon it go wrong. Under these conditions it has a way of appearing in other types of disorder. Many of these often mislead physicians. Other parts of the organism are likely to be involved, and we may find consumption, kidney complaint, hepatic (liver) disorders, hysteria and even mental alienation (derangement)." He says "it may be observed that deranged persons have a woe-be-gone expression, offensive breath, irregular action of the bowels, hallucinations and other like conditions of dyspepsia."

The foregoing is no doubt a rational view of the sad havoc worked in the human system by indigestion and dyspepsia, torpid liver and kindred derangements, which are generally associated with or followed by many other diseases of diverse appearance, but all depending upon the weak and disordered stomach. Cure the stomach weakness and you cure all these diseases and derangements.

For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The Golden Seal root, Stone root, Mandrake root and Black Cherry-bark are all recommended by such eminent authorities as Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College; Prof. John King, author of the "AMERICAN DISPENSATORY"; Prof. John M. Scudder, late of Cincinnati; Dr. William Paine, author of Paine's Epitomy of Medicine, Dr. Hobart A. Hare, of the University of Pa.; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Medical Dept., University of N. Y.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., Professor of Materia Medica in the Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago, and many others, as remedies for indigestion and dyspepsia, torpid liver as well as for bronchial, throat and lung affections, as will be seen from reading a little booklet recently compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., who will send the same on request, by postal card or letter, to any address, free. This little booklet tells of what Dr. Pierce's celebrated medicines are made, and gives the properties and uses of each and every ingredient entering into their composition. Write Doctor Pierce, as above and receive it by return post.

Queen's root, or Stillingia, is an ingredient entering into the "Golden Medical Discovery" highly recommended by several of the above mentioned authorties for the cure of chronic or lingering bronchial, throat and lung affections, public speaker's sore throat attended with hoarseness, dry, rasping cough and kindred affections. Not only is Queen's root specific in its curative action in all these affections, but in "Golden Medical Discovery" it is greatly assisted by the combination with it of Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark and Bloodroot, with which it is blended in just the right proportion. Pure, triple refined glycerine also greatly enhances the effectiveness of all these agents in the cure of chronic and lingering coughs, being a valuable demulcent, also antiseptic, and a nutritive of great value, especially useful in all wasting diseases, as in incipient consumption and other scrofulous affections. "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy in all catarrhal affections, whether affecting the nasal passages, the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs and the reason why will be learned by reading the little booklet noted above. Send for it now.

In chronic catarrh of the nasal passages, it is important that while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" as the most effective constitutional treatment for this terribly distressing and most obstinate affection that the nasal passages should be cleansed two or three times a day by the free use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, used according to the directions which accompany the same.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Persons subject to any of these troubles should never be without a vial of the "Pleasant Pellets" at hand. Put up in glass vials, tightly corked, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are cathartic. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, paper-bound, sent for 21 one cent stamps, the cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound ten stamps more, 31 in all. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CONDITIONS ON ISTHMUS

Chairman Shonts Makes Report on Panama Canal Work.

Washington, May 9.—T. P. Shonts, chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, has made a special report to the secretary of war relative to the conditions on the isthmus of Panama, from which he returned on April 22. He says:

One of the first things brought to my attention upon arrival on the isthmus was the condition of the water supply at Colon. Chief Engineer Stevens reported that the present dry season had extended over a longer period than any other during the past twenty-five years. As a result streams available for water supply were lower and the fear of a possible water famine greater than for many years. While the reservoirs supplying the districts of Panama, Empire, Gorgona and Bas Obispo contained sufficient water for many months to come, the stock of water in the reservoir supplying the district of Colon had become reduced to 1,500,000 or 2,000,000 gallons. Therefore, as a means of impressing upon persons residing in that district the danger of extravagant use of water, Mr. Stevens equipped a water train, erected three temporary water stations in the Colon district, and began hauling into that district 250,000 gallons per day for daily consumption, holding the supply in the reservoir for a possible emergency. This means of adequately meeting the daily needs will be continued until the rainy season again provides an exhaustless supply through the use of the reservoir system. The reservoirs created for distribution of water in the districts of Panama, Empire, Gorgona and Colon have a total capacity of 3,000,000 gallons, and at Bas Obispo there is an unlimited supply from a perpetual running stream.

Under the direction of Governor Magoon health conditions on the isthmus are most satisfactory. Notwithstanding the fact that there are more employees and their dependents on the isthmus than ever before (the monthly pay rolls showing from 22,000 to 23,000 employees with a daily effective force of about 16,000 or 17,000 there were fewer patients in hospital than for many months past. Dr. Gorgas reported 450 beds vacant in hospitals. There has been no authentic case of yellow fever since last November. Mosquitoes are so scarce that many persons sleep in unscreened houses, and discard mosquito netting without incurring personal discomfort. Dr. Gorgas is sanguine that he has the health situation so well in hand that no epidemic can arise within the canal zone. The danger can come only from the outside.

Under the direction of Chief Engineer Stevens, through the building department, the policy adopted to provide for the employes suitable quarters in which to live has been carried forward with great vigor. The building department has not only provided ample quarters for the existing force, but at this time has a reserve sufficient to accommodate 3,000 additional laborers. Under the direction of Chief Engineer Stevens, through the labor and quarters department, and the commissary of the Panama railroad, the policy adopted to provide suitable food, at reasonable prices, while not yet satisfactorily effected, has nevertheless made great progress. So far as the common laborers are concerned, uncooked food is obtainable at reasonable prices from the commissaries of the Panama railroad. Mess kitchens have been created at the different labor camps, where wholesome and nourishing meals may be obtained by such laborers at a cost of 10 cents each, and at this price a small marginal balance in favor of the commission is left.

With respect to the American employes, progress continues to be made in providing them with wholesome food of a character to which they are accustomed. Refrigerator cars of the most improved type are now in operation on the line of the Panama railroad; a temporary cold-storage plant is in successful operation at Colon, and plans for a permanent plant on a much larger scale are well under way. The first consignements of American meats have been successfully distributed along this line of refrigeration. The first consignments of vegetables and similar food stuffs did not meet with equal success, possibly due to the state of the vegetable market at home when such consignment was made. Nine large mess houses (or hotels) are maintained at as many different points along the line, where nourishing meals are served in clean surroundings, at a cost to employes of 30 cents each.

Under the direction of Chief Engineer Stevens, the policy adopted to create proper terminal, yard and track facilities for the economical reception and distribution of the vast amount of supplies entering into the construction of the canal, to provide for the disposal of excavated material, and to secure the proper power, equipment and machinery for the economical handling of the same, is being carried out with great vigor.

Several miles of the double tracking of the Panama railroad main line have been laid, and the grading for more is advancing rapidly. Much of the material for the double tracking, especially north and south of the two yards whence the dirt trains will come onto the Panama railroad main line, is becoming urgent, as will be seen from the fact that recently 148 train movements were made over one section of the road in one day.

The work of putting Culebra cut in shape for the approaching wet season, as well as for the installation of the largest possible number of steam shovels on a systematic plan, has been steadily carried forward. All the barriers across the cut left by the French have been removed, and not only have tracks been laid and ballasted on each level, but for most of the way through the bottom of the canal prism a well-ballasted double-track line has been constructed. About 60,000 yards of the dirt slide have been removed, leaving a berm 150 feet wide back from the slope of the canal prism, so that if this slide continues to come down, none of it will push over into the prism, as it has done heretofore. Following this same rule, in two or three years more the entire slide will have been removed. Clay on the top of the cut, on the other side of the prism, which can not well be handled during the wet season, has also been removed wherever there was danger of the side of the cut going far enough back to permit this clay to slide into the prism this season. This work is so well along that if the present good weather should continue two or three weeks more, Culebra cut will be in such shape as to permit of the removal of the largest quantity of material during the wet season, without danger from any of the mishaps from slides, or derailments due to bad tracks, which have heretofore been attendant upon such efforts.

Chief Engineer Stevens during the month of March, without making any special effort, but following the general policy of work herein outlined, removed 240,000 cubic yards of material with an average of 10 7-10 steam shovels working. The reports up to the 15th of this month indicate a still greater degree of efficiency in excavation. He believes that by July or August he will have forty shovels installed, and will be in a position to remove approximately 1,000,000 cubic yards per month. The actual cost for material handled during March, figuring in contractor's expenses, was 53½ cents a cubic yard.

The results already obtained justify the policy decided upon during my first trip to the Isthmus, and briefly outlined in my report to the president, under date of August 12, 1905. In that report I called attention to the fact that the serious mistake which had been made up to that time was in attempting "to make the dirt fly" in advance of thorough preparation, and informed the president that instruction had been issued to close down the work of excavation, except in so far as was necessary to put the cuts in proper shape for the installation of the maximum number of steam shovels for economical service.

The work of canal construction divides itself properly into two parts, one of which must precede the other.

First, thorough preparation. This includes the creation of an effective organization; the sanitation of the Isthmus; providing suitable quarters and food for employes; constructing proper terminal, yard, and railway track facilities and intermediate yards for the handling of the vast quantities of supplies and materials; the installation of a system of tracks through the cuts; the working out of all engineering problems, and the formulation of a comprehensive plan for carrying forward the work in each department.

The work of preparation is at once the more important and the more difficult of these two tasks. If it be not done thoroughly, intelligently, and well in every part, the second task—that of actual construction—will be handicapped from the start. The launching of every great enterprise, the creating of an organization with which to carry on the work, is always the most difficult part of it. Once that has been accomplished successfully, the subsequent task of execution is comparatively easy. The preliminary stage is nearing completion on the isthmus. Inspection during this last visit showed that the many intricate problems connected with the engineering branch of this task have been worked out, that in many other departments the preliminary work has been completed, and each week is witnessing its completion in others. Other necessary work will occupy the organization to advantage for a short time to come, but at the present rate of progress the time is fast approaching when decision as to type of canal will be essential to the continuation of work.

Finally, the most important and pressing question before the commission today is a decision in regard to the type of IN canal to be constructed. Chief Engineer Stevens pointed out to me the route of several diversion channels the construction of which should be understood, but which he cannot commence until the type of canal is decided upon. We have also in mind certain other intermediate yards which we cannot locate until that decision is reached. We are also holding back the improvements at La Boca (the Pacific terminus), both as to terminal yards and the extension of the steel pier, already referred to, not knowing whether or not the type decided on will cause us to abandon all these improvements. The extent and character of additional machinery to be used, as well as the extent and character of additional equipment to be purchased are all awaiting the determination of this most vital question, and inasmuch as all this machinery and equipment must be manufactured to order in the United States, and manufacturers in almost every branch are filling their books with orders months ahead, the delay in reaching a decision as to type may mean a very serious delay in getting the necessary plant, and thus ultimately mean serious delay in the construction of the canal.

PAVING AT VIRGINIA.

Plans for Three Kinds of Pavement for Chestnut Street.

Virginia, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grade of Chestnut street, ordered established by City Engineer Johnson, was accepted by the city council last evening. The engineer was ordered to prepare plans and specifications of paving the street with either sandstone, creosote blocks or vitrified brick with 6-inch concrete base. After the specifications are prepared it is the purpose to advertise for bids for the three different kinds of paving and then select the one that best suits the property owners.

A number of applications for extension of water mains have been made of late. Under the franchise held by the Virginia Light and Water company if the council orders in an extension it must pay for one hydrant in every block at the rate of $100 per year. This would make the expense of required extensions too great at the present time. But the Light and Water company has met the council half way with a proposition to extend their mains a total of twenty-four blocks and afford fire protection to practically the entire city, including the mill district, if the city will pay for seventeen hydrants. This would increase the total number of hydrants in the whole city to forty-six, which would cost the city $1,600 per year for fire protection and it is generally believed that the added cost would be more than saved in reduced insurance rates.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for furnishing the city with sidewalk lumber.

Joseph Rinnert, city assessor, was denied the privilege of hiring an assistant at the expense of the city.

SICK AND TIRED AND WORN OUT

Everyone experiences such a condition at this season of the year when the system is clogged with impurities after the winter's over eating. When the blood is thick with stagnant poisons and the stomach is too weak to digest even ordinary food and headaches, backaches and boneaches, constipation, nervous spells and sleepless nights are making your life a drudgery.

You Need a Tonic to Build Up Your System

Read these letters from folks who have suffered from this very cause and who write public letters in order that every single persons may hear of a way to get well. A few bottles of the wonderful

Cooper's New Discovery

Will do the same for you that it has done for these folks. Here are their letters.

Mrs. Sarah Wick, 714 Burnet Ave., Louisville, Ky., says: "Both my husband and myself have been taking Cooper's New Discovery for the blood. It has done us a world of good and it cured my husband of a severe attack of rheumatism. It seems to take the poison out of the blood and has a wonderful effect upon a weak and run down system. We are still taking it and will continue its use for a while so that we can be sure that every vestige of poison is driven from the blood."

Mrs. J. H. Wilson, Birmingham, Ala., says: "I have felt all run down and out of sorts and nothing seemed to help me. I heard of the results that other people had obtained from the use of Cooper's New Discovery and began taking it. In one week I was feeling greatly improved and gained rapidly in strength. Now I eat well, sleep well and get up refreshed. I am never constipated any more and the constant headaches I use to have are gone entirely."

This Wonderful New Discovery Will tone up the nerve centers, increase the digestive fluids of the stomach, strengthen the kidneys and drive every trace of impurities from the system. It will regulate the bowels and put new life in the blood. It sharpens the intellect and puts vim in the muscles.

Cooper's New Discovery costs $1.00 per bottle; three for $2.50; six for $5.000. Cooper's Quick Relief, the assistant remedy, sells for 50c. Get them only of the dealer whose name appears below. Or where we have no dealer you can secure them by sending the price direct to

BREAKING RECORDS

Duluth Firemen Making Great Showing at Annual Inspection.

Headquarters Establishes New Marks for Night and Floor Hitch.

Records are going glimmering on the annual inspection of the Duluth fire department, which is in progress this afternoon.

The men at headquarters were on their mettle, and nearly every company succeeded in beating its best previous mark on the floor and night hitches.

The inspection was begun at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon, the headquarters' hall being the first one visited.

After the uniforms of the men, their general appearance, and the different pieces of apparatus had been inspected by Mayor Cullum and the members of the board of fire commissioners, the program of tests began.

The first was the floor hitch. The men were stationed at their places, and the alarm given. The salvage company completed the hitch in five seconds, equalling the best previous mark. The hose company clipped two seconds from its former record, making the hitch in seven seconds. The hook and ladder company was three-fifths of a second behind its former mark of ten seconds, and the engine company made the hitch in seven seconds, which was one second better than the best previous mark.

The night hitch was then tried. The men all retired to their beds, a committee being appointed to see that they were safely between the sheets. The alarm was then given, and the men came sliding down the poles dressing themselves as they came. The following table shows the time made today, and the best previous marks:

	Today.	Former Record.
Chemical	9 1-5	8
Salvage	9 1-5	8
Hose company	10 3-5	11
Hook and ladder	10	12
Engine	10 3-5	12

Pompier lader exhibitions, and other feats are included in the program.

CITY BRIEFS.

Five teamsters were yesterday fined $1 apiece by Judge Windom for leaving their horses standing unhitched. The police are endeavoring to secure a more rigid observance of the ordinance.

Theodore C. Idell, who was committed to the state insane asylum from this county some months ago, has been paroled. Notice of the parole was received at the probate court yesterday.

E. G. Smith, chief boatswain's mate in the first division of the naval reserves, has been elected ensign, to succeed Paul G. Clarkson, resigned.

Oscar Ecklund has petitioned the probate court to be appointed guardian of his uncle, Otto Ecklund, whom he claims is a spendthrift. In the petition it is claimed that Otto Ecklund has personal property worth $1,000 and real estate that pays $500 a year in rentals.

George R. King, the contractor for the new Second street pavement, stated this morning that he would begin work on the job Monday morning, weather permitting.

John Neilson was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of petty larceny. He was claimed to have stolen a coat from a fellow workman at the Northern Power company's plant. Judge Cutting imposed a fine of $20 and costs.

The Rebecca Sewing circle will meet at Odd Fellows' hall on Lake avenue, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Methodist Episcopal churches in the Duluth district will hold an all day session Friday in the First M. E. church. It is expected that the attendance will be large, as women not directly connected with the societies but interested in the work have been invited. A basket lunch will be served at noon, which will be made a social hour.

Capt. James Reid and his men are still at work on the wrecked steamer Matnafa at the harbor entrance. The pumping is going on merrily. The captain is still unable to say when he will be able to move the big boat.

PERSONALS.

Frank F. Henry, manager of the Washburn-Crosby company's flour mill at Buffalo, and Charles Estey, the same concern's representative in New York, are in Duluth today. They spent the morning at the Board of Trade. Messrs. Henry and Estey came to Duluth from Minneapolis and are on their way back East.

Mrs. J. D. Ray left over the Omaha today for Washington, D. C.

F. R. Kennedy left over the Omaha today for El Paso, Tex.

H. J. Phelps of Dubuque, Iowa, division passenger agent of the Illinois Central, and H. S. Gray of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent, are in the city today.

Miss Emma Grant of Lisbon, N. D., is a guest at the Lenox.

E. James of Calumet, Mich., is a guest at the Spalding.

Ivan Ringstad of Northfield, Minn., is registered at the St. Louis.

P. R. Vall of Virginia is in the city, a guest at the St. Louis.

Officers Coming.

Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific road, J. M. Hannaford, second vice president, and officials of the traffic department, are expected to arrive in Duluth tonight or tomorrow to look over the yards at the Head of the Lakes, and consider new track improvements for this city.

SENATOR A. P. GORMAN IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Washington, May 9.—Senator Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland is critically ill at his home in this city. He has not been in his seat in the senate for many months. Within the last few days he had a severe sinking spell and his life is despaired of.

His sickness began several months ago with an attack of the grip with every indication that it would culminate in pneumonia, but this was averted and now, it is learned, he is suffering from a complication of ailments which give no promise of his recovery.

NEW BOATS ARE NOW ARRIVING

Duluth Yacht Club Fleet is Being Largely Added To.

Two new boats arrived yesterday from Shell Lake, Wis., for members of the Duluth Yacht club. One is for Elmer Whyte, who has christened it the "College Widow," and the other is for Charles D. Brewer, who has named his boat the "Viking."

Both are Class A boats, 28 feet long. Two more of this class are expected within the next few days, also seven 22-foot boats of the Grasser-Toledo type. The two 32-foot boats, which are coming from White Bear, will be here the latter part of next week. These two proved to be the speediest boats in their class at White Bear last year. They are owned by Harry Pierce and Fred Smith.

ALLEGED BANKRUPTCY.

Involuntary Petition Against Chisholm Company is Filed.

An involuntary petition to adjudge as a bankrupt the Chisholm Mercantile company of Chisholm, Minn., has been filed in United States court and Deputy Marshal Mallory has just returned, after serving the papers. In the petition it is alleged that the company is in debt for more than $8,000, and that it committed an act of bankruptcy on April 30 last, by making an assignment for the benefit of its creditors to W. R. Peyton of Duluth. The petitioners and the claims which they allege the company owes them are as follows:

Tucker-Overman company, $206.63; G. H. Cannon Co., $175.94; H. J. Kolling & Co., $96.35; and Sanders & Co., $118.96.

SAW THE POINT.

Boston Herald: Capt. Elias Reed is a retired sea captain, now residing in Bowdoinham, Me. One winter's day, several years ago, when the late Payson Tucker was at the head of the Maine Central railroad, Capt. Reed went to the sawmill at Bowdoinham for a load of lumber. To reach the mill it is necessary to cross the railroad track. An unexpected train came around the curve just as the captain reached the crossing. Whipping up his horse, he succeded in getting the animal over, but the sled was knocked into kindling wood. The driver and horse were uninjured.

The captain knew that he had no case against the Maine Central, but he wrote the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Tucker—Today one of your trains ran into my horse-sled at Bowdoinham. I fear the engine must have been injured, and I write to ascertain what amount will settle the damage. I hope the amount will not be large, for it will cost me $20 to replace my sled. Yours truly," etc.

The next day the captain received a check for $20.

WHEAT TO CHICAGO

Peavey Interests Will Ship Two Hundred Thousand Bushels From Duluth.

Market Has Half Cent Advance—Strength in Flax.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—Wheat was stronger in the American markets today. Bullish news was plentiful. Reports of a dangerous lack of rain in India, a small crop prospect in Kansas and the Southwest and a decrease of 500,000 bus in the stocks of wheat at Minneapolis contributed to the firmness. Liverpool, Antwerp and Paris closed unchanged and Berlin ¾c lower.

The Peavey people will ship 200,000 bus of No. 1 Northern wheat from Duluth to Chicago, presumably to be delivered on May contracts. While the difference between prices here and in Chicago is not great enough to put wheat on a shipping basis, it is probably safer to get the wheat here and ship it than to go into the Chicago pit and buy the March. The loss by shipping will be about 2c.

The May option closed ½c higher in Duluth, ¼c in Chicago, ⅝c in Minneapolis, New York and Winnipeg, unchanged in St. Louis and ¼@⅝c up in Kansas City. The July option closed ½c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, a shade up in Chicago, ⅛c up in New York, ⅛@¼c in St. Louis and Kansas City and ⅝c in Winnipeg.

Corn was weaker, the July option in Chicago closing ⅛@¼c off. Corn was ¼d to ½d higher in Liverpool. July oats were ⅛c up Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 38, against none last year, and at Minneapolis 49, against 98 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 87, against 98 last year. Chicago received 2, against 2 last year. Winnipeg received 144, against 57 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 169,000 bus; last year, 122,000 bus. Shipments, 184,000 bus; last year, 218,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 243,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 372,600 bus; last year, 162,000 bus. Shipments, 281,000 bus; last year, 175,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 257,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market today, with prices stronger. May wheat opened ¼c higher at 80½c, advanced to 81⅛c and then declined, closing at 80⅝c, a gain of ⅛c from yesterday. July wheat opened ¾c higher at 80¾c, declined to 80⅝c at 9:35, rallied to 81⅛c at 11, fell off to 80⅞c at 12:50 and closed at 80⅞c, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. September wheat closed ⅛c higher at 78½c.

Flax was active during the entire session. There was quite a flurry at the opening, with higher prices. Flax was ⅝c higher in Antwerp, ⅜c to 1½c higher in London. A good export business was done, but offerings are getting smaller. May flax opened ¼c higher at $1.15½, advanced to $1.17, fell off to $1.16⅝, rallied to $1.17 and closed at $1.17, a gain of 1⅜c over yesterday. July flax opened ¼c higher at $1.17½, advanced to $1.18½, declined to $1.18, rallied to $1.18¾ and ranged between that and $1.18¾ during the rest of the session. The closing price was $1.18¾, a gain of 1½c over yesterday.

September flax opened ⅜c higher at $1.17⅝, advanced to $1.19 and ranged between that and $1.18¾ during the rest of the session. The closing price was $1.18⅝, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. October flax opened ½c higher at $1.16½, advanced to $1.17¼, fell off to $1.17 and advanced at the close to $1.17½, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ⅝c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, 81c; No. 2 northern, 79c; on track, No. 1 northern, 18c; No. 2 northern, 79c; May, 80¾c; July, 80⅞c; September, 78¼c. Durum, No. 1, 75½c; No. 2, 72¼c. Flax, to arrive, $1.17; flax on track, $1.17; May, $1.17; July, $1.18¾; September, $1.18⅞; October, $1.17½. Oats, to arrive, 31⅝c; oats, on track, 31⅝c; May, 31⅝c. Rye, 57. Barley, 37@55c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Decrease in Stocks in Minneapolis Gives Wheat Firmness.

Chicago, May 9.—The wheat market was firm today, largely upon a report that stocks of wheat at Minneapolis had decreased 500,000 bus during the last four days. In addition to this, cables were firm and it was reported that there was a lack of rain in India which might result in damage of a great extent. Liverpool reported that there is an increasing scarcity of good wheat, which opened up a prospect of export shipments. July opened ⅜@¾c higher at 79⅞c and held steady at the opening figure. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 87 cars against 212 last week and 98 one year ago.

The market ruled strong all day, chiefly because of reports of heavy frosts in the Northwest last night. There was excellent buying by houses with Northwestern connections. The high point for July was 79¾@80c. The close was firm at 79¼c.

The corn market was steady in sympathy with wheat and because of reports of continued cold weather in the corn belt. There was a good demand from traders and commission houses, but offerings were not large. July opened ⅛c higher at 45⅞c and held steady. Trading was not in large volume. Local receipts were 76 cars with 12 of contract grade.

The market ruled steady for the greater part of the day on buying by commission houses and cash interests, but this support lagged near the middle of the session, and prices dropped a trifle. The close was steady with July at 45½@⅝c.

The oats market was quiet and steady. July was unchanged at 31¼c. Local receipts were 118 cars.

Provisions were dull but steady on moderate receipts at the stock yards. The buying of lard by a prominent packer was the feature of the early market. July pork was unchanged to a shade higher at $15.17½. Lard was 2½c higher at $8.45. Ribs were unchanged to 2½c higher at $8.60.

Close: Wheat—May, 81⅜c; July, 79½c. Corn—May, 47@47¼c; July, 45½@45⅝c. Oats—May, 32⅜c; July, 31¼c. Pork—May, $14.75; July, $14.97½. Lard—May, $8.27½; July, $8.40. Ribs—May, $8.37½@8.40; July, $8.52½. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market closed ¼@½c higher. Its early strength seemed to come more from scarcity of offerings than anything else. There was considerable short wheat covered on the early upturn, the market subsequently losing practically all its gain on a report that the cargo of 200,000 bus of contract wheat has already been shipped from Duluth to cover sales made in this market. The wheat market lacks snap. It shows no particular tendency, apparently drifting along subject to the little winds that blow, and accomplishing little in either direction. We are unable to see anything better than a scalping market, but feel advantage should be taken of the rallies on which to sell the distant months. The brilliant crop prospects, if continued, will make the bulls as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth.

Corn—Notwithstanding small receipts today and equally small estimates for tomorrow, this market could not hold its head up, nor could the early strength in wheat give to it anything more than temporary firmness. There is a lot of corn in farmers' hands, and it is likely to move most any day, and once it gets started the bulls will wonder where it comes from. A prominent cash corn concern sold literally in the July months today. We would take advantage of the little rallies as they appear and sell corn. We would rather do it now than to wait until the selling side becomes fashionable.

Oats—This market enjoyed a better trade than any we have had for some time, gaining ⅛c for July and September, while May advanced ⅜c. It is true, oats got into the ground late, and since planting season crop has not had the best of weather.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: One of the most active flour brokerage concerns in the city reports that it has already sold in May more flour than it sold during all of April and finds flour stocks greatly reduced. The Kansas millers are refusing to shade prices under any ordinary conditions, while the spring wheat millers are willing occasionally to cut a little to make a large sale or gain a new and valuable customer. Many of the mills throughout the winter wheat belt have greatly reduced their output recently and have been running on local trade alone.

* * *

Broomhall: According to a Russian semi-official report for the end of April, the winter wheat crops in the twenty-two governments of the center are generally good and occasionally excellent. In eastern and northwestern regions the condition of crops is satisfactory except that the East needs rain, but hitherto crops unharmed.

* * *

Chicago Inter Ocean: The trade estimate of the Wrenn-Watson shortage in May wheat here is 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 bushels with the inside figures believed to be near the actual quantity. Peavey is also regarded as heavily short against cash wheat in the Northwest. He will rather have to cover or ship the wheat here to deliver. At present market differences, 1⅜ cents under Chicago May for cash in Minneapolis, and ¼ cent under with Duluth. There is no money in shipping here unless several million bushels, or enough to make a big break in the May, are shipped here from the Northwest.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

In Spite of Heavy Realizing Market Held Its Own.

New York, May 9.—The opening movement in prices at the opening of the stock market today was a good deal confused, realizing of profits making inroads at some points, while at others there was fresh strength shown. Northern Pacific, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, Consolidated Gas and Smelting advanced large fractions and Distillers' Securities, 1½. There was a fall of 2 points in Anaconda.

Although a few stocks were advanced successfully after the opening, selling orders increased gradually, and there was a more general disposition to take profits on yesterday's rise which resulted in driving the favorite stocks well below yesterday's close. Over night losses reached 2 in Great Northern preferred, 1¾ in St. Paul, 1⅝ in Reading, 1½ in Brooklyn Transit and United States Reduction preferred, 1⅜ in Union Pacific, 1¼ in D. & H. and 1 in B. & O., United States Steel preferred, Amalgamated Copper and Locomotive. Gratis that were established in the first few minutes of business were much reduced or completely wiped out later. This included a point in International Pump, 1⅜ in Smelting and Lead and 1⅛ to 1¾ in Northern Pacific, Colorado & Southern first preferred and Consolidated Gas.

Support was effective for a time in holding prices, but stocks came out in volume again and made a lower average than before. Reading and D. & H. fell 2¼, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred 2, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 1¾, Sloss Sheffield Steel 1⅜ and Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Wisconsin Central, Republic Steel preferred, Colorado Fuel and General Electric 3. Pulman advanced 2½. Bonds were steady at noon.

Spirited buying of the principal metal stocks gradually diffused a strong tone throughout the general market and there was a substantial rally which brought the average of prices up to yesterday's closing level or above. St. Paul, Union Pacific and Copper were among the prominent stocks that sold a fraction above last night's closing, and the loss in Reading was reduced to ½ a point. Smelting improved 2⅜; Lead, 3; Distillers Securities, 2¾; Anaconda and Northern Pacific, 2, and Colorado Fuel and Corn Products, 1.

Traders sold stocks bought earlier in the day, but this selling exerted only a momentary repressive effect and by 2 o'clock the market was ruling at the best. Northern Pacific rose 1; Anaconda, 1½; Colorado Fuel, 3, and St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Louisville & Nashville and Copper, 1.

The tone became irregular owing to the mixture of sellin gto realize in some stocks and buying at advances in others. Northern Pacific's gain reached 5; Canadian Southern, 2¾; New York C. & St. L., 1½, and Union Pacific, New York Central, 1. There was renewed realizing in Reading, Brooklyn Transit and at some other points, and the close was rather easy.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Company: The market closed strong, though the close shows a general easing off. For a time it seemed as if we were in for a reaction, but market advanced quite sharply. We have had a sharp recovery from our recent depression and it seems as if the period of history had been passed. It is reasonable to suppose that the short interest has pretty well covered, and stocks bought for supporting purposes are being fed out on the advances. It seems as if a reaction was due and the action of the market right at the close would indicate that the active stocks are still on sale on the bulges.

* * *

New York to Baker: Get your friends on the bull side of the stock market on every setback. We look for higher prices than ever, and a good bull market when congress adjourns, if not before.

* * *

New York to Pringle, Fitch & Rankin: Bears have money left and are still aggressive enough to fight every advance, so it is doubtful if the recent advance has reduced the short interest very much. It seems likely we will see higher prices today, but if they get going too fast would take some profit on the long side merely for a turn. This only in case of further advance, however, and would not sell on any weak spots.

* * *

Falker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was generally strong and active and traders bid stocks up. Pools were active in bidding up their stocks. There was a little halt in the middle of the day, but it did not amount to much and in the afternoon there was further buying. Prices eased up before the close, but on the whole the market acted very well and most of the floor traders were very bullish. The advance has been quite rapid, but on reactions the market looks like a purchase.

* * *

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: In spite of very heavy realizing, the market held its own today and at times showed decided strength with prices going to the highest points of the recovery. It was weak at the closing, when a court of appeals' decision adverse to some of Brooklyn Rapid Transit's franchise made that stock heavy and had sympathetic effect on the general list. The market on the whole, however, was quite professional. Fractional net advances were the rule.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The interest in copper continues and the market is gradually becoming broader. Shannon was the most active feature today, selling up to 9⅞ and closing at the top. Copper Range was very strong and the stock seems scarce. North Butte showed heavy transactions, but the stock is coming out freely around this price. The position of the metal is stronger than ever, and we will probably have a good traders' market for some time to come, and there is no danger in buying the good copper stocks whenever they are weak.

* * *

Charles Hayden to Baker: This North Butte is going to be a speculative favorite and a good trading stock. I advised yesterday its sale speculatively at 93, and now think on a fair reaction you can take it up again.

New York Money.

New York, May 9.—Money on call, steady; 3½@4¼ per cent; ruling rate, 4; closing bid, 3; offered at 3½. Time loans, easier; 60 days, 5½; 90 days, 5¼@5½ per cent; 6 months, 5¼. Bar silver, 67c; Mexican dollars, 51c. Government bonds, weak; railroad bonds, steady.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, May 9.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $159,825,413; gold, $57,736,442; gold certificates, $37,924,865.

St. Paul Live Stock

St. Paul, May 9.—Cattle—Receipts 800; steady. Grain-fed steers, $3.50@5.50; cows and heifers, $2.50@4.50; calves, $1.50@4.25; stock steers, $2.50@4; feeders, $3@4.50. Hogs—Receipts 4,500; steady. Range, $6.05@6.25; bulk, $6.15. Sheep—Receipts 1,200; steady. Sheep, $3.75@5; lambs, $4@6.35.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 9.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points, the gains being on the near propositions, which were influenced by cables, while favorable weather in the South checked the nervance in the new crop options. Prices held steady during the middle of the morning, ranging about 1@2 points net higher. Trading was moderately active.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 15 points higher; mid ups, 11.95; do gulf, 12.20. Futures closed firm; May, 11.34; June, 11.18; July, 11.18; August, 11.01; September, 10.76; October, 10.71; November, 10.70; December, 10.71; January, 10.75; February, 10.77; March, 10.81.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

THE CLIMAX BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION

Desires Applications for Loans of any Sum from $300 to $3,000 on Home Properties. No Commission.

It can close without delay total approved applications of $10,000

One association in Youngstown, Ohio, (a city smaller than Duluth,) loaned last year over $600,000, the greater part of which was made for purposes of buying or building homes.

The system employed by that association made the borrowers pay about $5 more for a loan of $1,000, repaid in five years than a similar loan in the Climax Building & Loan association.

WEST DULUTH

DROWNS IN TUB OF WATER

Year Old Child of Matt Olson Meets Death Peculiarly.

Falls in Few Inches of Bluing Water—Mother Was Absent.

A 1-year-old child was drowned in a tub of bluing water in West Duluth yesterday afternoon. Only about six or seven inches of water was in the tub, but the little one smothered to death before its mother found it.

The child was that of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Olson of 6311 Redruth street. Olson works in the roundhouse at Proctor. Yesterday Mrs. Olson was engaged in doing the family washing and shortly after noon, while engaged in hanging the clothes out to dry after having rinsed them out of the tub of bluing water, she left the baby in the kitchen where it had been playing about while she was busy. She heard no noise or anything to attract her attention, but after hanging out the clothes went in to see about the child, and found its little heels sticking up over the side of the tub, while its face was under the water.

She did everything possible to resuscitate the child and sent for Dr. Graham, but before he could reach the house, the child was dead. The mother is almost frantic with grief and although the circumstances are such that she cannot very well lay blame to herself, she is so blaming herself and cannot be comforted.

ROAD FROM PROCTOR

From Bay View Heights Said to be in Bad Condition.

Attention was called to the condition of the sidewalk between Proctor and Bay View Heights at the council meeting Monday night and some steps will probably be taken to remedy the bad condition in which it is.

There is some agitation to help matters on the roadway between these two places. It is claimed that the road is at times absolutely impassable if one's personal safety is to be considered. A little rain will make the road a bog and it is filled with ruts and dangerous places. A light buggy simply cannot be driven over it during such times. It is hoped that the city will take some steps to fix it up.

Teams from the Duluth wholesale and jobbing houses at times cannot go over the road to carry their stuff to the retailers at Proctor.

ASKS A REPLY.

Northern Pacific Requested to Grant or Reject at Once.

At the council meeting Monday night, Alderman Barnes had a resolution passed requesting the city clerk to write to the Northern Pacific road asking it to answer the city's communication regarding a right of way to the proposed Ramsey street dock. The matter was referred to the Northern Pacific quite a long time ago and the road officials in St. Paul wrote back several weeks ago asking for a proper description of the property. This was sent them and that was the last heard of the matter.

Mr. Barnes, as well as a good many others, believe that the road officials have had plenty of time to look into the matter and answer. If they will not give the right of way asked, it is believed that they should at least so notify the city authorities more quickly than has been done.

YOUNG GOULD MEETS DEFEAT

London, May 9.—At the Queen's club today after a splendid series of victories against the leading British covered court tennis experts, Jay Gould of Lakewood, N. J., today went down before the world's champion, Eustace Miles, in the championship round, the latter winning the match by three sets to one.

The American champion started splendidly and won the first set by 6-4, but thereafter Miles' perfect condition seemed to tell. The champion set a tremendous pace and Gould was palpably tired. The second set fell easily to Miles by 6-1.

In the third set Gould made a great fight and though the set fell ultimately to Miles by 6-4, some of the best tennis seen here in years was played in it.

The fourth set also went to Miles, 6-2.

UNION TEMPLE.

New Dance Hall Will Merit Splendid Patronage.

Duluth has a new dance hall, the Union Temple, formerly known as the Oddfellows' hall, 18 Lake avenue north. The hall has been thoroughly renovated and refitted and will be one of the best lighted and modern in the Northwest, the floor being exceptionally fine. Dances will be given each week, notices of which will be given in the daily papers. Special rates will be granted to private parties. Arrangements can be made at the hall, Room 2, between 5 and 10 p. m., daily, or by Zenith phone 1248. It is the intention of the management to conduct all affairs on strictly business principles, with courteous treatment to all.

THE RELIEF WORK OF THE SALVATION ARMY IS SEVERELY CRITICISED

At Annual Conference of Charities and Corrections.

The Work Poorly Organized and Poorly Administered.

Said to be Largely Subservient to Financial Interests.

Philadelphia, May 10.—The first business session of the thirty-third national conference of Charities and Corrections opened today in Horticultural hall. After the presentation of the report of L. K. Frankel, manager of the United Hebrew charities of New York, a paper on "Relief Work of the Salvation Army" was read by Edwin D. Solenberger, general manager of the Associated Charities of Minneapolis. He declared that the social relief work of the Salvation Army, as carried on through its homes, lodging houses and other agencies, is poorly organized and poorly administered, and that the "so-called charitable work of the army is largely subservient to financial interests."

Continuing, the speaker said:

"One of the chief difficulties in trying to arrive at definite conclusions concerning the army's work is untrustworthiness of their statistics, probably due largely to lack of uniformity in recording and summarizing data.

"For instance, the 1906 report says that outside employment was found for about 44,508, while the 1905 report says that 14,507 found outside employment, and an undated leaflet says that 50,000 found outside employment during the year.

"I find that, somehow, most people have gained the impression that the army has a large number of farm colonies, and that thousands of poor people from the slums have been transferred to them. There are at present but three colonies, one each in Ohio, Colorado and California, having a total of but 550 people. These colonies have become self-supporting, but it would be interesting to know what percentage of them, while living in the city, had been recipients of either public or private relief, or even dwellers in what the Slavation Army calls the 'Slums.'

"The Salvation army maintains at present about seventy-four lodging houses in our various cities, furnishing beds at the rate of 10 and 15 cents a night. In its appeals for funds the army speaks of "lodging thousands of homeless," and most people gain the impression that such lodgings are, in part at least, a charity, and that the accommodations furnished are much superior to those of the ordinary cheap lodging house, run for private profit. Reliable information from a large number of typical American cities indicates that the system of cheap lodging houses conducted by the army have all the defects of the poorest of the privately owned lodging houses and few, if any, advantages over them. Recently in an Eastern city a Salvation army lodging house was closed when the local board of health began to enforce the sanitary ordinances, while from widel yseparated cities come accounts of specific glaring evils.

"It is exceedingly difficult," said Mr. Solenberger, "to secure satisfactory information about the financial affairs of the Salvation army.

"The balance sheet and statement of the accounts at national headquarters in New York city are gone over each year by a certified public accountant, but this only guarantees that the footing and the balances are correct.

"The business affairs of the Salvation army are rapidly attaining large proportions, and those who give financial support to the organization certainly have a right to expect clear financial statements."

LEITER SUSPENDED FROM CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE.

Chicago, May 10.—Announcement was made yesterday that Joseph Leiter, who carried on a spectacular "corner" in wheat eight years ago, has been suspended from the Chicago board of tarde. Leiter's suspension, it is said, followed complaints from a trader, that a bill for $8,000 for services rendered during the wheat "corner" is still unpaid. Mr. Leiter does not seem to care much about his suspension. "I never go there anyway," he said last night.

He admitted that there are four or five old accounts that have not been settled, but declared that they will be padd as soon as his creditors become "reasonable."

W. B. ANDERSON IS TO LOCATE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Winona, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. B. Anderson, a prominent attorney of this city and member of the legislature, has decided to leave Winona the first of June and locate in Minneapolis. He has formed a partnership with Harlan P. Roberts of that city and will continue the practice of law.

FINDS FOR DEFENDANT

Cleveland-Cliffs Company Loses Its Appeal to Circuit Court.

Decision Affirms Verdict for East Itasca Mining Company.

St. Paul, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an opinion written by Judge Adams, handed down in the United States circuit court of appeals yesterday, the lower court, which held for the defendant, is affirmed in the case of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company against the East Itasca Mining company. The iron company sued to recover $92,000 alleged to have been paid the defendants by mistake as excessive consideration for an assignment of two mining leases.

The leases were assigned pursuant to a preliminary contract entered into on July 8, 1902. By this contract the iron company agreed to explore the lands covered by the leases for traces of iron ore. The mining company owned thirty-year leases on the property and had been conducting exploirations for iron ore for some time prior to that date. By the terms of the contract the iron company agreed to explore the lands within six months and at the expiration of that time pay the mining company 7 cents per gross ton of 2,240 pounds for all iron ore discovered and shown to exist on the lands which averaged 56 per cent or better in iron.

The explorations were conducted, the leases assigned and the money paid, and this action is now brought to recover the alleged excessive payment. It is asserted that the unexpected discovery of taconite in the strata which was not disclosed by the examination of the ore specimens produced by the drilling, did not disclose the real substances brought out by the operation of the drills. It is asserted that taconite being very light in weight did not settle to the bottom of the water as did the other ore and hence its presence was not discovered until later.

The defendant asserts that the contract created the conclusive criterion for settling the price of the leases and that the price conformed accurately with the criterion and that if any mistake was made it was one of judgment in agreeing upon the criterion.

The court holds that the contract shows that the presence of taconite was recognized as a possibility and that this was a contingency similar to other uncertain features in the contract, by which the amount of ore in the lands was to be ascertained, the undertaking being in its nature somewhat speculative, the ascertaining of the amount of ore in the ground being under the contract only approximately ascertainable.

NEW FRISCO TO BE QUAKE PROOF

An Expert Investigation Teaches Best Way to Rebuild City.

New York, May 10.—Latest authentic reports from San Francisco confirm the opinion of experts as to the ability of the modern steel structure in withstanding both fire and earthquake. A commission which has been out to investigate has found that, almost without exception, the steel frame buildings were still standing. Where they had been attacked by fire, the damage was mostly confined to the contents.

The big office buildings which were at first reported to have been entirely destroyed, have been found comparatively undamaged. The Chronicle, Mills, Crocker, Mutual Life and Union Trust buildings, which were of hollow tile and steel construction, are but little injured and will soon be ready for occupancy again. It was found that the earthquake had but slight effect upon them, and that the fire which subsequently swept through them merely wiped out fittings and furniture. The walls, floors and partitions were left intact.

The great conflagrations at Baltimore, Rochester and Toronto emphasized the effectiveness of the protracted steel and hollow tile structure in withstanding fire. The disaster at San Francisco has shown that it is equally effective in resisting earthquake, and it is the general belief that this is the type of construction which will be used in rebuilding San Francisco.

New buildings of this type are already going up. A few days ago the directors of the Humboldt bank met and decided to go ahead as fast as possible on the new bank which will be located on Market street, near Fourth. It is to be a 17-story structure, into which will go $500,000 in steel and hollow tile.

Work on the new Chronicle building has also been resumed. The ten stories which had been completed when the disaster came were found to be entirely undamaged. The new building is to be a magnificent structure twenty stories high. It is believed that this and the Humboldt bank will be the first completed of the type of buildings which owners are putting up especially to avoid any recurrence of the recent disaster.

The future City of the Golden Gate will be both fire-proof and earthquake-proof, if the plans which architects and builders are making are carried out. The buildings which stood against both blaze and seismic disturbance will be the models for the new city as well as for the future "unburnable city," wherever it is built.

THE CZAR OPENS NEW PARLIAMENT WITHOUT AN UNTOWARD INCIDENT

Visits Winter Palace First Time in Fifteen Months.

Royal Party Comes Nearly All the Way by Water.

After Opening the Emperor Returns at Once to Peteroff.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—The emperor's reception by the people at the opening of parliament passed off without any untoward incident.

The tone of the speech from the throne was conciliatory. It expressed the emperor's wish that relief be given to the peasants in their present unfortunate conditions, and called on the members of parliament to put their hearts into their work and to co-operate with him in solving the present problems of Russia, and in handing down a united and prosperous empire to his successor.

The emperor and the empress, after, leaving the palace, entered a launch, passed down the river, boarded the imperial yacht, Alexandra, and returned to Peterhoff.

The crowds on the banks of the river and islands heartily cheered the imperial party. There was no other incident.

The members of the lower house of parliament, after the ceremonies at the palace, embarked on steamers and went up the river, landing at the Tauride palace where the house will assemble.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—An ideal May day like a happy augury greeted the uprising of the curtain for the new act of the great historical drama, Russia's struggle for liberty. Never did the showy northern capital of Peter the Great present a more brilliant picture than for the inauguration of the Russian parliament. Just a suspicion of haze hung over the gulf, softening the outlines and giving the scene a touch of fairyland. The city, spreading out over the numerous green islands in the river, seemed swimming in a flood of light. The broad, swift-flowing Neva, with arms outstretched to the sea and the interlacing canals were turned to azure by the reflecting blue of the heavens, while the golden domes of the churches, the spires of the admiralty and the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress and the shining minarets of the palaces seemed to float above the mass of yellow buildings. Besides, the metropolis was dressed bridelike, awaiting the coming of her lord. The yellow imperial standard with the double-headed eagle flew from the winter palace, flags by order of the police were displayed from every house and streams of multi-colored pennants fluttered from the yachts and shipping in the harbor. Even the tiny passenger boats which thread the rivers and canals, the street cars and many cabs carried the Russian colors. The banks, stores, schools, and some of the factories were closed in honor of the occasion, but there was no general holiday, the government specifically discouraging a suspension of work in the industrial districts owing to fear that crowding the workmen into the center of the city might provoke collisions, disorders and perhaps bloodshed. There was something distinctly awe-inspiring about the day, which visions of chains falling from another branch of the human race and the Russian people taking up the march of modern civilization. The representatives of the Russian millions and the Russian emperor were at last face to face and the result was to determine the fate of the nation and country stretching from Germany to the Pacific, to the Polar seas and to the burning sands of Central Asia.

Notwithstanding the mutual distrust of the government and people, there was not lacking the hope that the foundation of a sincere understanding between the emperor and his subjects would be laid strong and deep today. It was the attitude of mutual suspicion which constituted the great, jarring note on this occasion. It could not be concealed. It was apparent everywhere.

The city might have been in a state of siege, so heavy was the array of troops. Not only were detachments of infantry, cavalry and gendarmes stationed at strategic points, but large reserves were massed in the court yards of the public buildings.

Early in the morning the palace square resembled a field camp, two regiments of guards having bivouaced there all night. At daylight battalions of police took possession of all the approaches to the palace for the distance of a third of a mile and all day no one was allowed to pass the lines without tickets. The draw of the Nicholas bridge from Vasili island was opened and the palace bridge, which rests on pontoons, was allowed to swing down the current so as to permit the imperial yachts bearing their majesties and the court from Peterhof to pass up the river to the landing stage in front of the Winter palace. A flotilla of police patrol boats, several low-lying torpedo boats and a number of oarel galleys cleared the river as far as the palace of all moving craft.

Like all great state functions in holy Russia, the ceremonies began with religious services. At 10 o'clock in the morning the whole city reverberated with bells and chimes from St. Petersburg's myriad of cathedrals, churches and temples, summoning the people to thanksgiving. Only those who have heard the booming of the bells of St. Isaac's cathedral, striking bass to the tintinnabulations of the other belfries, can appreciate the savage splendor of the wild clangor. Not only at St. Petersburg but at Kremlin of Moscow bells were rung and te deums were celebrated, thus giving the occasion the solemn, religious as well as civic significance necessary to impress the Russian masses.

While the bells were still ringing the imperial yacht Alexandra with the imperial standard at the fore moved majestically up the river, dipping her flag in answer to the salutes and cheers from the emperor's warships lying at the Baltic works. Instead of proceeding to the Winter palace the yacht stopped at the landing stage of the English quay, below the Nicholas bridge and in front of Leuchtenberg palace, formerly the American embassy, where the emperor, the empress and the dowager empress entered a launch and attended by a launch on each flank, moved on up the river. The members of the court made the remainder of the journey to the Winter palace in carriages, escorted by a troop of clattering horse guards.

The emperor's arrival was not heralded by the customary salute of 301 guns and for that reason the passage of the river hardly attracted the notice of the thousands of spectators who were waiting along the islands in the river.

Without halting at the Winter palace, the launches crossed the river, and their majesties landed under the grim walls of the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress, which they entered by the imperial water terrace, driving hurriedly to the immense cathedral inside the walls, where repose the remains of the Romanoffs. There, before the tombs of the emperor's ancestors, the imperial family knelt for twenty minutes, made their devotions, and asked for the blessing and guidance of the Almighty. As their majesties, after their devotions, returned to the terrace and re-entered the launch, the faint echo of a cheer swept up the

Which Were Paid J. O'Shaughnessy is Bechtel's Testimony.

Insurance Man Gives Details the Alleged Extortion.

Minneapolis, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. F. Bechtel told on the witness stand late yesterday afternoon how he claimed to have paid $5,000 to John O'Shaughnessy, former insurance commissioner in 1900, as the price of a favorable report on National Mutual Life and Northwestern National Life which Bechtel was trying to consolidate at the time.

The examination was made in the spring of 1900 and the report was ready in April.

Bechtel said O'Shaughnessy met him at the West hotel and said he needed money, about $5,000 would be enough. Bechtel protested that it was extortion.

O'Shaughnessy, said Bechtel, replied that he was not in the business for his health.

He said he could make or break both companies.

"Later," continued Bechtel, "I met him in a room in the Windsor, St. Paul, and again tried to dissuade him. He said, "there are two of us and we must have money."

The next Sunday Bechtel called a special meeting of National Mutual directors. Z. H. Austin, one of the board, suggested that they give O'Shaughnessy marked bills and have him arrested for extortion.

Bechtel drew his personal check for $2,500 and Wallace Campbell one for the same amount. They cashed the checks and turned them into currency and marked the bills.

They met O'Shaughnessy at the Ryan by appointment and Bechtel went to his room while Campbell and Judge A. A. Kerr waited in the lobby.

In the room O'Shaughnessy counted the money several times. Campbell, as Bechtel had planned, knocked at the door, but O'Shaughnessy would not let anybody in.

After the count O'Shaughnessy said, "Let's have a highball," but Bechtel was not drinking and the party broke up.

DEATH OF MAX STRUM BEING INVESTIGATED.

Minneapolis, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Investigation is being made of the death of Max A. Sturm, aged 35, the advertising agent, who died Wednesday at his home, 123 Eleventh avenue, south.

The death certificate was for heart failure, but an autopsy showed inflammation of the intestinal tract, and an analysis of the contents of the stomach is being made.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. C. Nottnagel, the family physician, with Coroner C. W. Kistler.

Mr. Sturm went home to lunch Wednesday noon, complained of feeling bad, went into the next room to lie down and was dead almost immediately.

STEEL CEILINGS COLLAPSE.

Accident at Polk County Jail, But No One Injured.

Crookston, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the installation of an engine in the new addition to the Polk county jail an excavation by the side of the central iron pier caused the foundation of the pier to slip, and the steel ceilings with brick arches collapsed. The collapse occurred at 11 o'clock last night, and had it taken place while the men were at work there would have been several fatalities.

BANK EMPLOYES ARE TO MEET IN DEBATE.

Chicago, May 10.—Three employes of Chicago banking institutions will meet in debate three Milwaukee bank employes at the Calumet club, Milwaukee, Saturday evening.

The subject to be debated is: "Resolved, that national banks should be allowed to loan on real estate."

The Chicago debaters will take the affirmative side of the argument.

METHODIST CONFERENCE TO MEET IN OCTOBER.

Minneapolis, May 10.—The Minnesota M. E. conference will meet in St. Paul Oct. 3, with Bishop (Chaplain) C. C. McCabe presiding.

The Northern Minnesota conference will meet on the same date in Minneapolis in charge of Bishop Luther B. Wilson of Chattanooga.

Adding Machine Patent Sustained.

The extended litigation between the manufacturers of the Comptometer, Felt & Tarrant Manufacturing Company, Chicago, and the Mechanical Accountant Company of Providence, R. I., terminated May 4th in a decision of the United States circuit court of appeals, at Boston, broadly sustaining an important Felt patent on adding and calculating machines, and ordering a decree for an injunction.

Vesselmen and Workmen Lose About Half a Million Each.

Diversion of Traffic and Demoralization Make Up Rest.

Chicago, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the longshoremen's strike at an end, figures were made today showing a total loss from the strike of nearly $2,000,000. Of this sum, vesselmen were down for $500,000 in freights; longshoremen and other workers, who were forced out by the embargo on traffic, contributed over $600,000, and the rest is made up of losses from diversion of traffic and demoralization of business, from which it will take commerce a long time to recover.

For over a month the grain trade has been diverted from the lake route for fear of a general tie-up May 1. Millions of bushels of grain have gone to the gulf of Mexico, or direct to the Atlantic seaboard, which under ordinary conditions would have gone down the lakes. The merchandise lines have suffered in the same way, and it will take a considerable period before the traffic will flow back in the old channels. Some of it will never come back, the loss being permanent.

INTERCHANGEABLE MILEAGE BOOKS

Will be Sold by Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

St. Paul, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officials of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads are out with the announcement of the issue of an interchangeable mileage book, good on the lines of both systems, in prescribed territory in Minnesota and North and South Dakota, effective June 1. One kind of book will be a 5,000-mile ticket, at $100, or flat 2-cent a mile rate, and the other a 3,000-mile ticket, at a rate of 2½ cents a mile, or $75, with a rebate of $15 if the ticket is used in its entirety by the purchaser making a net rate of 2 cents a mile, or $60. The tickets will also be honored on the Minnesota & International railway, the Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth, Missabe & Northern railways. The territory prescribed for the use of the tickets on both roads is:

On all lines of the Great Northern and Willmar & Sioux Falls railways, east of Mondak, Mont., but not including the line west of the Missouri river from Sioux City, Iowa, to O'Neill, Neb. On all lines of the Northern Pacific, from Beach Mont to Ashland, Wis. An excess baggage book, equal in value to $60 will be sold for $48, good in the same territory.

SHAKE UP AT HOUGHTON.

Manager Cassiboine is Making Many Changes in His Ball Team.

Houghton, Mich., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The shake-up in the Houghton team has already begun, and although Manager Cassiboine has not yet handed any of the men their releases, it is certain that the ax will fall within a few days.

Beecher, a pitcher from Terre Haute, has arrived in the city, as has Donovan, an outfielder from the same city. Frank Smith, a catcher, has also put in his appearance and Eddy, a pitcher, is due to arrive today. The general impression about town is that of the squad which played with Hancock Sunday, only Brand, Taylor, Sundhim and Hastings will be in the lineup on May 17. Beyond the fact that he will keep those four, Manager Cassiboine will give out nothing official as to his intentions but developments are expected within a day or two.

Charles Stewart, a new catcher, has arrived in Hancock, and joined Manager Wreath's squad.

FRENCH POLICE LOOK UP BOMB THROWERS.

Paris, May 10.—The police authorities continue to make active investigations and are seeking to connect the recent bomb explosions with a widespread Nihilist organization. This has led to a number of unconfirmed reports that these bombs were intended to be used on the occasion of the opening of the Russian parliament today, to blow up the new Russian ministers and other distinguished Russian personages. All this, however, is simply conjectural. The police are not disclosing the results of their inquiry but they declare that they believe they are on the trail of an extensive revolutionary organization.

DOCKSTADER'S MINSTRELS.

So ingenious has Lew Dockstador been in creating novel and unique methods of making fun in his minstrel show that it has caused many to remark that he might have made his fortune as an inventor of practical utilities. The latest production of his inventive genius is a mechanical interlocutor.

An interlocutor presides over the first part of the minstrel show, until after the first appearance of Dockstader himself. Scarcely have more than one or two gags been given by two men, when a quarrel ensues, and the interlocutor declares that if he could only change places with Dockstader, he could make the people laugh more than the best jokesmith himself. Dockstader is pleased with the idea, and makes the change. The interlocutor fails most dismally to get a laugh, and he is dismissed instanter by Dockstader, declaring that the show cannot go on without an interlocutor, and as there is no one else present to fill the bill, he introduces his mechanical handy man. The exchange is a most laughable success. Just what it is will not be told now. It would be like telling the point of a story first. It will doubtless prove a happy surprise to the audience that will see Dockstader, when he appears with his best minstrel show on earth at the Lyceum, Friday and Saturday.

BIJOU'S FINE BILL.

The bill at the Bijou this week is arousing all sorts of enthusiasm in the patrons of the popular home of vaudeville down the street. The entertainment is worthy of the manifestations of approvals which are made, for it is one of the best of the season.

"The Doll Maker's Dilemma" is the title of the act presented by the Roberts Four, the headline act of the week. The turn is extremely dainty, and has not been presented to unappreciative eyes this week. Bobby Mack is rather funny, and his turn is well received, as is that of Addison & Livingstone, who do a comedy sketch.

Others who make merry are Thelma DeVen, the Washburns, Zeno and Moroylong, who sings, "Can't You See I'm Lonely," to the accompaniment of colored views. The moving pictures are of a moose hunt.

IS AGAIN BRIDE OF MAN SHE DIVORCED.

South Bend, Ind., May 10.—Handsome Alta Conger-Schafer-Hooper, niece of Edwin M. Conger, former minister to China, has again ventured upon the matrimonial sea.

Announcement of her fourth marriage reached South Bend yesterday from Washington, where she became for the second time the bride of Bertrand Hooper. Intense surprise is shown over the wedding.

Less than two months ago Judge Coolidge of the Berrien Springs circuit court granted Mrs. Hooper a divorce, ordering the husband to pay alimony to the amount of $25 a month during the lifetime of the complainant and her three children; that the wife should have the contents of the home; that Hooper should have his life insured for $5,000 in favor of his divorced wife and the children; that the wife should have the children, and within one year Hooper was to provide his wife and children with a modern home within 100 miles of New York.

MRS. F. B. HARRISON LEFT $4,000,000 ESTATE.

New York, May 10.—The late Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, who was killed Nov. 25 by being thrown from an automobile on Long Island, left an estate valued at more than $4,000,000, according to an appraiser's report filed in the surrogate's office yesterday.

Mrs. Harrison's gross personal estate in this state amounts to $3,212,000, consisting principally of stocks and bonds of the Lackwanna Steel, Crocker estate, Pennsylvania railroad and the various MacKay corporations. The real estate held by Mrs. Harrison in this state is appraised at $758,000.

The net personal estate amounts to $3,082,000, deductions for the expense of administration, amounting to $130,000, having been made. Under the terms of the will, Mrs. Harrison's entire fortune except a few minor bequests, goes to her husband, Francis Burton Harrison, and her two daughters. Mr. Harrison and Henry T. Scott are the executors.

GEN. WASHBURN MEETS THE CZAR

St. Petersburg, May 10.—Former Senator William D. Washburn of Minnesota was received in audience by Emperor Nicholas yesterday. The czar looked pale, but healthy and serene. In the course of his conversation with the senator he said:

"I desire a renewal of old friendship between the United States and Russia and closer commercial relations. Russia is a field for American enterprise. I like America and admire the Americans. I believe President Roosevelt is a great man and that the establishment of peace with Japan was in great part due to him. Please convey to him my sincere regards."

The audience lasted about twenty minutes. After the audience the Americans were invited to lunch together with a number of courtiers and members of the new cabinet. The cabinet members all said that the court was reconciled to the idea of a constitution and if the democratic majority keeps within the platform adopted at yesterday's party convention, peace and prosperity will be the result. If, on the other hand, the douma indulges in excesses, the consequence, they said, would be a revolution eclipsing that in France, and said the government is prepared for all emergencies.

PLANNED SUICIDE AND TWO MURDERS.

St. Peter, Minn., May 10.—It has been learned that Joseph Choudek, who committed suicide at his home near Montgomery, tried to poison two other persons before taking his own life. Choudek was an inmate of the St. Peter hospital for the insane, but escaped several weeks ago and made his way across country to his home.

Last week he sent his son-in-law to the village for a bottle of alcohol, and when the liquor was given him he went into an adjoining room and mixed poison with it. On his return he offered the poison to his son-in-law and a nephew, and each swallowed a small quantity. Choudek then drank the greater part of the contents of the bottle, dropped to the floor and expired almost immediately.

Although the other men suffered severely from the effects of the poison, they were in no real danger, owing to the small quantity they had taken.

IS ARISING FROM ASHES

Joseph Nylander Home From San Francisco—People Courageous.

Plenty of Work for Laborers But None for Mechanics.

Joseph Nylander arrived last evening from Oakland, Cal., and will be here for some time. His family is still there, and his wife is determined to remain, liking her California home immensely in spite of the seismic disturbances.

The Herald, some time ago, recounted Mr. Nylander's experiences from letters he wrote to friends here. He left Oakland Wednesday of last week, and says that affairs were progressing remarkably well in San Francisco. He was over there the day before he left to get money from the Wells-Fargo bank. The bank is now established in one of the Nob hill mansions. The walls have been covered with sheets, to protect them, and the handsome rooms have been turned into business apartments. To get his money he had to take a place in line, and it was an hour and a half before he could be waited upon.

No permits for permanent structures are being given, and only temporary ones are being erected. It is the intention to remodel the city, and widen many of the streets. The courage of the people is wonderful, and they are one and all declaring that San Francisco will arise from its ashes and destruction greater than ever.

At the present time there is plenty of work for common laborers, but Mr. Nylander does not think there will be very much for mechanics to do for several months, and would advise all to keep away from there for the time being. The middle class of people will suffer greatest in the meantime. Lawyers and real estate men are hit hard, and clerks are in a very bad way, for while temporary stores have been established, they cannot employ but a tenth part of the people they were using before the disaster.

Rooms in Oakland are in great demand. San Francisco real estate and other business men are renting front rooms of Oakland houses for offices, and at high rates.

The regular soldiers are highly commended by all the people, and their rigid orders to shoot down all ghouls and robbers saved the city from an awful pillage by the criminals. The militia are the subject of terrific condemnation, however. Mr. Nylander says it was freely asserted that they took advantage of their orders to compel men to work to gratify their personal spite and little animosities. In many cases militiamen were known to force men to do work they were physically unable to, simply because the victim happened to be some rich or influential man, and it delighted the militiamen to be able to make him grub in the dirt.

An earthquake is as freaky as a cyclone, and more terrible, says Mr. Nylander. There are people who claim they were not frightened, but he says he is sure they are not telling the truth.

"I have been shipwrecked," says Mr. Nylander, and I have been pitched and tossed in the waves, when it seemed that every moment would be our last, and yet I was not fearful of what was to come, but when this earthquake came, I was thoroughly frightened. You simply could not tell when it would come again, and when it did you could not tell what it would do. It was the uncertainty that was so terrifying. I was able to preserve an outward coolness, and had to to calm my family, but all the same I was thoroughly frightened."

After the early morning shocks had subsided, and things had calmed down somewhat, Mr. Nylander made some coffee, and provided a small breakfast. A Salvation Army ensign nearby was invited in, and Mr. Nylander, as they sat down, asked him to give thanks for their preservation. The ensign was just saying, "Almighty God, we thank Thee for having brought us through this terrible ordeal——" when the 8:15 shock came, the table rocked, the floor shook and the ensign and all the family leaped through the door and some through the windows.

There were many strenous moments.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE CATARRH OF KIDNEYS AND DON'T KNOW IT.

Backache, a Warning Symptom of Kidney Trouble.

Pe-ru-na Is Invaluable in Such Cases.

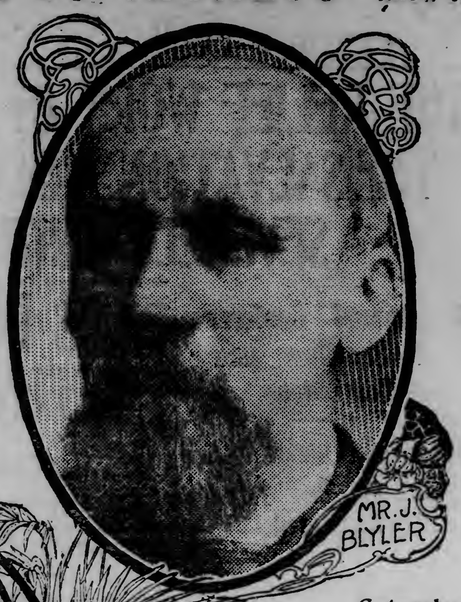
Prominent Persons Who Have Been Cured.

Mr. J. Blyler, 1505 Ohio street, Des Moines, Ia., writes:

"I wish to state my appreciation of your excellent remedy.

"I have always enjoyed excellent health, except frequent and painful attacks of bladder trouble, which doctors failed to relieve or cure.

"Upon recommendation I used Peruna to my utter satisfaction, not having had an attack now for four or five years."—J. Blyler.



Dangerous Kidney Diseases Cured.

When the kidneys become affected by catarrh, either from colds, overwork, or an extension of catarrh from some other organ, they fail to perform their normal functions.

It is the work of the kidneys to excrete from the blood many of the poisons which accumulate in the body.

If the kidneys fail in their work, the poisons accumulate to such an extent as to cause convulsions, which often prove fatal.

Peruna, by relieving the kidneys of their congested and catarrhal conditions, leaves them free to act in a normal manner.

It also strengthens the action of the heart, equalizing the circulation of the blood in all parts of the system.

A remedy that relieves catarrhal derangements of the kidneys should certainly be considered a household remedy. Peruna is such a remedy.

Catarrh of Kidneys Caused Much Suffering.

Mr. Leopold Brandl, 246 Bleecker street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I was sick three months with catarrh of the kidneys and lungs. I was treated by my home physician and relieved to some extent, but after I had worked again for two weeks, my old suffering—backache and pains in the right lung—returned. The dreadful cough which bothered me day and night lasted six months and no one could help me.

"I tried three different patent medicines, without avail. I could scarcely eat anything and slept only a few hours each night.

"A friend told me to take Peruna. I did so and the second day my appetite had improved. I took a tenspoonful of Peruna every hour, day and night, for three weeks. Now I have taken five bottles. I can eat enough for two people and am able to sleep well.

"Whenever I meet a sick person, I advise him to take Peruna. I thank you a thousand times for your medicine, as it was the only remedy that saved me. We continue to keep it in our family."—Leopold Brandl.

High Commendation For Pe-ru-na.

Mr. C. B. Fizer, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past.

"Last March I commenced using your Peruna and continued for three months.

"I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Neglected catarrh of the kidneys is apt to develop into Bright's Disease or diabetes, when a cure is almost an impossibility.

We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements we are receiving every month.

No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Peruna.

Revised Formula.

"For a number of years requests have come to me from a multitude of grateful friends, urging that Peruna be given a slight laxative quality. I have been experimenting with a laxative addition for quite a length of time, and now feel gratified to announce to the friends of Peruna that I have incorporated such a quality in the medicine which, in my opinion, can only enhance its well-known beneficial character. ANOTHER COLONY

Of Grand Forks People to be Established Near Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., May 10.—(Special to Herald.)—Sidney Clarke, N. G. Benner, L. H. Carter, O. J. Barnes, W. H. Hyam, D. W. Luke, I. B. Holmes and I. C. Griffith, are a party of Grand Forks business men who were here the past two days looking over some land which they recently purchased at the head of Lake Bemidji and making arrangements to spend the summer months here. These gentlemen recently purchased a plot of fifty acres on the extreme north shore of Lake Bemidji, and they intend to establish a new Grand Forks colony at that point. Mayor A. A. Carter has been with the gentlemen, and has been of material aid to them in letting contracts for the plotting of their ground and building ten cottages thereon and an icehouse. This will make the second Grand Forks settlement of summer guests on Lake Bemidji, there being another, Grand Forks bay, on the west shore of the lake, where there are eight or ten substantial cottages.

A homesteader named Dodds, who lives near Solway, died in the Bemidji hospital Wednesday morning as a result of poisoning. The man was found in his cabin in an unconscious condition, and hurried to the hospital here. Everything possible was done to revive him, but with no avail.

SQUAW KILLED IN DRUNKEN FIGHT

Three Squaws and Three Bucks in Jail at Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The county authorities are investigating the death of Ah-gah-she, a squaw, and a member of the Red Lake band of Indians, whose death was reported in Bemidji Tuesday night. It appears that a party of seven Indians, from the Red Lake reservation (four of whom were squaws and three bucks) were camped about three-fourths of a mile from the new town of Island Lake, on the branch railroad extending from Wilton to Island lake. On Monday morning, two members of the band appeared at Island Lake, with the story that a squaw had been hurt, and later fell into the camp fire and was burned to death. The county attorney and the sheriff were notified of the death, and they went to Island Lake the next morning, accompanied by the coroner. The body of the dead woman was taken to the Red Lake Indian agency, where a coroner's inquest was held. A number of the Indians were examined, also a white man, and the story, as told by the Indians, is as follows:

On last Sunday night two of the Indians, who were in the party that was getting sugar, waylaid a half-breed and stole a quantity of whisky from him. The "fierwater" was taken to the camp, and all the reds, including the squaws, imbibed freely, with the result that the whole party were very hilarious. During the night, Ah-gah-she, who is a sister of the wife of Crazy Dog (a Sioux, who came to the Red Lake reservation several years ago), became involved in a fight with her sister, and there was a hair-pulling match. One of the bucks of the party stopped the dispute, and according to the Indians' version of the affair, grabbed a burning brand from the fire and struck Ah-gah-she on the shoulder with the burning brand. The woman sank to the ground, and lay there, and as the reds were all drunk, or claimed to be, they have no further recollection of what happened until the next morning, when the dead body of Ah-gah-she, badly burned and with her neck dislocated, was found near the smouldering embers of the fire.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to her death at the hands of some persons unknown. Three squaws and three bucks who were members of the party were brought to Bemidji by Sheriff Bailey, and are now lodged in the county jail. It is believed that the reds know all about how the deed was done and that confinement in the jail will have a tendency to loosen their tongues, and the officials will be told who the guilty party is. So far they have maintained stolid silence, claiming they were too much intoxicated to remember who struck the blow.

BULLET FOUND IN SPIER'S BODY

Of the Same Calibre as Pistol Owned by Dead Man.

New York, May 10.—A second autopsy was performed on the body of C. L. Spier yesterday and the bullet extracted. It was found to be of 32 calibre, the same as Spier's pistol. The bullet was in the back under the left shoulder blade. In its course it had penetrated the heart. Having been shot with his own revolver, it is the theory of the family that Spier grappled with the burglar he is said to have detected at work, and that the marauder turned the weapon upon its owner. Strong objection was made by Mrs. Spier to the holding of a second autopsy, which she declared would prove nothing; but Coroner Cahill would not give a burial permit until the bullet had been extracted. Consequently, although the funeral went forward, the body was placed in a vault. After a short time it was moved and the autopsy followed.

No theory has been agreed upon by the authorities who appear to be at odds as to whether the case is one of murder, suicide or accident.

An inquest into Mr. Spier's death has been decided upon and will be held within a few days by Coroner Cahill. A jury of twelve men will hear the testimony.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by all leading druggists.

BRIDE'S ILLNESS DOES NOT STOP WEDDING.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—Rather than allow illness to interfere with their carefully arranged plans, Miss Ruby E. Peck and John Corscott of Madison, were married last night at the bedside of the former. The bride is the granddaughter of the first white woman born in Madison and the bridegroom is the son of John Corscott, Sr., one of the wealthiest citizens of the capital. Both young people are society leaders, and the wedding is attracting much attention. Miss Peck has been seriously ill for six weeks.

WORK WAS CROOKED

Standard Oil Company Beat Public in Many Ways.

Tank Wagon Drivers Forced to Sell Short Measure.

Chicago, May 10.—The inquiry by the government through the interstate commerce commission into the relations between the Standard Oil company and the railroads of the country commenced here today. Two of the points upon which, it is said, the investigation will endeavor to throw light, are the matter of the pipe lines of the Standard Oil company which are laid along the railroad right-of-way, and the purchase of Gelena oil by railroads for headlight and signal purposes.

The hearing was conducted by Attorneys J. F. Marchand and F. S. Monett for the government and Commissioners Clements, Cockrell and Prouty heard the evidence. John S. Miller and A. G. Eddy appeared for the Standard Oil company. Commissioner Clements at the commencement of the hearing announced that it was held in pursuance of a resolution passed by congress, and that the present session was a continuance of the investigation conducted some time ago at Kansas City.

The first witness was E. M. Wilhoit of Topeka, Kan., now an independent oil operator, but ten years ago an agent of the Standard Oil company. He testified that while in the employ of the Standard Oil company he had, in following out the instructions of his superiors, bribed clerks in the offices of railroads and employes of independent oil concerns in order to obtain information of the details of the business done by the rivals of the Standard Oil company.

He declared that agents of the Standard Oil company are held personally responsible for all oil sold in their territory by independent companies, and that drivers of tank wagons are expected to keep up their stock by selling 205 to 208 gallons from a wagon load of 200 gallons. He said that the actual tests of the products of the Standard Oil company to determine the quality are carefully guarded and that when it was found necessary to cut the price to meet the figure of a competitor a cheaper quality of oil was substituted, and guaranteed to be of higher grade than it really was.

Mr. Wilhoit said that frequently three grades of oil were sold from the same tank by agents of the Standard Oil company.

In support of the statements he had made, Mr. Wilhoit read a letter written Oct. 25, 1905, by C. W. Mayer, manager of the Standard Oil company at Kansas City. The letter enclosed a check for $8, and said that the company had decided to stop sending money for the use of its agent in obtaining information regarding the shipments of independent concerns for fear that knowledge of the practice might become public. He said that in the future, agents would be expected to obtain their information without the expense money. Another letter said to have been written by Mr. Mayer and dated Nov. 10, asked the local agent to obtain a sample of the product being shipped into the territory by the National Oil company. The letter said that while the task was difficult, if the agent succeeded, it would make his services to the company extremely valuable.

TOBACCO FROZEN.

Cigar Company Claims Owners of Building Are Responsible for Loss.

The suit of the Ron Fernandez company to recover the cost of tobacco which was frozen in the factory from the Davis Realty company, owners of the building, is being heard before a jury in Judge Windom's courtroom today.

The cigar company claims that it rented the building heated, and that one night last winter the temperature got so low that the tobacco was damaged. Judgment in the sum of $111.15 is asked.

CALUMET & HECLA BUYS NONESUCH

Mine With Copper But Has Swallowed Several Fortunes.

Hancock, Mich., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—While official confirmation is lacking, there is the best of reason to believe that the old Nonsuch mine, in Ontonagon county, has been acquired by the big Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company. The Calumet & Hecla adopted a policy of expansion some time ago, and although it still has a life of upwards of sixty years at its mines at Calumet, it has added considerably to its holdings during the past few months by picking up promising properties, both in Houghton and Keweenaw counties, especially in the latter district, where it has taken over a very large acreage.

The Nonesuch comprises a tract of one square mile, owned by A. K. Camp of Milwaukee and associates. It was the pioneer mine of the Porcupine Mountain district, and it has a history that reads like a romance. It is appropriately named, Nonesuch, for it is doubtful if there ever was a mine like it. It has been aptly described as the Sphinx of the copper region, immovable, inscrutable and tantalizing; containing the treasures of Croesus in copper, on the extraction of which fortunes have been lavished, and which has been given the attention and best efforts of scores of mining men, metallurgists and chemists for the past generation; yet, despite that, it possesses one of the richest lodes of copper-bearing rock ever found, discovered in 1865, and first opened in 1857, it has yielded altogether the insignificant amount of 180 tons of refined metal.

The copper is there—millions and millions of pounds of it, every pound worth nearly 19 cents, when extracted, and not worth a penny a ton in the mine.

The lode is a conglomerate-sandstone, first discovered outcropping in the bed of the little Iron river, and though averaging only seven feet in width, or about half that of the famous Calumet conglomerate, its rock is fully as rich in metallic content as that of the latter formation. However, the copper is so fine that no successful method of concentrating it has ever been devised, the metallic particles being so minute that when the lode matter is stamped, the mineral values are washed away with the sand. This, at least, has been the experience in the past. The mine has been examined frequently the last quarter of a century or more by parties having patent or secret processes for saving fine copper. Hundreds of tons of the rock from the lode have been shipped to all points of the compass, for experimental purposes. The problem to be solved has been attacked mechanically, metallurgically, electrolytically, chemically, courageously and outrageously by many different inventors, but all of them have suffered discomfiture.

The Nonesuch has swallowed several large fortunes. In one case, during the '80's, a small shipment of the rock was sent to Chicago for treatment by a patent chemical process. This proved a huge success, in the estimation of the inventor, and a large and expensive plant constructed on his plans was installed at the mine. A new mill, 67x130 feet in size, was built, also new shops, engine house and other structures. In the mill a complete plant was installed, comprising three steam stamps, vanners, trains of Cornish rolls, slimetables and washers. After being stamped, crushed in rolls, jigged and passed over the slimetables, the resultant product, something between fine sand and coarse slime, went to drying pans, thence to a calcining furnace, then to precipitating tanks where the metal was allowed to settle, and finally there was a crude electrolytic process designed to collect the copper. On paper the method was a beautiful one, but in actual practice it was a flat failure. The company lost much money, and, like others which had gone before it, it quit in disgust.

Evidently the Calumet & Hecla people are not dismayed at the dismal history of the Nonesuch property. In fact, that they have acquired the mine, assuming as correct the unofficial reports to that effect, is taken to indicate that they have well-defined ideas in the matter of the concentration of Nonesuch rock. And if any corporation can make a success of the proposition, it is the Calumet & Hecla. The world's greatest and wealthiest miner of native copper, with a surplus of millions of dollars, backed by many years' experience in milling practice, which at its big plants at Lake Linden has been brought to a science, resulting in the saving of a steadily increased percentage of copper until the amount now carried away in the tailings is infinitesimal in quantity—it would not be at all surprising to Copper Country people were the company to duplicate in the Porcupine Mountain district its wonderful success achieved in the field at Calumet.

Merchants' Bank Affairs Being Attended to—Another Sale.

Man Falls From Street Car—Record Cut at Mill.

On Saturday next, a sheriff's sale in connection with the failure of the Merchants' bank of West Duluth, will take place at which certain lots in West Duluth and East Fond du Lac will be disposed of.

These lots were owned by the bank and will go toward swelling the dividends which will be paid to the creditors.

Some time next week, a meeting of the creditors of the bank, and L. A. Barnes, assignee, will be held at which time the figures of assets and liabilities will be gone over and the amount of the next dividend determined. H. H. Phelps, Mr. Barnes' attorney, has just turned over to Mr. Barnes $1,428.32 which he collected on the recent sale of assets.

FALLS FROM CAR.

Busha Tried to Alight Backwards But Was Thrown.

A man named Busha was put out of business yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock when he attempted to get off a car backwards at Central and Ramsey. The car was a West Duluth extra, one of the short cars without any gates, and Busha undertook to alight before the car came to a stop.

He swung out backwards and just what he did immediately afterwards cannot be described. The roadway suffered some, and Busha was knocked senseless. He was carried to the sidewalk and restoratives applied. After a little while he came out of the unconscious state and with the help of two men started to walk toward the Duluth hospital, but before he got there, only a block away, he seemed to fully recover himself, brushed off his clothes and took a car for home.

His scalp was cut to some extent and it is considered rather miraculous that he got off as easily as he did.

Makes Record Cut.

A record cut of white pine was made last night at the William O'Brien mill, formerly the St. Louis. In a ten-hour run 73,000 feet of white pine were cut out of short logs, which ran from twelve to sixteen feet each. Mike Willette was the sawyer, and both he and the manager of the mill, James McDonald, feel very proud of the run. It is claimed that this cut is the biggest ever made with a band saw at the head of the lakes in the given time.

Charles Mandelert Here.

Charles A. Mandelert of Chippewa Falls, Wis., is in the city today looking over some of his property interests. Mr. Mandelert was formerly engaged in the grocery business here, conducting what is known as the Headquarters grocery at the corner of Fifty-second avenue west and Ramsey street. He left here about six years ago to take care of the large estate left by his father. Mr. Mandelert was known in Duluth as a singer of exceptional merit and was frequently heard at public entertainments.

Sick With Blood Poisoning.

C. Hawkinson of 225 North Fifty-ninth avenue west is quite sick with blood poisoning in his hand. He was chiselling out a tombstone, when he cut his hand some way with the chisel. At first nothing seemed to be the matter with the wound, but he evidently got something in it for it has grown worse, and he is quite seriously ill at present.

West Duluth Briefs.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Matt West of 221½ South Fifty-seventh avenue west yesterday evening.

Mrs. Louise Bjerk, aged 64 years, died of Bright's disease at the home of her son, Andrew Bjerk, 5610 Raleigh street yesterday, after an illness of a month. She has lived in Duluth for three years. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. from the Swedish-Finnish church, corner of Fifty-fourth avenue west and Elinor street.

A meeting of the Irving School alumni will be held at the school tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Michael Cashin, whose daughter, Florence, was buried yesterday, is very ill at her home, 605 North Fifty-seventh avenue west. She was sick before her daughter was taken with the malady which proved fatal to her, and has been in very bad health all through. Miss Edith Cashin is also ill from anxiety and the general strain.

Don't forget to attend the wrestling match to be given at St. James hall, Fifty-seventh avenue west, between Joseph De Chambeau and Frank Kreidler, under auspices of West Duluth athletic association.

Misses Clara and Agnes Wilson have returned to La Crosse after visiting with West Duluth friends for a few weeks.

Other preliminaries. Martin Johnson, the Duluth fireman, will act as referee.

Miss Alma Lornston and David Baudoin, both of Duluth, were married last evening at the residence of H. M. Carr, 3907 Grand avenue west.

OIL CASH AIDS HIS UNIVERSITY

Stinging Rebukes for Dr. Day's Attack on President.

Chicago, May 10.—"Hoist with his own petard." That is the opinion of Chicago generally with regard to Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse university, who, as the head of an institution of learning that has been the beneficiary of large Standard Oil bounty, called President Roosevelt an anarchist because of the executive's recent criticism of Standard Oil business methods. It was declared in at least one quarter that Dr. Day was holding his position practically for the sole purpose of building up the school through his influence with oil magnates and other wealthy Easterners.

One critic told of statements by the chancellor to the effect that some of the buildings on the college campus had been erected with oil money and with that of other corporation interests, and apparently it is the general opinion here that the educator has laid himself open to grave charges of bad taste and worse in condemning Mr. Roosevelt for his stand in the interests of commercial fairness.

These views are confirmed elsewhere, even in the home city of the university, where the sources of many of the college's benefactions are well known.

It was Dr. M. M. Parkhurst, pastor militant and enemy of the saloon, who asserted that Chancellor Day, within the last sixty days, had piloted him about the grounds of the Syracuse institution, pointing out various buildings erected with Standard Oil money, and detailing plans for the construction of others.

"Chancellor Day has made a grave error," asserted Dr. Parkhurst, "Within the past sixty days I have been at Syracuse university and was shown about the place by Dr. Day, who confided to me certain plans for the extension of the college. He designated various buildings, as I recollect, and said Standard Oil money had built this one and cash from railroad and sugar interests had built that.

"If memory serves me, he said that something like $500,000 had been given the university recently by the corporations which he is defending in his attack on President Roosevelt. He told me he hoped, or expected, to get about a million more, and mentioned various structural additions to the institution which he was desirous of making."

Dr. Parkhurst was asked if he had obtained other evidence of the educator's alleged affection for the "money kings," and in reply he said:

"Yes, I heard a number of interesting things that I did not expect to relate. I was told that the board of trustees of the university expected to retain Chancellor Day because of his influence among wealthy New Yorkers. I was informed that the chancellor would remain at the head of the school at an annual salary of $7,000 a year and at the end of a stipulated period would be pensioned for life on half salary, providing his programme of extension were fully carried out. In other words, the chancellor was to complete the work of rebuilding the university with the money of his millionaire friends, and when he had finished was to be given a life pension."

Dr. Parkhurst added that the plan was well understood in the East, and that the prospects were for Chancellor Day's accomplishing the task. Other clergymen, gathered in Chicago and Evanston to attend the graduation exercises of Garrett Biblical Institute, corroborated Dr. Parkhurst's statement. All of them accused the educator of committing an inexcusably stupid error. Bishops Hartzell and Andrews, the former the missionary bishop in Africa, and the latter of New York, shook their heads moodily when asked for an opinion.

WILL DISCUSS MISSION WORK

Women of Home and Foreign Societies to Hold Meeting.

Tomorrow morning the members of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Methodist Episcopal church for this district will assemble at the First M. E. church for an all day session. Programs will be given both morning and afternoon and a basket lunch will be served at noon.

The morning session will be opened at 10 o'clock with devotions by Mrs. Charles Fox Davis. Then the election of officers of the Home society will take place and reports will be heard from the officers of both societies. Mrs. L. P. Hall will read a paper on "Mountain Whites" and Mrs. Gilbert will sing. Mrs. J. W. Powell will lead a discussion on "How to Get Most Out of Auxiliary Meetings," and give a reading.

The afternoon session will be opened by devotions by Mrs. A. W. Bradley. Rev. Thomas Grice will read a report on the Minneapolis convention and Mrs. J. Cochrane will lead a discussion on "Mite Boxes." Miss Olson will sing, and Rev. J. W. Robinson will talk on "India and the Jubilee."

Attention, Teachers and Students.

Files Stipulated Findings.

Judge Dibell has filed findings and judgment in the appeal of Willis J. Holmes from the assessment made by the board of public works for building certain sidewalks in West Duluth. The findings are in accordance with a stipulation by the city and Mr. Holmes and provide that the assessment be confirmed against one batch of lots and that it be not confirmed against lots in two other sections of Central division and Hunter's Grassy Point addition.

THEIR LAUNDRY TIED UP.

Tower Citizens Cannot Get Raiment Because Laundryman Killed Himself.

The citizens of Tower, Minn., are in a serious predicament. They may have to go collarless and shirtless for a few days because Hon Hong Quang, a Chinese laundryman of that place, committed suicide a few days ago before making a delivery of the washing for the week. The tickets that he issued his customers on receipt of their bundles of soiled raiment are marked up with Chinese characters and the holders will be unable to make a draw until somebody familiar with the terms used by the slant-eyed washman is employed to sort out the bundles.

This state of affairs came to the attention of the probate court this morning by the petition of Deputy Coroner M. E. Gleason to have W. H. Congdon, Jr., appointed special administrator of the estate.

The estate is said to be worth about $500.

C. & O. TRAIN WRECKED BY BROKEN RAIL; FOUR HURT.

Portsmouth, Ohio, May 10.—The Chesapeake & Ohio New York limited, which left Cincinnati at 9:30 o'clock last night, was wrecked near Buena Vista station early today. The sleeper was ditched, but of the sixteen passengers on that car only four women were injured. Several of the trainmen were injured. Mrs. D. K. Kelvey of Cincinnati was seriously injured, but will recover. A broken rail caused the wreck.

The captain of our good ship is always on the lookout for everything that's new for men's and boys' wear, and there is not a day when new samples of all that fashion stamps correct does not arrive at this port.

We are sailing along in fine trim and our passengers are safe at all times. They get their money's worth.

Have you seen the beautiful new Manhattan Shirts which arrived here this week?

New neckwear came in yesterday, and a case of fresh hats ($3 ones) is being unpacked today.

Baseball Disputes Are Settled in Favor of Duluth Team.

Two New Players Are Also Signed by Captain O'Dea.

The Duluth ball club has won both of the disputes which were pending before the national board, in which the club was interested.

The Maroons also claimed to have a string on both men, and the case was laid before Secretary Farrell of the national board. The decision of the secretary gave both men to Duluth.

Menelee was greatly needed to strengthen the team's hitting, and Treadway is likely to prove one of the best twirlers in the league. They will greatly strengthen the team.

Treadway is now in Duluth and Menelee is in Minneapolis. He is expected to report within a few days.

Two other new men have been signed by O'Dea. One is a shortstop by the name of Grubner, who hails from Bloomington, Ill. Graham, who has been playing short, is laid up with a lame arm. He has almost lost the use of his throwing arm and can no longer get the ball across the diamond. He is compelled to lay off for a week or ten days. Newman has been trifling with the management so long that hope of securing him has been about abandoned, and he will be let go. Grubner is said to be a good sticker and a fast fielder, and he will fill in the gap in the infield.

The other new man is Barto, a big outfielder from Burlington. Barto is said to be a giant in stature and a heavy hitter.

Transportation has been forwarded to both players, and they are due to report in a few days, possibly in time for the last of the Hibbing series.

Adams, the other catcher, is due on Saturday, and will probably catch the Sunday game with Hibbing.

O'Dea has recovered and will be in uniform this afternoon. The Duluth captain is anxious to take all three games from Hibbing, if possible, and he will probably take his old place at first for the series.

GET NEW UNIFORMS.

Two Local Companies Receive the New Dressy Suits.

Companies A and C of the Third regiment, Minnesota National Guard, have received their new dress uniforms. They are spick and span looking affairs and the boys are itching to make an appearance in them.

The caps are of the new shape adopted by the regular army and have a band of blue, lighter than the material used in the making of the suits. A second band of light blue stretches from one end of the vizors to the other.

The coats have the word Minnesota on the collars, in gold. On the shoulders are slender strips of light blue and the general effect of the entire new outfit is very pleasing to the eye.

The Future of the Airship.

An airship inventor, who recently sailed the first airship over New York successfully, confesses frankly the shortcomings of his invention and acknowledges that it could never be adapted for carrying passengers nor for express service. The only commercial value of an airship is for exhibition purposes, and the day of practical flying-machines is still far distant. If you want a practical medicine for that poor, tired stomach of yours why don't you try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has been used sucessfully for over 50 years in cases of belching, bloating, heartburn, flatulency, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, female ills, biliousness and malaria, fever and ague, often effecting a cure when other remedies have failed. Give it a chance to prove its merit and you'll be thankful for taking the hint.

NO VIOLATION OF WISCONSIN LAW

In Issuing Deferred Dividend Policies, Says Insurance Man.

Milwaukee, May 10.—The Wisconsin legislative committee which is investigating life insurance matters in Wisconsin renewed its sessions today after a ten days' recess.

George C. Markham, first vice president of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, was the first witness. He was first questioned with regard to the salaries of trustees. He stated that Milwaukee trustees received $25 per day for the four sessions of the board and non-resident trustees the same amount and their expenses. Seven members of the board of trustees are members of the finance committee and the executive board of the company. The members of the executive board, not officers of the company receive salaries of $5,000 per year, their duties requiring them to spend the greater part of several afternoons each week. A question as to whether or not Frank G. Bigelow had ever been chairman of the board of trustees was answered with an emphatic "Never." Mr. Markham stated that he became third vice president of the company in 1901, at a salary of $12,000 per year. His salary was increased with his responsibilities and he now receives $18,000 per year.

Mr. Markham said he considered railway bonds good investments. As to real estate securities, he considered good farm mortgages the best and next to them centrally located business real estate in large cities.

Bruce Whitney, general agent of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, was questioned in regard to the fact that his company was issuing deferred dividend policies in Wisconsin in which no provision was made for the five years' distribution of the surplus of the policy. Being asked if he did not consider the policy contrary to the Wisconsin law calling for distribution of the surplus, Mr. Whitney said he was not prepared to discuss the legality of the policy but was of the opinion that the law was not being violated. A lapsed policy of the class in question, he admitted, would forfeit its portion of the surplus. Mr. Whitney also said that he was informed Commissioner Host of the Wisconsin life insurance department had stated to the legal department of his company that he was not aware the amendment to the Wisconsin law making the distribution to the term classes of policies instead of to the individual policyholder had been slipped into the law.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in Three Days.

Morton L. Hill, of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had inflammatory Rheumatism in every muscle and joint; her suffering was terrible and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians, but received no benefit until she tried the Mystic Cure for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by all druggists.

WISCONSIN UNIVERSITY.

Ways and Means Employed by Self-Supporting Students.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—Secretary E. F. Riley of the regents of the University of Wisconsin has just published a pamphlet descriptive of ways and means employed by self-supporting students in earning they way through the university. The pamphlet, which was prepared by a student of the university who investigated the subject recently, gives a complete summary of the opportunities for obtaining work by students who desire to support themselves during their university course, and is intended for distribution to prospective students interested in the subject. The statistics given in the pamphlet show that the number of self-supporting students at the University of Wisconsin is larger than ever before, and that the demand for student help by the citizens of Madison has often exceeded the supply.

The board of editors of the University of Wisconsin Literary Magazine for the coming year has just been elected, and consists of the following students: Editor-in-chief, Walter S. Underwood, 1907, Milwaukee; associate editors, Lucian H. Cary, 1908, Madison; Cora C. Hinckley, 1907, Milwaukee; John H. Mulaney, 1908, East Troy; Barry F. Parker, 1907, Hudson; Irving F. Schauss, 1907, Milwaukee. The elections for the board are made on the basis of merit of the contributions submitted and published in the Literary Magazine during the last year.

The annual exhibition of the Intercollegiate Association of Camera clubs, which consists of Harvard, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and the University of Wisconsin, will be held at the library of the University of Wisconsin May 19 to 26. Some 150 of the best photographs submitted by the members of the camera clubs of the four institutions will be included in the exhibition. The Wisconsin Camera club is represented by twenty-one photographs, including a large variety of subjects. Although this is the first intercollegiate exhibition which the University of Wisconsin has entered, the club was a close competitor for second place, and won second individual prize.

The University of Wisconsin Press club gave a banquet Wednesday evening at which covers were laid for thirty-five. The speakers of the evening included A. O. Barton, Wisconsin State Journal; Col. C. Munson, Viroqua Censor; Robert Knoff, Madison Democrat; Col. W. J. Anderson, Charles K. Lush and Henry E. Legler. The University Press club, which was recently organized, has a membership of fifty students who are preparing themselves to take up newspaper work upon completing their university course.

Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, professor of sanitary engineering in Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been delivering a series of special lectures under the auspices of the department of home economics of the University of Wisconsin. The series has included talks on the "Progress in the Teaching of Domestic Science," "Standards of Living," and "The Responsibility of Schools for Public Health."

An exhibition of paintings and etchings by well known artists is being given by the Madison Art association at the university library. The exhibit includes a collection of twenty-five etchings by Whistler, and paintings by William M. Chase, Childe Massan, Howard Logan, Hildebrand, Albert L. Grail, Cullen Yates and Frederick Bullard Williams.

Carlson-Hawkinson.

A pretty wedding was celebrated last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Carlson of 927 Fifty-eighth avenue west. The contracting parties were Miss Augusta Carlson and Charles W. Hawkinson of Chisago county. Master Willie Carlson and Miss Jennie Anderson headed the bridal procession, the latter serving as flower girl. Mrs. E. E. Johnston presided at the organ and the Misses Adella and Emma Olson sang a duet. The groomsmen were Albert Carlson, and Frank Peterson, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Ida and Hilda Lindgren. Rev. J. A. Krantz performed the wedding ceremony. About fifty guests were invited. The bridal couple will live in Chisago county where the groom is a well-to-do farmer.

Piles

Don't Suffer Longer, You Can Have Instant Relief and a Lasting Cure by Using Pyramid Pile Cure.

A Trial Package Mailed Free to All.

The rectum, like the mouth, is lined with that soft, satiny material known as mucous membrane. Piles is a disease of that membrane and the blood vessels that lie under it.

Fissure and Fistula affect the same membrane and belong to the same family. Pyramid Pile Cure slipped into the bowel, melt and spread themselves over the diseased and painful surface, and act just as salve would if the trouble was on the outside of the body and could be easily seen and gotten at.

The immediate relief they give even in the most agonizing cases will startle you, as it has already startled many thousands of "doubting" Thomases" before you, who have tried everything and sent for the sample package, firmly convinced that they would again be disappointed.

But they weren't. Pyramid Pile Cure don't disappoint. They cure. They are for sale at all druggists at 50 cents a box and worth an even hundred to the person who needs them.

Mr. John Byrne of 2306 Second avenue, New York city, writing under date of Jan. 17th, 1906, says: "I received the sample and used it right away. I got so much relief from it after twenty years' suffering, that I bought a 50-cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone and my fistula has almost disappeared. I had given up all hope of ever being cured. I assure you, gentlemen, I will use every effort to make any of my friends try them, as I can guarantee they are a sure cure."

Or if you want to prove this matter at our expense before purchasing, send your name and address to the Pyramid Drug Co., 4840 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan, and receive a trial package free by return mail.

THOMPSONS WIN CASE

Court Orders Powder Company to Relinquish Hermantown Farm.

Holds Thompsons Acted Through Excusable Misapprehension.

Charlotte Thompson and Thomas W. Thompson have won their case against the E. I. Dupont company, F. D. Orr, its manager, and C. E. Adams. Judge Cant this morning filed his findings and conclusions, with an order that the judgment given Mrs. Thompson against her former husband, the sheriff's certificate of sale of the Thompson forty in Hermantown, the assignment of the certificate to the powder company, and the quit claim deed given by Mrs. Thompson to the company, be set aside and cancelled, and that the E. I. Dupont company must accept the payment tendered it by the Thompsons in reimbursement for the moneys it has paid out. The title to the land is to remain in Charlotte Thompson and William Thompson.

The court's decision is based on findings that through ignorance on the part of the Thompsons that the land in question was deeded to both of them, instead of Thomas W. Thompson, the Dupont Powder company, which acquired possession of the farm through such error, cannot equitably retain possession of it.

The case was tried before Judge Cant last February, and attracted a great deal of attention, in view of the fact that the Thompsons are divorced, and because Mrs. Thompson deeded away a right to the property that she did not know she even possessed.

Mrs. Thompson was granted a divorce in July, 1904, and Thompson was ordered to pay her $600 alimony, the court finding that his farm was valued at $1,400, and that he had personal property worth over $300 more. The judgment was to be a lien on the real estate, if the alimony was not paid in thirty days. Mrs. Thompson assigned the judgment to her attorney, C. E. Adams, and in October, 1904, Mr. Adams executed the judgment, and the sheriff levied on the property and sold it to Mr. Adams for $685.95. Mr. Adams afterwards assigned the certificate of sale to F. D. Orr, and Mrs. Thompson gave a quit claim deed of the property to the E. I. Dupont company.

Some time after the assignment and quit claim deed were given, the Thompsons discovered through J. A. Hanks that Mrs. Thompson had a half interest in the real estate originally, a state of affairs that was not known to her attorney, Mr. Adams, or to the court, when she was given a judgment against Thompson to be a lien on the property.

The court held that she acted under a misapprehension as to her rights when she gave the quit claim deed and that both of the Thompsons acted under a misapprehension entirely excusable in them throughout the divorce proceedings. The court also holds that Thomas W. Thompson, acting through the same error, was placed at a great disadvantage in making any attempt to redeem from the execution sale and could not with any safety proceed to such step.

Since the quit claim deed from Mrs. Thompson and the assignment of the sheriff's certificate were all one transaction, the court holds that the whole should be set aside and the powder company reimbursed within a reasonable time.

Judge Cant holds that the E. I. Dupont company, its agents and attorney, knew from an examination of the title that Mrs. Thompson was acting under a misapprehension, but that it intentionally and knowingly concealed the true state of affairs from her and her attorney, Mr. Adams. By reason of this the court holds the company cannot equitably continue in possession of the property.

It is found by the court that Thomas W. Thompson went to the powder company after it had acquired the quit claim deed and assignment of the sheriff's certificate and offered it a sum equal to all that it had spent for a reconveyance of the property, but that his offer was rejected. Thompson then deposited $800 with the sheriff to cover the total reimbursement that he offered and the taxes that the company has paid on the property. The court holds that the company must accept it, the Thompsons to have the costs against the powder company.

This leaves the affairs of the Thompsons still unsettled from the divorce proceedings, but Judge Cant intimates that their ultimate rights can be reached through a motion made in that action.

The land in dispute is described as the west half of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 12, 50-15.

The E. I. Dupont company will recover $682.59 paid for the deed and $13.20 paid in taxes.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS IS DANGEROUSLY ILL.

New York, May 10.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, widow of the president of the Southern Confederacy, is dangerously ill of the grip in her apartments in the Hotel Gerard in West Forty-fourth street, this city, today. As Mrs. Davis is nearly 80 years old, it is feared that the attack may be fatal. Her daughter, Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, has been summoned from her home in Colorado Springs. Mrs. Davis has been living at the Gerard for several years and is frequently visited by her daughter.

WALLACE JOINS AN ELECTRICAL COMPANY.

Chicago, May 10.—John F. Wallace, former chief engineer of the Panama canal, today announced that he had accepted the presidency of the Electric Properties company. The organization recently incorporated in New York is, according to Mr. Wallace, to acquire, finance and develop properties in which electricity plays the principal part.

HUNTERS SWAP LIES.

Yarns of Three Who Faced Savage Rabbit In His Lair.

Two amateurs were sitting in the workshop of the professional gunmaker exchanging experience of wood and field, and one of them had recounted the history of an encounter he had had with a rabbit that refused to drop after two shots had been fired at it, which circumstance operated to make him buy a repeating shotgun so that he could shoot more than twice in case of an emergency, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"That reminds me," said the other liar—that is, the other amateur. "I have seen rabbits on several occasions that would stop when shot at, although not touched. One time—"

"Same way with me," interjected amateur liar No. 1. "I remember one time up here in Missouri I shot at a rabbit and it dropped, and as I walked over to pick it up, it got up and ran like the dickens. Of course, I stopped it with the second barrel, but I solemnly assure you that after the first shot it lay like dead, and for a minute I—"

"Had the some sort of thing happen to me one day when I was out for the walk and only carried a 22-caliber rifle. I saw a rabbit and did not really want to shoot it, but it made such a pretty mark, I couldn't resist. He didn't move after I shot, and the man with me said I had missed. I knew that was impossible, but I prepared to shoot again. Just as I had drawn a bead the rabbit tumbled over. We went to where it was and looked at it. The bullet appeared to have passed through its head. There was the mark of entrance just over the left eye, and the mark of exit just over the right. The poor little creature was apparently stone dead at our feet.

"'Put him in your pocket,' says I. 'All right,' says the man with me, and he stooped to pick up the rabbit. At that instant a dog came running up and started to sniffing at the rabbit. Whiff! Biff! Scurry! Gone! That presumably dead rabbit that had been shot through the head was up and running and beat the dog to a refuge under a barn, where we had no hope of recovering it. I always thought—"

"When I was a boy," broke in the professional gunmaker, who had paused in his work of fashioning a new stock, "I shot considerable rabbits, but I always scorned to shoot 'em with a shotgun, or even a sure-enough rifle. I always used what you might call a pocket rifle, one with a barrel not more than ten inches long. One day I saw a rabbit, as they are called, although they are really hares, sitting on its haunches about twenty-five feet away. I took good aim and shot. He did not stir. I reloaded, and reloading meant something in those days, because it was years before the invention of the breach loader, and we had to carry our ammunition and lead from the muzzle. I shot again, and the rabbit didn't move. He was sitting exactly in line with a birch sappling about three inches in diameter, and his ears spread out on each side of it, giving me an ideal target, with the snow on the other side. Well, sir, I shot seven times at that rabbit, or hare, as I should say, and he never moved till that birch tree fell. You see, every one of my bullets was aimed just a trifle high on account of the glare from the snow, and while they were all in line, they missed the rabbit, and he didn't know he was being shot at. The final shot, however, cut the birch tree down, and it fell and scared him. Every one of my bullets had struck that sapling, and the seventh cut it off as clean as you could have done it with an ax. I reckon I must have shot—"

But the amateurs had silently retreated and the professional told the remainder of his story about rabbit hunting to his forge and vise. After they got out in the hall the first amateur said to the second amateur: "Ain't he a corker?"

BUSY PARISHIONER.

Boston Herald: Since the death, a few years ago, of Bishop Clark of Rhode Island, an amusing anecdote has been going the rounds among his former friends.

While a young pastor, in charge of a small parish in Northern New England, Mr. Clark was making calls one day, and came to the house of a woman who believed in having a large family. In fact, several times during his pastorate the clergyman had had her babies presented for baptism, and her thrift was well known in the neighborhood.

The lady saw Mr. Clark passing, and called to him: "Oh, Mr. Clark, do come in; you haven't seen my last baby yet!"

The minister replied, with a smile: "No, madam, and never expect to."

TIMING FATHER'S BATH.

Boston Herald: S. S. Beadle, the well known musician and piano dealer of this city, and his son Karl, a 'celloist, now in Boston, went fishing near Chesham, N. H., in Silver lake. They procured a boat, went out a considerable distance, anchored and began to fish in about twenty-five feet of water. The fish bit well, and father and son got excited.

The father got hold of a good-sized fish and had considerable trouble in landing him.

While he was struggling to make sure of the fish, his son rushed to the same side of the boat to assist, causing the father to be tipped into the lake. He went down ten or fifteen feet, and came up all right. As he arrived his son caught him and pulled him back into the boat.

After the father had got seated he pulled out his watch, thinking it might not have waterproof cases, but the son, who was in a jolly frame of mind, asked: "How long have you been gone, father?"

AMERICAN PROSPERITY

English View Presented in Report to British Foreign Office.

The Country Was Never More Prosperous Than at Present.

Washington, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—An English view of American prosperity is presented in a "Report on the Trade of the United States for the Year 1905," by British Commercial Agent Bell, a copy of whose report to the British foreign office has just reached the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. The report says, in part:

"The year 1905 has been one of great activity in trade and industry in the United States. There has been an abundance of money for industrial purposes, the farmers have been prosperous, manufacturing plants have turned out quantities of products in excess of any previous year, there has been no overproduction, the mileage of railways has steadily increased, issues of stocks and bonds have been without precedent, and failures have been fewer in proportion to the number of firms in business.

"Over 1,000,000 immigrants have been absorbed by the country without affecting the labor market. Wages have been good, the scale of living has been high, and there has been abundance of employment of labor.

"Money in circulation has increased more rapidly than the population, the average circulation on Dec. 31, 1905, having stood at $31.73 per capita, the highest on record. At the end of the year the stock of gold in the federal treasury amounted to over $765,000,000.

"When it is stated that the wealth production on farms in the United States was estimated at $6,415,000,000, it can readily be understood of what importance the farmer is as a producing agent. Of all the agricultural products in the United States corn or maize is the most important. It reached its highest production last year with a crop of 2,708,000,000 bushels, and a total estimated value of $1,216,000,000. Hay was second in order of value, $805,000,000; cotton next, $565,000,000; wheat, $525,000,000; oats, $282,000,000; potatoes, $138,000,000; barley, $88,000,000, tobacco, $52,000,000; sugar cane and sugar beets, $50,000,000. The aggregate yield of cereals, including rice, was 4,521,000,000 bushels valued at $2,123,000,000, an increase of $145,000,000 over the year previous. During the last five years the value of the real estate of medium farms has increased 33.5 per cent.

"Foreign commerce exceeded that of any preceding year. The imports of the calendar year 1905 amounted to $1,179,135,344, exceeding those of 1904 by $143,216,154, and the exports of domestic merchandise amounted to $1,599,420,589, exceeding those of 1904 by $173,672,401.

"The increase in imports is accounted for chiefly by the extra demand for materials to be used in manufactures. The value of materials imported for this purpose increased from $469,690,209 in 1903 to $561,425,245 in 1905, and formed 47.61 per cent of the total imports of the latter year, compared with 26.50 per cent in 1875.

"The importation of luxuries and articles which are outside the bare necessities of life is a good indication of the prosperity of a country. When there is plenty of employment and money is abundant, there is certain to be an increase in the imports of such articles as silk, jewelry, wines, etc., which are not produced in the country itself. In 1903 the value of luxuries imported amounted to about $142,000,000; in 1904 there was a reduction of 4 per cent, but in 1905 there was an increase of about 16 per cent compared with the previous year, so that in 1905 more money was spent in luxuries than in any previous year.

"The principal articles imported for use in manufacturing were raw silk, $55,000,000; India rubber, $48,000,000; fibers, $41,000,000; tin, $26,000,000; wool, $47,000,000; tobacco, $19,000,000; wood, $24,000,000; hides and skins, $73,000,000; chemicals, drugs, and dyes, $69,000,000; and raw cotton, $10,000,000, the above supplying about 73 per cent of the total imports of manufacturers' materials.

"Of the $846,000,000 worth of manufactured articles imported the chief were manufactures of cotton, $55,000,000; fiber manufactures, $45,000,000; silk manufactures, $34,000,000; iron and steel manufactures, $26,000,000; jewelry, $39,000,000, and manufactures of wool, $21,000,000.

"The importation of tropical products continues to show an important increase. In 1870 the total imports of this class amounted to $140,000,000, in 1890, $298,000,000, and in 1905, $536,000,000, the principal items being silk, sugar, tobacco, tea, coffee, rice and india rubber.

"The total value of domestic exports in 1905 amounted to $1,599,000,000, compared with $513,000,000 in 1875. Manufactured articles exported in 1905 amounted to $771,000,000, as compared with $93,000,000 in 1875. Agricultural products in 1905 amounted to $598,000,000, or $105,000,000 in excess of those of 1904. Cotton exports were the largest on record, $393,000,000. Flour exports were valued at $50,000,000, and those of wheat at $17,000,000.

"The increase in the value of exports of manufactured articles occurs chiefly in manufactures of iron and steel, copper, cotton cloths and leather. In iron and steel the increase is about $15,000,000; in copper, about $10,000,000, due chiefly to the large quantities sent to China; in cotton cloths, about $22,000,000, almost $20,000,000 occurring in exports to China.

"In a recent report of the secretary of commerce and labor, it is pointed out that the increase in imports during the fiscal year 1905 was distributed among all grand divisions and most of the principal countries, while the increase in exports was chiefly to China, Japan, Canada, Argentina, and the new Republic of Panama. The increase in value of imports was, from Europe, $41,000,000; from North America, $28,000,000; from South America, $30,000,000; from Asia and Oceania, $24,000,000, and from Africa, $2,000,000. To North America the value of exports increased $21,000,000; to South America, $13,000,000; to Asia, $52,000,000. The total value of exports to Cuba from the United States in 1905 was $45,000,000, against $24,000,000 in 1903.

"Rice has now become an important article of export from the United States, the value of rice of domestic production exported in 1905 amounting to $2,000,000, against $16,484 in 1895; imports of rice meantime decreased from from $3,500,000 in 1895 to $2,000,000 in 1905.

"In dealing with the exports from the United States during 1905, the first thing that strikes one is the fact that notwithstanding the enormous volume of the home trade, the value of manufactured articles exported should have increased to such an extent. If this is possible during such times as these, when every industry is fully occupied, it is not difficult to imagine what will be the result when the home demand slackens and when the manufacturers who have so greatly enlarged and extended their works to meet the extra demand for their products are obliged to look for extended markets outside the United States in order to keep their mills and factories fully employed. When it is remembered that it is only by keeping their works running to the fullest extent and thus keeping down expenses to the lowest point that renders it possible for the majority of the manufacturers in this country to compete in foreign markets, one can realize how essential it is that they find neutral markets where their surplus products can be disposed of so as to avoid accumulation of stocks.

"There are no signs at present of this great activity decreasing. On the contrary, there is every indication that the present year will be quite as prosperous as the past or more so. The country was never more prosperous than at present. Industrial operations are carried on upon a larger scale than ever."

COURT NOT SATISFIED

Judge Cant Expresses Surprise at Jury's Conclusion.

William Tackaberry's fight for the land which he claims by adverse possession is not yet over, although a jury this morning returned a verdict in his favor in the case brought by W. A. Peters to oust him.

As the verdict was read, Judge Cant turned to the jury and expressed his surprise that such a conclusion had been reached and said he could not understand how it had been done. This leaves little room for doubt that he will set it aside.

This was the third trial of the case. The disputed land comprises a small strip of Fifth avenue east between Superior street and the alley. Mr. Peters claims title by right of purchase from John L. Dodge, who has claimed to have acquired his title many years ago.

Mr. Tackaberry claimed ownership by right of adverse possession. He alleged that he had squatted on the land since 1881 when it was first vacated by the city.

This was the third trial of the case. In the first trial a verdict was returned in favor of Mr. Peters. Mr. Tackaberry, acting on his statutory right, gave a bond for the costs and secured a new trial. In the second trial the jury could not agree and was discharged.

The case was given to a jury for a third time yesterday afternoon and the verdict was reached last evening. John Jensweld, Jr., apeared for Mr. Tackaberry, and J. B. Richards and D. G. Cash appeared for Mr. Peters.

CALLED HIM A "BIG DEMOCRAT"

George C. Cooper Vainly Seeks Satisfaction From J. S. Kelley.

A Wisconsin jury has declared that the calling of a man a Democrat is not abusive language but that the person so termed should feel highly complimented.

The case in question was tried in the superior court of the city of Superior yesterday, and George C. Cooper, a prominent attorney of that city, was the complaining witness and J. S. Kelly, a dairyman, the defendant. The jury returned the following verdict:

"Instead of considering his fair name besmirched by being called a 'Big Democrat,' George C. Cooper, the complaining witness in the case of the city against J. S. Kelly, should have been proud of the title conferred upon him."

This verdict releases Mr. Kelly from a fine of $25 imposed against him by Judge Halley in the municipal court a year ago.

Mr. Kelly is said to have applied the epithet mentioned to Mr. Cooper and the latter had him arrested for using abusive language. The case was hotly contested, Kelly losing in the municipal court. He appealed to the superior court and a jury trial resulted in a dismissal of the action.

The trial had some amusing features. Mr. Cooper testified that he did not object to being called a Democrat, but he did not like the manner in which Kelly applied the epithet. Assistant City Attorney McIntosh, who conducted the prosecution, laid much stress on the precedent that would be established if Kelly were acquitted, while Attorney W. P. Crawford for Kelly, told of the glory there was in being called a disciple of the Jeffersonian faith.

It is said that nine of the jury were Democrats, two were Republicans and one was a Prohibitionist.

CAUGHT WHILE SELLING PLUNDER

Caught trying to sell some goods which they are claimed to have taken in a burglary at Princeton, Minn., John Ripley, a brakeman, aged 24 years, and Nick Abrass, an Assyrian, 20 years of age, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Officers Cater and Rodahl in the second hand store of Jake Vienner of 206 Lake avenue south.

Both men deny having participated in the robbery, but the Princeton authorities have been notified, and will arrive today to take charge of them.

The men claim the goods were given them by a tramp known as "Chicago Red." The plunder consisted of six watches, twelve razors, sixteen pocket knives and five revolvers.

Abrass is well known to the police, having served sixty days in Minneapolis for petty larceny, and seventy-five days in Duluth on the same charge. He was also arrested here for peddling without a license. He was selling "phoney" jewelry, but was released on a promise to leave town.

FRESHMAN FRIVOLITY.

The freshman hop which is to be held tomorrow evening is to be by far the most elaborate of the school social affairs this year, says President Cannon. The details of the affair have all been arranged and music, spread and decorations are all to be the finest obtainable.

The spread will be held at 6:30 sharp and at the class meeting held Wednesday President Cannon requested that all the class members should be on hand at that time in order that the banquet might be over by 8 and the members of the other classes who came to attend the dance afterward might not be forced to wait. Besides the usual toasts by the faculty, J. B. Long will deliver a toast to "The Class of '09," and Manus MacFadden will give the time-honored toast, "The Girls."

The dance programs are a novelty, being made in the shape of an envelope, the class pin forming the seal. The menu cards are to be hand painted and will be decorated with brown-eyed susans, the class flower. The program for the dance will consist of sixteen numbers and three extras. La Brosse will play.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The senate in executive session yesterday rejected the nomination of Edward A. Winstantley to be receiver of public moneys at Missoula, Mont. It was a reappointment, but protests were made concerning his conduct in office, and the public lands commission reported unanimously against consideration.

The ecclesiastical court which tried Dr. Algernon A. Crapsey, rector of St. Andrews' church of Rochester, on a charge of heresy, ended its work Wednesday, when a verdict was reached, and a document containing the findings of the court was drawn up, signed and forwarded to Bishop Walker at Buffalo. Until the verdict has been reviewed by Bishop Walker, no official information as to its contents can be secured.

Fire Wednesday damaged the Masonic temple at Washington street and Capitol avenue, Indianapolis, to the extent of $15,000, and caused a total loss of $25,000. Raper commandery and several Blue lodges lost their paraphernalia. Capt. John Winters, Bartholomew Dugan and George Newlands, members of the fire department, were slightly injured by a falling cornice.

VITAL WEAKNESS!

Longest established, most successful and reliable Specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records show.

We strive to cure the thousands of young and middle-aged men who are tortured by the woes of nervous debility. I have evolved a special treatment for Nervous Debility and special weakness that is uniformly successful in cases where success was before and by other doctors deemed impossible. It does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently. It allays irritation of the delicate tissues surrounding the lax and unduly expanded glands, contracting them to their normal conditions, thereby relieving all distressing symptoms. It tones up and strengthens the blood vessels that carry nourishment, thereby restoring health and strength. Meanwhile the patient realizes a great blight has been lifted from his life.

I make no misleading statements or deceptive propositions to the afflicted, neither do I promise to cure them in a few days in order to secure their patronage, but I GUARANTEE A COMPLETE, SAFE AND LASTING CURE in the quickest possible time, without leaving injurious after effects in the system, and at the lowest cost possible for Honest, Skillful and Successful Services. I cure

JOSEPH A. WHEELOCK.

The death of Joseph A. Wheelock, for many years editor of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, removes from the field of his activities a man ripe in years and full of honors, and puts an end to a long life full of vigorous, persistent and uniformly good work.

Mr. Wheelock must be classed with the great editors who created the class of personal newspapers now almost extinct. Like Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune, Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun, in the days of the greatest prosperity and activity of his newspaper, he was the newspaper and the newspaper represented him. Today, of all that circle of great editors who stamped their personalities upon the newspapers they guided, Henry Watterson is the only one living.

Joseph A. Wheelock was a man of positive character, fierce energy, and noble purpose. Of late, owing to his many years and his failing health, he had been no more than an occasional contributor to the newspaper he had made, but in his prime his vigorous writings formed one of the greatest factors in the building of the state and of the capital city. Like all men of positive character, he had warm friends and bitter enemies, and chief among the latter was the erratic but brilliant Ignatius Donnelly, who waged relentless but ineffectual warfare upon the veteran editor and his newspaper. He attacked him upon the stump and through the courts by libel suits, but his defeats were many and his victories were empty.

Personally Mr. Wheelock was a quiet, reticent, unassuming man, who avoided publicity rather than sought it. He mingled little with the outside world, but contented himself with his work and his circle of warm friends. He sought no public offices, and with the exception of the position of state commissioner of statistics, which he held for a time in early days, his only public position was that of member of the park board of St. Paul. The building of parks was one of his hobbies, and much of what St. Paul has accomplished in that line is due directly to his personal efforts.

But in spite of the diffidence that kept him from mingling freely with the crowd, from his sanctum in the Pioneer-Press editorial rooms went forth a mighty force that shaped and directed, in the days of his greatest activity, the destiny of a great state. His vigorous and forceful editorials were a power in the development of the Northwest, and they were exerted always along right lines. In his death Minnesota, the Northwest and the profession of journalism sustain a great loss. But the influence that he wielded so forcefully, though it will never be used again, has stamped itself indelibly upon the history and achievements of Minnesota, and has made itself a permanent place in the annals of the state.

LAKE STRIKE SETTLED.

And now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by this sun of strike settlement.

The peaceful ending of the lake strike, before it had had time to work great hardship or effect great interruption to business, is most excellent news.

The number of men involved made the prospect gloomy, and if the combat had been long and bitter the results would have been disastrously far-reaching. Already the closing down of mines on the Minnesota ranges had put a damper upon the prosperity of the range country, and merchants, fearful of a long strike, had curtailed orders to wholesalers. Already the partial suspension of lake traffic had begun to spread alarm in many directions.

And now that the strike is over, and the thousands of men it had condemned to idleness will go immediately back to work, the clouds have faded away, and upon the business sky there is not even a cloud as large as the traditional man's hand.

With the coal strike settled and the lake strike settled, there appears to be no further obstacle to a great summer for business and industry in this section. Operations will go ahead with renewed activity, and with business houses and factories all busy, and labor all employed, this becomes once more a summer of infinite promise.

WASTING THE CANDLE.

The other day Corwin H. Spencer, grain and stock speculator and former president of the Merchants' exchange of St. Louis, collapsed while watching the stock ticker during a sudden slump in stocks, and died two hours later. The doctors looked the body over and gave the disease that carried him away a name, but it was not the name that those who are familiar with the lives led by speculators would give it. The popular diagnosis would be that he died from the effects of repeated shocks of excitement caused by market fluctuations, and it would be correct, in all probability.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, in reporting Mr. Spencer's death, makes note of the fact that six other presidents of the St. Louis Merchants' exchange have been carried off suddenly by heart strokes or other unexpectedly fatal attacks. Mr. Spencer was in the prime of his life, and so were most of these other men whose lives went out like a candle before a puff of wind.

Nor is it surprising. The man who can play the stock or grain market, and risk his fortune, his comfort, and the livelihood of his family upon the turn of a market, and not undergo severe nervous and physical strain, is an automaton, not a man. He can have no nerves, and his blood must be cold as spring water. Such men are rare. They do exist, it is true, and possibly they play the market without serious physical results.

But the average man, whose nerves are subject to the influences of excitement and motion, and whose phsical being is not made of steel, cannot fail to be hurt by such a life, and the seven sudden deaths of leading St. Louis speculators, with the unnumbered sudden deaths of speculators in other markets all over the country, show that if the speculator's life is to be a merry one, it is very likely to be a short one.

Of course every man must choose his own career in life, and there is an element of interest and a spice of danger and excitement about the speculator's career that is attractive to most men, but it hardly seems worth while. The sudden plunges from tense apprehension and almost despair to great joy over a winning, and from the glee of victory to the gloom of defeat, cannot help draining the vitality of those who expose themseves to such sweeps of emotion and excitement. They live two days in one, and often, during a hard siege upon the market, they expend enough vitality in a week to keep them a year.

They must expect to pay for it. They do pay for it. If it is not with a curtailment of life, it is with physical breakdowns at the end that often leave them worse than dead. They burn the candle at both ends, and then, when the flame meets in the center, and with nothing more to consume flickers out, their friends are surprised and speak of it as "sudden".

THIS YEAR'S ELECTIONS.

When Oregon holds its election in less than a month, the campaign of 1906 may be said to have started. Oregon, in order to be peculiar or perhaps because the date suits its farmers better, holds its state election June 4, and this will be the first state election of the year.

Arkansas will come next with an election held Sept. 1. Vermont will elect a governor Sept. 4. Maine will vote Sept. 10, Georgia on Oct. 3, and Kentucky on Nov. 5. Twenty-four other states will hold their elections at the same time, on Nov. 6, and this list incudes Minnesota. On that date, also, congressmen will be elected, and the states that have been in such a hurry with their state elections will have to go back and go through it all again in order to have a representation in congress.

In all twenty-nine states hold state elections this year, and successors will be elected to eleven Democratic governors and eighteen Republican chief executives. The states with Democratic governors are Alabama, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nevada, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas. The states with Republican governors are Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The election of governors means little politically, so far as the general situation is concerned, though in the days of strict partisanship it meant more. Of late more and more states are becoming practically nonpartisan in their selection of governors, without altering their political complexion so far as the election of president and congressmen is concerned. One of these is Minnesota, which has at present a Democratic governor, but which is a certain Republican state so far as national elections go.

Several other states with Democratic governors are inclined toward Republicanism in national affairs, while half a dozen of the states with Republican governors are by no means certain Republican states in national elections.

While this uncertainty in political results is complicating the work of party leaders, it is working out to the great advantage of the people generally, for in practically every case where a state has elected a governor of a poltical complexion different from its own, it has been because he was clearly the better man. This shows that the people are discriminating more than ever before, and that in order to win success the parties must show results and not try to hold the people by mere empty promises and high-sounding platforms.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"It is generally the wrong hunch for a city to try to lay its own paving," said N. I. Johnson of Detroit, Mich., at the McKay. "The safest way nearly always is for the city to let the contract to some firm in the business, and not attempt the job itself, even if the price of the other fellow seems a little high. It is usually cheaper in the long run.

"An instance of this is to be seen in Detroit, at a street corner where the street car company is putting in new tracks. The company is filling the entire excavation with crushed stone, according to its recently adopted plan of using that material instead of concrete for track foundations. The old concrete that was laid by the city outside of the former tracks is being hauled to the dump, as being too soft and worthless to use on the job, but the old concrete that was laid by a private company between the rails is being broken up with sledge hammers and used along with the crushed stone for a new foundation.

"It is just as hard as the stone, and it is cheaper to break it up, screen and use it than it would be to haul it away and haul in stone to take its place. The trouble with the city in a matter of this kind is that it lacks the experience in paving that a company has, and always runs the risk of doing a poor job.

"Business is good in Detroit. Detroit is one of the best cities on the lakes, with plenty of activity, and a good lot of hustling business men."

"I got onto a new way of getting rid of one's money quickly for those who are afflicted with the gambling spirit," said A. C. Carter of Eau Claire, Wis., at the Lenox. "The gambler generally has plenty of methods of risking his coin, but this is a new one on me. They call it greenback poker.

"The game was hatched down in Washington. Each bill bears a series number, say 9,697,535. In this number there are three nines and two sixes, a full house. The next man may have four of a kind, or two pairs. The players meet each other, each extracts a bill and holds it up. The high hand wins. It is a simple way to part with your surplus supply of bills.

"Another lunch is to play odd and even on the dates of quarters, half dollars, dollars, or any piece of silver. One man holds the coin in his hand and the other guesses whether or not the date on it is an odd or even number. If he guesses right, he gets the coin."

"New people are coming into Northern Minnesota at a rapid rate," said John G. Allen of Minneapolis, at the St. Louis. Mr. Allen is a prominent land man, and just now has an agent in Germany who is sending over a large colony to settle on lands east of Hinckley. The party will arrive about June 1.

"During the past thirty days I have located nine families in this district," said Mr. Allen. They are all late arrivals from Sweden, and have purchased farms, intending to vigorously push their development. New farms are being developed down there by the score, and it is going to be a rich agricultural district. Roads are being built through the country, and the people who are settling there are of a good and industrious class."

"A person taking up lands under the homestead laws in certain parts of Nevada, the Carson Sink valley, for example, has to live up to the requirements of the homestead law and pay $26 an acre additional for his land," said O. F. Johnson of Minneapolis at the St. Louis. "In Northern Minnesota he pays nothing, but his filing fees and the cost of proving up.

"The charge in Nevada is really for the water alone. It is so fixed that the sale of all land under the project will reimburse the government for its expenditures in constructing a system of irrigation. The irrigation works will be maintained and operated under the direction of the secretary of the interior until all payments are made for the major portion of the lands irrigated.

"The system will then pass to the control of the owners of the irrigated lands and be maintained at their expense under such organization as may be acceptable to the secretary of the interior. In order to judge of the value of water one must understand the conditions existing in Nevada. It is the only state or territory in which dry farming cannot be practiced with some degree of success. Irrigation is absolutely essential to the growth of crops. By proper irrigation the land which without water had no value can be made to yield annul returns of from $20 to upward of $100 an acre, depending upon the crop planted."

A Roosevelt Story.

John Burroughs in the Atlantic: One night in camp he told us the story of one of his Rough Riders who had just written him from some place in Arizona. The Rough Riders, wherever they are now, look to him in time of trouble. This one had come to grief in Arizona. He was in jail. So he wrote the president, and his letter ran something like this:

"Dear Colonel—I am in trouble. I shot a lady in the eye, but I did not intend to hit the lady; I was shooting at my wife."

And the presidential laughter rang out over the treetops. To another Rough Rider, who was in jail, accused of horse stealing, he had loaned $200 to pay counsel on his trial, and, to his surprise, in due time the money came back. The ex-Rough Rider wrote that his trial never came off. "We elected our district attorney;" and the laughter again sounded, and drowned the noise of the brook near by.

An Amendment.

Chicago Chronicle: "Such an amendment," said Senator Tillman during a debate, "would destroy the bill's meaning even as the meaning of the epitaph on old John Skinn's tombstone was destroyed.

"An amendment was tacked to John Skinn's epitaph. It consisted of one word, the word 'friends.' It was put on in the dead of night.

"The epitaph previous to the amendment read:

"'He did his best.'"

THE WEATHER.

This was a brilliant and almost flawless day. The wind was not from the lake, for which most people were truly thankful, and there was only the faintest suspicion of a chill in it. The weather man expects the fair weather to keep up tonight and tomorrow, and it will be slightly warmer tonight, but he hints at easterly winds, an announcement not so pleasant as the rest of it. Last night's lowest temperature was 36 degs., and yesterday's highest was 66 degs. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"Light rains fell during Wednesday or last night over Atlantic states due to the disturbance off the New England coast. It is also cooler along the Atlantic coast attending a rise in pressure and the movement of a high pressure area from the Mississippi valley and Gulf states. Barometric depressions over Alberta are not as yet attended by any rain of consequence, but they are responsible for a decided rise in temperature in Washington, Alberta and the Missouri, Red River and Mississippi vallays. Conditions favor a continuance of good weather in this section tonight and Friday."

Following were the lowest temperatures recorded by the weather bureau last night:

Henry H. Rogers' Merry Jest.

New York World: Henry H. Rogers, who is now practically the head of the Standard Oil corporation, was at his office at 26 Broadway all day yesterday. He refused to see reporters, but this story was told in Wall street, late yesterday afternoon, apparently upon good authority.

When the copy of the president's message was first obtained at 26 Broadway it was sent to Mr. Rogers' office. Mr. Rogers' son, Henry H. Rogers, Jr., was in the office, and upon him devolved the duty of reading the document to his father. When the young man came to the paragraph which stated that the Standard Oil company had been obtaining $750,000 a year through secret rebates on a total business of 22,000,000 barrels of refined oil, each containing fifty gallons, Mr. Rogers figured out that this was less than a mill a gallon in rebates.

"Why, Harry," remarked Mr. Rogers, "that is not even petty larceny. I am ashamed of our innocence."

A Perpetual Debt.

Lincoln State Journal: Advocates of fiat money will pretend to find an argument in their favor in the government account with the "shin-plaster." Of these fractional currency which served its purpose in Civil war times over $8,000,000 was redeemed and destroyed, but there is still outstanding a matter of $7,000,000 worth which there is no apparent disposition to present for redemption. The explanation is found in the fact that the shin-plasters now in existence are worth more than their face value as souvenirs. The treasury department still lists this $7,000,000 among its debts, but it is a debt that will never have to be paid.

That Lickskillet Affair.

Washington Post: We are mighty sorry to hear about the accident which befell a distinguished citizen of Lickskillet, Tex., some months ago. We'd have been sorry before, and made appropriate mention, if we had heard the sad news sooner. Better late than never, is our motto, however, when a good man pulls his freight untimely, and so we celebrate the incident at the earliest possible moment. Hoping that this sincere explanation will give satisfaction all around, we pass easily into the narrative.

Nobody in Lickskillet now believes that when Hec Bradshaw went into Riley's saloon on the fatal night he meant the smallest harm to anybody. The trouble was that Hec had loaded up at Deadeye, and when he threw open the swing doors he didn't see the stranger. All the rest would have stood for his little circus. They were used to it. When he told them that he was from Pison Creek and proposed to chew up a few citizens for an appetizer they knew that his talk was nothing more than boyish ebullition. What he really intended to do was to set up a few rounds of rotgut and then go out into the suburbs and bark back at the coyotes. Unfortunately, Pony Haskins, the stranger, was something of a wolf himself, and after a long day's siege with the boys he felt that it was his right to howl. He had no notion of violating Lickskillet hospitality or of mussing up Riley's decorations, but he didn't propose to have anybody he hadn't met before bulge in upon that amicable company with his guns hung right in front of him and talk about double-humped buffaloes and other terrors with hair all over them. So he wiped his moustache with a sardine sandwich, got out his two revolvers, and shot Hec Bradshaw in eight places—all of them important—before anybody could explain.

"I aim to live a peaceful life," said Pony Haskins, as he recharged his empty cylinders; "moreover, I came here to visit Lickskillet in a spirit of purest kindness. And if any wall-eyed, box-ankled, low-minded son of a sea cook in this crowd thinks I ain't the peacefullest thing in forty miles around, he can waltz out into the center, and I'll swap lead with him until he wants protracted repose more than he wants a bank account. I come here, a plain, simple, unassuming stranger. You all treated me right, and I leave it to you if I didn't stack up accordin'. Well, then, what of it, as man to man?"

Of course, it was a great pity that Hec Bradshaw passed that way. He was a prominent citizen, and his demise cast a gloom over the whole community. It is even possible that Pony Haskins, later, wondered whether he hadn't been too sudden. But the obsequies were handsome, and the crowd at Riley's have ever since contended that Pony's conduct was quite regular and proper. Furthermore, looking the incident over without prejudice, we rather agree with public sentiment in Lickskillet.

Earnings of Public Service Corporations.

From a recent speech by Justice William J. Gaynor of New York: A private business may make all it can; it has competitors, and government has nothing to do with it. But a public service corporation should not be allowed to make out of the public more than a fair return upon its actual necessary investment, and I believe it is agreed that the legal rate of interest is such a fair return.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

Senator Billson is to build a fine residence at the corner of East First street and Pennsylvania avenue. It will be supplied with all modern conveniences and will cost over $4,000. J. T. Waddell has the contract and the ground is just being broken for the foundation.

Charles A. Pettibone arrived in Duluth yesterday. He is at present in the claim department of the Omaha road at St. Paul, but will come here about June 1 to take position of chief clerk under General Agent Smith and will have charge of the local freight of the Omaha road.

J. T. Waddell is building a fine residence for J. F. McLaren, Jr., at the corner of Third street and Second avenue east.

F. R. Webber to A. W. Richards, lots 5 and 6, block 22, Commerce division, $5,000.

E. R. Logan and family, of the firm of Logan & Whitney, arrived in Superior last evening from Driftwood, Pa., to reside there again. Mr. Logan left Superior about three years ago on account of ill health.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Breckenridge Gazette: Will the great corporate interests defeat the will of the people at the state convention at Duluth? Certainly they are going to try it.

Northfield News: The way for voters to defeat the schemes of self-seeking politicians is to turn out at the primaries and elect as delegates men of their own choice whom they know they can trust. They can turn down the bosses and the tools of the bosses when they act themselves. When the great majority of voters turn out, it is practically impossible for any ring or gang to pack the caucuses and have the nominations all their own way. And until they do, the active and organized minority who are under orders from the bosses will continue to control state politics.

Red Wing Republican: The senate is getting ready to be good and the passage of the rate bill is assured. The back districts have been heard from.

Crookston Times: We suspect that there is a concealed Eddy in the stream of gubernatorial candidates.

Little Falls Transcript: The St. Paul Dispatch gets its geography confused and says that Congressman Bede has reason to fear Representative Cole. While Cole's senatorial district is partly in Bede's congressional district, Cole is a resident of the Sixth district, along with several other statesmen.

Verndale Sun: The Sixth district promises to play a very important part in the state convention at Duluth next month; in fact, this district has the key to the situation, if the truth is known. Let us put up a solid front and play the game to win.

Bear River Journal: A knocker is a fellow who has not been able to keep up with the times and is mad about it.

Hastings Gazette: It is shrewdly suspected that the movement in favor of J. F. Jacobson for governor is to make it as easy as possible for Governor Johnson's re-election, his principal support coming from the bolting element of two years ago.

Warren Register: Hobson, of kissing fame, is being touted for president on the Democratic ticket in 1908. Hobson is a sailor, but that is no sign that a smack will carry him to the White House.

Madison Independent Press: In the gubernatorial scramble no one man seems to be running away with the entire playhouse.

Moorhead Independent: Some of the standpat protectionists are beginning to hear from their constituents, and they can already hear the whiz of the ax which will sever them from their office.

Walls of the Monopolists.

Wall Street Journal: One of the most powerful financiers in this country is quoted as having said, within a few days, that President Roosevelt by his policy toward the corporations was doing more damage to this country than has been inflicted by the San Francisco earthquake.

Senator La Follette, in his recent speech, quoted a significant passage from Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations." The great economist said:

"The member of parliament who supports every proposition for strengthening monopoly is sure to acquire a great reputation for understanding trade and also great popularity and influence with an order of men whose number and wealth render them of great importance. If he opposes them, on the contrary, and still more, if he have authority enough to thwart them, neither the most acknowledged probity nor the highest rank, nor the greatest public service can protect him from the most infamous abuse and detraction, from personal insults, nor sometimes from real danger arising from the influence of furious and disappointed monopolists."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Some people are so lazy they yawn in their sleep.

It's awful shortsighted to lie if the truth will fool people more.

Elopers have to learn that running away with a wife is easier than running away from one.

Mrs. Hohmboddie—Stop, for goodness' sake! What in the world is the creature trying to say?

Mr. Hohmboddie—He's makin a declaration of love.

Mrs. Hohmboddie—A declaration of love? I thought he was telling a lot of symptoms to his doctor.

LAUGHING GAS.

Baltimore American: "Maud, can't you play tennis without all that noise?"

"Now, how do you suppose we are going to play tennis without raising a racquet?"

Philadelphia Press: "It's just possible," remarked the editor of the "Bugle," in his patient way, "that Jenks may decline to pay for his ad in this issue. The big headlines should have read: 'We have more furniture, bedding and rugs than we care to carry in stock.'"

"Well?" queried the foreman.

"Well, it's 'bugs' in the paper."

New York Sun: Tommy—How do your pa and ma work?

The Last Straw.

Grand Rapids Press: They tell this one on Former Governor George Hoadly of Ohio:

Once upon a time, in the midst of a campaign, Mr. Hoadly was to deliver a speech at a little town in the great and glorious Buckeye state. When he reached the one hotel the town boasted he walked up to the register and wrote his name. The proprietor - head - porter - steward-head-waiter-depot-runner was behind the desk in his shirt sleeves, his hat on the back of his head, and a cigar stump held between his teeth. When the visitor had put down his John Hancock, the factotum turned the register around, read without the flicker of an eyelid the name there written, wrote "10" beside it with a lead pencil, and said:

"You kin jest take yer grip right up that stairway there an' back down the hall clean to th' end. Yer room's right on th' left hand side of th' hall, in th' corner—number 10."

With considerable astonishment and not a little injured dignity, Ohio's chief executive pointed to his name, smiled faintly, and said:

"I am George Hoadly, governor of the state of Ohio!"

Turning, then, with a look of exasperated impatience on his face, the hotel man exclaimed:

"Well, what d'ye expect me t' do—kiss ye?"

Comparisons Are Odious.

American Spectator: A prominent attorney practicing before the supreme court was not long ago, during a recess of that august body, regaling some of his colleagues with tales of humorous happenings in court, and among these was the following:

"There is a judge out in Missouri who is fond, in an unobtrusive fashion, of relieving the monotony of the tedious proceedings by his quiet but telling observations.

"On one occasion, in the court over which this judge presides, a certain advocate, well known for his very flowery platitudes, was pleading before his honor. 'As I stand at this bar today,' declaimed this lawyer, 'in behalf of a prisoner whose health is such that he may at any moment be called before a greater judge than of this court, I am reminded—'

"At this juncture his honor rapped sharply on his desk, counsel stopped suddenly and looked up with an expression of interrogative protest on his face.

"'The counsel for the defense,' observed the judge with great dignity, 'will kindly confine himself to the case before the jury and not permit himself the luxury of invidious comparison.'"

Ah, There, Dr. Osler.

Carrollton, Ohio, Chronicle: John C. Gantz was in town Wednesday evening with a load of potatoes. Although 81 years old, he is busier than a cat catching rats. He had worked all day in the field and drove to town in the evening. He is as straight as an Indian and probably the strongest man in Carroll county of his age. Although he has all kinds of oil, coal, clay and minerals on his land, he cultivates the surface—just for exercise. If any man in Carroll county between the ages of 75 and 95 wants to shoot mark, pitch horse shoes, or run a short foot race, he ought to call up Uncle John C.

URGE NEED OF FIRE TUG

Speakers at Chief Black's Annual Dinner Refer to It.

Some Excellent Records Are Made by Firemen During Inspection.

The need of a fire tug was forcibly brought out at a banquet held in the St. Louis hotel last evening, terminating the annual inspection of the Duluth fire department by the aldermen, fire board, city officials, and other prominent citizens.

Fire Commissioner How acted as toastmaster, and among the speakers were Mayor Cullum, Assistant City Attorney McKeon, A. E. McManus, president of the Duluth Automobile club, President Tessman of the council, M. M. Clark, C. E. Peaslee, Chief Johnson of Superior, C. R. Rust, Andrus R. Merritt, Henry Nolte, B. Silberstein, Alderman R. D. Haven, E. J. Filiatrault and Alderman C. S. Wilson.

All of the speakers complimented their host, Chief Black, on the efficiency of the department, and most of them touched upon the need for a fire tug to protect the Duluth water front.

"If all of the taxpayers were here tonight," said Mayor Cullum, "none of them would appear before the board of review asking for a reduction of their taxes; or if they will render true statements of their financial condition on the blanks left by the assessors, the city council could buy a fire tug and make other improvements for which it contends.

"A fire tug could be purchased if the coal companies could be prevented timing the arrival of their steamers so that there would be no coal on the docks May 1, when the property is assessed.

"The insurance men might take a gentle hint from the splendid showing the department has made today."

President McManus of the automobile club, stated that the members were glad of the opportunity to extend courtesies on such an occasion. Eleven automobiles had been furnished by members of the club, to take the guests about from one fire hall to another. Those who gave the use of their automobiles were: Garfield Wood, Frank McCarthy, Frank Heimick, Victor Huot, Edward J. Filiatrault, George E. Vincent, F. A. Brewer, A. E. McManus, Chief Black, L. R. Martin, W. W. Sanford and A. S. Johnson.

Chief Johnson of Superior, said that in his opinion Duluth has one of the best fire departments in the United States. He endorsed Chief Black's plea for a fire tug, and said that Superior might be induced to assist in purchasing it, if the tug could be used on both sides of the bay.

Andrus R. Merritt, one of the fire commissioners stated that when he had become a member of the board he was prejudiced against what he had heard was extravagance.

"After investigating the departments in many cities," he said, "I can say without fear of contradiction, that Duluth has the best fire department, run for the least money of any city in the United States. I am glad that the recent charges against the chief were so successfully refuted that there can be no possibility of them being raised again."

E. J. Filiatrault complimented the chief on the showing made, and urged the needs of good roads.

Henry Nolte stated that local insurance men have nothing to do with the fixing of rates. He stated that the department stood in need of more men and more horses.

"Some of you are clamoring for more protection in the suburbs," he said, "but it is needed in the business section. If the business section should be swept by a conflagration, the residence part would not be worth a pleayune. Build another fire hall on Michigan street, for that's where it is needed."

During the afternoon some astonishing records were made. At the Fourteenth avenue fire hall, in particular, the work of the firemen was nothing short of a revelation. The men ran their horses in fast, coupled their hose to the hydrant, put on the nozzle, and had a stream of water in eight seconds from the time the wagon started.

The men were given a round of applause for the feat, but unfortunately an accident occurred as a result of the run.

A hack from the Board of Trade livery had just crossed Second street on the avenue, when the fire team started. The clanging bell frightened the horses, and they ran away. Chief Troyer and L. R. Martin saw the horse start, and they sprang to their heads, and succeeded in turning them into a tree. Mr. Martin had a very narrow escape from being crushed between the hack and George Vincent's automobile, which was standing at the side of the road, and Chief Troyer sustained some bad scratches on his hands and knee.

The firemen who took part in the Pompier ladder climbing at headquarters, were Firemen Lee, Bain, Hanson, Larson and Payne. L. E. Larson made the single handed ascent, and Fireman John F. Payne made the descent of the rope.

Following are the official records, made at the various halls:

FARMER FALLS DEAD.

Dassel, Minn., May 10.—John Ahlstrom, one of the best known farmers of this vicinity, dropped dead yesterday shortly after dinner. He was employed as manager for Walker Gregory of the Advance Thresher company, who owns a large farm about three miles south of this village. He was about 35 years of age.

FREEZING IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Reading, Pa., May 10.—Last night was the coldest May day in the Schuylkill valley in some years, the thermometer touching the freezing point. There was a heavy frost and it is feared fruit has been badly damaged.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

Longshoremen and Allied Interests Go Back to Work.

Cleveland, May 10.—The great strike of marine workers, which has interfered with lake commerce since a week ago last Monday, has been declared off and all union men have been ordered to return to work this morning.

The settlement was reached late yesterday and according to the terms, all members of unions affiliated with the longshoremen's organization will report for duty, pending a conference for the fixing of a new agreement for the present season in regard to wages and hours of labor. The settlement will affect freight handlers of all classes, marine firemen and oilers, licensed tugmen and tug firemen. The question of the recognition of the newly formed Pilots union, which was the main point at issue, was eliminated in reaching a basis of settlement.

No hours or wages were fixed for the dock workers and they will continue to work ten and eleven hours a day as business demands, pending the result of a joint conference which will be held here Friday. The men will be paid at the rate of wages and for the hours agreed upon by the conference from the time they return to work. The men employed on vessels will continue to work under the terms of last season's contracts until a new agreement is made. The Lake Carriers will probably meet the union representatives next week for the purpose of making agreements.

As the result of the idleness of the docks for ten days, there is now afloat at Lake Erie ports 1,500,000 tons of iron ore. It will take about ten days to clear up the jam and the last boats to arrive will have a long wait at the docks to be unloaded.

Capt. Bush of the Lake Pilots' Protective association, said last night that the settlement of the strike would make no difference with his organization and it will continue in existence.

At the close of the conference between Presidents Keefe and Livingstone, it was stated last night that Mr. Keefe has issued an order to the men to return to work today. According to the terms agreed upon the question of recognizing the mates' union was eliminated.

Officials of the Lake Carriers last night made arrangements with President Keefe to meet representatives of the grain scoopers, marine firemen and oilers and tug firemen here next Monday to settle the question of wages and hours of labor.

The strike was inaugurated at midnight May 1 by the longshoremen for recognition of the Mates' union. The firemen, oilers and water tenders also quit with the longshoremen, and as a result lake carrying traffic has been tied up, except for boats which have cleared with non-union men. Dozens of ships have been tied up in the harbors here and at Detroit, Buffalo and other ports, laden with grain and ore. No effort was made to discharge the cargoes, and in consequence heavy losses have resulted. It is generally conceded that an increased charge for freight transportation will follow temporarily at least.

During the strike no sort of disorder has occurred. President Keefe of the longshoremen arrived yesterday morning from Detroit. At that time it was said the longshoremen were dissatisfied with the showing made by the mates, but no authoritative statement was given out. President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association arrived from Detroit yesterday, and all of the negotiations looking to the peace which has been declared were conducted with great secrecy. The strike involved fully 20,000 men. The passenger lines were not affected.

Perfect Malt Perfect Beer

Malt is well said to be "the soul of beer." It is the life, the vitality, the substance of beer, and perfect beer is possible only with perfect malt.

Though perfect malt is an absolute essential, no brewer, even with perfect malt, can make pure, high quality, wholesome beer without pure water, choicest hops and clean machinery—all managed by experienced brew-masters along thoroughly scientific lines.

Pabst for sixty years has been the pioneer in perfecting the most highly scientific processes of brewing, and to-day he leads in the manufacture of the purest and best beer.

Pabst Beer is made only from eight-day malt. This means that Pabst Beer contains the highest amount of nutrition obtainable from malt. The exclusive Pabst eight-day method gets all the good out of the barley into the malt and insures more invigorating food extractives than are found in any other malt. This, coupled with sixty years of practical brewing experience, makes Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer unequaled as a nourishing tonic and a delicious beverage. Next in importance to eight-day malt is cleanliness, and we might very well say just as important, for cleanliness is not only desirable but necessary in brewing the best beer. And in this again Pabst excels. The mammoth Pabst brewery in every department is as clean as the cleanest kitchen and the beer from mash-tub to keg or bottle is never touched by human hands. It passes through sterilized tubes and pipes into hermetically sealed sterilized tanks, and every known safeguard is established to prevent contamination.

The ingredients of Pabst Beer are the purest and best money can buy, and it is given to the public only when science and the test of time show it to be perfect in age, purity and strength; the best beer brewed.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

MISERABLE EXHIBITION

Central High School Ball Team Makes Very Poor Showing.

Badly Beaten in Ragged Game With Blaine Team.

Yesterday afternoon the Duluth high school base ball team lost a decidedly ragged game to the Blaine team by a score of 17 to 5, and if the Duluth boys do not put up a better article of ball than they did yesterday in the remainder of the games which are scheduled they may as well give up all hopes of even seeing the championship cup.

The team seemed to be thoroughly demoralized. McDevitt took Cook's place in the box with almost no preliminary practice and exhibited a lack of control that was really wonderful, nine men getting free passes to first on his delivery. On first McKinley made several inexcusable errors and a number of flies to the outfield were missed. Even Capt. Crassweller on third went up in the air on several occasions and made two very costly errors. Caulkins at short and Cole on the second bag, partially escaped the hoodoo that overwhelmed the remainder of the team, and Cummings caught a good game behind the bat until he got a split finger in the eighth, when he changed places with Crassweller.

Pitcher Joe Rooney of the Blain was hit rather freely all through the game, but he was given a much better article of support than was McDevitt and only five runs were made by the Duluth boys. Harvey Buchanan on second and Underhill in center field did some splendid work for the Superiorites.

Neither side scored until the third, when two passes, an error and a safe hit netted Superior two runs. In the fourth Superior dug in, in earnest, and Duluth went to pieces completely. If Buchanan went to first on an error, McGraw got four balls and Flynn went out on a foul to Cummings. Harvey Buchanan stole third and Art Buchanan found McDevitt for what should have been a single, but which two errors stretched out to a two-bagger, and Buchanan and McGraw came home. Rooney went out on a fly to Caulkins and Underhill drew a two-bagger, bringing Art Buchanan home. Jennings knocked an easy little fly to Crassweller, who muffed it, and on Nord's two-bagger Underhill and Jennings got home. In Duluth's half of the inning, Caulkins drew a safe hit, made second on an error by McGraw, stole third and came home on a muffed fly from Crasweller to Buchanan. Crassweller was retired at first, Cummings sent a long fly to left field which was gathered in, and Harvey Buchanan retired the side by a brilliant catch of McKinley's fly over second.

In the next inning Duluth settled down, H. Buchanan getting the only hit, and he was marooned on second base when McGraw, Flynn and Art Buchanan were retired in one-two-three order. McDevitt drove a two-bagger over first base, went to third on a muffed fly, and came home on Bowen's hit. Bowen was put out at first, Forsyth fanned and Ryan failed to reach first.

The sixth was a repetition of the fourth, and though McDevitt only allowed the Blaine contingent one safe hit in the inning, they succeeded in bringing in five runs, raising the score to 12 to 2. Duluth was retired without scoring. In the seventh Art Buchanan, Jennings and Nord scored for Blaine, and McDevitt and Cole for Duluth. In the eighth McGraw was the only Superiorite to cross the plate, and though Caulkins made a safe hit and stole second and third, he was left there when Cummings sent an easy fly to Underhill, and Crassweller and McKinley fanned. In the ninth Harvey Buchanan scored for Blaine and Ed Cole for Duluth. The line-up:

Duluth.	Position.	Superior.
Caulkins	ss	Flynn
Cummings	c	A. Buchanan
Crassweller	3b	Rooney
McKinley	1b	McGraw
McDevitt	p	J. Rooney
Cole	2b	H. Buchanan

Forsyth	rf	Nord
Ryan	lf	Jennings

Carl Hanton of the Superior Telegram and Prof. Brace of Duluth exchanged positions as umpires, and Prof. Phillips of Duluth acted as official scorer. The game was played at Hammond park, Superior.

HOPPE IN LEAD AT TOURNAMENT

Heads Winning List Among Billiard Cracks at Chicago.

Chicago, May 10.—Willie Hoppe heads the winning list in the professional billiard tournament being played in Orchestra hall. Jake Schaefer has the same percentage as the youngster, but he has taken part in only one game, while Hoppe has won both games in which he has played.

Two matches were decided yesterday. The afternoon game was between George Slosson and Louis Cure, the Frenchman. Slosson won 500 to 219, having led all the way after the ninth inning. George Sutton, the Canadian, and Willie Hoppe were the contestants in last night's game, and the boy billiardist won by the score of 500 to 226. The game was a one-sided affair right from the start. Sutton won the bank but failed to score. Hoppe replied with a score of 60. Sutton made another zero. Hoppe came back with 14 and then in the third inning made his high run of the game, 212. This gave the youngster a lead of 357, and he steadily increased his advantage as the game progressed. Hoppe's average was 25 flat.

Sutton appeared to be badly out of form and fell down on many easy shots.

His high run was 59 and his average 11 6-20.

NO MORE FIGHTS IN BUTTE.

Mayor Said the Lid is to be Screwed Down Tight.

Butte, Mont., May 10.—An edict has gone forth against prize fighting either in Butte or within a radius of three miles of the city limits. Mayor John Magimnis has declared the lid on, and says it is to be screwed down tight.

The first inkling the local fight fans had of the mayor's intentions was when he informed them that the fight billed to take place at the Broadway theater, between Kid Lee and Young Ketchell, must not take place. Billy Langdon, who is the official matmaker for the Butte Athletic club, also was informed that no more fights would be allowed within the jurisdiction of the city officials.

In addition to the Kid Lee-Young Getchell bout, the one advertised for May 25 between Larry Gordon of Butte and Kid Parker of Spokane also has been declared off.

WHITEWASH AMATEURS

White Sox Shut Out All Stars in Second Game.

League Team Plays Without an Error in the Field.

Playing without a miscue, the White Sox easily shut out the All-star amateur team, in the second practice game of the series yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park.

O'Dea's men put up a fast and perfect fielding game, while they batted Borenson hard enough to win without difficulty. The big southpaw was also wild at times, and his unsteadiness and some errors at critical times, were responsible for most of the Duluth team's runs.

Treadway started off for the leaguers, and worked out nicely for four innings, disposing of the amateurs without much difficulty. He was succeeded by Morton, who finished the game, holding the amateurs safe for the remaining five innings. Neither of the pitchers exerted themselves, holding back for the games with Hibbing which begin tomorrow.

The feature of the playing of the amateurs, was the batting of McGraw, who found the league pitchers for three safe singles.

The two teams will meet again this afternoon, and tomorrow the White Sox will go to Hibbing for the first of a series of three games with the range men.

THE TRUE TEST.

Tried in Duluth, It Has Stood The Test.

The hardest test is the test of time, and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Duluth. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof than the following:

Capt. M. McLean, marine captain, living at 4324 Gilliat street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Lapse of time has only strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave this remedy my hearty endorsement in the summer of 1898, because of the good results I had obtained from the use of it. It promptly and effectually rid me of a dull heavy aching just over the kidneys, banished the restlessness that broke my sleep at night, and brought about a healthy and natural action of the kidneys. Since that time there has been no return of the trouble, which fact convinces me that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

PRODUCTION NOT AS LARGE

Not as Much Iron Made in April as in March.

New York, May 10.—The Iron Age says: April production of anthracite and coke iron was not as heavy as in March. It amounted to 2,025,645 gross tons, of which the steel companies made 1,323,591 tons. This compares with 2,165,632 tons and 1,400,395 tons respectively in March. The furnaces are running along at the rate of 484,000 tons a week. The resumption of work at the anthracite collieries will not appreciably affect the supply of iron and will have as little effect in causing a weakening in prices, as did the cessation of work tend to strengthen values.

There has been a further moderate reduction in the stocks at the southern blast furnaces, thus showing how thoroughly the iron made in that section is being absorbed. Northern districts show accumulations.

The markets for foundry pig iron, as a whole, are rather quiet, with an easier tendency in some localities. Milwaukee, an important consuming center, is in the throes of a molders' strike, and there are similar labor troubles in other foundry centers.

In steel making irons, the Republic company has bought fully 20,000 tons of Bessemer pig. In the valleys and in the same district considerable purchases of basic pig have been made. In the East one works in the Philadelphia district purchased 10,000 tons at $17.50 delivered. In the Chicago market, 10,000 tons of malleable Bessemer have been taken, but in the East a leading buyer has withdrawn without closing.

The cast iron pipe foundries continue exceedingly busy. The Philadelphia requirements for pipe and fittings, which are now on the market, will call for 40,000 tons. A riveted pipe line for the Brooklyn water service will call for 10,000 tons of steel plates.

Pacific coast orders for structural materials have been very light. We cannot learn that thus far foreign mills have taken a single order. Among the contracts placed with domestic mills during the week are 5,000 tons for the Bethlehem open hearth building, 3,000 tons for the Northern Pacific railroad, and 6,000 tons for a building in New Orleans. Further rail orders for 1907 delivery are up. The Pennsylvania inquiry is for 180,000 tons, and two Western roads are in the Chicago market for an aggregate of 70,000 tons.

FOR THE CONVALESCENT

There is nothing so strengthening as Moose Brand Beer. We keep the justly famed "Moose Brand," a strictly pure product of hops and malt. Nothing in the slightest deleterious in its manufacture. Nutritious, wholesome, palatable, invigorating. Nothing better at any price. Send us a trial order and be convinced.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Pumps are the euphonious sounding things that one is supposed to wear on one's feet this summer. The sassy looking little shoes for footwear made their appearance last year, but were not generally worn, but this summer an epidemic of these rather silly slippers are threatened. Everybody choosing her summer shoes is choosing pumps. And in spite of the fact that the interested shoe clerk explains about the piece of elastic, which is so cleverly inserted underneath the bow in front, every sane person knows that she will come clippety-klop down the street after about the fourth time of wearing. But nobody thinks of that, as she sees the tiny things glimpsing out from beneath her skirt, for the one everlasting beauty of pumps is that they make one's feet look small, and that is an inducement that the strongest-minded woman cannot get over. Pumps make one think of those silly poems that one has read, written by fatuous young men to ladies of their imagination, and allowed to see the print of day by weak-minded publishers, wherein her feet, peeking from beneath a billowy skirt, makes him think of mice. Well, pumps do that. The fact that they will do unmentionable things to one's stockings in the heels, and that half days of rebellious pushing of a large darning needle will follow, and that one's approach will be heralded a half block away by the rhythmatic click of slipping heels, all count for naught when one sees the number three effect produced on number six feet by a pair of pumps. They are coming in almost all shades, and the shoe men need not worry about any lack in the staying on quality of the shoe. All he has to do is to slip a pair on two protesting feet, stand back and let the effect soak in, and the sale is made. Buy pumps if you would be in style.

Art Club.

Last evening the last meeting of the year of the Duluth Art club was held at the club room of the library. The Art club has during the past year kept up a valiant struggle for existence by a small number of faithful workers. The work together during the past months has been of value, and much enjoyed, and after the regular hour of drawing last evening, an informal social hour was enjoyed. Next year it is hoped that the club will enjoy more of its early days' activity, and that a larger number of the people interested in the study of art will become working members.

Singers to Assist.

Miss Lydia Heller of Philadelphia will arrive in the city Sunday, and the rehearsals for the play, "The Reformation of the Sixteenth Century," which will be presented at the Lyceum, May 24 and 25, will be begun the first of the week. Among the vocalists who will take part in the affair are: Mesdames James McAuliffe, Bert Holcomb, Rosenblad, Daniel Pearson and McGill; Misses Fleming, Stella Hector, Pearl Hector, Ella Mason, Alice Cooley, Jane Everington, Cora Hilliard, Ella Talboys, Mamie Kennedy, Florence Hyland, Esther Nelson, Olga Olson, Gertrude Wallace, Nelson, Nettie Gremmell, Florence Swendby, Thompson, Clara Mecalson, Tillie Mecalson, Mabel Johnson, and Messrs. Luse, Dorrance, Bjorquist, Evanson, Suffel, Johnson, Fensternacher, Mecalson, Applehagen, Prytz, Maxwell Dorworth and Olson.

Events of Interest.

The second division of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Baptist church will hold an all day session tomorrow at the church.

• • •

The members of the Ladies' Union of Pilgrim Congregational church will be hostesses at a May luncheon tomorrow at 1 o'clock at the church parlors. The tables will be decorated in the May flowers available and presiding at the tables will be Mesdames Brewer Mattocks, Charles Alden Smith, W. G. Hegardt, A. G. Strong, Savage, Oscar Mitchell and Gouchy. An informal program will be given in the afternoon by Mrs. James F. Walsh, Mrs. Mark Baldwin and Miss Mary Shesgren.

Apitezo

is good and you can live on it, because it contains all the above elements in absolutely correct proportion and, in addition, vegetable iron, which is Nature's own tonic for energizing the system and maintaining a full supply of rich, red blood.

Apitezo is a crisp, delicious cereal, designed to be eaten with milk or cream, and it supplies the maximum of nourishment while requiring a minimum of work of the digestive organs.

Try it for thirty days and you will eat it always.

Apitezo Biscuits, 15c the package. Apitezo Grains, 10c the package.

Sold by grocers everywhere.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Cucumbers, three for 25 cents.
Tomatoes, 18 cents a pound.
Rhubarb, 4 cents a pound.
Head lettuce, 10 cents.
Fresh ham, 15 cents a pound.
Choice ox tongue, 65 cents each.

The interest in the market these days is in a lynx-eyed watching of the market to see when the desirable vegetables and delicacies of the season get within hailing distance. Tomatoes have not yet reached the price where the great common people can have them fried in heaps of butter and cracker crumbs for breakfast and luncheon, and as a salad with tender and crisp head lettuce leaves for dinner. But the time will come as all good things come. Gradually the price is lowering. For those who must go tomatoeless to bed, there is the solace of quantities of nice strawberries, as many times a day nearly as one may wish them.

A fresh ham fixed with spices and hot cider and onions and much attention, is a real delicacy and served cold with apple salad is a gastronomic delight. (Notice of "constant reader" is called to the fact that this is the first time that over-worked "Gastronomic" has been used by this column.)

The EVENING STORY.

AN ADMIRER OF SHAKESPEARE

By R. Murray Gilchrist.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The very mention of Eunice Beaumont's library brought a warm glow to the Grassbrook pride. The village lies amidst the sycamores near Darraud bridge—a remote place where, until within the last few years education consisted of the three "R's," plain sewing for the girls, and for either sex, the rules of old-fashioned courtesy.

Eunice, however, had natural talents, she loved to widen her outlook; and so, being in straightened means, she made herself mistress of the few books she had inherited from her sire particularly the works of Shakespeare in seven volumes.

She derived a small income from the rent of two cottages near the church; for the rest she did fine needlework for such of the well-to-do as were too conservative to use machine-stitched underclothes. The old parson—Parson Swallow—would wear no other shirts than those she made.

On the afternoon when my Lady Danmon sent the message for her to present herself at Cresswell hall, she was gathering white raspberries in a nun row garden where luscious century-old things rioted.

"Good mornin', Miss Beaumont," said Mrs. Danman's young groom. "Her ladyship's housekeeper, Mrs. Dunn, she's sent me to inquire if you're free to come down to Cresswell tomorrow? A darning job on an old chair as has been stored in the lumber room for Lord knows how long. Her ladyship came upon it awhile ago and wants it in use again. Mrs. Dunn she spoke of you, and here I am to ask if it's convenient."

The old woman flushed with pleasure; never before had such an interesting piece of work fallen to her lot. "'Tis vastly good of Mrs. Dunn," she said, "and of her ladyship, too, for that matter. Ay, I'll be glad indeed to come."

The next morning she was shawled and bonneted by 9; but the young man did not appear until 11; and the stable clock at Cresswell hall was striking 12 when she alighted from the dogcart. She had never visited the place before save on the rare occasions when it was thrown open to the public; now that she was about to occupy herself beneath its roof, the magnificence seemed to increase tenfold. It was a tall house, built in Tudor times, but refronted with smooth Italian stone when George I. was king. The warm sun burnished the windows of the facade; blue-gray smoke rose from the twisted chimneys.

An elderly woman, portly and dignified, came out into the courtyard. She wore a black silk gown, and a white muslin apron with a crimped border. Eunice curtsied; the other did the same, then offered a friendly hand.

"I'm glad you could come so promptly," she said.

After many timorous questions concerning etiquette, the old maid was taken upstairs to a small boudoir where Lady Danman, a tall and handsome woman of middle age, sat in the window recess writing letters. She nodded kindly, then sealed her envelopes with faint-hued wax, and after dismissing Mrs. Dunn proceeded Eunice along a gallery and up several staircases to a great attic lighted with semicircular windows.

"This is the room," said the lady, "and here is the chair." She removed the chintz cover. "The needlework, as you see, is frayed, particularly on the arms. I want you to restore it. It was, I have found, given to Lord Danman's ancestor by Queen Elizabeth herself. By the merest chance I came upon a mention of it in an old housekeeping book."

As she reached the doorway, a shrill cry of something not unlike terror made her turn. "My lady! my lady! I most humbly ask your pardon, but—"

"You are afraid of being alone?" said Lady Danman, "One of the young maids shall sit with you—"

"'Tis not that," said Eunice, in a low voice. "I was but taken aback seeing a gentleman looking at me from between the clocks!"

Her ladyship laughed merrily. "My good soul," she said. "It is but a bust of Shakespeare—a copy of the one in Stratford church. Ah, I see it does look real, with the light falling on its painted cheeks and the old curtain hanging from the bracket."

Eunice's hands were tightly clasped. "I ask your pardon again, my lady," she said; "but—did you say Shakespeare—the great Shakespeare of the plays?"

"The very Shakespeare," said Lady Danman. "The immortal bard. And now I really must go. You will be in excellent company."

She retired, leaving the spinster and the bust in a silence as profound as that of an empty church. For a time Eunice resolutely attended to matching of her silks; but at last a reverent curiosity forced her to approach the presentment of the genius. Dust lay thick upon brow and nose; she took a folded cloth from her apron pocket, and with trembling fingers carefully wiped all away. The coloring now became vivid; she could have sworn that the bland face grew kinder because of her touch.

"To think of it!" she said with bated breath. "To think as I should be alone with him!"

The clock struck somewhere in the distance. She was too conscientious to spend time in adoration that should be spent at work, so she filled her needle and knelt beside the chair, steadfastly striving to forget the wonderful strangeness of her surroundings. The exquisite darning appealed to her; she put into it all her skill. It was slow, however; and when Lady Danman came up again about 5 o'clock, only one-half was done.

"You are doing it beautifully," said the lady. "Now, be off to Mrs. Dunn's parlor—you've done quite enough for one day."

The spinster deliberately replaced her needle in a huswife of pale green silk embroidered with purple and rose-colored flowers. She turned toward the bust, her eyes filled with an odd wistfulness.

"My lady," she said, "I feel in my heart that you are kind—that you will not believe that I ask for the mere sake of folly—"

"Ask anything you please; I'll answer if I can."

"About the head—do you believe that Shakespeare was really like that? I'd be glad to know—to know would save me much pondering."

"I thank your ladyship most earnestly. I cannot describe the gratification I have felt in being so near—in working almost as it were under his supervision—in winning his approval. And it seemed to me as if the distance betwixt him and me were not so great, after all."

Lady Danman withdrew in a maze of thought. "Good Heavens!" she said. "The creature's either mad or a genius! What a remarkable thing—a woman of her order knowing anything of Shakespeare!"

At home the old maid moved in a dream of delight. Her cottage that evening was transformed into a romantic grange, her garden into Juliet's garden, into the Temple garden, into Sweet Anne Page's garden. And after sunset, when the distant hog's-back of Winhill was veiled softly in red mist, she walked to and fro on her little paths, aloof from everything but sheer delight.

In the morning she rose early, set her house in order, and after breakfast went to a clough where Grass of Parnassus grew in a marsh with Ragged Robin and Water Speedwell and tall bullrushes. The first flower had tempted her; Grass of Parnassus must surely be the finest to place before the effigy of her genius. It grew sparsely; two hours passed before she found more than a little posy. Then her skirts were draggled, her feet wet, her wrinkled cheeks gleaming with the heat. But she felt no weariness now; in her veins flowed the blood of immortal youth.

The groom found her curiously silent during the long drive; in fact, more than once she failed to reply to his observations upon the weather.

At Cresswell hall, after her dinner with good Mrs. Dunn, she placed her tribute on a little table before the painted bust, and set to work immediately. The darning became poetry; the chair was sacred as having been in existence in the days when Shakespeare lived. Perhaps, who could tell, someone had sat therein who had touched his hand, who had listened to his soft and thrilling voice.

Lady Danman came up again in the afternoon, and stood for a while in the doorway, the old maid kneeling beside the great chair, diligently plying the bright needle. So engrossed was Eunice in her work that her ladyship moved to her side before she was aware of her prescence.

Her eyes fell on the flowers before the bust; she was still sensitive enough to feel a curious pang, as if something had thrust her back into the distant past.

"Grass of Parnassus!" she said. "How strange—how very strange!" Eunice snipped the last thread. "The work's finished now," she said. "I hope and trust your ladyship'll be well satisfied."

"I am more than satisfied," said Lady Danman. "I thank you—I have learned something from you—something that I cannot pay for."

Eunice replaced her needle in the huswife. "My lady," she said, "I'll be better pleased if no mention of payment is made—if you'll take what I've done as a gift. • • • It has been a privilege—I'd a hundred thousand times not have money. It has meant much to me—far more than I can ever tell you. Ay, I know that I'm presumptuous in asking this favor; but once in my life I'll sew for nought. • • • It seems a sacrilege to talk of money before him."

She pointed to the bust. Lady Danman's perplexed frown gave place to a radiant smile. "I'll offer you no money." She took Eunice's gnarled hand; the old maid stood very proud and stately in her own little way.

"I thank your ladyship," she began.

"But shakespeare has never had greater honor paid him. The bust is yours; it shall be taken to your house this very evening."

"My lady! my lady!"

"It is yours," said Lady Danman again, moving to the door, half ashamed of the weakness that made her voice quaver.

THE CZAR OPENS THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

Neva. The imperial launch immediately crossed the river and entered the Winter palace from the quay entrance. For the first time since the ceremony of blessing the waters, Jan. 19, 1905, when the emperor escaped death from the charge of grape fired from a gun of the saluting battery on the opposite bank of the river, the emperor and empress were back in the Russian capital.

A little more than two hours later vast hosts of military and civil dignitaries began arriving at the Winter palace to listen to the emperor's message to the representatives of the people. The palace is an immense, strange, mysterious looking yellow-red structure, on the left bank of the Neva. The queer style of the architecture is accentuated by the ungainly statues on the roof line. To the south is a large, open space, called the palace square, in the center of which rises a granite column, that of Alexander I. It is flanked by the buildings of the general staff, ministry of finance and the foreign office. An immense quadriga crowns the archway of the main entrance from the grand morskaya.

The scene on the square today was in vivid contrast to that of less than fifteen months ago, when the troops met with volleys the people coming to ask the Little Father for less than they have now been granted. Instead of grim soldiers shooting into a mob, prancing cavalry with shining accoutrements guarded the approaches, while the square itself was filled with rank upon rank of the chevalier guards, cuirassiers, hussars, lancers and other guard regiments, each in picturesque uniforms of red, blue and yellow. Their helmets and cuirasses shone in the sun, while the polished lance heads formed a thicket of flashing lines overhead. The emperor's picked circassian cossacks, in long flowing crimson kaftaos, sitting high on wild, steppe horses, gave the highest note of color to the scene. Behind the iron grill, leading to the courtyard, of the palace, were massed a squadron of heavy dragoons and a battery of machine guns.

Through this brilliant mase of troops passed splendid equipages, many of the coachmen wearing the red imperial livery and bearing invited guests swiftly to the various entrances to which they had been assigned. Although the bars of what had hitherto been the most exclusive court in Europe were lowered for the first time to admit to the emperor's presence men who had come not by virtue of his invitation, but because they held a mandate from the people, the rules and traditions of caste and rank were not otherwise relaxed. By different entrances and up different stairways into different salons, strictly according to rank, the concourse of court dignitaries, nobles, foreign representatives, clergy and military, and civil officials, all in full uniform, gathered to await the summons from the throne in the hall of St. George. Through the Jordan door the members of the lower house of parliament mounted the carrara marble staircase to the spacious Nicholas hall, overlooking the Neva, where the great balls are held, while the members of the council of the empire or upper house, passed through the regular entrance. That body assembled in the Hermitage pavilion. The ambassadors and other chiefs of missions mounted the ambassadors' staircase, skirting the dining room, where Alexander II narrowly escaped death as the result of an explosion in 1880 and passed the hall of Peter the Great, whose red velvet walls are studded with golden Russian eagles.

In the gold decorated music room, the field marshals and Arabic halls, the Pompeiian gallery, the hall of columns, etc., gathered the suites of the various grand dukes and grand duchesses, the procurator-general of the holy synod, the members of the holy synod, the generals of high rank, admirals, alde-de-camps, etc., while the immediate suites of the emperor and two empresses remained in the Romanoff gallery, off the throne room, a magnificent apartment ornamented with ribanded jasper and beautiful mosaics, representing the temples of Paestum. The ladies and maids of honor of the courts, arrayed in ancient costumes of deep purple, embroidered with pearls and wearing sugar loaf head dresses similarly adorned, presented a charming appearance.

In the concert room a force of veteran grenadiers mounted guard before the insignia of the emperor's sovereignty, the imperial crown, scepter, globe, sword, standard and seal of the empire, representing the most valuable collection of jewels in the world. The precious stones blazed like live coals. The scepter alone is valued at $1,200,000. It is surmounted by the celebrated Orloff diamond of 185 karats, a mate of the Kohinoor, which together formed the eyes of the golden Ilon before the temple of the grand mogul at Delhi. The romantic, bloody history of these two jewels, stolen by Sepoys, is well known. The crown is surmounted by a cross formed of five diamonds, each worth a king's ransom, set upon a priceless ruby, the whole resting on a golden circle studded with pearls, giving it the appearance of a mitre and thus making it emblematic not only of the sovereignty but of supreme authority over the Russian church. The globe also is surmounted by a diamond cross resting on an immense sapphire.

Shortly before 1 o'clock, in obedience to signals, the streams of guests began slowly flowing towards the great St. George's hall. At each door of the series of salons stood two foot soldiers at "present arms," while along the walls were ranged detachments of guard regiments in picturesque uniforms, so that the march of the members of parliament to the throne hall was almost like a review of the imperial guard. At the entrance to St. George's hall was a guard of honor composed of veteran palace grenadiers, twelve of whom were survivors of the reign of Emperor Nicholas I.

St. George's hall is an apartment 156 feet long by 60 feet wide and is given a stately appearance by a double row of graceful Corinthian columns and marble walls, while through its forty windows today streamed a flood of sunshine. In the center of the marquetry floor stood an altar on which were burning candles. At the end of the hall on a dias was a gilded throne, in a corner of which was flung with carelessness the ermine mantle of state. Behind the throne, which was surmounted by a canopy bearing the emblematical ostrich plumes, were the imperial arms worked on a great velvet tapestry.

From the gallery where the journalists were placed the correspondent of the Associated Press commanded a view of the brilliant scene below as well as a vista of the endless succession of halls through which the human tide advanced. The first to appear were the courtiers, generals, admirals and uniformed dignitaries of state, who drifted forward in haphazard order, their blue, gold, silver, scarlet and purple uniforms forming a shifting maze of color. They engaged in careless conversation while awaiting the advent of the emperor.

Odessa, May 10.—The text of the speech from the throne at the opening of the first Russian parliament is being awaited with intense interest here, and telegrams from all the southern provinces furnish evidence of the eagerness with which the population is looking forward to the message of the emperor. The council of Odessa, the zemstvo, the board of trade and the university, all telegraphed their greetings to parliament and to the Odessa representatives today, and expressed the hope that parliament will courageously accept the challenge of the government in the promulgation of the autocratic fundamental law.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Elevator Agent at Barton Charged With Embezzlement.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—S. H. Waggoner, agent for the Duluth Elevator company at Barton, has been placed under arrest on a charge of embezzlement. Waggonetr is accused by the elevator company with being short about 2,500 bushels of wheat, twenty-five tons of coal and 200 or 400 bushels of flax. The shortage was discovered by a traveling auditor, and Waggener was taken to Devils Lake for a preliminary hearing. The arrest caused considerable surprise in Ramsey county, where Waggoner is well and favorably known.

Fargo—Manitoba authorities failed to connect Alexander Larron definitely with the Crystal Lake horse-stealing and murder case, and United States Commissioner Montgomery denied the extradition proceedings. The hearing had been in progress two weeks with a large number of witnesses.

Larron had just completed a term in the state prison for horse stealing, after having escaped from that institution and having been recaptured. In his temporary liberty, it is charged that he committed various crimes in this state and Manitoba, for which the Manitoba officials were anxious to secure him.

Immediately on his discharge by the United States officials, Larron was rearrested by Sheriff Gradin of McLean county on a grand larceny charge. The Rolette county officials also want him for horse stealing.

In the Joseph mine, near Garrison, McLean county, a large piece of coal fell on Lars Olson, and tore his arm nearly off at the shoulder. The bones were not only crushed, but arteries were cut and Olson nearly bled to death before a physician could be reached. It was necessary to amputate the arm.

At Mohall, Fred Preston, who had been employed at the Great Northern station, suddenly became insane while Agent Jennie was absent. He drew a revolver, and pointing it at Mrs. Jennie, demanded payment for his work. He was overpowered by spectators and taken to Minot, where an examination resulted in his commitment to the state asylum.

James Schmidt, a 22-year-old young man, was accidentally killed in Morton county, while on a hunting trip. He handed his gun to a boy to hold and it was accidentally discharged. Schmidt's head was blown entirely off.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—One hundred and twenty-five new residences are to be built here this summer. Sixty are now under construction, and plans have been drawn for the others, and work will begin just as soon as men and material can be brought to the city.

An effort will now be made to beautify the city by encouraging the citizens to plant trees. Fifteen thousand trees were given away a few days ago by one public-spirited citizen, and this resulted in enormous sales being made. Tree planting will be continued here until the city is entirely changed in appearance. With this work well in progress, the city is planning to pave all the streets, and, altogether, this year promises to be one of the greatest activity in the history of the city.

Farmers in this county are beginning to take great interest in telephone extension, and it is reported that at least 100 farms now have connection with this city and other centers. Today W. H. Fessenden of the Mutual Telephone company came here from Pioneer and arranged for better facilities in the work of extension. He predicts that in another six months every farmer will be supplied with a telephone.

Supt. Cochrane of the Aberdeen high school has issued an appeal to the parents of pupils, calling on them to urge the member of the board of education in their ward to provide more teachers for the institution. He calls attention to the fact that the North Central Association of Colleges had refused to accredit the Aberdeen high school because of a violation of two rules made necessary on account of the lack of teachers. It is thought that the appeal will result in the trouble being remedied.

Yankton—William Larkin and W. G. Reed were each given forty days by Judge Veatman on a petty larceny charge for stealing clothing.

Sixty-five persons from this city filed on land west of Pierre through one agency in the past month, which gives a good idea of the way settlers are pouring into the western portion of the state.

Two weddings are reported from Menominee, across the river, both in pioneer settler families. Charles Goeden and Loulsa Schaefer were married Monday, while Joseph Kuchta and Anna Kast were married yesterday.

The city council sellected the following city officials: J. R. Hobson, alderman First ward to succeed C. L. Edwards, resigned; W. L. Bruce, engineer; C. J. B. Harris, attorney; Herman Dohrlng, street commissioner; W. J. Thomas, first policeman; William Bailey, second policeman; T. M. Welby, special policeman; William Higbee, superintendent waterworks; Dr. D. V. Moore, city physician; E. E. Hudson and J. J. Nissen, members of school board.

NEW BOAT FOR BOWSTRING.

Two Eveleth Men Depart to Witness the Launching.

Eveleth, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Oakman and James W. Falk left yesterday for Bowstring lake, where they will witness the launching of the City of Eveleth, a boat recently built by a party of men from this vicinity.

Mrs. M Friendander left Monday morning to visit relatives in St. Paul for a week or ten days.

Miles McAlpine has been up from Duluth this week to wed Miss Marie Murphy. The marriage occurred at St. Patrick's church, Tuesday, and the happy cople left on the noon train to make their home in Duluth.

Miss Mae Van Buskirk, who has spent most of the past year at the home of her uncle, D. T. Adams in Duluth, has returned to her home here.

The old city hall building has about completed its trip from Pierce street to the lot on Grant avenue, next to the Eddy livery barn. Local telephone and telegraph linemen have been busy since Saturday cutting and then connecting wires along Adams avenue. The building was purchased by the agent for the Fitger Brewing company for $385, and when placed on the lot it will be improved and made ready to rent. It will cost about the same amount to move.

Miss Alice Bowers at her rooms at Mrs. Samuelson's, entertained a small company very pleasantly Tuesday evening to celebrate her birthday. Cribbage was played at three tables and luncheon served at midnight. The following were guests: Mrs. Barret, Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Greening, Miss McKechan, Miss Sara Bowers, Miss Barrett, Messrs. Van Slyke Hatch, Burt Green and Dr. Medlar.

The Episcopal women's Guild met Wednesday with Mrs. J. C. Poole.

Excavating for the residence to be built for superintendent G. H Dorner of the Fayal, was commenced Monday on the lots adjoining those of General Manager R. R. Trezona.

A JEKYLL-HYDE PROCEEDING

Preacher Threw Match Into Shavings and Burned Church.

Waterloo, N. Y., May 10.—Lodged in jail here on a charge of arson in the third degree, Rev. G. Stuart Bain, pastor of the First Baptist church, who is accused of setting fire to his church which was destroyed on March 6, claims that if he did the deed it was a sort of a Jekyll-Hyde proceeding. Mr. Bain has made the following statement:

"If I committed the act of which I am accused, I did it during a lapse of memory and mental power to which I am subject. I have no recollection of just what did occur on the night of the fire. I had been under severe mental strain for some time previously, and that evening was in a very hazy mental condition.

"If I did it, I did it under an impulse. I saw a heap of shavings there, threw a match into them and saw it blaze up. Then I rushed out all under impulse without any premeditation or any malice against anybody.

"I could not have had any possible motive in burning my church. I could not have gained anything by it. It was a sort of Jekyll and Hyde proceeding. I would not swear. I could not swear. I wrote the letters. If I did I was under the same mental strain.

The arrest of Mr. Bain was made upon his return from a vacation trip and following a series of threatening letters received by the minister and prominent members of his flock. The prosecuting officials claim to have discovered that the letters, which were adorned with crossbones, were written by the pastor himself.

Mr. Bain is a Scotchman, son of a Presbyterian clergyman. After graduating from the University of Edinburgh he came to this country and spent four years in a theological school at Chicago. He stated on his ordination that after preaching and evangelistic work extending over some time he had wandered afar from his Master, and for a time had lived a life not in keeping with his previous Christian profession; but from his evil course he had been reclaimed by the influence of a woman evangelist with whom he again entered the work. Then he took charge of a mission chapel at Newburg. He gives his age as 45, but looks younger.

CHIPPEWA QUEEN DIES,

White Earth, Minn., May 10.—O-dub-e-naun-e-quay, the venerable queen of the Mississippi Chippewas, is dead at her home near the agency, aged 80 years.

She was a sister of May-zhuck-e-geshig, hereditary head chief of the Minnesota (Mississippi) Chippewas and the present resigning head chief of the White Earth Chippewas. She was born about seven miles north of where is built the flourishing city of Brainerd. Her father was Que-we-zaince (boy) who was descended from Chief Que-we-zaince-ahish (Boy-boy), at that time leading chieftain among the Mississippi band of Chippewas. He was a brave, fearless warrior, and was killed by the Sioux in a sanguinary battle near the site of the city of Stillwater.

Early in life she was married to a young chieftain by the name of Man-do-wanh, who died here several years ago. Several children were born to the couple, but all of them are dead. At the time of her death there was no woman of the Chippewas who possessed, in so distinguished a degree, the traditional hereditary title and merits of Indian royalty as did O-dub-e-naun-e-quay, as she inherited royal blood from both her father and mother, and among her kindred are numbered some of the best and most progressive families of the reservation. She was a niece of the celebrated Chippewa brothers and warriors, Kah-tah-wah-be-day, Shing-wah-bay and I-ah-bay-dah-sung, known in history as "the three braves."

CONSUMPTION CONQUERED

The plain truth is that tens of thousands of people who say they have a "stubborn cough" are really in the first stages of consumption.

Tell them so point-blank, and some of them will be scared half out of their wits, for the notion that consumption is incurable dies hard.

Yet a grosser error never tormented the human mind, for consumption is CURABLE, and

Ozomulsion

CURES it. This statement is made with a full and solemn sense of public responsibility.

Let the victim of consumption look the facts squarely in the face and then cheer up. Ozomulsion destroys the germs so that the dreadful progress of the disease is stopped. It braces the nervous system. It gives tone, vim, resiliency to the whole body organization.

And Ozomulsion crowns its glorious work by feeding you. Tissue is built up faster than it is wasted. Hollow cheeks and shrunken necks are filled out, and before the patient quite knows it he is well.

There are two sizes—8-oz. and 16-oz. Bottles; the Formula is printed in 7 languages on each.

BUILDING HAS A SLIDE

Contractor's Structure Removed From Site of Y. M. C. A. Building.

Quite an Interesting Feat of House-Moving is Accomplished.

For several days men have been at work clearing the site for the new Y. M. C. A. building at Second street and Third avenue west and incidentally quite a feat of house moving is being accomplished.

The largest structure on the site was the shop of the contracting and building firm of Anderson & Gow, a large two-story frame building, which stood about midway between the alley and Second street. It was necessary to jack it to quite a height in order to slide it over on to Second street.

This was accomplished without accident yesterday and yesterday afternoon, the building was rolled to the hill top at Second street and Fourth avenue west. Today, it is being rolled down hill and replanted in a plot in the rear of 322 West Second street.

The sight of a large building sliding down hill has attracted quite a number of persons to the scene. It is necessary to hold back the structure instead of pull. If the ropes were to break, the building will roll until the rollers slipped from underneath, so steep is the grade at that place.

The building has withstood the trip very well. Stout boards of considerable length have been nailed on the corners as braces. Some difficulty was attached to making the entrance to the alley in the middle of the block, the nature of things on Second street making it necessary to have the building delivered in the rear, as the signs on flats say.

A number of old frame residences have been removed from the site of the Y. M. C. A.'s new home already and the tenants of others which will have to go, have been notified to vacate. A determination is being shown to begin work on the new edifice as soon as possible.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MEETS MAN; DISAPPEARS.

John Gund Last Seen Driving With Stranger Toward Onalaska.

La Crosse, Wis., May 10.—Police have made public a strange disappearance, which they have been concealing in the hope of locating the missing man, by avoidance of publicity, the case being that of a man named John Gund, believed to live in Chicago. Gund reached La Crosse from the East on an evening train and was met at the depot by a stranger with a team, as though by arrangement. He was driven in the direction of Onalaska, and the last seen of Gund or his companion was when they were leaving the outskirts of the north side. Weeks of work have failed to explain the disappearance. Chicago authorities who were asked to locate the missing man may come to this city to investigate further.

Not If as Rich as Rockefeller.

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by all leading druggists.

CHIEF OF POLICE DIED

As the Result of Becoming Crazed at a Revival Meeting.

Carrollton, Ga., May 10.—Rushing to the altar of the First Baptist church, where a revival has been in progress for some days, Chief of Police Young turned to the congregation and cried:

"Let's all quit work and go to heaven!"

Then he began to call persons by name, asking each to "quit" and go to heaven with him.

Young's excitement increased and he became so violent that an effort was made to get him out of the church. He resisted, crying out that he would never leave the altar except for heaven. The efforts of eight men were necessary to get Young to his home, where he continued to rave until made quiet by opiates. He died in a few hours.

Young had not been a religious man until he professed conversion a few days before his outbreak. Physicians say that mind and body both gave way under the fervor of his emotions.

USES AX ON SELF.

Stockman, While Crazed With Pain, Attempts Suicide.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 10.—J. W. Wilson, a prominent Presho (N. D.) stockman, lies in a critical condition at St. Joseph's hospital here, as a result of wounds in the head from an ax, believed to have been self-administered in a temporary fit of insanity.

Mr. Wilson is the father of a family; is one of the wealthiest men of the community in which he lives, and is a factor in the politics of the state. While in Manila to meet his mother he was rescued from the track in front of a moving freight train by bystanders, and immediately afterward he seized an ax from the hotel kitchen, ran around a corner of the building, and, it is presumed, dealt himself a severe blow in the head with the sharp instrument. With the blood from the wound streaming from his head, he ran from the yard and threw himself in a stream of water. He was pulled out by the employes at the hotel, and has been brought to Sioux City.

The wounded man, while rational a few moments, said that his action was the result of a train accident in which he was severely injured by falling from the cars. He asserted that the pain from these injuries was so great that he was crazed and attempted self-destruction.

INDIAN IS ACQUITTED.

Fergus Falls Murder Case Lost by the Government.

Fergus Falls, May 10.—Joseph H. Jordan, the Indian who was accused of murdering his squaw, was acquitted by the jury after a trial which lasted almost a week. During the trial Jordan's foster-mother, Mrs. Jockey, testified that she was at the door of the Indian's tent when the alleged shooting took place, and that she saw Jordan point the revolver at his wife; that she heard the report and saw the woman fall dead. A boy from the agency told a similarly damaging story, and the government produced a good deal of circumstantial evidence.

The chief witness for the defense was Rev. Mark Hart, who denied that Mrs. Jockey was anywhere in the vicinity of the tent and said that he entered immediately after the shot was fired and found the woman dead with a revolver by her side, and Jordan himself too drunk to know what had taken place. Threats of suicide made by the dead woman were repeated in court, and Mrs. Jockey was charged with testifying as she did in order to be revenged on her son for accusations he had made against her regarding incidents of the life at the agency.

The case was the last of the present term of the federal court here.

CRITICISM BY CLERGY

Of Prayer Book for Use in the Presbyterian Churches.

Call the Volume a "Time Table" and "Canned Prayers."

Chicago, Ill., May 10.—The publication of the new Presbyterian book of worship, the first copies of which have arrived in Chicago, is causing dissensions. The general assembly of the church, which meets in Des Moines, May 17, will be called upon either to approve the publication or condemn it as contrary to Presbyterian ideas of worship.

Although the prayer book, as it is called, is for voluntary use only, criticism against it has been roused by those who think the volume will make the church services too ritualistic. A pamphlet ridiculing the book of worship as a Presbyterian "time table" and "a book of the deadliest of forms" has been issued.

Rev. W. F. McCauley, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, of Cincinnati, apparently is the leader of the "pamphlet" opposition.

"If the pulpits are filled with incompetents who need forms in prayer," he writes, "why not have circulating libraries of form sermons for them, too? The oral prayer is the best. If we're to have prayer forms, why not have forms for all services? What we need is men of prayers, not prayers."

Rev. S. E. Wishard of Salt Lake City heads his letter in the pamphlet, "The new Presbyterian time table." He offers objections similar to those of Dr. McCauley. Rev. Meade Williams of St. Louis, says the use of the book would necessitate a change in the system of the church, while Rev. F. L. Hayden of North Yakima, Wash., declared the volume contains the "deadliest of forms."

By some of the enemies of the book it is called "canned prayers." Others say that it apes the Episcopalian prayer book. In Chicago there seems to be little objection to the volume. In fact, it is in the large cities that the book finds the greatest number of friends. The book was prepared by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Rev. W. Robson Nottman, pastor of the Fourth church of this city; Rev. Charles Guthbert Hall, Nolan R. Best, editor of the Interior, and a number of other leading men in the presbytery.

It is stated in the preface that the use of the book is not obligatory. The prayer form part is but a small portion of the publication. There are also forms for an order of worship, for marriages, deaths, family services, responsive readings and all other religious services.

"The men who are objecting to the book are behind the times," said Mr. Best. "Such a book will help unify the church and will add dignity to the services. Dr. Van Dyke, who was the prime mover in the plan for the book of worship, has long thought the church services were becoming too much like an entertainment. He believed they should be more dignified and reverential in spirit. I am sure the book will be reindorsed at the coming assembly meeting."

Dr. Nottman, who has been using the orders of the book for a year, defended the volume.

"I want to commend it as strongly as possible," he said.

It is something that will add reverence and devotion to the church service. I have found it highly satisfactory. It tends to make the church unified and this is important in these days. There is no reason for all this opposition because no minister is obliged to use the book."

New York, May 10.—The Book of Common Worship has just been published with the authority of the Presbyterian general assembly.

The marriage ceremony in the new book omits the word "obey," to which so many have objected, and it also omits the reference to "worldly goods," with which the men and the women in some marriage forms "endowed" each other.

Although the book was, of course, planned long before the San Francisco calamity, one of the prayers it contains is especially applicable to that disaster. It reads:

"Almighty God, Who art a very present help in time of trouble, let not the heart of our people fail when fear cometh, but do Thou sustain and comfort them until these calamities be over past; and since Thou knowest the cause and reason why this grievous disaster of earthquake and fire hath fallen upon men, so do Thou heal the hurt and wounded, console the bereaved and afflicted, protect the innocent and helpless, and deliver any who are still in peril, for Thy great mercy sake. Amen."

PICKS CAMPAIGN MANAGER.

Congressman Buckman Arranges for Fight at Little Falls.

Little Falls, Minn., May 10.—Congressman C. B. Buckman has left Little Falls to return to Washington. During his brief visit home he has conferred with Republicans from all parts of the Sixth congressional district, and is well pleased with the amount of support of which he is assured. He expresses regret that an opponent should be a resident of his own country, but hopes that the fight here may be conducted so as to cause no injury to the party or to any local interest. While here Mr. Buckman placed his campaign management in the hands of J. A. Nichols. Mr. Nichols is not an officeholder. He has a wide acquaintance in the district and his friends are confident that he will conduct a clean and aggressive fight.

FACILITIES AUGMENTED

Great Increase in Rolling Stock of Baltimore & Ohio Road.

Needed to Handle the Enormous Volumes of Freight Traffic.

Washington, May 10.—The delivery of the 250 locomotives and 110,000 freight cars, ordered by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad during May of last year, has just been completed and they are now in service with the other equipment. This greatly augments the company's facilities for promptly handling the largely increased and enormous volumes of freight traffic, and, combined with the improvement to track and transportation conditions and better maintenance of all rolling stock, insures an efficiency in handling business second to no railroad in the country.

The magnitude of this order of railroad equipment is not conceived by the general public. With an expenditure of about $16,000,000, much work was involved in furnishing the enormous quantity of material for the equipment, which, when in service, would be sure to greatly aid the earning powers of the road and much more than insure the reimbursing to the company for the money so spent. Such an expenditure serves to show the necessity which existed for sufficient capacity to promptly and properly handle the constantly increasing traffic on the road, and also has an indication of the general trade prosperity throughout the country.

The aggregate length of the 250 locomotives, if placed in line and coupled together, would stretch over a distance of 3¼ miles. If placed side by side and end to end, they would cover an area of four acres. The total number of cubic feet which would be occupied if these locomotives were placed in a pile would be equivalent to a mass 300 feet long, 42 feet wide and 290 feet high. Of the number, 230 are Consolidation type freight engines measuring 68 feet, 8⅝ inches in length from the tip of pilot to over the drawhead of the tender. Thirty-five are Pacific type passenger locomotives 72 feet, 9 inches long, and 6 are switching engines 55 feet, 4½ inches long.

If the boiler tubes were placed in line end to end, they would reach a distance of 214 miles, or within 16 miles of the total distance from Washington to New York. The heating surface in the boilers would cover 16 acres and the combined grate area would be the same as one-third of an acre.

The aggregate weight of these engines and tenders, in working order, is 42,555 tons. The water in the tanks, assuming all to be filled, would be equivalent to a pool 250 feet long, 86 feet wide and 25 feet deep; and the coal in the tenders would make a rectangular pile 160 feet long, 47 feet wide and 25 feet high.

Imagine the enormous power of these locomotives, when the total length of a train which could be hauled by them, if all were coupled together, would be 153 miles, consisting of about 21,000 loaded cars of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and the total weight of the train would be about 925,830 tons.

The amount of coal burned in these locomotives in one day, working under ordinary conditions, would be about 3,500 tons. To haul this amount of coal would require a train of 65 cars of a capacity of 100,000 pounds each, and the number of scoopfuls of coal represented in it would be about 375,000. This amount of coal, gathered into one rectangular pile, would be about 100 feet long, 50 feet wide and 25 feet high.

The cobbined tractive power of these locomotives would be about 4,850 tons.

This order was given very close study and attention by J. E. Muhlfield, general superintendent of motive power, who is known to be one of the most thorough motive power experts in the country. In order to secure the very best design that could accomplish the most satisfactory results. Two hundred and forty-five of the new locomotives were built by the American Locomotive company and five by the Baldwin Locomotive works.

Of the 10,000 freight cars, the length of the 80,000-pound capacity box cars, over couplers, is about 43 feet, 7¾ inches; for the steel hopper cars, 36 feet 1¾ inches; for the steel twin hopper gondola cars, 45 feet 2 inches; and for the Rodger ballast cars, 44 feet 9¾ inches.

The aggregate length of the 10,000 cars, if coupled together, would be about 79¾ miles. To show the difference in size and hauling capacity, the total length of a similar lot of cars which were the standard ten years ago, if divided into the same classes as these cars, would be 67 miles.

This order of new cars, if placed side by side and end to end, would cover an area of 5,047,624 square feet, or about 116 acres.

Their aggregate weight would be about 219,225 tons and the carrying capacity about 476,250 tons. The total weight of a similar number of cars as were the standard ten years ago, if classified in the same manner as the new lot, would be about 115,774 tons, and the carrying capacity would be about 297,500 tons.

Thousands of men were given long employment in connection with the construction of the engines and 10,000 cars, and they in turn contributed to the support of families varying in size, but making up a large army in the aggregate.

The manufacturing concerns engaged in the manufacture of material necessary in completing the cars, included car builders, manufacturers of steel plates, manufacturers of rolled shapes, rivets, bolts, nails, screws, pipe, pipe fittings, malleable iron castings, steel castings, grey iron castings, paint, oils, lubricating oils, waste, brass, bearings, journal boxes, axles, drop forges, steel brake shoes, brake beams, bolsters, springs, couplers, draft gear, rubber hose, air brakes, coal miners, ore miners, nut lock, washers, timber, galvanized iron, car roofs, door fixtures, pneumatic tools, hydraulic door punches, shears, forging machinery, chain, brush, tool steel, paper, split keys, leather, sawmills, etc., amounting to the total number of over fifty.

As an idea of the quantity of material required, nearly 11,500,000 feet of lumber were used in constructing the ten thousand cars, about 15,235,000 rivets, 20,000,000 pounds of castings, 345,000,000 pounds of nails, 7,500,000 feet of iron, 710,400 square feet of roofing for the box cars, 80,000 wheels, 2,000,000 bolts and nuts, nearly 6,350,000 square feet of iron and steel plate and a large quantity of a number of other kinds of necessary material in proportion. With this new equipment, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and its affiliated lines now have about 2,075 locomotives and 90,600 freight cars.

The order for steel cars was distributed among the American Car & Foundry company, the Pressed Steel Car company, Western Steel Car & Foundry company, South Baltimore Steel Car & Foundry company, Standard Steel Car company, Cambria Steel company, and the Rodgers Ballast Car company.

R. F. D. CARRIER EXAM.

Notice Received That It Is to be Held Here June 2.

The examination of applicants for carrier of R. F. D. route No. 2, will take place in Duluth on June 2. Notice of this has just been received at the Duluth postoffice, and further notice is given that all applications must be sent to the United States civil service commission at Washington, D. C., so that they will reach the commission on or before May 23. Envelopes and application blanks can be obtained from A. Grabarkiewicz, superintendent of delivery and local secretary of the civil service board at the postoffice. Mr. Grabarkiewicz says that a number of inquiries have already been made at the postoffice since announcement was made that a No. 2 route was about to be established on June 15.

The new route will cover about twenty-two and a half miles. It will start from the postoffice, and the carrier will go up Piedmont avenue to the old Hermantown road, over which he will travel until the Minnesota & North Wisconsin tracks are reached. Then return will be made over the Morris Thomas road to Duluth. It is quite likely that the establishment of the route will be delayed owing to the short time allowed between the examinations and the time set for starting the route. It was to have started by June 15, but as the examinations will not be held until June 2, and it is unlikely that announcement of the result can be made for a week or more, it is likely that the route will not be started before July 1, or thereabouts. The carrier must secure a regulation covered wagon for the work, and must furnish his own horse.

The rules provide that to be carrier a person must have lived for at least one year preceding the date of his application, "an actual bodily resident, within the territory supplied by the postoffice named in his application, or be supplied by it through the establishment of rural routes previously investigated and ordered by the department."

The age limits are 17 years and 55 years, except in cases of honorably discharged United States soldiers or sailors. Other requirements may be learned by calling on Mr. Grabarkiewicz.

SAY HEINZE MAY WED.

Friends Deny That He is in Race for Senatorship.

Helena, Mont., May 10.—A report from Butte says that instead of being in the race for the United States senatorship to succeed W. A. Clark, F. A. Heinze, who is in New York, is planning to go on an extended cruise on a yacht, which will take him away from this country for several months. He is said to have chartered a private yacht and to have invited a number of friends to go with him.

Another story credits the copper genius with contemplating matrimony, the woman in the case being a well known resident of Butte, a widow.

Matchmaking mothers have tried for many years to capture Heinze for their daughters, but he has often expressed an intention never to wed, preferring single blessedness.

MOTHER AND CHILD.

Let the mother take Scott's Emulsion for the two; it never fails to benefit them both. One can eat for two, but nourishing two is a different thing. It calls for a degree of internal strength that the average woman lacks. People of luxury are not very strong by habit; overworked people are weak in some functions from exhaustion or their surroundings. Scott's Emulsion can be depended upon to overcome such conditions. It is a wonderful food for a mother and child.

IS TOO MUCH SCATTERED

Town of Brookston Can Not be Organized Yet.

Fractional Sections in the Townships Are Not Contiguous.

Three times the people who have settled on the lands opened by the government last fall in the Chippewa Indian reservation in the vicinity of Brookston station, on the Great Northern road to Cass Lake, have petitioned the board of county commissioners to organize the territory into the town of Brookston. Twice the petitions have been irregular in form, and the board could take no action.

The third and last petition was presented to the board at the meeting held Tuesday. It was held to be regular in form, but the commissioners had come into possession of some of the land office circulars, describing the land that was opened to settlement, and which it is desired to organize into a town, and found such procedure to be impracticable, for the reason that the fractional sections that are named are, in many instances, badly scattered, and there are considerable portions of the territory that are not contiguous. This was discovered just as the board was about to pass a resolution, organizing the town and setting the date for the first town meeting. Instead of the resolution being passed, the petition was referred to the county attorney, to determine if there is any legal procedure whereby the county board can give the settlers the relief they ask.

Never in the history of St. Louis county has a board of commissioners organized a town out of sections scattered here and there in several unorganized townships. It is claimed by the county authorities that even were such an organization lawful, it would be impracticable, because the township officials would never know where they stand in regard to their duties to the many scattered interests. It is claimed that the town assessor would have to go around with a surveyor to locate the taxable property from Indian lands.

The refusal of the county board to organize the town has caused a great deal of criticism from the settlers, and the weekly paper published at Brookston is said to have gone so far as to accuse the commissioners of attempting to hold back the agricultural development of that part of the county.

The sentiment of the commissioners, as expressed at the meeting of the board was in favor of giving the Brookston people every aid and advantage that they can consistently.

The town of Culver has refused to have the territory attached to it, and the Brookstonites were left with no other resource but to ask that the unorganized territory be organized into a town by itself. It has been threatened by some of the settlers, at least, that if St. Louis county authorities will not give them an organization, they will attempt to have the territory cut off from St. Louis county and attached to Carlton county.

"While the situation that the Brookston settlers are in is regrettable, I do not see just how we can help them into a town organization now," said one of the commissioners, yesterday." Perhaps the county's legal department can find some loophole for us. If the board can legally do so it will be glad to help the settlers at Brookston."

The fractional sections that it is desired to organize lie in townships 50-17, 18 and 19, 51-18 and 19.

WOMAN FAINTS UNDER ARREST

Companion of Charles S. Wenham, Alleged Thief of Thousands.

New York, May 10.—A pale, half-hysterical woman, showing traces of great beauty, fainted half a dozen times in Center street police court while awaiting arraignment. Her name is Clay Lawrence and the charge against her is forgery in the first degree, growing out of her devotion to Charles S. Wenham, who up to a few months ago was one of the best-known passenger traffic railroad men in the country, but is now in Ludlow street jail, unable to secure bail to the amount of $40,000.

Clay Lawrence is accused of having forged the name of Wenham's wife, Zalda Wenham, to a quit-claim deed to property in Chicago valued at $100,000. But Mrs. Wenham does not make the complaint, and so far as is known is not an interested person. The woman is being prosecuted by Jerome Fayles Hess, son of Charles A. Hess, New York counsel for the Canadian Pacific. And Wenham is in jail because the Canadian Pacific railroad holds a judgment against him for $60,000.

Wenham was a passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific with headquarters in Chicago. Charles Hess said in court that Wenham took the Lawrence woman around the country with him for thirteen years. She is 32 now. Last December, according to Mr. Hess, Wenham left Chicago, $120,000 short in his accounts, and came to New York with Clay Lawrence. On Jan. 15, he continued, Wenham and Clay Lawrence summoned John J. Lordan, a notary, to Wenham's office in this city. There, in the presence of Lordan, it is alleged, Clay Lawrence swore that she was Mrs. Zalda Wenham and signed a quit-claim deed conveying to one Jacob Franks $100,000 worth of property in Chicago.

In the meantime the Canadian Pacific Company had brought a civil action against Wenham and recovered a judgment for $60,000. As he would not or could not satisfy it, he was committed to Ludlow jail.

The Lawrence woman has worked night and day to secure his relief. She says she has been hounded by detectives and process servers, who trailed her from her residence in Hoboken every time she went out, with the intention of arresting her should she come to New York. She came to testify before Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, in a proceeding to have Wenham adjudged a bankrupt. Policeman Denny was waiting for her with a warrant.

Magistrate Wahl was considerably puzzled by the case. He wanted to know the whereabouts of Mrs. Wenham. Mr. Hess insisted that the evidence was sufficient to show that a crime had been committed in this state without a direct complaint from the woman whose name was forged.

Lordan took the stand and positively identified the Lawrence woman as the one who had signed Mrs. Wenham's name to the quit-claim deed. Bail was fixed at $1,500 and the prisoner collapsed completely. It was necessary to carry her to the Tombs.

PRETEND TO OPERATE.

According to a Detroit surgeon, there are many sane persons who, believing that they are threatened with some dangerous disease, insist on undergoing severe operations in order that their lives may be saved.

"We do not really perform these operations," he explained in the Detroit News-Tribune, "but I have assisted at many imaginary ones to gratify the whim of a patient suffering from some form of hysteria.

"We had a young girl here a year ago with a most obstinate attack of hysteria which took a very curious form. She would never lie down in her bed, but invariably sat bolt upright with her back against the foot rail, constantly turning her head from side to side like an automaton.

"I had watched her do this many times, and one day I asked her why she continued it, to which she replied that there was a string in her head which pulled it from side to side, and that until it was cut she would have no rest.

"This remark gave me an idea, and I asked if she would allow me to examine her head. She was perfectly willing, and after an inspection lasting twenty minutes I gravely announced that she was quite right, and that the only cure was a slight operation in order to sever the string.

"She clapped her hands with delight like a child and declared that it was what she had told several doctors, but that they had all laughed at her. Would I perform the operation at once? I thought it better, however, to defer doing so until the morning, after I had consulted the visiting surgeons.

"Having examined the circumstances, the imaginary operation was agreed upon, and the following morning the young woman was led into the surgery, placed upon the operating table and anaesthetics were administered. Part of her luxuriant brown hair was cut off and a portion of the back of the head two inches above the nape of the neck was shaved smooth.

"Then, in order that there should be something to show for the imaginary operation, the scalp was lanced until the blood ran, leaving a cut about two and a half inches in length. This was bound but not strapped and the patient was conveyed back to her bed, where she remained for forty minutes before returning to consciousness.

"Meantime I had taken a piece of an ordinary E violin string about four inches long and soaked it in water until it resembled a raw sinew, the object of this, of course, being to show the patient the actual string taken out of her head. When she returned to consciousness she was told how entirely successful the operation had been and shown the string which had been the cause of all her trouble, after which she fell into a natural sleep and awoke perfectly restored. From that day to this she has been entirely cured of her hallucination."

MACHINE PROPHESIES.

Chicago Tribune: A machine that prophesies is an engine in use by the coast survey at Washington, D. C., which can and does predict the time of high and low tide for a given locality, and makes these predictions for a year in advance. Its performance is not limited to a year, but that is the maximum of work it is usually called upon to do. It is compact and delicate to a degree not easy to appreciate. To make these tidal predictions, which are issued in the form of a fat book of tables every year by the survey, the machine is first set, then operated by hand. As may be surmised, the setting of the machine is the point at which accurate mechanism and the human brain join forces. There are nineteen factors to be determined in making tidal predictions. Each factor alters the rest. Hence the machine is so constructed that an alteration of one factor has its effect upon the others. How this is done is understood in a measure by noting that there is a setting of nineteen dials, with pointers. Each pointer is on a pulley mounted ecentrically on its shaft, and over this pulley passes a chain which goes from one to another. Obviously if the eccentricity of one pulley is altered, it has its proportionate effect on all the rest. The engine was invented by Prof. William Ferrell, who presented it to the government without charge for his idea. It cost originally but $3,500 and does the work of forty expert computers.

FISH KNOW COLORS.

New York Press: "Fish know colors," said a keeper at the Aquarium the other day. "They can distinguish between red and blue, or white and green, as well as you and I. Wait and I'll prove it.

He led the way to a tank in which were some red, and some yellow, and some green fish, and in it were artificial grottoes painted respectively red and yellow and green. The keeper rolled the water with his hand, and the fish fled, the red ones to the red grotto, the yellow ones to the yellow grotto and the green ones to the green grotto.

"They know which color shields them from observation best," said he. "Now I'll change the grottoes, so as to prove my statement a second time."

He moved the grottoes to different places in the tanks and again rolled the water.

The same thing followed as before. Each fish darted like a shot to the grotto of its own color, where it knew it would be best concealed.

MARINE

ONLY TWO TUGS OUT

Third May be Put in Commission—All for Present.

Immense Amount of Tonnage at Lower Ports —Mines Down.

The tugs Zenith and Record are in commission again now that the strike of marine interests has been called off. It is quite likely that one more tug will be put in commission by the Union Tug company tomorrow in order to handle the business. That is all that will be put in again until the boats begin to get unloaded and reach Lake Superior for more cargoes. At present there is a complete blockade of ships at Cleveland, Erie and Buffalo and there will not be much doing at this end of the lakes until these boats tied up below are unloaded and released. Therefore all of the tugs except those mentioned will be held out of the trade for a few days at least. Three tugs will be ample for taking care of the business in the harbor at present.

Word was received last night from Cleveland for the tug firemen who had been called off work, to report for duty again, and this morning all of them showed up at the yards of the Union Tug company, ready and glad to take their charges again. The tugmen have not felt very kindly toward the strike from the start and today many of them expressed their satisfaction that it was over. They have considered it unjust that they should be called off work for "a lot of fellows who did nothing to help themselves," as they expressed it, and generally considered the strike a foolish one.

It is understood that night before last there were eighty vessels at anchor in Erie harbor waiting for the strike to cease or for an attempt to unload boats with non-union dockmen. The vessels tied up in Erie harbor at that time aggregated in value about $25,000,000.

On Tuesday night 3,000,000 bushels of grain was afloat in Buffalo harbor waiting to be unloaded. These conditions make the time for getting business going here again, quite uncertain. This tie-up also makes the beginning of work in the open pit mines on the ranges uncertain. As soon as the ore carriers which are lying unloaded in Eastern ports, can be rid of their cargoes and come back to Duluth and Two Harbors for more, active operations on the Minnesota ranges and by the ore-carrying roads will be resumed.

The marine strike tied things up to such an extent that practically the only mines on the ranges being worked were underground. The open pit mines had to shut down when shipping became delayed. Consequently almost all of the ore trains were withdrawn and little work was done on the docks.

The mines are preparing to resume activity at once. It will be a week before the tangle in the Eastern ports can be undone and the boats started again on their regular schedules. Until that time, receipts at the docks will continue to be light. The mines and the roads will be in readiness to furnish the boats with cargoes as soon as the time is ripe.

LIGHTERING THE CARGO.

Some of Ore in the Mataafa's Hold Being Taken Out.

The wrecked steamer Mataafa's cargo is being lightered to some extent today. The pumps have been put at work in the cargo hold, which is a mass of frozen ore and water.

It has been found necessary to conduct some mild blasting operations to loosen the frozen ore and that is what caused the occasional booms which set the people in the business district to wondering all day.

The pumps began work in the cargo hold yesterday afternoon. With this step, the moving of the stranded vessel is nearer at hand. Heretofor, wrecking work had been confined to pumping out the stern and repairing the hull as much as possible.

The stern, which has sunk very low in the water, has now been raised almost on a level with the bow, which did not settle as much.

TO CARRY CORUNDUM.

Big Pittsburg Boat Wolvin to Load at Split Rock.

The Pittsburg Steamship company's boat, the A. B. Wolvin, will be loaded with corundum at Split Rock this week. Several cargoes of the stone will be shipped East during the season of navigation.

The output or the demand is not great enough at present to necessitate regular shipments. It was not planned to have the Wolvin take a cargo of corundum at this time, but the marine strike tied things up so that plans were changed.

Three Thousand Resume Work.

Buffalo, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In accordance with the agreement reached at Cleveland last evening, all the workers on the docks reported for duty today. It will require about ten days to clear up the congested condition of the harbor. About 3,000 men resumed work.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Iroquois, which went aground in the Soo passage, has been taken to Collingwood for repairs.

The wreckers at work on the sunken steamer Linder at the Flats now have her in shape to raise and she will be floated in a day or two. She will be taken to Kinyon's shipyard at Marine City for repairs.

Alpena harbor is open again after having been blocked three weeks by a sunken dredge. The local wreckers were taking their time about raising the dredge until vesselmen kicked and Uncle Sam's engineers read the riot act to them. Then the work was rushed.

The steamer Shores has been chartered to tow the lumber schooner James G. Blaine all season.

The draw of the Cherry street bridge at Toledo was closed on the sandsucker Powell and everything above the hurricane deck, including the smokestack, was raked off.

Port of Duluth.

HILL CASE GETS TO THE JURY

Disposition of Loytty's Case May Depend on Verdict.

The case of the state against Edward Hill, charged with cutting August Koho in the arms, was given to the jury this noon and a verdict had not been reached at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

This morning Hill was on the stand about two hours telling his own story of the trouble making his defense. He claimed he had nothing to do with the cutting and that he did not have a knife. The knife that he is said to have done the cutting with was produced but he disclaimed ownership.

Hill claimed that Koho was having a fight with a man by the name of Sjoelius in a Lake avenue saloon and that he, although only an innocent bystander, received a kick and was hit over the head three times with a cuspidor during the fracas. He claimed he attempted to get out of the place and that Koho's brother threw a cuspidor at him as he was going out.

In rebuttal Koho and his brother denied Hill's version and were positive that Hill did the cutting.

John Loytty, who was indicted with Hill, is scheduled to be tried next, but it is likely that a disposition of his case will depend largely on the verdict that is brought in against Hill.

Next Monday the state expects to start the manslaughter trial of Bukovich, this to be followed by the trial of the two men from Aurora who are charged with murder.

GOVERNOR CALLS ON PRESIDENT

Senator Nelson Introduces Minnesota's Executive at White House.

Washington, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson this morning escorted Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota to the White House and introduced him to the president. The executive of the North Star state and President Roosevelt had a pleasant chat lasting some fifteen minutes and exchanged views upon a variety of subjects.

"I have come to Washington for a couple of days," said the governor, "stopping over enroute to Philadelphia to attend the meeting of the National Charities and Correction society. I have also been looking at reform schools here in the East in order to get ideas for the betterment of similar institutions in Minnesota. While in Washington I shall visit your reform school for boys and also the kindred institution set apart for girls."

Rheumatism Cured in 24 Hours.

T. J. Blackmore, of Haller & Blackmore, Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "A short time since I procured a bottle of Mystic Cure. It got me out of the house in 24 hours. I took to my bed with Rheumatism nine months ago and the Mystic Cure is the only medicine that did me any good. I had five of the best physicians in the city, but I received very little relief from them. I know the Mystic Cure to be what it is represented and take pleasure in recommending it to other poor sufferers." Sold by all druggists.

TO DISCUSS THE FIRES

Park Point Civic Club Will Urge Adequate Protection.

Idea of Fire Engine on Trolley Car is Advocated.

Fire protection for Minnesota Point residents will be the chief topic for discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Park Point Civic club to be held this evening in the fire hall on the point.

The recent fires on Minnesota Point have thoroughly aroused the residents to the dangers to which they are exposed with practically no protection, and they intend to see if some means cannot be found of giving the taxpayers there a protection to which they claim to be entitled.

While no definite project is understood to have been agreed on, it is understood that a large number of the Park Pointers favor the city's purchasing a small engine and equipment to be placed on a flat trolley car built for the purpose, and which shall be in charge of two or more men regularly detailed to look after the Park Point territory.

The advocates of this scheme claim that the car should be kept at some central point and any fire could be reached quickly and effective service rendered. They believe the Interstate Traction company would willingly furnish power to operate the car carrying the engine and that it would give the car right of way over the street cars whenever there is a fire on the point.

The club is comprised of over fifty members and its membership is being increased every month. It purposes to discuss and deal with all affairs that are of interest to that part of the city. Its influence has already been felt in some matters.

The officers are: Frank Hicks, president; Frank Hallock, secretary, and D. D. McInnis, treasurer.

The club has a public affairs committee, a finance committee and a committee on public improvement.

WILL NOT LET IT GO BY DEFAULT

John D. Brady and C. G. Miller, Democrats, Mentioned for Sheriff.

The Republicans are not going to have all of the fun in the shrievalty contest this fall, and the man that gets the nomination is liable to have a good fight at the polls.

It has been quite generally reported that Charles G. Miller will make another try at it this fall on the Democratic ticket, and with two good runs to his credit, and the prominence and acquaintance he has gained thereby, he will in all probability be in shape to make a stronger canvass than ever.

John D. Brady is another man whom rumor says is not disinclined to make the race on the Democratic ticket. He was surveyor general of logs and lumber underGovernor John Lind, has always been active in Democratic politics, and has traveled much throughout the county. That he would make a vigorous and formidable campaign everyone who knows him will be convinced.

MAINE HOSPITALITY.

Los Angeles Times: "The people of Maine are abundantly hospitable," says Congressman Littlefield of the Pine Tree State, and he tells the following story, for example:

Josiah Hale, orphan, went to live in New Orleans, and, in early manhood visited relatives on Moose Island, Me. On the morning of the first day there, Aunt Prude asked him if the people of New Orleans were accustomed to drinking any liquor before dinner. Looking at the clock, Josiah answered: "They usually drink a little whisky about 11 o'clock."

"Well, Josiah, the doctor makes me drink a little about this time o' day, on account o' my indigestion, an' that's how I have it in the house. You can have a little, but you musn't let paw or the boys know that I have it."

Supposing that this run of luck would not happen again, Josiah proceeded to dispose of more than half a tumblerful.

In the afternoon Uncle Joshua took him out to the barn, and there asked him if the people of New Orleans were accustomed to drinking anything after dinner, and Josiah replied that about 2 o'clock those who could afford it, took a little brandy; and Uncle Josh said:

"That's very fortunate, because the doctor says I ought to take a little brandy after dinner, on account of my indigestion, and I have a jugful here under the hay. You are welcome to a little of it. But don't let maw and the boys know anything about it."

Josiah swung the jug over his arm, and proceeded to gurgle, until fully half a pint was on its way to relieve his indigestion.

Just before sunset he went over to the timber to visit his cousins who were felling trees, and the eldest asked him if the people of New Orleans drank anything before supper, and he replied that they usually took cocktails or plain whisky. The cousin replied:

"That's very fortunate, for the doctor has ordered all three of us to take a little liquor before supper on account of our tendency toward indigestion. You can have a little of it; but don't let maw and paw know anything about it."

"And Josiah kissed the cork again, long and lovingly. He also made bold to inquire if any of them drank any liquor to induce sleep, and ascertained that there was a jug under the dog kennel, which was sure to produce sleep if taken a little before 10 o'clock at night.

"So, because of the hospitality of his relatives, Josiah Hale enjoyed his visit to prohibition Maine; enjoyed it very much."

VAULTS.

PRIVATE BOXES $3 PER YEAR.

AN ANCIENT WALLET.

Has Held Millions, and Once Figured in Slick Scheme.

The diamond wedding of Harmon W. Ayer and wife took place at the old Ayer homestead at the beginning of the new year, says a Thorndike, Me., correspondent of the New York Sun.

When the couple stood up before the clergyman to go through the ceremony for the third time—for they had been remarried on the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding—Mr. Ayer wore the coat in which he was married sixty years ago, and the garment fitted him as well as it did when it was brought home from the tailor's. Mrs. Ayer wore her wedding dress, though the dressmaker had been compelled to insert a gore in the back.

On Mr. Ayer's feet were calfskin topboots which he bought when chosen captain of a company of infantry to go into the Acoostook war in 1838. After the weding and the supper, when Mr. Ayer arose to pay the clergyman for his services, the money was taken from an aged calfskin wallet, with straps, a receptacle for cash and notes and bills which Mr. Ayer has carried for more than seventy years.

"If I had kept all the money that has passed through that old wallet," said Mr. Ayer, "I should be the richest man in New England today. At times that old calfskin case has held as much as $15,000 or $20,000. Then, again, it has been so lank that a red postage stamp would have doubled the value of its contents, but it has never been empty.

"The most I ever had in it at one time was a draft for $45,000 in payment for hay shipped to a jobbing house in Boston. I keep it now when it is frayed and leaking at the corners because it has always brought me good luck.

"Though I have handled millions of dollars I do not remember ever having lost a cent in almost 70 years. I have had plenty of worthless bills, of course, but that is no more than any business man could expect.

"In the hard times of 1857, when the state bank were failing and disowning the bills they had issued, my wallet saved me considerable money one afternoon. I had received a draft on a bank for $1,200 from Boston.

"On reaching the bank late in the day I learned that the bills which the bank had issued had fallen in value to less than 50 cents on a dollar. As my draft was on that bank I would be compelled to accept bank money in payment, which would force me to lose about $600.

"I had told the cashier about the draft and could not back out. Looking at the clock I saw the hands marked 2:45 o'clock. In 15 minutes more banking hours would close.

"Of course I might have lied to the cashier and told him that I had forgotten to bring the draft, but I wanted to get rid of receiving the money without telling an untruth. So I reached into one pocket after another—doing it all very slowly—to find the wallet, and when I had secured it and brought it out the tongue or holding strap which bound the compartment for holding bills stuck and would not pull out.

"'Take your knife and cut it open,' cried the cashier, who saw it was nearly time to close.

"At this I became very indignant and gave him a lecture about wastefulness, telling him it was the only pocketbook I had ever owned and the only one I expected to own. In this way I killed time, and before I had loosened the strap the clock struck, and no more business could be transacted until 9 o'clock the next day.

"The cashier shook his fist at me as I went for the door, but that did not scare me. That evening I called on my wife's brother, who owed $1,500 at the bank, and who had collected bank notes enough to pay the debt, and swapped my draft of $1,200 on the bank for his note for $1,200 on demand, and told him to present the draft and 300 in bills payment for his debt. As the bank was obliged to redeem its drafts and notes at par value for debts due at the bank I got out whole and saved my brother-in-law from losing nearly $500."

"BOOK DIGESTER."

Kansas City Journal: Half a dozen clever girls in New York are earning substantial incomes as "book digesters." Each of them has for her clientele women too busy with social engagements to find time for reading, yet who wish to keep abreast of current literature. The "digester" carefully follows noteworthy publications in fiction, art, science, history or religion. Once or twice a week she calls at the house of a "client" to review the contents of the books read. She is careful to memorize any epigram or witty saying that her client might introduce effectively in conversation. "It is remarkable how little leisure some women have," said a Vassar graduate who has adopted the new calling. "They can seldom give me a half hour all to myself. I am asked to call at the same hour as the hairdresser, the manicure or the chiropodist, and in specially gay seasons all three of these attendants may be at work upon her while I sit at a little distance and post her upon current books."

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD EDITOR.

Kansas City Journal: Herschell Miller, aged 14, is editor and publisher of the Boyd County News, at Lynch, Neb., and probably is the youngest person occupying such a dual position in the world. The paper was owned by his father, who died three years ago, leaving a widow and six children, of whom Herschell is the eldest. The boy has continued the business ever since, attending to almost every detail himself—sets the type, solicits advertisements and writes editorials.

HOW TIGERS KILL.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game, writes an assistant controller of forests at Perah to the London Field. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full-grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder, but nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder and when the bull turned his head to gore the tiger he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk, broken the neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed by a tiger and found the same thing had happened. There were similar marks on the nose and also on the near shoulder, which clearly indicated that this animal had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger killing a buffalo told me they saw the same thing happen, also that in dragging off a heavy carcass such as buffalo or bull he gets most of the weight across his shoulder.

This must be fairly correct, as I have often followed a kill, and the marks left indicated that only portions of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full-grown bull which ten men could not move, dragged for two miles by a tiger in heavy jungle, where roots of trees and swamp had to be gone through. In no case have I seen the pug marks facing the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves he must carry a portion of the animal over his shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense; besides, in this country a tiger never faces his prey, but attacks him on the flank, unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem very like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small lamp being tied over a kill about ten feet high, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried, and each time a tiger has come to feed upon the carcass.

HIS REVENGE.

Los Angeles Times: George H. Butler, brilliant newspaper writer for many years, became a dypsomaniac and a bore. For a score of years he was sought by all, great and small, but when he fell deep into the depths, he was avoided. One of his best friends was Maj. Carson, finally flatly refused to contribute any more money for liquor, the fallen fellow planted and nourished a grudge which he determined to gratify, and frequently announced that he would gratify some day. At last the occasion came, and Butler avenged himself upon his erstwhile friend.

Lawrence Barratt was playing for one week at the old National theater in Washington. George H. Butler went to the editor of a morning paper, asked for a theater pass, and said: "I want to see Barrett as Richlieu, and I want to write him up down for a column and a half. I want to compare him with the other Richelieus I have seen in this country and in other lands."

The ticket was promptly forthcoming, and Butler was promised a handsome special pay for the proposed article; for he was one of the best writers of his day, or of any day. He stated that he did not want any pay at all, but intended doing the work as a matter of pleasure.

He attended the play, and wrote one of the most interesting articles ever written about any play or about any actor. But, in the midst of the story he injected these lines, which were printed as written:

"Maj. Carson of the Philadelphia Ledger occupied a box, and when the Cardinal uttered the words,

"'The pen is mightier than the sword,'

Maj. Carson arose in the box, leaned forward, placed his right hand on his breast, and bowed his acknowledgments."

WHY HE DIDN'T GROWL.

Four men sitting around a restaurant table eating a very tough beefsteak and all growling fiercely, except one, says the New York Sun.

"Why don't you holler?" said one of the growlers to the silent one. "Do you like tough beefsteak?"

"No better than anybody else," said the fourth man, "but I had an experience once over tough beefsteak that has made me shy about growling at it ever since.

"At a restaurant where a party of us were taking our meals at that time, in a town in California, we had, every day, beefsteak that you would call this tender alongside of. Honest, I think it must have been tanned or prepared in some way, because it was like a thick hide for toughness.

"And we used to growl over that beefsteak, just as you fellows have been doing here, and finally we got real grumpy over it, so that we were always sour at the table. Then I thought I'd liven things up a little, and maybe get the boys to smile once more—they were naturally a cheerful lot—by making a little joke over the meals.

"So one day I brought in a hatchet with me under my coat, and when our regular slabs of beefsteak came on I got the hatchet out and laid it on the table. And that actually did make the boys smile a little.

"But it didn't affect the proprietor that way. He spied the hatchet as soon as I laid it on the table and came right over.

"'What you carrying that hatchet 'round for?' he says. 'Are you a lather?'

"'No,' I says, 'I brought that in to cut up the beefsteak with.'

"He was a big man, had been a miner, and he was strong and able, and a fighter, and I knew this; but I'd brought that hatchet in just for a little joke. I had not meant anything terrible by it, and I didn't feel that I had done him any great wrong, and so I spoke up good and bold.

"'What's the matter with the steak?' he says, his face geting harder all the time. 'Is it tough?'

"'Is it tough!' I said. 'Why,' and then, because by this time I was getting to be quite warmed up, I tried to tell him.

"I tried to convey to him as clearly as I could just how tough it was with him telling me, before I got through, that I'd better get right out and go somewhere where the steaks would suit me better, and starting finally to put me out when I didn't go.

"And then, of course, my friends came in, and then the waiters butted in to help the boss. And then for quite a spell we certainly did have a strenuous time there. But they put us out finally, and I lost my hatchet, and in the course of the row, which had started over that little joke of mine, I got a handling that was a good deal tougher than the beefsteak. I didn't get around again for three weeks.

"And the moral effect of that little incident, which happened eighteen years ago this month, has remained with me ever since. I may occasionally growl at some other things, and I think very likely we could do up this outfit here; but I never growl, myself, at tough beefsteak."

A CHEERY SPIRIT.

Los Angeles Times: The late C. A. Bradenburgh of Philadelphia was well-known among showmen. The dime museum that he conducted was one of the largest and oldest in the country.

Mr. Bradenburgh spent his summers at Lake Sunapee, in New Hampshire. He had a large and costly cottage on an island, and his yacht, the Barbara B, was till 1904 the fastest on the lake.

In 1904 the Barbara B was beaten by a motor boat, and the championship pennant that she had carried for years was taken from her.

Mr. Bradenburgh's remark, as he surrendered the pennant to the pulsating, thundering motor boat, with its engines taken from a powerful automobile, typified the man's hopeful and cheery nature.

"It is a bad defeat," he said, "but it might be worse.

"It reminds me of a young lady.

"'What a sad thing it must be,' she said, 'to be disappointed in love.'

"'Yes,' said a married woman, 'but it must be infinitely worse to be disappointed in marriage.'"

CLEVER IN HIS LINE.

Los Angeles Times: George Westinghouse, Jr., in overalls and a jumper, has begun to learn in Pittsburgh the great business which his father conducts.

"I am beginning to learn the business at the bottom," said the young man recently. "I hope to be thorough, if not brilliant. My father, at the age of 22, had invented the Westinghouse airbrake. I can't hope to equal such a record. If I am thorough, it will be enough."

He smiled.

"At the same time," he said, "there is no reason why I shouldn't become clever in this business—clever as a Pittsburgh hair dresser is.

"A woman entered this hairdresser's while I was being shaved. She looked about nervously. Then I heard her say to the man:

"'I'd like to see some false hair, please.'

"'Yes, miss,' said the hairdresser. 'And what color does your friend prefer?'"

WITS WITH THEM.

Mme. Rachel, the great actress, was resting alone in her dressing room one night preparatory to going on the stage, when a man suddenly entered and, drawing a dagger, said he was going to kill her if she did not at once consent to marry him, says the New York Sun.

The actress saw at a glance that the man was mad and meant what he said. So with the utmost coolness she replied:

"Certainly I will marry you. I wish nothing better. Come with me to the priest at once; I have had him come here for the purpose."

She took his arm and they went out together—to where there was assistance, of course, and the man was immediately put under arrest.

An instance of great presence of mind under a very different aspect of affairs was narrated to me by John Russell Young, says a writer in the Grand magazine. Once during the civil war, when Grant was in subordinate command, he was reconnoitring alone near the enemy's line. Suddenly he found himself confronted by one of the Confederates' pickets, who was for arresting him. "Sho! sho!" said Grant with the utmost coolness; can't you see I am reconnoitring in the enemy's uniform? Don't make a noise; I shall be back directly."

And he walked quietly away until out of the picket's sight, then ran as nimbly as he could.

A similar piece of presence of mind under circumstances of great danger is related of Laurence Oliphant by Mr. Innes Shand. Oliphant once declared that his nerves were never more severely tried that when he was attending a Socialist assembly in Lyons, as correspondent of the London Times.

It was whispered about in the room that a spy connected with that paper was present, and the mob suddenly arose to discover the intruder, breathing threats meanwhile which made Oliphant's hair incline to stand on end. That gentleman, however, hopped up with as much eagerness as anybody and searched carefully under the benches as if he longed for nothing so much as to discover the alleged spy.

BURNING MOUNTAINS.

Washington Evening Star: Through a long line of cliffs from Colorado to Central Utah, and then southwest toward Arizona, extensive beds of coal are found, and recent geological investigations into this coal formation of the Far West has developed what may be termed burning mountains, or coal beds, a fire with surface indications of constant combustion for ages past.

Like other coal-producing states of the Rocky mountain region, the coal fields of Utah are somewhat widely separated, and even the known fields have been comparatively little explored; therefore very little is known of their productive area.

The edges of these beds come to the surface in these cliffs nearly 1,000 feet above the bordering desert, and in ages past this coal has burned into the mountain cliffs until smothered by the accumulations of ashes and covering of superincumbent rocks. In places the heat of this burning coal has been so intense as to melt the rocks. From surface appearances the fires have gone out in these cliffs, but at one time in the canon of Prince river, where the coal is being mined, the rocks are found to be uncomfortably hot and the miners were compelled to retire for fear the fires would again break out.

Other coal fields lie in the desert west of Green river. At two places near tributaries of Bremont river the coal beds are burning, and have been without cessation since they were discovered by the earliest explorer. At certain intervals, as the burning of the thick beds progresses, making cavernous spaces in the earth, the rocks cave in, forming vents for the freer circulation of air. Then the coal burns more fiercely and the heat becomes so intense as to even melt the rocks. The origin of these fires has been the subject of much speculation.

Three explanations are commonly heard among the people—the Mormons who inhabit this peculiar country where the mountains burn.

One explanation is that lightning has by chance struck the edges of these coal beds at various times since these mountains were lifted up.

Another is that forest fires raging in the mountains came in contact with exposed coal. The more thoughtful point out that the forests in this desert region are too sparse for forest fires to occur.

Still another and more common explanation is that the Indians built their camp fires under the protecting ledges of the mountains against the coal, and it was thus ignited. They point to the fact that there are ruins of the habitations of cliff dwellers here, and that in their day the coals began to burn.

The coal miner in this region sees still another possible cause for these fires. In the dry mines, and most of them are dry mines, they observe that when a quantity of water is thrown upon a heap of dry coal, it spontaneously begins to burn, and if not protected will burn the mine.

Now it can be seen that if the rocks are rent by some subterranean cause, as sometimes happens, there may be a sudden access of water to the fresh, dry coal, causing spontaneous combustion.

SACCO FASTS 45 DAYS.

London correspondent New York Sun: Sacco, the Hungarian fasting man, completed his forty-five days' fast recently, and claims the record. During the forty-five days Sacco has smoked 952 cigarettes and drank twenty-two bottles of table water.

At the conclusion of his fast the chart showed that he had lost fifty-five pounds in weight. His respiration was 23 and his pulse 84. He said he was feeling very well, and, in the opinion of the doctors, his condition was very satisfactory. His hut in Hengler's circus has been kept extremely hot, but in the last few days he found it impossible to keep himself warm. Four days ago he appeared to be quite ill, and the management tried to persuade him to give up his task, but he replied that he would sooner die than do so. This morning he awoke in fine condition, and in the afternoon walked briskly up and down his hut.

There is not the slightest suspicion as to the genuineness of the test, and Sacco's complete abstention from everything except water and cigarettes.

CHAMPION JAWBREAKERS.

Bangor, Me., correspondent New York World: A Maine railroad passenger agent recently published a pamphlet giving a list of Indian names of localities in this state which he claimed to be the champion jawbreakers in any language, whereupon a Canadian railroad man got out a list of New Brunswick Indian names, compared with which the Maine tongue-twisters are as simple as A B C. Here are some specimens:

Asheganposipwagan (the place where we had the bass stew).

Wabaskiginensokakononigam (the portage where Little Cotton killed the porcupine).

FINE CROP CONDITION

Government Reports Winter Wheat Percentage May 1 at 91.

Improved During Month of April—Area Reduced Six Per Cent.

Washington, May 10.—The crop reporting board of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture, from the reports of the correspondents and agents of the bureau, finds the area under winter wheat remaining in cultivation on May 1 to have been about 29,623,000 acres. This is 6 per cent, or about 1,718,000 acres, less than the area reported as sown last fall, and 1 per cent, or about 241,000 acres, less than the area of winter wheat reported as harvested last year.

The average condition of the growing winter wheat crop on May 1 was 91, as compared with 89 on April 1, 1906; 92 on May 1, 1905, 76 on May 1, 1904, and 85, the mean of the May averages for the last ten years.

THE MOTIVES OF BECHTEL

As President of Insurance Company Severely Scrutinized at Trial.

Minneapolis, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The motives of Mr. Bechtel were severely scrutinized today during his cross-examination by Mr. Dahl for the prosecution. Mr. Bechtel remained upon the stand throughout the morning session.

The witness was compelled to explain that, when president of the National Mutual company he agreed to have his company reinsure an Iowa company, but that, instead of making the deal, he sold the Iowa company to a California company, thereby getting a considerable personal profit.

He admitted that he had given, at different times, two reasons for paying a $3,500 personal debt with the company's check. Once he had said it was because he had paid $30,000 to Dr. Force of the National Life association, to "further" the consolidation, and again he had explained that it was because he had been compelled to bribe with his own money State Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessy. He admitted that altogether he had used $16,500 of the company's money to pay his personal debts to Mr. Halbert. He owed Mr. Halbert $45,000.

Before he went into the Northwestern National company his salary as president of the Mutual company was $6,500 a year.

"It was largely increased on you getting into the new company," suggested Mr. Dahl.

"Yes and rightly so."

"Was that the chief reason you got into the new company?"

"No, I wanted to build up a large insurance business in Minneapolis."

"You became so attached to this city then, after a year's residence, that you were willing to make yourself liable to a criminal prosecution for bribery?"

This Mr. Bechtel naturally denied. He understood that it was necessary to pay the commissioner lest he might publish the unfavorable report, although such publication was not demanded by the law. He felt he was being subjected to contemplative blackmail and he told the commissioner so "to his face."

"You never informed the policyholders that Dr. Force had been given $100,000? You never spread that transaction on the records of the company?"

"No, I never did."

POWER BOAT FOR THE LIFE SAVERS

Station in Duluth Receives Quite a Remarkable Craft.

The life-saving station here has received a new life-saving boat, which is fitted out with a powerful gasoline engine. The boat itself is of the usual lifeboat model, self-bailing and self-righting.

It is fitted with a 25-horse power gasoline engine, which is placed in a water-tight compartment, and the engine is so arranged that when the boat upsets the engine will stop. It is claimed that with the engine installed, the boat is supposed to keep a speed of sixteen miles an hour, even with the bailing holes open.

It is considered that this boat will be of extraordinary value here, for each summer scores of boat accidents happen, and should vessels be in distress in the lake, with a powerful boat, which can also be manned with oars, excellent work can be done.

The boat is 34 feet long and 8 feet beam.

COOK COUNTY PIONEER.

John Morrison in City and Holding Sidewalk Reception.

John Morrison, the well-known county surveyor of Cook county, and one of the pioneers of the Minnesota lake region, is in the city today for the first time since last fall. Mr. Morrison held a sort of reception along the sidewalks of Superior street today, everybody who knows him—and they number scores—looking him up and giving him a hearty greeting.

Mr. Morrison has been sick with pneumonia, and is not in the best of health yet, but is improving.

Grand May Ball by Grocers.

The Duluth Retail Grocers' association will give a May ball next Wednesday evening, May 16, at Flaaten's hall, 212 West First street. The party is open to all, and the grocers expect to entertain in their handsome style. Flaaten's orchestra will play. Tickets are 50 cents. For those who do not wish to dance there will be card playing.

TO REIMBURSE MINNESOTA

Bill for $70,000 for Interest is Introduced in House.

Washington, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Volstead today introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $70,000 to Minnesota to reimburse the state in this amount for interest paid on certain bonds issued by it to suppress an Indian insurrection in 1862. One hundred thousand dollars of bonds were issued, running ten years and drawing 7 per cent. The state has recovered from the general government the principal, but has never been reimbursed for the interest paid out. The Volstead bill aims to pay this $70,000 interest charge.

"JUNIOR" BROWN DEAD.

Well Known Boy, Visiting Here From Rossland, B. C., Dies Suddenly.

Hollis P. Brown, Jr., of Rossland, B. C., aged 16 years, died suddenly last evening at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. S. Finkelson, 215 East Fourth street. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis P. Brown, formerly of Duluth, now of Rossland, B. C., where his father is connected with a railway company. Mrs. Brown is here, having arrived with her son a few weeks ago, but Mr. Brown did not come at that time. He was notified of his bereavement at once and will likely be here as quickly as the trains will bring him.

"Junior," as the young man was generally known among his friends, was born here, but moved with his parents to Rossland when quite a little chap. He has returned here with them frequently on visits and was quite well known and generally beloved. He was working in a bank at Rossland when he took sick and a few weeks ago came to Duluth for a change of air in the hope of benefiting his health. He seemed to improve and yesterday was feeling especially well. He retired about 8:30 last night, but at 11:30 awoke his mother telling her that he could scarcely breathe. All attention was given him but despite this he died in about an hour.

No plans for a disposition of the remains will be made until Mr. Brown arrives. It is expected, however, that the boy's body will be interred in Duluth. Much sympathy is felt for the parents and relatives of the boy for he was an only child and the loss is therefore the more trying.

"GRAPPLE" WINS RICH HANDICAP

Eight to One Shot Defeats Roseben, the Favorite.

Belmont Park, L. I., May 10.—John A. Drake's Grapple, an 8 to 1 shot, captured the rich metropolitan handicap here today, defeating a good field in the fast time of 1:39. Three quarters of a length back came Dandelion, with Oxford third, a head away.

After a short delay at the post they were sent away with all horses in motion except Ormonde's Right which was left at the post. Oxford was first to show but Roseben, the favorite soon went to the front, leading by one length coming to the turn with Oxford in second place and Dandelion third.

Grapple was in about fourth position and going easily. Making the turn in the stretch a great shout went up, "the favorite is beaten," for at that moment Little Garner brought Grapple up to the leader and slowly, but surely he gradually forged to the front and won in a drive. Roseben, the favorite, finished a poor fifth.

COLD WEATHER IN MANY LOCALITIES.

Cleveland, May 10.—Dispatches from different parts of the state indicate that the damage to vegetation by frost last night will be heavy. At Chagrin Falls a snow storm prevailed and then came a freeze up. Zanesville reports the garden and fruit crops totally destroyed. Wheat fields are blackened.

Detroit, May 10.—A heavy frost, which was killing in many sections, was general all over Michigan last night. Especially heavy damage is said to have been caused to strawberries and peaches.

Cumberland, Md., May 10.—Snow continued to fall here this morning, making the fourth day of snow in this locality. The Allegheny mountains are covered with snow. Snow lies on the ground at Frostburg and at points along the Virginia Central. At Beverly the snowfall was considerable.

TRIAL IS POSTPONED.

Civil Action Goes Over a Day Because of Counsel's Absence.

The action brought by Judge James B. Swing, receiver for the creditors of the Union Mutual Fire Insurance company of Cincinnati, against the Cloquet Lumber company was to have come on for trial in the district court this morning, but was postponed until Friday on account of the absence from the city of T. J. Davis who with Theodore Hollister is prosecuting the case. Mr. Davis had to attend some matters before the state supreme court. Associated witht Messrs. Davis and Hollister is P. A. Reece of Cincinnati, who arrived in the city yesterday. This is the first visit that Mr. Reece has ever made to the Head of the Lakes and he says he finds a great deal to interest him.

CITY BRIEFS.

Smoke none but home-made Union Label cigars.

The Wessinger company of Duluth has filed articles of incorporation. The incorporators are H. J. and W. E. Wessinger and A. C. Gillette of Duluth. The company is capitalized at $50,000 and purposes to operate a machine shop and foundry.

William M. Yanacek has instituted a suit in the district court to recover $250 from Samuel Johnston. The sum is claimed to be due on a promissory note given by Johnston to Yanacek at Minneapolis last August. The note is said to be endorsed by H. F. Williams, Hollwell & Keyes, Minneapolis, and C. E. Adams represent Mr. Yanacek.

TWO MURDERED.

Man and Wife Killed, With Robbery as a Motive.

New York, May 10.—James Mucchio and his wife, Gelesto, were found murdered in their rooms in the rear of a boot blacking stand which Mucchio conducted in Court street, Brooklyn, today. Their skulls had been crushed with a hatchet and their throats cut. A young Italian lodger who occupies one of the rooms in the rear of the shop was missing when the bodies were found and the police began to search for him.

The police believe that robbery was the motive for the deed.

STATE EMPLOYES

Cannot Circulate Nomination Papers Under Wisconsin's New Law.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—The civil service commission today rendered a decision that state employers cannot circulate nomination papers under the new primary election law. This is a blow at the present state officers who are candidates and are conducting campaigns from their offices through subordinates.

Arguments were heard in the supreme court today on the constitutionality of the new civil service law. The banking department wishes to be exempt from the operation of the law and seeks to prove the unconstitutionality of the whole legislation.

MOUROMTSEFF IS PRESIDENT

Of the Lower House of the New Russian Parliament.

St. Petersburg, May 10, 5:36 p. m.—The lower house of parliament was called to order at 5 p. m. by Baron Frisch and Baron Uexkull, secretary of the empire, with the hall from one-half to two-thirds filled.

Baron Frisch read an imperial ukase convoking parliament and invited the members to come forward and sign the oath. A recess was then taken.

The opening of the lower house of parliament was preceded by a religious service of thanksgiving in the big corridor in front of the hall.

Professor Mouromtseff, the candidate of the Constitutional Democrats, was elected president of the lower house. Ambassador Meyer was accorded a rousing reception from the crowd in front of the Tauride garden as he drove up. There was tremendous cheering for the representative of free America. The people wanted to take out the horses and draw the ambassador's carriage with their hands, but this he would not permit. He alighted without assistance and walked in the midst of cheering thousands to the gates.

So far as known, the only disorder reported occurred near the Winter palace between an officer and a party of roughs who declined to make way for him. Finally one of the roughs struck the officer in the face, whereupon the latter drew his sword and cut down his assailant. The officer was arrested. The man is not mortaly wounded.

BANK PRESIDENT SHOT BY BROTHER.

Montezuma, Ind., May 10.—W. H. Sylvester, president of the First National bank of Montezuma, was shot and killed at noon today in his home by his brother, whose mind is believed to be affected.

The sheriff of this county has started to drive from Rockville, eight miles away. He has several deputies with him. Stephen Sylvester is barricaded in his stronghold and the people of Montezuma are awaiting developments. Over a thousand persons are watching the shed from a distance.

DOWIE AND VOLIVA REACH AGREEMENT.

Chicago, May 10.—John Alexander Dowie and Wilbur G. Voliva reached an agreement in court today upon the proposition for mutual representation in the management of financial affairs at Zion City. The Dowie forces appointed John A. Lewis, while Voliva named Alexander Granger. The third member of the committee is still to be chosen.

FAVOR GOLD COINAGE.

Washington, May 10.—The house committee on coinage, weights and measures today authorized a favorable report on a bill which the senate has passed, authorizing the coinage of the reserve gold bullion in the treasury in excess of $50,000,000.

RED MAN WAKING UP.

Leslie's Weekly: The Indian is coming to the front in these days. On March 4, 1906, the tribal organization of the Cherokees, Chickasaws, Choctaws, Creeks and Seminoles were dissolved, and those Indians, numbering about 90,000 diffused themselves among the mass of citizenship of the country. Their community, the Indian Territory now forms part of the coming state of Oklahoma, and the red man will take up a little of the white man's burden, and assist in making and obeying the laws of his state and country.

There are 270,000 Indians in the country. Of the 170,000 who are outside of the Five Civilized tribes of the Indian Territory and outside of the state of New York, 30,000 are attending school. Civilied clothes are worn wholly by 120,000 of these 170,000 Indians, and are worn partly by 30,000 more; four-fifths of these reside in dwelling houses of civilized type; 70,000 talk English enough for ordinary purposes, and most of these can read it; and 40,000 are members of churches. Practically all the members of the Five Tribes talk English, all wear civilized clothes, all have good schools, and all live in dwelling houses. The same is true of the few thousand Indians in New York.

Since 1877, when the government began its work of educating and preparing them for citizenship, the Indians have made far more progress than the whites ever did in any equal time. The Cherokees, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Creeks and Seminoles have been governing themselves for two-thirds of a century. They will do the same thing on a larger field and under somewhat different conditions in the coming state of Oklahoma. Citizenship is near at hand for all the Indians, and with the tuition which they are receiving and under the incentives which are offered to them, they will probably make as good use of it as the average white men have done.

WEALTH FROM SAND.

World's Work: Dr. David T. Day, a government expert, has created a new industry in the Northwest. After months of patient investigation he has proved that the common black sands of the Pacific coast are rich in useful minerals, and that good steel can be made from this sand. Maufacturers of placer machinery are now devising improved mining apparatus for working the sands.

The little smelter at which Dr. Day made his experiments was in a corner within the grounds of the Portland exposition. The results were not completed, however, until after the exposition had closed. Sea sands of various kinds and colors were tested for many months. New magnetic separators and other machines were manufactured and sent to the laboratory especially for the work. Every day during the fair and long after the crowds had departed, the separating tables and furnaces were kept in operation until mineral after mineral had been found. Some of the sand produced 64 pounds of magnetic iron ore to the ton. Gold was found, platinum also, and a number of other minerals.

Not enough of any one material is contained in a ton of the sand to make working it profitable, but the total product of all the different materials proves that mining the black sand will pay. There is considerable platinum, worth $21 an ounce, and some tantalum, so called because it has long tantalized the chemists, who have only within a few months been able to find enough of it to examine it and to consider its usefulness. Dr. Day believes that within ten years it will be used for filaments for electric light. Probably 3,000 filaments could be made from one pound of tantalum, and they would give twice the light with half the power now used. Considering all the products of the black sands, Dr. Day's experiments have proved wonderfully rich in results.

TRADE IN CIGAR BANDS.

New York Press: "I want a package of cigar bands," said a bright-faced boy about 12 years old, as he stepped up to the counter in a tobacco shop.

"Ten or twenty-five cents?" asked the proprietor.

"Ten," returned the boy, as he flung down his dime, took his purchase and rushed out.

"Yes, I do quite a business in cigar bands," said the tobacconist. "It is quite a fad among children to get bands and paste them on glass plates and bowls. I sell about as many packages of bands as I do cigarettes, and there is more profit in it. The youngsters do a thriving business along the line of barter and trade. They take the bands to school and swap duplicates with their schoolmates. A rare band commands a high premium, and is worth frequently half a dozen of the more common varieties. The youngsters keep on the alert for bands, too, and they are after every one that comes from the cigars of their fathers and uncles and big brothers.

"In some respects the new fad is not a bad thing for the cigar trade. The bands have been a dead loss to tobacconists, who in the end have to pay for them. They are made in Germany, at least all of the fancy varieties, and they add a little to the cost of each cigar. Trifling as it may be, the sum in the aggregate would enable any of us to keep steam yachts and automobiles. By selling the bands at the rate of twenty-five for 10 cents the cigar manufacturers are able to get back some of the outlay that has been a dead loss to them."

VALUABLE STAMPS.

New York World: Eight United States postage stamps of a face value of $1.75 sold at auction in this city last night for $2,501. This is the highest price brought by stamps at any sale here this season, and probably the highest in years.

The stamps were part of the A. H. Scholle collection, under the hammer at the Collectors' club, No. 24 West Twenty-sixth street. They are a full set of the August 14, 1861, issue. The buyer, J. M. Bartles & Co., is a Boston firm, which has acted as agent for the United States government in acquiring stamps for its collection of all issues. The government lacks this set, and in all likehood is the real purchaser.

This issue has an interesting history. When the Civil war began the federal government was obliged to get out a new issue in a hurry for use in the North. This was because the post-offices in the south had millions of dollars' worth of stamps, and their validity would "give aid and comfort" to the confederacy. Therefore, the issue of August 14 was put forth. It consisted of 1, 3, 5, 10, 12, 24, 30 and 90 cent stamps. They were unsatisfactory in design and quality, and a new issue was put out a month later. Hence, their scarcity now.

The August, 1861, set is the oldest which is still valid. If the buyer of the set wished to use them they would carry letters and parcels up to their face value of $1.75. They are in the collection most prized by collectors—with the gum still on them.

William Knudsen of this city picked them up in a little shop in Denmark or Sweden some time ago. The dealer did not know their value and sold them at a small price. Knudsen sold them at a large advance to a fellow-collector here, who sold them to a dealer. At the Scholle sale they were offered at an upset price of $2,500, and several bidders were ready to give that much.

FEELINGS.

Chicago News: How are you feeling?
"Tocqy," said the carpet.
"Rotten," said the apple.
"Punk," said the fireworks.
"Out o' sight," said the invisible hairpin.
"Bully," said the boardinghouse steak.
"Tough," said the ditto chicken.
"Fine," said the Police Judge.
"Elegant," said the dude.
"Grate," said the anthracite.
"Tip-top," said the ballet girl.
"In great shape," said the ballet girl.
"Never better," said the anti-gambling crusader.
"Fit," said the tailor.
"Like a fighting cock," said the man who had run away from a hen party at his house.
"First rate," said the freight magnate.
"Swimmingly," said the fish.
"Good," said the preacher.
"Well," said the artesian driller.
"Rugged," said the mountain.
"With my fingers," said the smart Aleck.

DOGS SMUGGLE LACES.

Philadelphia Record: Some clever ruses to outwit customs authorities along the French frontier have been revealed by the capture of a dog. Before making use of this dog as a lace-carrier the smuggler crossed the border often with him, so that the customs officers might know the animal. Then he clipped the dog's coat close, wrapped around his body yards of costly lace and covered the whole with fur like the dog's coat.

For five years the dog carried Barbant lace without awakening suspicion. Then a "friend" of the smuggler notified the authorities, who shot the faithful animal. It leaked out that the dogs are used for this purpose all along the frontier.

Pigeons are also used for smuggling. Women's watches are sent from Lugano, in Switzerland, into Italy tied to the feet of homing pigeons.

DISCOVERY OF TIN.

New York Tribune: Who first found tin? There is a legend among the Cornish miners that St. Piran, an Irish hermit, was the discoverer. His ancient church in the parish of Perranzabuloe, in Cornwall, laid bare of sand by the sea many years ago, has recently been repaired. Cornish miners still keep the Feast of St. Piran, who, according to the fable, first found tin, forgetting that their forefathers had long previously sold it to the Phoenicians. Possibly the legend points to the fact that this Irishman was a skillful metallurgist.

SQUIRE TAYLOR'S BOOTS.

Boston Herald: Avery P. Taylor, or Squire Taylor, as he was commonly called, was a frequent visitor at my father's store in Fiskdale in the early sixties, and was almost invariably found with his feet high up on the old wood stove and with stovepipe hat on the back of his head:

One day while in this position John Daly entered the store with his son Johnny, a boy about 10 or 12 years of age, and asked to be shown a pair of boots for the boy. The old squire turned around and asked the old man if it did not cost him considerable to shoe that boy. "Why," he said, "here is a pair of boots I have had for years, and the taps are hardly worn yet."

Young Johnny piped up in reply, to the great amusement of my father and the bystanders: "Yes, but if you had them on the seat of your pants they would have been worn out long ago."

To spend 30 minutes a day in reading Herald want ads. may prove to be the most profitable "side-line" of business you ever undertook.

WHEAT IS STRONGER

Favorable Government Crop Report Fails to Break Wheat Price.

Flax is Higher With Good Buying Demand for It.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 10.—Wheat was stronger today, the July option closing firmer in all markets. The government crop report for May was favorable, but this seemed to cut no figure. The estimate of Argentine shipments for the week is lower than last week. Liverpool closed ¼d lower, Paris unchanged to ¼c lower, Budapest 1¼c higher, Berlin ½c to ¾c lower and Antwerp ½c lower.

Broomhall estimates the Argentine shipments of wheat this week at 2,800,000 bus, as compared with 3,216,000 bus last week and 2,300,000 bus for the corresponding week last year. He estimates the Argentine shipments of corn at 2,400,000 bus, as compared with 2,803,000 bus last week and 1,292,000 bus a year ago.

The Eastern demand for wheat is bettering.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and Chicago, 1c in Minneapolis, ⅞c lower in New York, ¼c higher in St. Louis and Winnipeg and ¼-⅜c higher in Kansas City. The July option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ⅛-⅝c in Chicago, ¾-1c in Minneapolis, ⅜c in New York and Winnipeg, ⅜-½c in St. Louis and ¼-⅜c in Kansas City.

Corn was stronger, the July option in Chicago closing ⅝-¾c higher. Corn was ½d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 30, against 7 last year, and at Minneapolis 75, against 109 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 105 against 116 last year. Chicago received 3 against 0 last year, Winnipeg received 123 against 127 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 219,000 bus, last year 128,000 bus. Shipments 243,000 bus, last year 316,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 262,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 341,000 bus, last year 150,000 bus. Shipments 356,000 bus, last year 188,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 152,000 bus.

Wheat was active after the first hour of trading in the Duluth market, with prices stronger. Most of the trading was in the July option. May wheat opened unchanged at 80¾c, advanced to 81¾c and declined at the close to 81⅝c, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. July wheat opened a shade lower at 80¾@¾c, advanced to 81⅜c at 9:50, declined to 81¼c at 10:08, rallied to 81¾c at 11, fell off to 81c at 11:10, rallied to 81½c at 12 and ranged between that and 81¼@¾c during the rest of the session. The closing price was 81½c, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September wheat closed ½c higher at 78¾c.

Flax was active. Crushing interests, which have not been in the market very obviously of late, seemed to be buying somewhat today. A fair amount of flax was worked for export. Flax was ⅝c higher in Antwerp and ⅞c higher in London. May flax opened unchanged at $1.17, advanced to $1.18¾ and declined at the closed to $1.18, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.18¾, advanced to $1.20 and ranged between that and $1.19½ during the rest of the session. The closing price was $1.19½, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. September flax was inactive at the opening, sold as high as $1.19¾ and as low as $1.19½, closing at $1.19⅝, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. October flax opened ½c higher at $1.17¾, advanced to $1.18¼ and ranged between that and $1.18 during the rest of the session, closing at $1.18, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ½c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Small Receipts and Higher Prices in Minneapolis Cause Steadiness.

Chicago, May 10.—The wheat market opened steady today on smaller receipts in the Northwest, higher prices on the curb at Minneapolis and steady cables. Trade was of small dimensions, few dealers caring to make extensive transactions before the publication of a government crop report. July opened ⅝c higher at 79¾c, advanced to 79⅝c and then held steady. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 108 cars against 216 cars last week and 116 cars one year ago.

The government crop report did not have much effect upon the market except to stiffen the undertone somewhat. The market continued strong until the close which was 80@¾c, the high point of the day, and ⅛c to ⅜c higher than yesterday's.

The corn market was firm at the opening today, the settlement of the lake strike and firm cables being the chief cause of the strength. There was fair buying by pit traders and commission houses. Offerings were in moderate quantity. The July option opened ⅛c to ⅛c@¼c up at 45⅝@¾c and sold up to 45¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 62 cars with 11 of contract grade.

Selling in good volume was in progress for the greater part of the day, the offerings coming chiefly from commission houses. There was good buying for cash account, however, and prices held up well. The close was strong and ⅜@½c higher at 46c.

The oats market was firm with good buying of the July and Sept. options by commission houses. July opened unchanged at 31¾c and sold up to 31¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 113 cars.

The provisions market was dull and trade very light. The receipts of hogs were less than had been expected and the market had a firm undertone. There was a fair shipping demand. July pork was up 10c at $15.07½c. Lard was unchanged to 2½c higher at $8.10@8.42½. Ribs were unchanged at $8.52½.

Close—Wheat—May, 83¾c; July, 80@¾c. Corn—May, 47¾c; July, 46c. Oats—May, 32⅝c; July, 31⅜. Pork—May, $14.95; July, $15.15@15.17½. Lard—May, $8.35; July, $8.47½. Ribs—May, $8.52½; July, $8.65. Rye—Cash, 60@6c; May, 59½c; July, 60@60c. Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.19; southwestern, $1.10; May, $1.14. Timothy —September, $3.65. Clover—Cash, $11.25. Barley—Cash, 34@53c. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The low point in today's market was made immediately after the publication of the government figures. This weakness was for a moment only, the market immediately changing front and advancing steadily right up to the close. The government report was generally held to be a bearish document, but had absolutely no effect on price-making for the reason that it has been anticipated by the trade generally, and to that extent was discounted. It has been for some time fashionable to sell wheat, and the result is sentiment is all on that side, with the rank and file of traders short about as much as they want to be at this season of the crop. The close shows prices at the highest level for four weeks. For some days it has been evident that the bearish news distributed through the trade was losing force. Trade that could be stamped had thrown their lines over, and an increased short interest created. The stubborn strength sugests the contested state of the market. The strong cash position in May, stocks here were well taken care of, and a scarcity of offerings, all seem to be clearly working for uneasiness in the bear ranks.

Corn—Market closed strong and ⅝c to ¾c higher. While receipts hold as at present some few shorts may be forced to cover, but we think it will be wise to anticipate the larger movement that is bound to come, and sell the future months.

Oats—This market participated in the general strength today, closing ¼c higher. The shorts in the May month are unable as yet to see much, of any, daylight ahead.

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: Prevailing temperatures unfavorable for corn crop, but if not prolonged will likely not seriously disturb the position. Winter wheat maintaining excellent promise. Spring wheat indicates favorable start and enlarged area. Oats mostly doing well.

* * *

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Dullness in the commission trade has induced a move to rescind the recent action of the board in advancing commission rates. A petition was circulated yesterday asking the directors to amend the rules to reduce the rates on grain to ¼c on nonmembers and 1-16c to members. It also provides for employment of brokers on either a salary or a brokerage basis. The petition was signed by forty members, but it only requires twenty-five signatures to bring it before the directors.

THE SALESMAN'S CREED.

New York Press: Possibly the Salesmans' Creed has not been read by all the world. The drummer who is not on the square and on the level, whose ways are not upright, soon goes to the gutter of commercial life. If a man on the road can live up to the following he will certainly succeed:

I believe in the goods I am selling, in the firm I am working for and in my ability to get results.

I believe that honest goods can be sold to honest men by honest methods.

I believe in working, not waiting; in laughing, not weeping; in boosting, not knocking, and in the pleasure of selling goods.

I believe that a man gets what he goes after; that one order today is worth two orders tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself.

I believe in today and in the work I am doing; in tomorrow and the work I hope to do, and in the sure reward which the future holds.

I believe in courtesy, in generosity, in good cheer, in kindness, in friendship and honest competition.

I believe there is an order somewhere for every man ready to take one. I believe I'm ready—right Now!

CURE FOR BALDNESS.

Boston Herald: William F. Babbitt, traveling salesman for an extract house, is not quite as bald as a billiard ball, but very nearly. One day while on a train a gentleman sitting opposite had his hat off. Babbitt went over to him and said: "Say, my friend, would you believe I had no more hair than you have two years ago?" The gentleman was just at that stage where he still had hope, and was willing to try anything, so, lookink up, he said: "Is that so? What did you do for it?"

Babbitt took his hat off and showed him.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Great Deal of Profit-Taking But Advances Scored.

Favorable Crop Report Helped Market Retain Firm Undertone.

New York, May 10.—The opening movement of prices today was irregular. Nearly all of the prominent speculative leaders were lower. United States Steel preferred and Sloss-Sheffield Steel declined a large fraction and Brooklyn Transit rose ¾. Otherwise the changes were small and transactions were on a moderate scale.

Trading was quiet and irregular during the first hour. The general market followed the movements in Reading and Smelting which were quite feverish. After registering declines of 1⅛ to 1⅜ they rallied to fractionally over yesterday's close and again became weak. Other stocks traversed a much narrower range with the majority quoted below last night. The local traction stocks were strong as were a few other minor specialties. Northern Pacific and the Metropolitan Traction groups advanced 1½ and Lead, Pump preferred and United States Realty 1.

The local traction stocks were strong on good traffic reports and Northwestern and Pacific roads made wide advances. Prices elsewhere advanced in sympathy and the market was awakened with animation. Northern Pacific rose 6⅛, Great Northern preferred 4, National Lead 2, the local tractions 1½ to 2, Northwestern and Delaware & Hudson 1½, and Atchison 1. Central of Jersey sold at a decline of 4½. Prices yielded again before noon. Bonds were irregular.

When Great Northern preferred began to be absorbed in blocks of a thousand shares and upwards which eventually carried it up 7¼ to 303, room operators began to buy stocks and the other trans-continental stocks all rose soundly. St. Paul reached 168 and Union Pacific and Northern Pacific, Reading, United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper were also strong for a time. Louisville & Nashville improved a point. Towards 1 o'clock the market began to get "spotty" and St. Paul and the Hill stocks fell back 1 to 2. Union Pacific held firm.

An active demand for New York Central had a further strengthening effect on the market. The general advances were not large. Profit-taking began when the upward rush showed signs of exhaustion and the market became quiet and yielded. The rise in New York reached 2⅝ and there were gains also of 2 points in St. Paul and Atlantic Coast Line, 1¼ in Pennsylvania and 1 in People's Gas.

There were some new strong points in the final hour, while profit-taking reduced some of the earlier advances.

The principal gainers were Amalgamated Copper, Southern Pacific, Wabash preferred, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, Wisconsin Central preferred and the Iowa Central stocks to 1¼, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis 1¾, Lake Erie & Western 3¾, Twin City Rapid Transit 4 and Anaconda 6½. International Pump fell 1⅜. There were reactions from the late advances and the market became very dull. The closing was irregular.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed strong, in spots sharply higher. Trade was well distributed and the temporary setbacks evidently ran into resting orders as stocks rallied easily from the little depressions. The decision of the Bank of England in not increasing their discount rate had a favorable effect on sentiment. The opinion is held that we are to have a favorable bank statement and prevailing rates for call money, and this gives confidence to pools, all of which were active in their specialties. The market seems to have recovered entirely from its fears of a week ago and gives evidence of being well controlled. The close tonight would indicate some higher prices.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market continued irregular today. There was a great deal of profit-taking, but continued bullish activity and short covering brought about spurts which carried many stocks up to new high prices for the recovery and in spite of a reaction at the closing most of the stocks showed net advances. The features were the rise in St. Paul, Union Pacific and Erie and New York Central. The government crop report made a favorable showing and helped the market retain a very firm undertone.

* * *

New York to Baker: E. H. Harriman is bullish. He believes the break of ten days ago was foolish and he would have been a heavy buyer of stocks had he been here. The whole tone of his conversation is confident and even optimistic.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 10.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 2 to 9 points in response to firm cables and reports of frost in several sections of the Eastern belt which were accompanied by private wires reporting damage to growing cotton and a tendency of replanting in some sections. Trading was very active at the advance which was led by the new crop months and prices during the middle of the morning were at 4 to 11 points net higher in spite of active realizing. Spot houses seemed to be buying both old and new crop months, and shorts covered on the bad weather reports and firm spot situation.

Cotton spot closed steady; mid ups, 11.05; do gulf, 12.20. Sales, 4,364 bales. Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: May, 11.39; June, 11.21; July, 11.21; August, 11.03; September, 10.81; October, 10.75; November, 10.74; December, 10.74; January, 10.78; February, 10.80; March, 10.84.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: North Butte was a favorite today, with sales as high as 95¼, the highest price the stock ever sold at. Shannon was again very active, but fairly steady in price owing to the large amount of stock offered at 10. A little demand for Mohawk was in evidence and the stock was scarce. The market has rallied for just a week now, and we advise taking advantage of the present prices, as a reaction will probably come in the next few days and traders can make a good turn.

St. Paul Live Stock

St. Paul, May 10.—Cattle: Receipts, 200; demand strong; prices steady; grain fed steers, $3.50@5.50; cows and heifers, $2.50@4.50; calves, $1.50@4.25; stock steers, $2.50@4.00; feeders, $3.00@4.50. Hogs: Receipts, 2,700; strong; 5c higher; range, $6.10@6.30; bulk, $6.25@6.28. Sheep: Receipts, 500; strong, showing advance of 25c; sheep, $3.75@6.75; lambs, $4.00@5.25; spring lambs, $4.50@10.00.

Chicago Live Stock.

Chicago, May 10.—Cattle, receipts, 5,500; steady to strong; beeves, $4.15@6.20; cows and heifers, $1.85@5.25; stockers and feeders, $2.90@5; Texans, $4@4.70; calves, $4@6.25. Hogs, receipts, 16,000; market strong to 5c higher; estimated tomorrow, 14,000; mixed and butchers, $6.30@6.55; good heavy, $6.45@6.55; rough heavy, $6.15@6.30; light, $6.25@6.50; pigs, $5.80@6.35; bulk of sales, $6.40@6.47½. Sheep, receipts, 16,000; market strong; sheep, $4.15@6.75; lambs, $4.75@7.55.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Evidence of the limited supply of horses is shown in the number of arrivals the first half of the week, as compared with a week ago, and the corresponding week of 1905. The demand is broader than a week ago, and the attendance of buyers from all parts of the country is almost of record volume. Drivers and light harness horses are in good demand; dealers anticipate further advances in prices in the near future. All classes moved freely at the following prices:

Drafters, extra	$200@225
Drafters, choice	175@220
Drafters, common to good	150@175
Farm mares, extra	130@165
Farm mares, choice	115@130
Farm mares, common to good	90@115
Delivery, choice	160@175
Delivery, common to good	125@160
Drivers	125@250
Mules	130@210

New York Money.

New York, May 10.—Money on call, easy, 2½@4 per cent; ruling rate, 3¾; closing bid, 2; offered at 3 per cent. Time loans steady; 60 and 90 days and 6 months, 5@5½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 5½@6¾. Sterling exchange strong, at $4.85.70@75 for demand and at $4.82.20@25 for 60 days.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

FIGHT IS OLD.

Kansas City Journal: There is nothing new about the present outcry against football. The game was prohibited in Scotland by James II. and James IV., and in England Edward II. held out pains and penalties for "hustling over large balls." It was also declared illegal in the time of Henry VIII., and strenuous efforts were made by Elizabethan statesmen to supress the game, but without success. But where kings and queens failed the puritans succeeded, as in other phases of sport.

MEMENTO OF CZAR.

Kansas City Journal: Dr. Edward Young of Washington has in his possession a valuable memento which was presented to him by Czar Alexander II. of Russia, thirty-four years ago, and which has an indirect bearing on the struggle now in progress in that country. It is a massive gold ring set with eight large diamonds. It has a large blue stone centerpiece on which appears worked in rubies the monogram of the "Great White Czar" Alexander II., with a crown of jewels.

ALL HE NEEDED.

Los Angeles Times: Down in Southwest Georgia, one of these attorneys was defending a negro accused of stealing chickens. After the evidence and the lawyer's speech, the jury promptly convicted the darky, whereupon the attorney said to him: "I'll appeal your case to a higher court if you can raise the money."

"Money! Lor'," replied Sambo, "if I could 'a' raised any money, I'd a got a lawyer."

RAILROADS IS GIVEN A PROMOTION

M. M. Hubbert Made Great Northern Agent at Minot.

Southeastern Plans Extensive Head of the Lakes Improvements.

M. M. Hubbert of Duluth, passenger agent for the Great Northern railway, has been promoted to the position of city ticket agent at Minot, S. D. Official announcement of his appointment was made today by A. Brostedt, northern passenger agent. Fred Hall, formerly operator in the local city ticket office, will succeed Mr. Hubbert as passenger agent.

The latter leaves for Minot today to assume his new duties. He has been connected with the Duluth office for nearly three years past, and prior to that was in the employ of the road at other points. A close application to business and efficient service earned the well-merited promotion. Mr. Hubbert has a large circle of friends in Duluth who will regret exceedingly to see him leave.

Owing to the large increase in business, the Great Northern will make changes at a number of North Dakota points, including Grand Forks. The work of agents will be divided by the appointment of passenger and ticket agents. J. W. Cathron, who has been general agent for the company at Devils Lake, has been appointed passenger and ticket agent at Grand Forks, and W. B. Sinclair, the general agent, will remain freight agent.

ISSUE OF GOLD BONDS.

Aggregate Amount of $8,500,000 for the Lake Superior & Southeastern.

The stockholders of the Wisconsin Central have authorized the creation of a series of Duluth and Superior division and terminal first mortgage thirty-year 4 per cent gold bonds to an agregate amount of $8,500,000, of which $7,000,000 will be issued at once and $1,500,000 held in reserve for the extension and improvement of terminal facilities at Duluth and Superior for the Southeastern road.

The bonds will be secured by a first mortgage upon the extension now under construction from Owen, Wis., on the company's main line, to Duluth and Superior, and upon the terminal properties of the company in the Head of the Lakes cities, the proceeds of the bonds to be used for the cost of such extension and terminal properties and the payment of all construction loans made heretofore.

By Special Train.

Dockstader's minstrels will arrive in the city tomorrow on a special train, coming in over the Omaha. After the last performance in Duluth Saturday night, it will leave in a special over the same road for the Twin Cities. The company has been traveling in specials for the last ten days.

Railroad Notes.

Butter rates from the Twin Cities to New York will be restored to $1.05 by the other lines if the Soo will concur. The present rate is 92 cents, and was put in effect by the Wisconsin Central about a month ago. The other lines met the rate. The Central claims the Soo first cut the rate.

Extensive improvements are being made in the East St. Louis terminals of the Illinois Central railroad. Among the betterments are a sixteen-rail roundhouse, costing $25,000; a turntable and pit, costing $7,500, and oil houses, cinder pits and ice warehouses costing $13,000.

The Scenic Limited is the name of a new train which the Denver & Rio Grande will operate during the summer season between Denver and Ogden, Utah. The service will begin June 3.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis will run excursion trains into the Twin Cities during the summer every Sunday from some neighboring point. The first will be May 13, when three excursion trains will arrive from Des Moines and intermediate points.

Sciatica Cured After Twenty Years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey of 3322 Clinton street, Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism, why not try a 25-cent bottle of Pain Balm, and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by all the leading druggists.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Dr. E. W. Buckley Re-Elected State Deputy at Annual Meeting.

St. Paul, May 10.—The annual meeting of the Minnesota state council, Knights of Columbus, was the largest meeting of the state council ever held, and the work accomplished by the order during the past year was very gratifying.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. E. W. Buckley, state deputy. A full delegation was present from each of the eleven councils in the state: St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Winona, Faribault, Owatonna, St. Cloud, Mankato, Wabasha, New Ulm and Rochester.

Two new councils were instituted during the year and the membership increased nearly double, being now only a few less than 2,000.

Following the regular business an appropriation was voted for the relief of San Francisco.

The election of officers resulted as follows: State deputy, Dr. E. W. Buckley, St. Paul; state secretary, Thomas B. Hill, Winona; state treasurer, James E. Hickey, Mankato; state advocate, Thomas H. Quinn, Duluth; state warden, Andrew J. Eckstein, New Ulm; state chaplain, Rev. T. J. Gibbons, St. Mary's church, St. Paul.

Delegates to the national convention, which will be held at New Haven in June, are: Dr. E. W. Buckley and Thomas D. O'Brien of St. Paul. John E. Barry, St. Paul, and E. W. Fahey of Duluth were elected alternates.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Epidemic of Insanity Has Broken Out in Menominee County.

Menominee—Another epidemic of insanity seems to have broken out in Menominee county. The police authorities are occupied with several cases, the latest that of a Stephenson man. A man named Arnold, who has been working on a farm near the brickyard on the bay shore, also has been taken in charge by Sheriff Packer, the wife having entered a complaint against him, declaring him insane. In addition to the two new cases, a young man, Eusebe Dery, an alleged victim of the perpetual motion fallacy, is still in the county jail. Gimmeneau, a man picked up some time ago while insanely praying before the doors of a Menominee church, is also at the county jail and is said to be in bad condition.

Germfask—Dr. John M. Lipson, who is conducting a drug store in Germfask, Schoolcraft county, was arrested recently on the charge of selling liquor without a license, and had his hearing before John I. Bellaire, justice of the peace of that township. Prosecuting Attorney Hixson and Sheriff Klagstad were in attendance. Lipson gave bonds for his appearance at the next term of the circuit court.

Jacob Edwards' farm house in Doyle township, Schoolcraft county, burned to the ground a few days ago. Nearly all the contents of the house were destroyed. The fire started from the kitchen chimney and was beyond control when noticed. The loss is about $2,000, with no insurance.

Powers—Thieves entered the Chicago & Northwestern eating house at Powers, managed by J. E. Smith, and carried off about $125 from the cash register. Entrance was gained through a window. It is thought the fellows had been hanging about the room in the crowds that visited the place and had learned where the key to the register was kept.

Manistique—Andrew P. Ekstrom, for four years chief of police, and Officer Lindroth have resigned their positions at Manistique. The former has taken a contract to load cars for the Simmons company, and the latter goes back to wielding the hammer and pushing the saw. It is said they had been notified they would not be reappointed by the mayor.

Iron Mountain—Anton Johnson, who had his back broken last September by a load of hay tipping over onto him, is dead at Iron Mountain. He was 46 years of age and leaves a wife and six children. Johnson had lived in Iron Mountain for the past seventeen years and formerly worked in the Chapin mine.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES.

Man and Wife and Six Children Arrive Here.

After ten weeks of weary travel the Russian refugees in whom Duluth people were interested some weeks ago, arrived in the city this morning and, comfortable and safe with relatives, for the first time in many months enjoyed the kind ministrations of friends and the contented spirit of security from all harm. Samuel Lettshewvsky with his wife, Porly, and their four little children comprised the party arriving in the city this morning at 8 o'clock, and were met by Mrs. Lettshewvsky's brother, Samuel Stein, of 7 West First street, with whom they are staying.

Duluthians were first interested in the case of this Russian Jew family through the efforts of Mrs. I. Freimuth of this city, who became interested in their behalf and made arrangements for their journey to this country. Ten weeks ago the first start was made from Nickoliw, Russia, in the midst of the country in which the massacres and tortures of the Jews took place, and with many struggles and not a few hardships the haven of their brother's home was reached this morning. Neither Mr. Lettshewvsky nor his wife can speak English, but, surrounded with friends and comforts and little luxuries which they have not had for many days, they were the picture of content and happiness this morning. A feast was prepared and many of the neighbors and friends were invited in to welcome them to the new country, so that alNl in all the scene and event was one worthy of description by I. Zangwill, who thoroughly understands and presents the life and events of the Jewish people.

The journey from the province of Russia was a roundabout and hard one and in Vienna this little family suffered many hardships. But the present content has wiped out even the thought of much of the terror of those last months in Russia and the discomforts of travel. The family will settle in Duluth permanently.

Carlyle said: "Make yourself an honest man, and then you may be sure that there is one rascal less in the world." Also—read The Herald ads. and you may be sure that there is one less "easy mark" in the world.

THE PEOPLE TO DEMAND AMNESTY OF THE CZAR

Will Ask That Council be a Merely Consultative Body.

President of Lower House to Express Views to Emperor.

Impression of Opening of Parliament is Generally Optimistic.

St. Petersburg, May 11.—Prof. Mouromtzeff went to Peterhof this afternoon to notify the emperor of his election to the presidency of the lower house of parliament. It is known that he expects to speak plainly to his majesty on the views of the country and the Constitutional Democrats hope that much good will result from the audience.

Besides demanding amnesty, Prof. Mouromtzeff will present in behalf of the Constitutional Democrats a majority suggestion that the council of the empire be made a purely consultative body with no right to stand between the representatives of the people and sovereign.

St. Petersburg, May 11.—The impression left by yesterday's historic day is on the whole optimistic. Even the radical newspapers assume a rather hopeful tone. The Rech, organ of the Constitutional Democrats and now the most powerful paper in Russia, while not concealing its disappointment at the fact that the expected amnesty was not granted, on the other hand expresses its satisfaction that the emperor did not use the word "autocracy." It regards his majesty's speech as an adroit refusal to grant any further concessions, leaving the new fundamental law as the platform of the government, adding:

"But the policy of marking time while events are marching so rapidly really means retreat."

The Constitutional Democrats, however, are in no wise dismayed at the prospect of having to continue the struggle. It is already apparent that they intend to nail the flag of a constitutional monarchy to their masthead, but their first efforts will be directed to forcing general political amnesty from the unwilling hands of the emperor. The deliverance of the political prisoners, and those who have suffered for freedom's cause, is now a passion with the masses, and it is difficult to see how the government will be able to resist.

One of the striking changes today is in the appearance of the Official Messenger, which for days and weeks had been appearing each morning with column after column of ukases and nominations, as the bureaucracy feverishly sought to get their "goods in out of the wet." With the assembling of parliament, the end has come.

Not a single ukase or nomination was printed today. The only official announcement was a rescript giving Finance Minister Kokovsoff credit for negotiating the Russian loan and decorating him with the Alexander Nevsky order.

The central committee of the Constitutional Democrats is working out a reply to the speech from the throne. The principal points will be amnesty and equality of political and civil rights. But a faction is insisting on a demand for the abolition of the council of the empire. An attempt will be made to come to an agreement with the peasants, who are drawing up an independent reply. Their chief demands are amnesty, the reorganization of the labor laws, the reorganization of the army, the disbanding of the cossacks, the separation of church and state, a general extension of the schools and equal rights for all nationalities.

ESTIMATES FOR APPROPRIATIONS

For Canal Cannot Be Made Until Engineer Stevens Returns.

Washington, May 11.—Demand being made by the house committee on appropriations for estimates for work on the Panama canal to carry on the work during the next fiscal year, Secretary Taft has explained to the committee that it will be impossible to submit detailed estimates until the arrival here of Chief Engineer Stevens, who is now on his way from the isthmus.

The totl to be asked for is said to agregate $26,000,000, but owing to the lack of knowledge here as to the amounts to be asked for to pay skilled and unskilled labor, the figures cannot be submitted. The committee is to include this appropriation in the sundry civil appropriation bill which is now being compiled. It is expected that estimates will be made the subject of extended hearings before the committee that members may be in a position to give the house detailed information regarding the necessity for each item included.

BONAPARTE IMPROVED.

Washington, May 11.—The navy department was advised today that Secretary Bonaparte was able to go to his country home near Baltimore yesterday and will probably resume his duties at the navy department next week.

MRS. DAVIS BETTER.

New York, May 11.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, who has been ill with the grip for several days in her apartments in the Hotel Gerard, was reported as being much improved today.

WOULD TAX TRUE VALUE

Resident of the Sault Wants Revenue From Power Company.

City Gets Nothing at Present From the Corporation.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 11.—(Special to the Herald.)—Charles S. Beadle of Sault Ste. Marie, a heavy taxpayer here, has made demand upon the assessor of this city that he assess the property of the Michigan Lake Superior Power company, subsidiary to the Lake Superior corporation, at its true cash value, estimated at $6,000,000, and that taxes based on that amount be collected from the big concern. It has been the custom in the past to assess the company at $2,500,000, the amount of its first mortgage bonds, but this assessment has been marked "exempt." The company now, under the provisions of a special act of the legislature, pays a specific tax of $5,000 annually to the state, the city receiving nothing. The act in question was enacted, at the instigation of the Soo people, some years ago, when the construction of the great water power canal was undertaken, and was intended to serve in the nature of a bonus. A proposal to repeal the law was made at the last legislative session, but nothing came of it. Mr. Beadle alleges that the special act is unconstitutional. At the time of its passage it was heartily favored at the Soo, having been designed to aid the company in securing the development of its 60,000-horsepower plant. But the company's plans for the American Soo have not panned out as expected. Most of the development has occurred on the Canadian side of St. Mary's river.

A carbide plant is the most substantial benefit the Michigan city has received, faults in construction at the powerhouse, it is said, preventing the development of the full power that should be secured from the flow of water. A considerable portion of the Soo population have been getting out of sympathy with the power company, and the step now taken is held to indicate that they are arriving at a point where they believe that if the company isn't to mean anything more for them than at present, it ought to be made to pay full taxes. In fact, the belief is hinted that the annual drain of taxation on the full value of the property would compel radical steps for making the whole projected water power available and ready for sale on the market. However, as the matter now stands, the question of the legality of the special taxation act will be taken to the courts. A decision adverse to the company would leave a deep gash in its net revenues.

SOCIALIST DEPUTIES

Resign at Rome on Refusal of Chamber to Discuss Bill.

Rome, May 11.—All the Socialist members of the chamber of deputies have resigned as a result of the refusal of the chamber to discuss the bill presented by their party providing for the regulation of the use of arms on the part of police and troops and have issued an address to the country.

During the day, a largely attended meeting of strikers was held in the Colosseum. Socialist deputies delivered inflammatory speeches and a resolution protesting against the use of arms against the people was adopted.

Later, collisions between the strikers and the police and troops took place, and several hours elapsed before the demonstrators were finally dispersed.

PROBING THE MYSTERY

Surrounding the Death of Indian Woman Near Nebish.

Bemidji, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Attorney McDonald is conducting a vigorous investigation to uncover the mystery which surrounds the death of the Indian woman who was burned about a mile from Nebish. According to a resident at the Red Lake Indian agency, who acted as interpreter here, four of the six Indians who were members of the party at the time the woman met her death, are a bad lot, being greatly addicted to the use of whisky, and also an unprincipled bunch, who would not hesitate to swear the crime of having killed the woman on to anyone else in order to clear their own skirts. The other two Indians, who are prisoners are Crazy Dog, a Sioux Indian, and his wife, the latter being a sister of the dead squaw.

The four arrayed against Crazy Dog would lead the authorities to believe that, if a crime was committed, Crazy Dog was the perpetrator, and they swore that there was ill-feeling between Crazy Dog's wife and her sister. Both Crazy Dog and his wife assert that there was no trouble between the sisters, and it is beginning to be believed that one of the bucks killed the woman, afterwards putting her body close to the fire, so that it was burned almost beyond recognition.

COULD NOT SAVE FRIEND.

Old Man in His Sorrow Took His Own Life.

Jefferson, Wis., May 11.—Christian Hoffman, aged 84 years, has been found dead in Rock river. He disappeared over a month ago, leaving word that he wanted to die because a lifelong friend near his farm near Watertown, had been taken to the poorhouse. He disappeared the day after the commitment, complaining that he was financially unable to save his friend. Later a note was found.

PROTECTION IS DEMANDED

American Manufacturers Do Not Want Any Foreign Competition

In Supplying Material for Construction of Panama Canal.

Washington, May 11.—Secretary Taft has refused to assume the responsibility for an order requiring the canal commission to buy only American goods, and as a result of his stand it is likely resolutions will be introduced in congress limiting the purchases of the commission to American markets.

Senators Dick and Ankeny and a number of other prominent Republicans in the senate have urged the commission to abandon the idea of buying in the open market, but Secretary Taft and the members of the commission have not felt that they could read any such restriction on purchases into the present law regulating the commission, and suggested that congress should specifically limit buying to American goods, if any such provision is desired for the protection of the interests of United States corporations.

Since the purchase of 20,000 barrels of English cement by the commission, there has been much agitation for the protection of American manufacturers. The cement was purchased for 37 cents less per barrel than American manufacturers offered to supply it for, but it was maintained by American cement interests that the shipping conditions stipulated by the commission were responsible for the higher price stipulated by American mills. Because of lack of storage facilities on the isthmus the commission stated in its specifications that the cement was to be delivered in small quantities, as needed.

Ohio cement manufacturers have interested Senator Dick in their movement to protect American commercial interests against European competition, and many of the "stand pat" tariff men in congress are said to be ready to support resolutions which will absolutely shut out European competition.

Members of the commission are anxious to avoid conditions which might enable American manufacturers to combine in such a way that extortionate prices can be charged, and frequent conferences are being held for the purpose of agreeing upon resolutions which will afford American interests protection without placing the commission wholly at the mercy of manufacturers who may attempt to corner the market in commodities most required for use in canal work.

HUDSON POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Hudson, Wis., May 11.—At 2 o'clock yesterday morning burglars effected an entrance into the postoffice at Roberts, dynamited the safe, secured $24 in cash and made their escape undetected.

PRAYER DID NOT AVAIL

Wife of Zion General Overseer Dies at Zion City.

The Elders Prayed But She Had No Medical Attendance.

Chicago, May 11.—Mrs. Harry Cantell, wife of the general overseer of the Zion church in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, died early today in Zion City. For several days the elders of the church offered prayers for the recovery of Mrs. Cantrell. She died without medical attendance, and her infant child survived her but a short time. The coroner's inquest will be held later in the day. Mrs. Cantrell was an English woman, and her home was in London.

THOUSANDS OF ZULUS ON WAY

To Join the Rebel Chief Bambaata for Battle.

Durban, Natal, May 11.—Thousands of Zulus from Chief Kula's kraal are reported to be on their way to join the Rebel Chief Bambaata and colonial troops are being hurried forward to prevent their junction. Chief Kula, who is suspected of disaffection and was recently arrested, was placed in jail at Pietermaritzburg this morning. It is presumed that it was the arrest of this chief which led to the rising of his followers.

Natives captured by the colonial forces report that witch doctors are sacrificing children in order to render the rebels immune from British bullets. Before a battle they kill a girl and concoct "medicine" from her body, with which the witch doctors anoint the warriors under the pretense that it renders them invulnerable to white men's bullets.

MORGAN AND CROMWELL IN HEATED ARGUMENTS.

Washington, May 11.—William Nelson Cromwell of New York, counsel for the Panama Railroad company, was again before the senate committee on interoceanic canals today. He explained in detail his work in buying the minority stock of the railroad for the government, but declined to answer any questions relating to the affairs of the Panama Canal company during the time he acted as counsel for that corporation.

Senator Morgan was the examiner, and he and the witness indulged in heated arguments over the right of the committee to compel answers.

The investigation will be postponed until after the passage of the railroad rate bill.

PAPER TRUST SURRENDERS AND MUST BE DISSOLVED

Withdraws From Government Suit in the Circuit Court.

Judge Sanborn Orders a Decree for the United States.

Witnesses Who Had Refused to Testify Fined $100 Each.

St. Paul, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States government today secured an unconditional surrender in the United States circuit court, before Judge Sanborn, of the paper trust, against which the attorney general began a suit on Dec. 27, 1904, to dissolve a combination between the General Paper company and twenty-three other defendants, on the ground that an agreement had been entered into by the defendants in restraint of interstate commerce.

Attorney Kellogg for the government and Attorney Flanders for the defendants appeared before Judge Sanborn, sitting as a circuit judge, and Mr. Kellogg moved that the mandate from the United States supreme court, affirming the order that the witness must testify, be filed. Judge Sanborn ordered the mandate filed. The witnesses then appeared before the United States examiner and offered to testify. The defendants then withdrew their answers. Mr. Kellogg announced that the government did not care to examine the witnesses, and moved for a decree in favor of the government. Judge Sanborn ordered that the decree be entered for the government for the relief prayed, and that the decree should be settled on June 16. The proceedings before the court and the examiner were then adjourned.

The three witnesses who refusde to testify, namely, C. I. McNair of the Northwestern Paper company, A. C. Bossard of the Itasca Paper company, and B. F. Nelson of the Hennepin Paper company paid into court $100 fine assessed against them for contempt of court in refusing to answer the questions put to them at a former hearing.

Suit was brought by Frank B. Kellogg and James M. Beck, special assistant attorneys general of the United States, on behalf of the United States against the General Paper company and twenty-three paper manufacturing corporations in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan a little over a year ago. The complaint alleged that the defendants, in violation of the provisions of the Sherman act, entered into an agreement, combination and conspiracy with each other to restrain trade and commerce among the several states, and to control, regulate and monopolize said commerce, and that this was accomplished by organizing the General Paper company of Chicago with a capital stock of $100,000 divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each, which stock was divided among the paper manufacturing corporations in the proportion of their average daily output of paper; that each of the corporations thereupon entered into a contract, making the General Paper company its exclusive selling agent. The defendants filed answers, and testimony was taken for several months. Most of the facts showing a combination were elicited from the officers of the various defendant companies. Finally the defendants refused to furnish any further testimony or to answer any questions on the grounds that the testimony would tend to criminate the witnesses and the corporations, and on the ground that the testimony was irrelevant and immaterial. The case went to the supreme court of the United States and was there argued on Jan. 22 in connection with the "tobacco" cases. In both the paper case and the tobacco case the court decided that witnesses were not exempt from answering on the ground that their testimony would tend to criminate the corporations. The supreme court held that the evidence was clearly material, that the bill of complaint charged an unlawful combination and conspiracy and that the testimony tended to show it.

The decision in this case really left nothing for the defendants to do but to submit to judgment and they today appeared in court, withdrew their answers, and thereupon judgment was ordered for the government as prayed in the bill of complaint.

This is a complete victory for the government, and the General Paper company will be compelled to go out of business. The price of paper at the time of this suit was brought was from $2.25 to $2.35 per hundred. The bringing of this suit has already had the effect of reducing the price of paper to about $1.85. The result has been very beneficial to the newspaper publishers throughout the country. Competition will now be restored between the various mills.

On motion of counsel, Judge Sanborn fixed the 16th of June as the day for settling the form of the decree. In the meantime, the costs will be taxed and the examiner will return all of the evidence taken to the court.

The action today, however, ends the litigation and is a finding in favor of the government.

LOOKS LIKE E. MUENTER

Springfield Police Hold Man Because of His Resemblance.

Suspect Says He is B. F. Carr, a High Wire Performer.

Springfield, Ill., May 11.—At the sheriff's office it was learned today that there was found on the person of B. F. Carr, as he called himself, the man arrested last evening on suspicion of being Erich Muenter, the Harvard professor, wanted on a murder charge, no papers or letters of any description. The Boston and Chicago police have not yet been communicated with. He is being held simply because of his close resemblance to the description given of Muenter and the newspaper portraits published of the Harvard professor. Carr made the following statement:

"My name is B. F. Carr, and I was, until a year ago, a high wire performer in a circus, but fell and broke my leg, and since then have been out of employment."

Carr sent a telegram, addressed to Ed Weiss, 215 Fifth avenue, Chicago: "I am held here as the Muenter murderer. Please set the officials right."

Chicago, May 11.—Edward Weiss, to whom Carr is said to have sent a message is assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton detective agency. He said today that he had received no message from Carr, and did not know anything about him.

CONTENTS OF AUDITOR'S VAULT FOUND INTACT.

San Francisco. May 11.—The main vault of the auditor's office has been opened and everything contained therein was found to be intact.

This vault contained all of the valuable papers and books of the auditor's office, including the bonds issued for $17,000,000 for specific permanent improvements, such as school buildings, the acquisition of parks, etc. Besides these all of the official bonds of the present city officials, license tags, books, vouchers, journals, cash books and financial accounts with the city tax collectors, treasurer and state controller and treasurer were found intact.

FOX FINED $100.

Milwaukee, May 11.—President J. D. O'Brien of the American association, today announced that he has fined Capt. William Fox of the Minneapolis team $100 for taking his team off the field at Louisville on April 19. Capt. Fox had been instructed by the owner not to play in case a certain ball was used and he had to obey orders.

TURK MUST MOVE SOON

Has But Little Time Left to Evacuate Egyptian Territory.

New Proposition to Great Britain is Promptly Turned Down.

Constantinople, May 11.—Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, called at the British embassy yesterday and made proposals in regard to the Tabah question, which Ambassador O'Connor unhesitatingly rejected. The pasha was informed that any compromise suggestions were quite unadmissible, and that nothing less than absolute compliance with the British demands would prevent drastic action. The ambassador also warned the minister that time was running short, and counselled him to be under no misapprehension in regard to the determination of Great Britain to enforce the Turkish evacuation of Egyptian territory on the Sinai peninsula and a joint delimitation of the frontier.

Cairo, Egypt, May 11.—The belief is strengthening in official circles here that a satisfactory settlement will be reached in the Tabah boundary dispute between Egypt and Turkey.

FATAL SHOOTING BY HOMESTEADER

In Northern Part of Itasca County—Albin Johnson Arrested.

International Falls, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of a quarrel between two homesteaders living close to Laurel postoffice about twenty miles west of this place, Fred Hemming died yesterday and Albin Johnson, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Connors, is on his way to Grand Rapids where he will be held to answer to the charge of murder.

On Saturday evening both parties returned from Laurel where they had been drinking to some extent throughout the day, and at which place they had some dispute over some trifling matter. Hemming stopped at his home and took supper. After supper he went to the home of Albin Johnson, as he stated, to have it out with him. He entered Johnson's house and immediately renewed the quarrel, and struck at Johnson several times, whereupon Johnson drew his revolver from the mantel and shot him three times. The first bullet entered the forearm, coming out at the elbow. The last bullet entered his abdomen and lodged in his kidneys, inflicting a fatal wound.

Hemming was known to be of a quarrelsome disposition. He came here from Hibbing a few years ago. Johnson has always borne a good reputation and seemed to be a peaceable and industrious citizen and is well thought of by those who knew him.

After the shooting Johnson was arrested and brought before Justice Erickson and bound over to await the action of the grand jury without bonds.

ST. PAUL SAENGERFEST.

Minnesota's Capital Will be the Mecca for Many Thousands.

St. Paul, May 11.—The St. Paul saengerfest success is assured. Never before has so much enthusiasm been shown in any event scheduled for the beautiful capital city of Minnesota.

From length and breadth of the land will come thousands flocking to hear the famous soloists, the great chorus, and the augmented bands and orchestras.

And then they will come to see the big new capitol, the marble palace that cost $4,500,000 with its art treasures and magnificence of space and color. They will come to see the parks, and new structures, and the greater Fort Snelling and to take trips to Minneapolis, Stillwater, White Bear and other beauty spots.

The saengerfest dates have been fixed for July 25-30, and this is perhaps the most beautiful time of the year. The management selected these dates with purpose. It will be held in the big new auditorium which will be dedicated the first day of the saengerfest. It is one of the finest and most spacious buildings of its kind in America and well suited for the saengerfest.

Assurances have already been received that more will attend the St. Paul saengerfest than ever attended in previous years. Hotel accommodations are secured in advance and many hotels have already engaged nearly every room for that week. The committee in charge have, however, secured accommodations for any who may want to come. Information bureaus have been established and the press committee will arrange for anyone who desires accommodations, information or anything else.

The railroads have made a one fare rate for round trips and this in itself assures a big attendance.

STEAM SHOVELS RESUME

Work at All the Mines in the Ely District.

Ely, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steam shovels at all the mines here resumed work this morning after being idle ten days. All the Duluth & Iron Range railroad employes, who were laid off on account of the longshoremen's strike, also resumed work.

START PARK NEXT WEEK

Duluth's White City Will be Completed by July 4.

To be Known as Oatka Park—Officers Are Elected.

An amusement park along "White City" lines will be opened to the public on Park Point July 4, or possibly before, according to the expectations of stockholders of the Duluth Amusement company, which held a meeting last evening at the Commercial club.

The company will be incorporated at once with a capital stock of $100,000, of which $30,000 will be paid up at the start. The whole of the $30,000 will be expended this year, and next season the park equipment will be added to, and every season thereafter, probably, until the enterprise ceases to be a paying proposition.

When the project was first talked of it was decided to spend $50,000 the first year, but plans have been so slow in shaping themselves that it is learned not enough time remains between now and the summer season to erect a scenic railway, which was included in the first plans. So this will not be built until next season. As a scenic railway costs $15,000, the first cost of the park will be reduced just that much. With this one exception the park, which will be quite an elaborate one, will have all the attractions first talked of.

The place will be known as Oatka Park, and will be located a short distance below the pavilion. The following officers were elected last night: President, B. Silberstein; vice president and general manager, C. A. Marshall; secretary, J. P. Metzdorf; treasurer, Whitney Wall; directors, O. C. Hartman, J. M. Gidding, B. G. Segog, John Panton and Herbert Warren.

Everything is in readiness to begin work on the park at once. Attractions are practically assured, and plans for the buildings are already arranged. Thomas Ivey of Minneapolis, who had charge of the construction of Wonderland in that city, will be awarded the contract for building Oatka Park, and it is believed he will begin work next week, rushing the contract through to completion so that July 4 may be the opening day.

No doubt is expressed that the enterprise will be a paying one, and that it will be a good thing for Duluth, by proving an additional attraction to tourists and outsiders in general, bringing many people here who would not otherwise come, and keeping those that do come longer than they would stay otherwise, in many instances.

Among those enthusiastically speaking in favor of the park on a $30,000 basis last night were B. Silberstein, C. A. Marshall, Whitney Wall, J. M. Gidding, I. Freimuth and A. C. Weiss. B. Silberstein presided at the meeting.

WILL GET FIRE PROTECTION

Park Point Civic Club Takes Steps to Get Equipment.

The Park Point Civic club took action last evening which may result in better fire protection for the residents on Minnesota Point. A request will be made of the city to buy a flat car that will carry the fire equipment, and a volunteer company will be organized among the citizens there to fight all fires. If the city refuses to buy the car, the Park Pointers will undertake to raise the necessary funds.

Chief Black of the city fire department has assured the Park Point residents that, while he cannot furnish any men for the Point, he can give them the hose, ladders and other equipment that may be needed, if they can get a car.

The Interstate Traction company has offered to house and operate the car in case of a fire, day or night, free of charge.

All that remains to be done now is to get the car and the taxpayers on Minnesota Point claim that the city certainly owes them the protection that can be had for the expenditure of a few hundred dollars.

Minnesota Point is expected to have water service between June 1 and 15, and the residents are anxious that their fire equipment shall be ready by that time.

B. K. Walker, L. C. Harris and W. H. Bliss were appointed a committee to wait on the city council at the next meeting and urge an appropriation for a car.

Among the other matters discussed by the Civic club last evening was that of the condition of the sidewalks between the canal and the car barn. The members of the board of public works came in for criticism on account of a lack of interest they are alleged to show toward the claims of the Park Pointers. It was asserted that when complaints have been made to the board, an inspector has been sent down, but that when his report was turned in nothing more came of it. The members of the Civic club waxed sarcastic over this treatment and claimed that if the sidewalks out at West Duluth were in as bad condition the Dynamite club would get after Commissioner Sang and something would be done right away.

Biwabik, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the special meeting of the school electors of the Biwabik district held here Tuesday evening it was voted to erect a school building at a cost not to exceed $10,000 at the Miller-Mohawk mine location, in the village of Aurora. The matter of selecting a site was left to the school board. It was also decided to erect a high school building in Biwabik at a cost of from $25,000 to $35,000. A crowd of voters drove over from the Miller and Mohawk mine locations to participate in the voting.

DAMAGE CASE IS ON TRIAL

Heirs of Charles Thuren Sue Contractor—Other Cases.

The trial of the damage action of the heirs of Charles Thuren against George H. Lounsberry, the contractor, was started in Judge Dibell's room yesterday afternoon. The heirs ask $5,000, on account of the death of Thuren, who was killed in a fall from the top of the Masonic Temple, where he was employed in construction work by Mr. Lounsberry.

Thuren is survived by a mother and a sister, and the latter instituted the suit in her capacity as administratrix. She claims that Thuren stepped on a broken or defective timber in the course of his work, and fell to his death. In the complaint the contractor is held to be liable because he did not take proper precautions to protect his workmen.

Trial of the alleged timber trespass case of Fred Merrill against Edward Johnson was started in Judge Ensign's room yesterday, and was adjourned until today to give Johnson an opportunity of producing a witness, by whom he expects to prove that he did not cut timber unlawfully on Merrill's land. Johnson alleges that he was ordered by his employer to cut the timber, and his testimony is corroborated by his wife. Merrill testified to the alleged trespass, and was corroborated by the testimony of Charles Anderson. Oscar Kolb and William Cashin. Mr. Merrill is represented by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell and Mr. Johnson by I. Grettum.

The complaint in the personal injury case of Wilfred Berneche against John W. Hilliard, the contractor, was filed in district court yesterday. The case is scheduled for trial this term. Berneche, who was employed by the contractor last February, claims that while he was at work on the top of some foundations making a connection of steam pipes, a heavy rock that was being hoisted by machinery swung out from the derrick and struck the timber on which he was standing with such force as to cause him to fall to the ground several feet below. He claims that he fell in such a manner as to receive serious injuries to his back and side. Berneche asks $10,000 in compensation for his injuries. He is represented by John J. Jenswold, Jr., and Mr. Hilliard is represented by H. T. Abbott.

NO BUILDING TROUBLE.

Builders, Laborers and Bosses Adjust Differences and Work Proceeds.

The Builders' Laborers' union held a meeting in the Axa block last night and discussed the building situation secretly. After the meeting was over Secretary George Blackwood stated that everything has proved satisfactory to the union and to the builders also. The union demanded an increase from 28 cents an hour to 33 1-3 cents an hour on the basis of an eight and a half hour day, and the master builders granted the advance.

The only question which was likely to cause trouble was the scarcity of men in the union and the master builders objected to running green men in. However this was satisfactorily adjusted and the conditions are all right for this year. Building will therefore go on without interruption.

Jury Convicts Edward Hill.

Edward Hill, accused of cutting August Koho in the arms in a fight in a Lake avenue saloon, was found guilty of assault in the second degree yesterday afternoon. Hill was remanded to jail to await sentence. As he is a young man and this is, as far as the authorities know, his first offense, Hill is likely to get a reformatory sentence. John Loyty, Hill's alleged accomplice, will be tried some time next week.

CITY TREASURER IS SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Newburyport, Mass., May 11.—City Treasurer James V. Felker was arrested last night charged with a shortage in his accounts.

At a session of the municipal court the treasurer was remanded in default of bonds of $10,000 to jail. The shortage is alleged to have been discovered by Mayor Houston, who is cashier of the First National bank. In court, Felkner pleaded not guilty. The alledged shortage is set at from $40,000 to $50,000.

According to Mayor Houston, Felkner has admitted that during the last four years he has negotiated city notes for his own benefit, and has invested the money in mining stocks, expecting to make a profit and return the money to the city. It has been possible for Felker to negotiate the notes, as they required only his own signature and that of Mayor Houston. The latter official added his name to them upon representations of the treasurer, and the fact that no memorandum of them was entered upon the city books has gone undiscovered heretofore.

JOSEPH WAS NOT THERE

Sheehy's Case Against T. J. McKeon is a One-Sided Affair.

Evidence Taken and Court Directed Verdict for McKeon.

Perched over in Wisconsin, out of the jurisdiction of the Minnesota authorities, who would very much like to have him visit Duluth, Joseph Sheehy, the erstwhile prize fighter and employment agent, attempted to conduct his damage case against Assistant City Attorney T. J. McKeon, at long range, and failed.

Through a St. Paul attorney Sheehy filed all his papers in the malicious prosecution case in Ramsey county, but the court there ordered the action removed to the district court of St. Louis county. This move was contrary to Sheehy's plans, for ever since a criminal libel warrant was issued for him in Duluth he has been careful to keep out of the reach of the local officers.

Sheehy sued McKeon for nearly $10,000, claiming that something which he terms his business reputation has been damaged to that extent throughout the state by reason of his prosecution by McKeon.

The trial of the case was set for this morning in Judge Ensign's room, but no Joseph Sheehy put in an appearance. Nobody else was present who had been authorized or who even seemed disposed to take up the prosecution for Sheehy, and the spectators were treated to a spectacle of a case being tried without any plaintiff in the court room. Mr. McKeon insisted that the trial go on and he put up the jury fees amounting to $3. Twelve men were selected to hear the evidence and City Attorney Bert Fesler, who appeared for Mr. McKeon, called his client to the stand.

Mr. McKeon made a brief statement of the events leading up to the present case and on Mr. Fesler's motion Judge Ensign instructed the jury to return a verdict for the defendant. This was done and a number of Mr. McKeon's friends among the attorneys rushed up to him and began congratulating him on the outcome and remarking what a narrow escape he had. The Sheehy case was looked on as a joke and the opportunity was one they would not let get away without having a little fun at the assistant city attorney's expense.

"On the evening of Sept. 20, 1904," said Mr. McKeon, in telling his story, "Sheehy was arrested at the office of the city clerk and locked up on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. The next morning he was arraigned before Judge Windom in the municipal court. Sheehy entered a plea of not guilty and demanded a trial. This was given him. I appeared for the city. He was found guilty and was sentenced by Judge Windom to a term of sixty days in the county jail at hard labor.

"After serving a few days of his term Sheehy secured the legal services of L. C. Harris who got his client out of jail on bond and took an appeal to the state supreme court from the order of the municipal court. No notice of this appeal was ever served on either myself or Mr. Fesler, as is required by law.

"In March, 1905, a little more than six months after the appeal was taken by Mr. Harris I served a notice of dismissal of the appeal on Mr. Harris and a hearing was set on the motion before the supreme court. Before the date of the hearing, however, Mr. Harris became cognizant of the fact that no notice of the appeal had been served according to law and, as he had looked into the case further and come to the conclusion that his appeal had no merits, he stipulated for a dismissal, and an order was made accordingly by the supreme court.

"Sheehy was at liberty at this time and when he heard that the appeal had been dismissed he flew over into Wisconsin where he remained six or eight weeks. I was instructed by Judge Windom to get Sheehy in custody, which I did through a bench warrant issued from the municipal court. Sheehy was then remanded to jail to serve the remaining fifty-four or fifty-six days of his term.

"He next started habeas corpus proceedings, but the writ was discharged and Sheehy was remanded to the sheriff's custody. Sheehy then appealed to the state supreme court from the order of the district court discharging the writ, and secured his release on bail. The supreme court ordered him discharged from custody on the grounds of an error in the record by the clerk of the municipal court. The clerk neglected to state when and where the alleged offense was committed.

"Sheehy accused me of causing his arrest and of prosecuting the action against him, but I did nothing except what I was called on to do in my capacity as assistant city attorney and in the line of my duty."

ORGANIZE LEAGUE.

Baseball Teams From Grade Schools of City Will Play for Trophy.

The Interscholastic Baseball league will be organized this evening, at 5 o'clock.

Already eight teams have entered and it is expected there will be several more enter tonight. It is proposed to form an east and west end league, the winners in each league to play off for the trophy. The games will begin tomorrow afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the boys' cabinet was held last night, the following members being present: Ray Fenton, William Burris, Harwood Sturtevant, David Duncan, Philip Heimbach, Edward Borgen, Sargent McGonagle, Willis Hamblin, N. D. McLeod. Only routine business was transacted.

Describe Camp Life.

Members of the boys' department, with their parents and friends, will be entertained this evening at a stereopticon camp talk. Views of all the camps will be shown, from the first camp, held nine years ago, when twelve boys attended, up to the last, held last year, when there was an attendance of sixty. This will give the parents an opportunity of seeing the way the camp is conducted, and will also give the boys, who have never been there, a chance to see and hear of the good times to be had at camp. The entertainment will be free, and will commence at 8 o'clock.

WILL EMPTY THE FOUNTAINS

Novel Invention of Charles Rigdon May Solve Knotty Problem.

An automatic syphon, invented by Charles Rigdon the plumbing inspector, will probably be used on the drinking founntains, in order to make them meet with the approval of the state livestock sanitary board.

The board has requested that the water be kept shut off this summer, owing to the danger of an epidemic of glanders. The council refused to comply with the request, on the ground that it was unreasonable and that there was no apparent danger of such an epidemic. The aldermen, however, expressed a willingness to aid the board in taking any sanitary measures thought necessary, and directed the board of public works and plumbing inspector to devise some plan that would meet with the approval of the board.

The syphon which was devised by the plumbing inspector, works automatically, and will empty the fountains at stated intervals. This would greatly decrease the danger of contagion, and it will probably be adopted.

DECISIONS FOR ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Several Are Handed Down By the State Supreme Court.

St. Paul, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among a large number of decisions handed down by the state supreme court were the following from St. Louis county:

Adrian Bailey vs. George C. Swallow and Louis J. Hopkins as Swallow & Hopkins. Order of lower court affirmed.

A. D. Reynolds, trustee, vs. Edward Lynch. Order affirmed.

M. Zalk and H. Y. Joseph, co-partners as the Duluth Machinery company, vs. the Great Northern Railroad company, is affirmed.

Mille Lacs county: E. B. Couller vs. the estate of Olive R. Barker, deceased. Order affirmed.

LEGISLATORS ARE ANGRY WITH MORAN.

Boston, May 11.—One hundred members of the Massachusetts legislature appeared at the office of District Attorney Moran today in response to summonses issued by the district attorney who has placed before the grand jury evidence in connection with alleged bribery which was a feature of the defeat of the anti-bucket shot bill. Only twenty-five senators and representatives were detained for examination before the grand jury. Many of them who at first regarded the matter as a joke today denounced Mr. Moran's investigation as an outrage and a serious restriction on Massachusetts and its legislature.

BECHTEL CASE ABOUT READY FOR THE JURY.

Minneapolis, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Final arguments were made today in the case of W. F. Bechtel, former president of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company and the case will go to the jury before night. County Attorney Al J. Smith closed for the state with a careful review of the evidence and the final arguments of the defense occurred this afternoon.

EASILY WIN THIRD GAME

White Sox Make Clean Sweep of Series With Amateurs.

Team Leaves for Hibbing to Get Revenge on Miners.

Krick and Pool of the league team were loaned the all star amateur aggregation yesterday, in an effort to make the game an interesting one, but it was nearly as one sided as the other two games of the series, and the White Sox won by the score of 13 to 4.

Ferguson worked for the leaguers, and allowed but four hits. Krick and Pool also pitched winning ball, but the nine errors back of them made it impossible for them to hold the White Sox down to any presentable score. The seven runs scored in the fourth inning were all unearned, and due to costly erors in both the infield and outfield.

O'Dea was in uniform for the first time since he was laid up in the hospital at Decatur, and showed his old time form on first base, getting two nice singles, one of which was easily good for an extra base, had he cared to make the run for it. Baer, the big left fielder, collected three nice singles. The tabulated score follows:

The team got away for Hibbing this morning, and will open the series of three games with the miners this afternoon. Treadway will oppose Freeman in the box today, and tomorrow either Nornstrom or Ferguson will pitch, while Krick will be used on Sunday.

The Sox are determined to retrieve their lost laurels, and get sweet revenge on the Hibbing team, if it can be done.

HOPPE LOOKS LIKE WINNER

Boy Billiardist in Lead in Big Tournament at Chicago.

Chicago, May 11.—Unless he shows a decided reversal of form, Willie Hoppe, the boy billiardist, will win first prize in the professional tournament being played at Orchestra hall. The four other contestants in the tournament have all met defeat, while Hoppe has won both games in which he has participated.

George Sutton of Canada and Jake Schaefer of Chicago are tied for second place, each having won one and lost one game. George Slosson, winner of the world's championship in the recent tournament in New York, is tied with Louis Cure for fourth place. Slosson holds the high run for the tournament so far —142, made in his game last night with Sutton. Despite this big run, Slosson lost the game, having scored 423 points, when Sutton ran his 500 points. Score:

Sutton—Total, 500; high run, 79; average, 19 6-26.

Slosson—Total, 423; high run, 142; average, 16 7-26.

Jake Schaeffer was given a taste of his own billiard medicine in the afternoon, when Louis Curt ran 110 in the twenty-first inning of their contest, and won the game, 500 to 463. Previous to this, the Chicago expert had outplayed his opponents and looked like a sure winner. The score:

THE SCHEDULE DEAL.

Herald Did Not Break Faith With League in Publishing It.

Fargo and Grand Forks papers are accusing The Herald of breaking faith in the matter of publishing the Copper Country and Northern league schedule.

It has been customary for the newspapers to receive advance copies of the schedule and hold them for a release from the president of the league. In this way all the papers about the circuit publish the schedules simultaneously.

As a matter of fact, The Herald was not the first paper on the circuit to publish the schedule, although it was probably the second. The Daily Mining Gazette of Houghton broke faith, if any of the papers were guilty of the act, and The Herald did not publish the schedule until after copies of the Gazette had been received in Duluth.

After it had thus been made public, there was no alternative but to publish it, and the caustic comments by the Fargo and Grand Forks papers are therefore out of place.

UNITED STATES WARNS PANAMANS

That Any Revolution Interfering With Canal Will be Stopped.

Washington, May 11.—"Revolutionary movements or election troubles in Panama which in any way interfere with work on the canal zone justify interference by the United States in support of the Panama government."

Such is the tenor of the instructions sent to Governor Magoon of the canal zone by Secretary Taft, who also submitted a letter from Secretary Root of the state department setting forth in detail a justification for American interference in cases of disorder in any part of Panama.

This emphatic declaration of the position of the United States, it is believed, will prevent serious trouble at the elections to be held in June. As Secretary Taft makes it clear that any disorder in the republic will hinder the canal work, the letter will be doubly discouraging to opponents of President Amador, who are reported to be planning a movement against him outside of the canal zone, believing that the United States would not suppress any insurrection unless it extends within the zone.

Governor Magoon communicated his instructions to the Panama government yesterday and yesterday Secretary Taft made public both his letter to Governor Magoon and the letter from Secretary Root.

TWO MORE INDIANS DIE FROM FLORIDA WATER.

Rosethorn, Saskatchwan, May 11.—Two more Indians dead and six in a serious condition. This is the latest development in the Florida water tragedy on the Duck Lake Indian reservation.

The wildest excitement prevails and the Indians are terrorized, not knowing who will be the next to succumb.

Coroner Stewart of Rosethorn held an inquest and Mrs. Angoise, wife of one of the dead men, testified that her husband and five others drank one bottle of Florida water. Only one of the party is living now. The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday next.

An inspector acting for the government will search the Indian shacks and Duck Lake stores for the fluid. The stomach of a dead Indian was sent to Dr. Charloton of Regina today to be analyzed.

The Florida water that caused the deaths is said to be one particular brand. Persons are affected with blindness after drinking, which condition remains until death. Those recovering have blind spells when not even light can be distinguished from darkness.

The affair will probably develop into a government investigation, there being no doubt that the fluid was adulterated.

CUBAN CITY BURNED.

Havana, May 11.—Fire in the heart of the city of Pinar Del Rio, yesterday afternoon, swept one entire square and part of another, and destroyed a hotel, several of the leading business houses and some of the better class of residences. The fire could not be checked until several buildings were blown up with dynamite. The loss is estimated at $400,000.

Your Choice of 25 Beautiful Tailored Suits for $20.00

¶ Another of our specially fine offerings in the suit and cloak department.

¶ These suits are among the finest we've had this season.

¶ There's but one reason for this sale—but a few of each kind—we can't get more and these must go.

¶ There are suits of beautiful Panama cloth, in shepherd check patterns, two colorings; a collarless Tuxedo Eton Jacket, trimmed about the neck and on cuffs with black silk, and satin lined. A good $25.00 value anywhere.

¶ Then, there's a line of suits made of a handsome mixture suiting in a quite light shade. The bloused Eton jacket is made with dainty vested effect and trimmed with gilt and fancy braids, and lined with pure white satin.

¶ But why go further—suffice it that they're the best values in suits that have been presented to Duluth women this spring. The skirts show both the full circular and circular gored models and embrace many features in pleats, folds and strappings. They are suits any merchant in Duluth would acknowledge splendid values at $23.50, $25.00, $27.50 and $30.00, and have a style and quality surpassed by none at even those prices.

The Price Saturday is only $20.00

SPRING'S MOST FAVORED COATS

are those of fancy mixtures—plaids shadow checks and plaided effects, tiny mixtures made up in 26 and 45-inch lengths and in sizes for both misses and ladies. Dozens of styles, different in cut and hang, different in material, different in trimmings—many with collars or collar effects of velvet, broadcloth, etc., finished with braids and accentuated by the novel use of dainty buttons. You can't find an equal showing elsewhere—and prices won't compare—$5.98 and up to $18.00.

Hand Bags

Have you money? Yes? Something to carry it in? How would you like an all leather handbag? If you could get a $2.25 bag for about one-third the regular price, you'd take it, wouldn't you? We'll give you your choice of this line of manufacturer's samples—colors and black, all shapes and styles, with latest shape leather handles; some satin, some kid-lined; gilt trimmings; many with coin purses and card cases, and regular values at $1.50 to $2.25. It's a sample line, bought cheap—share the bargain.

Children's Coats and Dresses Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be the proper time for the selection of a jaunty, swell little coat for the little miss. New arrivals and late additions have completed the showing of children's coats.

Either plain box or belted back coats, in plain blues, grays, reds, tans and oxfords, or the handsome little fancy mixtures from the same materials as the stylish coats for ladies.

Some with coat collars, others collarless, trimmed with braids in many ways and gilt and fancy buttons in most attractive and beautifying conceptions.

Coats at $2.98 up to $5.98

Closing out a special line of $2 to $4 coats in two lots, 98c and $1.98 See them.

Something of very special interest to the mothers of tots from 1 to 5 years old.

It's an offering of wash dresses—a special lot given us at a ridiculously little price by a maker from whom we bought several thousands of dollars' worth of children's dresses.

These are made of fancy checked and striped ginghams and plain colored chambrays, and are trimmed with pique straps, embroidery edged and embroidery trimmings. Just the thing for play and house wear for the little toddlers. You couldn't buy such a dress any other where.

Worth 50c for 25c

A full and complete showing of children's summer dresses—all materials and colors—49c and up.

Your Muslin Underwear

May be stylish, too—for there is a quality of style even in the undergarments. They will be if you buy here—and THEY WILL WEAR, and that's important first of all.

Try some of these specials for Saturday:

29c—25 dozen dainty little muslin corset covers, with lace edgings and beadings. Others 39c and up.

75c—15 dozen gowns of muslin and cambric—a dozen different styles—V-shaped, square neck or "slip-overs," plain, tucked, hemstitched or lace and embroidery inserted and trimmed.

$1.19—White Skirts—muslins and cambries, plain tuckings, embroidery ruffles, and insertions, and elegant lace trimmings—10 dozen in this lot—Saturday $1.19.

The Value of a Shoe

is not wholly to be found in the days and weeks it wears before it breaks or comes apart; there's a big part of its value in the fit—the ease and comfort you derive from it. It's essential that this be emphasized in fitting children—and that we do.

NOTE THIS!—We've the largest and the swellest line of footwear for children and infants that you will see in Duluth—ankle ties, top shoes, oxfords, slippers, etc., a full line of canvas shoes. And the prices are the smallest.

LADIES' OXFORDS—in every new shape and style are going by the hundreds. Sold more oxfords than we ever expected to—and we put our expectations high. Come in and see what women tell us is the finest line in town.

A secluded, quiet shoe department—a corps of salesmen who will fit you perfectly.

Rare Values in Handsome Lingerie Waists.

We want you to know what things are possible with a dollar and a quarter—or half. In white waists the possibilities are large—surprisingly large. We would naturally expect to sell such values as these at, well, about a half more—if it were not for the fact that we got a special price concession when we bought an immense quantity.

These waists are all of lawn—soft, sheer, dainty—they're new, crisp and fresh as can be. Some are plainly tucked or pleated, others have insertions of lace and embroidery; many have lace and embroidered panels, set in with close tucked effects—not a few are all-over embroidered designs. The variety very great—every sort of waists for every sort of taste. The entire lot on sale Saturday morning—8 o'clock.

98c

Waists of the simpler sort elegantly, but unassumingly tailored.

$1.25

$1.49

(On sale in the Waist Section—Second floor.)

Trunks and Traveling Bags

STATE PENSIONS

For Thirteen Who Helped to Quell Indian Outbreak in 1862.

St. Paul, May 11.—Adjt. Gen. F. B. Wood announced the names of thirteen persons who have been awarded state pensions for participation in quelling the Indian outbreak at New Ulm in 1862. There are a number of other applicants and while many of them will be turned down, there are many more who will be entitled to pensions. The pensions are given under an act passed by the legislature of 1905, and those who prove up will receive $12 per month from Jan. 1, 1906, until the end of their lives. Those whose applications have been granted are: Charles Wagner, Albert Held, Ernest Brandt, Heinrich Maier, Alois Palmer, New Ulm; George Stabler, Sauk Center; Victor Reike, Franklin; Nathan Richardson, Little Falls; Joseph Walker, Blakeley; Moses Mireau, Ortonville; August Rieke, George Reike, Fairfax; John H. Thomas, Morton; George D. Bassett, Brieelyn; John Ipps, St. Paul; Floyd H. Hatcher, Princeton; Ed Smith, St. Peter; William H. Hatcher, Princeton; Charles Magnuson, Litchfield.

ROBBERS SURROUNDED.

Kamloops, B. C., May 11.—The robbers who held up the Imperial limited are surrounded in the woods, near Campbell's meadow, southwest of Kamloops. Sheriff Wood sent a messenger to town last night for more Indians to assist in the capture. The messenger declares there is no chance for the robbers to escape, as there are more than 100 men in the posse.

VICIOUS ROOSTER

Attacks Three-Year-Old Child, Who Will Lose Sight of One Eye.

St. Paul, May 11.—Elizabeth, the 3-year-old daughter of Professor John Hartagan, will lose the sight of an eye, the result of an attack on her by a vicious rooster near her home.

The fowl was approaching the house and the child ran to the sidewalk and tried to frighten it away. The rooster attacked the child, flying in her face and tearing her face with its spurs. The claws penetrated the child's eyes.

When her parents came to her rescue, the child was bleeding from several lacerations.

Last night it was stated at the hospital that the sight of the left eye is lost and that the little girl was in a serious condition from shock and pain. The father of the girl is a professor in St. Thomas college.

AFFAIRS ARE SETTLED.

Conditions and Stockholders of Insolvent Company Reach an Agreement.

A compromise has been effected between the stockholders of the insolvent National Home Investment company and Jacob Schober and other creditors, all claims being fully satisfied and settled by the payment of small considerations to each of the creditors. Judge Dibell has approved of the settlement and Receiver C. B. Miller has been discharged.

The National Home Investment company started business with a proposition to furnish homes to its policyholders on the installment plan. After a number of persons had paid installments towards homes the company got into financial straits and sold out to the United States Realty company. The policyholders objected to the transfer and brought suit to recover the money they had paid in. The company was insolvent and the court ordered that the stockholders should be held liable to the judgments in proportion to the amount of stock they held.

SERVICE SUSPENDED.

Broken Wheel Holds Up Lakeside Cars for More Than Two Hours.

For nearly two hours last evening, the Lakeside car service was suspended, as the result of a broken car wheel.

One of the cars broke down at Fortieth avenue east about 7:15 o'clock, and the obstruction was not removed until after 9 o'clock. In the meanwhile many residents of the suburbs were compelled to walk to the city.

GOVERNMENT TO CHANGE METHOD

Will Buy Projectiles for the Navy in Open Market.

Washington, May 11.—Shells and projectiles for the navy department will, after June 30, 1906, be purchased by the bureau of ordnance, in the open market instead of as is now the practice, in secret markets, from firms engaged in the manufacture of those articles. This change was brought about through the efforts of the chairman of the appropriations committee, Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, who offered an amendment to the naval appropriation bill directing that the secretary of the navy shall advertise for proposals for shells and projectiles so that all the firms engaged in their manufacture may have an opportunity to compete. Much time was spent considering enlistments in the navy and the failures of recruiting officers to properly enforce the law as to minors. An amendment offered by Mr. Kelliher of Massachusetts was adopted prohibiting naval recruiting officers from enlisting seamen, ordinary seamen or apprentices unless their application is accompanied by a certificate of birth and written evidence other than the applicant's own statement that he is of the required age by naval regulations.

The debate on this amendment extended over much of the session and at times grew decidedly animated and a bit acrimonious.

After defeating amendments designed to enlarge the Washington, D. C., navy yard, and the yard at Pensacola, Fla., the house, at 5:15 p. m., adjourned.

CARDINALS

Called on to Explain Why They Attended White's Dinner.

Rome, May 11.—As a sequel to the presence of four cardinals at the dinner given by Ambassador White in honor of Archbishop Ireland, April 25, Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college, who by virtue of his rank, is entitled to direct matters of ceremony among his brother cardinals, has written a letter to each of the four cardinals, Vincezo Vannutelli, Satolli, Mathieu and Martinelli, asking for an explanation of their presence at a function given by a diplomat accredited to the quirinal. The letter characterizes the presence of cardinals at such functions as unfitting. Some of the cardinals have replied to the letter, but at least one has not done so.

On May 8, at the instigation of Cardinal Oreglia, all cardinals living in Rome received a circular note recalling to their attention the propriety of observing the rules regarding their relations with personages connected with the Italian court. One of the four cardinals who, since the issuance of the letter has been received by the pope, states that Pope Pius said that they were right in accepting Ambassador White's invitation to the dinner in honor of Archbishop Ireland, but that the note had to be sent to prevent possible future infractions of an established policy of the Vatican.

SHADOWS OF TREES THE CAUSE OF BLINDNESS.

London, May 11.—Two hundred and thirty people employed at a lace factory at Long Eaton, near Nottingham, have a remarkable grievance.

Opposite to the factory is a cemetery, in which there are several ornamental trees, and the workpeople complain that they are losing their eyesight owing to the "blinking" light, caused when the branches of the trees wave in the wind.

One old man declares that he is nearly blind, and it is impossible for him to see to do his work on a windy day.

The grievance is not a new one. In 1898 it was raised, and a poll of the ratepayers was taken on the question whether the trees should be cut down. The vote was in favor of the trees being allowed to remain.

RARE NERVE EXHIBITED

By Prisoner Who Escapes Jail Through Sheriff's Residence.

Indiana Man of Many Exploits Who Leads Charmed Life.

Richmond, Ind., May 11.—By an exhibition of rare ingenuity and nerve John Locke, the "Hoosier Tracey," escaped from the county jail and his whereabouts are unknown.

Locke was arrested three weeks ago in San Francisco, after a search covering more than a year, and brought back to Richmond by Superintendent Bailey of the local police department, who made the journey to the Pacific coast expressly for this purpose. Grand larceny was the charge against Locke and the authorities claim to have other and more serious charges pending.

Barton J. Bell, awaiting trial on a burglary charge, was a party to the conspiracy to break jail. Three saws, two cold chisels and a monkey wrench had been spirited into the jail recently and had found their way to the cell of either Locke or Bell. Some time after midnight Locke and Bell sawed their way out of their cells and then proceeded to cut the tops off the bolts that held down to the floor an iron ventilator directly in front of Locke's cell. Removing this ventilator, an opening into the base of the jail smokestack was gained.

Locke entered, carrying with him an improvised rope made of bed clothing. He climbed through the smokestack to the top, thirty feet. Tying his improvised rope about the top of the stack Locke lowed himself to the jail roof, fifteen feet below.

Even then escape was possible only by the utmost daring, but Locke was equal to the emergency. Entering a broken skylight, Locke passed downward into the jail—into that part of the structure occupied by Sheriff Smith and his family as a residence. Passing through the hallway, close to the rooms of the sleeping sheriff and other members of the household, Locke went down the front stairs. The rest was easy. Opening the front door, he walked out to freedom.

Bell, who attempted to follow Locke, missed his footing as he was climbing through the smokestack and fell back ten feet. He was not seriously injured, but his nerve was gone, and instead of attempting the trick again he returned to his cell, and was found asleep in his bunk.

Locke leads a charmed life, according to the police officers. Five years ago while incarcerated in the city jail on a grand larceny charge, Locke escaped by an ingenious trick. He obtained possession of the jailor's keys, unlocked the door of his cell, and replaced the keys on the wall where they belonged. The next morning, when the jailer entered and left the outside door swinging open, Locke darted from his cell, rushed through the outside door and closed and locked it, thus making the turnkey a prisoner.

A year ago Big Four railroad detectives had evidence that Locke and his cousin, Harry Harris, had been looting freight cars. Later it was asserted that Harris had done the actual stealing, but that Locke had assisted him in taking $2,000 worth of the booty to Hagerstown. A half dozen officers from Richmond went to Locke's home at Hagerstown for the purpose of arresting both Locke and Harris, who were known to be at home. As the officers drove up to the house Locke and Harris emerged from the rear door, levelling Winchester rifles at the officers. They escaped to nearby woods without having fired a shot.

Two months ago Locke was located in Canifornia.

Locke's strongest characteristic is his supreme nerve, which never yet has failed him. His great love for his wife and children is also manifest at all times. He has never failed to care for them during the five years that he has been constantly pursued.

The officers believe that somebody was waiting for Locke outside of the jail walls and assisted him in getting out of the city. He left the jail clad only in trousers and shirt. A reward of $50 was offered for his capture.

HUNDREDS MEET UNDER ONE VINE

Largest Grapevine in World Yields 24,000 Pounds One Year.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 11.—The garden-like cove known as the Carpinteria valley, half-encircled by a picturesque range of the Santa Ynez mountains, lies in lyre shape by the great sea whose tides smite the strand into ceaseless symphonies. In this valley stands the world's gratest egrapevine, a wonder of its kind acknowledged by everyone fortunate to pay it a visit. Santa Barbara county is entitled to distinction for the production of thre giante vines, among which "la Vina Grande" at Carpinteria easily holds the first place as to size and fruitage.

In the Montecito valley, ten miles to the northwest, two out of this peerless trio have been grown. One was removed to the Centennial exhibition in Philadelphia, in which city it remains on public exhibition. The other died a few years ago, and its trunk was placed on exhibition in the Chamber of Commerce in Santa Barbara. Each of these two attained only two-thirds the magnificent proportions of the one now thriftily growing at Carpinteria.

Sixty-four years ago, a Spanish woman, Joaquin Lugoda Ayala, planted a small twig of the Mission grape. She watched and tended it with jealous care through its early growth, and in later years kept it neatly trellised and trimmed. Some twenty years ago the vine was purchased with a plot of ground by Jacob Wilson, who has since deeded it further compass by keeping it carefully pruned. Its present measurements, however, are by no means uninteresting. At the ground the giant trunk measures 9 feet 9 inches in circumference. Five feet above the ground it has a girth of 7 feet 11 inches. At a height of six feet the trunk branches into five divisions. The branchs have a combined circumference of 14 feet 11 inches, the smallest measuring 2 feet and the largest 4 feet 3 inches. Within a radius of 18 feet from the trunk there are 29 subdivisions or runners, each measuring from 20 to 22 inches in circumference, together with countless smaller branches. The longest runner at present reaches the enormous distance of 76 feet.

The trellis, which is entirely overspread, is 100 by 110 feet in dimensions, embracing an area of approximately one-fourth of an acre. A company of 500 people are said to have at one time found shade beneath the umbrageous branches.

The vine is still of healthy growth, and, if permitted to do so, bids fair to further enlarge itself by many square rods. The largest crop ever yet actually weighed out was ten tons, in 1895. This does not include miscellaneous distributions to visitors and friends of the proprietor. A common estimate of the entire yield was 24,000 pounds. The larger clusters are reported to have weighed nine to ten pounds each. Various exposition associations have tendered handsome sums for the possession of this queenly giant, but so far its proprietor has declined all offers for its removal from the virgin spot of its Spanish planting, where the gentle breezes of the sea may still whisper among its leaves as in the days when Spanish lovers met to woo and be wooed beneath the tender boughs of the young "Vina Grande."

OLD LAW BOOKS BRING BIG PRICE

Uncle Sam Chief Bidder at Sale of Attorney's Library.

Boston, May 11.—Prices ran high at Libbey's auction room duirng the sale of the law library of the late George A. Leary, an attorney of this city. The federal government was the biggest bidder, paying $2,000 for four musty old tomes.

A volume containing the acts of the South Carolina assembly, 1738 to 1751, bound in sheepskin, brought $730. It was bought for the library of congress at Washington.

Another volume of acts of the assembly, from 1752 to 1764, was also bought for congress and brought $700. A volume of acts in the same state during the revolution, and containing resolutions of indignation, dated 1768 to 1783, was also captured for the congressional library at $100.

Those declared guilty of treason were dealt with in another volume, bearing the dates 1766-1788, which went to the same library for $500. Some of the books are badly mouse-eaten.

BURGLAR WHO FAVORS PHYSICIANS' OFFICES.

Princeton, Mo., May 11.—A burglar, who seems to favor physicians' offices and who does not lack nerve, even when caught in one of the offices, visited Dr. Stacy, not to seek their professional services, but to practice his profession on them.

When S. F. Brown, who takes care of the office of Dr. Bristow, came to the office, about 6:30 a. m., he found a stranger in the office. The stranger greeted Brown cordially.

"Good morning. It's early, isn't it? Where is the doctor, please?" the stranger asked, with a smile.

"How did you get in?" asked Brown.

"I found the door open," was the reply.

After a few minutes' conversation the stranger said he was going to look for the doctor. When he left Brown noticed that the outer door of the safe was open and apparently the stranger had inspected the contents.

Dr. Stacy found his office in disorder. Several articles had been stolen, and he estimates his losses at about $75. As the entrance in both cases seems to have been effected by skeleton keys, it is believed that the same burglar visited both places.

WOMAN HORSEWHIPS DOCTOR IN PUBLIC.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 11.—Dr. I. M. Belkowsky, whose offices are in a fashionable apartment house, was publicly horsewhipped by Mrs. Rebecca W. Bonhard, near his residence.

Mrs. Bonhard is the secretary of a furniture company, her husband, A. M. Bonhard, being the president. She is a beautiful brunette, about 30 years old, and the mother of one child. Dr. Belkowsky is about 48, and the father of a family.

Mrs. Bonhard says she whipped the physician because he had been forcing his attentions upon her, and added:

"My husband called Dr. Belkowsky to our house, and, after upbraiding him, gave him a good whipping and kicked him out of doors. I then determined to punish him myself."

HUSBAND IS KILLED WITH ELEVEN BULLETS.

Paris, May 11.—Shortly after midnight a woman went to the police station in the Rue de Paris, at St. Germain en Laye, and gave herself up for the murder of her husband, a man named Leon Binet.

They sent to the address the woman had mentioned and found M. Binet lying on the bed dead. He had been shot eleven times. On the mantelpiece was a small revolver with five chambers discharged, and standing neatly in a row were six more empty cartridges.

The woman said her husband was extremely jealous and after numerous quarrels had told her that she must leave the house as he was tired of her.

When he had gone to bed she took the revolver from a drawer in his desk, and went upstairs and shot him. He raised himself on his arm and endeavored to speak to her, but she emptied the six chambers in him and then left the room to reload the revolver, and returning fired five more shots into his body.

OBJECTS TO CRITICISMS

Ensign Wolverton of the Salvation Army Replies to Solenberger.

Says the Minneapolis Charity Worker is Not Telling Truth.

Local Salvation Army officers are incensed at the criticisms of the organization in a speech before the thirty-third national conference of Charities and Corrections, in Philadelphia, by Edwin D. Solenberger, general manager of the Associated Charities of Minneapolis.

Mr. Solenberger was very caustic in his criticisms of the methods in use by the Salvationists. He declared that their relief work was not carried on properly and their statistics incorrect and incomplete. In speaking of Mr. Solenberger's statements, Ensign George Wolverton, who is in charge of the local corps of the Army, said today:

"Mr. Solenberger is mistaken and I am sure that he will be unable to back up any of his assertions in a tangible way. The Salvation Army's relief and other work in Minneapolis is well managed and very extensive and Mr. Solenberger was prompted by jealousy in presenting his paper to the Charities and Corrections convention.

"Many persons have been helped in Minneapolis who complained against Mr. Solenberger's methods of conducting the Associated Charities in that city. He sits at his desk, draws a large salary and criticizes the honest and effective efforts of others.

"More than $4,000 is spent every year by the Salvation Army for relief work in Minneapolis. This does not include the turkey dinners that are given on holidays.

"He says that the Army does not have any proper system of carrying on its relief work and that it is poorly organized. I think that the Salvation Army relief work in Minneapolis is as well organized as any in the country. Big concerns everywhere have often complimented the officers of the Army for their way of carrying on a work that is so involved and trying.

"When a man, woman or child is given assistance, complete data concerning the person is filed in envelopes made for the purpose and the whole kept on record. Blanks are filled out which when complete give all necessary information. The name is taken, the residence, nationality, length of residence, vocation, number of children, age, parents, brothers and sisters, amount of property or money, if any, amount of rent paid, where relief had been received before, nearest telephone number, cause of application, many other items and remarks. The slip is signed by the regular inspector, of which there are several in Minneapolis.

"Everything is kept track of, and yet Mr. Solenberger says that the Army statistics are not reliable and are incomplete. Every corps in the United States is obliged to make a complete report to the national offices of the society every three months. The Salvation Army is incorporated, and everything is done on a business-like basis.

"Mr. Solenberger says that it is a hard matter for people to gain access to the books and statements of the Army. That is not true. Anyone can examine our books and statements at any time.

"He declares that the Salvation Army lodging houses are often unclean, and not the havens of rest for the poor and the homeless that they pretend to be. He says that one has been closed by health officers. Let me say that very strict rules are enforced in all of the Army's lodging houses. No man who applies for sleeping quarters is allowed to go to bed dirty. All must bathe before they are allowed to sleep in our beds.

"In most cities the Army maintains a sort of store, where second hand goods of all kinds are sold for a few cents. A man can be clothed from head to foot in second hand goods for about $1.50. Many poor people hesitate about accepting such things outright, and low prices are put on them, within the reach of all who need them. The receipts from these very often do not pay the expense of maintaining the distributing station.

"As for information regarding the financial condition of the Salvation Army, Mr. Solenberger could ascertain such at any of Dun or Bradstreet's offices."

Ensign Wolverton was engaged in the Salvation Army's relief work in Minneapolis before coming to Duluth.

RAILROADS

MUCH MONEY FOR REPAIR

Northern Pacific Spending About $400,000 for Improvements Here.

Lack of Material Delays Work on the Lumber Docks.

A party of officials of the traffic department of the Northern Pacific road arrivad in the city on a special train from Ashland last night about 9 o'clock and left early this morning for Staples. Neither President Howard Elliott nor Second Vice President Hannaford were in the party, which was on an inspection tour.

The officials are visiting different points along the line, and their coming here is said to have no special bearing on the Northern Pacific improvements in progress at this point. The road is spending in the neighborhood of $400,000 in improvements in Duluth this year, including the new and repair work and small improvements to the yards. Work of rebuilding dock No. 5 is progressing in good shape, and the job will be completed by July 1, it is expected.

It will be a longer time before the new lumber dock on Rice's Point is finished. Material for construction is slow in arriving, but as soon as it is all on the ground work on the dock will be rushed, and it is believed the structure will be in readiness for use by Aug. 1. Much of the material is coming from Pacific coast points.

South Shore Folder.

The Duluth South Shore & Atlantic road, under direction of Mart Adson, general passenger agent, is preparing a new folder, which will be ready for distribution by June 1. It will be one of the most convenient folders in existence, from the traveler's standpoint, in that it will show exactly the connections and time between Atlantic and Pacific ocean points, via the South Shore and foreign lines. The folder is attractively arranged, with a cover design of red, white and green, making a combination that is pleasing to the eye.

Railroad Notes.

At noon yesterday the new depot of the Great Northern at Seattle was opened for traffic. It is said to be a beautiful building, three stories in height, the first of granite and the other two of brick, occupying a space 330 by 135 feet, and surmounted with a tower which reaches a height of 240 feet. The trains approach the depot through a tunnel.

W. L. Seeley, contracting freight agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway company, has resigned his position in order to enter the St. Paul sales department of the M. A. Hanna Coal company.

Railroad Personals.

R. B. Jones of Madison, Wis., traveling passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, is in the city today. He succeeds G. L. A. Thomson in the Duluth territory. The latter will hereafter visit Canadian points instead of coming to Duluth.

W. L. Hathaway of the Rock Island, better known as "Baptist Bill," was in the city yesterday.

E. R. Porch, traveling passenger agent of the Erie, is in the city.

M. M. Hubbert, formerly passenger agent for the Great Northern in Duluth, left for Minot, N. D., last night to take up his new duties as city ticket and passenger agent.

TREASURER NOT LIAB_E.

Washburn, Wis., May 11.—In a decision just handed down in the state supreme court, the decision of the circuit court that Nels Lee, former treasurer of the town of Washburn, and his bondsmen were liable for $8,000 and interest for about five years, has been reversed.

The case grew out of an order which was contended to have been illegally issued by the town board for the purpose of securing frontage in this city for the Northern Pacific Railway company.

At a public meeting held about six years ago, the citizens voted to give the Northern Pacific $10,000 for frontage if the road would buy the old "Battle Ax" line and come to this city. The "Battle Ax" road had cost the citizens of the county $180,000 in aid bonds, and no benefit had been received from it. The road was about to be torn up and sold as scrap steel, had the Northern Pacific not purchased it.

The order for the $10,000 was issued by the town board and cashed by F. T. Yates at the local banks, and the money taken to St. Paul and delivered to the railroad company. Some $2,000 was returned, and the balance taken out of the treasury. After the city was incorporated, the town of Washburn brought suit against the former treasurer and his bondsmen for the $8,000 and interest, contending that the order was illegal and that the treasurer had no right to take the money out of the public funds.

The decision just made holds that F. T. Yates and the banks that cashed the order are liable for the amount. It is thought the case will be dropped, as it has cost the town of Washburn a large sum of money.

TIRED OF LIFE AWFUL SUFFERING

From Dreadful Pains From Wound on Foot—System All Run Down After Six Months' Agony—Not Able to Work—Completely Cured in Two Weeks

MIRACULOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Words cannot speak highly enough for the Cuticura Remedies. I am now seventy-two years of age. My system had been all run down. My blood was so bad that blood poisoning had set in. I had several doctors attending me, so finally I went to the hospital, where I was laid up for two months. My foot and ankle were almost beyond recognition. Dark blood flowed out of wounds in many places, and I was so disheartened that I thought surely my last chance was slowly leaving me. As the foot did not improve, you can readily imagine how I felt. I was simply disgusted and tired of life. I stood this pain, which was dreadful, for six months, and during this time I was not able to wear a shoe and not able to work.

"Some one spoke to me about Cuticura. The consequences were I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies of one of my friends who was a druggist, and the praise that I gave after the second application is beyond description; it seemed a miracle, for the Cuticura Remedies took effect immediately. I washed the foot with the Cuticura Soap before applying the Ointment and I took the Resolvent at the same time. After two weeks' treatment my foot was healed completely. People who had seen my foot during my illness and who have seen it since the cure, can hardly believe their own eyes."

REFORM PREACHER SUED FOR DAMAGES.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 11.—A suit for $20,000 damages has been filed against Rev. B. F. Crissman, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, by Mrs. Elva J. Nichols, for alleged injuries to her business reputation, credit and good name.

The suit grew out of a visit the pastor and detectives made in the neighborhood of Mrs. Nichols' residence. She declares that without any warrant the pastor and the police invaded her house, making a search and maliciously injuring her reputation thereby.

Rev. Dr. Crissman says: "I have done my duty as I saw it. I have tried to serve the interests of civic righteousness. This is a great cause, worthy of our noblest efforts. I have had no malice toward any one and have sought steadfastly to conserve the best interests of society."

Mrs. Nichols alleges that the minister said she was running an improper resort, which, she states, is a scandalous and vile accusation. She sues for $20,000 actual damages and $10,000 punitive damages.

PROBLEM OF ESTHETICS

Is Solved by a Close Observance of Nature's Methods.

Secret of Beauty Lies in Gauzy Folds of Veil.

Paris, May 11.—"That a pretty woman becomes prettier when half masked; that a pleasing figure is the more pleasing when dimly perceived, and that whatever in creation is attractive gains in attractiveness by being shrouded, is the paradox of the veil. How it comes that figures in clouds of floating white grow delicious and winsome is a problem of esthetics the solving of which is interesting."

To demonstrate this proposition La Vie Heureuse prints the photos of sundry unidentified Paris beauties whose charms are hidden or heightened by the mystery of the veil.

"People will tell you that the veil is pretty like all half-truths," La Vie Heureuse goes on. "A legend half reveals facts and half conceals them; that is why it is poetic. The veil is woman's legend.

"Decorators know this well and hold a transparent veil before living pictures. In this gentle wrapping, this Correggian softness, the eye has to reconstruct lines it does not see. It is by such work of the spectator that the miracle is done.

"Eyes which gaze upon a young woman are always somewhat poetic. Before grasping the image, they complete it in beauty. And upon the eternal play of forces of nature is founded the artifice of the veil.

"The poetry of the veil is likewise an effect of nature, which loves scarfs. Observe that the fairies always bear them, and the fairies learned the secrets of costume in the lessons of the dawn of the twilight, of the rivers and of the forests. The elves of the Moor invented muslin, which they made before the day of snowy opera cloaks.

"All matutinal nature is enveloped in white veils. Every sort of thing is doubly and trebly wrapped like a precious keepsake. The amorous sun unwraps them and is busy all the morning doing so. It is not alone the summits of the mountain that he must unpack, and when one searches closely there are found in hollows bits of cotton wool he overlooked.

"Woman imitates nature when she wears a hat made of three twisted wires, a rose and 200 yards of silk gauze. She returns to the universal order which makes her so affecting.

"Women do as skilful painters do. Beauty is essentially harmony and simplicity. The proximity of all those clouds simplifies the features and harmonizes the complexion in reflecting it. The explanation is not very poetic, but it is useful. It is the same wonder which is wrought at eventide, when all details are effaced and nature assumes such strange beauty.

"In the veil the face takes on the charm it should have at the beginning of night, and the brilliancy of its color is intensified.

"Everything being simplified, the eyes, as the painters say, assume the most importance; while, on the other hand, the mouth is dissolved and absorbed in the grace of a new smile. And that is why you are pretty.

"The veil itself is beautiful because of its classic folds, its suppleness, its shining light and its luminous shade. It creates an atmosphere, an illumination. It has an air delicate and warm, voluptuous to the eye and the touch. It rivals in delicacy the flesh, the lost in it, seems to caress it. It excites jealousy, and, agreeable to the sight, it inspires a desire to run off with it—that is why it is charming."

CREDIT

No Cash Store on Earth Can Undersell Us

Stop and think—just for one minute—Can you think of any reason why we cannot sell on credit at cash store prices?

You know, of course we are manufacturers of clothing—that we own and operate 58 stores. You know that when we sell clothing direct from our factory that there is no middleman to get a rake off. You know that when we buy Hats or Millinery or Shoes for 58 stores that manufacturers are so glad to get our business that they quote us prices much lower than they quote a man who is running a single store or even six stores.

Now you know the reason why we can and do sell on credit at cash store prices. Then what are you going to do? Are you going to pay cash for clothing when you can buy here at cash prices and pay in such small payments that you will not miss the money?

Did you ever hear of a business man paying cash when he could have 90 days at the same price.

Learn from the business man—buy here on credit—pay at your own convenience. We don't want any security—your promise to pay is as good as gold.

WEST END

MAN KILLED ON NEW DOCK

Martin Sether Drops Thirty-Eight Feet to His Death.

Was Loftman Employed on Building of New Ore Dock.

A man named Martin Sether was so badly injured Wednesday afternoon while working on the building of the new ore dock at Thirty-fourth avenue, that he died in less than an hour after. The body is now at the undertaking rooms of Durkan & Crawford awaiting the arrival of the dead man's brother from Ashland, who will dispose of the remains.

Sether was loftman in a raising crew and was engaged in raising timbers to the top part of the new dock which is being built by Barnett & Record. It is claimed that he did not watch very closely where he was going and stepped on the loose, overhanging end of a plank. The plank tipped and both it and Sether went down. The man fell about thirty-eight feet, struck the lower platform of the dock and bounced off into the bay. He was fished out alive and was rushed for a hospital, but died shortly after reaching it. His injuries were principally of an internal nature.

Sether was 23 years old and single. His only known relative was the brother in Ashland, who has been sent for.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

West End Organization Will Meet to Discuss Public Matters.

The West End Commercial club will meet this evening at Sloan's hall. Just what the club will take up for discussion is not known as yet, but it has a variety of subjects for its regaling. Its agitation has secured a temporary improvement of West Michigan street by having the mud holes filled up with crushed rock and it seems probable that a fairly good roadway will result.

The club some time ago took up the matter of connecting roads as far as the city limits and a little beyond, connecting with the Hermantown and other county roads, and as this is still a live issue it may be talked over. The city crematory matter may be brought up again. It was the subject of much discussion at the last meeting and it is believed will be resumed tonight.

RATHER SLOW WORK.

Time Made on Paving This Week Not So Fast.

Since last Tuesday Contractor Hugh Steele has not made such rapid progress on the paving of West Superior street as he had previously done. Last Tuesday night he was into the block in front of the Adams school, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues west. He is still in that block, and the work in it has not progressed much further than had been accomplished at the first of the week.

The heavy rock is already being laid between Thirteenth and Fifteenth avenues west as the basis for the Telford macadam which will be put in there, and finer rock is being spread along ahead of the work being done on the tar macadam.

West End Shortrails.

Fred Ketchum, who was laid off from the Duluth & Iron Range road because of the marine strike, is working as clerk at the Esmond hotel.

Fred How is down from Two Harbors, waiting for orders to return to work, his job having been sacrificed to the marine strike.

If you are in need of medicine you need the best, go to the Lion Drug store.

George Bell has gone back to work on the Northern Pacific after a two-months' vacation.

There is a possibility of Mac McNulty and Hank Schmidt going into the undertaking business at the West end. Mr. McNulty has quit the Northern Pacific, by which he was employed.

Frank Doherty of the Esmond is quite sick.

Mrs. M. Calmodine has gone to Stillwater, to be present at the funeral of her mother.

John Frenchier has returned from Port Arthur, Ont., where he went to bury his sister's body.

After being closed up a day or two to rearrange stock, R. R. Forward & Co. opened their Nineteenth avenue store yesterday and enjoyed a great rush.

A party for old friends will be held at the home of A. M. Hopkins, 2127 West Second street, next Tuesday evening.

WILL SELL AT BARGAIN

In lump or single, the following—as I am leaving the city:

Nicest corner in West end, 26th avenue west and Third street.

40 acres of good farming land three miles from city limits, on Hermantown road.

Other city real estate. Information on request.

Am closing out my tailoring stock—big reduction on everything in the house—fit and material guaranteed.

It will pay you to investigate these offers.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Dockstader's Minstrels, also tomorrow afternoon and evening.

DOCKSTADER'S MINSTRELS.

One of the numbers in the program of Lew Dockstader's minstrel show is one that will easily appeal to lovers of music. When the great singing contingent are given the stage to themselves, while they render a number of the old-time sweet songs that were the delight of our fathers and mothers when we came among them. There is a simplicity of melody and sentiment in the songs sung in the old days that is not to be found in the coon songs and hothouse ballads of the present day. This number in itself is an attraction for everyone who has any reverence for the traditions of older days, and are fond of yielding to the charm and delight of sweet singing. This touch of sentiment in the veritable hurricane of fun supplied by Dockstader's minstrels is a pleasant treat, and will appeal most potently to all who hear Dockstader's minstrels when they appear at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow evening.

FRANK LONG COMPANY.

The Metropolitan opera house will reopen Sunday evening with an elaborately staged production, "Wedded But No Wife," by the Frank E. Long Stock company, which will remain there for a week, producing four different plays. The company is headed by Frank E. Long and Miss Nana Sullivan. All of the company's productions will be clean, wholesome affairs, and it is expected that ladies will form a large part of the audiences which see them. No smoking will be permitted at any performance during the week. The bill for Monday evening will be "Wedded But No Wife;" Tuesday and Wednesday, "Among the Hills;" Thursday and Friday, "Lost and Won," and Saturday afternoon and night, "The Sign of the Crucifix." Specialties will be introduced between the acts. Popular prices will prevail and there will be the usual matinees.

BUCKMAN IS BUSY.

Congressional Fight in Sixth District Promises to be Warm.

St. Paul, May 11.—Congressman Buckman made preparation yesterday to file notice of his candidacy for re-election to congress from the Sixth district. He made a flying trip from Washington and established temporary headquarters at the Merchants. A number of his henchmen were on the ground to confer with him and some tall figuring was done as to the outlook of the situation. N. H. Ingersoll, postmaster at Brainerd, was prominent among those present and it is rumored that steps have been taken to organize the district. A large number of telegrams were sent out by Buckman to the effect that "there would be fighting all along the line" and there is every evidence that the Sixth district will see a congressional fight as warm as any ever waged in the state.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Program for Next Week's Meeting is Now Complete.

State Engineer G. W. Cooley and Others Will Deliver Addresses.

The program for the good roads convention to be held in Duluth next Wednesday has been announced by Secretary H. V. Eva of the Commercial club. It includes the reading of papers by State Engineer G. W. Cooley, George F. Goodell of Barnum, Gustave Scholle, and others. An effort is being made to get Governor Johnson's name added to the list. It is not definitely known as yet whether he will be here. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held at the Commercial club. Mayor Cullum will deliver the address of welcome. Following is the program:

"Advantages of a Highway Between the Twin Cities and Duluth," C. A. Duncan, W. E. Culkin, W. B. Silvey, B. Silberstein and W. B. Patton. "Laws of State Pertaining to Highways," J. E. Green, Carlton. "Morality of Good Roads," Rev. H. Coolbaugh, Cloquet.

"The Advantages of Improvement to Highways," A. D. Wilson, assistant agriculturist state experiment station. "National Aid in the Construction of Common Roads," H. Oldenberg, Carlton. "Location, Construction and Maintenance of Common Roads," G. W. Cooley, state engineer. "Roads and Road Making," L. B. Arnold, assistant land commissioner Duluth & Iron Range railway. "The Relation of Farmers to Good Roads," A. J. McGuire, superintendent Northeastern experiment station. "The Objects of State Highway Commission," Gustave Scholle. J. B. Galarneault, Charles Halverson, members of highway commission. "Drainage of Highways," F. B. McLeran, Whenshall, Minn. "Co-operation of Good Roads Association," F. A. Watkins, Carlton. "Proper Materials for Highway Construction, George F. Goodell, Barnum. "How to Build Roads in the Timber," George T. McKay, Holyoke. General discussion.

GOLD MINE OF MILK.

One Cow's Product Worth $989 in Three Years.

Fulton, Mo., May 11.—A cow on George Douglass' farm in Callaway county has a record that few cows can boast of. During 1095 days she gave three gallons of milk daily, which sold at 20 cents per gallon, making $657. In three years her butter, which was 1690 pounds, sold at 20 cents per pound, brought $322. The cow has not been fresh for three years and is one of the finest specimens of her kind and her owners would not part with her for anything.

"TRAVEL AS FREIGHT? NO," SAID A FAT MAN.

Berlin, May 11.—Hans From, known as the fattest man in Europe, just died in Willensberg. From, who was a hotel owner, weighed 525 pounds, and his waist was 78 inches. A few months ago he was offered a large sum of money if he would agree to go to Paris for a freak exhibit. After he agreed to go, a difficulty came up which kept him at home.

As From sought to enter a passenger car he was told that he could not travel in a coach and that the only way a train would carry him would be in a freight car. From, indignant at this, refused to go altogether.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The services at the devotional meeting held Sunday afternoon at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association will be conducted by Rev. M. S. Rice. The first of this series of meetings was held last Sunday afternoon at which time Dr. Rice spoke upon "The Fundamental Principles of Religion," and his subject Sunday will be "The Ready World." Much interest is being shown in this series of meetings which is to continue during May with the same speaker. The soloist at Sunday's meeting will be Miss Kathryn Joyce. Every woman interested is invited to attend the meeting at 4 o'clock.

MISSIONARY MEET.

Mrs. J. W. Powell Reads Paper at Morning Session.

An annual meeting of the Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Methodist churches of the Duluth district was held this morning in the parlors of the First Methodist church. The meeting of the Home society was held this morning with Mrs. J. W. Powell, president, presiding. The election of officers was postponed until the afternon session. Mrs. Powell gave a paper on "How to Get the Most Out of Auxiliary Meetings," and an informal discussion followed. There were no societies outside of the Duluth churches represented and the reports from the churches represented were given.

Mrs. A. W. Bradley presided at the afternoon session and after the election of officers for the Home society the regular program was followed. Rev. Thomas Grice gave the address of the afternoon on "Mite Boxes." The meeting was of much interest to the rather small number of women in attendance.

Outing Club.

The Outing club of the Young Women's Christian association will leave the rooms and take the car to Woodland. In the years agone Woodland was the place in this vicinity where long stemmed violets could be secured and tomorrow the members of the Outing club will optimistically hunt the hills and dales of this suburb for the wild flowers that will bloom in June. The members of the association and others who would enjoy taking the tramp with the members of the club are invited to meet at the rooms at 2 o'clock.

The Assembly.

The May ball of the Assembly will be danced this evening at the Spalding. Much interest has been shown in this springtime dance and as it is the first formal function of the sort since before Lent, a more than ordinarily happy time is anticipated. La Brosse will play the program of dance music.

Engagement.

Mrs. Satina A. Finkelson has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss M. Louise Finkelson and John Rudolph Zweifel. The wedding will take place in June.

To Aid Church Work.

A guild was organized last evening by the young women of Holy Apostles' church, who met at the home of Miss Campbell of 823 Fifty-sixth avenue west. The officers elected for three months were president, Miss Ethel Wright; secretary, Miss Bessie Hendrickson and treasurer, Miss Myra Harris. The meetings of the guild will be held once each month and general assistance in church work will be its object.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. E. C. Blanchard has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Pascal Ware of Omaha. Mrs. Ware has also returned for a two-weeks' visit.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Mance have returned from French Lick Springs, Ind.

* * *

Miss Ethel Farmer has as her guest Miss Ruth Fiske of Minneapolis.

* * *

Mrs. J. A. Stephenson and children have gone to Deerwood for a ten-days' outing.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

Fresh killed turkeys, 28 cents a lb.

Ducks, 20 cents a lb.

Green or wax beans, 25 cents a lb.

Cauliflower, 25 cents a head.

Strawberries, of a kind, 4 quarts for 25 cents.

Strawberries, of another kind, 15 cents a quart.

The nicest, plumpest, pinkest, cleanest lot of dead turkeys you ever saw are reposing in one of the butcher's windows, and they fairly make one long for properly dressed and roasted turkey. The price is such that there will not be many turkey appetites indulged at the Sunday dinner. However, if you feel especially prosperous, there is nothing finer in the market. The ducks are also nice.

The green things offered make the choosing of the Sunday meals a thing of ease and pleasure. There are plenty of strawberries of various kinds. There are the kind for which you pay 25 cents for four boxes, and then don't get your money's worth, and there are other kinds. The pineapples are cheap and good, and the rhubarb, which has doubtless been neglected for the more aristocratic fruits, is in prime condition and cheap. Saturday morning's marketing ought to be one round of pleasure.

The EVENING STORY.

THE RETURN OF THE DEAD

By Hugh Pendexter.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"There goes Mercy Gibson ter th' buryin' ground," mechanically observed old man Peters, sitting on the platform in front of the general store and postoffice, and tossing back the hot midsummer sunbeams with a blade of his new knife. "She's ben doin' it fer years, ain't she?" yawned Fremont Skilly, who should have been at home and working.

"I can remember jest as if it was yesterday when she give Edwin Timbly th' mitten an' married Elam," declared old man Peters, in a drowsy sing-song. "An' they hadn't ben married no time before Elam enlisted an' went ter war. She didn't know he'd enlisted till he marched by her in th' village here with th' 6ther York county boys. I can see now jest how he grinned in a sheepish way an' how she almost swooned. He was always playin' capers on somebody, an' I guess he thought th' surprise ter her would be a good joke. She see'd him jest once after that, an' that was when he come up from Augusta an' bid her good-by from in front of this very store."

"An' he never come back," yawned Skilly, to terminate the old story, making a move as if to rise, and then reconsidering.

"Except in his coffing," corrected the old man's dull monotone, as he deftly cut another notch in the planking.

"Here comes th' Baldwinville stage, fellers," announced the storekeeper from the doorway. And the three, with some show of interest, hitched up a step to escape the wheels, and desisted from conversation and whittling to watch the yellow-streaked vehicle disgorge a slim mail pouch and one passenger.

"Gent wants ter find th' Widder Gibson," informed the stage-driver, wiping his broiled face on a red bandana handkerchief.

"She's down ter th' buryin' ground," volunteered old man Peters, rising unsteadily to point a lean hand. Then he added, "I'll go along with ye."

"Much obliged," said the newcomer, shortly, as he turned away, "but I'd rather go alone."

The stranger came upon the Widow Gibson, while she kneeled and arranged her basket of old-fashioned flowers about a low, neatly-cared-for mound. The afternoon sun was at his back and brought the old woman's face into strong relief.

After a few seconds of hesitation, he slouched a step nearer, and with a half concealed air of amusement, drawled, in the York county intonation:

"Fixin' th' grave, Mercy?"

She dropped the flowers at the sound of his voice, but turned not at once. Her eyes were riveted on Pitchmope's pine-covered sides. Next, her rigidity relaxed, and a shiver ran through her frame. Slowly she rose and carefully brushed out her black skirts. Then, for the first time she faced him, all very slowly and precisely, however, and, with the hint of a catch in her voice, asked: "Is that you, Elam?"

"Yes," he replied, hanging his head. "I've come back." Then, as she stared in silence, he protested, "An' this ain't what ye'd exactly call a warm welcome home, either." And he advanced awkwardly, until only the grave separated them; yet she made no move to meet him, and, instead, filled her hands with the basket and trowel.

Her strong eyes drove his to the ground as she studied him long and earnestly. "So you ain't dead?" she said, numbly.

"Bless you, no," he laughed uneasily, again removing his well-worn hat. "I've traveled some, though," he added, almost proudly. "Ain't many men that's see's so much of our country as I have."

Then, remembering the grave, she suddenly demanded: "Who lays here?"

"Ed Timbly," he apologized.

"Yas," he explained. "Ye see, I got inter a little liffleulty after I'd ben at th' front a few months, an' thought I'd best clear out for a while. An' when Ed was killed at Bar Harbor an' th' boys sent him home as me by mistake, why, I thought I'd let it all go that way for a while."

"And I've been tending Ed's grave all these years after forsaking him for you," she mused. "Well, Elam, you must have fascinated me, as I always know'd he was the best man of the two. You couldn't find time, I s'pose, to let me know you was alive?"

He detected nothing ironical in this, and at once regained his old care-free manner and attempted to mollify her by saying: "Wall, Mercy, I did intend ter write, but after th' war I was busy cavortin' around an' seein' th' country, an' I let it go so long I thought I'd wait till I could drop in an' explain in person." Then he concluded, with all his youthfulness boastfulness: "Ain't many women has got a husband that's traveled around as I have. Ben all over th' West."

"Ed was more loyal," she observed, half to herself, as she stooped to fix a wild rose climber. "He's been with me through all the years."

"He had ter," observed her husband, shortly. "But now ye know it's Ed, an' not me, ye can quit comin' out here, can't ye?" And if it be possible for jealousy to touch old age, maybe the light in Elam's worn eyes was incited by some such emotion.

"What are you going to do now?" she asked in return.

"Do? Why, I'm goin' ter live here. Don't want me ter go ter war agin, do ye?" he asked, fretfully.

"There ain't no wars now," she reminded, simply. "Besides, you're too old. Lawd! to think of us meeting here, and after all these years! You're changed sadly, Elam."

"I was gay enough when I marched away," he defended, bitterly. "Jest th' same as give my life ter th' government, an' can't even get a pension now. Marked 'missin',' you know."

"How are you going to live?" she inquired, curiously.

"Live? Why, Mercy," he floundered, "if that ain't a pretty question ter put ter a old veteran. Ain't I yer husband? Ain't yer got yer farm? Good Lawd! don't say ye ain't got no farm! Yer father's was th' best one in all th' Ossipee valley when I quit here."

"It is now," she admitted, "and it's mine. But I'm a widder. I ain't got no husband," and the strong mouth was drawn down tremulously. Then the lliens grew firm again, and she repeated, "I ain't got no husband. He was killed a fighting for his country. But does anyone know who you be?"

"No," he replied, wearily. "Everyone seemed ter be a youngster when I got out th' stage. There was one old feller I thought I remembered, but I didn't give my name. I thought ye'd rather introguce me, yerself."

"Don't tell anyone your name," she cried, hurriedly. "My husband lays dead here and has for years. You can git board at one of the neighbors and I'll pay for it. You can say you was an old friend of my husband. The neighbors may talk some about my paying your board, but we're both too old to care. Remember, you was my husband's friend." Then, as her feelings surged momentarily to the front, she sobbed: "The Lawd knows you was his worst enemys! Alone all these years, except for Ed!"

At first he was cowed by her outburst, but the mention of his rival's name irritated him, and he feebly remonstrated. "I wish ye wouldn't keep harpin' on Ed. What's he ter either of us?"

"I've brought flowers here for his grave every summer day," she reminded, listlessly.

"Wall, then, it's high time ye quit it," he declared.

"No," she replied, "I'm used to doing it. I'm used to having you dead. I shall keep on tending his grave. But as I'm beginning to feel my years, you'll have to help. You can carry the basket; sometimes it gets heavy."

"No, sirree," responded her husband, stoutly. "I never had much use fer Ed. He tried to cut me out when I first went with ye. I don't feel like decoratin' his grave."

"But you shall," she said, in her slow, even voice. "You shall, and you'll begin today by fetching this basket back to the house. As to cutting out, his grave has cut you out for years."

And as she turned to the gate Elam sighed and picked up the basket and trowel and followed her.

That night the entire community knew the stranger was an old friend of the dead Gibson. It aroused no unusual comment that the widow should guarantee his keep at a neighbor's house; for she had long been known as a woman with much fixity of purpose, albeit, at times, somewhat eccentric. Moreover, as she was well able to pay for the keeping of several strangers, it seemed pleasant to the neighborhood to encourage such extravagance.

And Elam, sailing under an assumed name, quickly fell into his place, and spent many of his hours discussing the early days of the valley with old man Peters. If at times he displayed a too intimate knowledge of those dead and gone, it was easily explained that the deceased Gibson often talked of his home and his friends. Yet, while vaunting his own prowess on the field of battle, he always seemed to even more enjoy the awarding of a greater meed of praise to the boy Elam.

Day in and day out the widow and her assistant carried flowers to the cemetery and on one or two occasions when she could not go she sent him alone. And he, knowing her implacable eye would detect the slightest evasion of duty, would bow his back to the hot sun and perform his errand most carefully. The one recompense was his anticipations of winter. With the snow would come release. Then he could sit before the store stove and smoke a peaceful pipe and regale the gossip-loving gathering with newer and fresher stories than old man Peters could ever hope to tell.

But the early snows along the Ossipee fall damp and heavy and it happened that after the first day and evening of unalloyed liberty the widow's bondsman fell ill. Even the crude eye of the rural physician saw at a glance the frail, time-worn frame could not resist the attack, and Mrs. Gibson was notified at once. She came immediately to his side and remained his nurse.

"I was a fool when a younker, an' have been one ever since," he apologized one December afternoon, as the red sun sent ruddy streamers through the small window panes. "I reckon, Mercy, I ain't ben what ye'd call a thoughtful man."

"Not exactly a thoughtful man, Elam," she sobbed.

"Wall, don't take on. I reckon I've paid th' price. Don't ye think so?"

"If there was any price to pay, Elam, you've paid it," she whispered.

"Then I don't owe nothin'?" he asked, eagerly.

"Nothing," she murmured.

"Then, mebbe when yo'n me an' Ed meet agin we can start in all over an' times will be happier fer all of us," his weak voice fluttered.

"Better for all of us," she whispered, brushing the hair from his forehead.

"Say," he mumbled, "remember, Mercy, how that hair used ter curl when it was brown? If I do say it, that was th' most fetchin' head of hair in all Company D."

And with this final touch of the old light-hearted vanity, Elam, twice dead, hurried out from the frozen loneliness of the valley to find Ed.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, mayor, Girard, Ala.

Appetizing Recipes of Various Choice Viands

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Attractive Garnishes.

My Dear Mrs. Telford:

Will you please tell me how to prepare a few dishes and how to garnish them so that the table will look attractive? I would like to know, if possible, just about what quantity will be needed in preparing the following dishes for a party of twenty:

How to prepare fried oysters?

How to prepare wine jelly and the whipped cream that goes with it?

Waldorf salad?

If you cannot spare the space in your paper to answer all of my questions, I handling carefully. Spread each one in I am to prepare the oysters, etc. Gratefully yours. H. C.

Fried Oysters.

For a party of twenty you will require about a hundred oysters, and here is a genuine old Priladelphia rule for their cooking that cannot be improved upon. For this porpose the largest, finest oysters must be selected. Rinse quickly in cold water and lay in a colander to drain, handling carefully. Spread each one in turn on the baking board and pat quickly and gently with a soft old napkin until dry. Take a steel fork, catch in the "eye" of the oyster, dip in egg and then in fine cracker dust back and forth until every bit of oyster is coated. For a hundred oysters you need about six eggs salted to taste and beaten up with six tablespoonfuls of boiling water or milk. Have ready a frying kettle not too deep, with plenty of smoking hot olive oil or sweet lard to which just a little butter has been added to make the oysters crisp and brown. Put in only enough oysters to cover the bottom of the pan without crowding. When brown on one side turn over on the other, always with the fork in the "eye" so as not to pierce the body of the oyster and let the juice escape. Cooked in this way the oysters are perfectly free from grease, plump, tender and delicious. Do not use too much cracker dust, as that hides the delicate oyster flavor. A dash of cayenne is sometimes added to the oysters before frying. Garnish with a little parsley and quarters of lemon, and serve with them dainty slices of graham bread lightly buttered. The whitest, crispiest celery or watercress are delightful accompaniments.

Wine Jelly With Whipped Cream.

You can get the wine jelly powder all ready for dissolving in hot water, then moulding; or make your own jelly from the gelatine as preferred. In either case a little "doctoring" in the matter of flavor will usually result in improvement. Wine jelly made with water, sugar and wine merely, is insipid, in addition, there should be plenty of lemon or orange juice still allowing the wine to be the predominant flavor. Usually the proportion of gelatine to the amount of liquid stated on a box of gelatine is a safe rule to follow; but even here certain things have to be considered. In cold weather jelly will mould in less time and with less gelatine than in hot. In summer an ounce of gelatine will solidify three cups of liquid. In winter a little more liquid can be used. The jelly should be brilliant, transparent and "shaky." just firm enough to hold its own. Wine jelly, indeed, is often prettier and more delicious when it breaks into little cubes. The wine used in the flavoring may be either sherry, port, Madeira or champagne. For twenty guests soak two boxes gelatine in a pint of cold water for half an hour, adding at the same time the grated yellow rind of two lemons. Pour over the soaked gelatine two quarts boiling water and three cups of sugar, stirring until thoroughly dissolved. Add the juice of four lemons, and a pint of wine, strain and pour into moulds rinsed out with cold water. The chef of the Savoy has a special wrinkle for his champagne jelly. After the jelly has been set on the ice and commences to stiffen, he takes out a cupful of the jelly and beats it for a moment or two with a wire whip. Then he returns the frothy jelly to the bowl with the rest, stirs it around once and lets it remain on the ice to finish solidifying. This may be done in moulds, in individual glasses or in a bright new dripping pan, from which it can be taken out in blocks. The whipping process leaves bubbles all through the jelly and a thin froth on top.

Whipped Cream.

For twenty guests allow three pints of the cream. Cream for whipping should be neither too thick nor yet too thin. Thick cream turns to butter and thin cream becomes liquid with whipping. The best quality of cream obtained from the milkman is usually of the right consistency. Have the cream put in the ice chest to thoroughly chill before you begin to whip it. When ready to beat (which should not be until shortly before it is required) set the bowl in a pan of cracked ice, then with a regular cream whip beat until a heavy frost is formed on the surface. Stir down once or twice, as the first bubbles are too heavy, then beat again and skim off into another bowl set on a pan of ice also. Keep beating and skimming until all is stiff, then sweeten with powdered sugar and flavor as desired. If you do not have cream enough after whipping, beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and stir in with the cream.

Waldorf Salad.

Peel, core and slice a half dozen solid tart apples. Mix with the apples, sufficient cut, tender celery to make an equal quantity. Sprinkle with two teaspoonfuls of salt, a teaspoonful of paprika, and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Toss with a wooden fork so as not to bruise the apple, add a pint of mayonnaise and serve at once, before the apple darkens, on lettuce leaves.

OATKA PARK.

The summer amusement enterprise that has been long incubating is now finally and successfully launched, and on July 4 it will be opened to the public at Oatka beach, from which it will take its name.

At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the business men of the city who have interested themselves in the project, held at the Commercial club last evening, it was found that everything was in readiness, and that all that is necessary is to rush the work, and to see that everybody gets behind it and pushes hard.

Thirty thousand dollars have been raised for the construction of the park and for its equipment with the latest and most ingenious devices for public amusement. This sum will be expended judiciously, and the largest possible results for the money will be secured.

The plan is in the hands of an exceptionally strong board of directors, consisting of B. Silberstein, president; C. A. Marshall, vice president and general manager; J. P. Metzdorf, secretary; Whitney Wall, treasurer; and O. C. Hartman, J. M. Gidding, B. G. Segog, John Panton and Herbert Warren, directors. This list of hustlers, men who have helped make Duluth, is strong enough to be a positive assurance of the success of the enterprise.

The name "Oatka Park" was selected, and before the summer is far advanced that name will be a household word in the Northwest. It is the intention, primarily, that the park shall be a pleasant place of interest for visitors to the city, but it will also have a large local patronage, of course. It will be conveniently reached from all parts of the Head of the Lakes by street car or ferry, and the attractions that will be offered will assure its financial success.

From year to year the park will be amplified and enlarged, until ultimately it ought to be one of the finest institutions of its sort in the country and Oatka beach will become a Western Coney island. The reputation of Duluth for "making things stick" is at stake on this enterprise, and it is the duty of every citizen to do his part to make it a success.

A CREDITABLE ATTITUDE.

Among the many fine and encouraging developments of humanity growing out of the recent San Francisco horror—which is already paling in the memories of a busy people—there has been nothing pleasanter than the action of some of the San Francisco labor unions.

San Francisco was a typical "union town". It was strongly organized, and its labor unions were a power in politics and business. Some of the worst results of the struggle between labor and capital noted in this country have occurred in San Francisco. Schmitz, the mayor of the afflicted city who has shown up so strongly in the chaos that followed the destruction of the city, was a union man, and was elected by the influence of the unions. He was a theatrical orchestra violinist, and a member of the musicians' union.

His administration has been no great credit to labor. About him were a collection of parasites that thrived on vice and influenced his administration toward the side of evil. It should be stated, however, that Ruef and his fellow-spoilsmen are not labor men, but local politicians who took advantage of the strength of the union forces to work themselves into positions of power and profit.

Several of the labor unions of San Francisco have decided to suspend the ironclad rules that they have been successfully enforcing in that community, and in the work of building up the new city they will permit the employment of non-union labor, wherever it is necessary, on equal terms with themselves. Other unions will doubtless follow suit.

This is no surrender of the cause of unionism, but a necessity forced by the unusual conditions that have grown up. By clinging to the rules that had made unionism strong in San Francisco, the unions could have barred out non-union labor, but it would have been at a great cost to the city and to themselves, and their wise decision to temporarily relax their rules will work to the glory of their cause and of the city.

In the face of this excellent example, it is hard to see how the trusts can withstand the appeal for the removal of tariff duties on materials needed for the reconstruction of the city. They cannot be less "erous than labor without great discredit to themselves and corresponding credit to unionism.

OSCULATION.

After all these years, Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, far-famed as the hero of the Merrimac and of various gentle osculatory episodes, rises to deny the stories of wholesale kissing which the newspapers draped about his fame a number of years ago. He has just been nominated for congress in a district where nomination means election, and before his entrance into statesmanship he wishes to clear away the stain upon his fame.

Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, recently made a nice picture of Capt. Hobson, under which he ran a signed defense of the gallant young Southerner. He states that Hobson told him that the only kissing he ever publicly endured was from an old lady who, after a speech in a Middle Western state, tottered through the crowd and said her son was with him on the Merrimac, and wanted to kiss him. He kissed the tearful old mother, and her granddaughter, a girl of 14 years. "That," he said, "is all the people I have ever kissed in public, and I think the American press has done me a very great wrong, a wrong that money or retraction could never right." If the statement were correct, his conclusion would be justified.

While it is no great sin to kiss an American girl, or a thousand American girls, but rather a joy forever and a tide of riches that no individual man ever deserved, still the ridicule that followed the reports of Hobson's kissing episodes could not fail to hurt, and if there were no kisses except those he admits a great wrong has been done him.

But the Kansas City Journal claims to know better. It says:

> In Kansas City, Capt. Hobson did a vast amount of public and more or less indiscriminate kissing in a way that stirred the press of the entire country. The tottering old mother feature is very pretty, but if it occurred in Kansas City it escaped the attention of quite a number of alert reporters. There was a long line of pretty girls who aided and abetted the ridiculous show and there is no record that Capt. Hobson let any of them get away. The files of the Kansas City papers are good witnesses as to the truth of these statements.

Anyway, Capt. Hobson has been married since, and is probably confining all his osculatory enterprises to the home circle, so it is entirely proper to let him live it down if he wants to. Still, one would think that it would be only with the utmost reluctance that he could part with the memories of the foolish but beautiful bevies of femininity that one time clamored for his kisses.

AN INTERESTING ELECTION.

This, though a general election year, is what is called the "off year", because there is no presidential election. However, the prospects are that it will be very far from an "off year" so far as interest and political activity are concerned.

Not only will state elections be held in most states, but the members of the national house of representatives will all come up for trial before the people, and legislatures that will select one-third of the United States senate will also be elected.

The growing distrust of the blind partisanship that used to control elections has brought about some curious changes, and this feature will add to the interest of this year's elections. There was a time, not so very long ago, when a precinct worker sent out to canvass a block would sit down and figure over his list of voters, and would be able to place all but a very few of them confidently and accurately. They were either Republican or Democratic, and were therefore presumed to vote for practically all the candidates of their party.

Now the work of a canvasser is puzzling in the extreme. He cannot place anybody, hardly. He knows that John Smith is a Republican, that Richard Roe is a Democrat, and that is about all he does know. He cannot to save his life, without asking the voters directly, tell what candidates they are going to vote for. The average vote cast at elections nowadays is so badly "split" that it is almost impossible to tell the politics of the man that cast it.

The reason for this is that the people realize that they have been going about it the wrong way in sticking rigidly to the ticket, regardless of how many "yellow dogs" it might contain. They know that they have been imposed upon through this practice, that it has enabled bosses to build up machines, and that these machines have been freely used in the interests of the corporations and against the interests of the public.

So while nominally members of one party or the other, they are voting, in most states, for the best men, as nearly as they can hit it. The average citizen, not associated with politics through a desire to get a job, cares almost as little about the politics of his candidates as he does about the particular religious sects they may belong to. If they are good men, and seem likely to give the public good service, this average citizen asks nothing more.

While parties are necessary, they are not the first consideration. They are merely a means to an end, and that end is the glory of the country and the comfort and prosperity of the people. When they bend their efforts to accomplish other ends, people lose interest in them, and that is the condition today. It is going to make the 1906 elections all over the country hard to figure out in advance, and mighty interesting to watch.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Winnipeg is the finest laid-out city on the American continent," said T. J. Clancey of Minneapolis, at the McKay. "Not only is it pleasing to the eye, but it leads in many other respects. One who visits it for the first time is surprised at the size and progressiveness of the town. It now has a population of 121,000 souls, and is still growing at a rapid rate. I just came down from there a few days ago. Building permits for the year amount to between eleven and twelve million dollars.

"Business up there is booming along in great shape. In spite of its progressiveness and prosperity, Winnipeg is different from American cities, and this difference is readily seen by a man from the United States. Real estate values are high, and land in the outlying districts is not on the market at all. Most of it is owned by descendants of the early French and Scotch, who do not seem at all inclined to part with it, although they make no good use of it themselves.

"Winnipeg has one of the most beautiful railroad stations on the continent from an architectural standpoint. It belongs to the Canadian Pacific. A hotel, just completed, will be operated in connection. The expense of building was more than $2,000,000. Numerous fine business blocks are in evidence, and Winnipeg has a department store that beats anything in Duluth or the Twin Cities. It covers a solid block of ground, and is an immense affair.

"One also gets excellent hotel accommodations in Winnipeg, as in all other towns through Western Canada, whether they are new or old. The saloon business has something to do with this. The law is that no license to sell intoxicating liquors will be given anything but a hotel, and the law further provides that no hotel thus considered shall have less than thirty-five rooms. Of course this means more hotels and fewer saloons than would otherwise be the case. The law is a good one.

"It is further provided that the saloons shall closed at 11 o'clock ever night in the week except Saturday and Sunday. Saturday night the closing hour is 8:30 o'clock, and the places are not open at all Sundays, except that the proprietors are allowed to serve their guests with liquors at meal times. And the closing laws are strictly observed, too. It isn't like it is in most American cities, where the order to close at 11 o'clock and on Sundays merely means pulling down the curtain and opening the side door.

"Edmonton, located in the district where so many Americans are going just now, Alberta, is a good, hustling town, with a 25,000 population. It is expected that 100,000 Americans will take up their homes in Northwestern Canada this year, not to speak of people from the East and of other nationalities. For a time immigrants were arriving at the rate of 5,000 a day. This was a few weeks ago. I suppose travel has fallen off some by this time. Trains were running in eight and ten sections, and then there didn't seem to be room enough to accommodate all the people.

"It is only right that we should lose some of our people to Canada, for during the past twenty or thirty years the Canadians have been flocking into the United States by the thousands, developing this country and letting their own remain at a standstill. It is a square deal that they should get a few thousand Americans in return. The fathers of many of those now going into Alberta came from Canada originally."

* * *

"The stockholders in the Duluth Amusement company and everybody else interested in the advancement of the best interests of Duluth should take part in a movement to prevail upon the officials of the iron range roads to make more and better excursion rates during the summer months than has been their custom in the past," said Manager William McKay of the McKay hotel.

"The range is a big district, from the standpoint of population, and is directly tributary to Duluth, yet the people up there have little chance to come to the Head of the Lakes unless they pay full fare. Duluth is the only large city within easy reach where they can come for pleasure, and a series of low-rate excursions through the summer should be liberally patronized, especially so in view of the fact that Oatka park will be in operation during the summer.

"Other roads are really more liberal in the excursion way than are the iron range lines. It seems to me that with Superior, Duluth, the ranges and other nearby towns to draw from, the park should be a paying proposition. In one way it will be a paying proposition if it is merely self-sustaining, for it will be of benefit to Duluth in general in any event."

Aldrich and Bailey.

Washington special to the New York Times: Senator Aldrich approached Senator Bailey today with a fatherly, gentle smile. He exuded simplicity, open-mindedness, love of his kind, sweet reasonableness at every pore.

"Bailey," he said, "let us agree, just to avoid unnecessary wrangling, and hasten this rate bill to a swift conclusion, that when we reach the amendments we vote upon them without debate. I propose that as a business proposition, as much in the interest of your side as of mine. I suppose, of course, you will see no objection to that. It's all right, isn't it?"

He looked at Bailey with an air of engaging candor, distinctly resembling Santa Claus. Bailey, who is a rude, cynical sort of person, gave a coarse laugh.

"Ha, ha!" he said. "And then you can run in any amendment you want, and we won't have a chance to show it up."

Mr. Aldrich returned to his seat looking grieved. His confidence in human nature had received a harsh shock.

THE WEATHER.

The winds were easterly this morning, but slight, and though it was cloudy and slightly cool, the weather man says conditions give us promise of much better things. It will be warmer tonight, and the wind will shift into the south, bringing fine, warm weather by or during tonight. Last night's lowest temperature was 36 deg. and yesterday's highest was 58. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"The Alberta disturbance has moved its center to Manitoba, causing a further rise in temperature throughout the central valleys. As yet very little if any rain has developed, scattered showers occurring over Ohio, Iowa and Oregon. The Gulf high pressure area remains about stationary. The slow easterly movement of these conditions will doubtless be attended by generally fair weather and mild temperature in this locality tonight and Saturday and possibly Sunday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Pie and Doughnuts.

New York Mail: New-fangled breakfast foods and old-fashioned American pie and doughnuts met on the forensic battlefield in congress yesterday, and it must be owned that, so far as oratorical advantage went, pie and doughnuts came out ahead.

Representative Mann of Illinois was the advocate of the breakfast cereals, and Representative Perkins of New York, member for the Rochester district, stepped into the circle as the protagonist of pie and doughnuts. "The founders of our country," Mr. Perkins declared, "lived on pie and doughnuts. They were men. If we follow in their footsteps, we may yet accomplish something real good, as they did."

Our forefathers ate pie and doughnuts because they wanted something in their stomachs that would "stay by 'em." They were robust men, engaged in robust occupations. They lived and worked out of doors. They swung the gleaming axes that felled the forest. They held the bounding plow while massive oxen yanked it through tree and roots and the unyielding turf. They hunted the bear and wolf in tangled thickets.

They lived the lives of leviathans and they needed a leviathan sustenance. Good dry bread and well cooked beef were too quickly assimilated in the systems of these toilers. It seemed to them that they had no sooner consumed such readily digested food that it was gone. They felt the want of itss evanescent substances. So their good wives invented the ponderous doughnut, cooked in fat, and the refractory pastry of the apple or mince pie; these their women gave them, together with much pork, which is slowly digested, and they did eat and were filled. And it seemed to them that they stayed filled, and they were content.

For every generation, however, its proper food. The American of the present day is not a man of mighty out-of-door tasks. His occupations are sedentary and degenerate. In his case pie and doughnuts "stay by" altogether too well. Shredded corn-silk, predigested and sterilized, is about his measure.

The glory of pie and doughnuts has departed with the noble stomachs that took care of them. Dr. Wiley has the floor with his "pizen squad," organized to find out how little an American man can eat and live.

The Country Correspondent.

Perry, Okla., Republican: Again, at night, when the work is done, you pick up the country weekly from the old home back East. You look over town news, scan the blazing half-page ads and turn over to the country correspondence. Not that you were acquainted in every neighborhood from Pleasant Valley to Pumpkin Ridge, nor do you know the present generation spoken of in the news items. But here and there is an old family name that makes you think and takes you back to the good old days gone by. An item about the old church or the school, and as you sit there the recollection brings back memories all but forgotten. You wander out on the big road through the valley and woodland to the big farmhouse. Then a hundred faces of boyhood companions are all before you as you picture the revival at the cross-roads church or the spelling bee at the old red schoolhouse, and you wonder what has become of all the boys and girls you left when you started West.

The old tourist printer has been relegated to the junk pile by the linotype, the city man takes his notes in shorthand, the editor dictates his matter to an amanuensis, and from the typewriter it goes down the tube—the revolution is complete, yet there is one good, old-fashioned feature holding over—the weekly copy from the country correspondent. Nothing can take his place. May he be with us forever, because the paper needs him and the readers appreciate him and we want him, though he hasn't improved a lick in spelling and punctuation.

Worked Out.

London Sphere: They were talking about futility, and for some reason known only to each other failed to agree. Finally she asked:

"Well, now, suppose you give me an example of what you call futility."

"All right," said he. "Multiply 3,940 by 731."

She took a pencil in her hand, seized a piece of paper, and after a few minutes of diligent figuring, announced the result.

"2,845,066," said she.

"Divide that by 2," he continued.

"1,422,533," she said.

"Very well," said he. "Now add seven to that, and then subtract 1,422,540, and tell me what you get."

"The result is 0," said she, after further figuring.

"Well, that's what I call futility," said he with a laugh. "You've covered a sheet of paper with figures to arrive at nothing."

Whereupon she became so angry with him that she refused to argue any further on the subject.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

The father and mother of Joseph Retalleck arrived yesterday from Tower on their way to Hancock, Mich., their former home.

The wind took a favorable turn last night, and this morning a stiff gale was blowing from the west, much to the joy of mariners and, in fact, of all the citizens. The ice which had become securely packed against the shore began to move out at an early hour, and the craft in the harbor quickly made preparations to depart. The first boat to pass through the canal was the Stewart and she went through the ice easily. Navigation opened at exactly 12 o'clock. It remained for the large iron bottomed steam barge J. H. Devereaux to open a space for the incoming boats, and the entire fleet followed in her wake and reached the harbor during the noon hour.

W. S. Hendricks, a St. Paul real estate owner, and wife, are in Duluth to see some property he owns here.

Sidney Luce to H. Rising, lots 296, 298 and 304, block 35, Rice's Point, $40.

H. Rising to Superior Short Line railroad, lots 292, 294, 296, 298, 300, 302 and 303, block 35, Rice's Point, $2,800.

John Flynn to H. H. Bell, lots 55 and 67, West First street, First division, $4,700.

J. D. and R. C. Ray to Henry H. Bell, lots 4, 5 and 6, block 45, Portland division, $7,500.

Charles Chauncey to A. Pickarski, lots 23 and 25, block 129, Third division, $200.

Plans are now being matured to make Duluth the seat of a large business in the storage and forwarding line. G. R. Newell & Co. of Minneapolis have already made arrangements by which goods will be warehoused here and forwarded to their large wholesale store in Minneapolis or to such places in the interior as they may direct.

At a special meeting of the board of education yesterday, Inspectors were appointed as follows for an election to be held May 15 to determine a proposition to issue school bonds to the amount of $15,000: City of Duluth, B. S. Parsons, J. E. Cooley and Albert Polrier. Village of Duluth—First ward, Fred Wieland, C. Gibbs and Louise Hollister; Second ward, J. D. Ray, Kate Rudolph and A. J. Miller; Third ward, W. W. Sandford, D. E. Holsten and Sarah W. Sargent; Fourth ward, Nels Olds, Mary Olds and J. S. Forward. It was decided to allow the Inspectors and clerks $2 each for their services.

F. H. Hubbler has sent for his family to join him in Thibedeaux, La.

W. H. Greenleaf, who contemplates locating in Duluth, is here from Litchfield.

Capt. Stevens' new boat is finished and christened the Henrietta Van Dusen.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Anoka Union: Roosevelt must be the man, or there will be trouble for the Republican party. The pulling down of some of the idols of that party is being made a note of by many voters, and their rascality is liable to endanger success. The people are honest and believe in honor and integrity.

Rochester Post and Record: Rebating and other trust iniquities will never find a legal cure in the imposition of a fine. A penal penalty will alone make the law respected.

Mille Lacs Pioneer: Now, to be honest about it, what better governor could the people ask for than John A. Johnson is making?

Ortonville Herald Star: There should be no politics or selfish motives behind the drainage proposition, but a sincere and united effort to get practicable results.

Brainerd Dispatch: The candidates for the Republican nomination for governor are getting right on the question of drainage as fast as the newspapers can publish their interviews. Three in one day is a pretty good average.

Milaca Times: The people of Minnesota may have to be shown where it would be of any public benefit to the state to defeat John A. Johnson for another term in the governor's chair.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The trading that for years has been a part of the manipulations of the Republican state convention in Minnesota, has lacked the dignity of swapping jack-knives.

Bemidji Sentinel: According to all reports, someone is trying to run a split log drag over Buckman's district.

Crookston Times: So far as the Ninth district delegates are concerned, there isn't going to be any second choice. But if there were, it would never be Jacobson. Of all the candidates, Jacobson is the only one who has persistently fought state drainage from the time the question was first agitated up to the present moment, and he is the last man that any Northern Minnesota delegate would vote for.

Hibbing Tribune: W. E. Culkin, former receiver of the Duluth land office, will quite likely become a candidate for congress in opposition to J. Adam Bede, and in case he does, the joke artist's stock will depreciate materially.

Fairmont Sentinel: Governor Cummins has won a glorious victory over the hosts of corruption and monopoly in Iowa. Standpatism incidentally gets a black eye and corporation rule in politics has received an awful trouncing. When the people once get aroused they come into possession of their rights.

Albert Lea Standard: There are now seven avowed candidates for the Republican nomination for governor, and Pete Hanson and several other Barkises yet to be heard from. The most of them are worthy, better than the average, but does any intelligent citizen candidly claim that any one of them sizes up with Governor Johnson?

Crookston Times: Minnesota is not the geographical center of the Northwest, but it is without question the metropolis of all that great section. It is to Minnesota that the Northwest looks for its food supplies, for its merchandise, for its labor, and ere long it will be looking to Minnesota for its capital.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man's own funeral is expensive, but it saves him a lot of money afterward.

The amount of work a boy puts into baseball would raise a lot of potatoes for him to eat.

Every man would be a Prohibitionist if there was as much fun in it as being the other kind.

A baby is never as pretty as its mother says it is, and hardly ever as ugly as the neighbors think.

When a woman gets to a certain age without any man ever having asked her to marry him she is always talking about what a terrible jilt she used to be.

Pease Porridge Hot.

G. S. Pease in Anoka Union: The United States senate is getting in bad repute and deservedly so.

A string of candidates for governor and mighty little enthusiasm for either.

The man who thinks the Republicans can elect a president in 1908 hands down, fails to size up the situation.

Office does not seek the individual in the political game. The man who wins must fight like—you know what, for position. Receptive candidates seldom land.

Political platforms cut little figure, but it's the fashion for state conventions to have them and usually the candidate selected has no more to do in carrying their promises out than the man in the moon.

It's Different in Germany.

Albany Argus: Members of the German reichstag are to be paid hereafter at the rate of $750 a year, and $7.50 will be deducted for each day's absence. To some legislators it would be worth while to pay the $750 when absent, and $7.50 when present.

The Great Old Country.

Earthquake's storm, or battle's blast,
Country keeps a-moving;
Colors flying from the mast,
Brave old ship sails sure and fast;
Hears the harbor bells at last—
Country keeps a-moving!

Hear the thrilling story told—
"Country keeps a-moving!"
Lightnings lash her—thunders scold;
Fire and Famine breathing bold;
Earthquakes open gulfs of gold!—
Country keeps a-moving!

Dauntless breast, and arm of might,
Country keeps a-moving!
Darkness, like a foe in flight,
Sees her sword cleave through the Night!
To the everlasting Light,
Country keeps a-moving!

POINTED REMARKS.

Cleveland Leader: Mrs. Hunnimune—You nasty tramp! How dare you eat that lemon pie I set out to cool?

Tired Timothy—Well, it did take nerve, ma'am, but a starvin' man can't be very particular about what he eats.

Brooklyn Life: Father (sternly)—Now, Sophia, something must be done to reduce your expenses. You are actually spending more than your allowance.

Daughter—It isn't my fault, father. I've done my best to get you to increase it.

Washington Star: "What is reform?" asked the inpressive speaker

"Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "I don't know exactly what it is. But it's something we've all got to holler for, whether we want it or not."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Well, how did you like the sermon?" asked Dr. Gasaway.

"Well," replied Mr. Kandor, "there was one part of it I thought you might have brought to the front."

"And what was that?"

"The conclusion."

Chicago Tribune: Visitor—I see you have spaded up your back yard. What are you going to plant there?

Suburbanite—I haven't decided yet, but it'll have to be something that will grow all right without needing any attention.

Somerville Journal: Editorial Writer—You can't imagine how tired it makes a man to write all this stuff day after day, year after year.

Proof Reader—Oh, yes, I can. I read it.

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Pinchitt—I am certainly going into a decline—you must send me to the mountains at once.

Mr. Pinchitt—What are your symptoms?

Mrs. Pinchitt—My gowns are all perfectly comfortable.

Springtime Splendors.

'Tis true that 'neath the touch of time
These beauties fade away.
His glory, too, must wither with the rest
His coat sleeves will be shiny at no very distant day.
And the creases in his trousers must be pressed.
But present joy suffices, and we envy him his pride,
As we answer to his debonnaire salute,
And wish we had a wardrobe that could take its place beside
The fellow with the new spring suit.

Of all the vernal beauties that shine forth upon the scene
When the woods begin to waken once again,
There's one that gaily bourgeons the most radiant and serene,
The leader of the glad and glorious train.
He's jauntier than the daffodil, the darling of the day—
He's worthy of the poet's softest lute,
The unsurpassed, the culminating splendor of the May—
The fellow with the new spring suit!
—Washington Star.

A Poser.

A traveler on an electric car had a seat next an old negro couple, whose earnest voices attracted his attention. "I tell yo', Sam, dat's one ob yo' mod'n notions," said the old "mammy."

"And I say again just like I done say'd befo'," replied Sam, "dat I seen it in de newspaper."

"Yo' mean foh't' tell me dat you seen in de paper how folks was a-livin' on de moon?"

"Yes'm, dese yere wise folks say people am a-livin' on de moon. An', what's mo', dey say de moon is crowded wif 'em."

The old lady's eyes gleamed suddenly in triumph.

"Den ef dat's de case, Sam, whah do all dem people go when de moon dwindles down to a little streak?"

The Clever Valet.

New York World: Senator Beveridge was discussing a bill (long since defeated) that seemed to have been framed for the protection of dishonesty.

"Whenever I think of that bill," he said, "I am reminded of a certain rich man's valet.

"The valet, one morning, was brushing his master's clothes. He introduced into this procedure a startling innovation. He made a careful search of all the pockets.

"In the pocket of a new waistcoat the valet found a silver dollar. Thereupon he took out his penknife, sighed and said:

"'For the waistcoat's sake it's a thousand pities, but there's nothing else to be done. I must make a hole in this pocket large enough for the dollar to slip through.'"

LONDON'S LIGHT PLANT KILLING TIME OF WORLD.

London, May 11.—Many accusations have been leveled at the London county council, but none more serious than the charge made by Wilfrid Ashley, M. P., for Blackpool. He declares that the London county council is literally "killing time."

Time, as every one knows, is made at Greenwich observatory, and any irregularity there in recording the divisions of the day would set all the clocks in the country wrong.

Such a possibility has never been dreamed of, and the only attempt in the history of the world to interfere with the pure and undefiled course of time was made by Pope Gregory XIII, who moved the larger part of the world eleven days forward.

The London county council, according to Mr. Ashley, is now interfering with the calendar. It has built on the first meridian, which is the home of time, and close to the Greenwich observatory, an enormous electric power station.

The vibration from the engines, and the disturbance in the atmosphere caused by the multitude of electric waves that wander about there, together with the smoke, interfere with the use of the observatory instruments that record the meanderings of the sun, and thus regulate time. They have become erratic and unreliable.

SAYS BOARD IS HELD UP

Commissioner Kugler Takes City Health Department to Task.

Claims Contagious Diseases Supplies Could be Bought Cheaper.

Because the health department of the city of Duluth follows the practice of buying its supplies for taking care of infectious and contagious diseases at retail prices instead of calling for bids or buying the supplies at wholesale, the board of county commissioners intend to hold up the city's claim until some understanding is had with the health officer, Dr. Murray.

Every year the city of Duluth calls on St. Louis county to pay half the expense of taking care of the contagious diseases. Last year the total expense was something more than $6,000 and when the county board got a bill of $3,000 and over for the county's share, the commissioners began to investigate a little and called in the county attorney to size up things.

At the last meeting of the county board Commissioner F. W. Kugler brought the whole matter to an issue by reading the claim to the board and declaring that while the first item on the list of expenses was for certain medical or disinfectant supplies he had sold the city health department, he thought the time propitious for the board to make a kick against the practice the health authorities seem to have adopted of buying any and everywhere the health officer pleases and at the retail prices.

"I don't know," said Commissioner Kugler, "whether this board can do anything about it, but I want you commissioners to fully understand that there is scarcely an item in this list of supplies that could not have been purchased a great deal cheaper had the health department purchased at wholesale, or called for bids. I believe I am safe in saying that the total expense could have been reduced 25 per cent if the supplies had been bought in competition.

"I sold supplies to the department at retail prices, just as the other stores did. What else could I do? If there had been bids called for, things might have been different. I am not going to sell to the health department below the retail prices of the other fellows, if that is the way the city is going to buy.

"If the board of county commissioners began purchasing the county's supplies in that manner, we would hear from it mighty quick. It stands to reason that the city health department should have no right to spend the taxpayers' money buying at retail prices, when it could just as well advertise for bids.

"This bill of $3,000 that we are asked to pay is no small item, and it is to the interest of the taxpayers of this county to cut the bill down 25 per cent, if that can be done."

Other commissioners expressed surprise that any department of the city should undertake to buy supplies without competition, and the sentiment was strongly in favor of having a committee of the county board call on the city health department to see if something cannot be done to reduce the expense of taking care of contagious diseases.

Assistant County Attorney Crosby said he was cognizant of the practice of the health department in buying supplies at retail, and remarked that it is a source of trouble and perplexity to the county's legal department, for the reason that the county has scarcely any voice in the matter, except to pay the bills when they are presented. Mr. Crosby did not think the county is getting the right sort of a deal in the matter when it must pay retail prices for drugs and disinfectants, etc., after being asked to pay half the total expense of taking care of contagious diseases, inspectors' salaries included.

JUDGE SENTENCES MOTHER AFTER DEFY.

Paris, May 11.—A curious situation arose at the police court of Montpelier, when one of the presiding magistrates, M. Eugene Mas, was called on to sentence his own mother.

Mme. Mas was charged, with several other people, with obstructing public officials in the discharge of their duties during the inventory of the church at Beziers.

As soon as M. Mas took his seat on the bench his mother called out to him: "Here I am. Sentence me if you dare."

M. Mas replied by recommending that the prisoners should have three days each. The other magistrates decided to adjourn the cases "to a more convenient date," which means that M. Mas will be invited to be absent from the next sitting.

STRIKING STUDENTS APPEAL TO KING.

Bucharest, Roumania, May 11.—The students are planning to send a committee with a memoir to King Charles, who is in Lugano, Switzerland, for his health, and ask for redress for the action of the authorities against them during the national theater affair.

The troubles began with Prof. Ioraga's lecture to the students. The lecture was about the national language and national pride. Incidentally the professor touched upon the fact that it did not seem fit to have a French play in the national theater. The students decided to have the play stopped. On the evening of the play they gathered in front of the theater to carry out their determination.

Soldiers and cavalry were called out and over 300 were injured on both sides, some fatally. The students proclaimed a general strike till satisfaction would be given them in the form of changing the law making it illegal for plays in foreign tongues to be presented in the national theater. They also asked for the resignation of Davila, the director of the theater. Not getting satisfaction from the minister of public instruction, the students decided to memorialize the king.

FIGHTS WITH HIS WIFE TO KILL AN INTRUDER.

Summitville, Ind., May 11.—Ora Robinson, 20 years old, unmarried, was shot and killed by Sherman Sceece, at the home of the Sceece family, in this place, at 11:30 p. m. The killing took place in the presence of Mrs. Sceece, who struggled with her husband to prevent him from killing Robinson, who undertook to escape by dashing through the front door, but fell with the second shot on the veranda of the cottage.

Immediately after the shooting, Sceece voluntarily reported to Deputy Town Marshal Ray, saying that he had shot and killed a man he did not know, and together with the officer he returned to his home, where the body was recognized as that of Robinson.

Sceece reported to the authorities that when he returned home he was surprised to find a man there, and he immediately ran into another room and got his revolver. After a struggle with Mrs. Sceece, whose hand was cut during her effort to restrain her husband, Sceece shot twice, both bullets striking Robinson in the chest and causing his death. Sceece is in jail.

SLIGHT WOUND KILLS BANDIT

Lack of Medical Attention Caused Wound to be Fatal.

Chihauhua, May 11.—John Norcross, one of the bandits who held up the Dolores mine conducta, and who was captured at the Mormon colony of Morelos in Sonora a few days ago, died of the bullet wound in his hip in the jail at Guerrero. Physicians were sent out to perform an autopsy.

The wound was only in the flesh of the hip and was not necessarily dangerous, but as there was no physician at Morelos he had to be hauled in a wagon 109 miles to Neuvas Casas Grandes before he could get medical attention.

Norcross is believed to have been a fugitive from Wyoming.

Billy Smith, who had charge of the conducta when it was held up, is here. He says he had met Norcross out about Temosachic before the holdup took place. Smith said he had offered at one time, when Norcross and a companion complained of being in hard luck, to stake them to something to eat. Norcross is believed to have been the one who shot Smith, but the particulars from the bandit's side will not be known until his confession is made public.

Fortunate Missourians.

"When I was a druggist, at Livonia, Mo.," writes T. J. Dwyer, now of Graysville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong today. I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest Cough and Cold cure and Throat and Lung healer. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

SINGER REFUSES $1,200 PER NIGHT

Prima Donna Garden Rejects Contract Offered by Hammerstein.

Paris, May 11.—Mary Garden, the American prima donna of the Opera Comique, now on the top wave of success, was greatly disappointed at the communication from President Roosevelt declining foreign assistance for the San Francisco sufferers. A special performance has been projected by the company and Miss Garden, enthusiastic for the relief work for her fellow countrymen, had already personally received many subscriptions from rich members of the American colony, as well as French literateurs and artists, and as many society people.

"I was certain of $4,000 at least," said Miss Garden, "when the president made it evident that only American help would be asked. I then was desirous of arranging a private concert with the aid of Signor Caruso, but my time was no longer my own. I was already plunged in rehearsals for "Pilas and Melisande," which is shortly to be given at the Opera Comique for the first time this season. Then I sang Thursday at the presidential reception at the Elysee palace before King Edward. I am working every moment."

Mary Garden's five-year contract with the Opera Comique expires in July, but she has refused an offer from Oscar Hammerstein for his New York Grand Opera company of $1,200 a night to sing at the opening of the Manhattan Opera house, preferring to appear in the American metropolis during the first season of the National theater. Here she is promised an early hearing through hte influence of James Hazen Hyde and will then be free to sing her own repertoire, "Manon," "Lakme" and perhaps "Aphrodite."

Leo Mielziner, the distinguished portrait painter, served for an evening as auctioneer with notable success at the big sale of pictures donated by American artists, the proceeds in part going to San Francisco. The clubrooms were jammed with buyers, the Latin Quarter being out in force, as were the more fashionable contingent from the big hotels. The buying was fast and furious, the bidding, capricious as usual at auctions, sent some things soaring, while others brought only nominal figures. There were some exquisite pictures among the collection.

The poster over the entrance was an effective bit by F. S. Friescke, who returned lately from Atlantic City, where ninety feet of his canvasses decorate the grill room of the Shelburn hotel.

UNIQUE CONVENTION.

Oklahoma Cities Will Unite In Plan to Draw Homeseekers.

Enid, O. T., May 11.—The fact that this part of Oklahoma has not been getting its share of homeseekers for the past year or more has been a matter of frequent discussion, and it was decided by the chamber of commerce that some action should be taken. Secretary Simmons has been in correspondence with representatives of other towns and the result is that a call has been issued inviting all the towns within a reasonable distance along each of the ten railroads running into Enid to send delegates to a convention to devise ways and means to bring more people from the North and East to see what opportunities are here for homes and business.

MORE QUAKES PREDICTED.

Seismologist Cannot Say Whether They Will be Severe.

Berlin, May 11.—Professor Deckert, who has predicted that there will soon be more earthquake shocks in California, is one of the most eminent physical geographers in Germany. He passed ten years in the United States and studied especially the seismology of California.

The professor's wife, an American woman, is also a distinguished seismologist and her husband's assistant in his researches.

"Between 1800 and 1888 417 distinct earthquakes were recorded in California," said Professor Deckert. "These earthquakes occurred in series and some shocks in each series were severe.

"The caloulations I am engaged on give me every reason to fear that earthquakes will recur in California in a short time. I do not go so far as to prophecy that these will be disastrous shocks, but I must say that all appearances point that way.

"San Francisco and its neighborhood is now the active heart of earthquakes and must so remain for some time.

"My opinion is that the coming disturbances will tend northward, up the valley to British Columbia. According to my reading of my eclipses, numerous shocks may be expected. But I repeat emphatically, it cannot be scientifically determined whether or not these shocks will be serious."

GERMAN VESSELS ARE GREYHOUNDS

English and American Lines Behind in Mail Carrying Records.

Berlin, May 10.—An official German report which has just been issued regarding the respective speeds of steamships carrying the mails between Great Britain and America shows the marked superiority of the German liners over their British rivals.

The figures given refer to the twelve months ending June 30, 1905, so that the performance of the latest fast German steamships are not taken into consideration.

During the twelve months ending June, 1905, the North German Lloyd steamships Kaiser Wilhelm II, Kronprinz Wilhelm and Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse made nine, ten and eleven Transatlantic trips respectively, which enabled the mails to be carried from New York to London in average times of 149.5 hours, 150.9 hours and 152.5 hours, respectively. The quickest conveyance of mails from New York to London by each steamer occupied only 144.1 hours, 145.6 hours and 146.3 hours, respectively.

The performances of the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland were equally good. This steamer made eight Transatlantic trips, which enabled the mails to be conveyed from New York to London in an average time of 150.6 hours, the quickest conveyance of mails occupying only 147.2 hours.

The steamships of the Cunard line were in most cases almost a day behind their German rivals. The best trips were made by the Campania, which in twelve Transatlantic trips enabled the mails to be conveyed from New York to London in an average time of 167.6 hours. The quickest conveyance of mails by the Campania occupied 163.4 hours. The Lucania is the only one of the remaining five Cunard fast steamships which can show a similar record. The White Star line record was similar.

The conveyance of mails by the fastest steamship of the American line, the Philadelphia, showed an average time of 177.6 hours.

LONDON CRITICS ON CHARLES MAJOR'S PLAY.

London, May 11.—Charles Major's "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" has been presented here with great success in the New theater. Here the play is called "Dorothy o' the Hall," while in America the play was presented under its original name and attracted attention because Bertha Galland starred in it. Mr. Major is an Indiana author.

The London critics seem to like the play because it is full of action, but they say it does not reflect the spirit of the sixteenth century, in which its plot is laid, and that the language is not the English of Shakespeare.

ORE IS LOCATED

By Stein & O'Rourke of Virginia on Land in Crawford County, Wis.

The Kickapoo Valley Journal, published at Soldiers Grove, Crawford county, Wis., says: Stein & O'Rouke's men of Virginia, Minn., who have been testpitting for the last three months on the land bought by that company from Jeff Copas last fall for the purpose of mining, have located the main body of ore at a depth of thirty-five feet.

Local capitalists are about to develop other mines here, and testpitting on other prospects are fast going on. Negotiations for land known to contain copper, iron, lead, onyx, etc., is all one can hear in our community. The writer has seen many specimens of good mineral, but never none better than the specimens of iron, copper and lead taken from land in this vicinity.

It has been known for many years that in this vicinity valuable mineral existed, but not until the great wealth of mineral in the county south of here was being worked did the people here take an active interest in their own mineral land.

The fact that the railroad facilities are so close here to the mineral lends volume to the enterprise.

The finest of copper, assaying 19½ per cent, has been found on different farms within one mile of Soldiers Grove, as was also iron the same distance from our city.

RELEASED FROM PRISON.

Frenzied Finance Pioneer Will Try to Live as Author.

London, May 11.—Jabez Balfour, principal man of the unlucky Liberator Building society, whose liabilities were about $40,000,000 when it failed, has just been released from Parkhurst prison on the Isle of Wight.

The failure of the Liberator Building society brought ruin to thousands of families, and suicides followed, while Balfour, who was its founder, fled to Argentine. In the days when the society was in its glory, Balfour was very popular. He was regarded as the leader of the Nonconformists. In 1880 he was elected to parliament. A little later he was chosen mayor of Croydon. His large contributions to charity and his generous hospitality added to his popularity.

Because of his popularity and confidence placed in him, clergymen, merchants and women invested their savings in the society of which he was the head. In 1892 it was generally believed that Gladstone would give him a place in the cabinet. But in the meantime the crash of the Liberator Building society came. After much trouble the English government secured his extradition, and in 1895 he was sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment.

Through the influence of some of his friends Balfour has secured permission to leave the prison and spend the balance of his sentence, three and a half years, under police supervision. He has been taken by his wife and his son to a small town in Northern England, where he will begin a new career. He was regarded as an able writer in his youth, and will now, at the age of 63, try to earn his living by literary work. He is in good health, has read extensively while in prison, and was regarded as a model prisoner.

SKIN DISEASES

FIERY ACIDS IN THE BLOOD

All skin diseases are due to the same cause—an excess of acid in the blood caused by faulty assimilation of food and poor bowel action; this fiery acrid matter is forced to the surface through the pores and glands. Pustules are formed, discharging a sticky fluid which dries and makes a crust, causing intense itching. When the crusts or scabs are scratched off the skin is left raw and bleeding. Sometimes skin diseases are in the dry form, and bran-like scales come on the flesh, or the skin becomes hard and dry, often cracking, and the painful itching causes acute suffering. It does not matter how the trouble is manifested, the cause is the same—an excess of acid in the blood. Salves, powders, cooling washes, etc., whil they relieve the itching and give the sufferer temporary comfort, cannot cure the trouble because they do not reach the acid laden blood. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S., a remedy that is purely vegetable and one which acts directly on the blood with a cleansing, healing effect. S. S. S. neutralizes the acids, and purifies the blood so that the skin instead of being blistered and burned by the fiery fluids, is nourished by a supply of cooling, healthy blood. Special book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired will be furnished without charge.

Dear Sirs—My body broke out with a rash or eruption which in spite of all efforts to cure continued to get worse. The itching, especially at night, was simply terrible. I had tried many highly recommended preparations without benefit, and hearing of S. S. S. determined to give it a fair trial, and was inexpressibly delighted when a few bottles cured me entirely.

WEAK POINT IN CHARTER

Brought Out at Meeting of Board of Public Works.

Property Owners Did Not Know Improvement Had Been Ordered.

A weak spot in the charter in regard to the methods employed in street improvements was forcibly shown at the meeting of the board of public works this morning, when a number of property owners on Tenth avenue east appeared to protest against the improvement.

The board had sent out notices that the first hearing on the advance assessment would be held this morning, and some of the owners appeared to protest, not against the assessment as being too heavy, but against the improvement itself. The board, of course, had no power to consider such protests, as the pavement had already been ordered by the council, and the hearing was merely on the assessment itself, to determine whether the cost of the work had been equitably distributed among the property owners. There were no protests against the assessment, and it will doubtless be confirmed after the next hearing.

Many of the property owners who appeared this morning, however, had heard of the improvement for the first time. They did not know that the work had been ordered until they received notice of the assessment, and they had no opportunity to make known their objections to the work.

Unless the property owners happen to be approached with the petition for the improvement, or read of it through the daily papers, they have no means of knowing that it is to be undertaken, and in many instances the first intimation they have that they will be called upon to stand the expense of having the street improved, is when they receive the notice of the advance assessment from the board of public works. They then appear before the board and protest against the improvement after it has been ordered by the council, and it is too late for their objections to carry any weight.

"It is one of the weak points in the charter in my opinion," said Secretary Murchison of the board, this morning. "All of the property owners affected should be informed when a street improvement is contemplated."

RELICS OF WASHINGTON ARE SOLD AT AUCTION.

New York, May 11.—Another affecting farewell scene took place this week at Fraunce's tavern, the place where Gen. George Washington bade farewell to his officers just 125 years ago Dec. 4 last, when were sold at auction the remaining continental and modern contents of the tavern, preparatory to turning the building over to the Sons of the Revolution, who will restore it.

Samuel Kreiser, the auctioneer, mounted the chair in which Gen. Washington used to sit, and said:

"How much do you bid for this steel engraving of Fraunce's tavern and a subjoined bill written and receipted by Samuel Faunce, for supplies furnished the presidential household, amounting to $133.50, dated Dec. 9, 1793?

"This shows that Mr. Washington was no hotel beat. Sold to Mr. Marks for $20.

"Now, I have a mirror where Mr. Washington used to look at himself for hours at a time."

It was sold for 50 cents.

Pretty much everything in the place was sold except the black coat, which, like all the children who have been born there during the past 100 years, has Washington in his name.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Grafton Attorney to Go to Manitoba to Assist in Doyle's Prosecution.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Neighbors in Mount Carmal, Cavalier county, of the late Vincent Weiler, who, it is believed, was murdered at a point near Snowflake, Man., by Matt Doyle, who is now under arrest at Morden, have taken much interest in the prosecution and have engaged State's Attorney E. R. Sinkler of Grafton to go to Morden and lend what assistance he can to the prosecution. Mr. Sinkler can only aid the king's counsel through courtesy, and it is understood that the Manitoba officials will welcome any assistance that may come from this side of the line. Mr. Sinkler prosecuted Doyle on a charge of kidnaping.

County Auditor Hans Anderson has announced that he will follow the law as it appears on the statute books, and will require every candidate for office at the primary election in June to pay the fee required by the new primary law. Attorney General Frich held this portion of the law is unconstitutional and the Republican state central committee elected to follow his opinion.

Candidates for county nominations will be required to file their petitions with the county auditor not before May 20 nor after May 30. As the last day for filing falls on a holiday it will be necessary to file on or before May 29.

Roland, aged 3 years, son of George Nelson, fell into a cistern in the rear of the house last evening, and was unconscious when lifted out a few minutes later. A physician was on hand promptly and the little fellow was revived.

The tot was playing with other children in the yard, and had had his father tie a long rope around his waist so that he could play horse. He was missed by the other children, and some member of the family thought of the cistern. A hasty examination there showed the end of the rope leading into the cistern which contained about four feet of water.

Fargo—Fargo's oldest resident, H. Porter, is dead. He was 90 last March, and about the same time celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his marriage. He had been vigorous almost up to the time of his death, and his widow, about the same age, is active. C. D. Porter, a son residing in Fargo, and another son in Jamestown, were the only children.

Manager J. P. Walsh of the Northwestern Telephone exchange in this city, is dead of heart failure. He was promoted to the managerial position about a year ago having worked up from lineman. His parents and brother live in St. Cloud. A wife and a baby child composed the members of the family. Mr. Walsh served in the Philippines with the St. Cloud company.

Mrs. Rose Lewis, a professional nurse, who went to San Francisco after the earthquake to assist in caring for the sick, has returned. She was sent by the ladies of the Eastern Star and Col. Morton. She assisted in the work for several days, but found there was an excess of nurses and physicians, who had been sent from cities nearer the seat of the trouble.

Nelson Miller, whose family was found to be living in a barn with horses and cattle, has been placed under arrest on a charge of non-support. His trouble is attributed to strong drink.

Devils Lake—Edward F. Flynn will at once start the erection of a seventy-room hotel near the new Great Northern station. It will be steam-heated and modern in every way, and one of the best hotels in this part of the state. It has already been leased by a local boniface.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—Jess Smith, a teamster employed by Sheriff Wright, took carbolic acid in a dance hall here, and died in the presence of the company. He was jealous of the attentions paid his wife.

Evarts—New settlers are pouring into Butte county along the route of the Milwaukee's Pacific coast extension at a rate unprecedented in South Dakota since Brown county and other northern counties of the state were settled in the early eighties. Realizing the great possibilities of Northwestern South Dakota when it is placed in touch with the markets by the new railroad line, the homeseekers are eagerly filing on the fertile lands of that county.

So great is the rush that Charles J. Dousman of Walworth county has been appointed United States commissioner with headquarters at Selm, at the forks of the Grand river in the heart of the new country. He has full power to accept and register all filing made. Heretofore it was necessary for settlers to make a journey to Rapid City to file their claims.

An advantage the new settlers will have over the pioneers in the eastern part of the state is the fact that they will have an abundance of cheap and easily available fuel. Under a large portion of the surface of the land opened up to settlement lies large deposits of lignite of a quality equal if not superior to that found in North Dakota. According to the interpretation of the law by the land bureau, this land is subject to homestead entry and is not reserved as coal land.

When the railroad is built through this region this town, Aberdeen and other centers will be placed in close touch with cheap fuel, and will no longer have to depend solely on the coal mines of the Eastern states.

Hundreds of settlers are arriving here for the new country. They leave this town by team, horseback, automobile and other conveyances. Evarts seems to be the connecting link between the settled and the unsettled country.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

VISITS OLD PASTORATE

Rev. J. A. Laurie Returns After Twenty Years' Absence.

Was First Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church.

After twenty years or more of absence from the scene of his early labors as a pastor, Rev. J. A. Laurie, the first pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, is spending a few days at the home of his niece, Mrs. Robert Baker, 702 East Fourth street, and is visiting the few of his old friends that he can find.

Rev. Mr. Laurie came to Duluth with his family in 1873. The church was built where it now stands, near the corner of Garfield avenue and West Superior street, and he remained in charge until 1884, leaving that year to assume the pastorate of a church at Ellenburg, in the then territory of Washington. He remained at Ellenburg for several years, and retired from the ministry, seeking a home at Anacortes, a town located on Fidalgo island, in Puget sound, and within the confines of the state of Washington. There he has ever since resided with his family, comprised of Mrs. Laurie and two married children, a son and a daughter, James A. Laurie, Jr., another son, is in charge of the Presbyterian church at Hoequaim, Wash.

"With the exception of a hurried call here in 1886, this is the first visit that I have made to Duluth since we left in 1884," said Rev. Mr. Laurie, this morning. "After that two years' absence I did not know the city, and must say that there is scarcely anything here now by which I could recognize it. There have been some wonderful changes in Duluth in the twenty years. I can note that although I arrived last evening, and have had scarcely time enough to look around much.

"Duluth has gained rapidly in population and business enterprise, like other cities that had attained about the same degree of growth the city had when I left, and I am not surprised to find the present state of affairs.

"When I was residing here the St. Louis hotel was built. The Spalding hotel was erected shortly after I left. Since that time there have been scores of big buildings erected here.

"The railroad between Duluth and St. Paul was known as the Lake Superior & Mississippi road in the early days. I remember Supt. Smith telling me that he intended having the name changed as he did not like it; that it was entirely too indefinite. He said you could not tell by the name where the line started, or where it ended, so he got the name changed to the St. Paul & Duluth road.

"I miss many of the old friends that I knew when pastor here. Some are dead, and many are scattered. It is a great pleasure for me to meet any of them.

"The first marriage ceremony I performed in the Second Presbyterian church was that for William McEwen, whom I understand is still residing here. The wedding took place in the church, before it was dedicated."

Rev. Mr. Laurie expects to remain in the city until Monday, when he will go on to the general assembly of the Presbyterians at Des Moines, Iowa. He will represent the Bellingham, Wash., presbytery at the assembly.

ODOR OFFENSIVE TO NEIGHBORS

Morris Rusnowski Arrested for Failure to Clean Yard.

"If the health department orders you to clean up your premises, you have got to do it," said Judge Windom to Morris Rusnowsky, in the municipal court this morning.

"That is the business of the health department, and you can't be allowed to make your place a nuisance to your neighbors."

Rusnowsky was arrested for allowing a box of manure to remain on his property and become a nuisance to his neighbors. The box stood within two feet of his neighbor's house and only six feet from a window. Witnesses testified that in the summer it was impossible to keep the windows open because of the odor from the manure.

The prisoner is claimed to have disregarded the orders of the health inspectors, and a warrant was finally sworn out for his arrest.

Judge Windom fined him $3 and costs, and warned him to comply with the health ordinance in future.

GRAND JURY GOES AFTER A PASTOR

Rev. Swift Charged With Attempting Extortion Through Blackmail.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 11.—On the charge that he attempted to blackmail W. J. McConnell, a prominent banker, Rev. John S. Swift, pastor of the Christian church at Winterset, has been indicted by the federal grand jury. The specific charge is using the mails to defraud.

It is said the minister wrote three letters implicating the banker and a young woman, leader of his own choir, in criminal charges. These letters he forwarded to a Chicago minister with the request that they be rewritten and mailed anonymously, one to the chorister and one to himself. With his own it is charged he attempted to extort money from the banker. Mr. McConnell refused to fall into the trap and immediately commenced running down the authorship of the letters.

He succeeded in getting one of the originals and it is attached to the indictment. Sentiment in the little town turned against the preacher and Mr. Swift, with his family, disappeared. It is thought he is living somewhere in South Carolina.

Jury Case Setting.

The following setting of jury cases was made by Judge Dibell yesterday:
Friday—Nos. 23, 24, 47 and 48.
Monday—Nos. 39, 49, 51, 53 and 54.
Tuesday—No. 55, 56, 57, 58 and 59.
Wednesday—Nos. 60, 62, 63 and 64.

LENROOT REPLIES

In Regard to Probable Action as to Vetoing Bills.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 11.—Attorney H. B. Walmsley publishes a letter from Irvine L. Lenroot, in reply to a letter from Walmsley, sent to all Republican candidates for governor, asking each how he would act on any bill which might be passed giving the right to raise the Dells dam to a private corporation. Lenroot says he will make no pledges on purely local matters to secure votes, but when the Dells' bill last session, went to Governor LaFollette, he, Lenroot, was consulted and advised its veto, and was present when the veto was written. Lenroot also says his opinion has not changed, and that Walmsley must judge what action he, Lenroot, would take as governor, on any similar bill to the Dells bill of last session, referred to by Lenroot, which gave a grant to a private corporation.

BLOODLESS DUEL

Fought by Two Frenchmen With Pistols at Twenty-Five Paces.

Paris, May 11.—Lucien Millevoye, editor of the Patrie of this city and a Nationalist member of the chamber of deputies, fought a duel with pistols today with Count Mathieu Du Noailles, as a result of the exciting street encounter which took place between them May 9, when M. Millevoye broke his cane over the count's head. Pistols were used and two shots were exchanged at twenty-five paces, but without result.

MR. AND MRS. TOWER VISIT THE SULTAN.

Berlin, May 11.—Ambassador and Mrs. Charlemagne Tower returned here today from a vacation trip in Southern Europe, including Constantinople. Upon learning of their arrival at the Turkish capital, the sultan sent for Mr. and Mrs. Tower and spent half an hour talking with them about American affairs. The sultan referred sympathetically to the San Francisco earthquake and conferred on Mrs. Tower the grand cross of the Shefakat, an order for women.

WOMAN IN LONG STUPOR.

Red Wing, Minn., May 11.—Mrs. C. H. Boxrud, apparently well, fell into a stupor in which she has remained for twenty-four hours, physicians being unable to revive her. It is presumably an apoplectic stroke. Her husband has for over thirty years been a leading merchant here.

FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED.

Lynchburg, Va., May 11.—Four trainmen were killed and four injured in a collision today on the Norfolk & Western near here.

PUSHING THE PARK SCHEME

Mayor Goes to St. Paul to See Railroad Land Commissioner.

Mayor Cullum is in St. Paul on business connected with the proposed purchase of the land between London road and the lake, from Eighth to Thirteenth avenues east, for park purposes.

The land is the property of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and the mayor will endeavor to get the land commissioner of the road to fix a price on it.

A committee of East end residents has been at work since Monday night trying to gain some idea of the sentiment of the citizens living in that locality, and the members reported to the mayor yesterday.

If the railroad will fix a price on the land, an effort will be made to raise about half of the cost from the people in the vicinity of the proposed park, either by assessment or popular subscription, and the remainder will be taken care of by the park board.

ENDORSED BY GOVERNOR.

State of Minnesota,
Executive Department,
St. Paul, April 17, 1906.

S. W. Randenbush & Co., St. Paul, Minn.—

Gentlemen: It affords me much pleasure to state that Mrs. Johnson and myself are more than delighted with the Randenbush piano recently purchased from you. It has exceeded our expectations and is not only much admired by ourselves, but by our musical friends as well, and gives entire satisfaction to us in every possible particular. Very truly yours,
—John A. Johnson.

C. A. Woods, manufacturers' agent, 410 West Superior street.

Sue on Log Contract.

Thomas C. Stevenson and Gertrude Stevenson have instituted suits against William E. Stevenson to recover, respectively, $400 and $116, alleged to be due for services in getting out logs in Lake county. They ask that their claims be made liens on 600,000 feet of logs belonging to the defendant Stevenson, and cut in sections 5 and 8-57-6, Lake county. W. D. Edson represents Thomas C. and Gertrude Stevenson.

"THE STUCK PIG SQUEALS!"

The Zenith Telephone Company has added 1,905 new subscribers during the last eighteen months. "No wonder the Independent Telephone movement is regarded as a dangerous element!" No wonder a philanthropic institution is willing to spend hundreds of dollars weekly to advise the public in which it is so devotedly interested, to "Beware of Independent Telephone Companies!" No doubt under ordinary conditions there might be found persons who knowing the relative growth of the two companies during the above period, and having read the literature that the Bell Telephone company has caused to be published recently in the newspapers of our city would be suspicious enough to express themselves in a manner similar to the above.

Some people are apt to be cynical, have little faith in the "Milk of human kindness" which flows in the veins of humanitarian corporations. If it had ever practiced the custom of furnishing aught anywhere but a high class service for a strictly moderate price some might possibly question whether there might not be a flavoring of self interest in such an apparent deep solicitude for the public welfare. If it had ever at any time acted swinish at any of its feeding grounds anywhere throughout the entire country and the Independent Telephone movement, or any Independent Telephone company had compelled it to "Take its feet out of the trough" it might be questioned whether such generous display of solicitous regard for the welfare of the people might not have been suggested originally by a mild form of pique.

The reputation which it earned and held during its generation of life prior to the coming of the Independent Telephone movement for not only dealing fairly and equitably, but for treating all its patrons and the public everywhere with kindly forbearance, and generous and delicate courtesy, forbids the possibility of course of its being actuated by any but the most highly commendable motives! Shall we then doubt its being a case of a highly gratifying exhibition of rare and phenomenal abandonment of self to the good of others on the part of a corporation?

Wilberforce and a few others may perhaps have attained an equally high distinction. Who having read the said literature with a knowledge of the cost of its publication and with the above facts in mind will ever again suggest the possibility that all corporations can be soulless.

THE HOME CHEERFUL

A cheerful home makes cheerful people. We are a good deal like the chameleon—we unconsciously adapt our color, our "tone," disposition, mental temperament, to that of our environments. We are daily affected and influenced by our surroundings.

And speaking of surroundings, what surrounds us more constantly in the home than the walls and ceiling? If they be cheerful in tone half the battle is won in making home cheerful. Tint your walls this year with and home cheer is bound to result.

ALABASTINE

The white and founteen beautiful tints—with any resulting combination desired—are pre-eminently cheerful in tone. They are delicate, suggestive of repose, yet rich and elegant. In a word, they are the modern artistic wall decoration. There are also a baker's dozen of other sanitary and economic reasons why you should use Alabastine. In service and wear it is unequaled. Come in and let us discuss Alabastine.

The Beautiful Art Portfolio of Alabastine Prize Designs, embodying the latest ideas of the best decorative artists of America, is now for a limited time to be seen at our store.

You are cordially invited to call and examine same.

Are You Fit

To be Trusted with a Good Set of BRAINS?

GRAPE-NUTS

Keep them in Order

A BRAIN FOOD AND REPAIRER.

Every minister, lawyer, journalist, physician, author or business man is forced under pressure of modern conditions to the active and sometimes over-active use of the brain.

Analysis of the excreta thrown out by the pores shows that brain work breaks down the phosphate of potash, separating it from its heavier companion, albumen, and plain common sense teaches that this elemental principle must be introduced into the body anew each day if we would replace the loss and rebuild the brain tissue.

We know that the phosphate of potash, as presented in certain field grains, has an affinity for albumen, and that is the only way gray matter in the brain can be built. It will not answer to take the crude phosphate of potash of the drug shop, for nature rejects it. The elemental mineral must be presented through food directly from nature's laboratory.

These facts have been made use of in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts, and any brain worker can prove the value of the proper selection of food by making free use of Grape-Nuts for ten days or two weeks. Sold by grocers everywhere (and in immense quantities). Manufactured by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ATTORNEY DISBARRED

Supreme Court Suspends Benjamin Reynolds for One Year.

St. Paul, May 11.—(Special to The Herald)—Benjamin G. Reynolds, attorney at Winnebago City, was today found guilty of unprofessional conduct by the supreme court, and ordered suspended from practice for a year. The charges were filed by the state board of law examiners.

Reynolds' downfall came as a result of a trial at Blue Earth City, in which he was the attorney for the plaintiff. There it was charged he inveigled one of the jurymen, A. F. Cummings, and after buying him two drinks, a bottle of whisky, and giving him $1, proceeded to discuss the case at issue, and to tell of his interest in the matter. Reynolds did not deny going into the saloon with Cummings, or the fact that he bought him a bottle of whisky. He contended that he loaned Cummings the dollar, instead of giving it to him outright.

The whole thing, the court says, is a most deplorable one, and should call for severe punishment, but owing to Reynolds past good record and his advanced age, his disbarment is limited to one year. Reynolds is about 70 years old.

The state supreme court today handed down an opinion affirming the order of the lower court, on what is known as the Mille Lacs Indian case.

The case involved the alleged improper conversion of $10,020, part of a sum received from the government from the sale of the tribal lands. This sum was given to Gus E. Beaulieu and others to buy other lands with, and it was charged that they forgot to buy the land.

An-Dus-Oke-Shig and a number of other Mille Lacs Indian chiefs brought the suit for recovery of the money, and obtained a verdict in the Stearns county district court. Beaulieu thereupon appealed the case, on the ground that the state courts did not have any jurisdiction.

MARINE

BAY FRONT IS QUIET

Tugs in Commission Have But Little Towing to Do.

This Condition is Expected for Most of Next Week.

There is not much doing on the bay today. The two tugs which are in commission for towing purposes are having lots of spare time and in fact the whole harbor front presents a dull and unseasonable appearance. Such will likely be the case for the greater part of a week at least, although within about three days vessels will begin arriving from Lake Erie. A great many of the ore carriers are hung up at Cleveland, Erie and South Chicago and many grain carriers are held at Buffalo. These began unloading only yesterday morning so that stragglers will be heading for Duluth in a day or so.

It is reported that President Keefe of the Longshoremen understood in the beginning that the Pilots' union numbered 1,900 mates on its membership roles, and that when he found its membership was only 325 he threw up both hands and quit.

LETTERS FOR SAILORS.

Detroit Marine Postoffice Lists Some Improperly Addressed Ones.

In an effort to assist the marine postoffice at Detroit in delivering letters which have not been properly directed to sailors, James Scanlon, Detroit agent of the Seamen's union, is sending out a list of such improperly addressed letters to various locals of the Seamen's union about the lakes. Many of the letters are merely addressed with the name of the person for whom they are intended, and no other address. These letters the Detroit marine postoffice of course has been unable to deliver.

One letter recalls one of the disasters of last fall, being addressed to "Roland Auher, care of steamer Ira H. Owen," and is dated last fall. The Owen, with nineteen men, was lost in Lake Superior and nothing has been heard of her nor has any trace of wreckage ever been found.

ANOTHER NEW FREIGHTER.

Steamer E. D. Carter Arrives in Port on Maiden Trip.

The new freighter, E. D. Carter, owned by the gentleman of that name of Erie, Pa., arrived in this harbor today on her maiden trip and is now loading ore at the docks in Allouez bay. The Carter was built at the Wyandotte yard of the American Shipbuilding company during the past winter and was launched on Jan. 13 of this year.

The steamer is a duplicate of the Leonard C. Hanna and will carry 9,000 tons of ore on the present draught. She is 524 feet over all, 504 feet keel, 54 feet beam and 30 feet deep. Her engines are triple expansion with cylinders 22½, 36 and 60 inch diameters by 42 inch stroke, and she is equipped with two Scotch boilers, 18 feet 9 inches in diameter by 11½ feet long, allowing 180 pounds pressure.

Capt. C. H. Wilson of Erie, who sailed the Luzon last season, is master of the Carter.

Much Grain Going By Rail.

Chicago, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Flower was placed for corn to Buffalo at 1¼c. It is said that contracts for all rail shipments of between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels of grain are outstanding, and not much will be done by lake until these shipments have been made. The contracts were made when it seemed that the lake strike would run along for some time.

Marine Notes.

Repairs were completed Tuesday on the steamer Sir William Tiemens and she was floated from the great floating drydock at the Bcourse shipyards. The steamer was damaged last fall in assisting the steamer Corey off the rocks of Gull Island in Lake Superior, and twenty-nine of her plates had to be replaced. She was the largest steamer ever lifted by a floating drydock on the Great Lakes.

Receipts at Tonawanda the first week in May were 7,457,648 feet of lumber and 13,499 tons of ore.

The rumor that the Rutland line steamers might cut Detroit off their calling list because of lack of business, is confirmed by John Stevenson, Detroit agent of the line.

The new steamer, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, will probably be ready for launching at the Wyandotte shipyards by Saturday or the first of next week. She is for Charles O. Jenkins of Cleveland.

The steamer Chauncey Hulburt, while on her first trip of the season, Monday afternoon got as far as Smith's coal dock in Detroit when something went wrong with her boiler and she had to go back to Oades' shipyards for repairs.

Free Band Concert Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening the Union Clothing and Shoe house will give another of their enjoyable band concerts, to which all Duluth is invited. The Union does not require any one to buy to be welcome tomorrow, but the bargain list is nevertheless a very enticing one. A glance over the firm's ad in today's paper will reveal buying opportunities in clothing and furnishings for men and boys that one can scarcely afford to overlook.

WEST DULUTH

FIREMEN'S GRIEVANCE

Small Fires Set by Boys Burn Grass and Endanger Property.

Obstacles Set in Streets Jeopardize Lives of Firemen.

The fire department at West Duluth engine house No. 8 have kicks coming about two things. The first is the setting of fires in the midst of dry grass by boys or somebody else, and the other is about builders leaving bricks, wagons, etc., in the streets at night without putting out the customary danger signal—a red light. About 8 o'clock last night No. 8 was called out to take care of one of these small fires which had been built between the National Iron works and Petruschke's box factory and which crept along the dry grass across the terminal tracks over to the box factory lumber yard. The fire was checked before it had reached the lumber or there would probably have been quite a conflagration.

Capt. Maghan of No. 8 says that the department has been bothered a good deal of late by such fires and in several instances sidewalks have been burned up and residences endangered. He has complained to the police about the matter.

Another thing which the captain has brought to the attention of the police is that builders are blocking the streets. Last night while the firemen were returning from the fire mentioned they were almost blocked on Fifty-first avenue, where the new Northland hotel is building. The firemen claim that bricks and other building material are piled away out into the street and in addition to that a wagon filled up the rest of the street, except for a space of less than six feet to the opposite curb. And no light was burning. The electric light was the only thing which showed the obstacle and had that for any reason gone out, the firemen would probably have had a collision with the wagon.

Only two weeks ago Fireman William McLaughlin of No. 2, while going to a fire on the seat of the salvage wagon, was thrown from the rig on West First street when the wagon collided with a similar obstacle unlighted and broke his arm. The firemen say that it is nothing short of marvelous that some of their number is not killed once in a while.

WORK ON APPROACH.

Concrete Retaining Wall in for New Ore Dock Tracks.

Work is being pushed by Barnett & Record on the new Missabe dock and approach. At Grand avenue the retaining wall for the earthwork is complete and most of the filling is in up to Collingwood avenue where the new track will join with the main line. The retaining wall is of concrete instead of brownstone blocks such as were used on the other approach.

The wooden part of the approach is being built from Grand avenue to Superior street and is rapidly taking shape. The dock itself is also being pushed.

Irving School Alumni.

The Irving School Alumni will meet at the school tonight to consider a proposed amendment to the constitution. This is to the effect that all dues are to be abolished and that a straight price will be charged instead, for admission to the annual banquet. Tonight the coming banquet will be discussed. It will take place the last Friday in June before school closes.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness, sympathy and beautiful floral offerings, tendered in our late bereavement.

SWEARS OFF AGAIN.

John L. Sullivan Says He Has Taken His Last Drink.

St. Paul, May 11.—John L. Sullivan has sworn off. "I have taken my last drink," declared the ex-champion heavyweight behind the wings of the theater where he is performing. "It is no use. I tried to drink it all up and found that it was impossible. After years of experience, I have found that there is nothing in it after all—yes, you may say nothing at all.

"I have not taken a drink in the last three months and never intend to take another. I am through with that backed-up-to-the-bar business where you take one drink because you want to and ten for reasons of sociability. After you get through you find that you have had just ten drinks more than you wanted."

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Iron Mountain—Bragini Giacomo, who murdered the 4-days-old child of Enrico Montanotta at Iron Mountain, has been removed from the city bastile to the Dickinson county jail. Difficulty was experienced by the officers in transporting the prisoner. Giacomo was placed in the padded cell and this it is reported he has already damaged to a considerable extent. Prosecuting Attorney A. C. Cook has placed the prisoner under the surveillance of Dr. Joseph A. Crowell and Dr. S. Edwin Cruse for two weeks to observe the actions of Giacomo in order to determine his mental condition. Giacomo is reported to be a periodical drunkard and it is a question at the present time whether delirium tremens, following heavy intoxication, is responsible for the perpetration of the fiendish deed when he grabbed the infant from its mother's arms and beat out its brains against the kitchen wall. Giacomo is said to have come within an ace of being electrocuted at the Hamilton shaft of the Chapin mine a year ago by coming into contact with a live wire while employed as a trammer. A fellow worker, while attempting to release Giacomo from his perilous position, was himself electrocuted.

The mystery of the disappearance of Mary Jayna, a 16-year-old girl living at Wakefield, Gogebic county, has been solved by the discovery of her corpse in Sunday lake. There was an apron tied around her neck, but no evidence of strnagulation, and it is believed that she jumped into the water and drowned herself.

Marquette—As a result of the recount here, Mayor Rush Culver's majority over Former Mayor Ward has been increased from seven to thirty. The ballots cast in the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh wards were those recounted. Over eighty votes were thrown out as defective.

Menominee—The distinction of taking the biggest fish from waters of the North country this season has fallen to Homer Williams, a Menominee man. This prize catch consisted of two sturgeon, one of which weighed 140 pounds and the other 162 pounds. The fish were caught in nets set in Green bay. There was a time when the sturgeon were so thick that they were caught by the boat load and plied up on the shore like cordwood. They are very scarce in these waters now, however, and it is seldom that more than three or four are taken from the bay during the course of a year.

Houghton—While en route home from St. Ignatius parochial school, Susie Manderfield, a young girl, was attacked by a man near the Isle Royale location, who chloroformed her and attempted an assault. Two boys passing on bicycles frightened the assailant away before he could accomplish his purpose. Similar attacks of young women have occurred here at intervals.

Norway—With the neck broken and the head buried seven inches in the sand, indicating that he had been thrown or had fallen from the structure, the body of Christian Knosman, a Finnish miner, was found at the foot of the railroad bridge at Amasa. The identity of the corpse was unknown until identified by the widow of the dead man.

While there is some suspicion that there may have been foul play, the verdict of the coroner's jury was "death from a fall, the cause and manner unknown, but apparently accidental."

COMPANY PAID LARGE AMOUNTS

To Certain Individuals for Protection Against Obnoxious Legislation.

Milwaukee, May 11.—Vice President George C. Markham of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company continued his testimony at the opening session today, before the special legislative insurance investigating committee. The first questions dealt with the profession of the certain individuals who received fees for protecting the interests against alleged obnoxious legislation. Mr. Markham was unable to state whether or not Ole Olson of Oshkosh, who received several hundred dollars for such services was a lawyer or not. Neither could he tell what services were performed by Brown and Wheeler, attorneys of Illinois, who received $1,500 for services before the Illinois legislature in 1901. Mr. Markham declared emphatically that his company had never joined other companies in a joint fight against legislative bills.

It developed that J. B. McGuire, the general agent of the company in Southern Illinois, received approximately $1,500 for looking after legislative matters in Illinois during one year and $1,000 for another.

During Mr. Markham's testimony it developed that the company had at one time paid a fine and costs of $1,049 for an agent, charged with rebating, in Illinois. The witness said that an investigation by the agency department showed that the agent was innocent, and that a job had been put upon him to make him trouble.

The company's records showed that Justice Brewer, a non-resident trustee, received $450 for expenses and salary, covering the last trip here, to attend the trustees' meeting on July 18 and 19, last year, and for examining into the different departments of the company. The salary allowed is $25 per day and expenses incident to the trip.

Mr. Markham defended the proxy system of electing trustees, and said that he could conceive of no better system that would better protect the company and its policyholders.

PAPER COMPANY WILL DISSOLVE

Vice President Says Newspaper Publishers Have Made a Mistake.

Milwaukee, May 11.—A Journal special from Menasha, Wis., says: George A. Whiting, vice president of the General Paper company, says that the company will now dissolve. When asked whether the offices maintained in the Wells building, Milwaukee, and in Chicago, would be closed, he said he believed there would be no offices hereafter.

"The newspaper publishers will find to their cost that they have killed the goose that laid the golden egg," declared Mr. Whiting. "The General Paper company was an organization formed legitimately as a natural means for properly conducting the business of the companies comprising it. When you consider that coal and other raw materials have gone up away above former figures, you will appreciate the very favorable prices that were granted to consumers.

"Any man with 10 cents' worth of brains will see that this has been true. This yellow journal yawping about the General Paper company has been absurd.

"You will doubtless hear a great many rumors about what we are likely to do. I do not know at this time whether one company will be formed or not to combine all the mills under one management. There have been a great many plans suggested."

THREATENED TO MAKE TROUBLE

Witness Against Standard Oil Company Closely Examined.

Chicago, May 11.—Nearly every railroad running south, north and west from Chicago was represented today before the interstate commerce commission when the investigation into the relations of the Standard Oil company with the railroads was resumed. Attorney C. C. Laforge representing the Standard Oil company of Kentucky, opened the proceedings by a cross examination of Maywood Maxon of Illinois, who was the last witness yesterday.

The attorney read a number of letters written by Maxon in which he threatened to make trouble for the Standard Oil company because he had been refused a year's leave of absence. One of the letters said:

"I mean to make all the trouble for the company I can. Your attorney, Mr. Eddy, attacked my interests before the legislature at Springfield, Ill., and I will get even before I am through." Maxon admitted being the writer of the letters.

"Is it true that you have about 1,500 letters and documents in your possession belonging to the Standard Oil company of Kentucky?" asked Mr. Laforge.

"I have a large number of letters and papers addressed to officers of the company and letters written by them to their agents," replied the witness.

"How did you get them?"

"In the same way that for years I got information for the Standard Oil company."

Attorney Laforge then read a letter written by Mr. Maxon to C. M. Pratt, an officer of the Standard Oil company in New York in which he said that he had obtained 600 letters from one of the company's agents in Ohio and had allowed Commissioner Garfield to copy them for use in prosecuting the company.

In answer to questions of the attorney regarding passes Maxon said that he had passes on nearly every road in his territory and used them in traveling on the company's business. He obtained the passes, he said, from Treasurer Holmes and other officials of the Standard Oil company.

MRS. TEWKSBURY ACQUITTED.

London, May 11.—Mrs. Violet Tewksbury, who was extradited from Paris, March 30, charged with passing fraudulent checks at the instigation of her husband, Lewis Green Tewksbury of New York, was acquitted in the sessions court today after a three-days' trial.

FIGHT WITH A HUNGRY BEAR

Brown Lost His Cabin, But is Thankful He is Alive.

Wirt, Minn., May 11.—Bertram Brown, who lives on his claim, about six miles above this place, was the victim of a peculiar accident last week, and although he lost all his earthly goods but his Winchester rifle, Mr. Brown is far from being despondent over the affair. In fact he feels somewhat like some of the California calamity sufferers. He lost his property, but he was lucky to escape with his life.

Mr. Brown last week came down to Wirt and purchased some supplies, among which was some very nice bacon, which he took home and hung in the house. That night he was awakened by a cold nozzle being thrust into his face and then an angry, startled snort. It did not take him more than a few seconds to realize that a bear, and a lean and hungry one at that, was the marauder that had disturbed his slumbers. More than that, he saw by the light from the half-opened cabin door that bruin was between him and his faithful rifle, which was hanging on the wall near the door.

In the meantime the bear had discovered the bacon, and was busily engaged in eating it. In the dim starlight Brown sadly meditated upon the slender supply of bacon and the probable healthy appetite of the half-starved bear. Then he thought of the rude, stationary split rail ladder leading to the garret, and decided that his only chance was to skidoo up the ladder. It was a dangerous undertaking, as he had to pass very close to the bear in his way. However, he decided there was nothing else for him to do if he wanted to see the sun rise again. So he made a dash for the ladder, and the bear made a dash for him. But Brown won by a narrow margin, and climbed up the ladder to what he believed to be safety, while the bear returned to his interrupted meal of bacon.

It did not take the bear very long to finish the bacon, and then it began to investigate other articles in the house. There was nothing that it seemed to like among other provisions that Mr. Brown had purchased, so bruin finally turned his attention to Brown.

That luckless individual, imagining himself safe from harm, was startled to hear the scratching of long, sharp claws on the ladder leading to his retreat, and he quickly realized that the bear, having finished his bacon, was after him. Seizing a loose split rail that formed part of the floor of the attic, Brown used it as a lance and jabbed the bear in the head or the breast, knocking him off the ladder.

With a howl of rage bruin renewed the attack, and Brown soon saw that a fence rail would not keep the bear down very long. He remembered there was a lamp half filled with kerosene on a rough stand near the entrance to the attic. After he had knocked the bear down for about the tenth time, he seized the lamp and carried it back to his post. Then he knocked the oncoming bear down and quickly unscrewinging the top from the lamp, he poured the kerosene upon the bear as the latter again started up the ladder.

With the pole, Brown again poked bruin off the ladder, and then he struck a match that he found near the lamp and dropped the burning stem down upon the oil-soaked bear. The ragged oily fur of the bear caught fire and, snorting with fear and pain, bruin raced around the room, vainly seeking for an outlet. In his mad career he upset Brown's bed, and set it on fire, and before the bear finally found the door and dashed away into the woods the house was ablaze and Brown himself was almost suffocated from the smoke.

Brown, however, managed to get out of the attic and save his rifle and his clothes, but that was all. In the morning he followed the trail of the bear and found the animal on the banks of a slough, near the Big Fork river, licking its wounds and whining pitifully. Brown took pity on the hairy sufferer and put him out of misery with a bullet from his rifle.

THE RATE BILL.

Two Allison Amendments Are Adopted by the Senate.

Washington, May 11.—Consideration of the railroad rate bill was resumed in the senate today. Senator Allison presented the first of his compromise amendments striking out the words "fairly remunerative" from the fourth section of the bill as descriptive of the rates which the interstate commerce commission may prescribe. The amendment was adopted without debate or division.

Senator La Follette made objection to the second amendment limiting to two years the continuance of the commission's orders. He moved to strike out the limitation.

Mr. La Follette's motion was voted down and the Allison amendment was then adopted.

After two of the Allison amendments to the rate bill had been adopted, Senator Bailey presented his amendment prohibiting inferior United States courts from issuing temporary injunctions against the orders of the interstate commerce commission.

Senator Tillman offered an amendment provided by the interstate commerce commission extending the authority of the commission over joint rates and through rates "partly by rail and partly by water."

The amendment was voted down, but when subsequently offered in modified form by Senator Lodge, was adopted.

OIL KING HAS RIVAL.

Mrs. Emily H. Potter of New York Dodging Subpoena Server.

New York, May 11.—John D. Rockefeller is not the only member of the tribe of the trusts who is expert at dodging the subpoena server.

Guarded by fierce dogs and a special policeman, Mrs. Emily H. Potter, daughter of W. H. Havemeyer and wife of Edward C. Potter, nephew of Bishop Potter, is successfully frustrating the efforts of process-servers to reach her in her home in the country club grounds at Westchester.

The process men are trying to serve her with papers in a suit brought for $3,600 for gowns and other finery.

PLANNED DEATH BY FIRE AND SHOT

Frantic Woman Shoots Self and Lays Train of Fire.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—Taking a double-barreled shotgun, a bucket of kerosene and a box of matches, Mrs. Charles Thomas, wife of a chicken rancher, went to a chicken coop and committed suicide, after making preparations for the incineration of her body.

The report of the shotgun brought her husband to the spot and he discovered his wife dead on the floor, the top of her head blown away, and a flickering blaze in several little puddles of oil. The flames had not yet reached the clothing of the woman and were extinguished before her body was burned.

Mrs. Thomas poured the oil in puddles on the floor and set them ablaze. Then she lay down and attached a string, which she had tied to the trigger of the gun, to her toe. Apparently she had then placed the muzzle of the weapon in her mouth and discharged one barrel, the load of heavy shot tearing upward through the roof of her mouth and carrying away the top of her skull. The floor of the chicken coop was of dirt, and as the oil had nothing to feed upon it had almost burned out when the shot was fired.

Mrs. Thomas was 42, and is said to have been acting strangely of late. She is supposed to have been driven to suicide by ill health and worry.

ALFONSO IS SPAIN'S IDOL

Young Ruler, to be Married June 2, Growing in Favor.

Incidents Related Typical of the Young King's Character.

London, May 11.—While King Alfonso and Princess Ena are making love on the quiet Isle of Wight, where few can intrude, the arrangements for the wedding at Madrid, June 2, are being completed in the courts of Europe. The royal lovers are said to be much more interested in dresses, uniforms and their own trappings than in the more spectacular affairs, which are being settled by court dignataries

It is announced here that the prince of Wales, probably accompanied by the princess, will represent King Edward at the ceremonies, and Prince Louis of Battenberg will give the princess bride away. In accord with King Edward's expressed wish, Prince Louis will be attended by a staff of three distinguished naval officers.

In connection with the present secluded love-making and the stories told of the doings of the happy pair, the following extracts from a letter from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, where King Alfonso recently visited, are of interest:

"During the recent visit of King Alfonso to the Canaries I had frequent opportunities of closely observing him. The recent visit was the first ever made by a king of Spain to his distant subjects in Canary, and the youthful monarch, with infinitely boyish zest, joined in the general round of pleasure.

"To an English mind, the strangest thing about the king's reception was the almost complete lack of the more boisterous forms of welcome. The English residents, however, did their best to make up for any shortcomings in this respect, and the organized cheer from the balconies of the English hotels and private houses as the king went by invariably attracted his attention and provoked from him a special salute and a most winning smile.

"Above everything else, the young king has a most charming smile. To him the peculiar Spanish word 'simpatico' is particularly applicable; and even when translated by such adjectives as 'pleasant,' 'winning' or 'affable,' the meaning of the term has hardly been expressed. Although still so young, he has all the bearing of a king, assisted in some degree by his tall figure and complete absence of shyness.

"He talks English very well, and frequently expresses his ambition to know it better, informing the wife of one of the principal English residents that it was his intention to talk the language on all occasions with his future bride; while she, in return, would speak Spanish, until they had both gained sufficient mastery of the respective tongues to converse freely in either.

"At times the king's manner is almost autocratic, and a certain colonel in the neighboring city of Santa Cruz de Tenerriffe will have reason to remember him. On the occasion of the king's official inspection of the barracks there, this individual invited a number of ladies to witness the young sovereign's arrival. The king surveyed this array of feminine curiosity with disaproval. 'I come here,' he said, 'to inspect soldiers, not to see ladies.'

"On another occasion he became impatient at the somewhat tardy marchpast of the troops, and energetically signaled to them to accelerate their movements, while at another time he personally directed the too-eager crowd of sight-seers to stand further back, in order not to impede the progress of the soldiers.

"The good looks of Princess Ena and the young king's openly displayed affection for her have placed her in high favor. Her photograph has a tremendous sale everywhere. The star of Spain is at present very much in the ascendant, and whenever Spaniards meet to discuss their national affairs they speak very hopefully of the future of the country.

"The climax of the king's popularity in Grand Canary was reached on the evening of the day previous to his departure, at the battle of flowers held in the main street of Las Palmas. It was arranged that the king should drive twice through the long street in the official carriage, in order, as it were, to bid good-by to his subjects and receive their floral tributes. However, after that afternoon of fun the excitement of the king was quite equal to that of anybody present, and, ignoring the official conveyance, he climbed on the back of an artillery cart, decorated by some of the young Spanish officers, and thus alone and unprotected, he twice made the circuit of the thoroughfare, while the people flocked around him in thousands to throw their flowers and rosettes and paper streamers.

"On a previous occasion, after a service in the old cathedral, the king suddenly left his attendants, and, crossing the road to the crowded public square on the opposite side, he cleft a lane for himself, almost by force, through the dense mass of sightseers.

"At the battle of flowers the king was the hero of an incident which created the most uproarious merriment. He was seated on a tribune occupying a central situation, and a decorated tartana, containing three or four English women, stopped directly beneath him. The king saw his opportunity, and immediately began to pile flowers on the heads of the hapless ladies below. They endeavored to bombard the king in return, but were hopelessly outmatched from the start, as a store of willing hands were always ready to supply the king witht fresh ammunition as soon as his own supplies became exhausted.

"In a very short time the 'tartana' was a mass of flowers and festoons of colored papre, beneath which the ladies were quite indistinguishable. The height of the fun was reached when the king, unable to find any more flowers or streamers, solemnly lifted a pole of empty baskets and lightly dropped them on the heads of the helpless but honored occupants of the vehicle. The snapshotters at that time were particularly busy.

"One more incident typical of the young king's character. In front of the bishop's palace at Las Palmas, at which residence the king dined on several occasions, there is a balcony, the windows of which proved to be rather stiff, through disuse, at a time when the young monarch had to appear and show himself to the throng of people waiting below. First, the servants tried to raise the window and failed. Then some of the king's own officials came to their assistance, and, by theil united efforts, the window was lifted to a height of two feet or so.

"Anxiety was beginning to show on the faces of thos around, and visions were entertained of the king being compelled to wriggle through the aperture in a most undignified way, when Alfonso, making a way for himself through the bystanders, stooped, placed his back beneath the obstinate framework, and magnificently pushed it upwards to a height sufficient to enable him to step out in the ordinary way."

PLAYFUL SPIRIT LOCKS THE DOORS

Man Barred From Room, Now Believes in Manifestations.

Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, May 11.—What is regarded as a practical joke played by a spirit, is the latest experience of F. W. Fitz Simmons of the Natal government museum. This is his experience:

"One evening, a few months ago, the door of a room in my house was closed and locked in a most mysterious manner. This door had never before been locked, as there never was any occasion to do so, and the key was always in the outside of the lock.

"On examining it, I found the key had been removed and inserted into the other side of the lock, the door was locked and the key still remained in the lock. Suspecting a practical joke, I went around to the window, but found it shut and barred.

"I called witnesses to examine and see for themselves, but they could offer no explanation other than that if it was done by human agency the person who did it must of necessity be inside the room.

"We agreed to break the window, which I did, and inserting my arm unfastened the catch and entered, fully.

"Mr. Brown," adds Mr. Fitz Simmons, one was there, and no noe could possibly have slipped out unawares, for there were guards at the window.

"The following evening, at a seance held in the same house, we were informed that a spirit was present, who desired to write a message. I signified my willingness, and the medium's hand automatically wrote with lightning rapidity the following:

"I see your are sorely puzzled to account for what occurred last evening. I hope you will forgive me, for it was I who did it.

"'Don't you remember how I used to declare before I passed over that I would return, and if at all possible I would give you some convincing test? You know how keen I was on physical phenomena and tests when I was with you, etc.

will be more than grateful if you tell how was an intimate friend of mine, who for a couple of years had been one of my colleagues in the practical investigation of the proofs of spirit return and spirit identity. He died about six months before the above occurrence."

PHILADELPHIA DOG FISHERMAN STOLEN.

Philadelphia, May 11.—"Rex, the fishing dog," who will hold a fishing rod for hours and then bark when there is a nibble at the bait to summon the fisherman, is gone, and H. B. Mitchell of 5064 Spruce street, his master, will have to postpone his piscatorial trips unless the person who stole Rex will return him.

Mitchell is ready to pay any sum for the return of Rex and is so anxious to get him that he will not even ask questions.

Rex is an intelligent disciple of Izaak Walton. Mitchell says. All the master has to do is to place the rod and reel in the animal's jaws, tell him to watch the line and then go to sleep. Rex will remain motionless for hours, but as soon as there is a nibble he will set up a howl that can be heard a long distance away.

LARGE RING FOR BRIDE.

Wedding Jewel is Nearly Five Times Usual Weight.

Allentown, Pa., May 11.—In the show window of a local jeweler is displayed the largest solid gold wedding ring ever brought to this city. It weighs twenty-three and a half pennyweights. The average weight of wedding rings is only five pennyweights. The ring was ordered by a prominent citizen for a young woman, who is soon to become his bride.

PRICES CUT BY FISH MEN

Keen Competition Brings the Market Down to Rock Bottom.

Arkansas Berries on Market—Heavy Demand for Poultry.

Fish prices have reached rock bottom, as the result of the keen competition among the dealers in Duluth.

The Booth company and the independent dealers in the city are at sword's points, and the prices at which fresh fish are being offered are barely sufficient to cover the actual cost and the transportation charges. There is no margin of profit left in the business for the dealers, and in some cases the fish may be sold at an actual loss, when the shrinkage and incidental expenses are taken into consideration.

Fresh Lake Superior trout are selling at 6 cents a pound, which is but little above the price paid to the fishermen. Whitefish are bringing 12½ cents, halibut 10 cents, perch 8 cents and pike 10 cents. These are about the only varieties of fresh fish in the market at the present time, although occasional shipments of samon are received. The salmon are selling at about 15 cents a pound.

This condition of affairs has been brewing for the last two or three weeks, but the prices have been hammered down to the lowest possible figure this week, and it is difficult to see how they could go much lower and allow the dealers to continue in business.

* * *

The market has been flooded with a number of shipments of poor strawberries for the last two weeks. The berries were green and tasteless, but an improvement is promised this week.

The Arkansas berries from the famous Ozark region are now ripe, and car lots are being received daily. They are of a higher grade than those which have been coming in since the first of the month, and are selling for $3 per case of twenty-four quarts.

The berry season is now reaching its height, and for the next month the receipts will be very heavy. The Missouri berries will be the next to arrive, and they will be closely followed by the Iowa and Illinois crops.

* * *

Some advance shipments of the early black tartarian cherries from California have been received. It is still very early for cherries, and the price is high, but during the next two weeks they will become more plentiful.

Cuban pineapples are becoming quite plentiful. Those that have been received are of a very high grade, and the price is quite reasonable.

The orange and lemon markets continue firm, and an advance in prices is predicted.

Banana receipts are running very heavy, and the demand for the fruit seems to be steadily increasing. The price remains unchanged from last week.

* * *

New potatoes are on the market, but they are not likely to cut much figure at the present prices. They are selling at $2.50 per bushel. Those that have been received up to the present time have come from Florida.

The supply of new vegetables of all kinds is very large at the present time. Asparagus, Florida tomatoes, radishes and green onions are the chief features of the vegetable market.

The prices on some of the green vegetables are lower this week, while the stocks of old roots remain unchanged.

* * *

There has been no change during the week in either the prices or the market conditions on butter, eggs and cheese. Eggs are still holding firm at 16 and 17 cents a dozen, while butter is quoted at 22 and 23 cents for fresh creamery prints, and 15 and 16 cents for the fancy dairies.

* * *

The demand for poultry continues very heavy for this season of the year. The receipts have been very light, and it is very difficult to secure enough poultry to supply the demand, even at the high prices asked. Spring chickens are selling for 15 and 15½ cents, and hens are quoted at from 14 to 15 cents a pound. Even at this price, the dealers are behind in their orders, and their supplies are kept constantly cleaned up. Some of them report orders ahead which they cannot fill.

Usually at this season of the year the demand for poultry drops off, but this year there seems to be no slackening, and the decreased receipts have sent the prices soaring.

* * *

Business is good all along the street this week. The fair weather has had a beneficial effect, and while the temperature has not been as high as could be desired, the dealers have no complaint coming, and all report a very busy week in all lines of produce.

DOCTOR DEFENDS THE DRUG FIENDS

Opposes Right of State to Enforce Cure for Habits.

Lincoln, Neb., May 11.—On the ground that the state has no legal or constitutional authority to imprison a man addicted to the morphine or cocaine habit, and asserting affirmatively that if a man wishes to pursue happiness in that way he has a perfect right to do it without interference, Dr. Leroy Craig has brought the constitutionality of the dipsomaniac law into court.

Craig is a physician at Mitchell, Scotts Bluff county, in Western Nebraska, and makes no denial in his petition of being enamored of cocaine and morphine. He simply asserts that if a man wants to use these drugs he cannot be deprived of the right to do so. He argues that if he seeks the treatment voluntarily the state may take a man, but that inasmuch as he is injuring only himself he cannot be restrained of his liberty.

That the law is violative of that section of the constitution which embodies the general principles of free government, whereby all citizens shall be protected in their rights, liberties and the pursuit of happiness.

That it violates the guarantee of the federal constitution that no state shall pass laws providing for cruel or unusual punishment.

That it violates the constitutional guarantees that a man may not be deprived of his liberty without due process of law and that the right to appeal shall not be denied.

That taking drugs to excess is no crime; that he has not disturbed or threatened the peace of any community; that the practice of this habit is not a menace to anybody, and that the legislative act is intended to restrict man from acts over which the state has no authority and for which it cannot imprison a person.

That this punishment provided is cruel, since there is no provision possible for the separation of dipsomaniacs from insane persons.

Attorneys say that if Craig's contention is good, then the state has no right to imprison a man for drunkenness, if in the drinking he does not disturb anybody else, and that the whole dipsomaniac law will fall. Craig has money and declares he will carry the case to the federal supreme court.

SEARCH FOR WIFE REVEALS TRAGEDY

The Deserted Husband on Train When Woman's Body is Discovered.

Odessa, Russia, May 11.—Three months before the close of the Russo-Japanese war, a beautiful young woman named Lydia Kolomitzeff, the wife of an Odessa engineer, abandoned her husband and disappeared—no one knew whither. But last January Mr. Kolomitzeff learned from a contractor, who had returned to Odessa from Harbin, that Lydia had been seen in Harbin leading a high life. Kolomitzeff determined to go to Harbin.

While in the train on his way there, the engine driver observed, as he was approaching a Manchuria station, a human body on the rails. This turned out to be a finely dressed woman with her throat cut and a deep wound in the chest, apparently caused by a knife. Kolomitzeff, prompted by natural curiosity like his fellow-passengers, viewed the body, and recognized in it his own wife, Lydia. The authorities, having concluded that the murder had been committed in a train coming in the opposite direction, telegraphed to the nearest station.

An examination of the body showed that the motive of the crime was theft. In a pocket was found a receipt for 900 pounds of baggage booked to Odessa, besides which notes to the value of $4,750 were found sewn in her clothes.

Further investigation indicated that the murder had been committed in a separate first-class coupe that had been occupied by a young woman and a young man, since lost sight of. It is presumed that he leaped from the train while it was in motion and took another train back to Manchuria, in order to start from there for somewhere else for the purpose of mystification. He was, however, discovered and arrested. His clothes were blood-stained, and a diamond necklace, six diamond rings, a brooch, and a massive gold chain studded with diamonds, with a watch and purse—all valued at $32,500—were found on his person. Further, he had a silk bag containing government securities to the value of $21,250, so that he was carrying quite $150,000 value on his person.

He at first denied all knowledge of the victim, but finally confessed he had killed her. He explained that he is the son of an Odessa landed proprietor. Two weeks before the murder, Madame Kolomitzeff was advised to leave Harbin on account of her health, which determined him to get possession of her wealth. This he did in part, and threw the body on the track. He was sent under escort to Harbin, and the unhappy Mr. Kolomitzeff returned to Odessa.

PARIS POSTERS ATTACK THE CREDIT OF BANKS.

Paris, May 11.—A strange bill-poster crusade against French banks and banking institutions, conducted by unidentified persons for unknown ends, has been going on for some time in Paris, despite the efforts of the police to stop it.

Frequently of mornings early risers see posted on the dead walls big posters headed, "A Cry of Alarm," declaring that certain banking institutions, which are named, are unsound and are preparing to close their doors.

Institutions of world-wide renown, like the Credit Lyonnais, are among those assailed.

The posting is always done at night in a locality where it is least expected.

STREET ORATOR EGGED FOR ATTACKING RELIGION

Memphis, Mo., May 11.—Because he insulted the citizens of this town, denounced their religion as a fake and called the ministers hypocrites, an itinerant street peddler was egged from town.

The peddler could not gather a large crowd when he first attempted to sell his wares. Then he resorted to the talk against religion and gathered an audience. Those who heard him were not pleased and the next day when the peddler continued in the same vein eggs began to fly at him from every direction, till his Prince Albert was well plastered. He packed his wares hurriedly and left town as quickly as his feet would carry him.

HABIT-FORMING MEDICINES AND DRUGS.

Whatever may be the fact as to many of the so-called patent medicines containing injurious ingredients as broadly published in some journals of more or less influence, this publicity has certainly been of great benefit in arousing needed attention to this subject. It has, in a considerable measure, resulted in the most intelligent people avoiding, such foods and medicines as may be fairly suspected of containing the injurious ingredients complained of. Recognizing this fact some time ago, Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., "took time by the forelock," as it were, and published broadcast all the ingredients of which his popular medicines are composed. Thus he has completely forestalled all harping critics and all opposition that might otherwise be urged against his medicines, because they are now OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Furthermore, from the formula printed on every bottle wrapper, it will be seen that these medicines contain no alcohol or other habit-forming drugs. Neither do they contain any narcotics or injurious agents, their ingredients being purely vegetable, extracted from the roots of medicinal plants found growing in the depths of our American forests and of well recognized curative virtues.

Instead of alcohol, which even in small portions long continued, as in obstinate cases of diseases, becomes highly objectionable from its tendency to produce a craving for stimulants, Dr. Pierce employs chemically pure, triple refined glycerine, which of itself is a valuable remedy in many cases of chronic disease, being a superior demulcent, anti-septic, anti-ferment and supporting nutritive. It enhances the curative action of the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry-bark and Bloodroot, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," in all bronchial, throat and lung affections attended with severe coughs. As will be seen from the writings of the eminent Drs. Grover Coe, of New York; Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, Phila.; Scudder, of Cincinnati; Ellingwood, of Chicago; Hale, of Chicago, and others, who stand as leaders in their several schools of practice, the foregoing agents are the very best ingredients that Dr. Pierce could have chosen to make up his famous "Discovery" for the cure of not only bronchial, throat and lung affections, but also of chronic catarrh in all its various forms in whatever part of the system located.

By reading the writings of these eminent medical men contained in the little booklet recently compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., which will be sent free, on request by postal card or letter, addressed to him, as above, the reader will find that all the several native, medicinal roots entering into the "Golden Medical Discovery," as also into Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments, are very highly recommended and praised as cures for diseases for which Dr. Pierce advises these famous medicines of his preparation.

Dr. Ellingwood says of Golden Seal root, which is an important ingredient in both "Favorite Prescription" and "Golden Medical Discovery," "it is an important remedy in disorders of the womb." He continues: "In all catarrhal conditions, especially in flabby, muscular relaxation and general enfeeblement, it is useful." Prof. Scudder, late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root, in relation to its general effect on the system, "there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic, useful in all debilitated states." Dr. Bartholow says that Golden Seal root is "valuable in uterine hemorrhage (bleeding), hemorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa) painful menstruation)."

Prof. John King, author of the AMERICAN DISPENSATORY, says of Black Cohosh root, another ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," "in dysmenorrhœa (painful periods), it is surpassed by no other drug, being of the greatest utility in irritative and congestive conditions of the uterus and appendages characterized by tensive, dragging pains resembling the pains of rheumatism." He continues: "It is a good remedy for the reflex (side aches) of unmarried women." He also recommends it for uterine leucorrhœa, also for sterility. He further says, "its action is slow, but its effects are permanent." He also recommends this agent for St. Vitus's dance, also for many rheumatic conditions, as does also Hobart A. Hare, M. D., professor in the Med. Dept., University of Pa. Other agents entering into the "Favorite Prescription" are equally praised in the little book of extracts from prominent medical authors whose published works are consulted by physicians of all the several schools to guide them in prescribing.

"Golden Medical Discovery" as also Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription may be relied upon to cure all the diseases and more than all that their several ingredients are represented as curing, by the above eminent physicians, for they are so compounded that each ingredient acts in harmony with all the others, and also enhances their curative action. They may be taken conjointly in alternate doses with great advantage.

The most intelligent people are fast coming to the conclusion that it does not pay and is not safe to resort to medicines of doubtful composition when there are those in the market every ingredient of which is published on their wrappers and which are so strongly praised and endorsed by scores of those most eminent in the medical profession. Secret medicines can, of course, have, no such professional endorsement.

In favor of Dr. Pierce's medicines is the frank, confiding, open, honest statement of their full composition, giving every ingredient in plain English, without fear of successful criticism and with confidence that the good sense of the afflicted will lead them to appreciate this honorable manner of confiding to them what they are taking into their stomachs when making use of these medicines.

Dr. Pierce feels that he can afford to take the afflicted into his full confidence and lay all the ingredients of his medicines freely before them because these ingredients are such as are endorsed and most strongly praised by scores of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice as cures for the diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

Your druggists sells the "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" and also that famous alterative, blood purifier and stomach tonic, the "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY." Write to Dr. Pierce about your case. He is an experienced physician and will treat your case as confidential and without charge for correspondence. Address him at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is chief consulting physician.

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines sell them.

A good medical book, written in plain English, and free from technical terms is a valuable work for frequent consultation. Such a work is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advisor. It's a book of 1008 pages, profusely illustrated, and is given away now, although formerly sold in cloth binding for $1.50. Send 21 cents, in one-cent stamps, to pay for cost of mailing only for paper-covered copy, addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.; or 31 cents for an elegantly clothbound copy.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Prices Are Considerably Higher in All the American Markets.

Flax is Quiet in Duluth and Weaker at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 11.—Higher cables and light receipts offset the effect of clear weather and large Argentine shipments, making strong prices for wheat in the American markets today. Liverpool closed ¼d to ½d higher, Antwerp unchanged to ⅛c higher. Paris unchanged to ¼c higher, Berlin ⅛c higher and Budapest ⅝c lower.

It is estimated that the stock of wheat in store at Duluth will decrease 385,000 bus., this week.

The May option closed 1½c higher in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis, 1¼c in Chicago and New York, 1⅛-1¼c in Kansas City and ⅝c in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1½c higher in Duluth, 1⅝-1¾c in Chicago, 1⅝-⅞c in Minneapolis, 1⅜c in New York and Kansas City, 1¾c in St. Louis and ¾c in Winnipeg.

Corn was stronger in Chicago, the July option closing ½c up. Corn was ¾d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅝c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 50, against 6 last year, and at Minneapolis 69, against 78 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 119, against 84 last year. Chicago received 4 against 6 last year. Winnipeg received 186 against 82 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 164,000 bus, last year 101,000 bus. Shipments 251,000 bus, last year 234,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 150,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 3,104,000 bus, against 3,216,000 bus last week and 3,360,000 bus last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 272,000 bus, last year 129,000 bus. Shipments 291,000 bue last year 231,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 616,000 bus. Argentine shipments of corn were 2,234,000 bus, against 2,803,000 bus last week and 1,292,000 bus last year.

Wheat was very active in the Duluth market today and prices were higher from the outset. May wheat opened ⅝c higher at 82c, advanced at the close to 82⅞c, a gain of 1½c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at 81¾c, advanced to 82¾c at 9:50, declined to 82c and ranged between that and 82⅝c during most of the remainder of the session, closing at 83c, a gain of 1⅛c over yesterday. September wheat opened ⅛c higher at 78⅝c, advanced to 79⅝c and closed at 79¾c, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Flax was quiet. It was ⅝c higher in Antwerp and ⅞c higher for Calcutta and unchanged for Laplatta linseed in London. There was very little export business done by local exporters, but the foreigners advanced their bids. The Argentine shipments of flax were 552,000 bus, against 1,160,000 bus last year. It is expected that the stock of flax in store at Duluth will decrease 225,000 bus this week.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.18, advanced to $1.18¼, declined to $1.18 and closed at that price, unchanged from yesterday. July flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.19¼, declined to $1.19 and ranged between that and $1.19⅝ during the rest of the session, declining at the close to $1.19, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.19½, declined to $1.19 and closed at that price, a loss of ⅝s from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.18 and declined steadily to the close, which was $1.17¼, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ¼c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Small Receipts Give Wheat Strength, But Trading is Light.

Chicago, May 11.—The wheat market opened steady today, but trading was very quiet. Small receipts in the Northwest formed the principal source of strength. Pit traders were bearishly inclined because of clear weather in this country and large shipments from Argentina, but these influences were offset by the small receipts. July opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 80c to 80¼c, declined to 79⅝@80c and sold up to 80¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 123 cars against 233 cars last week and 90 one year ago.

The market became strong later on damage reports from St. Louis and Kansas. The high point for July was 81½c. The close was strong, with July up ¾@⅞c at 81½c.

Corn was steady on active buying of the May option by shorts. Pit traders sold the July option because of the good weather in the corn belt. Trading was very light. July opened unchanged to a shade lower at 45⅞@46c to 46c, declined to 45¾c and sold up to 46¼c. Local receipts were 82 cars with 15 of contract grade.

The buying movement in the May option carried its price up 2 c. and the strength of May helped the more distant deliveries. The close was strong, with July up ⅛c at 46½c, which was also the highest mark of the day.

The oates market was steady, but there was almost nothing doing in the pit. July opened unchanged at 31¾c and advanced to 31¾c. Local receipts were 94 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady. There was nothing doing in pork and very little in lard, the principal trading being in ribs. July pork was 2½c to 5c higher at $15.20. Lard was unchanged at $8.47½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $8.62½.

Close: Wheat—May, 83½c; July, 81½c. Corn—May, 49c; July, 46¼c. Oats—May, 33c; July, 31¾c. Pork—May, $15.12½; July, $15.25. Lard—May, $8.40; July, $8.50. Ribs—May, $8.57½; July, $8.67½@8.70. Rye—Cash, 60@62c; May, 59@60c; July, 59@60c.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was strong all day and made sharp advances, closing at the top. The buying incentive seemed to come from St. Louis, where a move against the shorts in that market caused a general stampede. The short interest in this market naturally took alarm, running away with the idea that crop damage reports were back of the St. Louis buying. There were several complaints coming from Texas, and the Southwest of the unfavorable crop conditions, but our reports in the main, are most favorable. It seems to us as if such relative conditions, rather than crop conditions, were responsible for the advance in today's market. As we said yesterday, it has been fashionable for some time to sell wheat, the bulls being scarce and the market seemed to be in a congested condition. At the close tonight these conditions seem to us unchanged. The short interest has been reduced, of course, but is is still large and scattered.

Corn—Considering the advance in wheat corn held only firm. The limited receipts, however, put the shorts in May in an uneasy position. It is generally held in the trade that the improved weather will cause farmers to become liberal sellers, increased primary movement, and giving to the bulls more corn than they will want for the future months. We still feel there is nothing to warrant buying the futures months at these prices.

Oats—Sympathized with strength in other pits, closing ¼ to ⅜ higher. The principal holder in May sold liberally of that month. Trade was on a large scale, but we doubt if the buying in the future months is of the kind that will sustain an advancing market.

* * *

Modern Miller: Reports that dry weather is unfavorably affecting winter wheat conditions are being received, but are few and scattered, except in Northern Missouri. Drought has been generally prevalent for several weeks in that locality, and the wheat crop is suffering seriously from the lack of moisture. Otherwise nothing especially unfavorable in regard to the condition of the crop is reported, but there is need of rain over most of the winter wheat belt.

THE EARTH QUAKES AT PETERSBURG, IND.

Indianapolis, May 11.—A special to the News from Petersburg, Ind., says: Two distinct earthquake shocks were felt here at 12:40 a. m. today. A low rumble was heard in the west and buildings quivered, windows rattled and dishes rocked. Many people jumped from their beds in fright. The shocks were of a few seconds' duration and the first was preceded by a vivid flash similar to lightning.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

But Market Showed Some Easing Off From High Prices.

Renewal of Realizing Made the Close Slightly Irregular.

New York, May 11.—Prices of stocks at the opening of the stock market today started higher than last night with the dealings on a moderate scale and the changes genrally narrow. A rise of 2 in Anaconda and of 1¼ in Great Northern preferred were the only exceptions to the average of small fractional changes. St. Paul was the only important stock in the list to show a small decline.

Scarcely half a dozen stocks of speculative prominence shared to any decided extent in the early advance. While the general market was higher, traders realized steadily on recent purchases, especially Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Smelting and United States Steel. Ultimately the selling of these undermined the advance in progress elsewhere and there was a general relapse which carried some of the leaders below yesterday's close. At the top level in the first hour Great Northern preferred showed an improvement of 6¼. Anaconda 5, Northern Pacific 3½, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 2¾, International Pump preferred and Kansas & Texas 2, the preferred, Amalgamated Copper and the Republic Steel stocks 1½ to 1½ and Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Ontario & Western and Sugar a point. Smelting suffered a loss of 1 and United States Rubber 1¾.

Large operations were resumed in Reading at an a dvence of 2 points. The response in the general market was very sluggish, but the decline was checked. Louisville & Nashville and Central Leather preferred rose 1½. International Pump perfrred 3, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 2¾, Lake Erie & Western 2¾, Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅜ and Texas Pacific and Metropolitan Street Railway 1¼. Consolidated Gas and National Lead declined 1. Bonds were steady.

The development of strength and activity in stocks which had previously been dull and heavy aroused the midday market into considerable activity. Union Pacific, St. Paul and United States Steel were well represented in the buying in the order named. Union Pacific and St. Paul sold 2 points above yesterday's final figures and Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern railway a point.

The process of rotation was continued by the bringing forward of new stocks in the advance while profit taking went on in those in which a successful turn had been made. The strength displayed by the new leaders proved sufficient to sustain the entire market. Wells-Fargo jumpel 10 points, Lackawanna 8½, Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 4, D. & H. 3, New York Central 2⅜, Canadian Pacific and Illinois Central 2 and Central of Jersey, Erie Second preferred, United States and American Car 1.

Profit-taking caused some reactions during the final hour, but resistance to the decline developed and prices recovered. American Express rose 6, Pacific Coast 4½, Central of Jersey 3½ and Wabash preferred, Cleveland, C., C. & St. Louis, Brooklyn Transit and Locomotive 1 to 1¼. Union Pacific rose 2⅝c, Copper 1¼ and Anaconda 9. There was some renewal of realizing, which made the closing slightly irregular.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market shows some easing off from the high prices, but as a whole shows advances over yesterday's close. Market has been strong throughout and from the character of the trade think there has been a goodly increase in the character of outside business. Money continues easy, and seems to foreshadow a favorable bank statement tomorrow. Market has not only recovered its confidence, but has taken on quite a bullish hue. The big men are arrayed on the bull side. They have the market in their control. The brilliant crop prospects, the magnificent railroad and corporation earnings, condition of business in general have in this way been impaired. We would buy stocks on the moderate reactions.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was broad and active throughout the day. Substantial advances were scored by such stocks as Union Pacific, Reading, Copper, St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Steels. There was no news except for the indications of a good bank statement tomorrow. Practically everything in the list made progress toward a higher level.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market acted well all day and has every appearance of going higher. There was good buying of Mohawk, Franklin, Range and Boston Consolidated, with very little stock offered on the advance. New York wires that insiders are buying Boston Consolidated. Traders who bought North Butte on advance had it for sale today, causing weakness in that specialty. Money is working easier and everything favors the long side at present. Would buy the better class of stocks on any recession.

New York Money.

New York, May 11.—Money on call, steady; highest, 3¾ per cent; lowest, 3½; ruling rate, 3½; last loan, 3¾; closing bid, 3½; offered at 4. Time loans, steady; 60 and 90 days and 6 months, 5@5¼. Prime mercantile paper, 5¼@5¾ per cent. Sterling exchange easier, with actual business in bankers' bills, $4.85.50@55 for demand and at $4.82.20@25 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.83 and $4.86½; commercial bills, $4.81¾. The Cotton Market.

New York, May 11.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points. On covering and bull support the market advanced 2 to 5 points, but later eased off with prices in the middle of the morning showing a net less of 1 to 5 points, the decline being greatest in new crop positions. The local bull leader issued an estimate of the acreage planting it at less than 1 per cent over last year, 27,282,000 acres.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.95; ditto gulf, 12.20. Sales, 4,655 bales. Futures closed steady; May, 11.40; June, 11.08; July, 10.91; August, 10.90; September, 10.76; October, 10.71; November, 10.70; December, 10.70; January, 10.74; February, 10.76; March, 10.80.

Milwaukee Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Evidence of the limited supply of horses is shown in the number of arrivals the first of the week as compared with a week ago and the corresponding week of 1905. The demand is broader than a week ago, and the attendance of buyers from all parts of the country is almost a record volume. Drivers and light harness horses are in good demand; dealers anticipate further advance in prices in the near future. All classes moved freely at the following prices:

Drafters, extra	$200@225
Drafters, choice	175@200
Drafters, common to good	150@175

ORDER TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS, ETC.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, May 3rd, 1906.

In the Matter of the Estate of Samuel P. Weisiger, Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Henning Chambers, administrator with the will annexed, of the estate not already administered of Samuel P. Weisiger, deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard by this Court, on Monday, the 28th day of May, A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 3d day of May, 1906.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

OLDEST WOMAN IN THE WORLD

Lives in State of Iowa and is 140 Years Old.

Webster City, Iowa, May 11.—Mrs. Abbie Perham of Clinton, Iowa, in whose veins courses the blood of three races, the white, black and the red, is beyond doubt the oldest woman in Iowa, and if her story, which is borne out by appearances, is true, she is more than likely the oldest woman in the world. Mrs. Perham asserts that, as a girl of 16 years, she saw Gen. Washington's troops pass her father's cabin, and British soldiers, too, in endless numbers pass by. She is all of 140 years of age, but has lost the records of her birth these many decades.

The Iowa centenarian, in whose appearance the negro blood is most manifest, is bent and feeble with the weight of her unnatural years, and her memory at times is erratic and uncertain, so much so sometimes that she cannot remember the name of her parents, who have been dead for more than three-quarters of a century. Her father was a half-breed Creek Indian named Isaac Prince, and her mother a full-blooded negro woman. The family lived in the South, near historic old Tuscumbia, Ala., where Mrs. Perham spent her girlhood days. There were five children in the family, and these, with the mother, were seized by whites and taken into slavery while the husband and father were engaged in fighting Indians in one of the early Indian wars in that region. The mother died soon afterwards, and the children never saw their father again. Soon the children were separated, and Mrs. Perham spent many years with a French family somewhere in Arkansas. Before the Civil war broke out, the colored woman, who declares that at that time she was more than 90 years old, was taken to St. Louis, and after regaining her freedom she left two of her sons whom she met there, and both of whom were gray-haired men at the time, and came North. She lived in many Iowa towns for years, the longest period of which was spent at Keokuk, and thirteen years ago moved to Clinton. Her husband, whom she married since coming to Clinton, is past 90 years of age.

Mrs. Perham can read a little in the Bible, but never received much education. She is nearly blind, but her other senses seem acute, and she shows no symptoms of early decadence. Her face, though strongly suggestive of the negro, nevertheless has the high cheek bones of the Indian and peculiar copper tinge showing through the dusky negro skin. Though infirm and crippled from rheumatism, the aged woman cooks her own meals and cares for the aged man whom she has chosen as the companion of her declining years.

CHILD CHANGES COLOR.

Pink in Morning, Brown at Noon and White at Night.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 11.—A baby who changes color three times in every twenty-four hours is a curiosity in Des Moines. The strange child is Eli Rami, the 14-months-old son of Count Natho, a Hindoo, who married an American girl in Quincy, Ill., three years ago. When the little fellow awakens at sunrise he is a pretty, pink, fair complexioned boy; at noon he changes color, and within an hour he is of the dark ginger color of his princely ancestor. At night he becomes an alabaster white. The mixture of blood is said to be accountable for the strange phenomenon.

ENGAGEMENT IS BROKEN.

Ethel Barrymore Will Not Wed Harry Graham of London.

New York, May 11.—Ethel Barrymore's engagement to wed Capt. Harry Graham of London has been declared off.

The actress is not inclined to discuss her personal affairs with those outside her circle of intimates, but to them she has confided a severance of the tie. Rumors of the broken engagement have been going the rounds since Miss Barrymore announced her intention of tarrying awhile in New York, before taking her customary trip abroad. Hitherto Miss Barrymore has not satisfied the curious to the extent of admitting or denying the report. Even now she withholds the particulars.

DOWAGER QUEEN INJURED.

Berlin, May 11.—The dowager queen, Emma of the Netherlands, mother of Queen Wilhelmina, was thrown from an automobile today at Steinfurt, Westphalia, where she was attending the silver wedding of Prince and Princess Von Bentheim-Steinfurt. She was not seriously hurt.

BIRD LOVERS ASK LICENSE ON CATS

"It Will Improve Quality, Exterminate Savage Strain," They Say.

Waco, Tex., May 11.—Capt. M. B. Davis, secretary of the Texas Audubon society, gave a lantern lecture before the Boys' 100 Club of the Young Men's Christian association. Sixty colored slides were used, and the big pictures of birds in their natural colors, just as they appear in their home haunts, delighted the youngsters.

Present also were parents of the children, who greatly approved of the interesting method, which is one of the devices of the National Audubon society of educating the youth of the country in the great value of birds, with a view to opposing destruction with organized and universal protection.

Capt. Davis stated that the Audubon societies were applying for cat legislation in this and other states, looking to a tax on cats in the interest both of the cats and the birds, as it would bring on a superior race of well-bred tabbies instead of the multitude of bird-eaters now infesting the municipalities.

MOTHER OF NINE,

Deserted by Her Husband, Asks the President's Aid.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 11.—Because she was the mother of nine children, and before the last one was born was deserted by her husband, Mrs. Caby McConnelly, 214 Southeast Sixth street, says she has written to President Roosevelt asking for aid. Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, secretary of the Humane society, was called to the McConnelly home. The mother with her nine children were without food or fuel. "She had a baby just a day old," said Mrs. Jones, "and the child was almost frozen. The society at once made arrangements to take care of the family. The oldest son is only 14 years of age, and is hardly able to support such a big family. Mrs. McConnelly told me that she had read about President Roosevelt's liking for big families, and that she had written to him for aid."

WOMAN REFUSED MILITARY DUTY.

Paris, May 11.—Miss Costienne Augusta Darch was registered as a boy at birth, and now being 20 years old her name was put on the military list and she was ordered to perform her military duties. Her parents asked the authorities to strike out her name from the list because she is a woman.

But in court, the girl said that she would rather go and serve in the army. She said she could not see why women should be exempt from military service when it ought to be the duty of every person to serve his country.

With all her insistence, the court decided that she remain a woman and perform only duties assigned to women.

BARN IS BURNED AFTER REVIVAL

Spectacular Evangelism in Indiana Becomes Cause of Town War.

Knightstown, Ind., May 11.—The little village of Raysville, across the river from this city, is rent in twain by religious dissension. Early in March W. J. Baker, an evangelist of the United Brethren church, and Everett West, opened the Methodist church there, and began to conduct services. Later on they were joined by the Rev. Mr. Ellsworth of the Holiness association at Cleveland, and the Messrs. Clark of Muncie, Shaw of Marion and Beck from the southern part of the state.

Shaw and Beck claimed to be "divine healers," and they used oil in anointing penitent converts. The people of the village were soon wrought with religious excitement, and at every service the little brick church was filled with enthusiastic religionists and curious spectators.

Unusual demonstrations of conviction and conversion were noticeable. On one occasion a procession was formed led by the Evangelist Shaw, with a mandolin, and the enthusiasts danced around the church in ecstatic glee. Many laid their tobacco on the altar, and the evangelist, who would not touch the "filthy weed," took it between backs of books and cast it into the fire. Others were induced to give up jewelry and decorative dress and millinery.

Finally a reaction set in and many began to take exception to the sensational methods and extreme pronunciamentos. Another crowd of worshipers, however, stayed loyally by the preachers and two factions actively lined up, and every one was either actively lined up on one side or the other, or at least had secret sympathies. Finally the situation became so acute that the committee appointed by the Methodist conference to have charge of the church, closed the building.

A few nights ago the barn of Elwood McFall in Raysville burned, and nearly all its contents destroyed. Many people in the village are charging that the fire was incendiary, and that it grew out of the quarrel in the church, and the authorities are investigating.

MARRIED A YEAR.

Louisville Girl Kept Secret Until Husband Got Good Job.

Louisville, Ky., May 11.—Despite the fact that their daughter, Miss Dorothy H. Bacon, and Roy Geoghegan were married in Shelbyville, Ind., last June, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Bacon were not apprised of the fact until last week. The news of the marriage was broken to them by their daughter, who will leave within a few days to join her husband in Atlanta, Ga.

"They had been sweethearts and almost inseparable for years," said Mr. Bacon, when seen at his home, 2033 Brook street, "but the announcement on the part of my daughter took both my wife and I completely by surprise. We had no particular objection to the marriage except the age of the couple. My daughter is 19, and Mr. Geoghegan is 20 years old. He secured a position with a big tobacco house in Atlanta a few weeks ago."

Roy Geoghegan is the son of R. B. Geoghegan of 1042 Fourth avenue. The bride's father is the Louisville representative of Ware & Leland, brokers.

"My daughter and Mr. Geoghegan made frequent visits together to Indianapolis last summer," said Mr. Bacon, "and it was during one of these trips they decided to marry. Often since then they have spoken in a joking way of the ceremony, but we never dreamed they were in earnest. I am fond of my son-in-law and am glad to class him as a member of my family."

CITIZENS DEMAND THAT NEGROES LEAVE TOWN.

Hobart, O. T., May 11.—There is much indignation among the citizens because of the retaining of the immense force of negroes employed by A. Wooten, manager of the oil mill. Mass meetings are being held for the purpose of ridding the town of negroes. The committee appointed to wait on Wooten reported that he said the mill could not be run without negroes. A petition was circulated demanding that the negroes be discharged from the oil mill. Serious trouble is brewing.

POLITICAL PRISONERS

Send Messages to Russian Parliament Urging Amnesty.

New Body Busy Formulating Demands to the Czar.

St. Petersburg, May 12.—The features of the second session of the lower house of parliament today was a frantic demonstration in favor of amnesty. When among a mass of congratulatory messages from all parts of the empire, were read several from political prisoners in jail or in exile in Siberia, the members, except a little group on the extreme right, rose, cheering, in a body, the galleries joining in the applause. A motion was presented to send replies to the messages, but this was declared to be out of order.

Neither Premier Goremykin nor any other member of the cabinet was seated on the ministerial benches, which instead were occupied by their assistants. There was considerable confusion about the procedure, emphasizing the necessity for a code of parliamentary rules, which is being drawn up.

The balloting for vice presidents today resulted in 428 against 361 votes in the choice of the combination ticket determined upon last night, namely Prince Peter Dolgoroukoff and Prof. Grodeskul of Kharkoff. The drawing up of the draft of the reply of the house to the speech from the throne at the opening of parliament has not yet been completed for submission to the house. The Constitutional Democrats invited two representatives of the peasants, one Pole and one Jew, to participate in drawing up the draft, in order to secure solidarity. The main difference of opinion is in the wording of the intimation to the emperor that the council of the empire as constituted, is an anachronism. The reply will declare for a constitutional monarchy, with full parliamentary rights; a responsible ministry chosen from the majority, full amnesty for political prisoners, universal suffrage, equality before the law, and the abolition of the death penalty.

SPORTING EVENTS AT NEW HAVEN

Yale-Princeton and Other Athletic Meets to Occur.

New Haven, May 12.—Three big sporting events are scheduled to take place here today, namely, the Yale-Princeton track athletic meet, the intercollegiate gun club shoot for the team and the individual championship and the annual spring regatta of the University Rowing association at Lake Whitney, in which are entered, aside from the various Yale crews, the Columbia freshmen and a crew representing the Springfield, Mass., high school. The day bids fair to be a good one for all sports, much warmer than during the last few days, and with little or no wind blowing.

Although Yale's track team is not in the best condition, owing to some of her men being slightly off their regular form, and the absence of Parsons, the crack runner, who is en route home from Athens, a victory over Princeton is expected. Taking as a basis the form of the two teams of a week ago, an athletic authority has figured the probable score in the meet today as being about 74 to 30 in favor of the local collegians.

Gun clubs from the university of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Harvard, Cornell and Columbia are meeting Yale at the traps at Scheutzen park.

At Lake Whitney no less than eighteen eight-ored shells have been on the water this spring, and close races are expected.

EASTERN MEN DEPOSIT LARGE SUMS IN FRISCO.

San Francisco, May 12.—Within the past few days it is said new accounts have been opened at several of the commercial banks of San Francisco by men from the East who have deposited sums ranging from $10,000 upward. Some of them are known by reputation to banking men to be possessed of large wealth. Others are supposed to represent wealthy clients in eastern money centers. The evidence purpose of these men, the bankers say, is to make investment of their funds in San Francisco.

HELD FOR DRUNKENNESS,

Are Indians Involved in Squaw's Death Near Island Lake.

Bemidji, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Attorney McDonald on Friday arraigned in justice court three of the Indians who were involved in the death of the squaw near Island Lake, last Sunday night. In order that they might be detained, pending the thorough investigation, which is now being conducted, to ascertain just how the squaw met her death, and to fix the responsibility therefor, the entire party of six who were brought down to the county jail, have been charged with drunkenness. Three of the party (two bucks and one squaw) were tried before Justice Skinvick, and were convicted of the charge of drunkenness and committed to the jail for forty days.

DINEHART'S CANDIDACY IN CONFLICT WITH THAT OF SENATOR SOMERVILLE

Will Dinehart Combine With Northern Candidate for Governor?

Both Cole and Block Are Busily Working at St. Paul.

More Uninstructed Delegates to State Convention Than Before.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will C. C. Dinehart's candidacy for the nomination for state treasurer spoil Senator Somerville's chances of landing the gubernatorial nomination? This is a question which is being asked frequently of late, and one which will likely find its solution in one of the most strenuous fights ever before a convention. After being in the field as a candidate for three months, it is not likely that he will withdraw in favor of the gentleman from Sleepy Eye, out of traditional courtesy, which sometimes leads a candidate to sacrifice his ambitions to forward those of another in the same district who seeks a position at the head of the ticket.

Mr. Dinehart has been in the race to win from the first, and has fought a good fight up to the present period. He has received the most favorable mention from all parts of the state, both through the press and in the way of personal expressions relative to his merit. It is argued that in going into the race that Somerville knew very well of the accumulated strength which Dinehart has as the result of several weeks of the most active campaigning over the southern part of the state.

A recent issue of the Slayton Gazette, which might well be termed a Dinehart number, recounts at length the various expressions in the state press anent his candidacy. There has been quite a wide selection from all parts of the state, and the notices are uniformly unanimous as to the ability of Dinehart to fill the office efficiently.

There are rumors that Dinehart is negotiating with one of the other candidates for the gubernatorial for the purpose of entering into an alliance to combat the Somerville strength. It is reported that he appreciates the fact that it must be a fight to the finish in the convention. Whether Dinehart will unite his forces with those of a northern candidate for the gubernatorial nomination is yet a matter of speculation.

THE MILLS WILL SUPPLY TRADE

The General Paper Company Has Withdrawn From the Field.

Milwaukee, May 12.—John A. Davis, general manager of the General Paper company, today sent out the following letter to the trade:

The General Paper company has withdrawn from the field as a selling agency. All mills heretofore manufacturing paper and selling it through the General Paper company, will now supply the trade direct, and all unfilled orders placed with the General Paper company prior to this date will be filled by such mills and invoiced direct. Temporarily, and until each mill can adjust itself to new conditions, all orders received by the General Paper company will be turned over to the mill heretofore supplying the customer giving such orders.

MRS. CHADWICK GIVES EVIDENCE IN JUTTE CASE.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 12.—When the case of Mrs. W. C. Jutte and the Colonial Trust company against J. W. Friend and Frank N. Hoffstot comes up on adjournment a week from Monday it is expected that many of the incidents in the case of Mrs. Cassie Chadwick will be brought to light through the depositions that have been taken by counsel for both sides. One visit was made to the Ohio state penitentiary a few weeks ago by the attorneys and still another was made Thursday.

It is said that Mrs. Chadwick testified in Columbus Thursday that she borrowed $241,000 of Mr. Friend and not $800,000, as was reported during her prosecution two years ago. It was in connection with this loan, it is said, that Mrs. Chadwick pledged certain jewels.

These are said to have been in a strong box in New York, and that it was these jewels that the United States collector of customs attached under the impression that they had been smuggled from Europe.

The right of the government to confiscate the jewels was in dispute for a long time.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomis A. Hanson has been appointed postmaster at Lynx, Beltrami county, Minn., vice Ole Jacobson, resigned.

DEADLOCK ON CANAL

Senate Committee Divided on Sea Level and Lock Type.

After Wrangling for a Time, Session Adjourned to Wednesday.

Washington, May 12.—The senate committee on inter oceanic canals is in a deadlock on the question of the type of canal to be recommended. The question was taken up today and the vote showed five for a sea level canal and five for the lock type, recommended by the minority of the board of consulting engineers. There were two absentees, Senators Gorman and Carmack. The latter telegraphed from Tennessee, instructing the chairman to count his vote for the sea level type, which would have made a majority against the lock canal desired by the administration. After wrangling for an hour over the question of accepting the vote of Senator Carmack, the commission adjourned until Wednesday next.

BAILEY'S AMENDMENT KILLED BY THE SENATE.

Washington, May 12.—Senator Bailey's non-suspension amendment, applying to orders of the interstate commerce commission as covered by the railroad rate bill, which has occupied so much of the attention of the senate in connection with that bill, was yesterday adversely disposed of by the decisive vote of 23 to 54, practically a party vote. The debate was limited to a brief political speech by its author, in which he said the president had changed his attitude on maintaining the rates fixed by the commission until the courts reach a final decision.

GRAY PLEADS GUILTY AND IS FINED $2,000.

Green Bay, Wis., May 12.—"Former Alderman Albert L. Gray today pleaded guilty to accepting two bribes of $800 each, in 1901, in connection with a paving contract, and was fined $1,000 in each case.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert E. Peterson has been appointed regular and James H. Trask substitute rural delivery carriers of Route No. 7, at Little Falls, Minn.

SCHURZ IS VERY LOW

CARL SCHURZ.

New York, Mayy 12.—Physicians who remained in attendance throughout the night announced this morning that there was no improvement in the condition of Carl Schurz, the publicist, and formerly cabinet member, who is gravely ill with a complication of diseases, at his home here. At 7:30 o'clock, Dr. Jacobi gave out the following regarding the patient:

"The night passed without much change. The heart and pulse respond to medication. There are occasional attacks of difficult breathing. No improvement."

A turn for the worse in Mr. Schurz's condition occurred during the forenoon, and his physicians announced that he was growing weaker, and that they had but slight hopes that he would live through the day."

Shortly before 11 o'clock, the following bulletin was issued by Mr. Schurz's physicians:

"Mr. Schurz is worse."

LEAPS FROM WINDOW TO HIS DEATH BELOW.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 12.—After twice attempting suicide unsuccessfully, J. W. Wilson, a wealthy stockman of Presho, S. D., succeeded here yesterday. Last week he threw himself before a train at Manilla, Iowa, and in a few minutes after sank an ax into his skull.

He was brought to St. Joseph's hospital here, and yesterday ran from his room and made for the porch. He fought a demon's battle with an attendant, who caught him and finally hurled him across the room. Then Wilson leaped to the pavement below and died soon after.

LAUGHING CAUSES THE DEATH OF A WOMAN.

Louisville, May 12.—While listening to the story of a stout woman who was asked to leave a skating rink, as her frequent falls were a menace to the building, Mrs. Polly Ann Jackson gave way to laughter, which became hysterical and caused her death in a few minutes. Mrs. Jackson has been an invalid for some time, but her illness was not considered serious. She had not laughed so heartily in months as at the story told her, which caused her death.

THE DEMANDS OF GREAT BRITAIN CONDITIONALLY ACCEPTED BY TURKEY

FEROCIOUS PULIJANES

Attack a Town in Samar, Killing and Wounding Several.

The Extermination of the Rebellious Natives is Advised.

Manila, May 12.—The following dispatch has been received from Acting Governor Cinco of the island of Samar:

"A band of twenty-four Pulijanes, having five rifles and other weapons, entered Inabangan by the Barrio Wright (Wright Ward) named in honor of Former Governor General Wright, today, killing one, and wounding seven residents, burning and looting thirty-six houses, and taking over twenty residents prisoners. Troops, constabulary, policemen and volunteers are pursuing the band."

George Curry, the governor of Samar, who is here on his way to Baguio, province of Benquet, the summer capital, to consult with Governor General Ide, says that all the presidents of Samar will shortly call on the governor general and indorse the policy of extermination of the rebellious natives, which is supported by the peaceful inhabitants of Samar. Governor Curry has recieved a cable message from President Roosevelt, congratulating him upon his escape at the fight with Pulijanes at Magtaon recently.

INVITES CROWD TO SEE HIM KILL SELF.

Hartford, Conn., May 12.—"The average minister does not know how to read a burial service," said Andrew Fay, 22 years old, of Rockville, Conn., standing in the street.

As he spoke, he opened a prayerbook, and the crowd moved closer. In one hand he held an open clasphknife.

"I'm going for a long journey, friends," he continued, smiling grimly. "I'm going to cross the Styx. To insure myself of a comfortable passage, I mean to read my own funeral service."

In melodramatic style, Fay read from the prayerbook. When he had reached the words, "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes," a policeman pushed through the throng. Fay struck at him with the knife, but the policeman caught his arm and captured the weapon.

Fay was in custody yesterday awaiting examination on a charge of attempted suicide. He said he was out of work and decided to end his life.

Sudden Determination on Part of the Sultan's Government.

A Complete Acceptance Will Probably Follow at Once.

The British Fleet All Ready to Act If Necessary.

Constantinople, May 12.—The Turkish government has accepted the demands of Great Britain conditionally and it is anticipated that this is only a preliminary to the complete acceptance of the British demands in regard to the Tubah boundary question.

The change in the sultan's attitude must have taken place very late last night, or early today, for the grand vizier's visit to the British ambassador, Sir Nicholas R. O'Connor, at 11 o'clock last night, had no result except to emphasize the fact that the attempts of Turkey to arrange a compromise were useless. The grand vizier's proposals were as unaccepted as were those of Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, on the previous day, and Sir Nicholas again pointed out the futility of suggesting modifications of the British demands, which constituted the absolute minimum.

London, May 12.—The foreign office has not yet received advices that the porte has definitely acceded to the British demands, but the latest official dispatches from Constantinople intimated that the sultan was preparing to submit. It is said at the foreign office that there can be nothing "conditional" in the acceptance as the demand of Great Britain is the irreducible minimum.

A dispatch from Athens announces that the Mediterranean fleet under Vice Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is ready for immediate departure. Prince Henry of Battenburg's cruiser squadron, left Phalerum Bay last night for an unknown destination. The great size of the British fleet in Turkish waters is due to the probable necessity of providing landing parties should Turkey continue obdurate.

BLOWS OFF HEAD ON A HIGH LEDGE

Insane Man Defies the Officers and Commits Suicide.

Winona, Minn., May 12.—David Sutter, insane and about 30, blew off the top of his head while on the banks of Lake Winona yesterday morning, using a gun stolen last night from the residence of William Rohweder at Sugar Loaf.

Sutter's home was at Pierre, S. D., and he came here only Thursday. Recently he was taken by his mother to Yankton to be placed in the state asylum, but the institution was full, and so transportation was furnished him and his mother to Winona, where he had been last summer.

Sutter immediately on arriving here and accompanying his mother to the Rohweder residence, showed signs of violent insanity, and Sheriff Lins was telephoned to arrest him.

When the sheriff arrived Sutter climbed nimbly up the Sugar Loaf and gaining a commanding place on the ledge defied all comers and threatened to jump to destruction if they approached.

The sheriff waited till dark for him to come down ,and when Sutter committed suicide was organizing a posse to go to the Sugar Loaf and capture him.

SELLS HIS OWN BODY.

Dying Man of Fort Dodge Makes Agreement With Physician.

Fort Dodge, Ia., May 12.—Unable to pay for the services of the attending physician, George Orris of this city bargained away his body with the physician, on condition that he be given medical treatment to the end. It was agreed that the body should be devoted to scientific purposes.

Orris has been a county charge and was recently removed to the city hospital, where he has been receiving treatment by Dr. Floyd. When first taken ill he was discovered in an old hut. He seemed grateful to the physician for giving him attention and as his case grew worse and he was taken to the hospital, he asked that Dr. Floyd continue to attend him.

The patient soon after appeared to be laboring under some mental strain and today called the doctor to his bedside and laid his case of a depleted pocketbook before him, and proposed that he give his body for scientific purposes, upon condition that we have medical treatment until the end. The patient is dangerously ill and cannot live long.

FILES FOR THE SENATE.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—William H. Lightner, a prominent attorney who lives in the Seventh ward, has filed notice of nomination for the state senate, Thirty-sixth senatorial district, which includes the Fourth and Seventh wards, and two precincts of the Eighth ward.

ANOTHER UPRISING

Against the Dominican Government Reported From Porto Rico.

The United States Takes Prompt Steps to Enforce Neutrality Laws.

Washington, May 12.—Reports have reached the state department of the organization of another revolutionary movement directed against the government of President Caceres of Santo Domingo. It is understood that the Island of Porto Rico is the base of operations and it is supposed that ex-President Morales and Jiminez are the leaders of the movement. Instructions have been sent to the insular governor of Porto Rico to take steps to carry out the neutrality laws, which would prevent the organization and departure of any hostile exportation and the American warships surrounding the Island of San Domingo will also be instructed to prevent any landing of hostile forces.

THREE PLANS FOR RAISING MONEY

Discussed at Length at Meeting of Charities and Correction.

Philadelphia, May 12.—Among the topics discussed today at the section meetings of the thirty-third national conference of Charities and Correction were charitable finance, care of the sick and child labor. In a paper on the first topic, Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Federated Charities, Baltimore, proposed three plans for raising money to meet the outlay of private societies and institutions:

1.—Annual reports.

2.—Personal appeals through collectors.

3.—Use of the press.

Mr. Ufford said: "Among the various forms of printed appeals should be counted the society's or institution's annual report, sent to all supporters of the charity, also annual reminders in the forms of letters or printed invitations, asking a renewal of financial support given in previous years; short stories, illustrating the kind and value of the work performed.

"If collectors are employed, they should be members of the regular staff, thoroughly cognizant with the work, and able to make a clear presentation of its merits.

"The third method available in certain localities, thanks to the courtesy of the press, is the gratuitous use of columns of newspapers. In this way the public may be kept informed of the work in hand, and its financial requirements. The value of paid advertisements in charity work is a subject which should be discussed by this session."

DIETZ IS STILL HOLDING FORT

An Attempt to Wreck Dam Only Partially Successful.

Rice Lake, Wis., May 12.—According to a letter received here from John Deitz, the lumber company, which he has been fighting so long and desperately, won only a partial victory by the carrying out of the famous dam on the Thornapple river, where Dietz claimed the right to charge toll on all logs going through.

The letter says that only one wing of the dam went out, and with it 1,500,000 feet of logs, while 5,000,000 feet still remain above the dam.

According to Dietz's story there was a deliberate attempt to carry away the dam. The gates, he says, were lowered at night, and at the same time the gates of two dams farther up the stream were opened, according to a prearranged plan of the drivers, thereby causing a sudden rise of water, which overflowed the dam, and took out the company's wing, which was the weakest part of the structure.

The dam did not give way until 4 o'clock the following afternoon, although, according to Deitz, one wing of a dam above was blown up with dynamite in order to increase the flow of water.

Darkness set in soon after the logs had begun to run and the drivers were unable to tend them. Many, he says, were scattered about in the woods and left there by the receding waters.

Dietz maintains that the situation is left about where it was before, except that three dams will have to be rebuilt, and until that is done he will be relieved from keeping watch on the one on his farm.

"PRESIDENT IS OF CLAY AND VERY COMMON CLAY."

Washington, May 12.—Senator Bailey, in concluding an attack on President Roosevelt for his alleged surrender on the railroad rate and tariff questions, said:

"Let us have no more here or throughout the country of this talk of the iron man. He is clay and very common clay at that."

EXPEDITION DEMANDED

Point of Rocks in Such Condition as to be Alarming.

City Engineer Says it Should be Immediately Attended To.

It is expected that Watson S. Moore, chairman of the city council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, will call a meeting of that committee and the auxiliary committee, recently appointed, to consider the Point of Rocks, at an early date, possibly at the first of next week. The committee proper consists of Aldermen Moore, W. B. Getchell and Burgess. The auxiliary committee, directed to act with the regular committee, consists of the aldermen from the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth wards. W. B. Getchell of the Eighth, being of the regular committee, the additional ones are Aldermen Frank Schaffer and Charles Mork of the Sixth; R. D. Haven and L. A. Barnes of the Seventh, and J. E. Foubister of the Eighth. This additional committee was appointed at the instance of Mr. Barnes and it is earnestly hoped that something will be done to remove the danger at the Point of Rocks, at Thirteenth avenue west, at an early date.

The city engineer has reported that it will take about $2,000 to put the place in a safe condition, and he has also added in his report that there is a quantity of rock there which he is afraid of and which he says should be removed at once. It is pointed out by economists that the city has not the funds for this work and that the matter must be dalayed for the time being. This is rather indefinite and "the time being" may extend over a long period.

It is pointed out, however, that should this dangerous rock fall one of these days and hit a street car or kill pedestrians, that the city will have plenty of money to work on the Point at once, and will also have to dig up quite a sum from some place or other to stand for the numerous damage suits which will surely be filed against it. West Duluthians and West enders who have occasion to pass the Point in street cars have frequently observed that the present idea of economy is a foolish and short-sighted one from a purely financial viewpoint; and besides that it may cost lives.

With the city engineer really alarmed over the condition of the Point of Rocks and the constant uneasiness felt by all who have occasion to pass that part of the city, there seems to be ample ground for general alarm and demands for prompt action on the part of the city. Mr. McGilvray, the city engineer, is not a natural alarmist, say the people of the western part of the city, and he has carefully examined the Point of Rocks and has made the report referred to. It is believed that he feels that the rock should be removed without delay.

The West Duluth and West End Commercial clubs have agitated this matter more or less and it is expected will go at it with more vim now.

SOME GOOD SALES.

J. J. Frey Disposes of Business Block, House and Some Lots.

J. J. Frey reports the following sales for the past week:

To H. T. Jensen, house and lot at 312 Fifty-fourth avenue west, for $1,000.

To John Lind, lot 10, block 163, Fifth division, for $300. Mr. Lind will build on this lot.

To Peter Spino of Hibbing a building containing three stores, at 305, 305½ and 307 Central avenue. The consideration was $5,500 and is for investment purely. The building is next to the Graham block, at the corner of Central avenue and Bristol street.

To M. Kamer, lot 8, block 203, West Duluth, Third Division, for $300.

HAS NEW CONSTITUTION.

Irving School Alumni Has New Scheme for Getting Dues.

The Irving School Alumni association met at the school last night and adopted a new constitution. President William Berglund was in the chair and about fifty members of the association attended. Under the new constitution the system of collecting dues for membership has been abolished.

Hereafter at the annual banquet of the association to welcome the graduating class a fee of 25 cents a plate will be charged in lieu of dues and that is the time the settlement will have to be made by each member. All but the graduating class will have to pay and they will be the guests of honor of the occasion.

The banquet this year will be held on Friday evening, the first day of June.

ATHLETIC ENTERTAINMENT.

New Association Gives Exhibition of Considerable Merit.

The West Duluth Athletic club held its first entertainment at St. James hall last night and was well patronized. Those who attended feel that they were well entertained, too, for the various events were excellent with very little amateurishness about them. Martin Johnson, the wrestling fireman, gave an exhibition of bag punching which was good and he also refereed the various contests.

Several boxing exhibitions were given. Harry Lowe was given the decision over Al Chaurette in a four-round contest, and the mitt difference between Melvin Johnson and John Steig was declared a draw after a spirited go for four rounds.

In wrestling W. Milton won from Dick Johnson, winning two straight falls; and Frank Kreidler won two straight falls from James De Chamnault.

TRY ANOTHER PARTY.

Euclid Lodge, Blocked Once, Is Not Discouraged by Snowstorm.

Euclid lodge, No. 198, A. F. & A. M., will give a party at Wade's hall on Tuesday evening next, and will have dancing and cards for the amusements. Last winter the lodge gave its annual party at Wade's but on the night of the party a very severe snowstorm blocked the cars and inconvenienced people in general. Therefore the attendance was much smaller than was expected and the weather caused disappointment to scores who figured on attending.

The lodge has decided to repeat the affair and feels that it has reason for hoping that no snowstorm will interfere this time.

A Clerk Takes Up the Cudgel — But Not for Publicity.

He writes us as follows:

Duluth, Minn., May 8, 1906.
Columbia Clothing Co.,
Duluth, Minn.

Gentlemen: In your last Saturday night talk on the Rebate question, you issued a bold challenge to those stores where 10 per cent rebates are given. I know you never expect to get an answer and your whole talk is only an advertising bluff, but it's time that you should quit, for it will do nobody any good if people know too much about the inside of business. We have always gotten good stiff prices here in Duluth, and you might as well get them as the rest of them.

One of your clerks told me that you sell goods with 8 to 12 per cent less profit than Burrows did, and that you pay as much as $2.85 for the shoes which you sell at $3.50, whereas most all of us pay $2.40 or $2.50, so that even if we give 10 per cent rebate to some, we still make more profit than you. I am also told that you spend $1.50 a dozen more for your $3 hats than we do, and that most of your $1 articles are $9 and $10 a dozen goods, while the rest of us pay only $7.50 to $9 a dozen. We must give rebates because so many people expect them and won't buy of us if we don't allow it. The store that I work for has always done it that way, and I think it's none of your business to come here and raise a rumpus. We have too many old friends who are willing to pay our prices, so you had better quit before you burst up, for you can't do business in this town the way you claim you do and pay expenses. Tell that to someone who isn't wise to your game. Yours truly,

Now, what do you think of that?

ASK FOR A 10% REBATE

at those stores where the custom of giving them to some prevails. The man, who bought before you, got it, and your hard-earned money is as good as his—at least, it ought to be!

BUT SAFER STILL BY FAR

it is to trade at stores that do business in a business-like way—according to the One-price System—where they take the 10% off before you get there. There they carry the best goods and sell to all alike at a uniform low rate. They know what to expect and neither need shuffle the price cards, nor baffle you on values.

O. G. LARSON OUT OF RACE

Is No Longer a Candidate for the Position of Sheriff.

Says Some of His Best Friends Are Knocking Him.

O. G. Larson has withdrawn from the shrievalty contest. He filed for the nomination on the Republican ticket, but the pace, with seven candidates in the field, became too warm, and he decided to drop out. He says he will support none of the candidates now in the race.

"I withdrew," he said today, "because of some knocking against me by those whom I have considered my best friends, and I drop out without any pressure from anybody who is in the race at the present time. I will be free to support some new man who may file later on. I would not, under any consideration, support anybody that is in the field now, because I believe the reason the knockers took out their hammers against me is that pressure was brought to bear on them by some of the present candidates."

NORTH BUTTE A LITTLE WEAKER

Calumet & Pittsburg Not So Strong—Other Bisbees Steady.

North Butte was a little weaker at the close today, but the other listed copper stocks were stronger. North Butte opened at $94.12½, advanced to $94.25, declined to $93 and closed at $93.25 bid and $93.50 asked. The total sales of North Butte for the day were 2,468 shares. Other stocks were heavily traded in.

Amalgamated opened at $107.75, fell off to $107.50 and advanced to $108.50. The closing price was $107.62½ bid, and $107.87½ asked. Anaconda opened at $267.50, fell off to $267 and advanced to $275.25. The closing price was $268.75 bid. Butte Coalition sold at $33.87½ and $34, closing at $33.75 bid and $34.25 asked. United Copper opened at $62.17½ and advanced to $62.75. The closing price was $63 bid and $64.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona was traded in at $113, and closed at $112 bid.

Calumet & Arizona was a little weaker, selling at $29 and $28 and closing at $28 bid and $29 asked. Denn-Arizona was $14 bid. Junction sold at $25.50 and $25, closing at $25 bid and $25.50 asked. Lake Superior & Pittsburg sold at $33.75 and closed at $34 bid and $34.50 asked, and Pittsburg & Duluth closed at $19 bid and $19.50 asked, after selling at $19.

Black Mountain sold at $11 and closed at $11 bid and $12 asked. Keweenaw closed at $10.50 bid and $11 asked. Warren sold at $15.25 and closed at $15.25 bid. Copper Queen of Idaho closed at $2 bid and $2.50 asked, and Ophir Tunnel closed at 17 cents bid and 19 cents asked, after selling at 19 cents.

LOANS MONEY ON ALL POLICIES

Northwestern Mutual Accepts Policies for 90 Per Cent of Value.

Milwaukee, May 12.—The examination of Second Vice President J. W. Skinner of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company by the special Wisconsin legislative committee inquiring into the affairs of life insurance companies doing business in Wisconsin was continued today. Mr. Skinner stated that his company has been loaning money on all kinds of its policies to the extent of 90 per cent of the cash surrender value of the risk since 1901, and that there is not now a policy of the company upon which the company itself cannot make a loan. An explanation was made with regard to officers and employes loaning money on policies upon which the company had a right to make loans. It was stated that loans were made by officers and employes and trust companies only when the amount asked for by the policyholders was in excess of the amount which the company could loan according to law. Mr. Skinner said that all the work with regard to estimating the cash value of a policy was done in the office of the actuary and that any policyholder could secure a valuation of his policy at any time.

WILL OPEN THE SEASON

Duluth Yacht Club Will Conduct Races May 30.

Prizes Will be Offered the Different Classes of Boats.

The first sailing races of the season will be pulled off on the bay, May 30, under direction of the Duluth Yacht club. The contests will be for special prizes. The regular cup and pennant events will not begin until later on, at a date not yet announced.

The Decoration day events will be divided into classes for the different kinds of boats, and some interesting matches are looked for. Several new yachts have been ordered by club members. Some of these have already arrived and been launched, and the remainder should be here by the 30th, so that more boats will probably be entered in the races than at any time in the past.

It looks very much as if this would be the most successful season in the history of the yacht club. A widespread interest has been aroused in the plans of the organization, and a number of new enthusiasts are added to the ranks of the old. The club is in a prosperous condition, and a considerable sum of money is being spent for improvements in and about the club house on Park Point.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL.

Emmetsburg, Iowa, to Celebrate Its Half-Century Anniversary.

Emmetsburg, Iowa, May 12.—The business men and citizens met last night to complete arrangements and hear the reports of various committees in regard to the semi-centennial which is to be held July 4, 5 and 6, which promises to be one of the greatest events in Northwest Iowa, celebrating the founding of the town, which was fifty years ago, the 4th of July next. Emmetsburg is a thriving town of 2,800 people, situated at the junction of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroads, and is located in the best farming district of Iowa.

KILLED BY HORSE.

Iowa City, Iowa, May 12.—John Griffin of Oxford, was killed by the kick of a horse yesterday. He was a wealthy farmer.

Drunkenness Cured.

It will be gratifying to all lovers of temperance and a happy home to know that a simple and scientific cure for the whisky and beer habit has been discovered. Orrine never fails to cure drunkenness if it is used in accordance with the simple directions in the package, and the discoverer has so much confidence in the treatment that we are authorized to sell it with an absolute guarantee, to effect a cure or the money will be refunded.

It is in two forms: No. 1, to be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured, $1.00 each. Mothers and sisters have told us of husbands and brothers who since they were given Orrine, in many cases without their knowledge, have lost all desire for drink, and we are glad to recommend the remedy. Mail orders filled. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., or F. W. Kugler, 108 W. Superior St.

RESULTS OF STRIKE

No Grain Cargoes at Chicago Though Boats Numerous.

Practically All Grain Is Now Being Sent by Rail.

Chicago, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vesselmen and longshoremen are now seeing the aftermath of the strike in the lack of grain cargoes. Not one could be secured today although boats were numerous and the agents were anxious to place them. It is said that little grain will move by lake until the all-rail contracts are out of the way.

The Pilgrim Stranded.

Port Austin, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The passenger steamer Pilgrim, of the Thompson line, is stranded on Point Aux Barques reef. A tug has been sent to the steamer's assistance. The weather is favorable for the rescue of the vessel.

Capt. Hazen Dead.

Marine City, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. J. C. Hazen, a retired lake captain, died at his home here today, aged 70 years. He will be buried Monday by the Masonic order, of which he was a member.

REID DRIVEN IN.

Wrecking Crew Has to Abandon Work on Mataafa In Gale.

The Reid wrecking outfit, which has been at work on the wrecked steamer Mataafa at the harbor entrance, was driven in this noon by the northeast gale which is arising. The work has been progressing very favorably on the wreck for quite a number of days now and tugs have been used to churn the sand from around the wreck with their wheels. For this purpose the tugs were hitched to the wreck and pulled hard enough to make a disturbance of the water about the ship so that the sand would be moved away or at least thinned out around the vessel. If this storm does not amount to much, it is believed that the vessel will be brought into the harbor within a week.

This morning the wind shifted rapidly to the northeast and almost before it was well realized, a northeaster had started to work. It churned up the sea fast enough so that shortly after noon the work on the Mataafa had to be abandoned, for the time being, at least. The white horses of Neptune are riding in fast.

EXPECTS ADJUSTMENT.

G. A. Tomlinson Believes Marine Labor Differences Will be Fixed.

G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, a member of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association, arrived home yesterday from Cleveland, but will return at once to take part in the conference to be held between the executive committee of the carriers and the officials of the marine unions. Mr. Tomlinson expects these conferences to adjust matters, although the unions propose standing out strongly for shorter hours and better pay.

He declares that the business lost during the strike cannot be made up this year.

WORK BEGINS WITHIN WEEK

Company Holding Contract for Dredging Shoal, Ready to Start.

The Zenith Dredging company of this city, which has the government contract for dredging the shoal at the entrance of Ontonagan harbor, will commence the work in about a week, with the expectation of having it completed within a month. The improvement has been made possible by the allotment by the war department for the purpose, from the emergency appropriation for the river and harbor work.

The dredging company will have about 24,000 yards of material to remove.

The plans contemplate the dredging of the entrance channel and two other channels, one leading to the north end of the commercial dock, and the other to the north end of the lumber dock on the west side of the harbor.

It is expected that private parties at Ontonagan will assist in the improvement by dredging in front of the docks.

WIELD AX IN MICHIGAN

Copper Country Ball Managers Getting Their Teams in Shape.

Determined to Hold Up Their End of New League.

Houghton, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The developments of the week in baseball circles in the Copper country have been many, and they all point to one fact—the managers of Copper country teams are intent on securing men who will be able to hold their own against the best the Northwest will put forward.

Especially is this true in Hancock, where Manager Wreath has wielded the ax with fearful effect, and five baseball players of bush league caliber are looking for jobs. Among them is Clinton Gallagher, who traveled from Presque Isle, Me., to Hancock, a distance of 2,000 miles, to try out for the Hancock team. He paid his own expenses at that. Gallagher is a likely young fellow, but he needs a season or two more of amateur or semi-professional playing before he is fit for the Northern-Copper Country league.

The other men released are Rick, a catcher; Goulet, a pitcher, and Boden and Walker, outfielders.

To fill the places made vacant by the releases, Manager Wreath has Stewart, a catcher, who arrived this week; Eugene McDonnell, an outfielder, who has also arrived; Farrell, another catcher, who is on his way; Byers, a second baseman, and another outfielder. Stewart has already shown excellent form behind the bat, and McDonnell, who played in this district before, is expected to make good. Farrell comes from Montreal, touted as a wonder, and the other men have good records. Manager Wreath is now dickering with a first baseman, who is well known here, and a pitcher, who played in the Copper Country league before, and whose record here is enviable. If he succeeds in landing them, he will have an aggregation which should show a disposition to grasp at the pennant before the season is very far advanced.

Manager Cassiboine of the Houghton team has also been making strenuous efforts toward the strengthening of his team. Frank Smith, a catcher who led the players of that position in the Three I league two years ago, has arrived in Houghton and is showing good form. Beecher, a pitcher, and Donovan, a first baseman, have also put in their appearance, coming from Terre Haute, where they played in the Central league. With them came Ed Kippert, an outfielder, who was with Hancock last year and Dollar Bay for two years before that and who has always played good ball. Manager Cassiboine has released W. Smith, a local first baseman, whom he tried and found wanting.

Kurke, catcher, and Becker, outfielder of last year's Lake Linden team, have arrived in that town and are working out with the squad. But one more man is needed to complete the Lake Linden line-up. He is Shurch, the big St. Thomas college pitcher, who is with that team in St. Paul at present, but who will be in the Copper country next week.

Manager Morrison of the Calumet team seems to have just the men he wants, and the strides that team is making in the practice games seem to justify his belief in it.

The Future of the Airship.

An airship inventor, who recently sailed the first airship over New York successfully, confesses frankly the shortcomings of his invention and acknowledges that it could never be adapted for carrying passengers nor for express service. The only commercial value of an airship is for exhibition purposes, and the day of practical flying-machines is still far distant. If you want a practical medicine for that poor, tired stomach of yours why don't you try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has been used successfully for over 50 years in cases of belching, bloating, heartburn, flatulency, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, female ills, biliousness and malaria, fever and ague, often effecting a cure when other remedies have failed. Give it a chance to prove its merit and you'll be thankful for taking the hint.

WILL SEND BOY TO ASYLUM.

Jasper Sparks, Who Shot Hired Man, is Adjudged Insane.

Newton, Iowa, May 12.—Jasper Sparks, the young man who shot and perhaps mortally wounded Troy Branton, his father's hired man, has been adjudged insane and will be sent to the state asylum. Branton was helping the elder Sparks bury a pig which they had shot because it was ill, and young Sparks in a sudden fit of anger seized the rifle and shot Branton.

The ball lodged in the body near the lungs, having entered the neck and ranged downward. Branton is in a very serious condition. It is said Spark's mental condition was brought on by being kicked by a horse over a year ago.

SCATHING REBUKE FOR COURTMARTIAL OFFICERS.

Washington, May 12.—A scathing rebuke has been administered by Acting Secretary of the Navy Newberry to the officers of a courtmartial who refused to reconsider their verdict when the department called their attention to the fact that they had overlooked certain evidence and permitted Lieut. John A. Schofield to escape with a reprimand.

Schofield was tried for neglect of duty in permitting the torpedo destroyer Winslow to be run on a shoal. The evidence showed conclusively that Schofield had neglected his duty in failing to keep himself informed regarding an error of the compass of his vessel, and in neglecting to take bearings so as to protect his vessel.

After pleading guilty, the court sentenced Schofield to be reprimanded publicly. The department reviewed the proceedings of the courtmartial and returned them for re-consideration. The court stood by its original decision.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass.

Dear Sir:

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it become so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water today and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am."

Very truly yours,
I. C. RICHARDSON.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root. If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

DRIVERS' STRIKE DELAYS FUNERALS.

New York, May 12.—Funeral services in New York City today were subjected to serious delay and caskets were in many cases carried to graves in plain black wagons or even on trucks, owing to the continuance of the funeral drivers' strike. None of the 1,500 men, who went out yesterday for a wage increase of $2 a week, had returned to their posts. Even more difficult than securing hearses was the hiring of carriages for mourners, many of whom were forced to ride on street cars to the cemeteries.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Philadelphia Press: To the ministers who assert that San Francisco was destroyed because of its sins: If you can't say a good word for the stricken city, don't knock it.

Philadelphia Press: Let the Rev. Crapsey console himself with the pleasing reflection that his alleged heresies do not expose him to any danger of the flames of persecution. He can preach just as much heresy as he pleases, provided he can get a congregation to listen to him.

Indianapolis News: The Western clergyman who said that the preachers were the ones who practiced race suicide, because they got such miserly salaries that it was impossible to raise a family, was right. If half the congregations of this country knew of the way the families of some of their pastors live because of their low salaries, they couldn't look the minister in the face.

Kansas City Star: While no one will be disposed to commend the tact or the wisdom of the Hindoo pundit who denounced Christian missionaries and Christianity in general from the pulpit of All Souls' church yesterday, it is not to be supposed that the missionaries who are sent from this country to India are at all flatering in the references to the religion of the Hindoos.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Dockstader's minstrels.

DOCKSTADERS'S MINSTRELS.

Cleverest Performance Duluth Has Seen in Many Moons.

Lew Dockstader and the cleverest minstrels that ever were addicted to burnt cork, opened an engagement of two nights and a matinee at the Lyceum last evennig before one of the largest and finest audiences of the season. Welcome, Lew!

Lew always was a merry cut-up on the stage and this season he has evolved an entertainment that embraces all the charming features of the minstrel shows of old and at the same time gives us something that we do not see when every black-face organization comes to the Head of the Lakes.

Last evening's audience fairly whooped with delight. It certainly proved that it is worth while to produce novelties and cleverness even in a minstrel show. Lesser lights than Lew content themselves with the same old gags and methods that were all the go when Jack Haverly first struck the road.

The performance begins with a minstrel first part, of course. The stage settings are gorgeous and everyone on the stage is in black-face, as they should be. Harry A. Ellis, James B. Bradley, William H. Thompson, Manuel Romain, William H. McDonald and Matte Keefe contribute the pretentious vocal numbers. The other vocalists are William H. Halett, Clarence Marks, T. Vale Wood, G. F. Weller and Wilson N. Miller. Their voices are good and their numbers well chosen.

John H. Kling and Neil O'Brien occupy the seats of honor on the ends until the arrival of the star. John gets off some wheezes of recent brew and sings "Who's There," which is not much of a song. Neil contributes more late wheezes and sings "Just Because She Had a Wiming Way" and "Never No More," which he wrote himself. He instills considerable originality into both.

Then comes the only Lew. He makes merry, ousts Bill Halett from his position as interlocutor and installs a phonograph in his place. Then he slugs "Nothing Like That in Our Family" in the most approved Dockstader fashion. The first part concluded with his own beautiful conception. "The Heaven-Born Banner."

After a brief intermission, the merriment goes on apace. A large group of dancers in sassy green tights do some clog steps and movements originated by Barney Fagan and Tommy Hyde. Then comes Lew again, with his screamingly funny monologue. He starts off by telling a good story or two and singing "Uncle's Quit Work, Too," which is the successor to "Everybody Works but Father."

The second part of his monologue consists of the delivery of local and other gags from the front of a "rubberneck auto." The auto is on the stage, full of sight-seers, with Lew as guide. His descriptions of the sights are very amusing. Then he gets into a fight with his passengers and has to quit the auto and flee. His flight is graphically pictured by means of moving pictures.

There is more dancing and Neil O'Brien and compauy present a most laughable skit called "Bargain Day in a Department Store." Neil plays the floorwalker. "Ain't he killing," said a girl in the dress circle. He certainly was and after the audience had laughed itself into hysterics, the singers came out and warbled a few.

The entertainment concludes with a beautiful melodramatic skit called "Little Mose." It involves the christening of a little "pick" and all the colored ladies and "gemen" are there. The cutest little "pick" you ever saw is brought on the stage and Manual Romain and chorus sing "Little Mose," which is as pretty a song as Duluth has heard in a long time. An earthquake shakes the stage, puts out the lights and when they come again, little Mose is discovered sitting in the midst of the ruin, playing.

Then the curtain goes down on the best minstrel show that ever came to town.

Johnson Must Pay for Timber.

Fred Merrill, who brough suit against Edward Johnson for alleged timber trespass, was yesterday afternoon awarded a verdict for $197.10. Johnson secured a postponement of the trial a few days ago on the claim that he could get a witness to prove that he was ordered by his employer to cut the disputed timber. He failed to produce the witness, however, and the verdlct went against him.

LABOR

SHARTEL IS CANDY BOY

Trades Assembly President Complimented by That Body.

Delegation to State Federation—No Fight on Game Warden.

The Federated Trades' assembly last night elected five delegates and five alternates to the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, which will meet in Stillwater early next month and when this happened, President Joseph Shartel was paid a distinct compliment. Only 28 votes were cast, each delegate being permitted to vote for five of the candidates out of the ten mentioned. President Shartel was voted for by every man who cast a ballot, getting a vote of 28. Four others got 15 votes each so that the delegation from the Federated Trades' assembly to the Stillwater convention will be as follows:

Joseph Shartel, Cigarmakers; Martin Olmem, Printers; T. G. Freshney, Painters; John McDonald, Printers, and G. M. Davis, Carpenters. The alternates are: Henry Perrault, Cigarmakers; C. W. F. Hegg, Clerks; A. A. Barr, Machinists; Paul Bolz, Carpenters, and Frank Boreen, Machinists.

* * *

It will be noted that Henry Perrault is a delegate to the assembly again. He was one of the leading members up to the time that he removed to Winnipeg last fall and much regret was expressed to see him go. However, he soon sickened of the Canadian metropolis and headed for "home." When the Cigarmakers met a short time ago and found a vacancy in its representation to the trades' assembly, the union sent Mr. Perrault back again to offer some more good advice. Last night he was obligated and as soon as the oath was taken he resumed his seat amid considerable applause.

* * *

Martin Olmen resigned from the delegation to the Superior Trades Assembly, and a little later in the evening Henry Perrault was elected and obligated, so he will begin his duties next Tuesday night.

* * *

The matter of the West Duluth Barbers' union was brought up. This union was suspended for non-payment of dues, of which it owed $28. The union has been trying to reaffiliate and an offer was received by the Trades Assembly last night by which the West Duluth barbers proposed to pay one-half of the indebtedness for reinstatement. It seems, however, that under the rules of the assembly this cannot be done. The only way out of it seemed to be for the barbers to be affiliated anew, which will cost them only $6. They will be so notified.

* * *

The grounds committee of the assembly reported that it has a site for lease of purchase for picnic grounds, in view and asked to be continued. The request was granted.

* * *

T. G. Fresney introduced a resolution which was adopted unanimously, which practically informs Governor Johnson that the unions of Duluth do not care a continental who is appointed deputy game warden here; but says that where union labor men are in the field for an office and their integrity and ability are known to come up to requirements, the Trades Assembly favors their appointment.

It seems that this resolution was introduced to make it plain that the assembly has no objection to Walter Johnson, who is talked of for deputy game warden, there having been a rumor to the effect that union labor is fighting Mr. Johnson. Governor Johnson will be informed of the resolution.

TAILOR,

2004 West Superior Street.

Even an expert cannot distinguish by its appearance roasted Java from Brazilian Coffee. Then how can you know that you get your money's worth when you buy loose grocery-store coffee on looks and the price mark? You don't know, and the grocer does not know, for "cup" quality is not visible to the eye, and he cannot show it to you. Refuse loose scoop coffee! You may be sure that all coffee deteriorates when exposed to the air, and is easily contaminated by dust and impurities.

You will find it to your advantage to buy from us direct if your grocer refuses to supply Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee.

For your protection, to positively insure you full weight, purity and the best coffee value for your money, Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee is sold in sealed one pound packages only. As the largest coffee dealers in the world, with a business exceeding any four other coffee dealers, we can and do give better coffee than can be bought elsewhere for anything like the same price—in proof of which the sales of Ariosa for 37 years are greater than the combined sales of all other packaged coffee in the United States. Wherever you may be you get the full advantage of our enormous facilities. By the original "mother's" process patented by this firm the pores of the coffee bean are hermetically sealed, after roasting, with a coating of fresh eggs and sugar, which preserves intact the delicious flavor and aroma due to our skilled blending and roasting—not to be compared with crude, primitive methods on a smaller scale. We drink Arbuckles' Ariosa ourselves every day with the best coffee of the world to choose from.

If your grocer refuses to sell you Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee send us express or postal money-order for $1.80, and we will send 10 lbs. of Ariosa in a wood box, transportation paid to your freight station. The price of coffee fluctuates—we cannot guarantee the price for any period. We will ship in the original packages with signature of Arbuckle Bros. 10 lbs.—10 signatures—which entitle you to presents. New book with colored pictures of 97 presents free. You can write first for the book and see the pictures of the useful and beautiful presents before you order the coffee.

What is the use of paying 25 to 35 cents a pound for coffee that may not be as good as Arbuckles' Ariosa!

IN POLITICS.

With seven Republican candidates for the nomination of sheriff in the field from Duluth already, and the prospect of at least two more getting into the fight from this city, it looks as if a candidate from the range would have an excellent show of making a run that might amount to something in the vote-getting line, and it is confidently expected that one or more filings will come from that part of the county.

During the week there has been strong talk from the ranges to the effect that a candidate for sheriff would get into the race from there, but no names have been mentioned in this connection. It is argued that with from seven to ten or more Duluth candidates, the city vote would be so thoroughly split up that a man who could get the range towns fairly well lined up would be able to land the nomination with comparative ease.

W. C. Sargent, former sheriff of the county, is the last man mentioned as a possible candidate for the nomination on the Republican ticket. His friends say there is a strong likelihood that he will become a candidate. It is almost a certainty now that E. L. Fisher, retiring postmaster, will be a candidate. He refuses to say that he is in the race, or intends to be, but does not deny that he may become a candidate. It is generally believed that he will file in the near future. If Sargent goes into the game it will be at a late date, it is said, and he will depend upon a quick, aggressive and vigorous campaign for victory.

Possible candidates among the Democrats are being talked of now. Prominent among the names mentioned are those of Charles G. Miller and John D. Brady. Miller has tried for the position twice, and both times has been defeated, although making a creditable showing, in view of the fact that St. Louis county is a Republican stronghold. Mr. Brady was surveyor general of logs and lumber under Governor John Lind, and has been an active force in county politics, and has a wide acquaintance.

Following is the Republican list of shrievalty candidates to date: Jack Miles, John T. Armstead, O. G. Larson J. P. Hoffman, William J. Bates, R. E. Patterson and C. H. Dahl.

* * *

Capt. Ray T. Lewis filed yesterday for the Republican nomination for representative from the Fiftieth district. In this district no sharp competition for legislative office is looked for.

* * *

The announcement of Senator E. B. Hawkins, this week, that he had decided to withdraw from the race for lieutenant governor, did not cause so much of a sensation as it would have done if such action had not been expected from him for two or three weeks prior to the announcement. In making public his decision, he said that he believed it would be best for St. Louis county to have no candidate of its own for state office at the coming convention, giving as a reason that the delegation from here would then be able to work more effectively for the interests of this part of the state.

This statement of the senator's was not hailed with shouts of pleasure by some of the local Republicans. More than this, some groans of dissatisfaction were to be heard. The dissatisfied ones say there is no particular reason why St. Louis county should not have a candidate for state office if she wants one, and that Senator Hawkins is taking a good deal upon himself in trying to influence it not to have any. They say it comes with ill grace for Senator Hawkins to drop out of the contest at this stage of the game and then to suggest that no one else from the county try for the nomination to any other state office. No one has as yet expressed a desire to place themselves in the running for state office from this country, but local politicians feel that if anyone should happen to want to take such action the sentiment of the county should be favorable rather than against, allowing him perfect freedom to decide for himself in the matter.

Senator Hawkins will not be a candidate for the senatorship in the Forty-ninth district, as has been predicted by some of the outside papers. According to a statement made yesterday, he has no intention whatever of trying for the senatorship again this year, and he says that he will not be in politics at all, except as a helper of other members of the party who are trying for office. He intends to work with old-time vigor in the campaign, but it will be for the other fellow and not for himself. It is believed that the senator woudn't have much trouble being elected again if he should by any chance run again.

"The chances for a Republican victory at the fall election appear to me to be very good," said the senator yesterday. "Indications are that there will be harmony in the ranks this year, and that and a good man for governor is all that is needed to insure a Republican victory at the polls. I believe that whoever the convention selects for state offices will be supported as a unit by Republicans throughout the state, and that the bitter feelings of two years ago will be lacking."

* * *

A. L. Cole and his friends are anxious for St. Louis county to tender him the complimentary vote of the home delegation for the nomination for governor at the June convention. Carlton and Itasca counties will give him such a vote, and as the interests of these two counties are closely linked with those of St. Louis, they would like to get the late in the also.

Some political leaders seem to be of the opinion that Mr. Cole would do more as governor for Northern Minnesota than any one else who is trying for the position, but hesitates to give the promise desired. It has been the intention to leave the delegation entirely free from promises until the very eve of the convention, and then to instruct its members to stand solidly for one man, or set of men. If this policy is followed out, St. Louis county might vote for Cole for governor if it was apparent that he stood a fairly good show of winning out.

On the other hand, if it should appear that his chance of victory was slight, St. Louis county, while perhaps favoring his candidacy, would not feel justified in throwing away its vote merely as complimentary. No one is saying that Mr. Cole's chances would be so slight as all that. Quite the contrary is believed to be the case, but this county doesn't want to be placed in the position at this stage of placing the vote of her delegation on any particular candidate, and it is hardly likely that she will do so.

* * *

It begins to look as if Harry Skinner would have an easy time of it in the Fifty-first district, landing the nomination and later the election, for representative. He announced his candidacy at an early date, and no one has shown an inclination to enter the contest with him, although several different possible candidates were talked of before the announcement of his filing.

THE SHERIFF MIXUP.

The Situation as Viewed by a Friend of Armstead.

A friend and undoubtedly a partisan of John T. Armstead had the the following in the Tribunal of this week:

Within the last few days this community has been treated to a most delectable tale of political duplicity in the sheriff mixup. The three leading candidates have been getting a lot of free advertising of the undesirable kind. Bates and Miles are unquestionably out of the race, while Armstead has been severely criticized for his reference in a letter to Miles to secret societies and to labor organizations. When the entire matter is analyzed it resolves itself down to the simple fact that Armstead has been indiscreet in writing as he did, and Bates stands before the community in anything but a favorable light, to say the least of it.

The statement has been made that the publishing of the affair puts Bates, Miles and Armstead, all three, out of the race, and that a strong man could get in and carry off the plum, but we do not agree with that view. The only thing that puts Armstead in a bad light is that his letter was published in connection with the corrupt deal of the others. Had the letter been printed alone it would not have had that effect. Then Armstead would simply have been laughed at for his lack of discretion in writing as he did, and he would have had to put up with more or less joshing from his friends and acquaintances. As we understand it, this was a confidential letter to Miles. It was not expected that it would even be printed, and nothing written in confidence should operate against a man, unless there is something wrong or dishonorable in it, and we can see nothing of that kind in this letter.

Those who are at all acquainted with Mr. Armstead know that he has the reputation of being an honorable and an upright man, and, while his friends will concede, of course, that he was indiscreet in writing that letter, yet there was nothing dishonorable in it, and it is not quite fair to crucify a man for an indiscretion which harmed nobody but himself.

Considered by itself, it contains but two objectionable features, one is the reference to the Masonic and Elk fraternities, and the other is the reference to the labor vote. If the letter as published in the daily papers is a verbatim copy, and we presume it is, the reference to fraternal societies is in these words:

"I have made a good impression since the last campaign by making short speeches at Masonic banquets and social events among the Elks, and this will have more or less effect with many who do not know either Bates or I."

What is there in this to prejudice a member of either order against him. He is a little egotistical perhaps, in thinking he made a good impression, but there is no intimation that the members who heard them would be influenced by them save only those who did not know personally either of the candidates. If the speeches were worth listening to, they would unquestionably influence a listener who was not biased by a personal choice between the tow men.

So we reiterate, that when the letter is read by itself, and read in the light in which it was written, as a confidential communication, it will not be to his detriment. If the business men of this city who have written confidential letters which they would not like to see printed, were to leave Duluth, we fancy there would be few left to transact our business. A CITIZEN.

BECHTEL NOT GUILTY.

Jury Brings in Verdict Acquitting Former Insurance President.

Minneapolis, May 12.—Late yesterday afternoon the jury in the Bechtel case brought in a verdict of not guilty. Bechtel was charged with using the funds of the Northwestern Life Insurance company to pay his own personal debts and that he did not keep an account of the money used in such instances. The defendant was formerly president of the company and the specific charge against him was that he took $3,500 from the concern's treasury to pay a certain fee which he owed. The Bechtel trial has been one of the shortest in the history of like cases in the history of like cases in this state and has lasted only five days.

MILK DEALERS ARE NEGLIGENT

A number of the milk dealers in Duluth are tardy about getting their licenses as required by the state law and there is good prospect that the dairy and food department will take active steps very soon to bring the delinquents on the carpet. Harris Bennett, deputy state dairy and food inspector, says that he had some applications for new licenses and for renewals, but that there are quite a number who have not yet attended to the matter.

The law provides that all licenses must be procured May 1, the old licenses expiring on that date. Persons who sell or peddle milk and who do not comply with the law are liable to prosecution and a heavy penalty in case of conviction.

Under the new code the attorney general of Minnesota holds that every saloon and restaurant that sells milk must procure a license. It is claimed that nearly every saloon in the city has milk for sale when patrons call for it, but only a few have yet complied with the law.

The provisions of the law have been pretty well advertised and it is said that the dairy and food commission will give the delinquents only a few more days of grace before starting prosecutions.

TO PROTECT CONSUMERS.

Superior Health Authorities Put Ban on Ice From Bay.

The city health department at Superior has taken steps to avert a possible epidemic of sickness that might result from the use of ice taken from the bay by issuing a notice calling the attention of the public to an ordinance making it a misdemeanor to sell or use bay ice for other than storage purposes

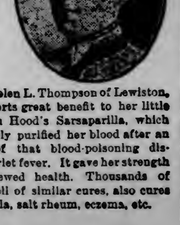
Reports have reached the health officer that certain meat dealers have been permitting ice to come in close proximity with their stock and the authorities expect to prosecute violations of the ordinance as fast as they have any proof.

The greater part of the ice crop at Superior usually comes from out of town lakes and streams but this last winter there was a shortage in the crop and many tons of storage ice were put up. The ordinance, which has been, practically, a dead letter, is now revived.

Pure Blood

Is certain if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This great medicine cures those eruptions, pimples and boils that appear at all seasons; cures scrofula sores, salt rheum or eczema; adapts itself equally well to, and also cures, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles; cures rheumatism and catarrh; cures nervous trouble, debility and that tired feeling.



SPECIAL—To meet the wishes of those who prefer medicine in tablet form, we are now putting up Hood's Sarsaparilla in chocolate-coated tablets as well as in the usual liquid form. By reducing Hood's Sarsaparilla to a solid extract, we have retained in the tablets the curative properties of every medicinal ingredient. Sold by druggists or sent by mail.

100 doses one dollar. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

Mrs. Helen L. Thompson of Lewiston, Me., reports great benefit to her little girl from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which thoroughly purified her blood after an attack of that blood-poisoning disease, scarlet fever. It gave her strength and renewed health. Thousands of others tell of similar cures, also cures of scrofula, salt rheum, eczema, etc.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Settlement of Strikes Greatly Improves Domestic Conditions.

New York, May 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of trade says:

Domestic industrial conditions are greatly improved by the anthracite coal settlement and the resumption of traffic on the lakes, while the international situation is much brighter now that the French elections have passed off without a serious outbreak. Foreign conditions are of unusual importance to the business interests in the United States owing to the present close relations of the money markets. Prices of securities have recovered part of the recent loss and heavy imports of gold have at least temporarily relieved the financial stringency. Manufacturing plants operate close to their full capacity, with orders in the steel industry already running well into 1907 and structural work was never more active.

Wholesale trade in fall and winter goods is on a large scale, but unseasonable weather causes much complaint regarding retail distrubution of merchandise and retards work on the farms in several important sections. This element of uncertainty as to crops tends to maintain quotations of staples at a high position. Dun's Index number of commodity prices on May 1, was $106,959 against $106,066 a month perviuos, the slight decline being supplied by diary and garden products, but compared with the level of all quotations a year ago, there is an advance of 8.7 per cent.

Railway earnings thus far available for April show a gain of 9.7 per cent over the previous year and foreign commerce at this port for the last week exhibits gains of $4,526,277 in exports, and $428,538 in imports as campared with the same week in 1905. Mercantile collections are somewhat irregular, but show slight improvement on the whole. Bank excharges at New York for the week were 23.8 per cent larger than a year ago, partly because of the much heavier trading in securities. At other leading cities the gain averages 9.56 per cent.

Conditons in the iron and steel industry have greatly improved by three setlements of labor controversies that handicapped labor progress to some extent. Failures this week were 209 in the United States against 197 last week and 17 in Canada, compared with 21 a year ago.

TWINS COME FAST.

Illinois Farmer's Family Increases Four in Eleven Months.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 11.—Mrs. John Disston of Grand View, Ill., has given birth to a second pair of twins within eleven months. All four are living. The father is a young farmer.

DINEHART'S CANDIDACY IN CONFLICT WITH THAT OF SENATOR SOMERVILLE

fight, which hardly tends to increase the Hallock's editor's chances for nomination. At that time the story of his attempt to secure a contribution from J. J. Hill of $20,000 to aid Collins' campaign was widely circulated, and although denied strenuously from all sides of the Collins' faction, almost absolute proof was produced to show that Nelson had approached the railroad magnate for the purpose of securing a contribution. That he left the office of the president of the Great Northern railroad without the money is now a matter of history. Had the money been secured there would have been no story, and Nelson would have been inscribed on the roll of active workers for the "good" of the Republican party.

As the Dunn faction showed the earmarks of victory, Mr. Nelson's loyalty, it is said, began to weaken, and he was noted to be veering Dunnwards, but was later received coldly by that faction. It is reported that Nelson is now hanging in limbo as far as the two great factions of the party are concerned, and that he must fight for the nomination without any help from either. That he will receive opposition from both factions is not doubted.

* * *

Governor Johnson, a few days ago, was presented to President Roosevelt by Senator Nelson. It is well known that Senator Nelson is a strong admirer of Governor Johnson in every respect save that of politics. As was expected, President Roosevelt thanked Governor Johnson for what he had done relative to the adjustments of the insurance affairs, and in return Governor Johnson thanked the president for making use of his name in the special message he sent to congress. Governor Johnson is each day building for himself a stronger name, and is no doubt one of the few governors of the state to receive so much consideration at the hands of the chief executive of the nation.

Congressman Buckman called at the capital city this week and secured affidavits for filing notice of candidacy with the secretary of state. He held a conference with his workers at the Merchants hotel and it was generally admitted that the fight would be a hot and bitter one. Telegrams were sent out to over thirty workers, telling them that "there would be fighting all along the line." N. H. Ingersoll, postmaster of Brainerd, was on hand to consult with Buckman, and the line of action was mapped out.

* * *

A. L. Cole of Walker is still at work industrously at his headquarters in the Ryan hotel. He confers with party workers in the parlors above, while Julius Block is busy in the rotunda below, after the "buttonhole" fashion. It is regarded that Cole has broken into Block's preserves by establishing headquarters at that hostelry. Block has been the only candidate visible about its rotunda and Robert street entrance for the last year and a half, when it was first known that he had active designs on the gubernatorial nomination. The two candidates are working together harmoniously, however.

* * *

Cole's friends are circulating the story that Jacobson set the cause of drainage back ten years by his persistent efforts while in the state legislature to defeat appropriations for such projects. What Jacobson's attitude on drainage has been in the past, there can be no doubt upon his present position. Drainage is one of the things he is now standing for, in common with the other candidates in the field.

While in the city the Buckman contingent who met their master in St. Paul, called on Cole at the Ryan hotel, and were in conference with him for some time. It is understood that the Cole workers in the Sixth district are taking the position that it would be suicidal to tie up to either the Buckman or Lindbergh faction.

Announcement has been made that W. B. Anderson, who has represented Winona in the house, and who was a member of the judiciary committee, will move to Minneapolis within a few weeks, to engage in the practice of law with Harlan P. Roberts, under the firm name of Harlan & Anderson.

* * *

Odin Halden and A. M. Chisholm of Duluth, were in St. Paul during the week trying to make arrangements for special rates for the delegates who go from the Twin Cities to the Duluth convention. It is understood that an attempt is being made to secure a $3 rate. This has not yet been obtained.

* * *

As the convention draws nearer it is more apparent that there will be more uninstructed delegates in the convention than ever before in the history of the state. The pre-convention is without spectacular events. No bad feeling has been engendered among the several candidates for the first place on the ticket. Outside of the various districts which have candidates it is unlikely that another delegation will go instructed as to the head of the ticket.

In the absence of such instruction regarding the head of the ticket, it it almost impossible for the candidates aspiring for places lower down on the ticket to secure pledges and alliances for which they are very anxious. Some of the candidates will go before the convention as blind as to their possible strength as ever candidates did.

* * *

The two candidates most prominently mentioned among the candidates for the nomination for governor are Jacobson and Somerville. Both have points which commend them strongly. It is a safe guess that Somerville would take best in the cities while Jacobson is very strong in the country. Some state that Somerville has incurred some enmity in his own district while Jacobson's is most harmoniously for him. Andy Stephens is working hard in Jacobson's territory and directing all his strength against him. It is not expected that Somerville will have many delegations to start with, but his friends count on him to do some clever work among the delegates at Duluth.

Is Joel P. Heatwole the "platform in himself" meant in the following squib in the Northfield News?

"A candidate for the Republican nomination for governor who has no principles of his own is not the kind of man wanted this year. We need in Minnesota a candidate like La Follette of Wisconsin or Cummins of Iowa, who is a platform in himself. The crisis is here."

LOOKING FORWARD TO SENIOR-FACULTY GAME

High School Students and Their Teachers Are Taking a Great Deal of Interest in Contest to be Held Wednesday—Both Sides Are Confident.

The high school is to be very busy in athletic lines next week, as no less than three events are to be pulled off.

On Wednesday comes the eagerly awaited Faculty-Senior baseball game. and in spite of the fact that the interclass field day is to be held Friday, it is about this contest that the chief interest of the school is centered.

Capt. Phillips of the faculty is as confident as ever, and he certainly has picked a formidable bunch, although some of the positions have not been definitely decided upon as yet. Either Mr. Ferguson or Mr. Culmer will frolic in left field, and Mr. Townsend, though he still has a game leg as the result of a coasting party last winter, will probably take care of the right garden. Gregory, of the manual training department, will play center field.

Mr. Joyce, the lunch room cashier, and Mr. Phillips will exchange positions in the box and at short stop, while Mr. Brace, of the manual training department, will be seen on the second bag.

Mr. Neal will play first.. Prof. Crull's positive refusal to play this position, spoils one of the oldest traditions of the annual game, and while Mr. Neal will undoubtedly be able to handle anything that comes his way, it is certain that Mr. Crull and his wandering hat will be sadly missed on the initial corner. Principal Foster, though he left Central to take charge of the new West Duluth school, still considers himself a member of the faculty and will play third. Mr. Foster's brilliant work at short two years ago will be clearly remembered by all the faculty fans. In addition to playing himself, Mr. Foster has furnished another very valuable addition to the team. Prof. Brennecham of the manual training department at West Duluth, who will do the back stop work for the faculty, is said to be a whirlwind.

To a bunch like these, the Seniors, who were defeated by the Freshmen Monday, by a score of 15 to 11, look like easy meat, and they are going into the game with a confidence of victory that goes a long way towards success. Miss Trufant of the stenography department has been chosen mascot, and a yell will probably be forthcoming before the day of the game arrives. The faculty colors will be the same as two years ago, cardinal red.

Capt. Forsyth of the Seniors says that the pedagogues will have to go some to beat his aggregation and announces the following line up: Catcher, Fred Ober; pitcher, Crassweller; first base, Forsyth; second base, Bowen; short stop, Parks; third base, Holmberg; right field, Abraham or Borgen; center field, Kindy; left field, Amundson.

FIELD DAY DATE SET.

Athletic Association Decides to Hold Event Friday, May 15.

At the meeting of the Athletic association yesterday afternoon, it was decided to hold the high school interclass field day on Friday, May 18. It was expected that it would be held Saturday, but the Y. M. C. A. had already engaged the grounds for the grade school field day, and as all the other Saturdays before the close of school are occupied by baseball games it will be necessary to hold the meet on Friday. School hours will be somewhat shortened in order that there may be time for all the events.

The track at Ironwood was also discussed and it was decided to notify the managers of the other schools that the only date open for Duluth to attend the meet was May 26. Owing to the inability of the schools to agree on a date, the arrangements for the meet are still rather up in the air but if it is held it will probably be on May 26. Ironwood has dropped out, as the students there are giving all their attention to baseball this year.

The long delayed report of the yell committee was received and a number of yells were offered for the association to choose from. The one selected is given in the slow time of the Wisconsin university yell and consists of "C. H. S. Du-luth," given three times. The yell was tried several times and proved a most effective noise-maker.

Capt. Ryan of the track team called a general practice at the high school this morning and quite a number of aspirants for track honors showed up. All the events except the distances were tried and a very creditable showing made. Capt. White of the seniors will hold the tryout for the class relay team Monday afternoon at the driving park and has posted notices to that effect in the Senior rooks.

There is much good track material in the school, but it is feared that several of the most promising candidates started training too late to get themselves into good condition before the meet.

MEET MORE SUPERIOR MEN.

Duluth Central Ball Team Lined Up Against Nelson-Dewey.

This afternoon, the high school baseball team is playing the Nelson-Dewey team of Superior at the Athletic park. It is hoped that a better showing will be made than was made in the game with Blaine on Wednesday, when the locals received a drubbing to the tune of 17 to 5.

The Duluth boys feel that they are playing under a tremendous handicap in meeting the Wisconsin schools, because under the interscholastic rules of that state a man is eligible for a team if he has an average of 75 in all his studies, while Principal Smith insists that if the Duluth boys play as a high school team, they must live up to the Minnesota rules which demand an average of 75 per cent in every study. In regard to this ruling Principal Smith said yesterday:

"I do not wish our boys to play under Wisconsin rules because I do not wish our athletics to get into the rotten condition which we know exists through that region. I realize the handicap which this imposes upon our teams in meeting a Wisconsin school, but I believe that the moral training is as important as the physical in every branch of athletics. The game with Nelson-Dewey will decide whether we can compete with teams playing under the looser Wisconsin rules, and considering the circumstances, I believe that if our team does not make a showing which would warrant our remaining in the league, we can drop out without fear of being called quitters.

"If the boys want to play they will have to keep up to our Minnesota rules. The way they want to do, and the way I have been telling them they ought to do, is to help each other along and see that our best athletes do not get behind in their studies. There is no one in school who cannot, by good, steady work from now on, be eligible for football next fall and what we must do to have a good team is to see that our players keep up in their work."

The new uniforms for the team have arrived and they are very handsome. They are of white with red caps and belts and the team will make a very much better appearance today, at least, than it did Wednesday.

WILL DELIVER ESSAYS.

Five Seniors Are Named to Deliver Their Own Compositions.

Wednesday morning, in chapel, Principal Smith announced the names of the seniors who are to be honored by delivering their essays on the commencement night of the class. They are:

Elsie Crassweller, Arthur Dunning, Nellie Gamble, Florence Howe and Freeman Randall.

As the selection of the essays was made with a view to securing the best oratorical ability in the class, this list represents not only the best literary talent in the class, but also those whose abilities in speaking are well known.

This is the second year that this system of deciding upon the commencement night program has been in use. Before last year the honor pupils were the ones who had the privilege of delivering orations on the graduating night of the class, and it often happened that the best students were the poorest writers and orators, with a correspondingly poor program. The improvement last year was very marked, and the list this year assures another good program.

The first selection of essays was made by Miss Mogford and Mr. Neal, the Senior English teachers, and they each selected six, which were turned over to Principal Smith for the final choice.

The title of Miss Crassweller's essay is "The Red Cross Society," Freeman Randall wrote on "Graft in the Public Service," and Arthur Dunning on "The Independent Man." Florence Howe wrote on "Elizabeth Barrett Browning," and Nellie Gamble contributed a story.

PHILOMATHIANS ON STAGE.

High School Girls' Society Entertains Friends With Greek Play.

The Philomathian society closed its career for the year in a blaze of glory yesterday, when the program consisted of an excellent production of Sophocles' "Antigone." The affair was open to all the girls of the school, but the boys were rigidly excluded, much to their disappointment. The dark curtains of the assembly hall were lowered, and the stage footlights used with excellent effect. While the nature of the Greek plays does not call for any scenery, the stage was tastefully draped, and the costuming of the characters and chorus was very effective.

Miss Marie Erd as King Creon of Thebes carried off the honors, her interpretation of the part being excellent. Miss Erd has a strong voice, and with a skillful make-up, made a very realistic Creon. Miss Pearl Hector in the title role was fully equal to the part, although it is subordinate to that of the tyrant Creon, and Delia Smith did some excellent work as Ismene. Gertrude Hoopes displayed great ability in her portrayal of the part of Haemon, Creon's son, who kills himself when his father orders the death of Antigone, whome he loves Fern Doremus took two parts, that of an aged prophet, who foretells Creon's downfall, and that of Euridice, mother of Haemon. She made both parts very realistic. Hattie Stahlbusch, a messenger, and Evelyn Cash, a herald, had a number of long and difficult speeches, which they handled with great ability, and Marie Agatin was a pretty and cleverly costumed page. The chorus of Greek maidens which, in the old Greek drama fills in the breaks in the action by reciting the details of the story, was composed of the following girls: Winnifred Mahon, Madeline Miller, Marjory Morrow, Mary Marvin, Marie McDowell, Gladys Clark, Jean Meldrum, Lena Flier, Beulah Hubbard, Bessie Ferguson, Pearl Hanson, Louise Prosser, Anna Hugo. They were all appropriately costumed.

Great credit is due to Miss Mogford of the English department, who had charge of the rehearsals for the performance, and superintended the production throughout.

FRESHMEN MAKE MERRY.

Their Annual Spread Is a Huge Social Success.

The high school freshmen last night added another link to the long chain of successes which they have been making for themselves since the beginning of their high school carcer, when they made their annual spread the largest, most elaborate and most enjoyable social event of the year.

The class turned out to the banquet at 6:30 almost en masse, and about two hundred enthusiastic freshmen enjoyed the excellent menu and the witty speeches. Toastmaster Cannon called on Miss Wells, Mr. Ferguson, Mrs. Lectra and Miss Von Scholten of the faculty for talks, and they all spoke in praise of the class and expressed their kindly feelings toward it. J. B. Long then responded to the toast "The Class of '09." After apologizing for his inability to do justice to so large a subject, Mr. Long related the history of the class and its successes during the past year and prophesied great things for the athletes of '09 on the track and diamond during the few weeks that remained of the school year.

In spite of the much worn character of the toast, "Our Girls," Manus MacFadden succeeded in imparting a decided originality to his effort on this subject, and the fair sex of '09 were lauded to the skies. Mr. MacFadden said that while he realized his inability to cope with such a subject he also felt that there was no one else in the class who could do it justice, so he felt bound to make the best effort he could. Mr. MacFadden played in the Freshman-Sophomore football game last fall, so he spoke from experience when he told what a great part the inspiration of the girls on the side lines in bringing a victory to the freshman standard. He attributed the success of the spread to the girls and reminded the class of the important part they played in making the class section of the Zenith a success and of their fine scholarship records.

The presidents of the upper classes, Edward Borgen, Charles Bradly and Dean Coventry were each called on for toasts and each confined his remarks to praise of the class.

When the freshmen adjourned to the upper hall for the dance, they found what was easily the largest crowd that ever attended a dance in the high school awaiting them, and the program was commenced at once. The class colors were artistically draped throughout the hall and the russet brown and canary yellow made a very pretty effect. The music was excellent and though the high school halls are somewhat limited for the entertainment of so large a crowd, the program of sixteen dances and two extras was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

FIVE SENIORS TO TAKE PART COMMENCEMENT NIGHT.

FLORENCE HOWE. NELLIE GAMBLE.
ELSIE CRASSWELLER.
FREEMAN RANDALL. ARTHUR DUNNING.

High School Notes.

The Agassiz club met Monday and appointed a committee to arrange for the annual excursion of the club. It will consist of a trip up the river to Fond du Lac, as usual.

The Freshman baseball team will meet the Juniors Tuesday afternoon at Hunter's Park. The Freshmen are very confident, after defeating the Seniors.

The Freshman class held an unimportant meeting Wednesday, and almost no business was transacted. As it was the last meeting of the year, President Cannon thanked the class for the office which it had bestowed upon him and the aid it had given him during the year.

Friday morning Supt. Denfeld spoke to the school.

DOWIE VERY SICK.

Takes to His Bed With His Strength Rapidly Failing.

Chicago, May 12.—The condition of John Alexander Dowie is said to be nearing a critical stage. The venerable "First Apostle" has taken to his bed and his strength is failing. Dr. Blanks, who has been in attendance upon Dowie, said that he might, by reason of his great vitality, live a week or ten days, but that a fatal termination of the disease within two or three days would not be surprising.

SAVED FROM THE KNIFE

Mrs. Coulburn, of East Market, Dorchester County, Maryland, had what was supposed to be a large tumor caused by Kidney trouble. After a consultation of several physicians an operation was decided upon. Meantime she began to take and was cured by

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

A TRIAL BOTTLE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY CURE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE TO EVERY READER OF THE DULUTH EVENING HERALD WHO SUFFERS FROM KIDNEY, LIVER, BLADDER OR BLOOD DISEASE.

MRS. COULBOURN.

She writes of this wonderful cure: "I thought that it was my duty to let you know what your wonderful Safe Cure has done for me, as there may be somebody suffering as I was. I had a tumor, and my doctor told me that I would have to go to Cambridge Hospital to be operated on. He gave me a permit to the hospital at Cambridge. The doctor examined me, and he said it was too dangerous a place to tackle in the warm season of the year. He would wait until the last of October, and he would send to Baltimore after the doctors to come down and assist him about cutting the tumor out. It was about five inches long, on a very dangerous artery. Returning from Cambridge, I stopped at a store and bought a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure and commenced taking it according to directions, and before I had used that bottle the tumor was nearly gone, and I got another bottle and took half of that, and I was finally cured when the last of August came, without being operated on. If you wish to use my name you are perfectly welcome to do so. I am known in Cambridge and in Dorchester and several other counties. I reside near Cabin Creek.—Lillian F. Coulbourn, E. New Market, R. F. D. No. 1, Md."

Does your back ache? Are you obliged to pass your water frequently and with much irritation? Are you nervous? Do you get dizzy easily. If so, your kidneys and bladder are affected, and you should attend to curing them at once and thus prevent most serious complications and fatal results. You should take Warner's Safe Cure. It is pleasant and will set your kidneys and urinary organs right. These once right, health and long life are yours. Thousands have had wonderful cures, and many gladly testify by letters what Warner's Safe Cure has done for them in curing and preventing all forms of kidney and bladder troubles, female weakness, Bright's disease and all diseased conditions of the liver and blood.

Warner's Safe Pills move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure. WARNER'S SAFE CURE is now put up in two sizes, and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs, which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE To convince every sufferer from disease of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent, ABSOLUTELY FREE, post paid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Duluth Evening Herald. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed. Our doctors will also send medical booklet containing descriptions of symptoms and treatment of each disease and many convincing testimonials free to every one.

THE PENAL CLAUSE.

Really, the senate is becoming very well behaved in its treatment of amendments to the rate bill. Amendments have been adopted that are so thoroughly good and so promising that one instinctively wonders whether after all it can be that the senators intend to kill it altogether after it is amended.

For instance, a most astonishing circumstance, the senate has adopted an amendment restoring the imprisonment clause of the Elkins anti-rebate act. That act, passed in 1887, prohibited rebates and provided a punishment of fine or imprisonment, or both, for rebaters. Later a complacent congress, while the country was not looking, cut out the imprisonment clause, and left nothing but a fine for the courts to impose upon convicted debaters.

After that, however, there were practically no prosecutions through a series of years, though rebates were commonly known to be frequent. Of late the authorities have begun prosecuting rebaters, and several have already been convicted. In imposing the maximum fine in one case the court stated that in its opinion the prosecutions would be much more effective if it could send the convicted men to jail. There can be no question about that. There was never the slightest excuse for the action of congress in cutting out the imprisonment feature of the Elkins act, and it is only an act of justice, though a tardy one, that the senate should restore that necessary feature.

Not only that, but on the suggestion of Senator McCumber of North Dakota a provision was added imposing fine and imprisonment against shippers who accept rebates from transportation companies. This is no more than just. The solicitor and accepter of rebates is at least as bad as the giver, and in many cases much worse. There is no doubt that the great business interests that have built themselves up largely by rebates have practically forced railroads to extend such favoritism to them, and that the railroad officials have had the alternative of giving rebates or losing business that they could not afford to sacrifice.

So it is only just that there should be punishment for those that solicit and accept rebates, as well as for those that give them. And it must be clear to everybody that fines were absolutely impotent. These could be quickly assessed upon the public by an increase in prices. But it is different with a jail sentence. A trust or railroad official convicted of rebating and sentenced to jail can hardly pass that punishment on to the public, but must suffer it himself. The adoption of these provisions, and their rigid enforcement in the courts, should certainly prove most discouraging to the practice of rebating.

MARK TWAIN.

Samuel Langhorn Clemens, better known and dearer to the American people as Mark Twain, has definitely announced that he will write no more after the completion of his autobiography, upon which he is now engaged. Also, in reply to a recent offer of $1,000 for a lecture, he sent a refusal, with the announcement that he would never again deliver a lecture for pay. He added that as he liked to hear himself talk, he would do his share of it, but not for money.

These two announcements mean that the public will never again hear him lecture, and will never again read new products of his genius-tipped pen after his autobiography is out. His announcement that he would write no more books came upon the eve of going to his summer home in New Hampshire, where he will spend two hours a day dictating his autobiography to a stenographer.

This is melancholy news, to be sure. It is sad to think that this honest, brilliant and wholesome writer, who has been the delight of two generations, is nearing the depths of the valley, and that his life's work is practically at an end. It is true that the autobiography is still forthcoming, and this ray of hope adds a touch of relief. It will be the earnest prayer of every reading American that he will be spared to finish it, that it will be good and long, and that after it is out he will live to see it emblazoned in the diadem of classics that he has produced.

But it is fine to think that even if he sticks to his decision to write no more, he could not if he would take away from us the work he has already done. His sane, deep-sighted views of life, his hatred and relentless warfare upon sham and hypocrisy, his wholesome, charming pathos, and above all his healthy, clean, delightful and characteristically American humor, will be with us still in "Huckleberry Finn", "Tom Sawyer", his books of travel in Europe and the East, his pictures of Western life of an early day in "Roughing It", and his many minor works from "The Jumping Frog" down to "The Man that Corrupted Hadleysburg". We shall still have "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court", with its whimsical contrast between the mists of the Round Table days and the clear atmosphere of the nineteenth century.

Mark Twain has but lately achieved his threescore years and ten. He is still brilliant, mentally vigorous, clear-eyed and clear-minded. He should have many years before him of an illuminated old age, enshrined in the love and respect of the American people. The world is better for his having lived and worked. His mind has been a bubbling spring of keenest, cleanest, most charming humor, that has washed away the mists of prejudice, discontent and ill humor.

For these things this people owes him a debt of gratitude and affection that it will be hard to pay. It will take time to pay it, and while it is being paid it will still be growing.

A WOMAN DID IT.

There are a lot of women in New York who have been annoyed and distressed by city noises, the multitude of alarms and clamors that make city residence distracting, but apparently there was but one who thought of doing more than complaining about it to her husband or her friends.

But there was one, a Mrs. Rice, and she has been telling her story in a magazine. She lives on Riverside drive, and has been much annoyed by the whistling of steamboats on the Hudson river. She protested to the municipal authorities, only to find that they had no jurisdiction. Then she went to Washington and laid the matter before the department of commerce and labor. She showed that these unnecessary noises doubled the sufferings of the 14,000 people, on the average, who are sick in New York city every day in the year; that nervous people were deprived of sleep and made ill by the continuous piercing shrieks of the river boats; and that river men themselves admitted that so many unnecessary signals made navigation more difficult and dangerous.

The department extended its fullest sympathy to Mrs. Rice, but regretted that the jurisdiction lay not with the department but with the state of New York. Mrs. Rice was unable to find any New York official who was willing to help her, but she was not dismayed or discouraged, but appealed directly to the vessel men themselves through the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots. The executive council of this organization requested its members to refrain from excessive whistle-blowing, and the request seems to have had some effect, because Mrs. Rice herself testifies that the nuisance has been noticeably abated.

Good for Mrs. Rice! Hers is the spirit that gets things done, not the spirit that supinely bewails and tamely submits. It shows what initiative and effort can do, and it shows that in the effort to make this a better world to live in woman is doing quite as much as man. The individual that starts out to right a wrong immediately upon becoming aware of it is always to be admired, rather than the horde that goes no farther than mere whining and empty protest.

In a nearby village they are trying to get free delivery of mail. A local paper bewails the fact that nobody has the gumption to get up the necessary petition to have streets labelled and houses numbered, and to put in two hours getting it signed. It is a safe bet that before the opportunity for securing free delivery is lost through failure to do this work, some woman of that village will start out and get that petition filled in an afternoon.

GETTING INTO DEBT.

Many people had a deadly horror of debt, and when they note the final end of those who have an affection for it, they find plenty of reasons for their view.

Yet debt is, properly used and never abused, an essential to business and a convenient stepping stone to prosperity. Again, in many cases it is the only way to make a start, always providing one sets about it in the right way.

Debt is all right in its place, and a fertile source of danger out of its place. When a man on an income of $1,000 a year spends $1,200 on his living expenses and his pleasures, and goes into debt for the difference, he has tangled himself up in a knotty skein of trouble that is certain to hang him, ultimately. Going into debt for the necessaries of life is fatal. The only way to get ahead is to live within your income, as philosophers and sages have said a thousand times, so often that it is trite and platitudinous.

But if you have $1,000 in the bank, drawing 2 per cent interest, the bank is in debt to you to that extent, and is borrowing that money from you. But it loans it out again at 6 to 8 per cent, and in the case debt is a method of making money. Turning this proposition the other side out, if you can borrow money at 6 per cent and put it into something that will net you 8 per cent or more with absolute certainty, it is a good business deal, and you have made debt a source of profit.

One good way to make debt serve you, if you are working on a salary and have been unable to save money, is to buy something on credit, something tangible that cannot get away or be eaten up or worn out, and go into debt for it. For instance, a lot in Duluth. If you pay something down upon it, and bind yourself to pay the rest in installments, you are pretty certain to meet the installments. Without this necessity you would probably spend the money anyway, and with that lot drawing part of your income all of the time you pretty nearly have to save no matter how many pleasures and luxuries tempt your pocketbook. When you have made the last payment you have something to show for your money, and you have made a start in life.

Debt is an excellent servant, and when well trained to keep its proper place makes a most valuable assistant. But when it becomes master, look out. It will drive you to destruction as sure as fate.

A WEDDING GIFT.

They have a little custom over in France which might be made the germ of an idea that would be of immense benefit.

When the civil ceremony of marriage is performed in that country the official who conducts it hands to the newly-wedded pair a little book, the wedding gift of the French government. This book contains an official record of the wedding, and a number of blank spaces for future births, marriages and deaths in the family. That feature of it replaces, in a measure, those old ruled blank sheets in the family Bible, where similar data were enrolled as the years unfolded their mysteries of birth and death and the merging of two souls into one.

A still more important feature of the book is contained in half a dozen pages devoted to special instructions which the Academy of Medicine has prepared on the care of young children. There are thirty-five rules, and they tell how infants should be fed and clothed. This odd wedding gift is due to the consideration that has been given the subject of infant mortality, a serious problem everywhere but particularly so in France, where "race suicide" rules and the people are going backward numerically, if not in other ways.

This is a splendid idea, and it might be worked out into a much wider field. The ignorance with which young people approach the marriage altar and the marriage relation is often appalling. There are things which they learn, apparently, only by bitter experience, for there is nobody to tell them. The care of young children, too often, is infinitely less than that given valuable stock. And it is all due not so much to carelessness and thoughtlessness as to ignorance.

The instructions and advice in that little book might be made the means of promoting the health and happiness of the family that is founded at the gateway of matrimony. It might help the young people who receive it to avoid serious errors with an unending train of evil consequences running through and blighting their lives.

Any physician could fill such a book with suggestions every one of which would be worth its weight in gold. The disregard of the rules of health and the laws of nature characteristic of the average person's career is such as to make it largely a miracle that he should ever attain any considerable age, and the idea of teaching the young people these laws, and of enabling them to pass them on to their children, could be worked out to the end that this race should be a better, happier, nobler and stronger race than any that ever lived.

DOMESTIC QUARRELS.

A Daniel who has come to judgment in a Philadelphia police court recently had a domestic quarrel before him, and he judicially handed down two cures for quarreling between husband and wife.

The cures were both prescribed for use by the husband. One was to allow an angry wife to have the last word at all times. This is simple. In fact, according to tradition, it is impossible to do anything else. There may be women that do not insist upon the last word, but generally it is at some other time than when they are angry. Therefore this remedy is simplicity itself. But it requires something more than merely letting the indignant lady have the last word. She is going to get that anyway. It should be explained that the magistrate meant that the husband, at an early stage of the joint debate, should hermetically seal his lips, and thereafter let no word of combat issue from them. It takes two to make a quarrel, and ultimately his gentle helpmeet will have had her say, and for want of further words—or breath—must keep still. Then the quarrel is over.

The other remedy is, perhaps, the better one. Said the court: "Let the husband take a short walk of about four blocks as soon as a quarrel starts."

This is excellent. It is easy to diagnose a brewing quarrel. Both parties must become aware of it very early. Then is the time for the husband to grab his hat, dash out of doors, and pace rapidly around four blocks. If he thinks, when he returns to the door again, that he is likely to be tempted to continue the quarrel, let him go around again. The walk will do him good anyway. Doubtless he needs the exercise. Especially if the air is a bit crisp, and the temperature pleasantly stimulating, his walk will set his blood flowing joyously through his veins, and in a few minutes his anger will have flown and he will be at peace with the world.

It is absolutely impossible for two people to keep up a quarrel while one of them is addressing the chairs in the dining room and the other is pacing madly around the block. Besides, if the couple are of the kind whose domestic infelicities get into the police court, it must be ever so much pleasanter for the husband to be outside taking the fresh air while his angry wife divulges her secret contempt of him, his relatives, the cut of his clothes and the character of his friends.

But really, the best remedy for matrimonial quarrels is to have a little faith in each other, a little charity and forbearance, and a little self-respect. Then there can be no quarrel, especially of the kind that takes up the time of the police courts.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Lew Dockstader, who is now in Duluth delighting an appreciative public with his big minstrel show, added a new story to his generous collection the other day at Eau Claire. As he was one of the actors in the incident, he issues a positive guarantee of originality and newness with every telling.

"We had several special cars attached to the regular train on the Northwestern line," said Mr. Dockstader, "and when we reached Eau Claire the whole string came to a stop, and as we were to remain there a few minutes some other members of the company and myself got out and strolled around on the platform. A variety of people were clustered in and about the station, but one who particularly took my eye was evidently fresh from the farm. He was a tall and gawky youth, with all the trimmings going to make up the country boy we see in the funny papers.

"He was very much interested in the length of the train, and stopped me to ask a number of questions, all of which displayed a startling ignorance. He asked about everything in sight that might be of any possible interest to him, and did it as if he really were looking for information. I did the best I could with him, telling him why the train was so long, and dealing in an impartial way with other important subjects, such as why the cars were the color they were, etc. In the course of a few minutes he noticed the elk's teeth hanging from my watch chain. 'I have quite a pretty pair, you see, presented me by brethren out in Idaho, Heaven bless them. I am proud of the set, and it naturally pleases me to have admiration bestowed upon them, even if the person so bestowing is only an innocent country boy.

"The youth took the teeth in his fingers, looked at the tips and carefully examined them on all sides. He was very much interested, and not a little puzzled at first trying to figure out my object in wearing the ornament, evidently.

"'Say, mister,' he said finally, 'what are you, anyway, a dentist?'"

"He was so serious about it I told him I was, and that the teeth had been extracted the previous week from a woman 108 years old, hence their discoloration."

"I happen to know several newspaper men of Chicago, among them the old city editor who gave George Ade his first start," said James Ashworth of Chicago at the Spalding. "The man is no longer in the newspaper business, but holds down a good city job. Nothing delights him more, however, than to get into a crowd of the newspaper boys and go over old times with them. Their reminiscences are well worth listening to, and I have sat by the hour and laughed heartily at their stories. They have a regular hangout, of course, and at certain hours of the day a bunch can generally be found there talking away in a fashion that is most enthralling to an outsider. Ade's first newspaper boss takes particular pleasure in telling about some of the work the humorist did in his early days.

"Ade wandered into town one day from Ft. Wayne, Ind., and drifted around among the newspapers looking for a job. He looked pretty countrified, and even today hardly takes on the appearance of the product of the cities. There was something likeable about him, though, and my city editor friend, then on The Record, took his name and told him to drop around once in a while. Ade did so. He showed up regularly every day for two weeks running, and sometimes twice a day, but every time he was met by the same negative shake of the head.

"But one day he happened along at just the right time. News of an explosion that wasn't supposed to amount to much came from the river, and the city editor went on a search for a reporter. They were either all out or else very busy, and as the story didn't amount to much, apparently, he assigned Ade to cover it, happening to spy this individual standing around. Ade started out, full of hope and joy, but when he reached the spot of the accident found that it was a serious one, in which two or three men had been killed, and incidentally a boat had been pretty well blown up. With his lack of experience he realized that it was a big job for him to tackle single handed, but there wasn't a city phone anywhere around so that he could call up the office and tell the city editor so.

"Nothing daunted, he hired a boy to carry a note to the office. He said briefly that there was a big story on tap, too big for him to handle alone, and asked for assistance. The city editor thought this action showed enough wisdom for a beginner, and immediately dispatched some of the older hands to the spot. By the time the boy who delivered the message another message was returned to Ade, while he was yet at the scene of the accident. It said:

"'Consider yourself engaged by the Record. Beginning today, your salary will be $15 a week.'

"That is how Ade started in the newspaper business in Chicago. He showed considerable ability as a writer and reporter, and got along in fine style. He was and is well liked by all the fellows who rejoice with him at every success with which he meets."

No Hash for Him.

Talent: Down in a Southern town the other day a Baptist evangelist was holding a revival in a Methodist church and all the Presbyterian folks were "a-goin'."

The Catholic priest there is a very jolly young fellow. One of the brethren said to him, "Why don't you go down to the meeting?"

"What meeting?"

"Why, a Baptist preacher is preaching in the Methodist church to a lot of Presbyterians."

And the young priest answered:

"I do not like hash."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

The Duluth ball club again defeated St. Paul yesterday by a score of 15 to 14. The large score was due to the muddy condition of the St. Paul grounds. Masran and Legg were the battery for the Duluths until the last half of the game when Baldwin pitched, striking out two of the three men to bat.

An assembly of Knights of Labor was organized last evening at Superior with the following officers: M. W., W. J. Lender; W. F., S. E. Tubbs; V. S., J. Durber; treasurer, Ed Keough; F. S., S. P. Oaks; R. S., F. A. Dole; W. I., Jacob Rice; I. E., Ed Hines; O. E., Dan Kennedy; A., W. P. Gillegan.

In 1883 the assessed value of the real estate in the city and village of Duluth was $3,391,172. In 1884, it had increased to $4,975,663, and in 1885, it had reached $5,212,438. In 1883, the rate of taxation was 32 mills; in 1884, it was 20.4 mills, and in 1885 it was 27.6 mills.

The annual meeting of the directors of St. Luke's hospital was held yesterday. The year's receipts were $4,441.74, and the disbursements $4,193.27, leaving a cash balance of $248.47. There were 117 patients during the year. Officers of the board were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Rev. C. A. Poole, chairman; Walter Ayers, treasurer; Thomas Cullyford, secretary. C. H. Graves, Mrs. W. R. Stone and Thomas Cullyford were re-elected directors for three years.

W. F. Parsons of Kalamazoo, Mich., proprietor of Parsons' well-known business college, is in Duluth and will probably establish a branch here. He is in search for a suitable location.

Victor Gergren, who was icebound at Two Harbors for several days, came down yesterday on the tug Goodman, and firmly contends that the tug, under his instructions, made the passway through the ice for the mammoth barge, Devereaux.

Rev. A. W. Ringland, Mrs. Ringland and children are in Keokuk, Iowa, on a visit to Dr. E. B. Ringland, who is a brother of the Presbyterian pastor. Mr. Ringland stopped at Keokuk on his way from Danville, Ky., where he studied formerly.

Spencer & Forbes to L. A. Linden, lot 26, West First street, First division, $4,200.

G. W. Kimberly to W. S. McNally, lots 53 and 55, block 128, Third division, $600.

Monahan & Mullen to W. M. Barber, lot 5, block 43, Endion division, $1,500.

Special trains for Gilmore's band concert will be run from Cloquet, Northern Pacific Junction, Thomson and Fond du Lac, reaching Duluth at 1 p. m.

Conductor Neil Conblin of the St. Paul & Duluth road, has completely recovered from his recent attack of hemorrhage.

THE WEATHER.

Summer again today. Immediately upon the disappearance of the northeast wind and the coming of the south wind, it became warm and genial. This morning there was almost a touch of sultriness in the humid air, and showers threatened from time to time. The weather man expects it to be a little cooler tonight and tomorrow, with westerly to northerly winds, and possibly occasional showers. Last night's lowest temperature was 48 degs., and yesterday's highest was 66 degs. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"An area of moderately low pressure overlies the Rocky Mountains, Dakotas and Minnesota, attended by showers in the far West and to the northward of Lake Superior, and high temperatures in the lake region and central valleys. Barometric pressures remain high over south Atlantic states, but pressures are rising in Pacific states and western Canada causing cooler weather in the latter section and also the extreme southwest. The northwestern disturbance will doubtless shift its center well into the lake region by Sunday, a condition favoring occasional showers in this locality this afternoon, tonight and Sunday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 12.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Sunday: Wisconsin—Generally fair and continued warm in southern portion; probably showers and cooler in northern portion tonight and Sunday.

Minnesota—Showers tonight and Sunday. Cooler tonight and in east portion Sunday.

North Dakota—Probably showers tonight or Sunday.

South Dakota—Probably showers in night and Sunday. Cooler Sunday.

Upper Lakes—Brisk northerly winds, except southwesterly on southern half of Michigan and Huron tonight and Sunday. Showers and squalls.

MERRY JINGLES.

Washington Star: "How do we know that Solomon was the wisest man?"

"Well, for one thing, he got together a colossal fortune without being investigated."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "There's one thing I like about that boy of yours. He seems to be one of the get-up-and-get kind."

"You wouldn't think so if you had to call him to breakfast."

Chicago Tribune: "I tell you, it's a serious thing to be the father of eleven daughters."

"I can understand that, old fellow. It keeps me busy clearing away the cold wads of chewing gum for six."

Somerville Journal: Rich Young Simpleton—Oh, Gwendolyn, I love you more than tongue can ever tell.

Foxy Young Widow—Well, then, why don't you write it to me some day?

Philadelphia Press: "I understand," began Mrs. Galley, sternly, "that you have been seen at the theater with my husband—"

"Well," interrupted the pretty governess, defiantly, "what of that?"

"Well, Miss Reeder, if you wish to remain in my employ, you'll have to keep better company."

Philadelphia Press: Tess—Young Stillman tells me his first name is Noah. What do you think of that?

Jess—Old-fashioned, isn't it?

Tess—Old-fashioned? It's positively ridiculous. Noah had sense enough to go in when it rained.

Philadelphia Press: "Watch wheels are like great men in some respects."

"What are they?"

"When they go around to pass time in their own way, they generally travel in cog."

Cleveland Leader: "I know I'm late, dear," he apologized. "You see, I was detained half an hour or so by an old friend who just got back to town after a long absence. I had to tell him all I knew."

"Indeed!" she snapped. "I don't see why that should have kept you so long."

Philadelphia Catholic Standard: "I called on four ladies last night," said the fickle beau, boastfully.

"Gee whizz!" exclaimed Jack Potts, "you must be a quitter. I'd keep on raising all night if I held a hand like that."

Saturday Night Talk

Religous Delusions-Their Cause and Cure.

The odd, the fantastic and the outre forms of religious faith are bound to emerge at more or less regular intervals. They amuse the thoughtless onlooker but they raise some grave questions for serious people to ponder. Why should there be such queer deviations from the conventional types of religion and why in this most enlightened of all the centuries should these fads flourish in different parts of the world and secure thousands of devotees?

This is an age of general intelligence to be sure, but the spread of knowledge has driven many persons from their old moorings. They hardly know where they stand theologically. They have grown weary of the sameness and juicelessness of the religious conceptions and customs in the midst of which they have been reared. Along comes a powerful personality who appeals to them in their restlessness and dissatisfaction. He is not over modest in his personal claims. He gives out that he himself is some great one. He encourages flattery and even sycophancy. He intimates that he possesses remarkable and even supernatural gifts. In a short time he has carried a host of impressionable women captive—the Scriptures employ another adjective, when speaking of such women, but I refrain. The loud-voiced self-constituted leaders get a hold on a certain class of men also. Call it hypnotism or what you will, soon the devotees of both sexes are like clay in the hands of the potter. A spiritual monarchy is set up and the man or woman on the throne is looked upon as a viceregent of the Almighty.

It is worth noting also that temporary benefits and blessings constitute a large part of the charm of such movements. Their adherents are encouraged to believe that they will get well or get wealth or get power or position. It is the form of godliness that is most profitable for the life that now is and consequently it appeals to this commercially minded age.

And what are we going to do about it—we people who regard these sporadic movements as nine parts humbug to one part sincerity. Well in some cases we need not do anything at all. The house of cards often tumbles down of itself. Internal dissensions arise and as contending factions strive for supremacy the movement itself gets a body blow. Then there is always the likelihood of the return of sanity. The victims of religious hallucinations do not always stay crazy. When the novelty of the fad has worn off the foolishness of the whole business it brought home to sober second thought.

Moreover it is too late in the world's history for any man to build up a sect around his own person. That is why such movements as Dowieism and Sanfordism are bound to collapse sooner or later. Crystallized about one name, and one personality they become subject to all the mutations and fluctuations of fortune that affect him or her.

But freakish movements teach the church the importance of a definite, positive message. The vague assertions of some modern pulpits have not weight or point enough to reach the masses who like to have truth presented to them in a form which they can grasp and understand. It is equally desirable that the plain people be made also to understand that religion is a good thing for this world as well as for the world to come and that the church is deeply interested in their happiness and welfare even though it does not lure them into the kingdom through the offer of material rewards.

And all these oddities in religion prove anew that man is incurably religious that no motives appeal so strongly to him as the religious motives and that though he may mistake the path at times he must journney on until he finds the satisfaction of his spiritual longings.

THE PARSON.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man could do a lot of good to people by stopping trying to do them harm.

An awful easy way not to be able to spend any of your own money is to have a family.

It's mighty extravagant for a man to have two neckties when his three boys have only nine apiece.

There is hardly any way a woman can have such a good time as worrying about a thing she doesn't know whether she needs or not.

The best compliment you can pay to a woman's cooking is to eat it, but she can forgive you for not touching it if you tell her how nice it is.

No man ever won enough money in a poker game to make him stop regretting the time he put a five-dollar gold piece in the collection plate, thinking it was a penny.

The Hold-Up Policy.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The house may be holding up the pure food bill under the impression that it is in that way getting even with the senate for holding up the Philippine tariff, free alcohol and railroad rate measures. The element that does not get even is composed of the people who need the relief of those measures.

"Do you know," said the sentimental man, "that I was nearly married to that girl once upon a time?"

The two others who were present gazed out of the club window at the pretty girl in red, a sight of whom offered a temporary relief from ennui.

"Fact," said the sentimentalist, when the others had subsided into their comfortable chairs again.

"Why talk about it?" asked the vice president of a manufacturing concern, who was even younger than the one-time lover. "Why, I have had dozens of cases in my life, and I thought each one was going to be fatal, but I have survived and forgiven. I haven't got into the habit of bringing up the subject of my brief reign in her company every time I see one of the misses belonging to the Society of the Girls With Whom I Was Once in Love."

The sentimentalist grunted to show his contempt. He made it very plain that the manufacturer was not in his class for a single minute. He felt that he was a mud horse in a bunch of selling platers, with the track as heavy as Superior's debt.

"You probably had acute but harmless attacks of puppy love, nothing more," he said.

"Look here, Percy Barton," said the manufacturer severely, to the man who had loved, "what is there remarkable about this case you speak of except that the young woman ever stood for you at all?"

You see, they were great friends, and did not care what they said to each other.

"Go ahead and tell us about it. I haven't anything to do anyway," said the third member of the party.

The sentimental one felt greatly encouraged. He longed to bare his bleeding head to his friends.

"I first met her about six years ago, on an excursion to Two Harbors. Not one of these free-for-all affairs, mind you, but the other kind. Some one was taking us up there to a function of some kind, and we had a swell car—or as swell as was to be had then—all to ourselves.

"Her name is Bessie Berkley, and I can well remember the sweet smile she gave me when we were introduced. 'I have heard of Mr. Barton on several different occasions,' she murmured, 'and I am very glad of this opportunity to meet him.'

"Oh you fellows needn't smile, that is what she said. I remember that I came back at her with some clever quip and there was simply nothing to it after that. I was her guardian angel during the entire trip and when we again set foot in Duluth she begged me so earnestly to call that I found myself at her home of an evening within a couple of weeks.

"Well, sir, it looked like one of those love-at-first-sight affairs, and my friends began to ask me when the event was coming off. I had not thought seriously of that phase of the proposition and was continuing to look at the girl merely as a friend, that was all. But it was obvious that she was deeply in love with me. I could see it in her eyes.

"I had never had a proposition quite like that before. As a matter of fact, when I proposed to her and was accepted, I was not really in love with the girl. I liked her rather well and felt that my feelings would grow into a more tangible affection as time wore on. I did not want to disappoint the girl, her friends and my friends, by remaining silent. So I made myself a willing sacrifice on the altar of friendship."

"How considerate," observed the manufacturer.

"Everything went along nicely," continued Barton, ignoring his friend's interpolation, "although the wedding day had not been actually set. One evening when I called upon her she was rather chilly and informed me that while trying to get me on the telephone during the afternoon, she had heard me joshing over the line with a woman. I told her quite plainly then and there that she might consider the engagement broken off. She was thunderstruck and begged me with tears in her eyes to reconsider the proposition but—"

"Oh, come off, you can't expect us to believe that until we have had a few more of those drinks that made Mr. Marinti famous," said the manufacturer. "Push the button."

* * *

"That story of yours seems to be very commonplace, too, for these latter days. I will tell you one myself that is not calculated to win the prize, but which knocks the spots off your fiction.

"I was up in the woods near Cass Lake one summer some years ago. There were six of us in the party and we were having a good time. Two of the men were residents of Cass Lake and they had a dandy bungalow in the wilderness and it was very nice, I assure you. By day we fished and, I guess, hunted some, and by night we played cards and told stories.

"One day I started off early in the morning all alone. I intended to get away from companions and enjoy the beauty of the woods all by my lonesome. I took my gun along so that I could shoot anything that crossed my path with the intention of deterring me.

"The day was a great one. I might start out by reading an opening chapter from one of Cooper's Leatherstocking tales in order to show you how nice it was, but I won't. I will get down to the facts as soon as possible.

"I had tramped for several hours, when I suddenly came upon a rippling brook—and a beautiful Indian maiden. She was the kind you read about in books. I would not have believed that such an Indian maid existed outside of literature and the 'Hiawatha' kind of songs. She was certainly a peach, and seemed friendly.

"I can't tell how she was dressed, because I am a plain business man and lack a knack for such tasks, but let me tell you that the general results were great. She did not look like any of the Indian girls at the agency school.

"'Good morning,' I said in my politest tones. 'The great medicine man is very good to send this beautiful day and this beautiful maiden to make it even brighter.'

"She smiled very sweetly, and said: 'How delightfully poetic you are.'

"I nearly dropped dead. This was not the way the Indian girls in the books talked. I was surprised, but not discouraged. 'Ah, who could help being poetical in this dreamland?' I asked.

"'Yes, I suppose that has something to do with it,' she said. 'I don't know why I am standing here talking to you, however, we have never been introduced.'

"This was great. I don't believe I ever saw a girl more pleasing to my eye. I didn't want conventions to prevent me from carrying on the flirtation, however. Her replies to all my remarks served to increase my admiration for her and my desire to know her better.

"'Well,' I said, 'there seems to be no one hereabouts to introduce us, and I guess we will have to introduce ourselves. I fumbled in my pockets for a card, but, of course, could not find one. She stood watching me all the time.

"'Oh, what difference do names make, fairest of thy tribe?' I said. 'Some day you will know and all will be well.'

"She smiled at me sweetly and looked me over from head to foot. I must admit that I was staring pretty fastly at her, with her soft black hair in two braids over her shoulders and her bright blanket draped prettily about her exquisite form.

"The smile encouraged me, and I asked her to sit down on a neighboring stump. She did not seem disposed to stay, however, became uneasy about what she had said. She started to slip away, but I said: 'Oh, please, don't go. I mean no harm.' She looked at me again, and decided she would risk it, so she sat down.

"Like all her race, she did not seem disposed to do much talking, so I started in busily. 'You may call me Harry, little one,' I said, 'and what is your name?'

"'Onanashawanda,' she replied in one of those rippling brook voices that filled me with a desire to throw my heart and hand at her feet. As she seemed to be an Indian of considerable intelligence and education, I asked her the meaning of the word. She said that it meant light of the moon.

"She loosened up then and gave me quite a talk. It filled me with delight and when I saw her admiring my fraternity pin I took it off and pinned it on her blanket, telling her she might wear it a while. She seemed greatly pleased at that.

"Finally, she declared that she could remain no longer. I begged her to meet me again on the following day at the same spot. She promised faithfully to be there. When she started away, I grabbed her and kissed her several times. Finally, she broke away and ran.

"I stood there hardly realizing that I was in the land of the living. I thought I was in fairyland and that she was the fairy queen. When I stumbled over my gun, I came to my senses somewhat. My walk back to camp was filled with thoughts of my woodland nymph and of transplanting her to Duluth. Of course, my family would kick like the deuce, but what did I care as long as I could have her?

"I thought it best to say nothing to the other fellows. They had not seen her and could not understand. They would be merciless with jibes. The next morning I started out alone. I started early because I did not want to give any of the other members of the party a chance to invite themselves to join me.

"It took me some time to reach the trysting place. I had not realized how far I had tramped through the woods on the day before. When I finally reached the spot—and I had some little trouble finding it, too—she was not there. I sat down and waited, thinking that she had been delayed and would come. I don't remember how many hours I waited, but finally I gave up in despair and resolved to search the forest for her. I told myself that I would find her if I had to search every Indian cabin for miles around.

"I walked and walked and walked. About a mile or so from the trysting place, I stumbled on several neat cabins, but they were occupied by white men and their families like ourselves. So I did not stop. Although I came across several greasy reds, I saw nothing of my beautiful Onanashawanda. I asked the Indians about her, but I could not make any of them understand what I wanted to know. I idid not reach camp again until late at night. My friends were worried about me and set about to fill me up with food when they learned that I had had nothing to eat since morning. But I did not care to eat.

"I went to the little stream the next day and the next, but she did not come. I left for Duluth without seeing her."

"Didn't you ever see her again?" asked the third member of the group.

"Yes, I met her once after that," replied the manufacturer.

"Where?" asked Barton.

"I was in St. Paul one day and I met a fraternity brother of mine with whom I was quite chummy at college. He insisted upon my going out to his home for dinner. He was unmarried like myself and his parents live in St. Paul—have for years. I had never met his mother or his sister, but I had been introduced to the old gentleman once. He was so insistent that I consented.

"When I got to the house, I was introduced to my hostess, of course, and after we had chatted for a minute or two, his sister entered the room. I nearly fell off my chair when I saw her. She wore my fraternity pin on her waist and was none other than my Onanashawanda of Cass Lake.

"I was so surprised that I could not talk coherently. She smiled very calmly herself and extended a dainty hand to me. I grasped it and mumbled something about having met before.

"I must have stared at her very rudely. She was very dark but not as dark as when we had met in the woods. The long summer on the lakes, in the sun, had probably given her the wonderful coat of tan I had seen her have. Her hair was black and wavy and, of course, it was not done up in two braids. It was piled high on her shapely head.

"Off in a corner."

"Her brother seemed somewhat taken aback at my actions. 'I though you had never met my sister,' he said. Then she came to the rescue, dear girl."

"We had met two years ago, Freddy, but I had quite forgotten and I guess Mr. Houston had too," she said.

"I was introduced to another girl, a friend of the family, but I forgot her name and even her presence. After dinner, I managed to get my beautiful Indian princess off in a corner and ask for an explanation. She explained that the family was summering at Cass Lake that year and she was in the habit of donning picturesque Indian garb because people told her she made such a cute squaw when she was fitted out. I remember telling her something like that myself. She said that she never suspected that I took her for a real Indian for quite a time after we had met that day and that she thought it advisable to carry on the delusion."

"Well, why didn't you marry her?" asked Barton anxiously.

"She was engaged to some lightweight in St. Paul," replied the manufacturer. "Push the button."

BOERS WORKING FOR SUFFRAGE OF WOMEN.

Johannesburg, South Africa, May 11.—The agitation for a constitution to be granted to the South African colonies runs high, and it is believed that woman's suffrage will be an important plank in the Boer platform. If women vote, the Dutch party will have a large majority over other parties, should the vote be based on the population.

Gen. Louis Botha of the "Het Volk," the Dutch party, said in a recent address that the party would ask for woman's suffrage. "Now is the time," he said, "for women to prepare for politics. It is necessary that they would fight for the principle of a vote on the population basis. If the women will work in harmony, they can get the rights to which they are entitled. Women ought to have more rights, at any rate, than these men who come here only to get rich and leave as soon as they have enough gold. Elections based on population would do away with this voting of people who do not stay here."

"THERE'S A REASON."

CHEAPER IN OPERATION

But Steam Power Costs More Than Electric to Install.

Water Board Must Decide on One for Lakewood.

The Allis-Chalmers company of Milwaukee, Wis., represented in Duluth at present by James Ashworth, and the Duluth General Electric company, have together placed the board of water and light commissioners in a position where the members appear to be having a good deal of difficulty in reaching a decision whereby one concern would be given the contract for installing in the Lakewood station a pumping engine of 10,000,000 gallons daily capacity, and this in face of the fact that there is a difference of $63,000 in the respective bids, the smaller one being in favor of the home concern.

It is a fight in which electricity is against steam in trying for favor in the eyes of the board. The electrical equipment can be put in operation much cheaper than steam—$63,000 cheaper, in fact—but the latter will give just as satisfactory service at a cost so much less than the other that in twelve years, according to the claims of Allis-Chalmers, the saving will be sufficient to balance the extra expenditure at the start, and the equipment will still be good for from forty to fifty or sixty years more of service.

In other words, the Milwaukee firm guarantees to so equip the pumping station that it can be operated for $5,000 a year less expense than would be the case if electrical power were installed under figures submitted by the General Electric company, and this saving would be correspondingly largo as the needs of the city called for more water. The above is figured on 5,000,000 gallons a day, the amount now being pumped. On a 10,000,000 gallon basis the saving would be $10,000 a year, according to the claims of Allis-Chalmers, who agree to furnish a bond in any amount to guarantee that their figures are correct.

The matter has been hanging fire for several weeks, and no decision has as yet been reached. Both concerns are pressing their side of the case with every argument at their command, and while the leanings of board members are naturally toward the home concern, the guaranteed claims of the foreign company are of such a nature as to demand serious consideration. Allis-Chalmers yesterday sent the following letter to board members:

"The Allis-Chalmers company makes the following guarantees of total cost of pumping 1,000,000 gallons of water, as taken from a report submitted to your honorable body. These guarantees by this company include cost of fuel, labor, waste, oil and depreciation and interest charges, and based on quotations taken from your seventh annual report (1905):

Speed.	Gallons.	Total Cost of 1,600,000 Gals.
1	1,000,000	$6.816
¾	75,000,000	8.09
½	5,000,000	10.04
1-3	3,333,333	14.44

"These guarantees are based on continuous operation at above variations in speed.

"If a comparison is made between electrically driven and steam driven pumps, the cost of operating electrically driven pump, at reduced speed, must be taken, and not the cost at full speed.

"These above steam guarantees are for total cost, and in making comparisons with electrically driven pumps you must add to the cost of current for pumping, 1,000,000 gallons, the cost of labor, oil, waste, interest and depreciation charges."

The power company guarantees that it will pump at the rate of $7 for every 1,000,000 gallons, leaving a difference of only 19 cents in the two figures. But while the Allis-Chalmers figures include all cost of operating the plant, it is claimed, to the power company's figures must be added the cost of labor at the station, the cost of oil, waste, interest and depreciation charges, all of which are said to be included in the Allis-Chalmers estimate.

If electricity is installed, the present steam plant will be held in reserve, at a probable additional cost. All this, Allis-Chalmers assert, will bring the total cost of operations every year to a figure at least $5,000 higher than would be the case if their plunger triple expansion pumping engine were installed, and have submitted to the board a table of comparative figures, supposed to prove their contention. As Duluth is a rapidly growing city, the annual saving would amount to considerably more than this as time advances.

The Allis-Chalmers bid is $79,790, while that submitted by the Duluth General Electric company is for $16,000.

For factory use no question would remain that electricity would be cheaper than steam, with the Northern Power company in operation, but the pumping station is an entirely different proposition. Chicago, Albany, N. Y.; Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Omaha, Pittsburg, St. Paul, St. Louis and Washington, D. C., are among the larger cities using the Allis-Chalmers engines in their pumping stations.

GIRL'S VAUDEVILLE TURN

On Odd Fellows' Program Causes Criticism and a Fight.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 11.—The Rev. H. W. Baldridge was the victim of an attack at Utica, eight miles west of this city. Recently the Odd Fellows of this city attended the fifty-fourth anniversary of Utica lodge. Miss Irene Howard, 13 years old, of this city, took part in the program. She gave a song and dance along vaudeville lines, to which the church people took exceptions, and especially the Rev. Mr. Baldridge, who had been invited to deliver an address. He protested and so did others in the audience.

James and Clifton Howard, brothers of the girl, went to Utica and called on the minister, demanding that he apologize. This he refused, and one of the brothers knocked him down. Spectators were kept back with a revolver. The brothers re-entered their buggy and returned to this city.

Utica sentiment is largely with the minister, and information probably will follow in the circuit court. The Odd Fellows and official board of the M. E. church at Utica has authorized the minister to employ counsel.

SEVEN WIDOWS CLAIM MONEY

Which Was Left by Negro Porter of New Orleans.

New Orleans, May 11.—Green Ross, 35 years old, the negro porter of the Oyster commission, who died several days ago, had a penchant for marrying. Seven wives have already appeared to claim the $250 he is said to have left, and at least three of them bear the name Elizabeth in some form or other. Ross apparently liked the name. The woman who says she has papers showing she is the legal spouse, is named Elizabeth Gaspard, and it was to her Ross went when he was about to die. She cared for him during his last days and when his body was buried she went to the Oyster commission to ascertain where the fortune of $250 was.

While Ross was ill at Elizabeth Gaspard's home a woman named Bessie was doing his work at the headquarters of the Oyster commission. Bessie alleges that she is the lawful wife of Ross and wants the $250, and wants it bad. Lizzie, whose surname does not appear, is another claimant, alleging that she is the legal bride of the dead man.

In various section of the city there are four other women who say that the $250 belongs to them, because they had married Ross and had been his true and lawful brides. The claim will be strenuously disputed by the three Elizabeths, who are fighting each other, but who will combine in a solid line of Elizabeths to fight any outsider who puts in a claim.

Ross had been a porter at the Oyster commission for some time and was well liked there. He attended to his work faithfully, and when he fell ill President Breaux was disposed to deal lightly with him. He told him to put somebody in his place and go to Biloxi, or some coast town. Ross attempted to do so, but could not find employment out of the city. He set one of his Elizabeths to work keeping the rooms of the Oyster commission clean and went to another Elizabeth to obtain lodging, food and nursing during the last illness.

The Elizabeth who cleaned the rooms went daily to the other Elizabeth's residence to inquire regarding the sick man and when he died she was on the ground floor claiming the $250. Ross had told them he had inherited the money a few weeks ago from an aunt who died in Biloxi and had placed it in a saving bank. It has not been located.

Ross was a member of the Young Men's Hope Benevolent association, but when Elizabeth Gaspard applied there for the association to bury the dead man, she was told that he was delinquent in his dues and would receive none of the benefits.

FEW REALIZE ADVANTAGES.

A. C. Willcuts of Holyoke Says That Country Should be Exploited.

A. C. Willcuts, formerly of Duluth, and now of Holyoke, Carlton county, was in the city yesterday and returned to his farm this morning. Mr. Willcuts has not been in Duluth since the first of January, although living only thirty miles away. He has been sticking closely to his farm, looking after his stock and culturing his chickens. He has become at one jump from cut rate ticket man, to a farmer in dead earnest and is quite enthusiastic over his new pursuit, as well as over the country in which he now lives.

He says he is quite surprised at the fact that but few have settled in that country of late. Two settlers went in last fall and three arrived there this spring, but that is all. Mr. Willcuts declares that the country should be exploited more for the reason that it is an excellent place for farming and less obstacles are to be encountered in taking up a farm there than in most places in the northern part of the state. There is comparatively little timber to be cleared off, he says, and the country needs no drainage, as do the other parts of the state. It is a hardwood country, with but little or no pine and very little spruce.

In general, the country is all that can be desired for the beginning of a farm. It affords the very best grade of stove wood for heating purposes while one is clearing off the farm, and the ground is not hard to break. Mr. Willcuts says that the country has considerable clay subsoil and can be utilized for grains, vegetables and small fruit. It is also abundant in grasses and is an excellent dairy country. The McKay hotel people of Duluth have a farm there and furnish milk, cream, butter-milk and butter for their hostelry in Duluth from their farm. The land is also cheap, and in general, Mr. Willcuts looks upon it as one of the best places for farmers to locate that can be found.

Mr. Willcuts is treasurer of the township, as well as a farmer.

STUDENTS FIGHT WITH CIRCUS MEN

Several Are Badly Hurt in Fracas at Columbia, Mo.

Columbia, Mo., May 12.—Several hundred of University of Missouri students engaged in a fight with showmen from Cole Bros.' circus at midnight Thursday night, and as a result Maynard McDole, a freshman from Craig, Mo., was shot in the head and is in a critical condition in the hospital here and several others are slightly hurt.

McDole's recovery is doubtful. The bullet entered behind the left ear, penetrating to the right jaw, which is probably broken. An operation failed to locate the bullet. Several of the other students received scalp wounds. C. C. Bailey of Campbell, Mo., was bruised about the head and breast.

A body of about 500 students assembled at the courthouse and marched in a body to the evening performance of the circus on the fair grounds, north of town. They demanded a 25-cent rate of admission, which was granted. They occupied seats together throughout the main performance and maintained an orderly behavior, occasionally giving Missouri yells and songs.

After the performance a number of the leaders demanded that they be allowed to remain during the concert which followed. Showmen armed with tent poles drove the students from the tent, striking several of them. This incensed the students and they ran to a siding near the Wabash railroad station, where the circus train was preparing to depart. Here a battle ensued between the circus employes and 250 students, in which bricks were thrown, shots were fired and tent poles wielded vigorously by both students and showmen. The students captured a circus chariot, which was found today in a field near town. The circus train left town at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and was delayed by greased and loosened rails and an open switch, the tampering with the track being ascribed to the students.

No arrests have been made. The students say the circus men were the aggressors.

ADVANCE SHEETS

On Navy of Civil War Are Issued by the Government.

Washington, May 12.—The navy department has issued the advance sheets of Series 1, Volume 20, of the official records of the Union and Confederate navies of the war of the rebellion compiled by Charles S. Stewart, superintendent of the library and naval war records. This publication covers the period of time from March 15 to Dec. 31st, 1863, giving the operations of the west gulf blockading squadron. The period was one of the greatest importance to the naval historian covering as it does the operations of Farragut and Porter; the operations at Port Hudson, the destruction of the Queen of the West, the Sabine Pass and Rio Grande expeditions; naval operations in defense of Donaldsonville and is given additional value by reason of cuts illustrating the type of war vessels used in each navy.

"MUCK" M'LAIN IS FINED $250

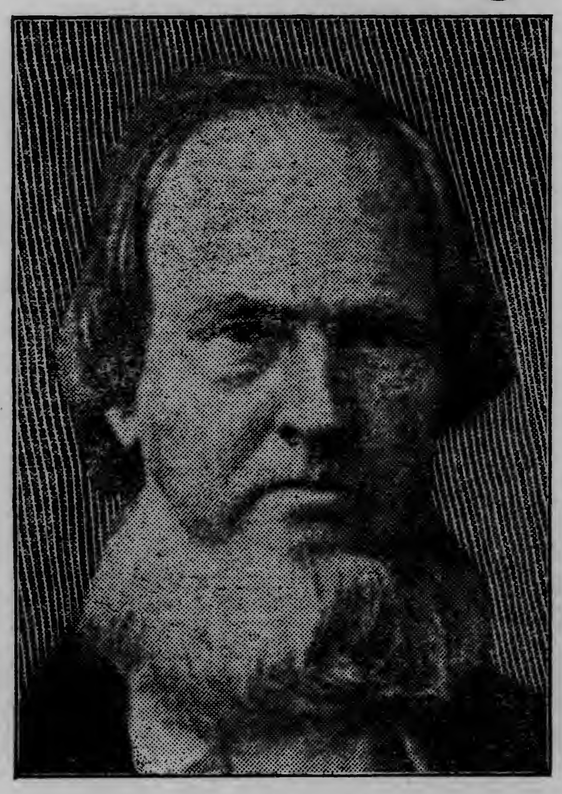
Pleads Guilty to Assault in the Second Degree.

Mucius McLain, commonly known as "Muck" McLain, appeared before Judge Dibell yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree. He was indicted several months ago for assault in the first degree, the state claiming that McLain struck a steam shovel engineer on the head with a piece of lead pipe at Hibbing last winter. McLean was sentenced to pay a fine of $250, which it is expected he will produce, as he has that amount up for bail.

After the assault, McLain fled from Hibbing and for many weeks secluded himself on a homestead in the northern part of the county. He was finally arrested by Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately and the chief of police at Hibbing. After sojourning in the county jail several weeks, McLain was released on bail furnished by his friends.

The man who was struck by McLean left Hibbing as soon as he was able to get out of the hospital and the authorities have not been able to get him, although he is said to be working at some one of the mines on the range.

Miraculous Cure of Throat and Lung Troubles at 85



COL. R. C. HUTCHISON.

Col. R. C. Hutchison, of Chattanooga, Tenn., amazed at his almost miraculous return to health after seven years of suffering from throat and lung troubles, extols Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which cured him when remedies usually prescribed for laryngitis and bronchitis had failed.

This brave and popular soldier, who is well known and universally liked throughout the South, expresses in writing the praiseworthy desire to meet face to face every one of his age in order to tell each personally the great benefit he has derived from his judicious use of Duffy's.

Colonel Hutchison's letter reads as follows: "I am 85 years old today, and I wish I could come face to face with everyone of my age in this country. I could give them an account of sickness dispelled and health restored which is little short of a miracle. For more than seven years I was subject to all manner of throat and lung troubles, and there was scarcely a day that I could leave my bed or reclining chair. My good old doctor who has been a lifelong friend recommended Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey when the remedies usually prescribed for laryngitis and bronchitis failed. As you may imagine, the disease condition was chronic by this time. I have taken Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey now for several years, and my health is better than it has been for twenty years. I believe I am permanently cured."—Colonel R. C. HUTCHISON, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

If you wish to keep strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs; they poison the body and depress the heart (quinine depresses the heart), while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is the only whiskey that is recognized as a medicine, and contains no fusel oil. This is a guarantee. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has stood severe tests for fifty years and has always been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist or grocer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal whiskey and is sold only in sealed bottles—never in bulk. HOW BALL PLAYERS HIT.

All of the Famous Batters Have Peculiarities That Seem to Help Them Make Big Averages.

Every professional ball player—in fact, every ball player—hits the ball in a different way. Their attitudes at the bat, the way they grasp the club, the way they throw their bodies into the swing—everything is different. No two men hit alike, says the Baltimore Sun.

Occasionally I see some youngster whose actions remind me of some old-time batter, but that is seldom. The most striking instance of this I remember is Hub Hart, Comiskey's new man, who almost duplicates the movements of Walter Thornton, Anson's old pitcher, who, by the way, was one of the best hitters that ever broke into baseball.

Ed Delehanty had an odd style. He swung with his arms, with a lurching, slashing movement, quick as a flash, yet, in some way, he managed to get the strength of his body and his weight behind the drive. One to look at Del would have thought he was a bum hitter—although he was one of the best, and at that there were times when Del looked like a sucker against a fast curve ball. He was a great hitter mainly because of a wonderfully accurate eye and his uncanny ability to call the turn on what the pitcher was going to deliver.

Lajoie is a hitter much after the style of Delehanty. He is huge and powerful, with an ungainly lurch when he meets the ball, and he has a marvelous judgment of speed and a great eye. He is what is known as a wild pitch hitter. He hits them better a foot outside the plate than he does when they are over, but he is likely to cripple the first baseman if you pitch inside for him, for he pulls and slashes the ball fiercely to right. His free shoulder muscles permit him to hit high or low—and he crickets the ball off his feet as well as drives the high ones.

Whenever anyone speaks of Lajoie I recall Cy Swain, the elongated Washington pitcher. Cy was going to pitch against Philadelphia, and inquired tenderly of Joe Campbell:

"Joe, I'd like to meet Lajoie."

"You'll meet him this afternoon," remarked Campbell.

That afternoon Cooley led off with a double, Delehanty followed with a triple, and Lajoie smashed the ball over the wall.

"Did you meet Lajoie, Cy?" asked Campbell after the game.

"Yes," said Cy. "And he had two advance agents."

Anson was a great hitter. His position at bat was something to admire. He stood, feet together, bat clutched firmly at shoulder arms position, and almost faced the pitcher. He took one short step forward with his left foot, and met the ball squarely between the seams. His hits were almost all line drives that cleared the infield, and he was likely to cripple pitchers, for his eye was so wonderful that he drove the ball through the box half the time.

Anson swung the heaviest bat ever used by any ballplayer. He had them pieced up of boxwood, with heavy cores, and no other man in his team ever could handle his bats to advantage, although some tried it.

Yet Anson, for all his remarkable judgment, had a weakness. The pitcher who started a sweeping out curve at Anson usually fooled him into dodging, and many times he roared at umpires when the ball cut the plate. The trouble was that Anson was likely to catch the next one, step back and kill it.

Did you ever watch Frank Chance come to bat? He steps up, grasps his bat, taps the plate, holds his bat in his right hand, while he pulls his belt with his left, places his bat between his legs, pulls his cap on tighter, pulls up his trousers, grabs the bat again, taps the plate, and is ready. He goes through these same motions every time he faces a pitcher, and it is a cinch he wouldn't hit .200 if forced to leave them out.

Kip Selbach was another who had a pantomime he had to perform before hitting. He adjusts belt, cap, trousers, then raps his left foot with the bat, holds up his right foot and raps that, knocking all the dirt out of his spikes, and then, after another pull at his cap, is ready for business. He is a nervous hitter, and pitchers like Clark Griffith used to take advantage of his nervousness and keep him fretting by delaying the pitch until he couldn't hit much of anything. Dad Clarke vowed that Selbach couldn't take the ball in his hands and make a hit if the pitcher was slow, and it is notorious that Selbach never could hit those slow-ball pitchers—especially the irritating Nig Cuppy.

Another pantomimist was Pete Browning, who went through all sorts of antics before settling down to hit. He rearranged most of his clothing before he stepped up—but when he did Pete was a great hitter. His style was that swinging, slashing style, and he drove his bat with immense power, getting the weight of his entire body into the swing. Pete didn't care much except for his hits. Meeting him one night after a game, I asked seriously: 'What was the score, Pete?

"Dunno—forgot," said Pete. 'But I got four."

Perhaps the man who puts more strength behind his bat than any other hitter was Bug Holliday. Bug was enough to frighten a pitcher when he looked at him. He stood at bat on his right foot, his left leg akimbo, with only the toe touching the ground, and waved his bat wildly. When he swung full force at a ball he spun around like a top two or three times. When he landed squarely on the ball it never stopped going—but the trouble was he didn't land squarely often enough.

But the oddest of all batters was Doggy Miller. He was short and stout, with plump little legs. He stood perfectly still at bat until just as the pitcher was winding up to deliver the ball, then he suddenly stuck his left leg out straight in front of it, gave a funny little ballet-girl kick and threw himself forward to meet the ball.

His performance caused so much laughter that Doggy tried earnestly to stop kicking—but he couldn't hit unless he did.

A TRAGEDY REVEALED

Man and Woman Arrested for Killing Woman in Germany.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 12.—The details of a mysterious and revolting tragedy, for which Wilhelm Meyer and a woman named Christiana will be arrested on the arrival of the Hamburg-American line steamer Graf Waldersee at New York today, were revealed this afternoon. Meyer came to Frankfort April 24 and left a trunk and other baggage with an express company, saying that the trunk contained clothing and that he wanted it kept for three months, as he was going abroad. The trunk was finally opened by the police and found to contain the half decayed body of an aged woman, covered with chloride of lime. The body turned out to be a Mrs. Vogel of Wildungen, in the principality of Waldek, who had been missing since the disappearance of Meyer from that place. She came from San Francisco to Wildungen with Meyer two years ago. The latter is a furniture dealer, 31 years of age, and born in Germany. Mrs. Vogel was reputed to be very rich. Later, it is said, she quarreled with Meyer and asked for police protection.

The murder was committed by strangulation. Meyer spent several days in Frankfort and wrote to the Christinia woman who comes of a good Wildungen family, to meet him here whence they disappeared together. Inquiries made by the police established the fact that the couple sailed for New York from Hamburg, April 29, registered as from New Orleans.

New York, May 12.—Meyer and the woman were arrested by federal officers at Hoboken, when the Graf Waldersee reached her dock there today. They were at once brought to this city and arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, who had issued the warrant for their arrest. The man refused to talk and the woman professed not to know why they had been arrested.

JUST FOR LUCK.

Los Angeles Times: Senator Foraker, in discussing a rather unfair attack that one statesman had made upon another said:

"This reminds me of the young man from the country who went up to New York to take a course of boxing lessons.

"He chose for his instructor a notably hard-hitting heavyweight. The heavyweight said to him, as the first lesson began:

"'Now, I may hurt you a little, but you mustn't mind. And you, in return, hit me just as hard as you can. Don't be afraid. I shan't bother.'

"And he smiled maliciously.

"And the malicious smile still lingered on his lips as—bang!—with a crashing blow on the jaw, the heavyweight went down.

"He rose painfully.

"'That was a soaker you gave me, and no mistake,' he said: 'but, by the way, what is that in your glove?'

"'Oh, it's only a horseshoe,' said the pupil, chuckling. 'I just put it there for luck.'"

CHINAMAN ASKS $8,000

Hibbing Rooming House Proprietor Would Recover Heavy Damages,

Claims Three Men Have Tried to Ruin His Business.

Charley Lee, a Chinaman running a restaurant and rooming house on Third street in Hibbing, has begun suit for $8,000 damages against George Donahue, Henry Little and Ike Dowling of Hibbing. He charges them with conspiring to break up his business by making his restaurant and rooming place undesirable.

The suit was filed today in United States court by Victor Power of Hibbing, attorney for the Chinaman who is not naturalized.

It is charged in the complaint that on April 27, 1906, at 2 o'clock in the morning the three men named as defendants entered the plaintiff's rooming house and created such a disturbance that nobody could sleep; and even went so far as to forcibly enter several rooms and drag out the occupants thereof.

It is charged that at various times and frequently the three men would enter the restaurant run by Lee, create a disturbance and do everything in their power to ruin his business. It is charged that they singled him out in the matter and followed up this plan of persecution; and Lee, driven desperate by the unceasing following up of what he charges to be conspiracy, has been compelled to take the course of suing his persecutors.

Not If as Rich as Rockefeller.

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by all leading druggists.

RAILROADS

MORE RATE WAR TALK

Threatened Rate of $4 Between St. Paul and Chicago.

Several Lines Have Difficulty in Reaching an Agreement.

Local railroad men are wondering if the threatened rate war on the Chicago-St. Paul railroads will develop. At the meeting of the executive committee of the Western Passenger association, held Thursday in Chicago, the war seemed to be imminent.

Passenger Traffic Manager Hanson of the Illinois Central served an ultimatum to the effect that if the rates are not restored to the agreed basis at once he will make a $4 rate to the Twin Cities from Chicago for the B'Nai B'Rith, which meets in Minneapolis, May 19.

Passenger traffic officials heard Mr. Hanson's ultimatum with dismay. Some of them have been struggling hard to keep the rates to St. Paul up owing to the volume of commercial traffic, but their efforts so far have appeared to be in vain, and now they see a disastrous cut threatened.

The trouble started by the contest for the business of the meeting of the B'Nai B'Rith. It was at first agreed to make a round-trip rate of $16 for the meeting. The Chicago Great Western quoted a rate of $12. Other roads met this cut, but were greatly dissatisfied.

Then the matter of making rates for the sangerfest in July came up. Another effort was made to keep this rate up to $16, but it is now reported that the Wisconsin Central is making a round-trip rate of $8. Here Passenger Traffic Manager Hanson of the Illinois Central stepped in and said that unless the rates were restored to the $16 basis he would offer a round-trip rate of $4.

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE.

Satisfactory Progress is Being Made on Missabe's Bovey Branch.

W. A. McGonagle, general manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, has returned from an inspection trip over the route of the new extension from Alborn to Bovey, on the Western Mesaba. He is very well pleased with the outlook.

"We will have no difficulty in completing the Bovey branch by July 1, as planned," said Mr. McGonagle this morning. "The work is progressing satisfactorily and can all be done in the time left between now and July 1. The tracks will all be laid by June 15. Grading has been completed to a point nine miles east of Bovey."

H. F. Carter is in Town.

Every once in a while when H. F. Carter of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Union Pacific and allied lines, visits Duluth he brings along something especially attractive in the way of advertising literature or pictures. He is in town today, and this time he has with him two beautiful panoramic views of scenes along the roads he represents.

They are on heavy paper of fine quality, and measure about four feet long by a foot and a half wide. One scene shows Mt. Shasta, Cal., with the state fish hatcheries in the foreground, on the Southern Pacific. The other is a handsome reproduction of Lake Tahoe, Cal., on the Southern Pacific Ogden route. Either one would make a valuable addition to the walls of any office or room.

"We look for a big tourist business this summer," said Mr. Carter. "The fact that some of the big conventions scheduled for San Francisco have been declared off will not seriously interfere with passenger traffic, for the low rates made for them will be in effect anyway, and the travel Westward should be quite heavy in consequence."

Grading Half Done.

Grading for the new classification yard at Proctor for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road is about half completed and the tracks will probably be laid within the next thirty days. The completion of this yard will greatly facilitate the handling of ore at this end of the line and will mean the doing away with switching at the docks.

CITY BRIEFS.

The motion of the Duluth & Northeastern Railway company for a new trial of the damage action won by Andrew Johnson, one of the settlers along the line, was denied this morning. Johnson was one of the several settlers who received small sums in payment for timber that they alleged was destroyed by a fire started by section hands.

The Sons of Norman will celebrate May 17 by a grand musical entertainment at Flaaten's conservatory. Flaaten's orchestra will play and the Zenith quartet and Olga Prytz will sing. Rev. Falk-Gjedtsen of Minneapolis will deliver an address.

Adolph Mathison and Maudie Hendrickson, both of Superior, Wis., were united in marriage by Judge Middlecoff this morning. The young people were attended by relatives from across the bay.

The funeral of Hollis P. Brown will be held Monday at 2 o'clock from the residence, 215 East Fourth street, and interment will be made at Forest Hill cemetery.

The children of the Emerson school, together contributed $8 for the purchase of flowers to be displayed at the funeral of their little messenger boy friend, Tony Runca, who was killed on an elevator in the Aroma Coffee company building this week.

People who patronize the ferry between Duluth and Superior are kicking, because in the general clean-up of the city lower Fifth avenue west has been overlooked. The bay end of the avenue is said to be in a very dirty condition.

Mrs. G. Macfarlane entertained Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. M. P. Orchard of Brainerd.

Mrs. Edward Fisher entertained at cards Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. M. P. Orchard of Brainerd.

Going out of business, millinery at cost.—Madame Beuglet, 22 Third avenue west.

The Duluth Ministerial association will meet Monday morning at 10:30 in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. Prof. Foster's "Finality of the Christian Religion" will be reviewed and Rev. F. C. Weed of Superior will be the principal speaker.

Dramatic Cantata, King's Daughters, Lyceum, May 17.

The funeral of Cadet John Lund of the Salvation Army will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the headquarters of the Scandinavian corps, 1631 West Superior street. The services will be in charge of Capt. Engvell. Mr. Lund died Tuesday at St. Luke's hospital.

STEAMER ON FIRE.

Baltimore, May 12.—A wireless report from Cape Lookout Lightship No. 72 says the steamer Vigilancia, from New York for Havana, was afire at 6 o'clock this morning off Cape Lookout. At 7:30 the fire was under control.

ATTACK ON PRESIDENT

Made by Senator Tillman During Consideration of Rate Bill.

Says Executive Asked Democratic Support to Kill Amendments.

Washington, May 12.—During the consideration of the railroad rate bill in the senate today, Senator Tillman made an attack upon the president. He referred to the Long amendment, saying that he did so with the purpose of making an explanation. He said that senators probably would be surprised to know that he had been in conference with the president. He then, contrary to his usual practice, read a statement of his negotiations regarding the bill as follows: "On Saturday, March 31, I was informed by ex-Senator William E. Chandler that President Roosevelt sent him a note asking him to call at the White House that evening; that he had called and had been told by the president that he desired through him to get into communication with him as the senator in charge of the railroad rate bill, and that with Senator Bailey representing the Democrats of the senate for the purpose of ascertaining whether there could be such united action among the friends in the senate of the Hepburn bill as would make a sure majority in its favor and against injurious amendments.

"Mr. Chandler said the president named various Republican senators who he thought were true friends of the bill, but said that it might require all the Democratic votes to defeat obnoxious amendments. Mr. Chandler said the president had stated that he had come to a complete disagreement with the senatorial lawyers, who were trying to injure or defeat the bill by ingenious constitutional amendments, naming Senator Knox in addition to Senator Spooner and Foraker; that the president stated carefully and deliberately the basis upon which he thought there should be co-operation, viz, an amendment expressly granting a court review, but limiting it to two points; (1) an inquiry whether the commission had acted beyond its authority ultra vires and (2) whether it had violated the constitutional rights of the carrier. Mr. Chandler stated that the president repeated that he had reached a final decision that the right of review should be thus limited; that thus far he would go and no further; that his decision would be unalterable."

Proceeding, he said that Mr. Chandler had said that the president had assured him that he would be in favor of a restriction against the issuance of ex-parte injunctions to meet the wishes of Senator Tillman and Senator Bailey.

After informing Mr. Bailey of the purport of the Chandler interview, Mr. Tillman said that on the next day he had told Mr. Chandler that in his and Mr. Bailey's opinion there would be no difficulty in coming to an understanding on basis proposed by the president.

"On the evening of Monday Mr. Chandler told me he had so assured the president and asked him not to be disturbed by the newspaper items growing out of the talk about Mr. Long's amendment published in the newspapers as one agreed upon at the White House conference Saturday."

He then said that he and Mr. Chandler had continued their conference and on April 5 the ex-senator had gone to the White House to make a favorable report to the president. On April 8th, Mr. Chandler told him that he had conferred with Senator Allison asking him to intervene in the conference then in progress and that the Iowa senator had agreed to do so.

Later Mr. Allison had seen the president. On April 13, Mr. Chandler had advised that he (Mr. Tillman) and Mr. Bailey see the attorney general.

Washington, May 12.—The senate again today took up the railroad bill and it entered upon the consideration of the remaining Allison amendments relating to the jurisdiction of the federal court over the orders of the interstate commerce commission. The first of these pertained to the venue of courts and provided that in cases where two or more railroads were affected, the venue should be in the district where either has its principal office. To this Senator Rayner offered as an amendment a provision in the language of the Long amendment, limiting injunction proceedings to cases in which the carrier alleges a violation of the fifth amendment to the constitution or sets up that the commission has exceeded its jurisdiction.

Speaking to his amendment, Mr. Rayner said that the Long amendment was limited to two points, while he contended that the Allison provision opened up the entire case in the courts. His was the constitutional review, while the other was practically without limitation. The Maryland senator was cut off before he had concluded, Senator Aldrich insisting upon the enforcement of the rule limiting the duration of speech.

"The senator from Rhode Island seems to be in a great hurry now to rush this matter through," said Mr. Rayner, "but he was not so anxious to proceed four or five weeks ago. I will see that he does not crowd the matter so fast and I will find an opportunity to explain this point."

Senator Long said that the amendment offered by Mr. Rayner was not his provision, but even if it were the whole subject would be covered by the amendment relative to injunctions to be offered later by Mr. Allison.

Mr. Carter defended the president against the attacks on him, saying that "no one familiar with the president would charge him with cowardice, for his record for courage is certainly unexcelled."

"The Democratic party," he said, "was a party of negatism and nothing more." He declared that it was frightened into a chill over the progress of action, and he charged Mr. Rayner and Mr. Bailey with having in all their congressional careers done nothing to secure railroad legislation.

Replying, Senator Bailey declared that the Montana senator's "ebullition" had been due to the fact that he had not been mentioned by Mr. Rayner as one of the ambassadors from the president to arrange the rate bill. He called attention to the fact that during his ten years' service in the house the Democrats had been in control for only four years. He repeated his charges of inconsistency on the part of the president, charging that he had failed to take a position on the railroad question before the election; that he had failed to revise the tariff, and that he had receded from his decision to call an extra session of congress to take up the railroad question. "I love a brave man and a fighter," he said, "and the president is both on occasions," but he declared that he was without endurance and always allowed the leaders of his party to swerve him from his purpose.

"Let us have no more talk about the iron man. He is only clay and very common clay at that," he added, and said if the president had been the heroic figure that he is reported to be he would have called the Republican senators and members together and told them that if the right kind of bill was not passed it would be vetoed.

"May God save the country from such a bill as we are getting," he said. In reply to Senator Aldrich, he expressed the opinion that the bill as it stands in the senate is a better measure than the bill that passed the house.

Mr. Rayner's amendment to the Allison amendment was then voted down and the controversy proceeded on another amendment suggested by Mr. Bacon, making the proposed court review apply only to "orders and requirements not involving the exercise of discretion by the committee." The debate was legal and technical and was participated in by Senators Bacon, Long, Bailey, Foraker and others.

The Bacon amendment was voted down 22 to 46.

CHANCES FOR APPEALS GONE

Last Opportunity to Complain Against Courthouse Site Awards.

Unless an appeal is taken from the award of the appraisers by 5 o'clock this afternoon, St. Louis county is in a position to take judgment in condemnation proceedings for the courthouse site and will come into absolute title as soon as the sums awarded the several property owners has been paid to them from the general revenue fund.

Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon, there had been no appeal filed but there was a possibility that one would be started provided local agents for an Eastern owner of some of the Second street property received word in time to get the papers to the office of the clerk of district court before it closed.

So far as can be learned there was no intention on the part of any of the other owners to appeal from the award.

The county, through the commissioners, has already accepted the award.

DAVE ROSE'S "MACHINE" FAST GOING TO PIECES.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12.—With the departure of David S. Rose, former mayor of Milwaukee for four terms, for his mines in Arizona, although he says he is coming back, the spinal column of the once famous "city Democracy" seems to have been fractured.

The city Democracy was the Rose machine, and there is a revolt in its ranks. It was formed and gradually strengthened in the eight years of Rose's administration, until it ranked as one of the strongest of its kind in the United States.

Many of the members refuse to contribute to the purse of the organization. Most of them are city employes, or were until the Rose regime ended.

Thanks Duluth for Money.

Secretary H. V. Eva of the Commercial club today received a letter from Governor George C. Pardee of California, acknowledging the receipt of $17,000 sent by Duluth to the aid of San Francisco fire and earthquake sufferers. On behalf of the people of California he thanks the residents of Duluth for their very generous contributions, and says the money will be transmitted to Hon. J. D. Phelan, chairman of the finance committee, looking after the general relief fund.

Bob Smollet Counts Cars.

Police Officer Bob Smollet, in proof of his contention that it is necessary to keep an officer stationed at the corner of Third avenue West and Superior street, says that $1,509 street cars pass that corner every day, counting each car every time it passes the corner.

On several occasions he has counted the teams passing this corner between the hours of 1:15 and 2:15, when traffic is the least, and reports 186 as a minimum. He says he has attempted to count the people, but has never been able to accomplish this feat.

MAYOR SECURES OPTION FOR LAKE SHORE PARK

City Can Purchase Tract Comprising Ten Acres for $20,000.

Price is But $600 Above the Present Assessed Valuation.

Duluth can purchase the proposed lake shore park for the sum of $20,000, which is but $600 more than the assessed valuation of the land.

Conservative estimates of the value, made by local real estate dealers, range from $35,000 to $40,000, and it is doubtful if anyone will dispute that the price fixed by the railroad company is far less than the real value of the land even at present prices.

Mayor Cullum returned last evening from St. Paul, after securing an option from the land commissioner of the Northern Pacific Railroad company.

"The Northern Pacific railroad has agreed to sell the city, for park purposes, all of the land, exclusive of the D. & I. R. right of way, between London road and the lake shore, from Eighth avenue east to Chester creek, for the sum of $20,000, which is but $600 above the assessed valuation," said the mayor this morning. "The real value of the land is from $35,000 to $40,000, and I have heard of one speculator who would have paid as high as $50,000 for the piece, if he could have secured it.

"The problem before us now is to raise the money and acquire the title to the land. It is not expected that any improvements can be made for a year or two to come, and all we can hope to do this year is to buy the land.

"The property owners in that part of the city, whose land will be directly benefited by the purchase of this park, will be expected to contribute liberally toward it, either by voluntary contribution or by assessment. The property owners in that vicinity, and others who are especially interested in the beautifying of the city, should pay one-half of the purchase price, and the city will endeavor to arrange for the other half.

"This is the only available piece of lake shore property between Lake avenue and Lester Park, and if it is not secured now, when we have a chance to get it for such a reasonable figure, it will be a matter of everlasting regret. The six blocks of uninterrupted lake view, and the assurance that it will never be shut off, are worth the purchase price alone.

"Then we have the assurance that the property can never be disfigured with billboards or small shacks, and in time we can make a very beautiful little park there.

"Even now it is used by a large number of people who want to get down to the lake shore and be near the water, and when it has been improved, and turned into a city park, the number will be greatly increased.

"Still another feature, and by no means the least important, is the playground which it will give the children of the East end. There is a good level field at the foot of Twelfth avenue that can be used for baseball and all kinds of games, and it will give us a start on a system of playgrounds for children scattered in all parts of the city.

"I believe that the purchase of that piece of property will be one of the most important moves ever made by the city in development of its park system."

Mayor Cullum was even more successful than he hoped for in his negotiations with the railroad company. He has been working on the scheme for several months past, and at the meeting last Monday night he said that he hardly hoped to be able to get the property for less than $25,000, and that the city might have to pay as high as $30,000 for it, if the railroad consented to sell it at all. He has, however a written option for $20,000.

Young Man Had Bottle of Carbolic Acid When Arrested.

Is Wanted by Superior Police for Defrauding Merchants There.

With a large bottle of carbolic acid in his possession, Clyde Wood, a young man 19 years of age, belonging to a well known Superior family, was arrested on Lake avenue, shortly after noon today, by Capt. Resche of the local police department, and will be sent to Superior, where he is wanted on the charge of defrauding several merchants there.

The young man is said to have secured a valuable gold watch and two rifles on the pretense that he wanted to take them home for his father to examine. The watch was valued at $35 and the rifles were worth $15 or $20 apiece.

According to the story told the Superior police by the dealers in question, the boy entered the store and stated that his father wished to purchase the articles, and had told him to get them and bring them home on approval. The youth's father was well known in Superior, and the merchants gave out the goods without hesitation.

When the articles were not returned, the merchants became suspicious, and looking the matter up, found that the young man had left home several days ago, for parts unknown, and that his parents knew nothing of the transactions.

The case wase reported to Chief McKinnon yesterday, and descriptions of the young man were sent out to all the surrounding towns.

He was found by Capt. Resche at noon today, on Lake avenue, and placed under arrest.

When searched at headquarters, a large bottle of carbolic acid was found in his possession. The bottle contained enough polson to kill half a dozen men, and it is believed that the young man intended to put an end to his life.

At headquarters he told the police where the goods were planted. The watch had been pawned for $15, one of the rifles for $9, and the other rifle for $5.

Since leaving home he has been working on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad in one of the range towns, and came to Duluth this morning.

He will be turned over to the Superior authorities this afternoon.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Fire Catching From Sparks Causes $20,000 Damage at Grand Forks.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—The Great Northern coal chute building caught fire from an engine spark late Thursday afternoon, and before the fire was under control, property valued at $20,000 had been destroyed.

The coal chute, section house, five cars loaded with coal and ties and lumber of a probable value of $10,000 are a total loss, and $6,000 damage was done to the wood working establishment of Bailes & Perkins.

Fargo—The trasfer of the Lorge & Knorr implement business at Minot to the Western Implement company was illegal and void, according to a decision by Judge Amidon.

The ruling resulted from the action of J. W. Briggs, trustee in bankruptcy for Lorge & Knorr, against the Western Implement company. Lorge & Knorr conducted a farm implement business in Minot, and some months ago transferred the business to the Western Implement company. Knorr asserted the transfer was secured through fraud, and because he was plied with whisky by the agents for the Western.

For this and for the further reason that the transfer was void, for the violations of certain sections of the bankruptcy law, the transfer of the property was asked to be set aside. The court declined to sustain the first proposition, but upheld the second, on the ground that it was hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of Lorge & Knorr. The firm filed bankruptcy proceedings after the alleged transfer.

It is found in the decision that Lorge & Knorr were insolvent at the time of the transfer. Contempt proceedings against the Western Implement men were instituted because of the withdrawal of funds in a bank at Minot.

The case is regarded by machinery men and attorneys as the most important that has ever come up in the bankruptcy court in this state.

The Marshall Oil company, with headquarters at Marshalltown, Iowa, and with refinery connections at several Pennsylvania points, has located a branch in Fargo. Ten traveling salesmen and twenty-five local men are to be employed.

The clerks of Fargo have formed a union, one of the main objects being early closing. Practically all the clothing dealers, grocers, department stores and others agreed. Two clothing establishments and one grocery store declined, and these three are being picketed each night. E. A. Perry, the proprietor of the latter, objects to the methods used, and threatens to resort to legal action.

A few weeks ago Judge Pollock issued an order against members of the Typographical union, who were picketing a typothetae establishment that had declared for the open shop, and it is thought a similar ruling will be made against the clerks.

William Morrison of this city is one of the heirs to an estate left by David Morrison in Toronto, Can., valued at $170,000. There was no will. There were eight heirs, seven of whom have been traced. Until all are found there can be no division of the estate, and Mr. Morrison is endeavoring to locate the missing branch.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Evarts—A lively time was experienced with the negroes in Scribner's camp on the Milwaukee extension Thursday night. The negroes were discharged, but did not like the idea of quitting with nothing but a tie-pass home, and rebelled.

A few settlements had to be made at the point of the gun, but one negro refused to accept his money at all, and hid in the brush, and as Mr. Scribner was going by, shot at him three times, all shots missing. Scribner returned the fire, but also missed his assailant, who escaped.

The remainder of the negroes were rounded up at the point of a Winchester and word was sent to John Hoven, deputy sheriff, who trailed the missing one for ten miles and caught him northeast of Glenham.

Aberdeen—For some days residents in Gem township have been trying to solve a mystery that was causing terror to some of the farmers and annoyance to others. Thursday night a cow was found with its head crushed and badly battered, and the evening before another was found with its throat cut. Other cattle have been bruised and bear marks of cruel treatment.

Late Thursday night the mystery was solved in a startling manner. Anton Salberg, a farmer, started out armed with a rifle, and began firing bullets ineo several homes. The house occupied by Rev. C. M. Grimsrud was literally riddled with bullets. A telephone message was received here telling of the shooting, and Deputy Sheriff Hazel was sent to the scene. After a long search he found Salberg in a field and placed him under arrest.

It is believed Salberg is insane. He denies having beaten or killed any cows, but admits the shooting, and explained that he did it to show the neighbors he was not afraid of them. He is held in the county jail and will be examined by the insanity board.

AFFECTIONS NOT STOLEN.

Man Who Asked $17,000 Loses Case, and Must Pay Judgment.

Algona, Ia., May 12.—The first week of the district court of Kossuth county has passed into history and with it the trial of a somewhat sensational case. One Michael Baer, a blacksmith, brought an action against August Schneider, a well to do farmer, to recover damages for the alienation of his, Baer's wife and five children and the conversion of certain personal property, the amount claimed was $17,000. The trial lasted five days. Many witnesses were examined. It was disclosed during the trial that plaintiff at two different times had borrowed of the defendant the sum of $110. On the second ballot the jury found that the defendant had not alienated the affection of the plaintiff's wife and children; neither had he converted the plaintiff's property to his own use, but found that the plaintiff was indebted to the defendant in the sum of $110, for which amount defendant obtained judgment.

TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Woman Trying to Rescue Horses Is Killed by Them.

Houston, Minn., May 12.—Lightning struck a new barn belonging to Joe Orr, yesterday morning. In attempting to get the horses out of the barn, Mrs. Orr was knocked down by the horses, tramped on and killed. She was 40 years old. The barn, one horse, several head of cattle and hogs were consumed by the fire.

CURED TO STAY CURED

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

What the afflicted man wants is not a temporary relief, but a permanent cure.

The beneficial effects of my treatment are as lasting as life—I cure to stay cured.

When once a patient is rescued by me from the ravages of disease or weakness peculiar to his sex, he is never again bothered with his former trouble.

I do not treat all diseases, but I treat men—MEN ONLY—and cure them to stay cured.

Varicocele.

Under my treatment, which includes no cutting or pain, this insidious disease rapidly disappears.

Pain disappears almost instantly.

The pools of stagnant blood are driven from the dilated veins and all soreness and swelling quickly subside.

Every indication of Varicocele soon vanishes, and in its stead come the pride, the power, and the pleasure of perfect helth and restored manhood.

Stricture.

My cure for Stricture is safe, painless and bloodless, and therefore, free from surgery in any form.

It is the only cure that should ever be used, and the only one recommended by the legions of men who have been restored by it.

It disolves the Stricture completely and removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, allays all inflammation, stops every discharge, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Contagious Blood Poison.

My special form of treatment for specific or contagious blood poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of this and foreign countries.

It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicine of any kind.

It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity.

Soon every sign and symptom disappear completely and forever.

The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

My cure for weak men does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently.

It soon drives away all those distressing symptoms which so constantly remind one of his former folly.

It stops every drain of vigor and builds up the muscular and nervous system, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys, and invigorates the liver, revives the spirits, brightens the intellect, and, above and beyond all, restores the wasted power of manhood.

Reflex Diseases.

Many ailments are reflex, originating from other diseases.

For instance, manly weakness sometimes comes from Varicocele or Stricture. Innumerable blood and bone diseases often result from blood poison taint in the system of physical or mental decline frequently follow loss of manhood.

In treating diseases of any kind I always cure the effect as well as the cause.

We charge nothing for private counsel, and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence is always successful.

FIRST STREET PROPERTY IS SOLD FOR $20,000

A. L. Ordean Purchases Fifty Feet Between Second and Third Avenue West From the Western Land Association—Real Estate Gossip of the Week.

Sales in Duluth real estate have been topped off this week with one large transfer, that of the sale of some West First street property, between Second and Third avenues, for $20,000. The Western Land association was the seller and A. L. Ordean the purchaser. The property comprises the fifty feet adjoining the Watterworth & Fee building on the east, and is described as lot 40, West First street. The negotiations were conducted through the office of Mendenhall & Hoopes.

Outside this sale of centrally located property, the sales have been mostly small ones, but the aggregate shows up quite favorably with that of the preceding several weeks. The brokers seem reluctant to report when their transactions run in the smaller figures. Inquiry shows, however, that the conditions remain very favorable for an extensive movement of realty, many people seeking purchases for improvement, for homes and for investment.

* * *

One of the features of the week in realty circles has been the rush of purchasers for the Crosley Park lots that C. P. Craig & Company have put on sale at low prices on the partial payment plan. The demand exceeded the expectations of the agents, some fifty lots having been sold up to the present time. Negotiations are still in progress for the sale of many more. One of the deals will involve the purchase of four blocks in one bunch. In its Duluth Heights proposition, the same firm has also had a lively business, the sales including six lots and three houses.

* * *

One of the several pending deals in East End realty was closed this week, William White selling to James F. Walsh 100 feet on the northeast corner of Twenty-first avenue East and Second street, for $4,000. The sale was made by Whitney Wall. It is understood that Mr. Walsh intends to erect a modern residence on the property in the very near future.

* * *

Improvement work continues apace. In the East End, on First street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues East, the Howard Investment company has foundations well under way for three houses, and has begun breaking ground on Superior street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues East for three more. The company is also building on Thirteenth avenue east, between Fifth and Sixth streets, and is getting plans ready for some more houses on West First street. Julius D. Howard says that his company has had the best business this spring in real estate and loans that it has ever had. The company has a large number of building projects under way.

* * *

L. A. Larson & Company, in the Providence building, report an active week, with the following sales closed: A house and lot, described as lot 7, block 70, Duluth proper, Second division, Myers Rearrangement, to John P. Sampson, for $1,700; lots 1 and 2, block 5, Norton's division, from William H. Smith of Canton, O., to E. M. Olson, a local contractor, for $1,000; a residence property, described as lot 4, block 4, Harrington's addition, to A. Kramer, for $2,100. Mr. Larson says the demand is largely for building lots. He notes a good inquiry for farming land in the vicinity of Duluth, and says the price of that class of land is advancing.

* * *

The contract for the New York flats at First street and Third avenue east was awarded this week to the Duluth Electrical & Construction company. The flats will be an important improvement in that locality and were designed by German & Lignell.

* * *

Otto Johnson has been awarded the contract for the large store and flat building to be erected by John E. Lawrence at Fourth avenue west and Fourth street. The plans were made by J. J. Wangenstein.

* * *

The contract for Axel Edman's two-story double brick house on the upper side of Fourth street, near Fifteenth avenue east, has been awarded to Hugh Fawcett. The building was designed by Architect John deWaard.

* * *

Among the out-of-town contracts awarded by Architect J. J. Wangenstein this week was that for a seven-room rectory at Cass Lake, Minn., to Otto Johnson. The building is being erected for Bishop Morrison.

Bray & Nystrom, the architects, have plans out for a church at Bemidji, for Rev. J. O. Dwyer. Bids will be opened at noon, May 18.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein, the architect, will have plans out next week for the additional two stories to the Lenox hotel at Sixth avenue west and Superior street. He will call for bids next week on an addition to the Duluth Brewing & Malting company's hotel at Virginia. The addition will double the hotel's capacity. Mr. Wangenstein is also preparing plans for a frame residence at Two Harbors for W. Cogley.

Today is the last date for the filing of an appeal from the award of $136,900 for the courthouse site in the east half of the block occupied by the federal building. The county board has decided to accept the award, but it has been rumored that an appeal action is likely to be started before this evening by one of the owners. W. H. Tennis, who owns one of the fifty-foot inside lots on First street, was in the city this week and stated, while here, that he expected to accept the award made by the appraisers. Mr. Tennis has owned the property for twenty-two years. He was offered $450 a front foot for it when the government took the site the federal building now occupies. This was the same price that the appraisers awarded him. Mr. Tennis is general agent for the Erie road at Indianapolis, Ind., and he has always kept an eye on Duluth, believing in the city's growth in the future. He regrets the loss of his First street property at this time, but is willing to submit to what he terms "the inevitable."

Crosley Park

Located Between 49th and 54th Avenues East, Two and a Half Blocks Above Lakeside Electric Line.

This beautiful tract of land, now offered in lots and blocks at acre prices. Fifteen years ago 500 lots in this plat sold at prices ranging from $150 to $350 per lot---one-third down, balance one and two years time, with 8 per cent per annum interest.

We now offer 1,500 of the best lots at $25 to $85 per lot---$10 cash and the balance in 60 equal monthly payments without interest. Discounts for cash. Call and read over our liberal contract.

History repeats itself; these lots will bring former prices within three years. Can you afford to let this opportunity pass without securing a home and garden lot?

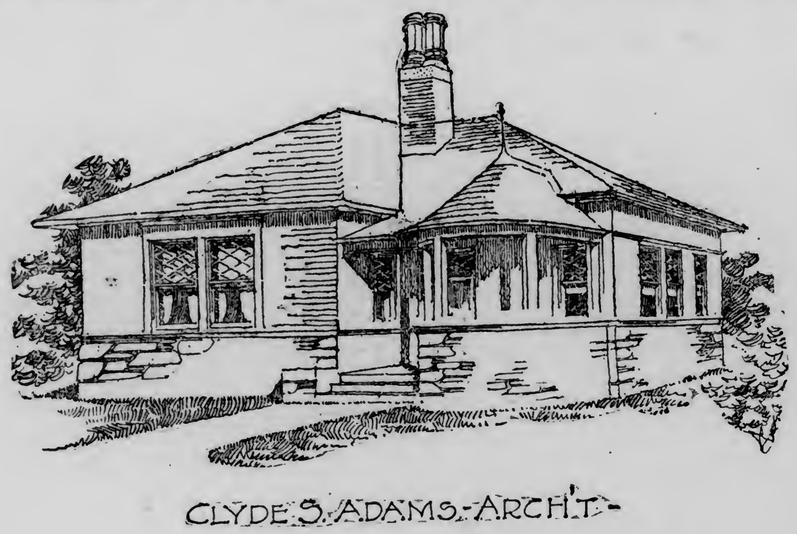
A PICTURESQUE, COMFORTABLE HOME COSTING $2,000.



This one-story bungalow makes a fine resort cottage, having plenty of light, is well ventilated and has a porch which is not too large to effect the beauty of the house. The design is so arranged that you may enter the bath either from the two chambers, the kitchen or the living room. The story height is 9 feet 6 inches.

The first story contains the following rooms: An alcove or vestibule, which connects with the diningroom or the livingroom. The diningroom is 12 feet by 14 feet, livingroom 12 feet by 12 feet, kitchen is 11 feet by 14 feet, and there is a little hall from which you enter the bath or the two chambers. All bedrooms are 11 feet by 12 feet excepting one which is 11 by 14 feet. Another room could be added to the rear of the house. The diningroom could be made larger by running it out as far as the partition of the kitchen. Below is itemized cost of this house:

Stone work	$200	Plumbing	130
Carpenter	300		$1,740
Millwork	325	Builder's profit	200
Lumber	466		$1,940
Painting and glazing	200
Plastering	125

DULUTH REAL ESTATE IS INCREASING IN VALUE!

$10 WILL START YOU

Toward a home of your own in a beautiful spot, 17 minutes' ride from the Lyceum.

If you want to stop the rent, you can do it, and the sooner you begin, the quicker you'll begin to save.

Pay $10.00 down and the balance a few dollars per month (without interest) and you'll soon have the lot.

Then for

$14 to $16 Per Month

We'll build you a beautiful little cottage, into which you can move and begin paying for it at less than the majority now pay for rent.

We are not missionaries, nor do we intend giving you something for nothing, only, in order to secure more home owners in Duluth Heights and stimulate building, (which will naturally increase the value of our property yet unsold), we offer this inducement for a limited time.

You see our object is a selfish one, but it is also an opportunity for those who speak first so Don't delay.

Choice Residence Property.

What We Think.
In our opinion the best residence avenue in the city is Twenty-third avenue east.

What Others Think.
At least what some of our leading business men think, is shown in the annexed diagram, which gives the names of those who have already built their homes thereon.

Some Pertinent Facts
At its head stands the State Normal school, it is already completely improved, being paved with tar-macadam, and it has the easiest grade of any avenue in the choice residence district of the city.

The Essential Point.
We control the choice unoccupied corners on this fine avenue—see diagram—so, if you want any of this property for a home

Come and See Us.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Prices Are Lower in All American Markets Except Winnipeg.

Flax is Quiet and Prices Lower in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 12.—Wheat declined in all of the American markets except Winnipeg today. Predictions of rain for the Southwest were largely responsible for the declines. Liverpool closed steady to ⅜d higher, Berlin ¼c higher and Budapest ¼c lower.

Bradstreet puts the European and American wheat stocks on May last 142,900,000 bus, against 127,200,000 bus in 1905 and 130,700,000 bus in 1904.

Broomhall estimates that the world's shipments of wheat this week will total 10,400,000 bus.

In the neighborhood of 200,000 bus of wheat was delivered in the Duluth market today.

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and New York, ½c in Chicago and Kansas City, ⅞c in Minneapolis, ⅜c in St. Louis and was ⅛c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Chicago, ¾c in Minneapolis and Kansas City, ⅝c in New York and St. Louis, and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg.

Corn was weaker, the July option in Chicago closing ⅛c off. Corn closed steady to ¼d lower in Liverpool. July oats were ⅛c off in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 47, against none last year, and at Minneapolis, 78, against 88 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 125 against 88 last year. Chicago received 39 against 1 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 268,000 bus, last year 103,000 bus. Shipments 400,000 bus, last year 206,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 165,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 273,000 bus, last year 124,000 bus. Shipments 574,000 bus, last year 243,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 153,000 bus.

Wheat was fairly active and weaker in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c lower at 82¾c, declined to 82⅝c, rallied to 82⅞c and declined at the close to 82¼c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at 83c, advanced to 83⅛c at 9:35, fell off to 82⅝c at 9:57, rallied to 83⅛c at 10 and ranged between that and 82⅝c during the rest of the session, closing at 82¾c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. September wheat was inactive and closed ⅝c lower at 79½c.

Flax was only fairly active. The foreign flax markets were unchanged. While the inquiry from abroad was good, no great amount of flax was worked by local exporters. May flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.17⅛, declined to $1.17½ and closed at that price, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.19, advanced to $1.19½, fell off to $1.18¼ and closed at that price, a loss of ½c from yesterday. September and October flax were inactive. September flax closed ½c lower at $1.18¼ and October flax ⅝c lower at $1.16½.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ⅛c lower and the other cearse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Predictions of Rain and Profit-Taking Causes Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 12.—The wheat market became weak today shortly after the opening. The chief causes of the decline were the prediction of showers in Kansas and Nebraska, and profit-taking by local longs. Commission houses were the chief buyers. Trading was very active. July opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 81⅜c to 81¾c and sold down to 81¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 154 cars against 198 last week and 89 one year ago.

The market was weak all day. The low point for July was 80¾c. The close was weak at 80⅝c, a decline of ⅝c for the day.

The corn market opened steady on light receipts, but later eased off somewhat on profit-taking. Good weather for the movement of the crop was the main cause of the weakness. July opened unchanged to ⅛c up at 40½c to 40⅝c and sold down to 40¼@⅜c. Local receipts were 66 cars, with 16 of contract grade.

Corn was weak until the end of the day. The low point, which was also the close, was 40⅛c, a decline of ⅜c for the day.

A prominent commission house was an active bidder for July and September oats, and because of this prices held steady. Offerings were very light. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 31¾c to 31⅞c, and for a time held at these figures. Local receipts were 82 cars.

Provisions were quiet and firm on a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. July pork was up 21½c at $15.27½. Lard was 5c up at $8.55. Ribs were 2½@5c up at $8.72½ to $8.75.

Close: Wheat—May, 83c; July, 80⅞c. Corn—May, 48¼c; July, 40½c. Oats—May, 32¼c; July, 31⅝c. Pork—May, $15.27½; July, $15.40. Lard—May, $8.47½; July, $8.57½. Ribs—May, $8.67½; July, $8.77½@8.80. Rye—Cash, 60@62c; May, 59½@60c; July, 59@60c. Flax—Cash northwestern, $1.15½; southwestern, $1.09½; May, $1.13⅜. Timothy—September, $3.60. Clover—Cash, $11.25. Barley—Cash, 39@53c. Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, May 12.—The flour market is higher. Millers made a further advance in patents of 5c per barrel. The demand shows some improvement, but millers were inclined to be disappointed by the reluctance of brokers to come in as the strength in cash wheat is pronounced. Shipments, 51,863 barrels. First patents, $4.25@4.35; second patents, $4.10@4.20; first clears, $3.50@3.60; second clears, $2.40@2.55.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat closed ½c to ⅝c lower. The tendency of market today somewhat reversed and while declines were at no time extensive, there was nevertheless a disposition prevailing to go slow in following yesterday's advance. Liverpool response to our market of yesterday was disappointing, and it seemed at the opening of our market as if the bulls of yesterday had wheat on tap for all anxious buyers. The action of today's market would indicate that conditions have loosened up somewhat. Wheat does not act as tight as it did yesterday nor the day before. This suggests to our minds that a goodly portion of the local short interest had covered and seems to confirm our idea of that yesterday that the move was purely against the shorts. It is more two sided, and for a time is likely to continue a good trading market.

Corn—The action of May in this market suggests that the bulk of the short interest has covered. The future months losing the influence of the strength in May, naturally seek a lower level. This fine weather is just the kind to make farmers optimistic regarding the growing crop, and will tend to increase their shipments to primary points. The future months display no snap. Trade is slow and unimportant.

Oats closed ⅛c lower for all months, being adversely affected by the reactionary tendency of other markets. We look to see oats follow corn to a certain extent.

Provisions closed strong, at best prices of the day. Prices were not much in evidence, the bulk of buying seemingly coming from the short interest. The provision market looks attractive to us.

Chicago Record-Herald: Minneapolis wired, "All the wheat in the Northwest will be wanted. The mills here don't care to take the wheat away. All the wheat markets have been oversold. Crop conditions are not so good, due to the unfavorable conditions throughout the winter, which are now developing."

Private reports from Minneapolis say millers have sold more flour for export during the past week than they have sold in months, but the larger millers will not talk, so it is hard to confirm. But the flour output there is increasing, which would indicate that sales were better.

* * *

Wisconsin Grain & Stock company: Wheat opened higher on continued buying by shorts on the curb. After the opening the market worked off on liberal selling orders from the Southwest and larger receipts in the Northwest and prospects for rain in the portions of Nebraska and Kansas where it is badly needed. The market was weak at times and at the close. The congestion in the May option seems to be relieved somewhat by the shipments of heavy cargoes from Duluth and heavy rail consignments to Chicago. There is still some scattered reports of needed rainfall in Missouri, but all in all conditions have improved considerably in the twenty-four hours. Cash demand was rather good, but not so urgent as yesterday and the day before. Improvement in the weather conditions and advance prices considered a good place to make sales on bulge for time being.

* * *

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The annual crop scare period in winter wheat is now at hand, and traders in the Southwest are sending all kinds of reports calculated to influence buying. There were a few dry weather reports, but a majority of the advices did not indicate that there was anything serious the matter with the crop, and if there is, it is due to conditions prevalent during the winter, as they have been mostly favorable for the winter wheat since the growing season commenced.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: May and July wheat at Minneapolis sold for a moment yesterday at one price, as against a discount of 3 cents from the July figure for May at the beginning of the month. Bulls pointed at this exhibition of strength in the market, which has the largest stock of wheat in the country, as proof that supplies were not burdensome anywhere. The Minneapolis mills are now turning out large quantities of flour. Shipments yesterday were 58,000 barrels or running up near the large totals that were made through the East just before the closing of lake navigation last winter. Wheat stocks at Duluth and Minneapolis have decreased 1,385,000 bushels this week compared with a decrease of 685,000 bushels last week and a decrease of 877,00 bushels a year ago. It was the bull claim that a great deal of this wheat was going to country mills. There were also claims that a good share of it was coming to Chicago last year for delivery on May contract.

RECESSION OF PRICES

Due to Realizing on the Favorable Bank Statement.

Few Small Rallies, But Stocks Closed Generally Easy.

New York, May 12.—Prices of stocks changed but little from yesterday's last quotations in the opening dealings today. Small gains and losses were quite evenly divided. A rise in Great Northern preferred of 1½ and in Illinois Central and American Ice of 1 made the only changes of any note.

A close analysis of the first hour's trading showed little advantage to either side, trading becoming more irregular than at the opening. Copper, Union Pacific and Reading showed alternate periods of firmness and heaviness which, however, did not carry them far away from yesterday's close. Missouri Pacific was notably firm and went up 1⅝, with a sympathetic effect on the other properties. International Pump preferred also moved up 1½ and Locomotive, Atlantic Coast Line and Wabash preferred, 1. Pump yielded 1.

Advances of a point in Amalgamated Copper and of 1⅛ to 1⅝ in the Mexican stocks and some of the Gould group were offset by declines of 1 to 1½ in Union Pacific and St. Paul, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Reading, National Lead and Smelting, 2 in Northwestern and Northern Pacific, 1⅝ in Chicago Union Traction, 4¾ in the preferred and 3 in United Realty Investment. Realizing on the favorable bank statement caused a general recession of prices. There were a few small rallies, but the closing was generally easy.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed easier in tone but, considering the advance we have had, a slight easing off at the end of the week is not at all surprising, and does not in any way injure market prospects. The bank statement was favorable, and fully up to expectations. There has been some gossip of financing to be done by St. Paul in connection with their Pacific coast extension, on which valuable rights will accrue to the stockholders. It is reported the leading companies have already booked orders for half a million tons of steel rails for the leading railroads to be delivered in 1907.

Money rates are easy, both for call and time; in fact there does not seem to be a cloud in the financial sky. There is less apprehension of danger to come from San Francisco reconstruction. It is held that New York will have use of the San Francisco funds for some time, or until they are needed, and the drawing down process will be slow. We think market conditions warrant buying stocks on the reactions.

Bank Statement.

New York, May 12.—The clearing house banks for this week show that the banks hold $12,894,600 over the legal reserve requirements. This is an increase of $6,295,600 over last week. The statement follows: Loans $1,025,650,500, decrease $16,400,400; deposits $1,014,656,400, decrease $12,717,100; circulation $50,378,700, decrease $465,400; legal tenders $80,060,300, increase $518,000; specie $186,448,400, increase $3,246,900; reserves $266,508,700, increase $3,815,800; reserves required $253,639,100, decrease $3,479,275; surplus $12,894,600, increase $6,995,075; ex United States deposits $22,147,225, increase $7,254,773.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 12.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points. Trading was fairly active after the call, and while May was relatively firm for a time, the whole list gradually sagged off and the middle of the morning showed a net loss of 5@6 points.

Cotton futures closed steady; closing bids, May, 11.33; June, 11.12; July, 11.12; August, 10.94; September, 10.66; October, 10.62; November, 10.61; January, 10.65; February, 10.68; March, 10.71. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.30; middling gulf, 12.15. Sales, none.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: The impossibility to buy horses of any kind has increased the price on all grades. The demand for drafters is still on the increase on account of the construction of new railroad branches throughout the Northwest. Mules are making a good market and the prospect is there will be a regular increase in price before long. While the selling is good, it is hard to supply the trade with the best of drafters, the kind wanted. The different grades moved at the following prices:

Drafters, extra	$205@230
Drafters, choice	180@220
Drafters, common to good	135@180
Farm mares, extra	135@170

Copper Gossip.

Boston, to Paine, Webber & Co.: All the coppers showed strength today until the bank statement came out. This statement was distinctly favorable, but was taken advantage of by the big traders to sell stocks and a little reaction followed. A weak feature of the market was Atlantic, which declined a point on small offerings, but there is no news on the property to account for the break. However, we do not advise the purchase of the local issues. The local floor traders are loaded with North Butte and this accounts for the weakness the last two days.

New York Money.

New York, May 12.—Money on call, nominal; no loans. Time loans easy; 60 days, 4¾@5 per cent; 90 days and 6 months, 5. Prime mercantile paper, 5¼@5¾ per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.50@4.85.55 for demand and at $4.82.20@4.82.25 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.83@4.86½; commercial bills, $4.81⅝@4.82¾. Bar silver, 67c; Mexican dollars, 51c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

St. Paul Live Stock.

St. Paul, May 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 200; steady, grain fed steers, $3.50@5.50; cows and heifers, $2.50@4.50; calves, $1.50@4.50; stockers, $2.50@4.50; feeders, $3@4.50. Hogs—Receipts, 3,000; five cents higher; range, $6.20@6.40; bulk, $6.25@6.30. Sheep—Receipts, none, steady with week's advance of 25 cents; sheep, $3.75@5.75; lambs, $4@6.25; spring lambs, $4.00@10.00.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers may rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

GOLDFIELD, NEVADA.

NEVADA MINING SECURITIES REVIEW.

The General Situation

The facility with which Nevada mining shares are being marketed despite the San Francisco disaster and the bearish tone of Wall Street is perhaps the most remarkable feature to be noted in the mining share situation. The east and middle west are apparently "convinced." The profits that have been made by early investors in Tonopah and Goldfield stocks, together with the sensational showing being made in the mines at Bullfrog and Manhattan, have created an enormous demand for stocks in the new companies of merit that are being promoted from Bullfrog and Manhattan, and this demand from east of the Missouri river is so overwhelming that it completely overcomes the depressing effect of the calamity at San Francisco.

With only rare exceptions, all of the Bullfrog companies have made good within a year, from the double standpoint of mine development and advance in the market price of stocks, and Manhattan, although suffering from a plethora of promotions, is making such a phenomenal showing in its mines that within ninety days its mining stocks of proved worth may be expected to repeat the history in early profit making of the Tonopahs, Goldfields, and Bullfrogs.

The cautious investing public is apparently absolutely convinced that it is "getting a run for its money" in Nevadas. The San Francisco Stock & Exchange Board, which for upwards of forty years has made the market quotations for all the Comstocks, has heretofore been the scene of most of the trading in Nevada mining stocks, and eastern brokers have been in the habit of telegraphing their orders to San Francisco for execution. The Exchange was burned down on April 18th and the banks discontinued business, making it impossible for the brokers to go on. Notwithstanding the sudden curtailment of these facilities, the transactions on the New York Mining Exchange, the New York "curb," and on the Goldfield, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Stock Exchanges, which have heretofore been in a large sense feeders for the San Francisco Stock Exchange, have reflected no serious declines in any of the stocks, and such insignificant declines as have been made are currently accepted as temporary matters only.

The disaster has, however, brought sharply to the attention of Nevada mining companies the necessity for eastern representation, and several of the leading companies of Bullfrog, Manhattan and Goldfield now announce that they will open up transfer offices in New York, and otherwise extend to eastern brokers in their home city all the facilities that have heretofore been enjoyed practically exclusively by members of the San Francisco Stock & Exchange Board.

Further proof of the strength of the market in Nevada mining shares is found in the fact that when the San Francisco disaster occurred, the banks of all the Nevada mining camps had many thousand dollars on deposit in the San Francisco banks and all of this money has been tied up indefinitely—few of the San Francisco banks having resumed regular business since the calamity. Naturally with so much banking capital tied up in this way, Nevada banks have been compelled to curtail their time loans, amounting to tens of thousands of dollars, and the weaker holders of stocks have in some cases been compelled to throw them on the market. A year or two ago, before Nevada mining stocks were accepted at their true worth by the eastern investing public, this would have caused a panic; now it is different. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are in evidence here on the ground, ready for investment in high class mining securities, and it is an easy matter for the holder of good stocks to receive at least what they are intrinsically worth, however suddenly offered and no matter in what size blocks. Here on the ground investors are in a position to learn by personal examination the exact situation of the various properties, and the outside public is not without means, through trusted agents, to learn the exact conditions.

It is a remarkable fact that, with a very few exceptions, no attempt has been made by promoters of new Bullfrog and Manhattan mining companies to put an inflated valuation on their securities, and the public, in seven cases out of ten, has been able to buy into new properties of merit on a very near to cost basis. The result of this has been that quick profits have been made by investors and speculators, and in most cases it has been possible to obtain a profit on the original investment within a period of a month.

Every company on Bonanza Mountain in Bullfrog has experienced a steady advance in the market value of its shares. Bullfrog Eclipse was put out to the public at 15 cents per share, and is now selling above $1.00. Bullfrog Denver was originally promoted at 25 cents, and is now selling above $1.75. Bullfrog Tramp was sold originally at 40 cents; it is now in demand around $1.20. Bullfrog Bonanza Mountain was put out to the public at 15 cents within the past six weeks, and is already selling at an advance of 100 per cent. A dozen other instances of this kind could be cited in Bullfrog.

In Manhattan the conspicuous recent success in this regard was Jumping Jack, which was put out to the public at 30 cents, and within two days of the close of subscriptions, less than six weeks ago, was selling on the San Francisco Stock & Exchange Board at 40 cents. Manhattan Consolidated, which was earlier put out to the public at 25 cents, has sold as high as $1.90. Manhattan Dexter, which was put out to the public at 25 cents, has sold since at above $1.00.

The L. M. Sullivan Trust Company, in the capacity of Fiscal Agent for mining companies of known merit, has successfully placed, during the past ninety days, 300,000 shares of the treasury stock of the Jumping Jack Manhattan Mining Company at 30 cents, and 300,000 shares of the Stray Dog Manhattan Mining Company at 55 cents. It is now disposing of an allotment of 400,000 treasury shares of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company at 50 cents; also 200,000 shares of Indian Camp Manhattan Mining Company at 30 cents.

Investment in stock of both of these companies is strongly recommended. We believe that Bullfrog Rush Mining Company stock at 50 cents per share, and Indian Camp Manhattan Mining Company stock at 30 cents per share, are two of the best buys of the year. The subscriptions for stock in both of these companies will positively close on June 1st, although it is not expected that the allotments will last that long. All offerings are made subject to prior sale, and those who wish to partake will find it a wise precaution to telegraph the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company, their reservation of shares in either company.

Bullfrog Rush Mining Co.

Our Mr. L. M. Sullivan, together with Mr. John D. Campbell (formerly general manager in Nevada for Chas. M. Schwab and John McKane) and several officers of the Trust Company, visited Bullfrog last week and inspected the Bullfrog Rush property. A full report, dictated by Mr. Sullivan, and containing the result of his observations and inquiries, is embodied in this Market Review, and a careful perusal will convey, not only an idea of the greatness of the Bullfrog Rush property, but will communicate to the thinking investor the real possibilities for tremendous profit that surround an investment in Bullfrog Rush Mining Company shares at the original flotation price of 50 cents.

The company is incorporated with a capital stock of 1,500,000 shares, of the par value of $1.00 each. Of these, 500,000 shares are owned by the treasury. The other million shares are closely held by the capitalists that have contributed to pay for the property, and turn it over to the company free of encumbrances of any kind.

LAKE SUPERIOR COPPER

Conditions Favor Exploitation of New Companies---Showing at Delaware Reported Favorable--Mohawk's No. 1 Shaft Down 1,500 Feet.

Calumet, Mich., May 12.—Conditions are now favorable in the Lake Superior copper district for surface explorations' The winter's snow has disappeared, leaving the ground in good condition, and exploratory operations can be conducted with speed and economy. There are indications that the present season will witness more new work than has been attempted in this region for a number of years. The present price of copper and the underlying strength of the metal market is a strong inducement for the exploitation of new properties. It is singular, however, that the advance in the price of the red metal has not resulted in the flotation of many new companies. In this respect the present era of high priced copper is in marked contrast to that of six or seven years ago. In the greater number of cases the new explorations which are being conducted in the lake field at present are in the hands of private pools or close corporations and the companies which have been active for a number of years.

In Keweenaw county, the Calumet & Hecla Mining company has been actively acquiring mineral lands for the last few years, and it now owns an immense area on the copper bearing range in that section. During the winter, work continued in the shaft sinking on the old Delaware Mine, where the Montreal river lode is being developed. The showing at that point is understood to be quite encouraging, but no visitors are allowed at the shaft, and little reliable information can be obtained regarding the work. The Calumet & Hecla has had four diamond drills in service on the Delaware property, locating the strike of the formation across its lands and ascertaining its dip. The data is necessary if other shafts are planned. It is understood that the Calumet & Hecla has recently closed a deal for the purchase of the Jacobs & Bacon tract of 600 acres, northeast of the Mohawk mine, from the Simpkins estate of Boston, Mass. The developments in the lowest levels of the Mohawk's north shafts are encouraging and indicate that the Kearsarge amygdaloid bed carries good values at depth on the lands it traverses immediately north of that mine.

A tract of 320 acres of land within the limits of the copper bearing range and known as the Copper Harbor property, in Keweenaw county, has been purchased by the Prickett Land company, composed of iron country interests. It is understood that the consideration was $1,500, there being a flaw in the title, and that the lands will be turned over to the Keweenaw Copper company as soon as a perfect title can be given.

No. 1 shaft at the Mohawk mine, in Keweenaw county, is now down to the fourteenth level, or 1,500 feet below the surface. It is bottomed in an excellent grade of rock. The sixth level drift north is in 800 feet, or practically to the Mohawk's northern boundary, and reveals a lode of varying values. The drift northward on the ninth level has progressed 700 feet and is now breasted in good copper values. This drift cut the fissure vein of mohawkite a few days ago that gave rich values near surface. The vein is only one foot wide at this depth and is bare of workable values. At the tenth and eleventh levels north drifting has advanced 600 feet on each and good stoping ground has been penetrated for the greater part of the distances. The twelfth level drift north is in 400 feet and reveals equally as good ground as the tenth and eleventh.

While it is a matter considerably remote and one which will not require action for two or three years at least, the management of the Keweenaw Copper company has already given the problem of providing a suitable location for the stamp mill considerable attention. The company possesses an excellent site at the mouth of the Montreal river, and it is probable that the stamp mill will ultimately be erected at that point. In the mouth of this stream on the south shore of the Keweenaw peninsula and in the headwaters of one branch of the stream in Mosquito lake, the company owns an extremely valuable water power. No definite plans have ever been prepared for the development of this resource and none will be made until the company has demonstrated that its lands contain paying copper values.

Construction work on the new steel shaft and rock house for No. 3 shaft of the Wolverine mine is being pushed rapidly, and the structure should be ready for service within six weeks.

At the Wolverine mine a crosscut is being extended westward from the seventeenth level to tap the west vein, which parallels the main, or Kearsarge amygdaloid bed. This crosscut should tap the west vein in a short time, and further investigation will be conducted in the form of drifts upon the course of the formation. More or less exploratory work has been done on the west vein by the Wolverine, but at no point was there sufficient copper to pay for the work.

MINING IN BLACK HILLS

Homestake's Slime Plant One of Largest in the World ---Spodumene Property at Keystone Leased to Philadelphia Company.

Deadwood, S. D., May 12.—Manager A. H. Olsen of the Homestake South Extension has commenced drifting from the 155-foot level of the shaft. These drifts are run for the main purpose of cutting off the water. A good body of ore was encountered on the 100-foot level, and this will be worked later. The company will soon install Ingersoll air drills and a No. 7 Cameron sinker with a capacity of pumping 100 gallons a minute.

The Homestake company's slime plant, which is being built on McGovern hill in this city, will be one of the largest of the kind in the world.

Ed Christiernsson has just leased his spodumene property at Keystone to a Philadelphia company, which will soon begin operating it. Christiernsson will receive a royalty on all spodumene taken out. For more than a year little has been done in mining this mineral on account of its low price and the high cost of working. Lately, however, the demand for lithia minerals, of which this is one of the best known, has increased and inquiries have been received from various points in this country and also from Germany and England. This spodumene is encountered in the old famous Etta Hill and the mine carries also a large amount of tin and considerable wolfram.

Nahant, S. D., May 12.—Plans are being made by the heirs of the estate of the late ex-Governor Smith of Vermont to operate the Minnesota mine, near this camp. Several years ago this was a very prominent company in the hills and attracted a good deal of attention. The mistake was made of building a mill before the mine had been sufficiently opened up to supply the mill with the necessary amount of ore, and hence it was closed down. Supt. Hibbard has, however, been developing the property through an old tunnel and has opened up some good ore bodies. He is now in 350 feet, and the ore shows values of from $5 to $200. The plan is to sink a shaft and open up the property more thoroughly and then to remodel and open up the mill.

NEVADA SHOWS MORE GOLD

But Business is Checked by the San Francisco Disaster---Financial Operations Halted by Tieup of Capital in the Ruined City.

Goldfield, Nev., May 12.—Business here is still waiting on the reopening of the banks of California and San Francisco and like institutions in this state. While the banks here are in shape to meet every possible demand made upon them, it is realized that the holiday declared by the governors of the contiguous states has been a wise move, if for no other reason than the chance it gives the business men, mining operators and brokers to get their bearings. Every day's delay makes it all the more certain that business, when it is resumed, will start off under more nearly normal conditions.

With almost providential timeliness important strikes are being made in the mines and the deals which have been incubating for weeks are being worked through as though nothing had happened. These things are stimulating confidence to an extent that is sure to prevent anything like a panic and the outlook for the future becomes momentarily more assuring.

During the week two great strikes have been made at the St. Ives property, one on the 150 and the other on the 250-foot level. In addition to the great bodies of fine milling ore exposed rock that will run all the way from $500 to $5,000 a ton is being sacked for shipment. These strikes places the St. Ives in the same class with the Florence, Red Top, Jumbo and others and prove beyond question the merits of a vast territory lying north and east of the Jumbo company's possessions.

Developments just about as sensational are reported from the Mohawk company's ground. On the 100-foot level of the Hayes & Monetti lease on the Mohawk No. 1 claim good values were obtained and the shaft was continued down fifty feet further. Here the ledge has been proved to be thirty feet wide and carries values running all the way from $60 to $600 per ton. The ore is being shipped to the Columbia sampler just as it is broken and a half dozen teams are kept busy hauling.

The Red Top mine is being sampled for the third time. Whether the property will finally change hands and be consolidated with others makes little difference to the camp, as it is a wonderful producer and will continue so to be. The management has recently banked over $13,000, the proceeds of the sale of two cars of ore, and six more carloads are being settled for by Manager C. D. Taylor in Salt Lake. An average of about thirty tons of ore per day is going to market in face of the curtailed force due to the exporting of the mine.

Quite a stir is occasioned by reports from the Klondike district, between here and Tonopah, where several properties are said to be showing up well, the ore running particularly high in silver. The Lone Mountain district is also attracting attention, owing to the fact that its ores carry silver, lead, gold and copper and is of a character to make it an ideal flux for the smelters. Each of these districts is going to be heard from during the year.

John D. Campbell has just returned from Manhattan and reports all five leases on the Stray Dog now in shipping ore. The five sets of leasers working on the Indian Camp property are also sacking shipping.

A 24-horse power gasoline hoist will be installed at the Jumping Jack during the next few days, and the company expects to reach the juncture of the Stray Dog and Dexter veins during the next two weeks.

Snow is now nearly gone from the mountains around the Manhattan camp, and prospecting there and at Round Mountain is being done with greater vigor than ever.

Such a bewildering number of new strikes are being made in the camp's better known properties that to enumerate them would take columns of space. Some of the veins are so large that it is impossible for the great mass of ore to run sensationally high. Within a year the camp will have a tremendous tonnage of milling ore, while the mining of rich streaks will continue to be on the order of the sensational.

Ore shipments over the Tonopah railroad for the last week, as reported by the Western Ore Purchasing company, aggregated 2,883 tons, divided as follows:

From Tonopah—Tonopah county, 1,250

OUTLOOK AT BISBEE IS FINE

Junction Likely to Ship Ore to Smelter Within Short Time—Shaft on Warren Going Down Rapidly and Diamond Drills Working—Shattuck Getting Into Shape.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 12.—The outlook for the Warren mining district is excellent. A large amount of development work is being done by the various companies, and a good deal of new machinery is being installed or is on the road. A scarcity of men is reported by the foremen at the various shafts, and in some the work is handicapped to some extent on account of it. This is caused by a great many miners going to northern camps to escape the summer weather, now coming on, and also by the stringent measures taken by the companies on account of the trouble arising out of the recent, union agitation. Very promising reports come from all the development shafts, several of which will be added to the list of active producers in the next few months. Several new companies have been organized and new properties are being opened.

• • •

Perhaps the greatest amount of improvements are at the Junction. The shaft has the finest hoisting machinery in the territory, and a large steel gallows frame. New cages have been hung, giving more room for hoisting than before. Underground, drifts have been pushed ahead with all possible speed and several ore bodies have been struck. Several new drifts have been started on the 900 and 1,000 levels, those on the 900 showing fine specimens of azurite and malachite. Large bodies of ore have been blocked out and considerable has been taken out on the dump. Less trouble is being had with the water than at any time since the shaft was sunk. There is no increase in the pumping and in fact a decrease can be noticed. This will be greatly augmented when the new pumps are installed in the Denn-Arizona.

It has not been definitely stated when the actual shipment of ore will commence, but it is thought now that it will be begun long before the period originally set for it. Several months ago it was stated on what was considered good authority that no shipments would be made before Sept. 1, but the promptness with which the work of installing the new equipment has been rushed through now makes it certain that not so much time will elapse before shipments, and heavy ones, too, will be going forward from the newest of Bonanza circle producers.

Mining men consider the Junction by far one of the most promising properties in the district, and the next month or two may see some active times about the mouth of its shaft.

The spur road into the mine has been finished for several months, and the work on the ore chutes is now in progress. The ore will be loaded from the gallows frame, and from the number of chutes that are being installed it would indicate that the management expects to handle quite a quantity of it when shipment is actually begun.

It is well known that the Junction has lots of good ore below and the drifts that are being run toward the Denn and in other directions are constantly uncovering the vast quantities.

It is said that the Junction already has sufficient ore blocked out to continue shipment at the rate of about 750 to 1,000 tons a day for a year, and this is not taking into consideration the new development work that is now being pushed.

• • •

The Warren Realty and Development company is pushing work. At the mining prospect back of Bakerville it is working a shift of men deepening the hole, and the two diamond drills are working overtime. It is said that mining equipment has

DEVELOPMENT OF UTAH MINES

Heinze's Engineer Looking Over Promising Mines—Belief That Heinze is Identified With the Guggenheims—The Daly-Judge Nearly Out of Debt.

Salt Lake City, May 12.—The Boston Consolidated company has awarded its contract for the structural steel that will enter into the buildings of the mammoth concentrating plant, to be erected near the new smelter town of Garfield. The order calls for over 33,000 tons of material, and the cost will be approximately $300,000. Delivery is to begin inside of ninety days, and the entire order filled within six months. Eight thousand barrels of cement have been ordered, and its delivery at the mill site has commenced. This will be used in building foundations, retaining walls, etc. A small army of men will be employed at the works before the end of the present month.

Since getting down to work in January the Daly-Judge Mining company of Park City has discharged over one-half of its $200,000 bonded indebtedness, and the next ninety days will see the company entirely out of debt and the accumulation of a surplus commenced. The Daly-Judge was the heaviest shipper from a Park City district last week.

So rapidly is the little Bell Mine opening up that the management has found it necessary to go into the market for a larger compressor plant. When this has been installed, from six to ten machine drills will be kept at work breaking ore for shipment. The mine adjoins the Daly West, at Park City, and the latter company owns a fifth of the stock. The Little Bell is going to be a big dividend payer within the next few months, as tremendous bodies of rich ore have been developed during the last year.

Alfred Frank, chief engineer on the staff of F. A. Heinze, has reached Salt Lake again, and the expectation is that he will now begin looking into various propositions in behalf of Mr. Heinze and those associated with him in the control of the Bingham Consolidated mines and smelters. Notwithstanding the fact that surface appearances are against it, there is a strong suspicion in mining and smelting circles here that Mr. Heinze is in some way identified with the Guggenheims, and that the nature of the relationship will develop before the summer is over. On the other hand, it has been stated that he would at once begin the remodelling of the Bingham smelter, and in the near future provide for the handling of lead-silver as well as gold-copper ores in the works.

The Columbus Consolidated company's management announces that ore is now beginning to make its appearance on the 300-foot level, below the tunnel, in its Alta property. The Columbus is counted upon to become one of the state's best dividend payers during the present year. The properties are splendidly equipped and well handled and ore production will be heavy with the drying up of the canon road.

ALFRED FRANK,
Mining Engineer for F. A. Heinze.

The new compression plant for the Nevada-Utah company's Last Chance mine at Bingham is expected to reach camp during the present week. It should be installed and placed in commission by the 20th of the month, if not sooner, and then a stream of ore will begin to move from that property to the valley smelters, a few miles below camp.

C. L. Dignowity, the engineer who first brought the attention of the East to the possibilities of the Bingham camp, was here last week from New York, on his way to Nevada. Mr. Dignowity is to make a general roundup of several of the big camps in the interests of New York and other Eastern clients, who are largely indebted to the boom regions for some of the big blocks of stock they own. He will first visit properties out of Elko, and then go on to Manhattan, Round Mountain, Tonopah, Goldfield and Bullfrog. He expects to size up conditions in several other camps also before his return to New York. Mr. Dignowity spent the greater portion of last year abroad, and this is his first trip West since landing in New York last October.

THE BUTTE MINING DISTRICT

Production in April Was 30,842,400 Pounds of Copper—High Average Yield Per Ton at North Butte—Output Will be Gradually Increased During Year.

Butte, Mont., May 12.—In April the Butte mining district contributed to the world's copper production 30,842,400 pounds. That amount was taken from 424,800 tons of ore, an average of a little less than 4 per cent copper. The production will be gradually increased during the year, if the demand for copper continues good. The Amalgamated, Butte Coalition and North Butte will especially increase their outputs. The following table shows the average daily tons of ore, average yield per ton, and the total daily yield during April:

Boston & Montana...	3,700	70	259,000
Anaconda	4,000	68	272,000
Butte & Boston.....	650	60	33,000
Washoe	500	63	31,500

That the copper veins of the Butte district are better and wider at depth is evidenced by recent development work done within the last six months. Three days ago the vein of the Original mine, a Clark asset, was cut at a depth of 1,900 feet and found to be not only wider than at any point above, but also of better quality, the ore being very rich in both copper and silver. It is fully twenty feet between walls and is all pay ore—black copper. The shaft on this property is 2,000 feet deep, but the vein has not been cut at the bottom. A crosscut is now heading toward it, and when it is cut the chances are it will be found equally as good as it is on the 1,900 and possibly better. The cutting of this vein on the 1,800 is not a "rich strike;" the cutting of the vein on the 2,000 will not be a "rich strike." At the former depth it was the cutting of the vein from which the company has been extracting ore right along, and when it is cut at the 2,000 it will be the cutting of the same vein 100 feet deeper, and it has been discovered that the ore in it is just as rich, or richer, and that the vein is just as wide, or wider, than it was in any of the other lifts above.

• • •

The mine workings of Butte are apparently not so wet as they were a few years ago, a fact which is demonstrated by the flow handled. At the High Ore the flow is only about 1,000 gallons a minute, but when it is taken into consideration that the seepage from practically all of the hill mines is pumped in the surface through the shaft of this mine, the quantity is not great. All of the water that runs into the Mountain Consolidated, Green Mountain, Wake-Up-Jim, Bell, Diamond, Anaconda, Never Sweat, St. Lawrence, Pennsylvania, Sunnyside and two or three others, including the High Ore itself, flows to the pump of the latter

THE MARQUETTE RANGE

Operations to be Resumed at the Champion---Steel Corporation to Explore in the Swanzy District.

Negaunee, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is the expectation now that operations will be resumed on the Champion mine, western Marquette range, about the first of July. The property has been idle for upwards of two years, or before its purchase by the United States Steel corporation, at which time there were nearly 300,000 tons of ore in stock at the mine. The Champion is one of the biggest and best mines on the range, and it is one of the deepest in the Lake Superior region as well. It produces a very fine ore, bessemer in grade, both the specular and magnetic varieties, but an ore that is very hard and requires crushing. There has been a great overhauling of the old machinery plant and this work continues. For more than a year a force of twenty-five or thirty machinists has been employed steadily in this connection. Every important piece of machinery has either been overhauled or replaced with new and larger equipment; new boilers have been installed and when improvements now in hand are completed considerably more than $100,000 will have been spent in rejuvenating the surface plant. The changes will leave the Champion in excellent condition for large and economical production and further expenditure in this direction will not be necessary for some years to come.

Systematic exploratory operations are to be undertaken in the Swanzy district, south of Negaunee, by the Steel corporation, lands owned in fee by the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad company and located next to the Princeton mine property of the Cleveland Cliffs company being first to receive attention. The Swanzy field has been receiving considerable attention during the past few years, principally by the Cleveland Cliffs company, but the amount of ore found has not been as large as has been currently reported. It has been to find a possible extension of the ore measure that the Cleveland Cliffs people have been directing much attention. The company's Austin mine has shown up a very nice body of hematite that will yield a fair tonogae for several years, but the property does not yet give evidence of being a big mine. The work thus far done has been largely of an exploratory nature. The Steel corporation will thoroughly test the lands included in the vicinity in which it is entering. Some work was done there many years ago, but it was not thorough or systematic. Ore has lately been discovered in Section 24-46-27, about seven miles south of the village of Palmer or about mid-way between the Cascade and Swanzy ranges, so-called. It is a soft hematite, assaying upwards of 55 per cent in metallic iron, but high in phosphorus. According to the prospector, James Coad, of Mountain Iron, Mesaba range, who is interested in the land, the vein is fully 150 feet in width and traverses the tract so close to the surface as to be easily mined by steam shovels. The presence of ore in this vicinity has been known to some mining men for years, but it has been supposed the ore was of too low grade to mine with profit.

The newly installed electric haulage system at the Steel corporation's Blue mine at Negaunee is giving excellent satisfaction. The two motors in commission have no difficulty in keeping the chutes supplied with ore and in promptly getting the cars out to the shaft. The mules, which formerly did this work, are now used for hauling the cars through the crosscuts and in transferring the loads and empties in the side drifts. Besides furnishing power for the operation of the haulage system the newly installed plant of generating machinery furnishes current for about 250 electric lights. More lights will be added underground as occasion demands, the plant being of ample capacity to care for any additional load which may be placed upon it as new workings are opened up.

A depth of about 500 feet has been reached by the diamond drill in commission at the Peck property, formerly the old Hungeford, near Humboldt, western Marquette range. The tract is being explored by Oglebay, Norton & Co., of Cleveland, who hold the property under option. The work now in progress is the first that has been done there for twenty years. The Hungeford was a low grade proposition, but there is a market now for such ore as was mined at that time and the prospect is considered excellent. The Peck is adjoined on the west by the old Humboldt and on the east by the old Washington, properties long abandoned.

THE MENOMINEE RANGE

Good Find of Bessemer Ore at the Millie Property--Busy Scene at the Traders--Hennepin Shaft at the Tobin Closed.

Norway, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A find, which has apparently added materially to the value of the mine, has been made at the Millie property at Iron Mountain, Menominee range. Operations were recently resumed here. A drift was started into the hillside, and in this opening there has been encountered a body of excellent ore, which, although only about 50 per cent in iron is so low in phosphorus as to put it easily within the Bessemer limit. The find was anticipated by Capt. Charles McGregor, the superintendent, and he is inclined to the belief that the deposit will be found of considerable extent. The Millie is operated by the reorganized Dessau company of New York, and was opened in 1881, at that time as the Hewitt. It is very favorably located, although small in extent, comprising a tract between the Walpole end of the Pewabic and the Chapin mine, but has had a somewhat checkered career, and has never been a large producer. Some of the ore shipped from the Millie came from lands of the Chapin. This deposit was small, being located in the foot of the Chapin, and not readily accessible from that mine. The ore was removed by the Millie, which sunk a shaft directly into the deposit, and a royalty on the product was paid the Chapin company.

A busy scene is presented at the workings of the Traders mine of the Antoine Ore company, north of Iron Mountain. This is a big open pit proposition, where mining is carried on only during the season of navigation. The ore is of low grade, but under the system prevailing it is economically produced. Milled to the tram cars from the open pit, the ore passes through crushers after being hoisted into the shafthouse, and is dumped directly into railroad cars. The new crusher, recently installed, is doing excellent work, it and its twin treating nearly 1,800 tons of ore in one day recently. A new hoisting plant, a double-drum machine, with 15 by 20 engines, is now going in. A large changing house, capable of accommodating 200 men, is in course of erection, and with this finished, two large boarding houses will be constructed. There are employed in the pit, mining forces comprising 135 men, which number will be increased as the season advances. In addition, new territory is being stripped under contract. About fifty men are employed here, and it is probable that the work will be continued the greater part of the season. The Traders was formerly operated by the Republic Iron & Steel company, but the work is now in charge of E. W. Hopkins, general superintendent of the Oglebay-Norton company. A half interest in the mine is owned by the Shenango Furnace company, officials of which, including W. P. Snyder, Harvey Brown and W. A. Barrows, recently looked over the property.

The Florence mine of the Florence Iron Company, at Florence, Wis., Menominee range, about mid-way between the Iron Mountain and Crystal Falls districts, is employing 200 men and will increase the force as good miners are secured. Two diamond drills have been at work the past year, one on surface and the other underground, and a third drill will shortly be put in commission at the west end of the property. Notable success has attended this exploratory work to date, a number of new deposits having been showing up, and it is probable that more ore is in sight now than at any time since the property was opened in 1880. Important improvements are in progress at the No. 7 shaft, these in-

LANDS ON THE GOGEBIC

Near Upson to be Tested for Ore--Practically All Operations Suspended in the Baraboo District.

Ironwood, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lands of the Gogebic Iron syndicate in the vicinity of the village of Upson, in the Wisconsin end of the Gogebic range, have been taken over by strong interests represented by J. S. Kennedy, superintendent of the Hennepin-Snider properties, west of Hurley, and will be thoroughly tested for ore. The tracts secured comprise 560 acres, favorably located along the mineral formation, and among other holdings include the old Anna or Ruggles mine location. Ore will be sought at depth. At the Montreal mine, also in the western portion of the range, ground has been broken for a new shaft of large dimensions. The shaft will be steel-lined and will be located in the slate formation, well back of the footwall. It is estimated that fully three years will be required to sink this shaft the 2,000 feet contemplated before putting it into commission.

Fred Bartle, a Marquette range diamond drillman who has returned from the Baraboo district of Wisconsin, reports that practically all operations have been suspended there. During the five years that he had charge of the drill work for the Pittsburg Steel company, the lands controlled by that corporation were given a thorough exploration. The results may be surmised, according to Bartle, when it is stated that not only have all drilling operations ceased, but it is understood that work was recently suspended in the last of the two mines located near Baraboo, a property which had been in continuous operation for more than five years. That the mine should shut down now, when there is such a great demand for all grades of ore, is taken to mean that the property is of little value. Drilling in the district, which a few years ago promised big things for that portion of the Badger state, had to be done to a depth of between 800 and 1,000 feet, through an overburden of very hard rock, to reach the ore measures. The workings of the developed properties were very wet and pumping charges unusually heavy.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Simple, delightful and springlike was the May Assembly ball which was given last evening at the Spalding. This event is always one of the simple parties of the year, the feeling of spring and the passing of Lent being the forces depended upon to make the affair a successful one. The room was simply decorated with graceful clusters of marguerites and the musicians' stand was banked with hydrangias and palms. La Brosse played a delightful dancing program and the evening was greatly enjoyed by the following dancers:

One of the pretty functions of the week was the luncheon given yesterday at 1 o'clock in the parlors of the Pilgrim Congregational church at which the members of the Ladies' union presided. The affair was a Mayflower luncheon and to those who are unfamiliar with the haunts of wild flowers about Duluth the numbers of pretty blossoms which are available at this time came as a surprise. The dining room was delightfully springlike and pretty with the quantities of wild flowers used. Marshmarigolds in quaint baskets of birch bark formed the centerpiece for the tables and the favors at each cover were wee baskets of birch bark containing a bit of moss, a few dainty violets and spring beauties. Presiding at the tables were Mesdames Brewer Mattocks, Charles Alden Smith, W. A. McGonagle, W. G. Hegardt, A. G. Strong, Savage, Oscar Mitchell and Gouchy. After the dainty luncheon Mrs. Mark Baldwin and Mrs. James Walsh sang and Miss Mary Shesgren read.

BUILDING BOOM IN NEW YORK

Fortunes Expended in Skyscrapers, Homes and Apartment Houses.

New York, May 12.—The greatest building boom in the history of the metropolis is now going on. It is estimated that within the next five years $1,200,000,000 will be spent. Of this sum $620,000,000 will go for the construction of buildings in Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and New Jersey.

Millions of people who carry on business in Manhattan are pushing out in every direction in search for suburban homes. In 1905 builders in Brooklyn spent $64,200,000 on new structures. The total in the Bronx was $37,500,000; in Queens, $12,200,000; in the New Jersey suburbs, $10,000,000. These sums represent a total outlay of $124,000,000. For the next five years $700,000,000, or a yearly average of $140,000,000 is estimated.

Against these figures of construction are to be placed the terrible losses—by fire and collapse—that are continually recurring. In 1905 there were 7,757 fires in the Boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Richmond, with a loss of $5,271,995. In addition the loss by fire throughout the whole country was over $150,000,000.

Builders, therefore, are giving particular and unusual attention to the question of reducing these losses. The problem of protecting from fire is not the only one that is receiving attention. The numerous collapses of buildings containing so-called "concrete" which have occurred all over the country during the year, have shown owners that no reliance can be placed upon the way this material is mixed. Floors which were supposed to have set safely suddenly fell to the basement, often carrying workmen with them. What was thought to be concrete was nothing better than a concoction of cinders and mortar. Nothing has been found to be more uncertain than concrete carelessly mixed or laid.

The movement toward safer construction has just found expression in the erection in Chicago of the Underwriters' laboratories. This building was put up for the purpose of conducting experiments to determine the best methods and materials to be employed in preventing fire. Not a stick of wood has been used in its construction. The floors, walls, partitions and stairways are built of hollow tile. Experts consider that the structure is a model upon which plans for the future "unburnable city" will be based.

NOVEL PARADE

At End of Nine-Year Courtship in Pennsylvania.

Chester, Pa., May 11.—Theodore Bell, Jr., a popular member of the Alpha Boat club, was married to Miss Ella Maude Clarke. The wedding was intended to be a very quiet one, and as far as the ceremony was concerned the intention succeeded, but for the afterpart his friends owe him an apology.

The bridegroom was seized, carried from the house and strapped to an elevated seat on a sulky drawn by a lean and sorrowful mule. A procession was formed, headed by a flute and drum band of twenty-five pieces, and over 100 young friends of the happy couple paraded the principal streets in platoons of fifteen abreast.

A transparency attached to the sulky informed the hundreds of spectators who lined the sidewalks that the man had just been married, after a courtship of nine years, while numerous colored lights and red fire illuminated the scene. It was one of the most novel parades seen in this city.

Dramatic Cantata.

Much interest is being shown in the dramatic cantata, "The King's Daughters," to be given at the Lyceum Thursday evening, May 17, in which several of Duluth's prominent singers and readers will take part. Among those in the cast are: Mrs. J. H. Jern, Agnes Mae Johnson, Evelyn Cassmir, Margaret Hunter, Clem Blackwood, Edith Blackwood, Mrs. Pyfer, Ella Tidball, Margaret Stewart, Pauline Krimer, Margaret Tidball, Mae Winness, Mabel Anderson, Millie Older, Alice Tidball, Grace Holden, Grace Wilson, Clara Johnson, Annie Walters, Manola Budd, Grace Hendricks, Louis Dworshak, Charles H. Dorrence, Mr. Nyhre, Frank Swan, Henry Swan, Lawrence Ames, Robert Krimmer, Aubrey Tidball, Mr. Pyfer and Master Harold Anderson.

HILL'S CONNECTION

With Equitable is to be Investigated by New York Bar.

New York, May 12.—The sub-committee of the grievance committee of the New York State Bar association, which was appointed at the request of Former Senator David B. Hill to investigate the relations as counsel to the Equitable Life Assurance society and to report whether his appointment as counsel was in any way improper or unprofessional, and whether the compensation he received from the company was reasonable of excessive, met here yesterday, heard Mr. Hill in his own behalf, took testimony of prominet attorneys as to the standing of Mr. Hill in the legal profession, as to the reasonablenes of his $5,000 a year retainer from the Equitable, and adjourned. Mr. Hill's counsel, Charles A. Collins, submitted the case without argument. Prof. E. W. Huffcut, dean of Cornell university law school and chairman of the sub-committee, then announced that he and his associates would consider the testimony and submit a report to the grievance committee at the earliest possible moment.

BEAUTY! HOW ACQUIRED.

Use of Mme. Ruppert's Face Bleach Assures Perfect Complexion.

It is said that beauty is but skin deep. Nothing is more true. But there can be no real beauty unless the skin is beautiful.

Nothing is easier to be had than a beautiful skin, if the proper remedy is used. Mme. Ruppert's Face Bleach has never failed in the past to naturally beautify the complexion. Its use imparts to the skin a girlish lovelinness. This lovelinness is not artificial, but natural, as the effect of Mme. Ruppert's Face Bleach is to restore the skin to childish freshness and bloom, leaving it wholesome and pure.

It is positively harmless to the most delicate skin, and while using it one may attend to regular household, office or social duties, it being impossible to detect its use, as it does not show after application.

Face Bleach is guaranteed to remove painlessly and harmlessly wrinkles and lines of care, freckles, tan, moth, pimples and blackhends, and in fact any disease or discoloration of the skin.

Call at our toilet goods counter and have its merits further explained.

We also sell Mme. Ruppert's Almond Oil Complexion Soap, an exquisite toilet soap; Mme. Ruppert's Gray Hair Restorative, for restoring gray hair to its natural color; Mme. Ruppert's Depilatory, for removing superfluous hair, and a full line of her toilet requisites.

SAD ABOUT LITTLE MYRTLE

It Tells the Story of Sundry Lonely Graves on the Prairie and What They Concealed--- Poor Papa's Good Graft.

Topeka, Kan., May 12.—The Kansas State Historical society has collected much material about happenings in the early territorial days. A recent addition to the annals of the early boomday settlement of Western Kansas was made a few days ago by Judge Charles Lobdell. It related to an incident which occurred at Fargo Springs twenty years ago.

Fargo Springs was a town in Seward county with some pretensions. That was before the Rock Island built its line through Southwestern Kansas to El Paso. It was a town of 100 people at its zenith, and its streets were all boulevards and avenues.

Judge Lobdell sent to the State Historical society a copy of the Prairie Owl, a newspaper published at Fargo Springs in 1886, in which this item appeared:

"The death of little Myrtle Shoup occurred in her father's schooner near this city last week. The remains were interred in the new cemetery. Financial assistance was given the bereaved parents, etc."

In February of that eventful year on the Kansas plains a typical prairie schooner wended its way down the trail that led from the great plateau to the valley of the Cimarron and drove up Broadway boulevard in Fargo Springs to the government building. Broadway boulevard was not unlike the balance of the long wagon trail except that it was within the limits of a platted townsite, and the government building was a one-story shack used as a postoffice. The townsite company had an abiding faith in the future of Fargo Springs, and it bestowed upon its humblest structures grandiloquent titles.

The arrival of a prairie schooner was not a matter of importance, but the thing that attracted immediate attention to this particular vehicle as it stopped in front of the postoffice was the streamer of crepe that fluttered against the white sides of the canvas cover. It told the spectators as plainly as words could that death had visited the traveling household.

Hardened though these boomers and pioneers were, the sadness of the situation and the manifest grief of the man who stepped from out the wagon appealed strongly to every heart, and before there was an opportunity for the newcomer to ask for assistance, a white-haired man named Jackson stepped forward and in kindly voice expressed the sympathy of the entire town and proffered whatever help was needed.

The traveler explained in broken sentences that his daughter, Myrtle Shoup, had died that morning of membranous croup and that he desired to bury her near some place that had the appearance of permanency so that the grave of his child would not be in an unknown spot. If natural sympathy had not been sufficient to win aid from the inhabitants for the strangers, the compliment paid to the newly established town would have done the work. It was so sincere and genuine that town pride rose at once and a committee was designated to take charge of the ceremony.

The committee soon made the discovery that the town company had overlooked one important feature when it platted the site of Fargo Springs—the establishing of a cemetery. The town company had donated tracts of land for school buildings, churches, universities, public libraries, parks, county and city halls, federal buildings and other public improvements. In the midst of life the town company gave no thought to death, but now that occasion demanded a cemetery it did not hesitate to do its duty, and it promptly offered all the land necessary.

This had hardly been arranged when the broken-hearted stranger again sought the white-hearted Mr. Jackson and explained that a money order he had expected had failed to arrive and that he was greatly embarrassed, as he was absolutely penniless.

In those days on the Kansas frontier when sympathy was genuine, there were no strings on the purses of the pioneers, and it was not long before a fund of $50 had been raised and sent to the anchored schooner, along with a rudely made coffin. This generosity moved the newcomer to tears, and he immediately hunted up Jackson and gave him an order on the postmaster for the delayed money order with which the citizens were to be reimbursed.

Composing himself with an effort, he asked that the committee make preparations for an early interment of the remains, for he explained that this had been unduly delayed, and that although it was hard to leave his little one, he had decided to move on at once after the sad duty was performed.

That night a watch sat around the camp fire by the wagon as a token of respect for the sorrowing parents. Early the next morning the sad rites were held at the new cemetery.

As there was no minister in the town, the venerable Mr. Jackson, with his white hair combed carefully, arrayed himself in an ancient frock coat and walked piously at the head of the procession. In an awkward way the ceremony was begun, when the master of ceremonies, who thought a few words would be appropriate, said:

"The most unfortunate thing a person can do is to die, but if die we must, let it be in Fargo Springs, where we have all the natural advantages of a great city. In ancient times crusaders died in making pilgrimages to the holy city, as this little pilgrim died in coming to Fargo Springs. In the midst of life we are in death, but this is the prettiest cemetery in Southwestern Kansas, therefore, I say, blessed be the name of the Lord, amen."

The sad ceremony was finished in silence, save for the prolonged sobs that came from the two mourners; the little lonely mound was carefully rounded, and the rough-handed workers could not restrain the tears that came to their eyes. A buffalo head was placed over the tomb, on which the poet of the Cimarron valley inscribed these lines:

Here lies little Mary Shoup,
Who had an attack of membranous croup;
She got as near glory as mortal could be—
One mile from beautiful Fargo Springs. See?

The committee helped the grief-stricken parents to their wagons, and wished them happiness on their westward journey.

All was well in Fargo Springs for a week. A feeling of a good deed well done seemed to prevail in all quarters. Homeseekers and prospective investors from the East were escorted to the cemetery and told of the kindly work of the citizens, along with the other good things about the town. But it lasted only a week.

Then the Meade, Hugoton and Arkalon papers, towns in the southern tier of counties, came in and each contained an item like this:

"The death of little Mary Shoup occurred in her father's schooner near this city a few days ago. The remains were interred in the new cemetery. Financial assistance was given the bereaved parents, etc."

A few weeks later, when a prominent citizen died with his boots on, the committee took the empty box out of Myrtle Shoup's grave and extended the size of the grave. But the venerable white-haired Mr. Jackson would not participate in the funeral ceremony until a coroner and twelve men of undoubted veracity had pronounced the corpse genuine and permanent. Then he put on his ancient frock coat and walked at the head of the procession, but at the cemetery he maintained a discreet, profound and almost painful silence.

When the Rock Island railroad built its Southwest line, missing Fargo Springs by several miles, the town collapsed. The old townsite is now a wheatfield, upon which is annually grown an average of twenty-five bushels to the acre.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, mannufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Children Made Ill Going to Theatres and Parties

Some Become Hysterical and Faint From Fright at Strange Noises—Familiar Games Cause Nervousness When Visiting—Epilepsy a Result.

Mothers who permit children to attend theaters indiscriminate the literally inviting illness and nervous disorders for them by undue excitement, according to a prominent nerve specialist. She declares that any unusual form of pleasure that rouses the brain to excessive action is injurious, and if continued is bound to harm the little one physically.

"Any amusement, whether comedy, a circus or even a children's party, that excites the little ones should never be sanctioned by parents desirous of keeping the youngsters in good health," she says. "For by indulging them in these pleasures nervous troubles often involving serious brain complications almost invariably follow. I do not mean, of course, that they are not to romp and play in the sunshine as much as they like, always providing the games do not over-excite them, in which case parents should persuade them to desist and to take up some quieter and milder play. Half of the irritable, excitable natures of children are the results of laxity on the part of mothers and fathers who are either negligent about studying their little ones to know what sports are suitable or do not appreciate that all games have not the same effect on these little people.

Hysteria From Nervousness.

"A nervous child will often become hysterical playing hide-and-seek and scream with fright when suddenly coming upon a comrade in a dark corner, while a phlegmatic one would not even be disturbed by the sport. Then, too, there is always the danger of their being so interested in the games that they tire themselves out without knowing it. This should be carefully guarded against, for it has a bad effect on the nervous organism, that often results in making children irritable, peevish and frequently sleepless. These symptoms are directly due to too large a supply of blood in the brain.

"I have been called in to attend children in hysterics that have been brought on by playing the same games at a party that they were in the habit of doing every day at home. This trouble was caused by the excitement of really being 'out' like the grown-ups.

"Because of the nervous tension they are under when allowed to stay up at night and dine with their elders, and afterward sit with them, I believe that this is an injurious practice, for it not only breaks into their regular habits of sleep and quiet before retiring, but often renders slumber impossible for several hours, during which time they will toss and have cold perspiration all over their bodies. I may put the age limit a bit too high, but I believe that children should not have dinner with the family until they are 14 years old, and not then if they are of extremely nervous temperaments.

Theater Going a Crime.

"As to theater-going, it is almost a crime, for in going to plays there is not only intense excitement, but often fright as well, caused by the unusual lights, surroundings and noises. For instance, imagine the effects of a pistol shot upon an excitable youngster. I remember the case of one little girl who was taken to see a tragedy, and got so excited over the plot and unusualness of it all that when without any warning a pistol shot was heard, she became hysterical and had to be taken home. After hours of vainly trying to get to sleep, she began to scream, and becoming unconscious soon after, talked incessantly of the shooting, and for weeks during a long illness raved in her delirium about the play.

"Think of the suffering of another little girl who became so frightened at a duel scene, believing it was real, that an exaggerated form of nervousness appeared that in the end developed into a seizure of epilepsy.

"The only kind of play, in my opinion, that is not harmful for boys and girls over 14 is one that they can wholly understand and in which there are pretty effects in lights, bright, buoyant music and a clean, moral plot, with no love-making to put undesirable thoughts in their minds. When such stories are staged I think an occasional matinee is a pleasant diversion, and not at all injurious.

Indigestion From Nervousness.

"It is my belief that undue excitement in a mild form predisposes nervous children to indigestion and so by upsetting the stomach causes general disorder of the whole constitution, producing peevishness, irritability, and sometimes congestion of the brain. I have know of cases of brain fever and lesions of the brain cells resulting from continued and excessive nervousness.

"Fainting, too, is frequently a result, and rather a bad one, for the child is likely to drop down at any moment, where assistance is not always at hand. Should a child loose consciousness in this way, it should be placed flat on the floor, or a lounge, its clothing loosened, while the temples, face and wrists are bathed with cold water. When revived a drink of hot milk should be administered as a restorative, for it brings the desired result by taking the excess of blood from the brain.

A Sad Case.

"One of the saddest cases I have ever known of was that of a bright boy of 12 who went to Europe with his father and a party of grown persons and toured in the old world for several months. His grasp of what he saw and heard was quite remarkable and pleased his father tremendously. With no more rest than the others had he travelled hard every day and went to places of amusement with the party at night.

"His health was good until he arrived home, and then with the tension and excitement gone, he complained of being weary and wanted to stay in bed all day. Slowly he became weaker, despite special treatment, went into a semi-coma state and died without ever entirely regaining consciousness. And this was the result of too great a nervous strain on the brain and physical powers of endurance."

Appetizing Ways of Preparing Potatoes for Daily Home Use

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

My Dear Mrs. Telford:—

Will you kindly publish recipes for preparing potatoes, particularly potatoes au gratin, hashed, browned and creamed. Respectfully,

MRS. E. WOOD.

Preparing Potatoes.

Potato Ribbons.

Wash and peel thin half a dozen large potatoes, dropping into cold water as fast as peeled. Now cut into ribbons round and round like an apple, keeping the strips as near one width as possible. Do not try to get them too thin, or they will break in the cooking. Have ready a kettle of boiling fat, lay the spirals in a wire basket and fry until lightly browned. Drain, shaking the basket over the kettle, dust with pepper and salt and serve on a hot dish.

Potato Balls.

You will need a vegetable cutter or scoop for this. It is a half spherical piece of sharp steel, set into the end of a small handle. Having washed and peeled good-sized potatoes, press the cutter into one end, and when it reaches nearly its depth give a circular twist that scoops out the balls. A little practice will enable you to make them perfect and not waste the potato. Drop each one as prepared in cold water and let them stand an hour, then cook gently in boiling salted water, until the point of a sharp knife or small skewer will pierce them easily. Drain off the water, add a tablespoonful of butter, with salt and pepper to season. Put over the fire and when the butter melts, toss gently until all the balls are coated, then sprinkle with fine minced parsley and serve at once, while very hot. The pieces of potato left over after cutting out the balls, can be cooked separately and used for creamed potatoes, mashing or potato salad.

Creamed Potatoes.

Cut cold boiled potatoes into small cubes or thin slices. For a pint of potatoes, make a white sauce, allowing one tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a saltspoonful of pepper, about a cup of milk, and a little chopped parsley. Put the butter in a frying pan, and when melted add the flour, stirring until frothy. Now add the milk a little at a time, stirring until smooth and creamy. Add salt and pepper, then the potato and toss lightly until thoroughly hot. Lastly add the minced parsley and serve in a hot dish.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.

Cut a pint of cold boiled potatoes into dice and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Fry a scant tablespoonful of minced onion in a heaping tablespoonful of butter until a light yellow, then add the potatoes and stir lightly with a fork until they have absorbed all the butter. Do not break them. Add a tablespoonful minced parsley and serve hot.

Hashed Brown Potatoes.

Chop raw potatoes fine, allowing one for each person. Soak in cold water twenty minutes, then drain and dry. Put into a frying pan two tablespoonfuls bacon fat or butter allowed for each pint potatoes. When hot add the potatoes, season with salt and pepper and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Cover, push back on stove and cook until tender. Then draw forward, brown and fold like an omelet.

Potatoes Omelet.

Grate three mealy boiled potatoes. Beat the yokes of three eggs until lemon colored and thick; add half a teaspoonful salt, a little pepper, a tablespoonful minced parsley and three tablespoonfuls milk. Mix well. Add the potatoes and at the last moment the beaten whites of the eggs, mixing all as lightly as possible. Put a tablespoonful of butter in an omelet pan and when hot, turn in the omelet. Let it brown on the bottom, slipping a pancake turner or limber knife under so as to let the uncooked part of the omelet run down. When brown enough put in the oven and cook until a knife blade run in will come out clean. Serve like a plain omelet.

Potatoes au Gratin.

Wash, put in a saucepan with the skins on and boil. Peel and mash, seasoning with salt and pepper and butter. Spread a layer of the potato in the buttered pudding dish, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, then another layer of potato and more cheese and butter at the top. Brown and serve very hot.

Potato Croquettes.

Add to each cupful of well seasoned mashed potatoes the yolk of one egg, two teaspoonfuls minced parsley, a tablespoonful butter and a grating of nutmeg. Stir this over the fire and when hot spread on a platter; when cold divide into as many portions as there are persons to serve; roll in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs and fry in smoking hot fat.

Dog Collars Replace Festoon Necklaces Now

Dog collars are to replace the festoon necklaces for wear with lingerie waists and the chic lace and embroidery boleros which are to be one of the distinct features of white gowns this summer. Made up for the most part in rose gold, whose rich yellow color contrasts picturesquely with the gowns, and is generally becoming to both blonde and brunette, they are set with a variety of semi-precious and imitation stones.

Following out the craze for Alice blue, which came into popularity more than a twelvemonth ago when the president's daughter first affected the shade, stones of Alice blue encrust many of the new dog collars. Amethysts are largely used, for the color being so refined they lend an appearance of greater value to the necklace. Aquamarines have once more come into favor as settings for the new neck decorations, and are much preferred to rhinestones.

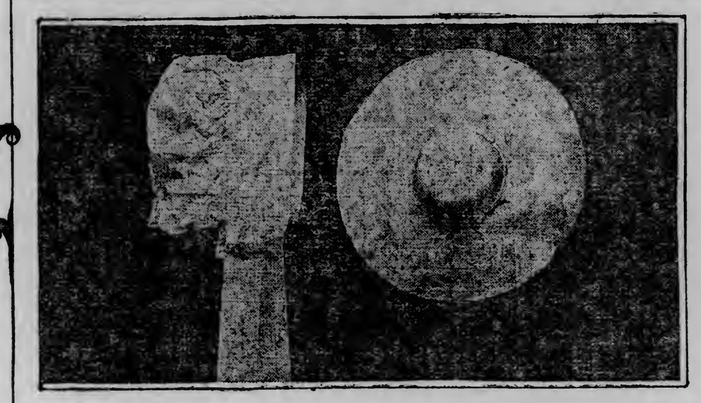
Some of the dog collars are composed of rose gold medallions, with no jewels at all, the parts strung together with fancy links, or perhaps a horizontal bar of chased or filagree gold. The green gold is liked by many, generally for the same reason of its harmonizing with some particular costume that the wearer likes rather than by reason of its becomingness.

France is the home of most of the best metal workers, and French gilt is the composition or plating of the collars themselves, though Turkey has sent over some rare Eastern designs, which are exquisitely beautiful, showing delicate traceries of a contrasting gold or a design enamelled over its surface.

Pretty Paper Gifts for Fancy Garden Parties

Sunshades are picturesque favors

Rakes and garden implements popular.



Sun bonnets and corn planter hats in demand.

Fish-pole for feminine angler

Quaint favors distinctive of spring are being used for smart cotillons and at fancy dress garden balls this season. Flowers in all of the natural shades and shapes, on long stems or made into whistles, are worn in profusion, and fishing poles and baskets for bait prettily decorated are among the favorites, but oddest of all are the garden implements. Little rakes, hoes, spades, such as children would need for working in the soil, are ornamented with paper and made decidedly attractive with the addition of gilt.

The advantage of having paper favors for a club dance or a cotillon is that they can be made at home for absolutely nothing, and if several girls worked on them they would make their dance most effective with little outlay for ornamental trifles that are the principal part of such affairs.

These garden tools, for instance, are very simply decorated. The metal portions are gilded and the handles are wrapped with green or any shade crepe paper desired and tied with pretty bowknots or finished with an occasional band of gilt.

With the flower whistles that always please the dancers, a tiny tin one is embedded in a full blown red rose, a bright yellow and white pond lily, in the heart of a brilliant poppy, or even in a sunflower. The whistles are blown from the back, where they are bound to the flower with narrow baby ribbon of a shade to match either the bloom or the foliage.

Amazon like poppies, roses, lilies, sunflowers, eight or ten inches in diameter, made on the end of a three foot wand wrapped with green crepe paper are effective carried through the intricate figures of a movement.

A line of prettily gowned young women would look most effective if they carried alternately bright red roses and gorgeous sunflowers.

Butterflies make beautiful favors with their wings wide spread and sprinkled with gilt so that they glitter in the light, done in red, white or even black crepe paper and placed on the ends of wands finished in material to match.

Attractive fishing poles can be made from light weight white wood and gilded carefully, then decorated with a line of apple or cherry blossoms. Baskets that weigh little, or they would be too heavy to carry when dancing, should be gilded and filled with green crepe paper and pond lilies, or if both were to be used in the same figure, one by the men and the other by the girls, the blooms should be of the same kind, as those used on the poles.

Old-fashioned sunbonnets of pink and white, or blue and white checked paper, made like the old style ones worn fifty years ago, with string to be tied under the chin, are effective for a galloping movement, and to correspond the men should wear yellow and black crepe paper jockey hats. In another racing figure the long lash whip carefully made with paper to look like leather, could be used by the men white, blue or pink fastened to the end, and bright, pretty colored ribbons would be appropriate for the women.

An attractive movement like a butterfly chase would be decidedly effective if the men had nets of moline or mosquito bar in white, blue, pink, fastened to the end of a bright paper covered wand, and should pursue the gilded paper butterflies carried on the ends of dainty sticks by the young women.

Shirt Waist Gowns of Checked Silks are Smart

By A. T. ASHMORE.

The shirtwaist gown, like the shirtwaist, has attained such a firm hold on the affections of the feminine population that no matter what attacks are made upon it it is in fashion season after season. The summer climate of New York and the places near at hand demand just such a style of gown for the woman who stays in town all summer or for the one who comes in from some nearby suburb for a day's shopping. There are many grades in the shirtwaist gown, grades of fashion as well as expense and fabric. The foulard, taffeta and veiling have hitherto been considered smarter because a trifle more expensive, but this summer the craze for wash materials has wrought a decided revolution, and the colored and embroidered linens and batistes are rather in the lead.

No woman who has tested the good qualities of the soft silks for such a gown can, however, be swerved from her fondness for just that fabric. It is so delightfully cool and light, wears well and can be either plain or elaborate in design. Made up in coat and skirt style the smart, fanciful bolero or Eton jacket so extraordinarily popular at the present moment: the linens, veilings and taffetas may be the more satisfactory as foulard or India silk would be of course impracticable, but while the coat and skirt pattern is undoubtedly more charming there must needs be a lingerie or India silk waist to make the gown complete, and if the weather be very warm then the coat is slipped off and straightaway the charm or style of the costume is lost and we are back again to the not always becoming skirt with separate waist effect.

Extremely simple, but excessively smart, are the black and white checked silks and ginghams or voiles, made with Irish lace yoke and cuffs. A ribbon lacing finished with a soft bow is the only noticeable trimming for the model that already has been widely copied. Silk braid and mohair braid are used for more elaborate effects but the most popular styles have no trimming on the skirts, or rather only trimming of the same material in folds or blind tucks. When figured, check or striped silk or mohair is chosen, and this year the figured mohairs are most effective, there are bands or pleatings of plain taffeta or moire used for trimming. Always there is the unlined yoke and collar or chemisette. The sleeves are just long enough to cover the elbow and can be worn with cuffs of lace or lingerie if the elbow length is not becoming, and the turned cuffs or a band of narrow lace ruching give a touch of contrast that is effective.

Dogs Checked in Stores While Mistresses Shop

Canine Playgrounds Where Pets May be Entertained and Amused.

Pet dogs can now be checked in the stores while their mistresses shop, says a New York letter. This plan has been recently inaugurated in some of the large stores, and is conducted along the same lines as the nurseries for the amusement of children so that the mothers will not be inconvenienced when buying.

Women with dogs as escorts are met at the doors of one of the stores by boys in livery who volunteer to take charge of the "pet" and to see that it is properly cared for and amused while the owners are matching silks, trying on new hats, etc. Unless the animals brought into the stores are exceedingly small and can be readily carried in the arms, few persons refuse to avail themselves of the checks.

A brass tag bearing a number is then attached to the dog's collar or harness and a duplicate check given to the possessor. It is not unusual for the attendant to say:—"Madam, if you can tell me about what time you will be ready to leave I will know just how long to keep your pet on the playgrounds."

Occasionally there is a wailing yelp when the little animal sees its mistress disappearing without it, but as a rule they go very peacefully, for the management has selected men for this work who are particularly successful in keeping dogs quiet and making them feel at home and happy.

A Canine Playground.

If the mistresses are to be gone but five or ten minutes, there is little to be done except to walk the animals up and down in the sunshine outside of the store, but should the shopping tour extend over several hours the dogs are amused in royal fashion in a large playground set aside for them on the roof. There they can run and play without leash for rubber balls, dolls of the same material, round hard wood pieces for them to retrieve with, are furnished for their amusement. Or if the dogs seem tired then there are soft cushions covered with pretty colored denims on which they can rest and sleep in comfort.

Even refreshments have been provided for those whose mistresses want to buy them, and dog biscuits, or especially prepared hot dishes of meat, rice and vegetables are served in dainty plates, that would tempt even the most jaded appetite of a toy spaniel, or in large, generous portions in a porcelain bowl for a St. Bernard or a huge mastiff. There are of course plenty of places on the grounds the dogs can drink from porcelain dishes in which fresh water is constantly running. And if they don't care for it, they are given milk, or perhaps cold tea or coffee, for a few cents extra. The pampered pet is provided for just as fully as the dog of normal habits.

Dog Rules in Shops.

In some of the shops there are very stringent rules about dogs. One will not allow an animal in an elevator, unless the owner and the dog are the only passengers, while in another, a special permit must be secured from the head of the firm before these adorable pets are permitted to enter the elevators. So in these places, if the mistresses insist upon having their dogs with them when shopping and want to go to the top floors during the rush hours, there is nothing for them to do but walk. Exactly opposite to this system is the rule in other stores. For in some of them it is not even necessary to attach a leader to the animals, and they are permitted to roam at will through the aisles, and can ride in the elevators just the same as the "humans."

In one place where there is really no ruling about the presence of pet dogs, they are allowed privileges, except one, that of going into the department where groceries are sold, and the management has decided to exclude them from that section because the edibles exposed so openly might be too strong a temptation for the canines to resist, and there would be complications, with the animals helping themselves to a box of crackers, portions of which patrons wanted to buy for their tables.

They are allowed in the restaurants of but few of the stores, and then only on the condition that they be tied fast to the leg of the table at which the owner is eating. Nothing is served to them specially, but if the mistress wants to feed her pet from her own plate, she is privileged to do so.

Model for a Dainty Matinee Designed by Paris Modiste

A dainty matinee fashioned in Paris is built on the simple lines of the illustration, and is composed of allover Valenciennes lace made up over pink radium silk. There is a shallow yoke upon which the material is fulled slightly, hanging just to the waist line. The former is concealed by a band made of shirred silk ribbon edged either side by Valenciennes lace in a pattern to match the material of the matinee. Similar trimming finishes the short elbow sleeve. This garment has the advantage of being both dressy and so simple in construction that it can be made in an evening at home.

AMERICANIZING THE AMERICAN ORCHESTRA

What's Doing to Prepare Young Americans for Orchestral Positions---One Moral of the Deficits With Which Most Musical Organizations End the Season.

Boston, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—American orchestras in various cities are at this season of the year winding up their affairs. Their supporters with grim resignation are making up the customary deficits and the newspaper music writers are discussing the perennial question "What's the matter with the American people? Is it something wrong with us or with the distinguished musicians, mostly Europeans, who constitute both the leadership and the rank and file of the permanent orchestras in our larger cities?"

It's been for the most part a long series of financial tragedies ever since the first little traveling orchestra from overseas struck Philadelphia on January 1, 1819, sold tickets to the value of $9.50 and had to leave the performance half finished because the proprietor of the hall appeared and announced that the $10 due him for rent must be paid or the lights would go out. Nobody in the audience cared enough for music to plank down that extra 50 cents, so the lights did go out.

The day of those small beginnings and small deficits has passed. A full sized orchestra now falls behind anywhere from $1,000 to $100,000 a year, and great souled business men have to go into their pockets for the deficiency. The big Chicago musical organization usually ends up with a deficit which is met by a group of citizens. Philadelphia is not more successful. New York, thanks to the subscriptions of wealthy men, enjoys excellent musical concerts at small prices, but the day of a self-supporting orchestral organization in the metropolis has not come. Even such an orchestra as the Boston Symphony, which has become generally regarded as the first of its kind not only in America but in the world and which has not only enthusiastic local support but is received with enthusiasm in all the principal cities of the continent, is by no means certain of ending the season with the balance on the right side of the ledger. Only the support given it year after year by the Boston banker, Maj. Henry L. Higginson, has enabled it to go on improving year by year.

This is of course the seamy side of the musical situation in America. It isn't on a paying basis yet. The very people in the average American city who complain because "there are so few good concerts" often won't spend a dollar when something really fine is presented. Yet there are those who believe that the American public may yet be educated up to such enthusiastic support of their own musical organizations as is given to the big orchestras and other associations of Germany. A New York millionaire, intensely interested in music, gave recently, while looking over the musical field of Boston, an interesting view of what he regards as the promise of the future.

"What I believe is going to happen," he said, "is that all our orchestras become somewhat more Americanized both through paying more attention to American compositions and through having more American players in their ranks, popular appreciation will increase to such an extent that a really strong organization will rarely end up with an annual deficit. At the outset these musical associations have had to perform mainly great musical classics of Europe, and for their players they have had to look to the graduates of the European musical schools. Nothing else was possible in the circumstances. It was German, French or Italian music or nothing at all.

"But we are really an exceedingly patriotic people. We don't like things simply because they are American, but if they are American and are good we like them very much. We already have American composers who are doing work that compares favorably with that done anywhere. We have Chadwick, McDowell, Paine, Foote, Concerse and the rest. It won't be long, either, before we shall have an available supply of American-trained orchestra players. The day may not be so far off when, in the case such a vacancy arises as now exists in the directorship of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at least one or two native Americans will be considered as candidates as well as eminent Germans and Frenchmen for the position. Such men would, of course, have to come up from the ranks. They must have got their practical knowledge of the details of instrumentation in the orchestra. Ability to direct can come only after experience in playing."

The New Yorker went on to say one of the most hopeful signs is the attention that is given to the work of the orchestra in such schools as the New England Conservatory of Music, which is proud of being the only music school in the country having a complete orchestral equipment maintained under the normal conditions of a full orchestra, with the entire assortment of first violins, second violins, violas, violoncellos, oboes, bassoons, trombones, trumpets, harps and all the rest. The effect of the training that young men and women are getting in such an orchestra, taught largely by members of the Boston Symphony and directed by a composer of international reputation, is that there is now in process of creation what has never existed before, a body of native American virtuosos who are capable of co-operating with one another as practical orchestra players must. These American-trained performers are already beginning to secure positions with the big orchestras, the directors of which do not care whether a man's name is Johnson, Higgins or Thompson, rather than Swartzschild, Levinsky or Le Boufflier, so long as he has a thorough understanding of music and can deliver the musical goods by means of the instrument which he has mastered. Even for women, orchestral opportunities are being created. Thus the leading American vaudeville impressario maintains a women's orchestra recruited in part from the graduates of the Conservatory in Boston.

The great point is that most young Americans who want to play an instrument in an important orchestra lack the proficiency of their European competitors. Young Germans especially have a certain incentive which is not felt here. Every boy in the fatherland knows that his turn for serving in the army will come, and that it will be much more delightful for him to play in one of the regimental bands than to shoulder a rifle, and submit to the severest kind of discipline. For that cause alone thousands of youthful Germans become expert musicians.

Given equally good grounding, however, in the elements of the profession, the advantages will all be on the side of the American in trained performers, so the New York man of affairs contended. Personal considerations necessarily count in this country everywhere. The musician who has grown up in an American community will have instinctively a better knowledge than anyone else can have of what average Americans will stand for, and without departing from musical ideals, will adapt himself better to the capabilities of his audiences. "Some day," said the New Yorker, "when the leadership of one of our big musical organizations falls into the hands of a native American whose abilities are such as to command the respect of the world, and whose understanding of our national conditions is keen and sympathetic, then we shall have musical performers that will rank in importance with grand opera or the horse show, and the deficits will have ceased to bother.

"We have already advanced a long way. It wasn't so many years ago that a German composer wrote about us: 'How much soever the American as a business man perhaps surpasses most European nations, just so much perhaps in all departments of the fine arts—but especially in music—is he behind all and is therefore not capable of enjoying instrumental music. It is a matter of course that only the so-called anti-classical music can in any degree suit the taste of an American public; such as waltzes, galops, quadrilles, above all, polkas. That there are exceptions I cannot deny, but only a few—a very few.' With orchesthas maintained by the munificence of business men in a score of American cities and giving performances of the highest grade, such a charge is already far from being true."

INDIAN LOVES LITTLE JOKE

Experience Proves Him Not to be the Solemn Being of Cooper's Famous Novels---He Appreciates Humor.

New York, May 12.—Said a woman from the land of sage brush and buttes the other day:

"People make a great mistake if they believe the Indian to be a sullen and unhumorous sort of individual, who sits for hours without moving a muscle and who never, never laughs.

"Rubbish! And like so much of the rubbish that is current about the Indian, Fenimore Cooper is responsible for it all.

"Whether the noble red man has changed in temperament during the last fifty or sixty years I do not pretend to know, but the fact remains that the present day Indian in Montana is a good deal of a wag, loving to josh and cracking his little jokes with an enjoyment that leaves no doubt of his sense of humor.

"A few years ago I was engaged to teach school in a tiny village in Southern Montana. The schoolhouse, a little one-storied log shack with a mud roof out of which grew weeds and grass, stood on the edge of the prairie, about half a mile from what we called the town and something less than five miles from a large Indian reservation.

"It was lonely at best, even when the children—I had only twenty in the winter—were playing in the schoolyard. One day what was my surprise to see a young Indian, clad in a bright red blanket, with eagle feathers on his head and a string of buffalo teeth around his neck, standing outside one of the little square windows, staring in at me with a full set of eyes.

"He could not have been over 13. I was old enough to be his mother.

"I was sharpening lead pencils at the moment. After he had watched me for a couple of minutes, an amused expression on his bronzed face, he turned to a youngster who was playing near.

"'How many pony?' he asked, with a grin, motioning toward me.

"The lad doubled up with mirth at the idea of selling teacher for an Indian squaw, but managed to straighten out his face long enough to reply:

"'Seven.'

"'All right,' responded the Indian, winking, 'I go fetch 'em.'

"And he jumped on his pony and cantered off apparently posthaste for the seven ponies.

"Of course, he never came back. Teacher remained an unclaimed bargain on the hands of her pupils till a call came to go to North Yakima reservation. But the Indian had his little joke all the same.

"At that time the North Yakima reservation was policed by Indians. One day a couple of Indian policemen arrested two Irish tramps, it being a criminal offense in those days for an outsider to enter the reservation except on business.

"The Irishmen were terribly scared. Visions of scalpings and slow roastings over beds of redhot coals jostled one another in their horrified brains, and their trepidation increased when they were brought by their captors into the presence of a cruel-looking old chief, who sat rigged out in all his bravery, before a blazing fire in his tepee.

"They expected nothing less than to be scalped and eaten then and there, when the old Indian, fixing them with his glittering eyes, grunted out:

"'Huh! Make good Irish stew!'

"And that was the worst punishment that befell the guilty pair.

"A year or two ago I happened to be at Knowlton, Mont., on my way to Ekalaka, about 600 miles to the south, when I learned that there was a pilgrim, as they call all strangers from the East, who wanted to go to Ekalaka too. That was before the stage line was started.

"He was afoot, and having trudged all the way from Miles City, a distance of thirty or forty miles, was weary and lame. But the poor fellow did not know the way to Ekalaka, and I did; so, after the friendly Western fashion, which will not leave a white man in distress, I told him we would go along together.

"I knew the ranches all along the way, and I planned to stay the first night with some friends who lived about twenty-two miles out of Knowlton. My companion, who said his name was Rafferty, could find accommodations in their bunkhouse, I was sure.

"Well, three hours out of Knowlton it came on a pelting rain. Going at a foot pace as we were, Mr. Rafferty riding my bronco sometimes while I walked, and I riding sometimes while he walked, we were soon drenched to the skin. The gumbo, too, was beginning to make traveling a very sticky and slippery business, when, unexpectedly, we came upon an Indian tepee, with a buck, a squaw and three or four children, crouched over a handful of smoking embers inside.

"I told my companion I was going to remain there for the night. He objected strenuously. I think he was afraid for his scalp, but I told him I should not stir another step and at last with an ill grace he entered the tepee.

"The buck eyed us gravely as I explained in Indian how we had been caught in the deluge. Then Rafferty plucking up his courage, remarked to the Indian with an affectation of careless ease:

"'Very wet, John.'

"'Very wet, John,' returned the Indian, without stirring an eyelash.

"Early the next morning, having slept soundly all night wrapped up in a blanket in the Indian's little smoky tepee in company with my host and hostess, their four children and two dogs and my pilgrim, I was standing beside my broncho refolding my saddle blanket when up comes Mr. Indian.

"Motioning with his thumb over his shoulder toward Rafferty, who was scraping the gumbo off his cowhides, he asked in a stage whisper, winking with a delightfully funny air:

"'Where you pick up that 'Very-Wet-John?'

"I have found the Indian sociable when in congenial company and quick not only to catch the point in others' jokes, but to make jokes himself. If he seems slow and stupid, it is the white man's fault."

Little Folks' Summer Gowns are Practical

China Silk is serviceable for Party Gown. ~ Girls' Dainty Dressing Sacque. ~ Embroidery Flouncing is used for Girls' Dresses.

Some frocks for little girls are of the airiest and daintiest of materials, yet withal they are built on practical lines, so that for even their afternoon gowns the styles are simple, and the little dresses themselves are not too fussy for comfort.

Guimpe dresses are far and away the most popular, for they have the advantage of being worn without the guimpe on hot days. Some gowns are made high necked and others in Dutch necks, which is always a pretty style for the little ones.

Long waists are still worn, but not the exaggerated styles in vogue a few seasons ago. Skirts are short, reaching just to the knees, and sleeves are abbreviated, reaching occasionally to the elbow but generally being nothing more than small puffs.

The one-piece frock, those in which the body and skirt are cut in one, are the most popular this season. Such gowns are not only easy to launder, but easy to make, which is always a consideration when children's gowns are made at home, as many of them are.

One simple and attractive dress is made up from China silk. It is a one-piece frock and the waist is made with a guimpe, low necked, a bertha falling away from the neck front and back. The material is shirred at the waist line and the skirt finished simply with a deep hem.

Embroidery flouncing makes most dainty and effective gowns and they are much simpler to make than when hems have to be run. Both shirt and waist are made up of the flouncing and the short, flaring sleeves are cut from the embroidery part, leaving the scalloped edge as a finish.

For more general wear there are innumerable pretty lawns, blue and white, pink and white or those with a tiny red figure which, made up with Valenciennes insertion or lace of a simple Cluny pattern, make pretty little frocks for the children. For morning wear there are the plaid ginghams, chambrays, linens or piques which are most desirable. Lawn or allover embroidery is used for the guimpes.

A dainty dressing sacque, suitable for a young girl, is constructed of accordion pleated China or radium silk, trimmed with Cluny lace insertion and edging. Made of a shallow yoke, the accordion pleating is attached to it, falling to just below the waist line. Two rows of insertion and an edging finish the garment at the bottom. A deep sailor collar, pointed in front and back, is also trimmed with the insertion and edging, while the sleeves are double ruffles, similarly decorated.

These garments are in great demand both among old and young just now, and are a positive necessity in any woman's wardrobe for wear about the house or in one's room during the hot summer weather. There is an almost unlimited selection of materials for their construction, among the latter being lawn, both plain and figured; crepe, both cotton and silk; China silk or some of the pretty new materials of gossamer texture which are to be found on the store counters. If bought in the shops these garments are most expensive, but made at home they can be gotten up for a very little, the expense being entirely a matter of taste, depending upon the material and trimming used.

MINIMIZING ANNOYANCES

System That Eliminates Loud Shouting of Cabbies---Mechanical Spy to Keep Tabs on Whereabouts of the Hotel Watchman.

New York, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A simple innovation designed to do away with the carriage nuisance at large gatherings in the evening illustrates the present day tendency to reduce to a minimum possible annoyances from human fallibility by supplementing the work of man as far as possible with machinery. The shouting of carriage and cab drivers after theater and at other times long ago became in all our leading cities a nuisance against which theatrical managers, police commissioners and private citizens have fought for years with such indifferent success that the tiresome, temper-destroying process of extracting one's own carriage from the crowd of waiting vehicles has come to be accepted by the average citizen with resignation as an inevitable accompaniment of every social function. As for the denizens of the neighborhood, they have generally learned to accustom themselves to an extent to sleep amid all the racket of whistling and bawling of numbers.

Very lately, however, many places of amusement in New York have adopted an electric screen close by the exit, upon which appears the number of the carriage that is wanted. Even this invention has not altogether sufficed, the noise oftentimes appearing to be quite as bad as ever, since the drivers are found "asleep at the switch," and somebody has to awaken them in order that they make take notice of the sign. But even this weakness of human nature is likely henceforth to be overcome, for still another device, which may come into general use, has recently been adopted by the management of the Hotel Astor in the center of New York's new theatrical district. To the screen there has been added a search light, so that when the blinding glare is suddenly thrown along the lines of waiting vehicles the drivers are promptly awakened, and without noise and confusion the right carriages start for the door at the right moment.

That so practical a device for keeping a class of employes alert to their task should have been put into operation by a hotel man is characteristic. Probably nobody in modern industry is more accustomed to deal with the problem of making the fallible human part of a system work as if infallible than mine host of these latter days. Nowhere else are people more insistent upon absolute promptness and accuracy than when paying good money for hotel service and nowhere are their desires more carefully attended to.

In the big $7,000,000 structure in Long Acre square is a characteristic device which the employment of a great army of persons has made absolutely necessary. This is the night watchman's electric clock, which serves to keep tabs on the whereabouts of many of the employes of the hotel. It is in effect a sleepless, mechanical spy, keeping a disinterested eye throughout the night upon such functionaries as the watchman, as he patrols the building from cellar to roof, and preventing his occupation becoming the "gentleman's job" that it might conceivably degenerate into if the individual's actions were governed solely by his conscience. At various points upon each floor are small contrivances, not unlike miniature fire alarm boxes, into each of which, as he comes to them on his rounds, the watchman inserts a turn of a special kind of key.

This key-turning writes for the benefit of the manager upon a large clock-like mechanism in the main office the complete, exact story of the watchman's movements, from the time he went on duty in the evening until the moment he leaves in the morning. The book in which this history is revealed is a circular card, marked off both by lines drawn at regular intervals from edge to center, and by concentric rings equidistant from one another like those on a bull's eye target. Each radius represents an hour and its fractions. Each ring stands for a floor of the building. In the morning the card is found to be covered with little lumps like the head of a pin, corresponding to the different times and places at which the watchman has turned his key. In order to get all these little lumps distributed in their proper places the watchman must keep moving through the silence of the night, and no number of excuses or explanations can gainsay the truthful story of the inanimate mechanism.

Again, all the employes of the hotel are subjected to regular fire drills, and know exactly what to do if an emergency arises. The protection of thousands of guests from this danger, which was so real in the rattle-trap houses of half a century ago, and which has now been virtually eliminated, is not left in any way to be dependent upon human readiness and energy. Automatic contrivances exist which cannot possibly get rattled, as even the best trained hotel help might. In every room of the Astor is a device which automatically sends in an alarm of fire whenever the temperature of the air passes a certain point. Just as soon as this machine goes into action the button of the two fire registers, indicating the number of the room is illuminated and an alarm is sounded at both registers, one at the office desk and one in the basement, where the fire brigade is in constant readiness. Besides these automatic detectives there are scattered in convenient locations the usual alarm boxes which require human intervention.

Even in so apparently slight a matter as guarding the key of the patron's room the possibility of loss through human neglect or forgetfulness has as far as possible been removed in the twentieth century hotel. Most people do not like to drag a heavy key with them about the city, and the hotel manager, mindful of the possibility that the key may be lost, does not encourage them to do so. As there is no assurance that the ordinary guest will go out of his way to walk to the hotel and deliver his key, he was formally asked to hand it over to the maid on his floor. She would in turn send it by a boy to the office. In this transfer there was, of course, usually a delay, and there was always a chance that somewhere in changing hands the key would be lost. In the newest type of hotel, the maid simply places the key in a pneumatic tube, through which it reaches the office desk almost before the outward guest has reached the descending elevator.

Various employes of the hotel are under orders to report if the temperature of any portion of the great structure is discovered to be uncomfortably cold or uncomfortably warm, and ordinarily, so well are they trained, they can be relied upon to do so. Receiving such a report the office would, of course, immediately find out from the head engineer what the trouble was and have it remedied. But this is an imaginary instance, for there is very little likelihood that the temperature will go to any extreme since there are air compressors operating machinery which regulates automatically the temperature of various parts of the building. Devices are attached to the thermometers which increase or decrease the amount of heat coming from the boilers, and these not only secure an equable temperature, but do away with a vast deal of scurrying about on the part of the bell boys and of growling and indignation on the part of the guests. The chance of over heating or under heating has thus been reduced to a minimum.

Everybody in the old-fashioned hotel has at some time felt annoyance when a bell boy did not promptly bring the desired pitcher of ice water. Generally, as a matter of fact, the youthful employe is in no way at fault, for on a warm evening it often happens that a number of guests feel a thirst simultaneously and the whole available desk force kept busy. At the same time in the newest kind of a hotel the contingency of everybody being so preoccupied that a guest or guests will have to wait, has been anticipated. The bell boys no longer rush about the halls with pitchers of ice water for ladies in the evening, and on the morning after for the men, so that one of the favorite subjects for British jests on American manners is likely to pass into ancient history. The ice pitchers have given away to a refrigerating tank, where the water is reduced to a temperature of 36 degs. and from which, after it has been duly filtered, it is pumped into every faucet of the hotel.

In these and almost countless other respects the modern metropolitan hotel without reducing its employes to the level of unthinking machinery, has eliminated the likelihood that the public will suffer from personal inefficiency or negligence.

THE MAKING OF BOOKS

The Route That All "Best Sellers" Go---Interesting Journey That is Taken by the Manuscript.

New York, May 5.—A long interval elapses between the moment when the aspiring author places the stamps on the corner of the package of manuscript, with the address of the publisher written plainly thereon, and the time when the same manuscript appears in a bright summer gown on the counters of the bookseller's shop. Rumor has it that there never was a summer when so many new book gowns were displayed as will be displayed during the coming season, for every year the demand for fiction grows and grows and grows.

It is an interesting journey that is taken by the manuscript. A reporter went over the route last week. The first stage took her into the office of the publisher and the publisher gave her some preliminary information.

It is learned that 23,000 manuscripts are received here every year, this including those intended for the magazine, periodical and book departments. All these manuscripts are carefully examined and not dismissed with a hasty glance here and there, as is suspected by the disappointed ones who received their printed slips with "Returned with thanks" and "Rejected implies no lack of merit." There is a good, honest seeking for the pearl which may be hidden in the mass.

Would-be authors often ask which reader in the corps provided by the publishing house is the most important, the first or the last. The question may be answered thus:

Should a manuscript fail to arrest the attention of the first examiner, a Kipling may be lost to his contemporaries, to say nothing of his being discovered by a rival house, which is a worse calamity, for trade in talent is brisk, and once secured, the author belongs by the unwritten law of professional courtesy to his discoverer. The trained expertness of the final reader is the last court of appeal. The manuscript having been passed by six, seven or eight readers, it remains for the decisive word to be spoken.

"We have in this house," says the publisher, "what you might term a wildly optimistic person, one whose enthusiasms are of the rabid order, for the first reader. There is no chance for any work that possesses merit to escape those eagle eyes.

"It may be due to his perspicacity that a great unknown is discovered, and in after years he can say, 'I found him.' On the other hand, the possibility that the manuscript which he has rejected as unfit may be found worthy by the public acts as another incentive to careful examination.

"When it comes to the last reader, it frequently happens that he or she, as the case may be, does not know the name of the author whose work is being read. Many times it is impossible to prevent the knowledge, but, generally speaking, the last reader does not want to know, for fear of having his judgment, even unconsciously, biased.

"I will go as far as to say that there never was a good book nor a fine article written that was not finally published if the writer sent it out toward that destination. Not one; and that is the experience of a man who has been connected with publishing houses for many years."

So young authors take notice!

"Why is it," and the publisher glances at the reporter as if she were responsible for the omission, "that we cannot get the kind of book for which there is always a steady demand and always will be and yet every year becomes scarcer? That is, the sane, wholesome love story of a young man and young woman?

"There are many that attempt it, but they only succeed in writing something that is absolutely banal or Laura Jean Libbeyish. Between the two there seems to be no middle ground of interest.

"While authors are looking about for weird, unwholesome, unnatural themes, there is always that right at hand, needing only the touch to make it acceptable. Yes, I know it is that touch. But why is it not attempted?

"Fashion in books changes very little. Just why or how the size and shape of the present volume was established is immaterial; it does exist and has been found more satisfactory than any other. "In the old printing days the sheet was folded eight times and the term 8 vo. was used to describe it. That size of sheet and that method of folding are, of course, no longer used, but the name sticks fast. The ordinary novel is about 75,000 words long, and when it is shorter or longer the type varies in size in order to keep the thickness to the normal 1½ inch.

"In regard to illustrating, we have never been able to tell whether or not it is an advantage to have a book illustrated. Naturally the author does not care for it, except in a few instances, where the commercial spirit outweighs the artistic, for no matter how clever the illustrator may be, it is almost impossible for him to depict the author's creation.

"The bookseller likes the pictures, for he can attract attention to his wares by them and he believes that they help in the sale. This may be true of a book that has no inherent merit, or merit of a mediocre sort, but whether it helps a good book is a good problem. A single illustration costs $100, and that adds $700 or $800 to the original cost of the book.

"Another term that is much misunderstood is 'edition.' In the old days an edition was supposed to mean 1,000 books. Today it may mean 5,000 or 6,000. The first edition of a work of Mrs. Humphry Ward's, for example, may touch the first named figure, while that of a comparatively unknown author the latter. There is no fixed limit now.

"The unknown author is today the rock upon which the publishing houses are building firm and fast. There never was a greater opportunity for undiscovered talent and there is good reason for it. A house which is well known and well grounded can afford to take chances on a name and they are taking them more and more.

"Look at this book," and "The Spoilers" was handed to the listener. "That book is by a comparatively unknown author, a young man whose fame has spread in a short time from the Atlantic to the Pacific on this one work.

"Publishers, generally speaking, are too liberal to be prejudiced in any direction, but we have not been especially keen about books concerning Alaska, the Klondike craze and that phase of adventure, but you forget all the background in the story. It is a story of men with red blood and women with red blood.

"Now, no fine style, no good writing takes the place of a story. We are all children and we like stories to be told to us. That is the reason Dickens was such a great writer, because he always had a story to tell, and that is why the book I have mentioned is one of the best sellers.

"As a general thing, it may be stated that the young person who begins to write has only seen one phase of life, and though that special phase may be known well and depicted with skill, still it must be remembered that it will only reach a limited number of readers, those who happen to be in touch with that experience.

"Take the college story as a case in point. Although it is true to realities, undoubtedly, it after all only represents a phase of life and as such will have no great, universal appeal.

"How the publishers read the pulse of the public is not known. It is one of the mysteries of the profession whether we force certain personal expressions of talent or whether there is an unexpressed, unconscious demand for that expression.

"At present there is a great liking for children's stories, but how it came about eludes us. It was in the air, we say, and perhaps that is just as good a way as any other of explaining.

"The Spanish-American war produced a great interest in American history, created really a new national era and lives of Lincoln have been the result. We are too near it yet for it to be used as fiction matter, for romance on and off the stage must have its proper perspective, and to attempt to portray events that happened too recently always results in disaster, because the personal impressions are so keen that they come between the reader and the page, or between him and the footlights, as the case may be.

"There is a wail heard now and then concerning the hard fate of the poet. Here, again, the spring and summer trade shows that there never was such a demand for good poetry, and publishers are anxious to supply the demand.

"The assertion that poetry does not pay has been answered recently in print by Stephen Phillips, who claims that with his dramatic poetry he has made as much money as Hall Caine with his widely read romances, and it is well known that Maeterlinck has made a fortune; poets like Madison Cawein, Clinton Scollard, Louise Morgan Sill, Josephine Peabody all make money, and Henry Van Dyke's poetry ranks with many of the best selling romances. A new edition of Swinburne is to be one of the summer books."

Then the reporter is taken through the building and sees the process of manufacture of summer fiction. The guide explains that with the new appliances for rapid typesetting, printing, binding, etc., it is possible to turn out in one day, in complete book form, a manuscript of from 300 to 400 printed pages.

Of course, this is never done except in unusual cases. It is pointed out only as a possibility. In the case of the 350-page novel the time between receiving the manuscript and placing the printed book on the retail bookseller's table so that you may buy it is usually about three months. This may be divided roughly as follows:

Reading the manuscript, reaching the decision whether to accept or decline, signing the contracts, and deciding on style of type, binding, etc., about four weeks.

Setting the type, correcting the proofs and making the electrotype plates, from three to four weeks.

Printing, from one to three weeks; gathering, sewing and binding, about one week more.

For a week after the book is finished it is kept in the drying room, to be thoroughly dried and seasoned before being sent to the bookseller. In making fine editions it takes from six months to a year to turn out the finished book.

In the subscription department rows of girls of various ages and varying heights of pompadour are busy changing addresses of subscribers and preparing for the summer exodus. One asks another if she has read what Henry James said about the "Question of Speech," and says she thought she could talk until she read that, and now she afraid to open her mouth. Another is asking her vis-a-vis for a pattern of a shirtwaist.

BOY STEALS FROM JAIL.

While Turnkey is at Phone, Lad Takes Shoes.

Clarksville, Tenn., May 11.—Will Herbert, a 19-year-old negro, was bound over to the criminal court on the charge of larceny by Squire Jarrell. Herbert is alleged to have stolen a pair of shoes from the county jail in broad daylight. The turnkey, Julius Meek, left his shoes in the door, and while at the telephone Herbert is alleged to have passed by and picked them up.

AN ERA OF EXTRAVAGANCE

FETCHING LITTLE BOLERO IN CROCHET

GEORGE BAKER

IN KEEPING WITH THE MARCH OF EXTRAVAGANCE

THE CHARMS OF HANDWORK

DAINTY ELEGANCE IN BLOUSES

Real Laces of Goodly Cost Adorn Lingerie Possessions—The Princesse Gown in Fact and Effect—Embroidered Parasols and Fascinating Little Boleros.

That this is an era of extravagance in dress not even the most modestly minded devotee of fashion can deny.

Extravagance marks the mode in its every phase and manifestation; and, where a few years ago it was possible to procure a little cotton frock for a modest sum, today those possessions have attained to the rank of luxuries, and must be paid for accordingly.

Not, however, that they are any more extravagant than the gowns that our grandmothers wore, all things considered, for their price today is but little higher proportionately than what those same dear old ladies paid for their embroidered muslins, Chinese crepes, their real lace coats and spencers, their handwrought parasols and all the other costly items that marked the garb of the lady of olden time.

But it is in the so-called lingerie mode that this extravagance finds at once its most delightful and its most costly expression. The French, incidentally, would be rather puzzled to know just what is meant by a lingerie gown, the term lingerie over there, where it really originated, being confined to the designation of garments of the most intimate character. One's underwear may be of lingerie character; one's gowns and blouses, according to the Parisienne, never! However, the word has come to have an acceptance on this side of the water which makes the Parisienne acceptation seem like a distinction without any material difference.

Of course, these charming possessions are all of them fashioned, fundamentally; that is, of the accepted lingerie materials, hence the adjective. The finest and sheerest of handkerchief linen—the kind that the trade designate as 30,000, meaning that there are some 30,000 threads to the square inch of fabric—is in such demand that the supply is sold "way ahead." Linen batiste, too, shares in this vogue, and the sheerest of nainsook, cotton chiffons and cottenes, Persian lawns and all novelty weaves in cotton find due appreciation at the hands of the makers of these exquisite creations.

There is one great comfort in all of this extravagant fashion, however, and that is that the girl with nothing a year to dress upon—or next door to it, can, if she be skilled with her needle and possess that patience and perseverance which the old proverb declares will find even a wife for a priest, she can duplicate the most costly possessions of her dearest friend or enemy, and for a fraction of what they have paid for the privilege of owning such.

Extreme simplicity of outline marks all of the new creations in this mode, but to the initiated there is a marked difference—just those subtle little touches that serve to fence off the latest arrivals from their predecessors.

For one thing, the shoulder line is conspicuously broadened. There is either a very high but transparent collar, or else the neck is cut down in a slight V, after the St. Cecilia style; but no compromise whatsoever is to be attempted between these two extremes. Sleeves are just a trifle larger, much more elaborately trimmed, and the best makers are employing little loops of collar bone, somewhat in the shape of a croquet arch, and sewing those into the armsize so that they support the sleeve at the shoulder line and assist in the broadening effect. Anything and everything that will broaden the shoulder, and so, by force of contrast, make the waist more slender, is the goal toward which the French designer directs his best efforts.

One oftentimes is moved to wonder how it is that these Irish peasants who make that marvelous crochet can tell so far ahead of time just what lines fashion is going to follow. Those gowns are all of them made without seam, the design of the lace being planned to follow the lines of the gown, and when it is considered that a year, or even two years, are oftentimes consumed in their making, the fact that they accord in every particular with the very latest ideas, the dernier cri of fashion, at the moment of their appearance, seems like witchery or some other form of magic.

In both the lingerie and the real lace designs there is a sharp competition between that class of princesse gown that is fashioned all in one piece and its simulation, which is really two garments, cleverly joined at the waistline, or somewhere in that vicinity. The latter is, of course, by far the more easy of construction, and when the joining belt or girdle is made to carry out some idea of elaboration even the simplest design can be carried to a degree of success that seems hardly warranted at the start.

Lace must be purchased, one might say, by the mile rather than by the yard for all of these lingerie possessions. It is taking quite a risk to purchase just barely enough, for, if additional quantity be necessary, the scarcity of all the narrow laces makes it highly improbable that the pattern can be matched. Not that there is any decrease in the vogue of varied laces on the one gown. Au contraire, it is more emphatic than ever; but some clever little touch of contrasts must be expressed in this wise, else the result were patchy in the extreme and all too suggestive of the remnant and bargain counters.

The embroidered parasol top can express any degree of extravagance that may be desired. For morning use there are fine linen ones, wrought with heavy raised blindwork and the edges buttonholed and scalloped. For afternoons and carriage wear the name of elaboration is observed, and even choice real laces of the Honiton, duchesse and Bruges school are deftly employed to supplement the charm of the embroideries that are in such high vogue. Handles to these are extremely long and slender, and a big, fluffy rosette rather than a bow of ribbon about half-way down the shaft is the correct finish.

Magnificent Toilettes in Real Lace and Hand Embroidery.

Magnificent Toilette in Real Lace.

One cannot help but wonder how it is that the makers of Irish crochet—and they are all of them of the peasant class in Ireland—can tell so far ahead just what styles are to be worn, for such a gown as that pictured will take well-nigh a full year to its fashioning, and yet they invariably express the dernier cri, the very last idea of the mode.

In the exquisitely extravagant toilette pictured there are three pieces, a blouse and a skirt that are joined invisibly just below the waist line, in a princesse effect, and a charming little carnco that is worn unlined. Large sunflowers are the dominant motif in the design, and closely worked daisies fill in some of the intervening spaces. The character of the lace is that of a heavy and well-defined pattern, the connecting stitches being all of fairylike fineness, so that the design stands out boldly against the background of chiffon which veils the silken foundation.

The gown follows the prevailing craze for the collarless throat, being cut down in a moderate V; and there is but an apology for a sleeve, this item ending well above the elbow. The coat sleeve, on the contrary, is of the full and loose pagoda order, and hangs well below the elbow line and finished with a double ruffle of very narrow real Valenciennes on the edge. A touch of finish is accorded in the rollover collar and mere hint of Directoire vest, which are in white moire velvet of chiffon weave; and the exquisite buttons, that are added as much for ornament as for fastening, are of heavy gold tissue cut into strips and knotted to shape. This same little touch of gold appears on the embroidery that edges those little items in moire velvet, and is in keeping with the idea of extravagance that reigns throughout.

Chiffon, Hand Embroideries and Real Laces Make the Mode.

The seemingly simple but really extravagant ideas are those that dominate the current mode, and in the prosecution of the lingerie craze there is no class of work that can be wrought with the needle that is deemed too elaborate for such purposes. Of course, the materials—that is, the foundation materials—are supposed to be in keeping with the title, and linen of exquisite sheerness and fineness, usually of the batiste and handkerchief persuasions, is the favored foundation. But upon this there is a wealth of stitchery lavished, and it must all of it be wrought by hand if the gown is to take its place among those exquisite examples that lead the fashion procession.

The gown of the picture represents the extreme of extravagance in this direction, and while simple enough in outline, is really beautiful enough to serve as a bridal costume for even a millionaire's daughter. The princesse outline is very cleverly achieved in the joining of waist and skirt, the girdle being of real laces, joined and shaped by fancy lace stitches, and following a line that cannot fail to be flattering to the figure. Panels are built up of hand embroidered medallions inset in laces, and those run from waist to the lower part of the skirt, where shallow shirred ruffles, each tucked and whipped with real Valenciennes, are posed, three in front, and increasing in number toward the back. The entire design represents what can be done with those costly materials while all the time following the idea of a charming simplicity.

The Charms of Handwork.

The hand-made frock of sheer lingerie materials—of which handkerchief linen, linen batiste and the extremely sheer cotton goods that rule this season are chief—is considered suitable for well-nigh any occasion. For general morning wear, for luncheons, for afternoon calls and garden parties, there is hardly a daylight function to which it does not wend its charming way. The Parisian model illustrated is one that affords many suggestions to the clever needlewoman, and, in spite of its elaborate appearance, calls for patience rather than skill for its reproduction. Blouse and skirt are fashioned separately, and joined into the belt that encircles the waist. Most effective use is made of strips of shirred linen, alternating with lace entre-deux, those being arranged in pointed festoons that intersect upon both waist and skirt, the triangular spaces being filled in with lengthwise tuckings. The requisite fulness below the knee is achieved by means of a sectional flounce, in which narrow strips of the linen are shirred to the lace entre-deux, and the whole finished with a ruffle of lace at the extreme edge. Little festoon appliques of coarse guipure simulate a round yoke effect on the blouse, the collar of Valenciennes supported with the regulation little rods of featherbone, and the three-quarter sleeve is elaborated with the bouillonne festoon pattern.

Fetching Little Bolero in Crochet.

There is simply no end to the fetching little conceits displayed by importers under the guise of separate boleros. They come in all sorts and shapes, in several materials and sizes, and each one seems even more fascinating than the one before. For early season wear they are perhaps more often worn with a double chiffon lining, or even with taffetas, the glace silk being veiled with a layer of chiffon or mousseline de sole. Of course, there is no warmth or protection from the weather to those smart little affairs; they are worn merely as a finishing touch to the toilette, and amply do they fill this office. The one that is pictured is readily possible to the woman who can use a crochet needle, for it is all in the large and rather coarse motifs that are quickly made, and which make excellent pick-up work. Or the same idea can be carried out in lace braids, and the crochet needle employed to fill in the brides or connecting stitches which hold the various pieces of the pattern together. The little jacket is short in the back, sloping down to a graceful point in the front, and displays the short and very loose half sleeve that marks so many of the season's favorites.

A lingerie cover for the handbag is the latest craze. These are in sheer linen, wrought in well-raised blind embroideries, and are made to catch into the frame of a white kid, leather or linen bag that is carried with a white gown. Over a colored satin foundation they are even more effective.

MAGNIFICENT TOILET IN REAL LACE.

In the Haunts of Fashion.

Shoe shops are displaying the most delicate-looking silk or lisle thread hosiery in tints to match the colored shoes and slippers that bid fair to become a craze ere the summertime is over. One maker in New York, who really leads the fashions in footwear, has sent out beautifully engraved cards announcing that any tint of material can be matched in shoes and hose, the former made to order and delivered upon 10 days' notice. The fad for colored footwear with white gowns is expected to meet with a conspicuous success; and all the little accessories of the toilette—belt, neck and hair ribbons, parasol bows and such—are supposed to be in harmony with the footwear.

Robe patterns in lace or embroidery, or some of the popular combinations of both, are scalloped all along the lower edge. In order to finish this effectively, and likewise to weight the skirt a trifle at the hem, to its better "hang," the modish dressmaker is using a plain band of either heavy satin or velvet ribbon, according to the class of material handled. The scalloped edge is sewed fast to the ribbon, the latter being held a trifle easy so that its lower edge is a shade fuller than the top.

Revival in Real Laces.

Old Patterns Resurrected and New Combinations Effected

The wave of revival that has swept over the real-lace industry, although fathered by dry sociologists, needed the support of Dame Fashion to reach the culminating success that has come to it in these past few months.

Queen Margherita, the Dowager Queen of Italy, started it some few years since, any others. Of course, there have been some beautiful examples of Cluny put forth, and the several varieties of Valenciennes have sustained their vogue throughout all the changes and chances that have affected laces generally. Indeed, of Valenciennes it may be said that it is never out of style, and the demand remains more or less stable abroad.

For one thing, the European baby's layette consists mostly of garments fashioned by hand, and from linen, cambric or fine flannel materials. There is not that wealth of woven or knit garments fashioned for the nursery folks over there that prevails on this side of the Atlantic; and every mother plans to have at least some few of the little shirts and slips for the little stranger all hand made and trimmed with more or less real Valenciennes entre-deux and edging.

Anyone who has ever sojourned for any length of time in the Emerald Isle—as Ireland is familiarly known—could not help but observe the artistic bent of the native inhabitants. Irish linens and damasks are known the world over, and command a higher price than those of any other nation. But the failure of crops and the steady drain on the population made by continued and sustained emigration to these United States brought about a lack of commercial enterprise that threatened to sink all of the characteristically Irish industries in short order.

To Lady Aberdeen belongs the credit of the revival in these. Lord Aberdeen entered upon residence in Ireland with a great deal of political prejudice to overcome. His clever wife speedily found the way to popularity, and at all of the vice-regal receptions, both social and political, she expressed her wish that guests—so far as possible—wear toilettes expressive of the artistic side of Irish productions.

Linens at once sprang into favor; Irish crochet, which had languished for a long time, sprang into the highest esteem, and convent schools were subsidized—from Lady Aberdeen's private fortune—to revive the old arts of Irish laces. Irish poplins, embroidered as only the Irish can do it, commanded a marvelous price, and Limerick lace, Carrickmacross, crochet of various kinds and characters are in such demand today that almost any price is paid for them abroad, since the supply in the market cannot begin to satisfy the demand.

On a yachting trip up the west coast of Ireland some few years ago this scribe had ample opportunity to observe the class of work done by those—allegedly—ignorant peasants. Handkerchiefs, chemisettes, collar and cuff sets, vests, little coatees, parasol covers and what not are embroidered by the peasant population during the long winter evenings. Agriculture is not possible in the winter months; darkness sets in early in those latitudes, and the womenfolk of the household take up the needle as a means of passing time as well as of earning a few pennies. Embroideries that are usually credited to France are done upon the barren and bleak coast. The natural humidity of the atmosphere—it is said to rain every day in the year at sometime or another—permits of the spinning of marvelously fine linen, both for weaving and for embroidery threads. The designs are left entirely to the workers, the factor, as he is called, in Belfast merely indicating to his local agent, oftentimes the parish priest, just what his market demands. Embroideries that are positively fairylike in execution fetch but a few pennies, and the work of months will often bring in but a dollar when finished.

Little sprays of hand embroidery wrought upon a square of fine linen can be purchased either by the dozen or separately in some of the smart shops. They are just the thing for the hand-made blouse, a little lace serving to frame them, and add to the amount of elaboration that can be compassed at a slight expense.

"WEAR A SMILE--IT WILL HELP YOU GET A JOB," SAYS JAMES GAYLEY

Sentiments of First Vice President of Steel Corporation.

Address to Graduating Class of Michigan College of Mines.

"Enter upon your work with enthusiasm—therein lies greatness."

"Remember that a sunny disposition is the only umbrella in this vale of tears."

Hancock, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—These were the sentiments expressed by James Gayley, first vice president of the United States Steel corporation, in his address to the graduating class of the Michigan College of Mines, at the recent class day exercises, held at the Kerredge theater, Hancock.

These annual addresses have grown into a regular institution in connection with the college, constituting an important part of the college year. Persons of international reputation in the mining world have gone to the Michigan Copper country in years past to deliver the addresses, or "talk to the college men," as it is put in college circles. This year was no exception, nor is it calculated that any exception shall occur in years to come, and to that end the college has the conditional promise of a number of men whose names are as familiar as the mining industries with which they are associated.

The unique position of the Michigan College of Mines, in the purpose which it serves, is such that these men are willing and glad to lend aid in shaping the careers of the members of the younger generation, who are going out into the field to take up the responsible portion of the work in the mining industries, because upon the successful execution of that portion of the work rests the success of the entire structure.

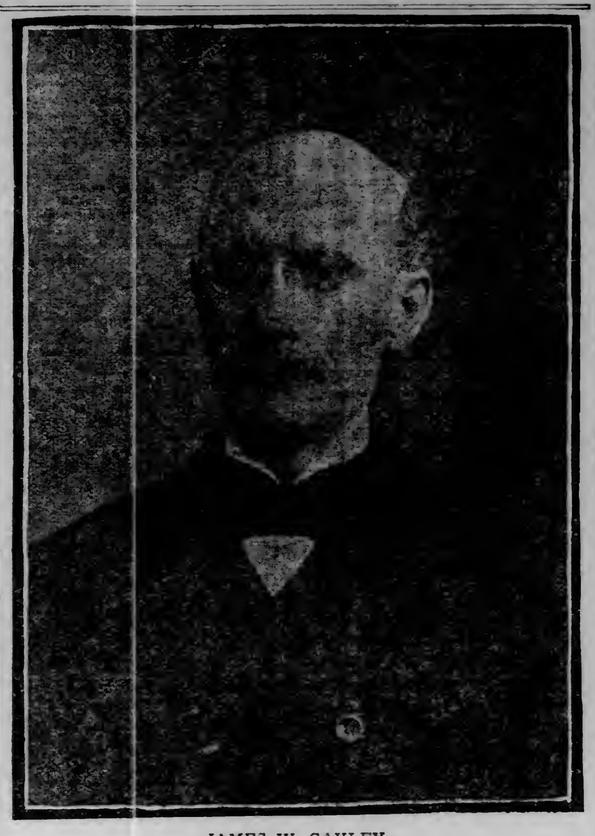
Mr. Gayley is a man eminently fitted to "talk to the men," as he knows the ground inch by inch over which they must travel. He did not have the early advantages that they have had in special training for mining work, his specialization having been confined to chemistry, but from the position of chemist, taken at $500 per year, in the Crane Iron works at Catasauqua, Pa., immediately after his graduation from Lafayette college, in 1876, he has steadily advanced himself to the senior vice presidency of the world's greatest mining and metallurgical concern. The achievement was accomplished in less than twenty-five years, as Mr. Gayley has occupied his present position since the organization of the Steel corporation in 1900.

There was a distinguished assemblage of men, prominent in the mining industry present at this year's class day function of the Michigan College of Mines. Among them were D. M. Clemson and Thomas Morrison. Eastern officials of the Steel corporation; Thomas F. Cole of Duluth, president of the Oliver Mining company, the mining end of the Steel corporation; W. H. Johnston of Ishpeming, Marquette range, superintendent of the Oliver company; Otto C. Davidson of Iron Mountain, general superintendent of the Menominee and Gogebic range mines of the same corporation; William Kelly of Vulcan, Mich., general manager of the Cambria Steel company's Penn group of Menominee range mines and the Republic mine of the Marquette range; Walter Fitch of Salt Lake City, formerly superintendent of the big Champion iron mine, Marquette range, and later in charge of the United States Mining company's properties in Utah; J. M. Longyear of Brookline, Mass., mine and land owner; James MacNaughton of Calumet, general manager of the Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company; Norman W. Haire of Houghton, general manager of the Bigelow group of copper mines; Dr. L. L. Hubbard, general manager of the Ct. Mary's Mineral Land company's copper properties, and other men of rank in the mining world.

Mr. Gayley, in his opening remarks, compared the meager opportunities for a thorough special training as a mining engineer in the days of his college career with the opportunities afforded today in such an institution as the Michigan College of Mines, a particular advantage in the latter case lying in the atmosphere of mining with which the college is surrounded in its location in the center of the lake copper belt. However, a man must not expect to become an export merely by his college training. That portion of his work rather provides him only with a tool, through the instrumentality of which he must shape his further progress.

The speaker said that genius is the ability to express work efficiently. A young engineer need not worry about the line of engineering he had best choose, for in time, if he exercises the highest ability that is within him, the call for the line to which he is best adapted will come with such force that he cannot do otherwise than respond. And, he declared, the world is full of golden opportunities, incidentally pointing out in the connection that the man who does more than is expected of him and who gathers bits of information about the work which lies out of his own narrow pathway will be noticed by those who are in command of the greatest opportunities. The chemist who makes analyses all day and retires to his bed to dream of precipitates all night will never make a manager, he said. He pointed out the more successful way: Let the chemist spend his evening and his spare moments around the works, absorbing the knowledge that is necessary to conduct other lines of the institution with which he is associated. Then his opportunities will broaden. "The man who does only the work for which he is paid only gets paid for the work which he does," the speaker asserted.

Mr. Gayley said that the opportunities are just as great today as they ever were in history, if not probably greater. It is only the one who shrinks from the ore paint of the mine, from the grease and grime of machinery or from the smoke of the furnaces, that misses the great things which line the pathway of the engineer. Having found the opportunity, the speaker pointed out, the rising engineer will find difficulties coming hard and fast. But it is meeting and overcoming difficulties that make men great. Such achievement is not by long fights, but step by step until success crowns the effort. He quoted Bill Nye's description of Wagner's music, "For one who understands it, it is not half so bad as it sounds," to emphasize the point that difficulties are not half as bad as they seem.



JAMES W. GAYLEY,
First Vice President of the United States Steel Corporation.

Accuracy in details is a prime essential. Mr. Gayley said engineering is an exacting profession and there is little of forgiveness in it. He pointed out that an error at a vital moment might be the undoing of the greatest opportunity, because there can be but one greatest opportunity and that may be the one in hand. Concentration was another essential for the engineer to cultivate. Just as concentration is performed in minerals, so it must be practiced in the mind of the engineer. The vein may be wide and it may be deep, and to recover its values and turn them to the uses of man the ore must be concentrated and the dross eliminated. He held as almost the best advice ever given him, the orders of an early employer that he should at once sit down one hour daily in the midst of a busy life and concentrate his mind upon the mental contemplation of the work in his charge.

Expression with the engineer is by three main channels, said the speaker. It may be by reports, by estimates and by spoken words. Then he pointed out the need of a thorough training in the English language. Reports are written to be read, he said, and therefore the proper use of language is essential, so that the idea may be as clearly conveyed to the reader as it exists in the mind of the writer. Instill in a man a love for the best in literature and give him touch with the great minds of the world, and he will have no time left for sordid companionship, said the speaker.

Integrity was dwelt upon as the crowning attribute, which should be held sacred above all else that the engineer represents. He said that many engineers' reports dwell not upon statements of conditions but upon speculation of possibilities, representing, in the words of Mark Twain, "The greatest return of conjecture for the least expenditure of facts." "Be truthful, "he said, "no matter what your employer may demand of you. It is true that you may lose one employer by such a policy, but you will find many employers waiting for yous services because of that virtue, and when you have sped the last arrow from your bow and it falls from your failing grasp, the world can utter no word of shame to your memory."

Mr. Gayley took up the discussion of mistakes. He said that men who are not making mistakes are not doing anything in the world and a man who is not active enough to make mistakes should make the greatest mistake of his life and retire to a monastery. "Mistakes are the result of personal effort," he said, "and the man who never takes a chance will never recognize a good thing when it comes his way. If there were no fools to rush in, the world would be at a standstill, but thank God we have fools to rush in where angelic conservatism fears to tread." The late Marcus Daly could excuse a man who made a mistake, but he had no patience with the man who let a thing get away from him for want of trying.

In his final words, Mr. Gayley said that those who attacked the acquisition of wealth were enjoying in life the very advantages that exist by virtue of the wealth which they assail. He said that the midle ages were the great wealth acquiring periods; this wealth brought leisure, leisure brought opportunity for mental repose and thought brought, thought brought about the Italian renaissance and it also brought the learning and taste for literature, which had as its frontage the translation of the bible, the enlightenment of the masses, the reformation and the rich learning which has followed. Then following this freedom from mental slavery, came the impulses which demanded freedom from feudal vassalage, culminating in the French revolution and the beginning of democratic governments. Why may not the world today, he queried, be living in an age that is a duplication of those times, and thus awaken to a higher and grander understanding of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men than the world has even known?

James Gayley was born in 1855 at Lock Haven, Pa., his father being a Presbyterian minister. After his graduation from Lafayette and his first position with the Crane works, he became chemist for the Missouri Furnace company in 1880 and soon after took the management of the company's South St. Louis furnace. In 1883 he became superintendent of the Brooke Iron company at Birdsboro, Pa., and in 1885 he was secured by the Edgar Thomson Steel works near Pittsburg, Pa., in which concern he held various positions until finally he had general charge of the entire plant. It was while in this position that he was able to apply his inventive capacity and work out some of the problems that made so much for the larger volume and more economical fuel consmption in blast furnace operation. His work in that line, twenty years ago, is today looked upon as marvelous, with the mechanical hindrances under which he then labored.

After demonstrating his practical knowledge of metallurgy at the Thomson plant he was assigned to the Pittsburg offices of the company as an associate of the chief executive and there he came in close personal touch with Mr. Carnegie in the function of supplying the enormous plants of the Carnegie Steel company with raw material. From that plane of operation his advancement to his present position was in the natural order of superior capacity. Merit was the basis upon which his advance was founded. He displayed inventive capacity as well as an absolute mastery over the details of his work in hand. Some may call it good fortune and unquestionably it is good fortune to have that capacity which wins the confidence of the employer and won for Mr. Gayley the support of Andrew Carnegie in his advancement. But the mining and metallurgical world is too exacting to bestow positions of the heaviest responsibility upon shoulders that are not proven by unquestionable tests to be capable of bearing them. His broad grasp of every auxiliary of the mining and metallurgical industries made him one of the most interesting men the world could provide to meet and talk with the men of the Michigan College of Mines.

FOR THE STUDY OF WATER POWER AND WATER SUPPLY

New Hydraulic Laboratory at Wisconsin State University Just Completed--Well Equipped for Experiments in Water Power and Water Supply.

Madison, Wis., May 12.—The most important addition recently made to the college of engineering of the university of Wisconsin is the new hydraulic laboratory, which is now practically completed and is to be used by students for experimental purposes. The laboratory is well equipped for investigation of problems of water power and water supply, the importance of which in commercial, municipal and sanitary engineering is rapidly increasing. Students interested in these phases of engineering may now study and test the principles of hydraulics involved in water power, swamp drainage, irrigation, sewage disposal and similar practical subjects. The new hydraulic laboratory at the university has been established in response to the increased demand for students especially trained in hydraulics.

The rapid development in all lines of hydraulics during the past ten years has been phenomenal. Since it has become possible to transmit electricity for a considerable distance, the water power of rivers and streams heretofore useless because inaccessible has been employed for commercial and manufacturing purposes. The growth of large cities has made the questions of pure water supply and sewage disposal of vital importance. The growth of population and increased land values have led to the consideration of methods of reclaiming marsh lands by drainage, and of arid and semi-arid tracts by irrigation. All these matters have called attention to the necessity of a thorough knowledge of the principles of hydraulics, and a more exact and careful investigation of hydraulic phenomena on the part of those engaged in solving the important commercial and sanitary problems.

The new hydraulic laboratory is located on the shore of Lake Mendota, near the college of engineering, and immediately adjoining the university pumping station and tankhouse. The location is an excellent one, since an unlimited quantity of water is available. The university pumping station, together with the storage reservoir on the bluff of the lake fifty feet above the laboratory, furnish the necessary water for experimentation.

The building is constructed of reinforced concrete. It is 48 by 98 feet and three stories high, including the basement, which is one and one-half feet above the water level of the lake. In the basement are located an engine room and a large Morris centrifugal pump, and a number of measuring tanks, together with the laboratory for special work, and the head and tail races extending the entire length of the building.

The large centrifugal pump, with a 30-inch suction and 30-inch discharge pipe, has a capacity of 25,000 gallons per minute. The water is pumped into the receiving chamber from double-headed gates open into the raceway extending almost the entire length of the building. In the raceway, which is 10 feet wide and 10 feet deep, a volume of from 25,000 to 35,000 gallons of water per minute will be available for experimental purposes. In this channel the measurements of flow may be made with various depths of water, and with various temporary restrictions. A small channel 4½ feet wide and deep has been constructed parallel to and adjoining the large one for use in connection with channel experiments on a smaller scale. Below this is a 30-inch circular concrete conduit in which the phenomena of the flow in closed channels may be studied.

A large turbine with a 30-inch wheel which will develop 50 horsepower, is located at the west end of the 10-foot channel from which it receives its water supply. After passing the wheel the water is discharged into a tail race ten feet in width, in which is arranged a standard weir. This weir, in connection with the prony brake on the wheel, will promote the correct determination of quantities, velocity and efficiencies of the flow of water under various conditions. Three smaller turbiaes are set in a separate well, and receive their waters through separate smaller channels.

For the study of the purification of water by filtration, four water filters of different types have been installed in the new laboratory. Two of these filters are of the slow sand type, and consist of tanks six feet in diameter and eight feet deep. The filter equipment also includes a new Jewell gravity filter, and a mechanical filter with Norwood strainers, presented by the Norwood Engineering company. These filters have been fully equipped for experimental work, and afford excellent opportunity for the study of various methods of filtration of water, under conditions that prevail in municipal and sanitary engineering.

The new laboratory has been provided with two hydraulic rams. One of these has been especially designed for experimental purposes, with a view of making possible a careful study of valves and air chamber capacities in relation to the efficiency of a ram. The new ram, which will have a four-inch drive-pipe, will make possible experiments on a large and more satisfactory scale than has been possible heretofore.

Two tanks are provided for the determination of the friction or water flowing through gravel or sand. A larger tank will also be constructed for the study of the laws of ground water through sand and soils and the principles controlling the operation of wells.

Apparatus has been provided for the study of the flow of water in straight and curved pipes and hose of various sizes and materials, also for the investigation of losses due to sudden expansion and contraction and to valves and other forms of restricted passages. The laboratory is also supplied with various reciprocating pumps, centrifugal pumps, vacuum pumps, jet pumps, and various water meters, including those of disc, piston and Venturi types. A large assortment of accurate apparatus for the measurement of quantities, velocities and pressures, both in open and closed channels, is available in the laboratory. Arrangements have been made for the careful and accurate investigation of various types of instruments and of the methods used in conducting hydraulic experiments.

On the upper floor the laboratory is a large lecture room provided with apparatus by means of which many simple forms of experiments can be performed before the class in theoretical hydraulics. It will thus be possible, by means of actual and visible demonstration, to emphasize and impress on the minds of the students the general principles of hydraulics. By this radical improvement in the method of teaching theoretical hydraulics, it is believed that the information can be conveyed to the students in a more thorough and effective manner. The laboratory work includes experiments familiarizing the students with the application of the most important principles encountered in theoretical work.

In the new laboratory special attention will be given to advancing research work. It is intended to direct the students' thesis work into lines in which further information is desired, and from which valuable results can be obtained. Results of interest will be further investigated, checked, and extended, with a view to publishing the conclusions whenever they are of general interest and importance.

The construction of the laboratory marks a great advance in the opportunity and character of investigation in hydraulics in the university, and it is undisputed that the opportunities for research work will have considerable influence in the advance of knowledge of this important subject.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Mintie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. J. S. Alexander, of Omaha, Neb., says: "A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is, deserves the highest praise. I had it in use everywhere."

Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it."

Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

The EVENING STORY.

TONY'S FRIEND

By Cosmo Hamilton.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles).

Burke stuck out his slippered foot, and with it pressed the button of the electric bell until the rheumatic servant hurried in.

"Is—is anything the matter, sir?" he gasped with his remaining breath.

"What's the time?" asked Burke.

The old man looked affectionately at Burke's good-natured face, with its blue, whimsical eyes, straw-colored mustache, and big cleft on the square chin, and took out his watch gravely. "It's past 12 by two and twenty minutes," he said.

"Twelve!" yelled Tony. "It can't be! The missus said she would be back straight from the St. James • • • It is, though. Twenty-three minutes past. I thought the print of that book was dancin' a bit."

"Perhaps madam has gone to supper with Lord Reginald, sir," said Pullen, with less meaning in his voice than he would have liked to convey.

"Are you going up now, sir?"

"Go before the missus? Not much, by Gad!" said Tony aloud, lying on his back among the cushions with his head in the palms of his hands. "Why, she's such a sensitive little beggar she'd think I was beginning to get indifferent or some such bunkum. Women are such quaint little jokers in that way. Tired of Enid! Ye gods! The earth will get tired of rain before I get tired of the best, the sweetest—. She loves me, too, now. She didn't, of course. Everybody knows that. But she does now all right. Rather • • • I can't help it. I know it's dashed selfish, with all this sickness and suffering about. But I'm as happy as—What?—what?—wh—"

His eyes closed, his hands relaxed, his voice refused to work. Tony slept.

The big clock tolled 1 and half-past one before Mrs. Burke and Reggie Glynde returned.

"Good night, Reggie!" said the little lady. "Thanks so much for taking me. I've enjoyed the—"

"I'm coming in," said Reggie, putting his finger on the bell.

"Oh, no, please—please. You'll only make Tony jealous and spoil everything. Oh, please go away now."

Mrs. Burke looked appealingly at Reggie, failed to catch his purposely wandering eye, and went upstairs to the morning room. Reggie followed her closely, shut the door, crossed the room to Mrs. Burke's side, and caught her hands eagerly. In the shadow, Tony's great form was unseen by both.

"It's not a bit good, Enid. All that jargon about it being a foul thing to love the wife of your best friend doesn't have any weight with me now. I can't think about Tony and dishonor. I love you, and I know you love me. The devil take everything else • • • There! Now you know in plain English what you've seen in my eyes, and what, God knows, I've done my best to hide for months. Don't try and pull your hands away. We can't help ourselves. It had to be, and it is. What's the good of kicking against the traces? Why struggle against fate? Now that I've told you, bang out, I'm glad. I feel as though some one had untied a great rope which has been cutting into my muscles. Kiss me now will you?"

"No, no," cried Enid Burke.

Reggie bent down and kissed the unresisting face. His eyes were alight and his sulky, determined expression had given way to one of almost boyish delight.

"Let's arrange to go away as soon as ever we can, darling. Tons of people have done it before. Why shouldn't we? Why should we be the only people in the world to pose as angels? Why should we be the only ones to resist and suffer, when we know that the first plunge is the only thing that matters? Life's so beastly short, let's make the most of it together. Of course, deep down in my boots, I'd rather you had been any other man's wife than Tony's. He and I have been pals since we were kids. But he's not the kind of a chap to mind—at least, not for long."

Enid's face was just as eager and excited as Reggie's, but there was something in her eyes which his didn't contain—something which showed that she could see into the future—a kind of fear, perhaps.

"Oh, Reggie, how can I say I'm glad? Think of poor old Tony. I love you—I think I've always loved you; but what will poor old Tony do? I believe I'm all the world to Tony. Think of that."

"Think! What's the use of asking me to think?" cried Reggie. "Tony didn't ask me what I had to say to his marrying you; why should I think about what he'll say to my marrying you?"

"But you'll never marry me, Reggie. Tony will never divorce me."

Reggie kicked the fender impatiently. "Oh, well, what does it matter? Why argue? It can't be helped. We didn't fall in love with each other on purpose. It's—it's—I dunno what to call it. Fate, if you like. How soon can you come? Tomorrow? the day after? Enid, will you come?"

Tears were streaming down Enid's face, but she clung tight to Reggie.

"Yes, yes, I must. I can't help myself. But, oh, Reggie, Reggie, how I wish you had never come into my life! I wasn't happy with Tony, but I ought to have been. I believe he's the kindest, the very gentlest, and most sensitive man in the whole world, and it's awful to think what'll happen to him. We might have gone on as we were. We were always together, and friendship is so much more comfortable than love."

Reggie kicked again. "I can't be a friend. With me it's all or nothing. Don't hark back to the might-have-beens. They're dead, done with. You and I are going to burn our boats. You haven't the—the very least idea how much I love you. When will you come, Enid—when, when?"

"Tomorrow," said Enid Burke.

With a kind of shout he caught her tight, and was on the point of kissing her again and again, when something near the sofa in the recess fell with a crash. Enid flung him away, and turned towards the sofa with both hands to her lips.

Reggie turned too, with a gasp, and saw Burke sitting up, looking from one to the other in a dazed kind of way.

Burke sat rubbing his eyes, only half awake. Enid, as though turned to stone where she stood, hardly breathed, her fingers still on her lips, her eyes filled with a mixture of horror and pity.

As for Reginald Glynde, with head held high and a kind of sneer on his face, there he stood between his oldest friend and the wife of his oldest friend, tingling to the finger-tips with rage and devil-may-care.

"Well, we may as well settle this business straight away now, and have doen with it. There's not much to choose between us, anyway. I think the decent thing to have done would have been to tell us you were here, instead of spying on us from dark corners. However, you haven't heard anything I mind your knowing, that's one thing."

"Heard?" said Tony, still only half awake.

"Oh, that'll do. It's not the faintest good pretending you weren't listening. You heard what I said to your wife, thinking you were in bed. To show you that I'm not afraid of saying it before your face, I tell you I love her more than anyone else on earth."

Tony sprang to his feet, with all the blood in his veins in his face.

"Yes," cried Reggie. "Put that in your pipe and smoke it. I've always loved her, and I've been waiting an opportunity to tell her so."

Tony, as pale as his shirt-front, slowly crossed the room and stood in front of his best friend. "Have you told her so?" he said.

"Yes, I have," said Reggie, looking him square in the face. "Here, tonight, as you, who spied on us from the corner, know very well. And more than that, you know that I have asked her to leave you—a man she doesn't love—and come away with me. Listeners never hear much that's pretty, do they?"

For an instant it seemed that Burke meant to take Reggie by the throat and shake the life out of him. His hands, tense, with the veins standing out upon them, went up, only to fall again almost instantly.

"Enid," he said, "go to bed, dearest. Reggie and I have something to say to each other alone."

Enid wavered, looking from one man to the other.

"Please," added Burke, holding the door open for her.

Tony shut the door calmly, turned quickly, and going back like a whirlwind, with a face twisted with an agony which brought beads upon his forehead, gripped Reggie's two shoulders, and cried: "Did she say she would go with you?"

Reggie looked up into his friend's face—the man he had fought with, rowed with, hunted with, shared banking accounts with. In the eyes he knew so well he read a look of appeal which startled him. The "yes" stopped at the tip of his tongue, and he saw himself, under the hands of the man who loved him, a sneak and a blackguard.

"Tell me," cried Tony again, hoarsely, "for God's sake."

"Didn't you hear anything we were saying, then?"

"No, of course not. I was asleep. I woke up when I put out my arm and knocked over the little table. I heard nothing—nothing. I ask you, for the sake of old times, to tell me the truth."

Almost against his will, filled with a remorse and a pity he would have sworn he was incapable of feeling where the love of a woman was concerned, Reggie spoke: "Your wife is the best woman I have ever met," he said, slowly. "I love her well enough to sacrifice her honor, my honor, and yours; but when I asked her to leave you and come away with me, she—she said: 'No.'"

"No! Then—then she doesn't love you?"

"No," said Reggie again. "Oh, Tony, I'm the worst scoundrel that ever breathed. I'm sorry, I'm sorry."

Reggie was too broken up to wince under the crushing grip Tony gave his hand, and both men were afraid to trust themselves to speak.

"Thanks, old man," said Reggie at last. "I'll wipe this out one of these days and come back again to you. In the meantime I'll get away a bit. I told Enid tonight I was a man who believed in all or nothing. I think nothing is best. Good-by!"

Neither of them heard the suppressed sob, the quick, quiet, closing of the door, or the swift rustle of skirts. And neither of them saw the woman lying face downwards on her bed, sobbing with heaving shoulders, and crying out: "Thank God, thank God!"

OUTLAW GOLD IN CELLAR OF HOUSE

Pilot Rock, Or., May 11.—Eleven thousand dollars in gold and currency is stated to have been unearthed in an old cellar here by J. H. Anderson, who was accompanied by an elderly woman, said to be Anderson's daughter.

The money is said to have been buried forty-two years ago in the cellar of the old Wilson home. The walls had caved in and the place was grass-grown.

Old-timers here, and there are many of them still living, knew the Wilsons. Among these may be named S. L. Moore, ex-United States deputy marshal; Edward Byrd and Justice of the Peace Abe Miller. These men all remember the Wilson family.

The elder Wilson is said to have been a good citizen, coming here about 1861, but his sons were a terror to the country. Two of them served terms in the Oregon penitentiary, one, Bill Wilson, was hanged by vigilantes, or shot, and still another mysteriously disappeared. Emmett Wilson, one of the two remaining sons of the family, is in Arizona.

The elderly woman who accompanied Anderson here is said to be a Wilson, and was about 10 years of age at the time of the burial of the treasure. Anderson is spoken of as an excellent man, and that he had talked over the prospects of finding the treasure with a resident of this town two years ago.

Anderson, it seems, placed but little confidence in the story of the cache, and it is believed reluctantly agreed to make the search. His information as to its whereabouts, however, must have been obtained from some one who saw the money buried, as there was very little unnecessary work, the only doubt apparently being as to which end of the old cellar the money was buried in. In the second hole the hidden gold and greenbacks were uncovered at a depth of three feet.

Anderson secured accommodations at one of the hotels for Tuesday night here, but afterward changed his mind, remaining over night with a Mr. Hemphill, who lives two miles below town. To Mr. Hemphill he said not a word concerning the object of his search, and departed for Pendleton early next morning. It is said the treasure found exceeded $11,000.

THE LARGEST CHURCH IN AMERICA

New Christian Science Temple, Having a Mile and a Half of Pews, Seating 5,000 Persons, to be Dedicated in Boston on June 10.

THE NEW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEMPLE AT BOSTON.

Many Duluth Christian Scientists are preparing to go to Boston early in June to attend the dedication of the magnificent new Christian Science temple that has been erected adjoining the "mother church." The mammoth structure has a mile and a half of pews and will seat about 5,000 persons. The building cost $2,000,000, which was raised by voluntary contributions from members of the faith throughout the world. Several events conspire to make the dedication specially interesting. In the first place, it is coincident with the annual communion, armies of workingmen having worked day and night to get the cathedral completed by June 10, the communion day. Again, the dedication will practically celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the first Christian Science church -the exact day being July 4—and the fortieth anniversary of the discovery of Science by Mrs. Eddy.

The architectural style of the temple is Italian Renaissance. It rises to a greater height than Bunker Hill monument. In shape it is triangular, the dimensions being 220x220x296 feet. Its height is 224 feet, it covers 40,000 square feet of space, has a seating capacity of 5,000 and has facilities for checking 3,000 garments. It has been erected in two years, something remarkable in the history of such buildings. Taken all in all, it is the costliest and most imposing church edifice in New England.

The auditorium contains seven galleries, two o neither side and three at the back, yet not a single pillar or post anywhere in the vast space interrupts the view of the platform from any seat. The roof of the auditorium rises 108 feet from the floor and the entire weight is borne on four arches resting on stone piers, which form the four corners of the auditorium.

The dome surmounting the building, which is its chief architectural feature, gives it the air of an Old World cathedral. It is more than twice the size of the dome of the Massachusetts state house, having a diameter of eighty-two feet and a height of fifty-one feet, or 224 feet above the street, while the statehouse rome has a diameter of fifty-three feet and a height of thirty-five feet.

The "addition," as the new church is termed, dominates and overshadows the "mother church."

The cathedral is built of Bedford limestone, beautifully carved, and contains ornamental columns, arches and cornices. On each side is a great semi-circular swell nearly 100 feet in diameter, which finishes off in a semi-dome. The exterior design of the "mother church" is repeated on two sides. The site of the whole is nearly an equilateral triangle. The frontage, on Falmouth and Norway streets, is about 220 feet each, and on St. Paul street 296 feet.

The first course of the building is of granite from the home of Mrs. Eddy, Concord, N. H., above which is the Bedford stone, probably the most desirable American stone for sculpture and carving, while the semi-domes, the dome and cupola are of semi-glazed terracotta.

The auditorium is up one flight of stairs. The first floor contains two handsome foyers, elliptical in form, surrounded with stone and marble columns. In the center is the Sunday school room, with a seating capacity of 700.

Along one side of the building are three large suites of offices. As far as possible the building is fireproof. The interior is finished with marble floors and marble dadoes and on the first floor the walls are finished in Bedford stone and plaster, the latter being used on the four mammoth arches which support the lofty ceiling.

The seven staircases are of bronze, marble, stone and iron. Steel and stone compose all the interior work of the walls.

The church is heated by indirect steam and ventilated with filtered air, which is forced into the building through the steam coils by means of powerful fans. The boilerhouse is a separate building across the street.

The great organ is placed behind the reader's platform. It has an architectural stone screen and is an imposing feature of the interior. There is also an echo organ. This organ is said to be one of the most perfect in the country.

In 1895 the First Church of Christ Scientist, known as the Mother Church was dedicated in Boston. Now this denomination has more than 900 places of worship and more than a million followers.

AN OLD DULUTH NEWSPAPER

The Morning Call, the First Daily Newspaper Published in This City--Ex-Mayor Sutphin Has Copy of Thirty-Third Number of the First Volume.

Former Mayor John B. Sutphin has just found in his effects a copy of the first daily newspaper published in Duluth. That is to say this is the thirty-third number of the first volume of that publication. Its name was "The Morning Call" and it was published daily except Sunday in Newcomb's block, corner of First street and First avenue east. Its editor and proprietor was Seth Wilbur Payne and its business manager was E. L. Bailey, both of whom will be remembered by the old timers of the Head of the Lakes.

The publication first appeared late in the fall of 1870. The number which Mr. Sutphin has preserved is that of Saturday, January 7, 1871. Each page of which there are four, was 9½ by 6 inches in dimensions and the news part of the paper is set in what printers call 7-point type while the ads. are set in agate. The paper looks like one which a bunch of college boys would get out in a small university for the fun of the thing; but it was Duluth's first daily paper.

Seth Wilbur Payne, the editor and proprietor of this little sheet, after leaving Duluth, went East. Some time after that he got in some kind of trouble—just what, is not known—and it is understood ended his days in prison. Such was the tragic end of Duluth's enterprising journalist.

The news in the paper which Mr. Sutphin has preserved, while written in brief, is of considerable interest, because, occasionally one runs across a name that is still familiar; and then because of the style used and some of the comments. On the front page of the sheet appears a little poem, written by one C. Cameron and entitled "Duluth." It is a song of hope, and the writer's prophetic soul breathed forth his idea of the glorious future of the Zenith City of the unsalted seas. It reads as follows:

"Lift up your heads—redemption's near.
The prospect's brightening every day;
For soon the wheels of commerce will Give plenty work and better pay.

"See how yon beauteous sun does mount,
And higher still ascends the sky!
so will we flourish bright and fair,
A wonder great to every eye.

"The pride of all the Western plane
The Queen of Cities on her throne
Where willing hearts and hands shall find
A golden harvest coming on."

No croaker he. If C. Cameron exists still and has followed the course of Duluth, he doubtless feels endorsed.

Another item states that "Duluth grew 460 houses in '70, besides a theater and the whole crop cost $1,000,000. Now we guess the greenies down East will bug out their eyes. Golly!"

The birth of the first boat club is told of as follows:

"A temporary organization for a boating club was made last evening. A. G. Simonds, secretary. A committee consisting of C. C. Jones, C. Adams and R. F. Marvin, was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws."

The editor also observed that "Some Irish lemons were placed on our table yesterday as a specimen of what can be grown near Duluth. They were from the farm of Mr. E. A. Webster of Rice Lake." As a sample of real estate reporting it is recorded that "Mr. Theobald Dreiss claims to have sold $6,500 worth of real estate in Duluth in four months—which we think is doing very well for a Dutchman."

It is also noticed that "An effort is being made to start a public gymnasium in Duluth."

On the editorial page of the little paper is an interesting article in view of present day conditions here. It is under the caption: "How to Get Rich" and reads as follows:

"How to get rich occupies about as much space in the public mind as any other topic. And then there is another interesting question asked; that is:

"'Who will be the rich men of Duluth ten years hence?'

"This question can be better answered ten or eleven years in the future no doubt; yet coming events throw out a shadow in front so that those who can may read."

Possibly the writer of the editorial, in his wildest hopes, little dreamed that Duluth would become a home of millionaires in such number as the city now boasts.

Mr. Payne states that he met and shook hands with Frank H. Clark, president of the Lake Superior & Mississippi railway. He says that he was disappointed in Mr. Clark because instead of meeting a sharp, surly and sour looking official as he had expected, he met a mild, sociable and unassuming gentleman "with none of those important airs that men with a little power are apt to assume." He says he was disappointed at not receiving some unfavorable impression of President Clark which "would have enabled us to give another proof of the absolute independence of the 'saucy little Call.'"

It is also recorded that Duluth lodge, No. 28, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, which formed on Aug. 28, 1870, with five members had at the time of printing, twenty-six members and was in a flourishing condition. Among the officers elected appear the name of Thomas H. Fresnell, now clerk of the United States court here, as past noble grand. In the business directory appears the name of J. D. Ensign, attorney at law, which is the same gentleman who is now senior judge of the district court of the Eleventh district. The name of Egan & Billson, attorneys, also appear, W. W. Billson, the present eminent attorney of Duluth being the junior partner mentioned. Other attorneys who names appear are Edward F. Parker and Robert G. Terry. Dr. S. C. McCormick, still of Duluth, is mentioned in the list of physicians, L. M. Spalding & Co. appear among the jewelers, and Silberstein & Co. are recorded as carrying a complete assortment of fancy dry goods.

In general the little paper is full of interest for old timers.

GIVING OUT

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Duluth.

Around all day with an aching back;
Can't rest at night;
Enough to make any one "give out."
Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life.
They will cure the backache;
Cure every kidney ill.
Here is Duluth proof that this is so:

Leander Sinotte, rug manufacturer and carpet cleaner, of 1701 Michigan street, Duluth, Minn., and living at the corner of Michigan street and Eighteenth avenue, says: "Some six years ago I gave a testimonial in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, because I felt so well pleased with the prompt relief from trouble with my kidneys and back, which the use of this remedy brought me. I had been annoyed with constant dull pains across the loins and through the kidneys. To stoop or attempt to life anything was sure to bring on sharp twings of pain. The action of the kidneys was irregular. I tried many remedies, until I got Doan's Kidney Pills, but found little relief and no permanent cure. The treatment with this remedy completely drove out the whole trouble, and as six years have passed without any return of the complaint I consider my cure a permanent one."

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, May, 5th, 1906.
In the Matter of the Estate of Samuel J. Klovstad, Deceased:
On receiving and filing the petition of Carrie Klovstad, of the City of Duluth, of the County of St. Louis, Minnesota, representing, among other things, that Samuel J. Klovstad, late of the County of St. Louis, in the State of Minnesota, on the thirteenth day of October, A. D. 1905, at the County of St. Louis, Minnesota, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County and that the said petitioner is the wife of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to her the said Carrie Klovstad, granted;
It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard before said Court on Monday, the 28th day of May, A. D. 1906, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the Probate office, in the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County.
Ordered Further, That notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth in said County, and that a copy of this order be served upon the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

WILL OPEN NEXT WEEK

Baseball Clubs Will Start the Pennant Race Next Thursday.

Managers Are Busy Getting Teams Into Shape for Opening.

Next Thursday the season of the Copper Country and Northern baseball league will be opened in four of the eight cities.

Duluth will play at Fargo; Winnipeg at Grand Forks; Lake Linden at Calument, and Houghton at Hancock.

Everything seems to be in readiness for the opening in all of the four cities, and the eight teams will be prepared to jump into the pennant race in good condition.

The Duluth club has had a start over the other teams, and will have the advantage of longer practice, although the long trip could hardly be counted as of much assistance, as the team was crippled a great part of the time. The weeding out process in the Duluth squad will be begun when the team returns from the Hibbing trip. Three games will be played here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with the Millers, and Wednesday evening the expurgated edition of the team will leave for Fargo, to open the season. Two pitchers will have to be dropped, and probably an infielder and a catcher. Some of these men may be carried a few days after the opening of the season, as the team does not have to be down to the salary limit until June 1.

All of the Copper Country teams are on hand, and the managers are busy pruning down the squads, and in strengthening weak spots. Manager Cassibone of the Houghton team was not satisfied with the bunch of players he had on hand, and discarded all but four. The Calumet team looks like the strongest of the Copper Country teams, on paper, with Lake Linden a close second, and both of these clubs should cut a figure in the pennant race.

The Maroons are practicing in Minneapolis, under the direction of "Spike" Anderson, and if money will turn the trick, Winnipeg will have a pennant winning team in the race this year.

Fargo is also working hard for a first division team, and Capt. Stripp's bunch looks strong.

On the whole, the prospects are that the pennant race this year will be a good one. Duluth, Winnipeg, Fargo, Calumet and Lake Linden all have teams that can be counted on to put up a fast article of ball when they get whipped into shape, and the other three clubs are making every effort to strengthen their nines, and get into the merry race.

The only danger appears to be that in the desire to get pennant winners, the managers will exceed the salary limit, and repeat the extravagance that bankrupted the Northern league two years ago. President Prince, however, declares that after June 1 all of the clubs will be expected to cut down their expenses and get within the limit.

Duluth has made a runaway race of it for two years, and some close competition will be a pleasant novelty. There does not seem to be any question but that the team will have that competition this year, and the closer and more exciting the pennant race, the better the fans will be pleased. Some of the clubs have to lose, but if the race should develop into a four or five cornered affair, it would assure the new league of a successful season.

SPORTING COMMENT

Manager McNeil of the Grand Forks team has a habit of mystery about him that is very annoying to the sporting writers of the Grand Forks papers. They have to be content to chew their pencils and surmise at Mac's movements.

THE FOOTBALL ALLIANCE

After Meeting Each Other Annually for More Than Twenty-five Years, Pennsylvania and Harvard Have Broken Away --- Michigan-Quaker Two-Year Tieup.

Last week witnessed a sensational making and breaking of intercollegiate football alliances. In both the universities of Pennsylvania and Michigan have figured prominently. After meeting each other annually for more than twenty-five years, Pennsylvania and Harvard have broken off football relations, and it is understood that relations will also be severed in baseball after this year. In the Middle West, Chicago University has acceded to the request of the university of Wisconsin for a discontinuance of their championship games, at least, for the present. Not only has Chicago done this with respect to Wisconsin, but she has virtually asked to be released from her agreement to play Michigan again this fall, a request which Michigan speedily granted.

With four of the largest universities of the East and West severing football relations, new alliances were expected. The new alliance has come in the shape of a two-year agreement between Pennsylvania and Michigan. The first game is to be played in Philadelphia on Nov. 17 and the second in Chicago in 1907. There are persistent rumors of other changes to be made in the relation of other big universities, but they have not been made public yet.

The most sensational feature was the break between Pennsylvania and Harvard. It was a matter of common knowledge that the feeling between the Quakers and the Crimson was none too friendly, but even the majority of Harvard's supporters who wanted to see the Crimson break did not think that the New Englanders would do it after having been defeated in two successive games by the Red and Blue. It is also pretty generally known that Harvard would have dropped Pennsylvania anyhow a year ago in case the Crimson had won the annual game. But two straight defeats were irritating and the Crimson feared that Harvard would be referred to as a quitter if a game were refused to Pennsylvania.

The whole trouble between Harvard and Pennsylvania has been the eligibility of the rival athletes. Both institutions have virtually the same eligibility codes, and one is presumably as honest as the other. Within the last ten years Harvard has continually found fault with some of Penn's football players, and the Quakers have used at least one man who was not eligible. Harvard, on the other hand, has played four professionals against Pennsylvania in the person of Cutts, the great tackle, and Clarkson, Matthews and Maher, the last three named being baseball players. According to the version of the Quakers, Harvard has never lodged a protest except when her team seemed doomed to a defeat. The Quakers further allege that in the days when their team was known to be weak Harvard was always perfectly satisfied with the eligibility of the Pennsylvania players. The attitude taken by the Pennsylvania authorities persisted in determining the eligibility of their own men and have resented protests. They likewise insist that Harvard and other rival schools shall be the judges of their players, each assuming the other to be frank and honest.

Harvard's continued protests year after year have wrought the Quakers up to such a pitch that many advocated dropping Harvard in preference to having trouble each year. Harvard men evidently came to the same conclusion, so hereafter the Crimson will either not play the game at all or will meet some of the New England colleges instead. The hope of the Pennsylvanias is that Princeton can be met on the gridiron, and if this wish is realized the loss of the Harvard game will not be felt. Princeton and Pennsylvania are natural rivals, geographically and historically, and are quite certain to bury past differences sooner or later.

The coming contest between Pennsylvania and Michigan will probably arouse more interest than did the Harvard-Pennsylvania game. It will be the first meeting between two big teams which are admitted to represent the strength of the two sections. Last year Penn and Yale tied for the championship of the East and Michigan virtually tied Chicago for the Western same honor, being beaten only by a safety, which was in reality an accident. This year Michigan will be coached by Fielding H. Yost, who has never been beaten before last year. Yost has always wanted to get a crack at one of the socalled championship teams of the East and now that he has a chance the wonderful Michigan coach will be in his element. Penn and Michigan have played on but one other occasion. This was in 1899 when the Quakers won by the score of 11 to 10. This, however, was before Yost took charge at Michigan.

The meeting between Penn and Michigan will go a long way toward determining the relative strength of the two sections. Western men have always claimed that their game was faster and more open than the Eastern style. This is not as true of the Pennsylvania game as of the other Eastern schools, for the Quakers have long been noted for their open playing.

Whether or not Harvard is to play football this year is not yet known and will not be before the close of the spring preliminary practice. After it is concluded the athletic committee must make a report on the new rules to the board of overseers of the university and this body will then determine the fate of the game at the Crimson university. The chances are that Harvard will be permitted to play a limited number of games with the smaller institutions, and possibly one with Yale.

If there is to be an intersectional track and field meet between the college athletes of the East and West it will be accomplished only by a challenge from the West. The East is not seeking the meet, and apparently does not care to risk a defeat by taking the initiative. This statement is the result of the careful consideration of the whole matter given to it at the meeting of the executive committee of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. in Philadelphia last Saturday. At this meeting every aspect of the situation was looked at, the result being that the East put the whole thing up to the West.

For two years the Western institutions have been trying to arrange this meeting. Their success at the University of Pennsylvania relays and other meetings year after year has fired them with the hope and belief that they can beat the East in a dual meeting. The East has been requested on more than one occasion to arrange this meeting, but so far has declined. At last week's meeting the Easterners agreed to come to terms only on condition that the Western association should send a formal challenge. The attitude of the East is expressed by the statement of a member of the I. C. A. A. A. A. executive committee to the write. He said:

"The I. C. A. A. A. A. is not a section or Eastern association, as some seem to think. It has been in existence for thirty years; in fact, long before the Western or Conference association was formed. It is a national body and could not, therefore, issue a challenge to the Western association, though, for the sake of argument, it might be admitted that the two bodies are separate and sectional. But if the West wants to take the initiative and forward a challenge, I think that it would be an easy matter to arrange all the details."

Whether or not the West could beat the East in such a meeting is an open question. A study of the records made at the Western intercollegiates a year ago, and those of the Eastern meeting shows the startling fact that, counting only winners, the Chicago team could have won the championship of the East and likewise defeated the Cornell champions in a dual meet. At the same time, the permanent records of the East are superior to those of the West.

This year the West would probably have its hands more than full because of the heavy loses sustained by the University of Chicago team, which is without the services of the great Lightbody, winner of the mile and half-mile runs; Catlin, Hogenson, Blair and others. At any rate, the meet would be of absorbing interest and would certainly result in many new American records.

Because of the Eastern attitude it is doubtful if arrangements can be perfected this year because of the lateness of the season. But if the Western men really want to show their superiority by sending a challenge, they can undoubtedly be accommodated next year. If the meeting is finally arranged the dates of the Eastern and Western championships would probably be the same, the last Saturday in ay, so that the national meet could be held on the first Saturday in June.

BELMONT'S LATEST PURCHASE.

Rocksand, winner of the Derby, Two Thousand Guineas, St. Ledger and other races to the total value of £47,568, has been sold to August Belmont, the chairman of the American Jockey club, for £25,000.

TRAINING HAS BEGUN

Boat Club Crews Have Been Out Regularly During Week.

More New Oarsmen Are Wanted by the Rowing Committee.

The week has seen the boat club crews getting down to practice for the approaching regatta on July 13.

The weather has been favorable for rowing, although a little cold to be agreeable.

All of the men who intend to row have not yet begun turning out regularly, and it has been difficult to get more than two or three fours on the bay, at one time, as yet.

The members of last year's eight have shown the most enthusiasm, and a four composed of Whyte, L'Estrange, Haroldson and Church, has been out regularly. If this four can be held together it should be heard from in the July regatta. The boat is well balanced, and last summer's training got the men accustomed to each other.

Members of the rowing committee are on hand from 5 o'clock until 8 o'clock each evening, to coach the new men and teach them the stroke that is used by the club.

Next week should see two or three times the number of men out in the shells. The cafe is running now, and the house committee has secured the services of a competent chef, who furnishes meals to the members at about the same price that is charged in any of the restaurants. This allows the oarsmen to get in their practice, and have the evening to themselves if they desire it.

The regatta is now only two months off, and there is no time to be lost if the club is to be well represented on that occasion. Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Fort William and St. Paul crews are all hard at work, and the enthusiasm at Winnipeg is shown by the fact that about twenty four-oared crews are entered for a club regatta. The Duluth club should have a junior and senior eight, and at least two junior and two senior fours in the July regatta, in addition to those who enter the sculling events, and a lot of material is needed for these crews.

HERMANN AND ATTEL

Fight Twenty Rounds to a Draw at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 12.—Kid Hermann of Chicago and Abe Attel of San Francisco fought twenty rounds to a draw last night, before the Pacific Athletic club. The fight was one of the cleverest and fastest ever seen in Los Angeles, Attel using all his cleverness and speed to avoid the sturdy rushes of Hermann and save himself from defeat. Hermann forced the fighting from the start to finish, but not until the last four or five rounds was he able to land on Attel effectively. In the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth rounds Hermann had a big advantage and it seemed for a time that Attel would go down. He rallied in the nineteenth and twentieth, however, and Referee Eyton promptly called the battle a draw. The betting was 10 to 9 on Hermann. There was about 15,000 persons present.

Hermann was much dissatisfied with the decision, but Attel seemed to like it.

DIFFICULT TO SECURE

Suitable Nickname for League Has Not Yet Been Suggested.

Those That Are Offered Do Not Seem to Fill Bill.

Some time ago The Herald took exception to the name of the Copper Country and Northern league, as being too long and too cumbersome, and called for some suggestions from the fans, for a suitable nickname for the new league.

A number of suggestions have been received in response to the article, but none of them seem to quite fill the bill.

Following is a letter from an enthusiastic fan of the gentler sex, who lives in Winnipeg:

"I noticed in the Winnipeg Free Press that you were desirous of a name for the Copper Country and Northern ball league. I would suggest the name "Hobble-de-Hoys." I am a Winnipeg lady and think this a very suitable name for the league. Yours for luck,

"MRS. JOHN BENNETT."

A local fan, Alfred W. Roden, suggests the name "Three M" league, owing to the fact that he majority of the clubs are located in Michigan, Manitoba and Minnesota.

Among the other suggestions that have been received from annonymous contributors, are "The Northwestern League," "The Northwestern Association," "The International League" and "The Teddy and Eddy League." The later suggestion probably refers to the president and King Edward as patron saints of the organization.

None of the names suggested appear to exactly fill the requirements. There is nothing distinctive about them, with the exception of the Three M league, and this does not quite truthfully designate the league.

There is already a Northwestern league on the Pacific coast, and the International league is almost as cumbersome as the Copper Country and Northern.

The fans therefore will have to continue to use the double-jointed pseudonym until something better is suggested.

HALF SISTER TO BLUES.

Noted Youngster Roaming Broad Acres of the Raceland Stud.

Lexington, Ky., May 12.—One of the most valuable yearlings in all America is now roaming the broad acres of Raceland Stud, the property of Catesby Woodford, the noted Bourbon county breeder. It is a half sister to Blue Girl, Blues and Blue Ribbon, the 1905 foal of the famous Bonnie Blue II, a mare whose produce have already won away over $100,000 on the turf. This filly is by the royally bred young English horse, imp. Star Shoot, a son of the world's greatest money winning horse, Isinglass, and the leading winning sire of England in 1905. She is a chestnut in color, the same as her dam and famous half sister, Blue Girl, and her owner, who has had much to do with great mares on the turf, having been one of the breeders of Miss Woodford, Belle of Runnymede, Sallie McClelland and Millie, as well as Blue Girl, regards this filly as superior to any of these stars in promise at the same age, and not excelled by any youngster of her sex ever raised in Bourbon county.

She had every advantage since she was foaled, never having been sick an hour, and while running at the side of her dam, Bonnie Blue II, was all the time in superior condition and perfect as a suckler.

The filly now weighs on the border of 900 pounds, and, with better grass at han every day, by June she will be an unusually large spring yearling. It is not improbable that she will sell for as much as any yearling which changed hands this year, either colt or filly. Tee half brother, Little Boy Blue, now a 2-year-old, in the stable of H. P. Whitney, sold as a yearling for $4,700, while the late Capt. S. S. Brown paid $10,000 for her half brother, Blue Ribbon, as a yearling. Few better 2-year-olds, either colts or fillies, have faced the barrier in this country than this filly's half sister, Blue Girl. She won her first start, the Juvenile Stakes, and then annexed the Eclipse, Great American, Great Trial and Great Filly stakes as a 2-year-old, and the Gazelle and Ladies' stakes as a 3-year-old. She earned on the turf a total of $71,850, and in 1904 sold as a brood mare for $10,000. Her first foal, Tammany Hall, by imp. Meddler, will race as a 2-year-old this season.

WHITE SOX WIN FIRST

Defeat Fast Hibbing Team by Score of 8 to 6.

Fast Work in Field Pulls Treadway Out of Hole.

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—The Duluth White Sox took revenge on the local team here yesterday afternoon, and by superior playing in all departments of the game, won out by a score of 8 to 6.

The visitors had everything their own way until the last half of the ninth inning, when the score stood 8 to 1.

Treadway, who was in the box, was only saved from defeat by the errorless support accorded him in the field. He had terrific speed, but no control, and in his desire to keep from walking the batsmen, he would put over a straight ball, waist high, to which the miners took very kindly. He pitched himself into several bad holes in this manner, but the snappy support of his team mates saved him from disaster until the ninth.

In the sixth inning, Grick robbed Hibbing of two runs with a sensational catch of a line drive to center field which looked good for three bases. There were two out and two men on the bases at the time.

In the ninth inning, Hibbing found Treadway freely, and his wildness aided them in piling up five runs. They could not make the required number to tie the score, however, and the game ended with the score 8 to 6.

Freeman did not pitch yesterday, having been saved for today's game. His place was taken by Lehr, who pitched good ball, but was not given the support that was due him. Leonard, the Duluth backstop, has been signed for the season, and caught yesterday.

The Duluth team was somewhat disorganized yesterday. Hunchie was unable to catch, owing to the condition of his arm, and Ludwig had to take his place. Graham's arm was so sore that he had to switch positions with Livingstone at second, and Krick took Ludwig's place in center field.

Catcher Adams is expected here in time for today's game.

The batteries today will be Freeman and Leonard for Hibbing, and Nornstrom and Adams for Duluth.

The score yesterday follows:

	R.	H.	E.
Duluth	2	0	0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1—8	11	0
Hibbing	0	1	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 5—6	16	4

Batteries—Duluth, Treadway and Ludwig. Hibbing, Lehr and Leonard. Bases on balls—Off Treadway, 7; off Lehr, 4. Struck out—By Treadway, 7; by Lehr, 5. Time of game, two hours. Attendance, 400. Umpire, McFadden.

BASEBALL IN ENGLAND.

America's National Game is Making Progress With the English.

London, May 12.—Make it as strong as over you can when you say that baseball, America's national game, is coming in England. The writer was present at the two meetings held at the Charterhouse Hotel here in London, and ventures to prophesy that within the year the nucleus of a twenty-club baseball league will be formed, and they will be playing ball as it is played in the states though not quite the same quality.

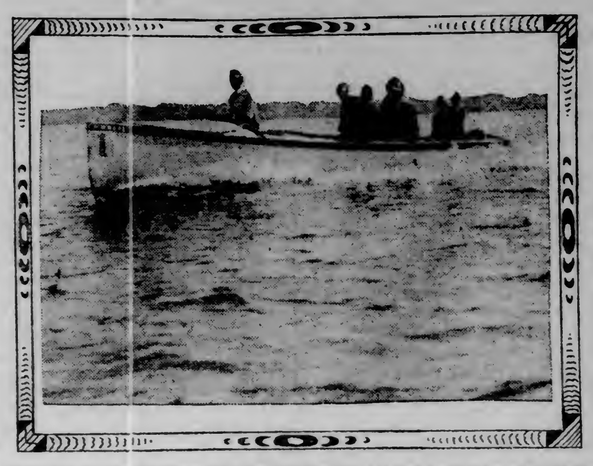
The first meeting took place on April 9th and was attended by representatives from the following football clubs, the most famous in the South of England: Tottenham Hotspurs, Woolwich Arsenal, Chelsea, Fulham, West Ham and Milwall. Here it was that a resolution was passed that the British Baseball association be formed and the motion was carried unanimously. The movement has been started by a writer (Mr. McQueeny) on the Football Star and Football Evening News, who first saw the game played by A. G. Spalding's famous team at the North American college at Rome, ably assisted by Nelson P. Cook, an American from Vermont, who has been here fifteen years, and who is a veritable baseball crank. The Daily Mail, in a leader entitled To Oust Cricket, said that the reason the baseball movement was started at this time was because the cricket authorities seem utterly disinclined to do anything which would make cricket more popular as a spectacle.

Mr. Cook's assertion that a game of baseball could be played in two hours and that it would not be lengthened out into three days' play, as cricket is, with the result even then a draw, was received with enthusiasm by the crowd of free lances who were present at the meeting on April 10th. Over 100 were present, eager to discover where they might learn the game. Among the audience were many native Englishmen, who had visited the states, and who said England had no game that could compare with baseball.

Mr. McQueeny, who was chairman of both meetings, met the argument that rounders should first be played before baseball with the statement that were we to do that, we might in fifteen years play the game the Americans would be playing today, and that even then we should be fifteen years behind the times. This opinion was loudly applauded by everyone present except him who made the objection.

An agreement will be sought between the National League of Professional Baseball clubs of the United States of America and the British Baseball association, in order that the new organization may be protected from outlaw and broken-down players seeking engagements here and spoiling the movement in its inception. Therefore, no ball player shall be allowed to play here unless he has a written permission to do so, signed by the secretary of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs of the United States of America.

NEW MOTOR BOATS OF THE TORPEDO TYPE FOR DULUTH



MOTOR BOAT WHITE, VERY SWIFT BOAT THAT WILL BE HERE THIS SUMMER.

Motor boat racing promises to become one of the popular summer sports in Duluth this year, and many new boats of a speedy type will be seen on the Duluth harbor.

Last year there were but three boats owned in Duluth, which could be called motor boats. They were the property of Richard Schell, W. D. Jones and C. O. Nelson.

This year there will be at least seven speedy launches, and the number may be greatly increased before the summer is over.

A new White exhibition boat is being brought to Duluth by Garfield Wood, for exhibition purposes. It has an engine of a new kerosene type, which is capable of developing eighty horse power. The boat is forty-two feet in length, and will be a very powerful and speedy craft. It is expected that it will be able to attain a speed of twenty-five miles an hour. The engine is more or less of an experiment at the Head of the Lakes, but if it is up to expectations, it will work something of a revolution in motor boats.

The White, which is the name of the new vessel, has been in use on Lake Minnetonka, and with her old engine proved a very speedy craft.

The new Bisbee III., owned by Richard Schell, will be one of the speediest boats in the Northwest. She has a length of thirty-seven feet, and a forty horse power engine, which will drive the launch at a speed of from twenty-two to twenty-three miles an hour.

The Duluth Boat club will have at least one and possibly two new motor boats of the torpedo type. They will be twenty-five feet in length and will have a maximum speed of thirteen miles an hour.

The Bisbee II., which was owned by Richard Schell last year, will be run by Frank Wade this summer. It has an engine of about twenty horse power and a speed of fifteen or sixteen miles an hour.

W. D. Jones still has his last year's boat, which is a thirty-foot craft, with a speed of fifteen miles an hour or better.

Prescott Wyman has ordered a new boat of the Lake Shore type, with an eight-horse power engine, which will be good for about twelve or thirteen miles.

Garfield Wood will also probably have a second boat here this summer, with a forty-horse power kerosene engine. The boat is twenty-five feet in length and will have a speed of about eighteen miles an hour.

This is but an incomplete list of the motor boats of the torpedo type, which will be seen in Duluth this year. Others have been ordered, and the number may be more than doubled before the summer is over.

In other parts of the country motor boat racing has become a very popular form of amusement, and Duluth has unsurpassed facilities for it. Calm water can almost always be secured on either the lake or the bay, and along the shore of Park Point there is a straightaway course nearly seven miles in length, which gives the owners of such craft every opportunity for a test of speed.

FRISCO IS DESERTED

By the Fighters, New York Being Their Mecca Now.

Sam Berger and Jack O'Brien to Box Four Rounds.

San Francisco, May 12.—Many prominent pugilists have gone to New York and others are preparing to go. The earthquake and fire are in some measure responsible for the exodus, but there are other reasons for the grand trek Eastward. Certain astute managers of New York have contrived to insert a thin edge of the wedge in their city so far as boxing is concerned. There was a test case recently, in which a decision was rendered which made short bouts possible.

It is said that Tim Hurst and his associates have procured control of Madison Square garden and are reaching out in all directions for high-class ring talent. In all probability the contest will be limited to four rounds and the services of a referee will be dispensed with. This is the style of fisticuffs in Philadelphia and it is very popular among champions and "near champions." The returns are good, the punishment is not severe and no decisions being rendered, there is not the same danger of loss of reputation that there is under the system of fighting that is in vogue here on the coast.

Sam Berger left for New York last Saturday, accompanied by Jack Gleason. Sam is to meet Jack O'Brien in a short contest in New York. Before the quake there was talk of Berger and O'Brien meeting in San Francisco for the world's championship. In the New York mill no championship will be involved and it goes without saying that the two heavyweights will draw a big house. New York has been so long without ring sport that almost any kind of a match will be acceptable.

The Britts—Jimmy and Willus—have also gone East. They have a promise of a match between Jimmy and Terry McGovern at Madison Square in the near future. Willus says that they are not deserting San Francisco by any means. eH believes that in the course of a couple of months this will be a very busy place, that there will be much money in circulation and a keen demand for boxing contests. While he is East it is his intention to secure the largest tent he can find, his purpose being to erect a canvas arena on his return. Joe Gans left for New York several days ago, and by this time is probably at his home in Baltimore. Gans intends to try for matches in New York.

Joe Thomas and Harry Foley have gone to Chicago, while Hock Keys, the Australian fighter, is by this time in New York. He is being chaperoned by Billy Roche, who will arrange matches for him.

Eddie Hanlon will leave for the Atlantic seaboard within a day or two and will place himself in the hands of Bob Deady, the Philadelphia sporting man.

Eddie was one of the unfortunate ones, the flats he purchased for his mother in the Mission being burned. He did not lose his head, however. While the fire was creeping closer to the hills and the people of the Mission were backing away from it, Eddie came across a panic-stricken family which offered its furniture for sale for a song. Eddie bought the stuff with the understanding that his family take possession of the house at the prevailing rent if the place was not burned. The fire stopped short of the spot, and Hanlon's family have now a roof to cover them and a houseful of phenomenally cheap furniture.

It is now definitely settled, apparently, that, Fiesta or no Fiesta, the Nelson-Herrera battle will come off at Los Angeles as per the original schedule, May 25. Manager McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club has heroically announced that, although he stands to lose $5,000—my, what a bunch of money!—he will nevertheless pull off the fight.

It is to be earnestly hoped that Mr. McCarey's zeal for the good of sport will not allow him to be drawn into any such expenditure, and despite his pessimistic utterings, it is not likely that any such financial calamity will overtake him. It is pretty safe to say that the Californian, while he may not make any great amount on the fight, has made some sort of a compromise with the fighters regarding the $25,000 purse originally offered, and that all concerned will be satisfied to get what they can out of the enterprise and let it go at that. The little shakeup at San Francisco has made considerable effect in the pugilistic market, for a while at least.

So Herrera and Nelson are working hard these days and will be in shape to put up one of the best battles that has occurred in these parts for some time. Sentiment still continues to favor the Dane, on account of his previous win over the Mexican, but it must be remembered that the margin was a narrow one in the first encounter, and that Herrera was in never so good condition as at present. In fact, it is said that only in the past few months has he ever taken a training schedule seriously.

* * *

The Attell-Nell go has been called off, and instead Kid Herman will hook up with Little Abey. The match was probably suggested by the very interesting bout that the boys put up on the occasion of the Los Angeles benefit for their Frisco brethren. The two will meet at 128 pounds, which means that Attell will have something like five or six pounds the worst of it, as he can easily do 122. In these days of hogging over a pound between the little fellows, this looks like a burst of generosity on the part of the little fellow that will take all his reputed cleverness to overcome. Of course, a defeat for him at Herman's hands will not mean much of a setback, as he will still retain the featherweight championship, and probably will receive an even split of the purse anyway.

On the day that you make your first purchase of real estate, you become important to Duluth and the city becomes important to you. The real estate ads. should mean much more to you than a mere certain number of lines of type.

GIANTS NAG THE UMPIRE

When There is Nothing Else to Do in the Game.

Bunch of Remarkable Figures on Attendance at Boston.

Boston, May 12.—Hustling counts for much on the ball field. I was very much interested with the tactics of the New York Giants in a game here, when they found the clever Irvin Young in the box, and knew that it would take extra work to defeat the local team. Umpire Conway was behind the bat in this game and the New York boys went after the young umpire from the first ball pitched until the last man went out. Conway was consistently giving Young the small end of the decisions on balls and strikes, and yet the New York men tried to make it appear that he was giving them a terrible roast. The Giants worked like sailers, never letting "up—in fact their good work with the stick and on the bases was commendable in every way, and what they were saying to the umpire could only be heard by those in the front seats, and perhaps that was a good thing for the game. It was the old Baltimore team over again, but this time it was the umpire and not their fellow players, Mack's men were scolding. As each man passed the umpire they would make some remark, until finally McGann, Bresnahan and McGraw were put out of the grounds by Conway. Note the four names, all of Celtic origin, every man out for a salary, the umpire doing his best to please, and doing it certainly in a way fair to the visitors, and yet the trio must be doing something for effect—perhaps to give the umpire something to think of. There was an object in the uncalled-for nagging. The result was that Pitcher Young was actually affected and put up a weak all-round game as the contest went along, the Giants finally winning out as a result of his poor work. I saw Secretary Fred Knowles after the game, and he informed me that the New York players complained of Conway's breath saying that he had been drinking and was under the influence during the game.

What were the honest facts! A friend of mine living at the same hotel with Conway and Bob Emslie told me that he was with the umpires the night before, as well as that morning, and heard them refuse to take a drink of any kind. I was speaking with Conway just before the game and was impressed with his few remarks. I also had a talk with him after the game, and took pains to note if he was under the influence, and can say positively that he was not. Now, doesn't it seem unfair to pass around the cold-blooded lies about an umpire doing his duty to a management who naturally listens to stories of this kind and then tries to make it easy for players?

I could forgive every act of the New York men, as they are out for blood and fine workmen, but must pass up players who will try to harm a good umpire, and had the nerve to pick the big fellows out, and no two men in the business need the call-downs that McGann and Bresnahan do.

I did think that President Pulliam had things to his liking, and hereafter the players of the National league would cut out umpire baiting, as the players of the American league were forced to, but such is not the case. The Giants under McGraw went through the great series last fall without one objectionable move, and the players were given praise on all sides. There is no good reason why the same players cannot play good ball and cut out the feature of the game that has ruined the sport in the past. But such is the effect of this style of hustling that umpires actually give the kickers a shade the best of it for reasons hard to explain, and the cunning John McGraw is onto this fact with both feet.

It's remarkable how close New York and Boston American teams keep together. Two years ago they fought it out for the championship right up to the last day. Last season they were tied up to the last ten days, when Boston took a spurt and beat them out for fourth place, and this season they have shown a disposition to leave the mark rather late, Boston getting a poor start, but showing better form as the season warms up. The race in the American league is bound to be interesting, for each of the eight clubs, while at least three clubs in the National league are now putting forward every effort to keep away from the last hole. New York's Giants are getting their usual good start through the poor playing of their Eastern rivals, who play against New York as if they were never supposed to scrap for all in sight.

Outside of New York the pitching staffs of the National league clubs in the East look only fair. Boston has the left-hander Irvin Young. Philadelphia has Pettinger, the others are only ordinary workmen, while New York has stars in McGinnity, Amos Taylor, with the phenomenal Matheson in reserve, and to win games you must have extra fine bagmen these days.

I notice a lack of speed this season among the pitchers, while all are overdoing the slow ball business, and the wise ones cutting out the cross-fire delivery and spitball, as dangerous for the salary wing. Batting averages are bound to improve this season toward the close.

The large attendance at the American league grounds in Boston on the afternoon of April 19, given out as 28,000, has bothered several writers who can see no good in the young member of baseball society, one Western writer going so far as to declare that you couldn't get 17,000 people on the grounds unless you moved the fence back. The fact is that between 17,000 and 18,000 can be seated at this park since the increased bleachers were put in right field.

In the fall of 1903 Pittsburg played to nearly 19,000 people, as Mr. Dreyfuss can testify. Since that time new bleachers to seat fully 6,000 people have been added to the park accommodations.

In the fall of 1904 the New York club was paid for over 24,000 people, which the books of the American league will show. The crowd of April 19 was larger than the one of 24,000, as hundreds who were at both games can testify.

Paid crowds of over 20,000 have been a common thing at the same grounds. The Huntington Avenue Park leads all for paid attendance for one afternoon, well past the 24,000 mark on two occasions. The nearest to the Boston Count attended the New York-Athletic game at the Polo grounds last fall, just over the 24,000 mark, but short of the Boston attendance. The American league books in President Johnston's office as well as the books of the New York club, for it was the attraction on both occasions, will back up this statement about the Boston park. I heard a gentleman offer to wager last season $1,000 with Mr. Herrmann of Cincinnati, that Boston had then played to the largest paid attendance ever known in baseball, notwithstanding that one crowd at the New York Polo grounds was estimated at $5,000. Mr. Herrmann acknowledged that he had labored under a misapprehension and was agreeably surprised to learn that the attendance at the Boston American grounds was positively over 24,000.

In 1889 New York and Boston were fighting for the championship and drew 60,000 people to witness six straight games, divided between the two cities. A wonderful attendance, yet in the middle of April New York came here and played to 60,000 in three days when both teams were bringing up the rear of the procession.

T. H. MURNANE.

THIS IS A "HANDSOME" INDIAN.

Wahoo, the star of this year's Carlisle Indian baseball team, is a catcher at present from choice, having spent the major portion of his youthful years in almost every position on the baseball diamond. Wahoo, whose family name is derived from the French, Gyon, is a handsome fellow, and through the West has ravished the hearts of thousands of impassionable maidens who have seen the Haskell Indians play the gridiron game. He has played all football positions except center.

LARGE LIST OF ENTRIES

Great Interest is Being Taken in Approaching Field Meet.

Boys From All the Principal Grade Schools Will Compete.

Everything is in readiness for the interscholastic field meet, to be conducted by the Duluth boys' department, Y. M. C. A., for the public schools at the Driving park, West Third street, Saturday afternoon, May 19.

If the weather is favorable the meet will be the biggest ever held in Duluth. Great excitement exists among the boys of the city, and all the schools are working hard to win the trophy. The pennant will be bigger than last year, and made of red and green silk, with gold lettering. The gold and silver medals and the ribbons are on exhibition in the Kelley Hardware company's window, and are attracting a lot of attention. The entry list is complete, with the exception of the Emerson, Lester and Franklin schools. The track officials will be selected at a meeting held today.

All of the schools reported that a great deal of interest was being taken, and that they would be represented by a large crowd of rooters.

Following is the list of entries:

Fifty-yard dash—Burdett Pillsbury, Endion school; Roy Drake, Irving; Arthur Branscombe, Madison; George Bonham, Lakeside; Arnold Berg, Lincoln; Mortimer Bondy, Jefferson; George Neville, Lowell; George Bailey, Jackson; Israel Feildman, Longfellow; Charles Mooney, Washington.

Potato race—Roy Smith, Endion; Harold Method, Irving; George Bonham, Lakeside; Arthur Hunter, Lincoln; M. Bondy, Jefferson; George Bailey, Jackson; Israel Abrahamson, Longfellow; Matt Brown, Washington.

Sack race—Matt Brown, Washington; Arthur Stavrum, Endion; Harold Method, Irving; George Ward, Lakeside; Philip Pare, Lincoln; Mortimer Bondy, Jefferson; George Neville, Duluth Heights; M. Pepper, Jackson.

Half-mile—Robert Mars, Endion; Clarence McMartin, Endion; Leonard Larson, Irving; Harry Engstrom, Irving; Charles McKenzie, Madison; Geo. Borgeson, Lakeside; William Stevens, Will Crozier, Lincoln; Ben Nelson, Jefferson; M. Bondy, Jefferson; Chas. Arbogast, Jackson; Matt Edwards, Washington.

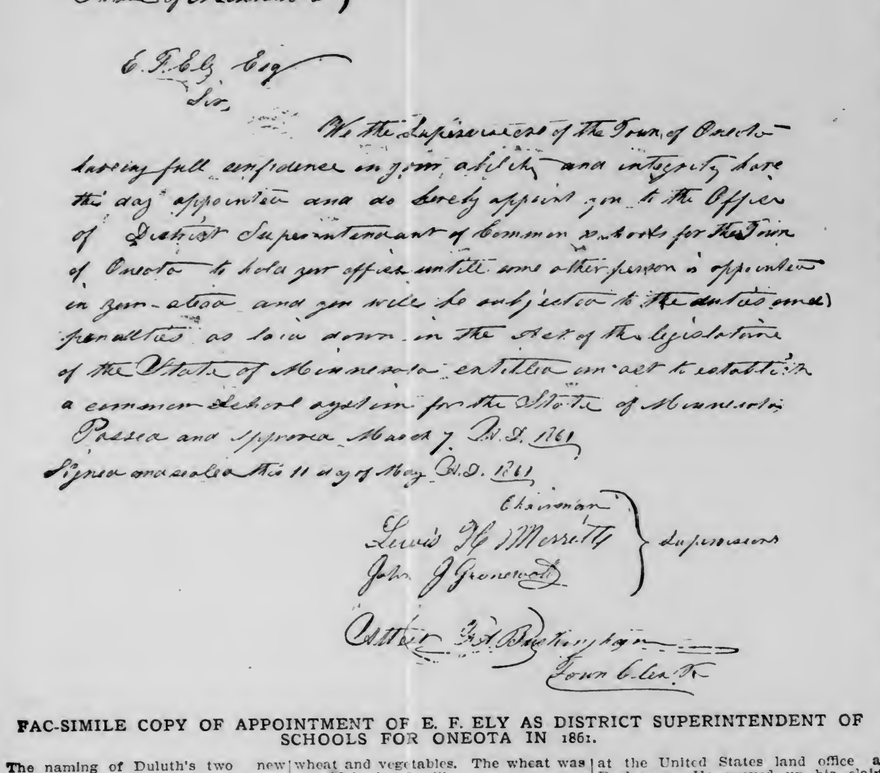
WOODEN LEG HIS CLUB.

Iowa Woman Alleges That Her Husband Beat Her Severely.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, May 11.—Given a sound beating by her husband's wooden leg, Mrs. Nettie Cue thinks she has sufficient grounds for a divorce. Mr. and Mrs. Cue live at Des Moines, and he sought a divorce from her, but she filed a cross-bill and cites the beating as a reason why she should have a decree.

Mrs. Cue says they were married at Careston in 1901, and that shortly after her husband acquired the habit of abusing and beating her and finally unstrapped his wooden leg and used it as a means of chastisement. She says that despite his infirmity he can outrun her and that she is unable to escape when he starts out to discipline her.

SCHOOLS NAMED AFTER TWO PROMINENT EARLY SETTLERS AT HEAD OF THE LAKES



FAC-SIMILE COPY OF APPOINTMENT OF E. F. ELY AS DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS FOR ONEOTA IN 1861.

The naming of Duluth's two new school buildings after two of the most prominent of the early settlers at the Head of the Lakes, has naturally aroused considerable interest in the history of these two men, whose names are so closely associated with the early days in Duluth.

The new Sixth street school has been named the Nettleton school in honor of the memory of William Nettleton, and the new building at West Duluth will be known as the Ely school, in honor of Edmund F. Ely.

The following is a brief history of Rev. Edmund F. Ely, contributed by his son, H. S. Ely, to the history of Duluth, written by Judge Carey:

"Edmund Franklin Ely was born at Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 3, 1809, and died at Santa Rosa, Cal., Aug. 29, 1902.

"Mr. Ely made a profession of religion in Rome, N. Y., in 1827. In 1828 he commenced study with a view to entering the gospel ministry. Dependent on his own efforts for the means of defraying the necessary expenses, he devoted part of his time to teaching, and in 1831 taught music and was leader of the choir in the Fourth Presbyterian church in Albany. At the same time he was one of a private class of students taught by the pastor, Rev. Edward N. Kirk. In 1832 the American Board of Foreign Missions established mission stations on Lake Superior and, having been in want of preachers, Mr. Ely, whose health at the time was poor, accepted an invitation to go to that country as assistant teacher. He was subsequently appointed teacher and catechist, expecting to return in two years to resume his studies, but the way never opened for his return. He left Albany July 5, 1833.

"On reaching Mackinac he found that the missionaries that had preceded him had departed with a party of Indian teachers. He was forwarded by Henry W. Schoolcraft, Indian agent, and in three days overtook the boats on Lake Superior. At that time there were no vessels on that lake. Mr. Ely was assigned to a branch of the mission of the Ojibways on the Upper Mississippi, under the direction of Rev. William T. Boutwell, and proceeded to Sandy Lake, where, after a time, he was left by Mr. Boutwell with the joint duties of missionary and teacher resting on him. In the summer of 1834, the school was removed from Sandy Lake to Fond du Lac, at the head of navigation on the St. Louis, where a schoolhouse had been built by Mr. Ely. In 1835 a reinforcement of teachers was sent by the board. One of them Miss Catherine Goulais soon became the wife of Mr. Ely. Here they labored until May, 1839, when they were removed to Pokegama, a mission station near a small lake of the same name. In May, 1840, occurred the battle of Pokegama, when the mission was surrounded and attacked by more than 100 Sioux. The attack began at 8 o'clock on Monday. The Sioux were finally driven away by the resident Ojibways. No demonstrations were made against the missionaries. From this time until 1849, the work was carried on under great disadvantages, when for the better education of his children Mr. Ely removed to St. Paul. Rev. E. D. Neil, in referring to Mrs. Ely, says she was born at Sault Ste. Marie in November, 1817, and was married on Aug. 20, 1835.

"In a letter written by Mr. Ely to Herman Ely of Elyria, O., in 1881, he says: 'When I first entered the work on Lake Superior, that portion of the country was included in the territory of Michigan. After Michigan was admitted as a state, the territory of Wisconsin was organized. Minnesota at that time was Indian Territory. The first party of white men I saw, was a crew of lumbermen engaged in their business on the waters of St. Croix, in 1838, several years before there was any settlement where the city of St. Paul now stands. In 1840 I was on the ground occupied by the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis. St. Paul was then known as Pig's Eye with less than a dozen inhabitants. That region was fighting ground between the Sioux and Ojibways, and I remember two battles fought between the two tribes while we were living in Pokegama. The country between that place and Lake Superior was dense forest, and communication was held by traveling in bark canoes on the rapid rivers or on foot following the Indian trails through the woods, by which means we had communication with the missions on Lake Superior. Our drygoods came by way of the lakes and our groceries came by the Mississippi river, excepting sugar which was made from maple trees. We raised our own wheat and vegetables. The wheat was ground by hand mills.

"In 1849 the territory of Minnesota was organized with St. Paul as the capital. The Indian titles to lands about the head of Lake Superior were not extinguished until 1854. At this time we had left the mission and removed to St. Paul, but having been thoroughly conversant with the country, I went to Lake Superior, took up lands where the town of Superior was located and assisted in surveying and laying out the town. In 1855 the Indian title was extinguished on the Minnesota side of the harbor, and I went over there and laid out the town of Oneota as a commercial site, built a steam mill and docks, and held the position of postmaster for six years, also that of notary public under the governor of the territory. The financial reverses of 1857 rendered our property worthless and in 1862 we returned to St. Paul. In 1873 we removed to Santa Rosa, Cal., and in 1889 to Seattle, but my wife having been attacked by paralysis, we returned to Santa Rosa in 1881. We removed Mrs. Ely from the vessel at San Francisco while suffering from the first attack, and she died the next day."

Regarding William Nettleton, the same work has the following to say:

"William Nettleton, who a few years ago was an honored citizen of St. Paul, but now a resident of Spokane Falls, with his brother George E. Nettleton, now deceased, came to Superior in the winter of 1853-54, with the St. Paul colony, composed of Hon. R. R. Nelson, Dr. A. J. Baker, Col. D. A. Robertson, B. W. Bronson, R. F. Slaughter and others. The Nettletons took part in settling Superior, and in 1855, with Col. J. B. Culver, were carrying on a large grocery, provision and general supply store there.

"In 1858 William Nettleton became an actual resident of Duluth, or at least that part of it then known as the pre-emption claim. He was the first person to file a pre-emption statement at the United States land office at Buchanan. He proved up his claim and obtained title on Aug. 10, 1858, to the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 22, and the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter, and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 27, all in township 50, range 14, now a part of the first division of Duluth.

In the winter of 1853-54, George E. Nettleton obtained from the Indian department of the government a trader's license, under which he acquired title to lots 2 and 3, and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter, and the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 27, township 50, range 14, the rest of that part of Duluth known as the First division.

"When the crash came, and the bottom fell out of the first boom in Superior, in 1857, George E. Nettleton left and returned to Ohio, where he lived until his death, a few years ago.

"William Nettleton, with his family, continued an honored resident of Duluth, aiding materially in its growth and development until about the year 1878, when he moved to St. Paul."

Mr. Nettleton, however, is chiefly known for the part he took in the naming of Duluth.

Early in the winter of 1855-56 steps were taken toward platting Duluth, by George E. and William Nettleton, J. B. Culver, Orin Rice and Robert E. Jefferson. They cast about for a name for the new town, and finally left it to Rev. Joseph G. Wilson of Logansport, Ind., who was then a missionary at Superior.

In some books owned by George E. Nettleton, the missionary came across the name of Jean De Lhut, and at a meeting, held in the home of Mr. Nettleton, this name was chosen.

Mr. Nettleton is said to have been largely responsible for the selection, and he stood out against proposed changes, when they were urged at later date. Mr. Nettleton also served on the first board of trustees of the new town, which was known as the town council of Duluth.

THE FUTURE-BOOK BETTING

Sometimes It Goes the Way of the Gambler, But Almost Always the Bookmaker Has Situation Cinched When Horses Go to Post.

This is the big season for the mail-order betting business. The makers of the future books on great American turf events begin to reap their harvest with the popping of the crocuses and hyacinths. The folks who bet by mail by this time have, or think they have a pretty fair idea of the fields that will go to the post for the big turf fixtures, and they set foxily to work to beat the price, remembering, as some of them do, occasions when horses that figured at immense prices in the future books went to the post in their races at 2 or 3 to 1 and won at that. Everybody who sends in his coin or his pick to the maker of a future book has this thing of beating the post price big in his mind, says C. L. C. in the Washington Star. He recalls, for instance, that Capt. Sam Brown's horse Tournament once nailed one of the greatest of American race fixtures, and at the favorite's price, too, when his price in the future books had been as high as 500 to 1. And the willing-to-be crafty ones have other recollections of a similar sort. The dead-cinch type of players look long and lovingly at that price, 6 to 1, which is the present quotation against the horse of the century, Keene's Sysonby, to win the Brooklyn Handicap or the Suburban Handicap, and slews and slathers of them are sending in their $10 and $100 and even $1,000 bills on that horse to connect with one or other of those great events. They figure Mr. O'Leary of Chicago, the main future bookmaker, to be smoking all kinds of seconds in laying such an idiotic price on a horse like Sysonby, that is just bound to win everything he tries for this year. But Mr. O'Leary of Chicago doesn't smoke at all, it should be stated, and close observers of Mr. O'Leary for many years have noticed that he quite generally knows what he is doing and that when the red confirming board appears on any race on which he has made a huge future book he generally has his safely stowed and tucked away. Mr. O'Leary has about 100 horses running for him in these big events, it should be remembered, and only three of 'em get anything in the actual race, running one, two, three. Only an extremely small proportion of the horses upon which the future bookmaker is now taking in oodles of money ever go to the post for the big events at all, so that, of course, all of the coin raked down on these is pure, undiluted velvet.

Sysonby at 6 to 1 in the Suburban may have a pretty soft look to the naturally confident individual, but the cautious player of the ponies will not bubble and effervesce to any great extent over the quoted figure. The cautious individual who is tempted to send in some Sysonby coin stops and reflects that there are a whole lot of reasons why Sysonby may not "just walk home" in the big events for which he is entered this year. While the Keene crack is known to be a sound horse, it is always possible that he might break down before starting this year at all. He might step in a hole and wrench himself, or bow a tendon in a workout, or develop an ossolet, or catch a cough or a fever, or do any one of a hundred things capable of keeping him from the post. He may prove backward in his work, in spite of his reputation as an early horse, so that, while he may go in the later Suburban, it won't be possible to get him to the barrier for the Brooklyn Handicap, in which case all of the gold sent in on him to cop the Brooklyn is thrown away—handed to Mr. O'Leary, that is to say. And, when it comes to that, it isn't impossible by any means that even if Sysonby stands up to his work and goes to the post in all of the events in which a future price is chalked him, he just might not make good. He might not race up to his three-year-old form, and it is one of the chances of the game that he might prove to be merely an ordinary four-year-old. More remarkable things than that have happened on the turf. Horses of class are frequently utterly losing the form shown in their previous year, and the no-account of last year is improving in a surprising manner this year. Moreover, the horse that is bet on the heaviest in a future book to win a great turf fixture very rarely comes home with the coin.

The wary bettors on turf futures will be keeping a sharp eye out just now for dead ones that are being touted to win the big events. By dead ones is not meant those of the horses that stand little or no chance of winning, but horses that actually stand not a chance in life to ever get to the post at all. The makers of future books have a great little scheme of putting out pure dope stories at this season every year about the workout of this or that horse, in which the horse is stated to have blistered the track and the prediction is made in these hop-yarns that the horse that beats this one will nail the Brooklyn or the Suburban, or whatever the future event may be. Such a bunch of humbug was given tremendously wide circulation a few years ago with reference to the horse, Gold Heels, a horse that, after putting a Suburban to his credit, broke down hopelessly and degenerated into a common selling plater. Just about this season the story appeared all over the West that the rejuvenated Gold Heels was working great guns, and that he was being especially pointed for the Brooklyn and the Suburban. These stories attracted great attention and interest among folks, especially in the middle West, who bet on future turf events, and these folks sent in a veritable shower of gold upon Gold Heels to win one or the other of the great fixtures. They had no means of knowing that the Gold Heels yarns were cleverly cooked up by the future bookmakers themselves for the sake of raking in the cascade of money on a dead one. At the very time the fairy tales about Gold Heels's workouts were appearing that horse was wholly out of training and suffering with four as bad legs as were ever attached to a racehorse. There wasn't the slightest intention of training him for any more racing of any kind whatever, and the stories about his works were pure fabrications successfully designed to incite the unwary into sending in soft money on the chance of a horse that nobody on the inside ever dreamed would ever face the barrier again.

And there is a lot of this dead wood and useless and not-meant lumber cumbering up the fields for the big fixtures that are slated to go this year. An experienced horseman can run his eye up and down the list of horses carded for the Brooklyn and Suburban and put his finger upon literally dozens of the horses that haven't even got a chance in the world of ever starting. But the money is flowing into the future bookmakers' coffers on these dead ones, all the same.

The future book always comes out at the big end of the horn, as a matter of course, but it is pleasant to be able to record a few isolated instances in which lucky folks have done pretty well out of this mail order way of betting.

The future book habit hasn't become a fixed thing among all classes in the East as yet, only the regular horse-bug folks making their picks at this season of the year and sending in their coin on the one they like, but in the middle West practically all classes of people take a crack at the winter book—farmers and their hired men, school teachers of both sexes, women running little shops who never saw a race in their lives and wouldn't be seen on a racetrack for anything, and even ministers of the gospel.

When that rather insignificant horse Wyeth won the American derby in Chicago a few years ago a preacher in a little Iowa town profited $2,500 by the victory, and he was the most astonished as well as the most embarrassed man east of the Mississippi river when the money was handed to him in Chicago. He said, rather mournfully, to the representative of the future book that he knew of no way of concealing from his family or his congregation the fact that he was possessed of all that money if he intended to get any good out of it. On the other hand, he felt that it would be impossible for him to own up to it that he had yielded to such a degrading if human impulse as playing a race horse. It was suggested to him that he might merely mention that he had won the $2,500 through speculation and let it go at that, but he replied that his family and his flock had just as much horror of any sort of speculation as they had of a horse race, and he went away looking puzzled and twisted.

Another old winner on an American derby was a prim and pretty little schoolmistress in a town in central Missouri. She'd experienced the first hunch of her young life in reading the names of the horses carded to go to the post in that event seven or eight years ago. The piece of newspaper in which she read the list of horses slated for the American derby was wrapped around her lunch, and she accidentally looked over the list during the noon hour recess as she munched her sandwiches. The young woman had recently had some sort of a funny experience with a cheap red jacket that had lost its color and faded to a dingy pink, and the connection between this incident and the name of the horse that struck her eye, Pink Coat, furnished the hunch. It didn't take her long to make up her feminine mind that Pink Coat was going to be the goods, and she began to send in most of her wages on Pink Coat to annex unto himself the American derby. When Pink Coat romped home she was informed by wire by the maker of the future book that she was $6,500 to the good. The information contained in the telegram leaked out of the little telegraph office and the country paper published the startling and horrifying news that the teacher of the country-side children was leading a double life; that she was a gambler, and that she had caught the winter book on the American derby to the tune of $6,500.

Old Nick was to pay at once. The school committee immediately visited the young woman and asked her about it. She stood pat.

"Yes," she said, "I won $6,500 on Pink Coat, and," she added audaciously, "I'm glad of it. I can use the money."

The members of the school committee shot sheepish glances at one another, and some of them had human gizzard enough to grin.

"Well, bully for you, young lady," finally burst out one of the frank members of the school committee. "We're all jealous because you picked the winner, that's all. I wish I'd had the same luck—I played the one that ran last, and that's the truth, consarn it!"

Whereupon several others of the school committee came to the front and owned up to it that they, too, had tried to cop some of the future book coin on the derby, but that their picks had finished among the also rans. The school committee voted unanimously to permit the young woman to hold on to her job, if she wanted it, in spite of her sinful gambling propensities, but the women of the settlement downed them on that, and the young woman resigned her school teaching billet with perfect willingness, remarking that she thought she was just a leetle too strong to teach school for $20 a month "and board around" any longer, anyhow.

The gloomiest man who ever switched from one leg to the other on a racetrack was a well-known New York follower of the pony game who, five years ago, when the prices went up against the candidates for the Brooklyn Handicap, put $100 straight on the Featherstone entry, Arsenal and Reina at 200 to 1. He'd made that future book bet in a flush moment, but not long afterward he fell into a poor streak and finally went down and out.

He was all in and worse while playing faro bank at a New York plant one night, and in digging around in his pockets to see if he had any sleepers tucked away anywhere, he came across his $20,000 to $100 ticket on Arsenal and Reina, coupled, to grab the Brooklyn handicap.

"Say, d'ye like either one of these crabs to cop the Brooklyn?" he asked the proprietor of the faro bank, who was hovering around.

"Liked that pair well enough to back 'em for a little piece only two days ago," replied the faro-bank proprietor.

"What price did you get?" inquired the busted follower.

"Sixty to one—they're nibbling on that pair, and the price has been cut," replied the faro bank man.

"Would you like $100 worth of Arsenal and Reina at $200 to 1?" asked the man who was broke.

"Who's going to lay it?" asked the faro-bank man.

The fundless chap flushed his future book ticket.

"You're on," said the bank proprietor, taking the ticket. "How do you want the hundred—in chips?"

The busted man nodded and took $100 worth of chips, which he quickly lost.

One the day of the Brooklyn Handicap the man who had sloughed off his grand ticket was still all to the bad financially, but he managed to get hold of a $20 note to put on Advance Guard, the favorite in the race, that ran second. All in all, the writer hereof never clapped eye upon a sadder looking individual than the busted chap was when the despised Reina—there was as good as 100 to 1 against the mare right up to post time—came home in a fine drive under the pilotage of Winnie O'Connor, beating Advance Guard out right handily. But the pleasant part of the incident was that the faro bank man was decent enough to hunt up the busted one that night and slip him $2,000 out of the big win.

The winter books were slaughtered good and plenty by the piking hunch players the year that the grand and always underestimated racehorse Kinley Mack won both the Brooklyn and the Suburban handicaps. This horse, the followers of the game will recall, got his name in a peculiar way. His part owner, a Montana man, wrote to President McKinley while the colt was still a yearling, asking permission to name the colt McKinley. The president thought that that would be undesirable, and so wrote back tzo the Montana man. The Montana man became rather foolishly sore and chagrined over this, and out of a somewhat trivial feeling of spitefulness he turned the president's name around and called the colt Kinley Mack. The colt made good as soon as he was sent to the races, and when it was found what a really noble individual he was a great many race followers of the Republican faith were mighty sorry that the colt wasn't named McKinley straight.

But the turning around of the horse's name didn't bother the people all over the country, who took the name as a hunch. They thought only of Mr. McKinley's almost invariable success at the polls, and, when the prices went up for the Brooklyn and the Suburban a couple of years later, they shot in their coin on Kinley Mack to win one or both of these events. The future bookmakers were at first glad that this big hunch was working, for Kinley Mack's feet were under suspicion, and his chances to win either of the big events were not thought much of by the handicappers. But when the Kinley Mack money continued to stream in the future bookmakers began to wake up. They cut the Kinley Mack price again and again, but that didn't stop the tremendous inflow of Kinley Mack coin. Even though Kinley Mack's uncertain legs looked mighty bad as the day for the Brooklyn handicap drew along, the future bookmakers became leary of the hunch, and some of them held the horse out altogether, having more Kinley Mack money than they cared for two or three months before the race.

When Kinley Mack ran away from his field in the two big events, the Brooklyn and the Suburban, on a fast track in the Brooklyn and on a miry track with equal ease in the Suburban, the future books were hundreds of thousands to the bad.

FOUR FAMOUS FIRES CONTRASTED.

CHARGE OF THE FIRST MINNESOTA

Poem Commemorating Their Heroism at the Battle of Gettysburg.

Editor National Tribune: While looking over copies of the National Tribune I noticed the request of a comrade for the words of a poem entitled "Charge of the First Minnesota at Gettysburg." Having been an eye-witness of the charge, and knowing somewhat of the circumstances under which it was made, the story of their heroism against overwhelming odds has always attracted me strongly, and it has seemed to me that the republication of this poem, if it has not already been done, might be of interest to many of your readers.—William H. Raymond, Company A, One Hundred and Eighth New York, 11 Grant Place N. W., Washington, D. C.

CHARGE OF THE FIRST MINNESOTA AT GETTYSBURG.
(By George S. Eddy).

In war's awful balance trembles a Nation,
The mantle of gloom hangs low o'er the land;
Through Gettysburg's gardens stalks dread desolation,
Gathering the blossoms with iron-gloved hand.

Afar on the hilltop the gray lines are forming
For the last daring onslaught, in battle array.
Pickett's Division is marshalled for storming,
And swiftly their serried ranks rush to the fray.

Onward they come like a fast-flowing river,
The hope of the Southland is borne on their wave;
If they falter today, they fail, and forever
The cause they have fought for goes down to its grave.

A shock as when torrent and tide-wave are meeting,
And the North's shattered outposts roll back from the plain;
But firm as a rock where the breakers are beating,
The battle-tried First Minnesota remains.

Guarding the banner their loved ones have given,
Stand they, smoke-stained by the cannon's hot breath;
Ne'er from their grasp shall that banner be riven,
Pledged they the loved ones to guard it till death.

Through the thick smoke of the cannon red flashing,
Hancock sees proudly their torn banner wave,
And fast to their front on his war-charger dashing,
Shouts: "Charge on those lines!" 'Tis a charge to the grave.

Toward them the torrent of foemen is sweeping,
Naught but this handful its progress to stay—
Death on that hillside his harvest is reaping,
Thick on the greensward his gory sheaves lay.

Quick to their places with warriors' elation
And welcome of death, wheel the veterans trained.
A moment's time gained means a Nation's salvation,
And thus, and thus only, can that moment be gained.

One prayer for their loved ones, one glance at Old Glory,
Smoke-stained and bullet-torn, waving on high,
And down that dread hillside, corpse-strewn and gory,
Charge they for loved ones and country to die.

Like spring of the panther when guarding her home-lair,
Like leap of the stag-hound bounding on roe,
Like rush of the whirlwind when Death rides in mid-air,
Like ocean billow they dash on the foe.

Before them the line of their bayonets gleaming
Like flashing of Jove's vengeful lightning unchained.
And o'er them the folds of their battle-flag streaming,
They meet the foe midway. The moment is gained!

The moment is gained and their comrades have rallied,
The battle is won and the Nation is saved;
But stark on the hillside, all bloodstained and pallid,
Lie they, the dauntless, the maelstrom who braved.

The moment is gained. But, oh, what it cost us!
The worth of that moment the Nation knows well,
But the worth of the husbands and lovers it lost us,
None, none but the loved ones at home can e'er tell.

HIS STRENUOUS WEEK.

Begins With Elopement and Ends With Prison Enrollment.

Pontiac, Mich., May 11.—Watson Kremer, the young man who tried to dispose of one horse of a livery team and rig rented at the Vanatta stable in this city, at Northville, was sentenced by Judge Smith in the circuit court to serve from one to five years at Ionia. The court recommended two years as the penalty.

Amy Clark, the 17-year-old girl who went away with Kremer, has been brought to her home here by Charles Scholes, a friend of the family.

Kremer waived examination in the justice court. Monday he ran away; Tuesday a warrant was sworn out; Wednesday he was arrested; Thursday held for trial; Friday sentenced, and Saturday enrolled as a convict at Ionia.

He has a wife and two children and has had other trouble previously.

STATE PLANTING OYSTERS IN GULF

Mississippi Will Put in $35,000 Worth of Shells Annually.

Jackson, Miss., May 11.—Pursuant to the act recently passed by the legislature allowing an additional appropriation of $20,000 a year for the work, the Mississippi Oyster commission is now planning an extensive planting of new reefs and oyster beds along the gulf coast, and during the summer many thousand barrels of shells secured at the various factories and canneries will be scattered in the waters at points where quick growth is promised.

The commission has a statutory allowance of $15,000 yearly for this work under the terms of the Bowers oyster law, and the additional allowance of $20,000 yearly was one of the most commendable acts of the legislature, as it followed closely the decision of the United States supreme court in the Mississippi-Louisiana boundary line dispute, whereby this state lost several million dollars worth of valuable oyster fishing territory and the lawmakers were impressed with the necessity of nurturing and replenishing the remaining reefs in order to prevent any likelihood of the annual oyster supply being depleted.

The extent of the oyster industry on the gulf coast is not generally realized. The state has seventy-two miles of water front, and in these waters the commission found favorable "bottoms" extending seaward from one to three miles, aggregating a length of fifty miles. This gives an oyster bed area of at least 32,000 acres, which at the present annual yield of 300 barrels an acre, will give a yearly product of marketable oysters of near ten million barrels. This is abundant, not only to keep all the canneries running on full time throughout the season, but also to supply a fairly good portion of the United States.

The creation of artificial oyster reefs is not a difficult matter. It requires only the dumping of shells at favorable points, and nature does the rest. The appropriation of $35,000 will permit a large amount of work to be done during the summer.

DEATH OF ENGLAND'S MOST NOTED BOOKWORM.

London, May 11.—With the death of Dr. Richard Garnett, the famous librarian of the British museum, England loses the man who is said to have known more about the contents of the books than any other man in the world. He spent practically all his life with the volumes under his care, and absorbed their contents. When he once read a thing, he never forgot it. His memory was so marvelous that in many cases he would direct a man to the very page in which a certain subject was treated.

Harry Furniss related a case in which one of his friends, gathering information on a subject with which very few people are acquainted, after ransacking all the libraries of the Continent, came to Dr. Garnett and asked whether he knew anything about the subject. The aged librarian answered promptly:

"We have only one book in which the subject is treated. I will send for it and you will find your information on page 530."

Dr. Garnett started as a junior assistant in 1851 and gradually advanced to the position of Keeper of Printed Books. He was an extensive writer, leaving twenty volumes, mostly biographical, poems, besides contributions of articles to various encyclopedias, including the Britannica.

"The Twilight of the Gods" is his best-known book. Two years ago he wrote a play dealing with the early life of Shakespeare.

The printed catalogue of the British museum was perhaps his most important undertaking and most useful work. When Dr. Garnett first came to the museum, the catalogue consisted of 30,000 volumes, all written by hand and in many cases unreadable. He proposed to have it printed. The government made an appropriation of $50,000 a year for the purpose, and it took ten years to have the catalogue completed It made 800 volumes, containing about 4,000,000 entries, to which 60,000 new entries are added every year.

QUEEN'S NECKLACE IN A PAWNSHOP'S SAFE.

Paris, May 11.—Marie Antoinette's necklace, which lies in a pawnshop safe, has become the object of a lawsuit. The real owner of the historic jewels, Prince Jaime de Bourbon, an officer in the Russian army, is fighting in the civil courts to regain the priceless heirloom.

The prince, who is the Spanish pretender's son, left the necklace two years ago with Parisian jewelers to be repaired. A sharper named Deligne, who called himself Count Spa, got possession of the necklace, with authorization by Don Jaime, as the latter swears, and gave it over to a firm of bankers, Pollak Rothschild, who the prince alleges, pawned them for $40,000.

Don Jaime succeeded in having Deligne condemned to ten months' imprisonment by the correctional court. Now he revives his old grievance, claiming that, since the jeweler surrendered the necklace without his permission, he and the bankers should pay to get it out of pawn and also foot the bill for incidental expenses.

The bankers and the jeweler laugh at the dashing officer's charges, and have been rude enough to testify that Deligne was the prince's paid accomplice, and that the whole affair of the necklace was a scheme to raise money for the impoverished Bourbon.

The court has not yet rendered a decision.

RELIGIOUS WAVE IS SWEEPING OVER WALES.

Cardiff, Wales, May 11.—The spirit of religious revivalism has again manifested itself in Wales.

At Cross Hands, near Llanelly, a prayer meeting which began at 7 p. m. was continued until 11 o'clock the following morning.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed. Men and women tore their hair, threw themselves on the ground, and prayed with intense fervor.

Hundreds of people are flocking to Carmel, Carmarthenshire, to see Mrs. Sarah Jones, the young woman who is reported to be in a religious trance. It is said that she has been visited by the spirit of Evan Roberts, last year's revivalist, and to have received several divine messages.

Strange stories of her wonderful supernatural powers of healing are being told, and she is everywhere regarded with awe.

The Week in Stageland.

AT THE LYCEUM

"What Women Will Do" Will be Presented Tuesday and Wednesday, With Matinee.

"What Women Will Do," a sensational play on tour this season is booked to appear at the Lyceum, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The piece comes well recommended from all the cities where it has been this season. The play is from the pen of Harry Jackson, whose reputation as a playwright is well established. The play deals with a clever story of every day life, in which love, sensation and adventure play an important part. Some clever stage craft is introduced, and the sensational storm at sea, in which a life-size boat is turned upside down in full view of the awe-stricken audience, and the leap for life from the high cliff, a desperate death struggle, the life-saving station, and many hair-raising effects and scenes cause many thrills. It is under the management of Holden Bros.

THE METROPOLITAN

Frank E. Long Stock Company in Popular Price Drama All Next Week.

Drama will hold sway at the Metropolitan next week after a surfeit of burlesque and vaudeville. W. H. Longstreet, manager of the popular place of amusement, has booked the Frank E. Long Stock company, an organization that has been receiving very favorable mention on the road, for a week's engagement, beginning tomorrow evening with an elaborately staged production of the big melodrama, "Wedded, But No Wife."

This play will also be given on Monday evening. The bill for Tuesday and Wednesday evenings will be the beautiful out-of-doors drama, "Among the Hills;" for Thursday and Friday evenings, "Lost and Won," and for Saturday afternoon and night, "The Sign of the Crucifix." All of these are produced under Mr. Long's direction and are said to be triumphs in popular price drama.

Mr. Long and Miss Nana Sullivan are the stars of the aggregation and are said to be players of considerable cleverness. They are surrounded by a company that is better than usual and includes such players as Frank H. Cummings, James Ryan, W. H. Straus, Charles D. Mack, F. H. Hall, Camille Gordon and Dolly Armours.

Clever specialties are introduced to while away the time between the acts. These are contributed by Otis Bowers, late of Beach & Bowers' Minstrels, Mack and Armour, song and dance artists, and Billy Straus, comedian.

It is expected that ladies will form a large part of the audiences which witness the Long company's productions. All of the plays are clean and wholesome affairs and every precaution will be taken by the management to protect patrons from annoyance in the shape of risque scenes and speeches. The bill will be clean and no smoking will be permitted at any performance.

The usual matinees will be given during the week and the prices will be of the kind known as popular.

THE NEW BIJOU

High-Class Vaudeville With Allen Doone Heading the Bill the Coming Week.

The vaudeville program at the Bijou next week will offer some of the best known talent of America. The show is headed by the legitimate actor, Allen Doone, who has been starred the past season with Joseph Murphy's Kerry Gow" company and offered recently in Duluth. Mr. Doone, besides being a clever actor, is the possessor of a rare voice and is known as Ireland's sweetest singer. The beautiful playlet, "Sweet Molly O," will be presented by Mr. Doone who will be ably assisted by America's most charming actresses, Miss Edna Keeley, whose clever acting, grace and beauty have become renowned.

A special attraction will be the great Westin, the eminent character impersonator of great men, past and present, portraying life-like pictures of many prominent local citizens.

A big singing feature will be the Buckeye State quartette who will render original and popular selections.

Howard and Hunt, sensational comedy acrobats and aerialists, will introduce some daring gymnastic feats which are new and very difficult.

The York Herbert trio of sweet singers, graceful dancers and refined acrobats, will be one of the leading attractions.

Morey Long will render the popular song "Coming Through the Rye, Jennie Dear," illustrated with beautiful colored slides.

The moving pictures will be one of the principal features, showing the big laugh-creating film entitled "The Invisible Men," and scenes from Mt. Vesuvius during the late disaster. Another fine film which will be seen is "Shooting the Rapids."

Matinees are given every day at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Special school children's matinee Saturday afternoon. Regular performances are given Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Hammerstein Announces a Formidable Array of Operatic Stars--His First Season's Repertoire Outlined ---The Rumors of a Big Merger Still Heard.

New York, May 12.—Oscar Hammerstein is home. He is happy and busy. If he does not give Herr Conried a sharp fight for operatic supremacy next season the signs will all go for nothing. From time to time I have chronicled the news of Mr. Hammerstein's successes in securing the names of famous singers to contracts, but the half had not been told up to the time of his home coming. The roster of his company is enough to make the mouths of music lovers water. Here it is: Sopranos, Mme. Melba, Mme. Tetrazzini, Mme. Gilibert, Lejeune, Mazurin, Louise Grandjean and Farnetti; contraltos, Mmes. Bressler, Gianoli, Eleanor de Cisneros, Zelia Gay and Zaccarlo; tenors, Signors Bonci, Dalmores, Bassi and Alsenefisky, baritones, Jean Renaud, Charles Gilibert, Mario Ancona, San Marco and Meldolfi; bassos, Edouard de Reszke, Anton Brag, Giuseppi Mugnines and Guidi.

Truly, this is an organization which may be depended upon to give grand opera properly. The repertory, as announced, is as follows: "Lohengrin" (in French), "Aida," "La Boheme," "Carmen," "Don Giovanni," "Faust," "Les Huguenots," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," "Romeo et Juliette," "Tosca," "La Traviata," "Don Pasquale," "Le Nozze de Figaro," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Barbiere di Sivigliam," "Ballo in Maschera," "Fra Diavolo," "Le Prophete," "La Juive," "I Puritani," "La Sonnambula," "La Favorita," "Cavelleria Rusticana," "Ernani," "Pagliacci" and "Mignon."

Mr. Hammerstein promises to give his song birds the benefits of the finest possible setting, and doubtless he will make good his word.

If the news which is current along Upper Broadway is correct, and there is good reason to believe that it has foundation in fact, then we are to have a theatrical trust which will be a trust sure enough. The story is that Klaw & Erlanger, B. F. Keith, E. F. Albee, Kohl and Castle, Morris, Meyerfeld and Havlin, with several others, are in the new merger, and that other important independent interests will come in. The new concern is to be capitalized away up yonder in the millions, with common and preferred stock, bands and all the other paraphernalia of a real trust. The combination will control a big majority of the theaters of the country. It is understood that Belasco and the Shuberts have not been invited to sit in, and I understand they would not have accepted had the invitation been extended.

The usual statement on the formation of trusts is forthcoming in this instance. All interests of actors, playwrights and the public are to be protected, and by the introduction of economies and the doing away with the expense of competition, the returns of the managers are to be largely increased, and dividends on the capital, which is placed at from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000, are to be earned. We shall see.

A better selection that George O. Starr to head the great Barnum and Bailey show could not have been made. There is no better circus man in the world, now that P. T. Barnum and James A. Bailey have joined the majority. He has been with the show for twenty-nine years, and knows it from every angle. Mrs. Bailey has shown in this selection that she is a shrewd business woman and the public is to be congratulated that there will be no falling away in the "Greatest Show on Earth."

Contradictory stories come from London as to the success of Edna May, in her new play, "The Belle of Mayfair." One correspondent declares that the play is not at all good, and is doomed to failure, while another declares that it is a most pronounced success, playing to crowded houses for eight performances a week.

There is too much hard work needed for success on the stage for Lady Angela Forbes, sister of the Earl of Rosslyn, who recently announced her intention of seeking fame behind the footlights. After Lady Angela had tried half a dozen or so rehearsals, she concluded that she would not be an actress after all. There is a story to the effect that the real reason for her retirement was the discovery that she was not much better as an actress than her brother was as an actor.

New York is to lose Fritzi Scheff with the current month. She is to take "Mlle. Modiste" on the road. Miss Scheff has had a most successful season here, and doubtless the success will be continued throughout the country.

Maude Adams, in "Peter Pan," is still playing to the capacity of the Empire theater. The Wednesday and Saturday matinees are the largest ever seen in New York. This wonderful Barrie play seems to have caught all New York theater-goers, for they come again and again to see the pathetic boy hero, who believes in fairies, and, therefore, does not want to grow up.

After an exceptional season of thirty-five weeks, Henry W. Savage's English Grand Opera company closed its present tour at the Lyceum theater in Rochester, N. Y., last Saturday. This organization continues to be the pioneer in developing a taste for Wagnerian music in this country, and its reception everywhere has been most marked. Mr. Savage's plans for grand opera next season will outline several elaborate productions. One presentation of unusual interest will be that of Puccini's "Madam Butterfly." The members of the company to go abroad this summer on vacations bent are: Miss Gertrude Remyson, Miss Claude Albright, Mr. Ottley Cranston, Mr. Winfred Goff, Miss Florence Easton, Mr. Francis Maclennan and Miss Rita Newman. Mr. Cranston will be heard this summer at Convent Garden, London.

Raymond Hitchcock, the distinctly different comedian, whose return to the field of light opera in "The Student King," by DeKoven, Ranken and Stange, will be hailed with delight by thousands of lovers of this form of amusement throughout the country, is telling the following story of two Irish gardeners whom he employed to look after his country place at Great Neck, Long Island.

"During the week I was lately playing in Brooklyn, I ran down to my summer home, and as I hadn't been there for some months I started to inspect the place. Going into the garden I came upon two of the men who were pruning the shrubbery. As they were getting paid by the hour they were not killing themselves, but were passing the time trying to figure out how they would spend an imaginative million dollars. The conversation ran as follows:

"'Said Pat to Denny, 'Phwat wud ye do, Denny, me bye, if yez had a million dollars?'

"'Phwat wud I do, is it? Well, I'll till ye; sure the first thing'd be wan av thim utternobiles, an' the next'd be a big dinnin' room in front. Phwat'd you be after doin', Pat?'

"'Weel, I'll till ye,' replied Pat, thoughtfully. 'I'd go up to the finest hotel I could an' rint the best room in the house, an' thin I'd go t' bed and till 'em to call me at 6 in th' marnin'.'

"'An' phwat'd ye be doin' at 6 in th' marnin' wid a million dollars?' inquired the puzzled Denny.

"'Well,' replied Pat, I'd wait till they'd come and knocked in me durr, an' thin I'd yell: 'Go to the divil—I don't have t' git up!'"

Harry Bulger, the well-known comedian who will be featured in a new musical comedy by Henry A. Savage, while on a tour through the West recently, was on a train that just managed to crawl along. All the passengers were complaining and one of them suggested to the conductor to take the cowcatcher off the locomotive and attach it to the rear of the train on the theory that the train couldn't possibly run over a cow, and that a cow might stray in the rear door of the last coach and bite the passengers if not restrained by a cowcatcher. It is needless for us to say that the one that suggested this was Bulger, as he is always full of a line of talk of this kind. But the conductor was not going to let any one kid him, so he came back at the comedian with this story:

"'Talk about slow trains, why, my dear sir, you haven't had to travel on any very slow ones as yet, or you would talk differently. Let me tell you of an experience of mine. Some years ago I was on the road from Carbondale to Seigel. At Richmond one man decided to get off and walk. He had proceeded about fifteen miles when the train overtook him. He was knocked down, and the train, in a leisurely sort of a way, proceeded to run over him. The man spoke a few words and expressed a wish that $5,000 accident insurance that he carried be given to his sweetheart. But the poor girl never got it. Before the engine got up to the man's knees, rheumatism set in, and the poor fellow died a natural death. It being an accident policy, the girl couldn't collect the money."

Edwin Holt, who plays, "Stone," the city editor in Jesse Lynch Williams' play of American newspaper life, "The Stolen Story," relates an incident observed by him in one of the big clubs in London when he was there last summer.

"There were four only—a Frenchman, a German, an Englishman and an American—sitting before an open fire at the C—— Club, each one telling of the greatness of his native land. While speaking the Frenchman took from his wallet a pound note, rolled it up, touched it to the coals, and lighted a cigar with it.

The others were greatly impressed, and soon the German opened his wallet, brought forth a five-pound note, rolled it up, touched it to the coals and with it lighted his cigar. The Englishman thought it very foolish, but he could not be outdone nor have it appear that England was not the richest country of all, so he calmly took a ten-pound note and sacrificed it as a light for his cigar.

The American looked on in wonder. He hadn't a penny on his person, and yet he knew that he represented the leading nationality of all—one never outwitted or outdone by any one or any country; so he quietly drew forth a check book, wrote a check for a thousand pounds on a prominent New York bank, duly signed it, rolled it up, touched it to the coals and lighted his weed while his confreres watched him with amazement, and it didn't cost him a cent.

Shall I put $40 for you on General Mike? BILLY."

This was the other:

Julia Marlowe, who confesses to being a most absent minded and forgetful woman, has hit upon a plan of reminding herself of things to be done. Whenever she makes an engagement, or sees a book which she would like to read, or plans anything which she would be apt to forget, the actress takes out of her bag a postal card addressed to her house, writes her memorandum on it and drops it in the nearest box. The matter is then off her mind until she returns home, when she finds the reminder on her desk.

Margaret Anglin tells an amusing story as an evidence of the scant civility to be had from underlings in this country, "where every man is as good as his neighbor, and a damned sight better." Miss Anglin recently had occasion to call at the sanctum of a certain well-known theatrical manager. Walking meekly to the boy behind the railing, she inquired: "Is Mr. Jones in?"

The lad replied in the negative.

"Very well," continued Miss Anglin, "I'll wait." The actress spent ten minutes looking at the photographs on the walls. Growing tired of this occupation in time, however, she returned to the railing and asked: "Will Mr. Jones be away long?"

The boy looked at her with an insolent smile before answering. "About three months," he said. "He's gone to Europe."

The management of "The Social Whirl," a musical comedy which is now crowding the New York Casino to the very doors, recently tried a novel and unfortunately effective scheme of advertising. The first scene in the piece takes place in a manicure shop, and the Shuberts sent out thousands of postal cards reading:

Meet me sure
At the manicure,
Casino theater,
Saturday, April 7.

A force of young women was engaged to write fictitious names under this verse. Although the Shuberts felt that the reason for putting out the cards must be patent, within a few days scores of indignant letters began to pour in from men whose wives had been set wondering by the advertisement. One of the victims said: "For Heaven's sake get a man to sign one of your cards and send it to my better half, so that I may fight suspicion with suspicion."

In Providence last week Jesse Lynch Williams' play of American newspaper life, "The Stolen Story," was produced by Henry W. Savage for the first time and successfully scored with the press and public. The thrilling incidents involved out of the determined endeavor of Billy Woods, the star reporter, who unravels the mystery surrounding the passage of an important legislative bill which is supposed to further the schemes of certain grafters and ruin Gen. Cunningham, the innocent father of the bill, are graphically portrayed by Jameson Lee Finney. An intense interest is aroused with the audience in the final act, depicting the interior of a newspaper office and the writing of the stolen story by the hero. The various metropolitan types seen in political clubs and at the opera were also received with laughing favor. Miss Dorothy Tennant as Frances Cunningham, the heroine of the play, made a decidedly good impression, as did Ralph Delmore as the venal newspaperman; Joseph M. Sparkes as Jerry McCarter, an East side politician; Wright Kramer as Gilbert Metcalf, Marion Abbott as Mrs. Metcalf, R. Peyton Carter as Gen. Cunningham, James L. Seeley as Mr. Manning, and Edward Holt as Stone, the city editor.

Reginald DeKoven, who has been spending a short vacation in Hot Springs, Va., returned to the city a few days ago, and with Stanislus Strange has minute etao shrdlu cmfwyp vbgkqj 90270 hearsals of the new romantic light opera, "The Student King," under the direction of George Marion, which will be produced by Henry W. Savage in the middle of May.

"The Student King" promises to be a genuine light opera production with a been an interested spectator at the rewith a compelling humor that will obtain with all classes of theater goers, interpreted by the best light comedians and singers on the American stage. It goes without saying that the composer and librettists need no second introduction to music lovers generally. A long list of successes are to their credit, and it is with satisfaction with the above announcement is made, and theater goers are assured of a genuine same lyric enand consistent and agreeable story sanely told surfeited with many alleged musical comedies, cheap horse play and inane puns and rhymes, so that the advent of a real musical composition will be acclaimed with great satisfaction. That the production will be complete and fitting in every respect goes without saying, as Mr. Savage is well and favorably known by many productions made in the past, and he has gone to unusual expense in assembling a most brilliant and effective cast. Among the singers who will have important roles are Thelma Fair, a young lyric soprano, who will be heard in the role of Lisa, the Princess of Tyrole; William Weston, a tenor in the name role of the opera, lately with "The Sho-Gun" company; Flavia Arcaro, the contralto, a commedienne of rare ability; Bessie Ohls, a new lyric soubrette. Well known among the comedians are the ever clever favorites, Raymond Hitchcock, Gustav von Seyffertitz, the famous German player, lately recruited from the Irving Place theater; Lawrence Rea, lately of the "Duchess of Dantzic" company; Thomas C. Leary and tertainment. The public has long been tation. As Mr. DeKoven has contributed a number of striking glees and madrigals and old German student songs, the choral many other singers of well known reputheavy, and an ensemble of great singing ability is promised.

This story deals with the election of a student, Francis, to be king for a day during a carnival in Prague, Bohemia, according to ancient custom. This time is emphasized by a period of revel and every opportunity is given to display color and movement by the libwork of the opera will be exceptionally of Tyrole, accompanied by her court, is on her way to meet Rudolph, the real king of Bohemia, but incognito falls in love with the student king, who in reality is the real heir to the throne, having been stolen from his cradle by a scheming councillor. Many amusing complications follow, and the student king and his inamorata are about to depart, when he is suddenly arrested and his progress stopped, but the secret of his birth becoming known, the king consents to the marriage and finally abdicates in his favor. While there is a touch of romance and sentiment interlarded in the story, mirth and comedy are the keynotes in which the libretto is pitched. From a pictorial point of view the production will be one of the most lavish ever made by Mr. Savage, the scenery having come from the brush of Walter Burridge, with costumes and armor from designs by Jomelli of London

James J. Brady, whose employment has been for years to tell the listening world of the glories of the Ringling circus, has changed front. Mr. Brady is no longer the premier press promulgator for the Ringlings, according to his own statement. He has turned missionary and is now spreading the introductory pamphlets for the gospel of good cheer that this same circus carries into every community. Mr. Brady contends that the circus is now an institution for the dissemination of this delightful state of feeling. It is no longer an enterprise, but an illustrated sermon of optimism. If, having eaten of the Ringling antiseptic peanuts, washed them down with the sterilized lemonade distributed by "gentlemanly waiters" and been all but surfeited by the feast for the eyes that the great circus unfolds, you can take the same viewpoint as our missionary, Mr. Brady, then have you developed to a plane so near the immortal that one feels a tickling sensation of sprouting wings. She reimbursed the firm, and was permitted to go without prosecution.

DRUDGERY AT THE BEST

American Girls in Paris Hoping to Become Singers--Teachers No Better There Than at Home--Hardships of Ambitious Girls.

Paris, May 12.—The list of American pupils enrolled with the various singing masters in Paris is quite as large this season as it generally is. What is to become of this small army of American women seeking an operatic career is a question not yet answered.

The young girl coming over for a year or so to become familiar with the language, to enjoy the advantage of travel in a foreign land and at the same time to cultivate her voice for correct parlor use is another matter. Providing a candidate has a fine voice and a robust constitution, combined with musical intelligence, dramatic ability, a certain amount of magnetism and is willing to go through with the drudgery, she may, after three or four years, be admitted to sing in one of the best European opera houses. If she be the possessor of an extraordinary voice, that will make the path easier.

How so many American girls get over here is a mystery until one accidentally hears of the means employed to give them a European training or finish. Very often it is at the expense of relatives, who consider that the investment, even though it causes the strictest economy and sacrifice at home, may well repay in after years when sister or daughter is high on the ladder of success. A few girls have gained scholarships in the colleges of their own city. Sometimes a small inheritance pays for the tuition. There are in Paris girls sent by business men through a spirit of philanthropy not unmixed with selfish pride, when it may eventually become known that Mr. X. has been the protector of the coming prima donna, Miss ——.

This year there are something like 600 girls in Paris studying for the opera. This is about the average number of American voice students who come year after year. Other large cities in Europe have their own per cent, the number in London running about a third less than that in Paris. Vienna, Dresden, Florence, Milan, Rome, Berlin, Munich, Leipsic and Brussels entertain many, in all bringing the total to perhaps 4,000.

If relatives and friends knew of half the hardships that await the enthusiastic young singers they would think twice before advising them to come such a distance from home, often alone and unprotected, to live in one of the most immoral cities in all the universe. They come to Paris with misinformation regarding the life and living expenses, for if one lives in a comfortable way, the cost is bound to exceed expectations. They have little or no knowledge of the language, they enter high-priced pensions, the associations of which convey neither the ease of home nor the independence of hotel life.

For six months out of the year life in Paris is a serious problem. The short, dark days, the rain, the too mild air have their own effect upon the high-strung American temperament, which is sooner or later depressed from want of oxygenic atmosphere and bright, warm sunshine. The majority of French houses are seemingly built without any aim to health and ventilation, and often a cold contracted from the damp walls in the beginning of the music season bears one company till spring. Maybe the climatic conditions are in a great measure responsible for the failures of girls who undertake operatic careers with natural gifts in their favor.

One has only to visit the opera houses and concert halls abroad to appreciate the qualities of the American voice, for the fact is now generally recognized throughout Europe that the American singing voice is the coming medium of song. However, in no department of life do we find the good things of the world equally divided, and the American vocal student has her limitations. Critics say she is lacking in temperament—call it explosiveness, passion, emotion, if you will; that she is ambitious, but that ambition may reach such a pinnacle that it absolutely ceases to be a virtue. In other words, that the American girl (generalizing) scorns to do the drudgery work of the profession and would reach the top of the ladder in a single day.

When she enters a class it is rather as the pupil than the student. The third of the characteristics mentioned above may be cultivated and the others "treated," but it takes the giving up of self on one hand and humiliations on the other—either or both of which would be impossible feat with some natures.

There are many advantages for the singer who can spend some time in Europe. One reason is that the opera season lasts eleven months out of the year, and another that operas may be heard in the best houses at about half the price demanded in America. It does one good, too, to come in contact with the Latin races, for the friction has a tendency to thaw out the phlegmatic temperament of the Anglo-Saxon. Then there are good acting schools and a systematic—if mechanical—course in stage training.

There have been great Old World masters, but they have passed away or else have outlived their utility. There are fully as many exponents of their methods across the Atlantic as there are in European capitals. Only a few teachers have anything of a reputation and these demand extravagant prices of Americans and in the end do not accomplish as much toward advancing a career as a progressive American teacher who has the interest of his pupil at heart.

A large majority of the most promising voice is sent over to Europe for instruction. In every case where a singer has "arrived," she has done so through her own efforts, altogether unaided by the influence of a teacher. Some of these instructors are far better known in America than in the cities in which they give lessons. Certainly their names have no effect on a manager, for what the impresario seeks is the voice that will sing the lines and the actress who will interpret the role.

There are at present several American girls taking leading roles on the European operatic stage, but this is the fruit of many years of vintage of singers.

In the past fifteen years two American girls have made debuts at the Opera Comique. From an artistic standpoint their success was not enough to retain them, nor did they attempt to ingratiate themselves into the good graces of the powers that be. However, the debutantes were engaged and they remained on from month to month, never being called on to make a second appearance and the only thing left to do was to send in a resignation, which was readily accepted. Had each singer made a "friend" of someone in power, they would certainly have had an equal chance with the rest; but be it said to the credit of Uncle Sam's daughters that as a rule they do not step down from their pinnacle of dignity and virtue.

The American girl with courage and talent who is bent on following the opera, in the writer's opinion, had best lay its good foundation in her own country and the day is not far off when even a finishing touch in Europe will not be required of a singer. At all events the percentage of those who have come abroad to study and have succeeded is so lamentably small and their success has been often so dearly bought, that it surely does not seem to offer many, if any, inducements.

DEFENSE FORTS AT GALVESTON

Government Engineers Report Destroyed Fortifications Ready.

Galveston, Tex., May 11.—Based upon a favorable report and recommendation of Capt. Jadwin, United States engineer, a movement has been started to have the government construct a seawall around Fort San Jacinto, located at the extreme eastern point of the island.

It was news to the public to learn through the statement of Capt. Jadwin that the three forts destroyed by the storm of five years ago were finished and ready for service. The war department prohibits publication of information about fortifications, and the reconstruction work for the past three years was kept a secret. Now that the forts are finished, the next thing will be to secure troops to man the guns. It is in this connection that Capt. Jadwin and Chief of Engineers Gen. McKenzie are urging the construction of a seawall to protect Fort San Jacinto and the government reservation of over 700 acres from the gulf.

An estimate of cost of the improvement is given as $1,433,000, and this amount has been recommended by Capt. Jadwin and approved by his chief, but the secretary of war has not yet approved of the appropriation, because, it is hinted, there is some flaw to the title of the land upon which the wall would be built.

It is understood the war department has decided that the troops to man the forts shall be stationed at their respective forts, and this means that barracks will be erected at Fort Crockett on the beach in the western part of the city, at Fort San Jacinto at the eastern end of the island, and at Fort Travis at Bolivar, across the bay. Fort Crockett is protected by a seawall and is being filled and will be available for barracks and troops very soon. But the other two reservations are unprotected and will have to be filled before barracks can be established.

In the reconstruction of the fortifications the government adopted the plan of protecting each battery with a riprap seawall or revetment, which would place each battery or set of guns independent from attack, either by fire from an enemy's guns or by the treacherous and destructive gulf. So that while all the defensive work of the three big forts is protected by seawall, the reservations surrounding same are not, except at Crockett.

It is proposed that the seawall for Fort San Jacinto shall be extended westward along the beach and join the county seawall now protecting the city. The raising of the grade of this 700-acre reservation by pumping sand and earth for filling from the bay was started by Capt. Riche, then government engineer here, several months before the storm of Sept. 8, 1900. Several hundred thousand yards of filling had been deposited when the hurricane and high sea struck the fort and washed the filling into the gulf, there being no wall or protection to hold the fill in place.

ADD A YEAR TO OWN SENTENCES

Statutes Changed Before Prisoners Proceed With Appeal Cases.

North Yakima, Wash., May 11.—Prosecuting Attorney Krutz presented before the supreme court a motion for the dismissal of the appeal in the cases of Lester Holt, under a five-year sentence for horse stealing, and H. H. Williams, under a seven-year sentence for criminal assault.

The men have been in the county jail more than a year awaiting an appeal to the supreme court, but because the appeals were not perfected they were not filed in the court.

Formerly when an appeal was taken to the supreme court, the period that a defendant was imprisoned applied to the sentence when the judgment of the lower court was affirmed. This was changed by a statute providing that the sentence begin from the date the supreme court affirmed the judgment of the lower court. According to the latter, the year the men have spent in jail will not apply to their sentences.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by all leading druggists.

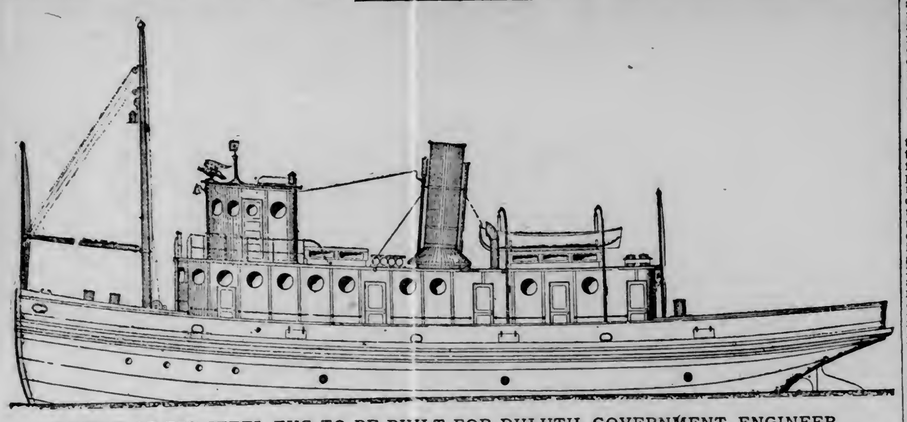
NEW TUG FOR THE GOVERNMENT ENGINEER



DESIGN OF BIG STEEL TUG TO BE BUILT FOR DULUTH GOVERNMENT ENGINEER.

In its new steel tug, under contract for construction by the Racine Boat Manufacturing company of Mukegon, Mich., the United States engineering department at Duluth expects to have a vessel that will be the largest, most powerful and most complete of its kind on the Great Lakes.

The tug was designed at the office of Maj. Charles L. Potter, the engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, for service in the Duluth-Superior harbor, and at all other points in Maj. Potter's district. It will cost $35,950, complete, and is to be ready to turn over to the government Sept. 2 next.

The tug will be modelled along the lines of the tug Superior, one of the largest in the Union Towing company's local fleet. It will have the following dimensions:

Length over all, 85 feet and 6 inches.

Length between perpendiculars, 74 feet and 6 inches.

Beam moulded, 21 feet.

Depth moulded, 11 feet, 6 inches.

The hull is to be built, launched and equipped with boiler and engine, steam steering gear, pumps, electric lights, search light and heating plant. It is to be fitted and made complete, with a pilot house, cabin, galley, pantry, mess room, bathrooms, water closet, all hull fittings, pumping arrangements, speaking tubes, signal bells, etc.

Built throughout of steel, the tug is to be constructed along lines that will make it capable of withstanding the heaviest seas Lake Superior is capable of producing, so that if there is ever a call for a tug to go out in the teeth of a northeaster to effect a rescue, the government will have a vessel powerful enough to meet the waves and withstand their terrific pounding. The tug is also designed to be an ice-breaker, larger and more effective than any other tug ever used in the local harbor for that purpose. It is not to be understood that the new tug will be used for the general use of opening navigation at this end of the lake, but there have been times when the government needed just such a vessel to break the harbor ice for its own needs.

The interior work of the pilot house and cabin is to be of the best, and the fittings will be far better than is ordinarily found on a tug.

The engine will be of the inverted cylinder, direct acting, fore and aft compound type, with cylinders 16 and 34 inches, with a common stroke of 26 inches.

The tug will be used two weeks by the government before final acceptance and payment.

OUTLOOK AT BISBEE FINE

been ordered for this shaft and that it will soon be running in deadly earnest, and a year from today may see the district with another mine on the eve of production, such as the Junction and the Calumet & Pittsburg. A three-compartment shaft is being sunk on the Warren property and low grade carbonates have been encountered near the surface of the claim. As the hole is deepened it is said that the run is getting better. No drifting will be undertaken until the equipment for hoisting on a large scale is installed. Two diamond drills are daily bringing up evidences of very considerable quantities of ore and the prospects are said to be very encouraging. The spur to the El Paso & Southwestern cut-off is to be put in shortly and the machinery for the hoisting is on the road, so in a short time things will be moving smoothly.

• • •

The Irish Mag shaft of the Calumet & Arizona properties, continues to keep in the front rank of the producing mines of the district, and appears to be good for a number of years yet. A number of improvements are being made and new machinery put in. At present all efforts are being made to install the new Nordberg hoist as quickly as possible, while at the Oliver shaft the electric plant is being rapidly finished. On the 1,150 level the drift connecting the Irish Mag and the Oliver has been cut through and an electric hoist can nbe instanned if it is found necessary. Both main shafts are in excellent condition and when the new hoist at the Oliver is running in conection with that of the Mag, it will mean a large increase in the amount of ore produced.

• • •

In the Pittsburg & Duluth large bodies of oxide ore which were found in the subs above the 1,350 level are being developed with very satisfactory results, and shipping will be begun shortly. No trouble is experienced with the water, the pumps being sufficient to handle all that is encountered.

• • •

The Lake Superior & Pittsburg also shows a number of improvements and a large amount of development work is being done. The foundations for the new hoist are being put in and the machinery, which is of the Nordberg type, is expected in a short time and will be in place by July 1. A station has been cut at the 1,200 level and the sinking resumed again. Drifts will be run in several directions from this station and it is expected that large ore bodies will be encountered on this level. The development of the ore body on the 900 level is going on with satisfactory results, the ore being of a high grade quality. Over 300 tons are being shipped a day to the smelters and this will be increased.

• • •

The Hoatson shaft is now down 1,180 feet and is still being sunk. It is now running through leach material carrying stringers of oxide ore and certainly looks good. Several drifts have been started and will follow the different leads. A station has been cut on the 1,100 level, and while cutting this a large body of oxide ore was struck. No increase in the amount of water has been noted at the Hoatson for the last thirty days, only one hundred gallons per minute being thrown out. This is done by balling in the shaft. At the Briggs the water has also decreased by several hundred gallons per minute, less being pumped at this shaft now than at any time during the past year.

The pumps for the Hoatson are on the ground and work on them started on the 1,100 level. They will have a capacity of 500 gallons per minute, which will take care of all the water. The new hoist is running smoothly, and a double drum, geared engine will be put in during the week to be used in putting in the pipe work for the pumps.

• • •

At the Shattuck & Arizona the work of enlarging the shaft is being hurried along by three shifts and will be finished about the last of May. The new Corliss first motion hoist is on the road and will be put in operation at once. The entire new equipment will be ready for use about July 1. Over 1,000 tons of ore have been shipped up to date, which show an average value of 9 per cent in copper. Commencing with Aug. 1, daily shipments will be made putting the Shattuck & Arizona among the producing properties in the Warren district.

• • •

The Denn-Arizona property shows a large increase in the development work. Diamond drills have been in operation for some time past and have run through several ore bodies. They are drifting on the 1,000-foot level in a southeast direction towards the diamond drill hole put down last year. A body of ore was struck here about 600 feet from the shaft and will be reached by the drift in about two months.

A drift has been started towards the north to cut the dividend fault lying about 500 feet distant. It is thought that ore will be encountered in this drift also.

The pumping station on the 1,000 level has been finished and the pumps will be installed at once. Two pumps with a capacity of 2,000 gallons per minute, have arrived and two more, with the same capacity, will be on hand by July 1. The pipe columns are in the shaft and the boiler plant has been put in, so as soon as the pumps are in, the plant will be ready for pumping, which will be in about a week's time.

Seventy-five men are employed in three shifts at present and more will be put on.

• • •

The North Bisbee Development company is the name of a new mining company, organized during the past week for development work on a number of mining claims lying northwest of Bisbee. The ground owned by the company comprises eleven claims adjoining the Mountain View property and development work on a small scale has been carried on for somb time past. This work has brought to light some very promising ore in a ten-foot shaft, where the vein is from ten to fifteen feet wide. The whole property shows surface ore that will assay a high copper value and it is expected by the company to be shipping some ore with the next three months. E. H. Clark is in charge of the development work.

• • •

The Cochise shaft is down 410 feet and the drift from the third level has been driven 350 feet. The formation in the drift is constantly changing to a softer one, containing more mineralization as the drift progresses. The last round of holes encountered a water seepage which is a good indication. Last month an average of 120 feet was reached, which is a high rate of speed in drifting.

In the bottom of the shaft the ore found recently has been passed, but a change in the formation is looked for which will show good results.

• • •

George McMillan, president of the Cananea-Duluth Copper company, was in Bisbee a few days ago on his way to Cananea. Concerning the Cananea-Duluth property, in which he is heavily interested, McMillan could not withhold his enthusiasm. He reports that to date their No. 2 shaft is in ore for a distance of over forty feet. It is all stuff of a high grade and will net the company something like $15 per ton. The body has not yet been gone through, and it probably will be another thirty or forty feet before the depth of the body has been tapped. Sinking is to continue until the depth of the ore has been determined and then cross-cutting will commence at different points. The company has placed an order for an adequate hoisting plant for No. 2 shaft and the machinery will be placed on the ground as soon as possible.

THE MENOMINEE RANGE

cluding the installation of an ore crushing plant and a new hoist of greater capacity than the present machine, and the erection of a new shafthouse twelve feet higher than that now in use. The Florence Iron River Company, the controlling interests in which are Lauterbach, Thalman & company, of New York, was recently reorganized as two separate companies, the Florence Iron Company of Wisconsin, and the Florence Iron Company of Michigan, the former taking over all the old corporation's holdings in Florence and Forest counties, Wis., and the Michigan company acquiring the properties in Iron, Gogebic and Marquette counties of Michigan. Felix A. Vogel continues in charge as general manager, and Edward S. Dickinson, mining engineer, a graduate of the Michigan College of Mines, will have general direction of the company's exploratory work in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

The Hennepin, for several years the main shaft of Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Tobin mine, in the Crystal Falls district, has gone out of commission, the ore having cut in under it, and it will be abandoned as soon as dismantled. The big ore crusher, the best in the field, has been removed from the Hennepin to a new location, and the timbering is being stripped. The large stockpile of ore adjacent to the shaft will be shipped as soon as possible, and with this done it will not be long before the ground will be permitted to collapse. The Hennepin's place has been taken by the old Tobin shaft, which has been newly equipped to handle a large tonnage. New hoisting and compressor plants have been installed, and the tramming will be done by electricity. The mine is a big one, upwards of 700 feet in depth, and is operated on the caving system. At the old Kimball property the work of retimbering the shaft sunk by the former operators about twenty-five years ago has been completed by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., and sinking is in progress. In addition, the old workings are being explored by means of a drift cut through on the first level. From the appearance of things, it is believed a mine of fair-sized proportions will be developed. Corrigan, McKinney & Co. also are exploring the Fairbanks property, the first to have been given attention in the district. A fair-sized stockpile has been accumulated, all taken out in the course of the preliminary work, and this and as much more will be shipped during the present season. The underground showing is very encouraging.

The Monro mine of the Buffalo & Susquehanna company will ship about 100,000 tons this season. The shaft is now being unwatered, and it doubtless will be a few weeks before mining operations are resumed. A somewhat larger force will be employed than last year, when about 100 names were on the pay roll. The company has been given a six-months' extension of the option it holds on the Hiawatha property, in the Iron River district. Considerable diamond drill work will be done there, it is expected, and if with satisfactory results in the way of proving up a considerable ore body, the mine will be taken over and a new shaft sunk. The old shaft, which has been unwatered, has been found in very poor condition, unsafe for either mining or exploratory work.

The Isabella mine, one of the oldest properties in the Iron River district, is to be reopened by the Steel corporation, its present owner. It adjourns the Riverton and Dober mines, and will be reopened from the latter property, where additional power and machinery equipment is now going in. The Isabella was closed during the iron trade depression in 1900. It was never thoroughly developed, having been operated only a few years, and there are indications that the property still contains a large body of ore. A report published in the daily press, to the effect that the "Young" mine, in the Iron River district, had been purchased by the Steel corporation, the price stated being $500,000, is not correct. The property in question is the Section 12 mine, opened by the G. Walt Youngs company. It has been sold, it is understood, but not to the Steel corporation, an Eastern syndicate, controlling six large furnaces, having acquired the property at a price in the neighborhood of $575,000.

Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Bristol mine, a Crystal Falls district property, is installing a new hoisting plant, the operation of which will make it possible to materially increase production. The machine was ordered a year ago, and has only recently been received. The Bristol will increase its shipments largely this season. Rapid headway is being made by the company in opening up the Selden property, in the Iron River field. The shafthouse and tramways have been completed, machinery is in place and hoisting is now being done. Appearances indicate that a good-sized mine will be opened at this point.

The Rhodes Mining company, a Mesaba concern which recently entered the Iron River district, is exploring the Morgan property, adjoining the Fogarty. Test-pitting is under way, but it is intended to later on use diamond drills. Similar work is in progress at the McFarland property, which is under option to Iron River parties. Use will be made of the diamond drill if the showing warrants. Chicago interests holding options to mineral lands near Miscuano island, Menominee river, are preparing to resume exploratory work. A diamond drill will be employed.

BUTTE MINING DISTRICT

and is taken up by the pumps there and raised to the surface. This quantity gives an average of less than 100 gallons a minute for each mine, which is infinitesimal when the depth of the workings is considered.

All of the ground on the hill has been drained until there is hardly moisture enough left in the rock above the deepest workings to dampen a whistle. This is attributed to the continuous pumping for years and the gradual settling of the water to the bottom. The only water now found in the hill mines is that which comes into the lower workings by reason of the gradual increase in depth.

Even the old Ophir once a water mill, is going thirsty, the flow from it being much less than 200 gallons a minute, a decrease of nearly 300.

• • •

Joseph A. Coram left Butte during the past week for Utah, where he will spend some time in looking over some mining properties after which he will go to California to inspect his holdings at Balaklala. Before leaving the city, Mr. Coram stated that he had nothing to give out for publication, saying that his plans were not yet perfected to such an extent that he could make any announcements. He declined to discuss the rumored alliance with F. Augustus Heinze, and did not state whether or not the proposed 2,000-foot shaft would be sunk on the Smokehouse.

• • •

The South Butte Mining company on Monday began sinking a 500-foot shaft at its Little Pete claim, which lies south of the Brooklyn Boy. Fred L. Whitehead, who will have charge of the development work on the property, said: "The property of the company consists of eight claims located in the south copper zone, which is south of the old Colorado company's smelter southwest of Butte. These claims are mineral bearing and have the earmarks of becoming good producers. Not enough work has ever been done in that section to determine the value of the veins, but it is the intention of the South Butte company to open them up in good shape."

• • •

One of the important developments of the week was the announcement that the Northern Pacific will construct a spur from Meaderville to the Butte & London properties. The resident engineer of the railroad company was in Butte a few days ago from Livingston to look over the ground, and after making the inspection it was stated that a party of surveyors would start the location work immediately. The Butte & London is making good headway through the hard granite formation encountered more than a week ago, and sinking on the three-compartment shaft is progressing as rapidly as could be expected. The company has plenty of money in the treasury and will put the shaft down about 1,200 feet before a ny exploration work is commenced.

• • •

The Butte Exploration company is making good headway with its three-compartment shaft on the Six O'clock. The shaft is now down about 525 feet. Bedrock has been encountered and the indications are very gratifying to the men interested.

• • •

Butte men are the incorporators of the Hercules Copper company, a corporation owning ten claims southwest of this city, not far from the Colorado smelter. The company, which was formed during the past week, has a capitalization of $2,000,000 with 1,000,000 shares. Thomas Stephens is president; D. J. Charles, vice president; C. M. Parr, secretary, and G. E. DeSnell, treasurer. The company has already started development on the property.

• • •

Some nice looking ore from the Columbia claim of the North Butte Mountain company was exhibited at the company's office in this city Monday. The rock came from a stringer that was cut a short distance below the surface, and has every earmark of a high grade ore. Sinking is going on without interruption at the Columbia, and the operators are confident that within a short time they will have a producer. The company owns eight claims northeast of the city, close by the Butte & Bacorn properties.

• • •

Out at the Butte & Bacon properties, new machinery is being put in place at three different points. The equipment is all on the ground and a force of men is now busy doing the installation work. The Butte & Bacon company has three shafts on its ground and new machinery is being put in place at each shaft. When this work has been completed development work will be commenced and pushed vigorously. The company has about 325 acres of valuable ground northeast of this city and the showings made thus far have been very encouraging to the operators.

• • •

The Butte Copper company has been crosscutting during the past week through the Trifle shaft into the Anslmo ledge, and several gratifying discoveries have been made. No sinking is being done at the present time, but the exploration work is progressing nicely and the bins are full of good ore.

• • •

J. C. McFadden was at Dillon last week to look after the filing of papers connected with a deal for the Dark Horse mine at the head of the Big Hole river in the Big Hole basin. Mr. McFadden has just returned from the East, where he organized and incorporated the Calumet & Montana Mining company, which company took up the bond and lease of Robert Hughes, Peter Germain and William Farrow on the Dark Horse mine, paying a total of $74,000 for the property. As soon as the company was organized, incorporated and the 300,000 shares of stock sold, Mr. McFadden ordered machinery shipped out at once, and much of it has arrived at Red Rock already. Two 50-horse power boilers are to be placed at once at the mine, also a 400-cubic-foot, two-foot stage Sullivan air compressor to operate six air drills and a 10x12 Ledgerwood hoisting engine. A shaft is to be sunk 600 feet deep on the Dark Horse No. 1 at once. A 100-ton concentrator is to be built immediately and Mr. McFadden states the company expects to have the concentrator in operation by July 1.

From Goldfield—380 tons.

From Manhattan—60 tons.

Sundry outside camps—20 tons.

These shipments do not include ore that are sent to Salt Lake and other points for sampling, such as the shipment that is sent to Salt Lake and other mines that do not sell through the Western Ore Purchasing company and that deal direct with the smelters.

Cherry Creek, Nev., May 12.—For twenty years this district has been slumbering. The wonderful revival at Ely, however, has started things here and the present season promises to witness big doings. Twenty years ago the population of this camp was 2,000; today it is about 300. It will be 1,000 in six months. The new railroad from the Southern Pacific to Ely will be finished to Curry's ranch, about twenty-five miles north of here, within a short time and some of the properties here will then begin to ship ore.

There is talk already that the Glasgow and Western company will cut loose at its Star mine and several other propositions will be in full swing when the railroad makes it possible for them to get in machinery, lumber, supplies, etc., at anything like reasonable rates.

The Gold Canyon company, a strong New York corporation, has acquired the Little Johnnie group of gold bearing claims, and the Cocomango company, another Eastern organization, is in possession of the Olympia group. Both groups of claims cover fine ledges that have been highly productive in surface workings and with depth are counted upon to make bonanza mines.

The Hartford-Nevada company has a fine property about five miles from town, and one of the four parallel ledges is now producing ore carrying nearly 150 ounces of gold and 40 ounces silver to the ton. A shipment of this kind of rock has just been made to the Salt Lake smelters, and arrangements are being made by the management to send out more just as soon as the railroad is completed to Curry's.

In the Duck Creek district several companies are beginning to mine in the great ledges of silver-lead ore that have been held back for lack of transportation facilities for years, and the entire region hereabouts is getting ready to boom.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

April Production Shows Decrease From March Record, Owing to Fire in Portland Mine--Stratton Company Threatened With Damage Suit.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 12.—The Cripple Creek April production record was 46,130 tons of ore, of $1,370,000 gross value. This is a decrease of 2,000 tons and $146,000 from the March record. The accident to the Portland mine sufficiently curtailed the output from that property alone to account for the decrease. The mill capacity was reduced by fire at least 2,000 tons during the month.

Smelters treated 9,630 tons of $50 average value. The Portland mill treated 7,500 tons, the Economic, 3,500 tons, and the United States Reduction and Refininfi company's plants 24,920, the average value of each mill's tonnage being $25. The Ironclad cyanide treated 600 tons of $4 average value. The product of several small cyanide mills is not given.

The total product for four months past is 184,650 tons of $6,112,050 gross value.

April dividends reached $325,000, paid by the Portland, Vindicator, Mary McKinley and Elkton companies.

A small cyanide plant is testing the ore in the 1,000-ton dump of Stratton's Independence mine at Cripple Creek. If the process proves adapted to dump and other low grade ores in the mine a cyanide plant to cost $500,000 may be erected.

G. W. Brown & Co., Florence, Colo., have leased the tailings dump of the El Paso mill, recently burned, and will treat it with the cyanide process. The company has just finished treating the dump of the National mill.

The United States Reduction and Refining company will shortly build a plant for treating the sand dumps of the Matallic and Union mills at Florence. The company has tested a process at its Colorado City mills which has given satisfaction and will be employed at Florence. The dumps contain thousands of tons of waste.

The Gunnell Gold Mining and Milling company will rebuild the mill recently destroyed by fire on the West Whiting mine on Gunnell hill, Central City, Colo. The property has considerable ore ready for shipment. A vigorous development policy will be pursued.

The Rigi mine on Battle Mountain, Cripple Creek, is in an ore body at 200 feet depth, which averages $40 gold per ton. Select samples carry many times this value. The pay rock is six feet wide, with the streak in the center.

The Beebe-Large lease on the W. P. H. claim, Cripple Creek, is in bonanza ore, fifty-three pounds of which have returned $742 in gold. A twenty-foot winze has yielded four cars of ore, returning $13,000 gross. The vein is four to six feet wide. The strike is 100 feet west of the shaft and east of where the survey locates the famous Harrison-Seaver vein. The property is on Ironclad Hill and belongs to the United Mines company.

The Little Clara claim of the Work Mining and Milling company, Cripple Creek, E. R. Marsh, lessee, is in a shoot of bonanza ore yielding a carload daily. Returns give it $1,200 to $1,500 as the value of the daily output. The company is receiving about $2,000 weekly royalty on the shipments.

The Highland Mary Mining and Milling company, composed of Pennsylvania capitalists, is operating a group of claims near Lost Lake, Boulder county. A compressor and electric plant will be erected on Boulder Creek. The property will be developed through a tunnel which will be run 800 feet to cut an extension of the Revenge vein. M. L. Stayer of York, Pa., is president of the company; I. N. Blair of Pittsburg, secretary and manager, and H. B. Nelson of Dubois, financial agent.

The Portland Gold Mining company threatens the Stratton Independence, limited of London, with a $500,000 damage suit for ore extracted from its territory. The two properties adjoin each other. A merger is not improbably as a result.

The Christmas Gold Mining company will probably sue the Golden Cycle Gold Mining company for $250,000 for damages for alleged wrongful extraction of ore from its territory.

MINES IN ALASKA.

Seattle, Wash., May 12.—Gold dust is coming in freely over the Tanana lines, and is consigned to the United States assay office. The last local assay was 1,150 ounces, which came over from Fairbanks. Fifty came in on this trip, all having more or less dust, which they are depositing at various points, Fairbanks getting the larger portion, but the government assay office at Seattle finally getting the lion's share. The miners bring the most cheerful reports, and they anticipate that the output of the Fairbanks district this season will exceed anything in its history, many predicting that it will exceed $14,000,000 easily enough. The cleanup has already commenced in a small way, and the miners entertain but one view and that is, a surprisingly big production in all the district and camps. A better feeling has never prevailed among the miners, and it is the general impression that this season's cleanup in the Fairbanks district will be between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000.

The new camps that have not made a record are going to have a chance, and they will not prove at all disappointing.

The White Pass route opened for traffic May 5. This includes all the lower river points, Eagle, Circle, Rampart, Tanana, Chena and Fairbanks. No freight was held over from last year, every pound going through on schedule. Navigation opened clear through from Dawson and steamers are actively employed. The hotels in Seattle are filling up with Alaska people, having the assurance that navigation on the Yukon and other streams will be open this season much earlier than usual. The mines, it is known, are opening earlier, and many are operating now very successfully. The vessels on the Seattle-Skagway route have been actively employed for the past week, and the business is all that could be desired. Last season La Barge opened on May 30, and the miners considered it early enough. The companies are provided with better vessels, and are in position to make better service than ever. They expect nearly or quite double the amount of business they had last season, and the output of gold will be nearly doubled. Seward, which has taken rapid strides as one of the leading commercial cities, is now growing faster than ever and bids fair to surpass all other Alaska towns.

IDAHO MINING

Boise, Idaho, May 12.—The mining outlook for the year is unusually good. The main trouble in doing development work heretofore has been the isolation of the mines, many of them reached only by rough and steep mountain trails. Several of the districts containing mines known to be rich will soon be reached with state wagon roads, when machinery can and will be taken in. The Boise Commercial club is also arranging to construct an electric railroad from this city to a point twenty miles above on Boise river. This will be of considerable advantage to Atlanta, Black Warrior and Skeleton Creek districts, in all of which there are many very rich gold and silver mines. For several years development has been going on in the latter two, the former being an old district of well known richness, where several stamp mills have been in operation successfully for many years. Reports are coming in of new discoveries. West of Black Warrior, on Hay Fork of Mare creek, fifteen miles east of Idaho City, many rich free gold ledges were discovered last year, and the locaters have kept busy the past winter doing development work. Much rich rock has been extracted, and owners are making arrangements for the erection of a mill.

Considerable work is going on in three or four of the mines of Shaw's Mountain, twelve miles northeast of Boise, and much good gold is found. The developments are at depths of from four to five hundred feet. The ore is mostly free, but some sulphides are found in the lower works.

Good reports are arriving from Ramsey Ridge district, forty miles northwest of Thunder Mountain, on the divide between Big creek and Salmon river, the elevation of the mines being from 7,000 to 8,300 feet above sea level. They were discovered in 1902. A few locations were made in 1903-04, and in 1905 prospectors rushed in from every direction, and 200 locations were made, upon all of which the location work was done. The country rock is granite, with immense porphyry dikes cutting through it. The ledges are large and 85 per cent of the gold free. There is an abundance of water and timber for mining purposes.

A Master Specialist as a Result of a Master Mind.

DOCTOR REA.

The Northwestern States are enjoying the experiences of one of the most advanced and successful specialists in acute and chronic diseases of the eye, ear, nose, throat, lungs, blood and nervous affections that has ever visited the Northwest.

The success of Dr. Rea is attributed to his specialty and study of specialism. Dr. Rea, student, philanthropist, and a man of wide reputation, has given his entire time and practice to a line of special diseases, which enables him from long experiences in handling these troubles to certainly come forward as a specialist. His faculty for mastering diseases, his ability to diagnose, and his plan for treatment is not to be excelled by few other physicians. Dr. Rea, although a young man in life, a plain man, and one who is used to the ups and downs of life, puts himself on a level with his patient and does not profess or pretend to practice the old plan of fashion, which is to look wise and say nothing. He knows disease; he knows how to explain the symptoms of disease; he knows where to look for disease, and the spot where located. It is said by Dr. Rea's friends that he can diagnose a disease of any patient without asking them a single question, that being the case he is not likely to doctor the wrong ailment; he will not take an incurable disease and lead the patient to believe that he can cure them when there is really no hope for them. Dr. Rea's business is large and he has plenty to do, even at times more than he can do, without taking incurable diseases and deceiving his patients. Dr. Rea is a graduate from one of the best schools in America. He has practiced his profession in some of the most principal hospitals in this country. His specialty comprises that class of disease which the ordinary home doctor fails to cure. Dr. Rea's plan of work is to go among those who are unable to come to him in his city offices for treatment. He is charitable and it is said that he has never been known to refuse to treat a patient who is worthy and in need. A number of important cases that we hereby take the liberty to publish, which might be of interest to some who wish to know more of Dr. Rea's great work.

JAMES CARRINGTON, Knapp, Wis. Cured of a long standing case of piles with one treatment, without cutting and without the use of medicine. Cured by the injection plan, which never fails to cure.

J. C. ANTON, Ashby, Minn. Cured of a chronic skin disease, eczema, after all other kinds of treatment had failed to do him any good at all.

FRED BAUER, Eau Galle, Wis. Cured of chronic kidney disease and stomach trouble after other doctors had failed to do any good at all.

GEO. WEBB, Baldwin, Wis. Cured of liver and stomach trouble and dyspepsia, with Dr. Rea's plan of treatment.

A. C. MYER, Ormsby, Minn. Cured of bad cancer of the lip in two treatments. Cured by the injection plan.

SVEN LARSON, Wild Rice, N. D. Cured of cancerous tumor of the ear in one treatment.

HENRY HJELSTAD, Thompson, N. D. Cured of kidney troubles and a very serious and complicated form of dropsy. Had been given up to die.

ERICK FORISLUND, Litchville, N. D.. Cured of chronic stomach catarrh and kidney and liver troubles.

MISS BEATRICE POLLOCK, Bell, Wis. Cured of serious eye trouble that had almost destroyed her sight.

GILBERT LARSON. Wild Rice, N. D. Cured of cancer of the face by Dr. Rea's hypodermic method. One treatment cured him.

ADOLPH PETERSON. Duluth, Minn. Cured of blood poison.

JOHN DION. Cloquet, Minn. Cured of nervousness, associated with uric acid rheumatism.

MRS. JOHN JOHNSON, Duluth, Minn. Cured of gall stones of the liver.

H. C. MORRISON, traveling man for the Walter A. Wood concern. Cured of chronic rheumatism. Cured in three months after he had not been able to do a lick of work for eight months; cured to stay cured.

MRS. CAROLINE WOOD, Elmwood, Wis. Cured of chronic blood trouble and gastric ulcer of stomach, when local doctors said she could not be cured and was given up to die.

OSCAR HALSTEIN, Fargo, N. D. Cured of consumption with Dr. Rea's plain treatment. Mr. Halstein was cured by another doctor, but used Dr. Rea's plan of treatment.

TOM IRWIN, Magnolia, Minnesota. Cured of early consumption. The disease had been coming on Mr. Irwin for a long time. He is now thoroughly well and able to work every day.

MRS. R. S. CAMPBELL. Omro, Wis. Cured of chronic heart troubles and stomach troubles. Mrs. Campbell was very bad and was given up to die.

JOHN McGUIRE, Red Cedar, Wis. Cured of chronic catarrh of the head and stomach, cured quickly, with medicines such as she had never taken before.

The Minneapolis Tribune says: "In the treatment of cancer, consumption, tumor, heart trouble and nervous troubles, Dr. Rea has no equal."

The Louisville Journal says: "Dr. Rea is the highest authority on chronic diseases and enjoys one of the largest practices of any physician in the Northwest."

(Special to The Herald.) The many patients of Dr. Rea will be glad to know that he has arranged his next professional visit and will visit the towns as stated here below. This coming of Dr. Rea will enable his many patients to consult this eminent specialist close to their homes. Consultation and examination to those interested, $1.00.

JILTED PARIS STUDENT PLAYS ROLE OF GHOST.

Paris, May 11.—A novel way of punishing the girl who rejected his love advances has been inaugurated by a young law student. The young man had been making love to a pretty brunette, but she jilted him. He decided to punish her. Being a law student, he saw how illegal it would be to use a knife or a pistol, so he obtained a key to her room, and after she had retired the student disguised as a ghost, appeared and said solemnly:

"I came to take you from this world."

The girl screamed and fainted. Assistance came, and when brought back to consciousness the girl told her experience, and the police found the "ghost." The student has not been arrested, but has been told to hold himself at the disposal of the police.

MULTI-MILLIONAIRES SCARCE IN ENGLAND.

London, May 11.—The fiscal reports just published show that although the population of the United Kingdom is over 40,000,000, there are only 417,526 persons whose income is large enough to pay a direct income tax. This report also reveals there are at least nineteen men in England whose wealth exceeds $5,000,000.

The total income tax was $641,451,335. Of those who contributed to make up the total, nineteen had an income of $250,000, which means that they own over $5,000,000. The report shows that such fortunes exist only in England. Many corporations have equal wealth.

PROCTOR

Proctor, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—This last week was rather a dull one in Proctor until the announcement of the end of the strike. Then work started in with a rush, and the cloud of smoke from the long line of "dead engines" fired up for runs was a very welcome sight.

Monday evening the village council held its regular meeting in the town hall. Contracts were let for sidewalks to be built as follows: On Fifth street, between First and East Side avenues, and on East Side avenue from Fifth street to one block north of the section line; on Main street from Central avenue to the Duluth line. A. Quackenbush has been awarded all village sidewalk contracts. Improvements in streets and alleyways were taken under consideration and will be approved next meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gun club Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. resolved itself into a meeting of the executive committee. At this meeting the general shooting rules covering all sweepstake and practice shoots and medal shoots were approved. The rules covering the contest for Peters Cartridge company's trophy were formulated and laid on the table until the special meeting to be called next week, at which time shooting rules and trophies for both A and B classes will be arranged and approved. The committee also voted to make May 24, June 24, July 26, Aug. 26 and Sept. 25 open shoots at the club grounds, on which days all non-members wishing to shoot will be accorded membership privileges. The club is in receipt of a handsome loving cup presented by the Peters Cartridge company, which will be the trophy for the individual championship for one class. The trophy for the other class is undetermined as yet.

The Ladies' aid held another very successful sale of home cooking at McEwen's grocery last Saturday afternoon. As at the preceding sales, the demand was far greater than the supply, so many of the disappointed customers ordered in advance for the next sale, which will be held Saturday afternoon, May 19, at Eller's grocery, on the West side.

Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. E. M. McEwen, on the East side. The greater part of the afternoon was spent in sewing on the aprons, for which the Aid society finds such a demand. Mrs. McEwen served delicious refreshments and the ladies enjoyed a very pleasant social time.

Wednesday afternoon the Ladies auxiliary to the B. of L. E. will meet in the hall.

During the last few weeks the railroad Y. M. C. A. building has been undergoing a thorough renovating, and the effect of the fresh paint and varnish is transforming. The long halls, which, like all halls, have had a somewhat bare and uninviting appearance, Secretary Davis has had painted a beautiful rich red, which seems to breathe a warmth of welcome to all entering the building. The reading room is in dark green, with yellow ceiling, the two game rooms in light shades of green, and the sleeping rooms on the upper floor in a tint of green; and the effect of the paint on the rough-finish plaster is very pleasing. The gymnasium in the basement is done in dark green and tan, and the apparatus has been put in fine order. The entire woodwork finish throughout the building has been gone over. The outside of the building is being repainted and the grounds newly sodded. The generosity of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company in keeping up the association building and making it so pleasant and inviting a place is very greatly appreciated by the many men who are members. The good done by the Y. M. C. A. and the building in Proctor cannot be overestimated.

The fishermen of the town have been trying their luck at various times since the season opened, but the average catches of trout have been in the twos and threes. Principal Owens has been an exception, bringing back two good catches from Silver creek.

HIBBING

Hibbing, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last Sunday Rev. Charles P. Bates, pastor of the Persbyterian church, accepted the invitation of Rev. Dr. Cleland to conduct the services at the First Presbyterian church at Duluth.

The Presbyterian pulpit was filled last Sunday by Rev. McMinnis of Duluth. Rev. Charles P. Bates is back again and will preach to his congregation next Sunday at the usual hours, 10:45 in the morning and 7:30 in the evening. Everybody is cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hunt are moving this week from the Tower cottage to the Cole house on Washington street, recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. La Londe. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Downing are moving from the Nixon residence to the Tower cottage.

J. C. Franklin, traveling mechanical engineer for the Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia, who has spent several weeks in Hibbing, setting up the new engines for the Oliver Iron Mining company, has completed his work and returned Tuesday to Philadelphia.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company is about to make some very extensive repairs and additions to the station called Mitchell, which is about two miles east of town. They are going to start at once to erect a fine large hotel, a roundhouse and a machine shop. The hotel is to be modern and to contain forty rooms. The building will be of brick, with steam heat, electric light and water equipment. The machine shop is to be one of the largest and best on the range, very similar to the one at Hibbing. It is to be equipped with machinery to handle all kinds of work in that line. A new electric signal device will be constructed across the tracks, and will be manipulated by the operator. All he will have to do will be to press a button, and the light over the tracks will designate to the train men which track to take, and hence will save the sending of many telegrams to the coming trains and also insure against mistakes, accidents and delays. The contract for the improvements at Mitchell has been let to L. D. Campbell & Co. of Duluth, and it is expected that excavation will commence the first part of this week.

The general exhibit of school work will be held on Friday afternoon, May 18, in all the rooms and buildings of the Hibbing schools. The teachers and scholars are very busy preparing for this event. Patrons and other friends of the school are cordially invited to attend.

At the close of the eighth school month there were 1,245 names of pupils on the school registers. Sixty-two new pupils entered in April. There have been 1,500 pupils enrolled during the year. The average attendance for all the twenty-eight rooms has been 93 per cent and 431 of the entire enrollment have been neither absent nor late during the past month. Since the first of January 118 pupils have been marked "left." Last year at this date there were 979 enrolled, which makes an increase this year of about 200.

"The Sign of the Crucifix" was played at the Power theater on Thursday evening to a large and well pleased audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dixon are moving into their fine new home on Lincoln street this week. Mrs. Dixon returned recently from Minneapolis, where she has been visiting for several weeks.

Last Sunday evening a special service was held at the Methodist church to raise funds to help the sufferers of the San Francisco catastrophe. The pastor, Rev. Rupert Swinnerton, devised a very novel service which included addresses by several prominent citizens. Prof. Young read a very able and well prepared paper on "The Natural Phenomina of the Disaster," in which he showed that the disturbances at San Francisco was only one of the methods of nature in adjusting the surface of the earth to the internal conditions, and that these disturbances were more liable to occur in some places than in others. Thomas T. Sillman spoke on "The Bright Side of the Disaster," bringing out prominently the fine sympathy of the entire country with the sufferers, and regarded this as a very bright omen for the future good of mankind. His theory was that every cloud has a silver lining and that much brotherly spirit had been exhibited in the stricken city. W. A. Wildes, Jr., delivered a very able talk on "The Past and Future of San Francisco." As Mr. Wilde was there last winter, he was well able to talk on this subject. At the close of the service a collection, amounting to $37 was taken for the benefit of the sufferers. Services will be held next Sunday at the Methodist church at 10:30 in the morning and 7:30 in the evening. The pastor, Rev. Rupert Swinnerton, will preach both sermons. The morning subject will be, "The Christian's Day." The subject for the evening discourse is "Do Christians Go to Heaven at Death?" This is the third in the series of discourses on "Great Bible Doctrines." The usual good music and singing will be provided.

W. C. Northey, who recently sold his home on the corner of Fourth avenue and Mahoney street to Dr. Read, will move on Monday next to the George Lerch residence at the Mahoning location. Mr. Northey has accepted a very responsible position with the Mahoning Ore & Steel company.

John Dugal has been granted a license to sell intoxicating liquors at the Kinney mine.

Morris Keller, a bartender at Keller's family liquor store, was robbed on Tuesday night of a gold watch and about $22 in money. A gang of rough men came into the saloon and filled their beaks in the usual manner and induced the bartender to fill his also. After a while they all got sleepy and fell asleep on the floor of the saloon, the bartender along with the rest. When Keller awoke from his pleasant dreams he was all alone and shy his watch and money. The robbers were captured early Wednesday morning, and Thoe White was gracing his vest pocket with the stolen watch. He is now in jail awaiting trial. The money has no doubt gone its usual course.

PLANT OF THE CROOKSTON LUMBER COMPANY AT BEMIDJI.

Bemidji, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The principal industry of Bemidji is the sawmill and lumber manufacturing plant of the Crookston Lumber company. The present plant of the company was built during 1903. It is located on the southeast shore of Lake Bemidji, where there are very excellent booming facilities and ample room for the piling of the immense amount of lumber which is turned out by the concern. The plant covers fifty acres of ground. The coming of this company to Bemidji marked an important epoch in the industrial history of the city in years to come. The present mill plant was built on the most improved plans of mill construction, and several new features were installed that were not common to other sawmill plants. Logs are received at the mill yard over the Minnesota & International railway, and are dumped from the logging trains directly into the lake at the mill. There is also a large supply of logs received over the Great Northern railway, from points along that line. The lumber company built and equipped a new railroad, last year, running from Milton, six miles west of Bemidji, north to Island lake, on the southern boundary of the Red Lake reservation. Millions of feet of logs have been cut along this new line and will be railroaded to the mill from their present location. The capacity of the Bemidji mill is 350,000 feet of lumber per day. It is now running night and day, to its fullest capacity, employing some 600 men, with a semi-monthly payroll approximating $25,000 per month. This large sum of money expended for labor alone, every month, by a single company, is a very important item in connection with the total amount received for labor in this vicinity, as the greater portion of it is received in trade by mercnants. The Crookston Lumber company (owners of the Bemidji plant) is a corporation, organized under the laws of the state of Wisconsin in 1898, and Thomas H. Shevlin, of Minneapolis, is the president. The company owns mills at Crookston, St. Hilaire and Bemidji. The central, or main, offices of the company are located in Bemidji, having been moved from Crookston to this city in 1904. The annual capacity of the three mills is about 100,000,000 feet of lumber, and there is available raw material to supply each of the mills for the next fifteen years, at least. These mills, when running jointly, at full capacity, give employment to over 1,000 men, to say nothing of the large number engaged in logging in connection therewith. The company conducts, at present, sixteen retail lumber yards in Minnesota and North Dakota.

VIRGINIA

Virginia, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Attorney Shea, who was recently instructed by the city council to write to the Great Northern railway officials concerning the strip of land needed for a bridge approach, reports that he has received no answer, although over two weeks have elapsed since he wrote. The Virginia Lumber company owns the land desired and the Great Northern a year ago agreed to procure it and deed it to the city. In return for a deed of the land the Virginia Lumber company asked the right to cross the Great Northern tracks with a line of the Rainy Lake railway. Evidently the Great Northern does not want to grant this privilege, and its officials have suggested that the council condemn the land and the Great Northern would pay for it. Mayor Eaton and the council refuse to do this, and there is a prospect of a legal battle before the matter is finally settled.

E. H. Schreiner of Two Harbors is in the city.

F. C. Whitney of Hibbing was in the city this week arranging to commence construction of his business building on Central avenue, opposite the Fay hotel. He will put up a solid brick structure, two stories high with basement. It will be 24 by 102 feet in size. The main floor will be for a storeroom, while the upper floor will contain a flat in front and sleeping rooms in the rear. The basement will contain a heating plant and laundry, besides a large and well lighted room in front, 60 feet clear.

Mr. Whiting, who is now engaged as chief clerk for the Rhodes Mining company, will soon move here and occupy his cottage until the new building is ready, when he will move into the flat upstairs. He says that he will endeavor to secure a petition from the property owners to pave the entire block on Central avenue, south of Chestnut street.

The Virginia Light & Water company has a crew of men at work laying mains and connections in Chestnut street, in accordance with the recent request of the council. All connections with the buildings on the street will be relaid with lead pipe to the curb line, so that hereafter there will be no danger of the pipes freezing up and no necessity of digging up the new pavement after it is laid in order to repair pipes.

The work of raising the company's new steel water tank is progressing well and after the proposed extensions to the mains are laid, Virginia will have an excellent water system supplied with the purest and best water on the range. The tank will hold a sufficient reserve so that it will be unnecessary to pump from the lake in case of fire, and this will insure pure water at all times.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church will meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Adelbert Trotter.

In order to guard against fire a large acreage of ground is being cleared off at the Brunt mine, west of the city.

Steve Gervias is now running a saloon on one side of the street and a clothing store on the other side of the street.

A Hibbing peddler was arrested in town Thursday armed with a 38-caliber revolver, which he threatened to use on the policeman who arrested him. It is thought that the man who violated the peddler's law and threatened the life of an officer will have to suffer dearly for his misconduct.

The Ladies' Aid society met at the home of Mrs. James Matheson Thursday and completed arrangements for the grand supper and bazar to be given in the new K. P. hall over Karon Bros.' store. The supper will be the first to be given in the new hall and is intended as a sort of an opening of the hall. The hall is one of the best on the range and is 28 by 38 feet and is equipped for lodge work since it has property rooms, anterooms, kitchen, dining room and is lighted with electricity.

The Leonard mine started shipping ore from the pit this week. The Leonard people have constructed a new addition to the shafthouse in the form of an incline shaft going down the edge of the pit. The new shaft is connected with the old shafthouse by new tracks.

Saturday night about 11 o'clock a fire broke out in the Grant hotel, which might have proved very disastrous. Ernest Hodge, who rooms on the third floor, left a kerosene stove burning in the room, and whether it exploded or simply burned too high, people do not know. However, it set the room on fire and before the flames could be extinguished everything in the room was destroyed. Guests in the hotel deserve much of the credit for putting out the fire. The fire department was called and responded quickly, prepared for the worst.

The boating season has begun again and several sailboats are seen on the lakes. Longyear lake is especially beautiful this spring on account of its freeness from logs.

RELIGIOUS MANIAC,

Wishing His Wife Heavenly Joys, Kills Her With Knife.

Vienna, May 11.—Believing that his wife would be happier in heaven, Signor Santonninizzi, who is supposed to be a religious maniac, killed the woman with whom he had lived a peaceful life for many years.

For three days the neighbors of Santonninizzi had observed the absence of the husband and wife. They became uneasy and notified the police, who broke in the door. They found Mrs. Santonninizzi laying in a coffin on a table. Near the coffin was a long knife with which the woman had been killed. The room was decorated with the pictures of saints, and the coffin in which the dead woman lay was surrounded with sacred emblems. Near the woman's head was a piece of paper on which something was written by so nervous a hand as to be unreadable.

It was learned that Santonninizzi had killed his wife and ran to his brother's farm, a few miles away, and asked the brother to take him to an insane asylum. When the brother asked for the reason of the strange request, Santonninizzi said he felt symptoms of lunacy and confessed his crime.

Physicians say that he is a religious maniac. He has always spoken of heaven and the after life to everybody, saying that this life is nothing compared to the life to come. As he was known to have lived happily with his wife, it is thought the only reason for killing her was that he wanted her to be happy in heaven.

PRESIDENT TELLS

Cherokee Maiden Statehood Victory is Certain This Congress.

Tulsa, I. T., May 11.—O. P. Sturm and his party of statehood girls have returned from a trip to Washington and other Eastern points. All were worn out from a continuous round of sight-seeing and "electioneering" for the great need of the two territories, statehood, otherwise were well and happy, confident they had accomplished some good.

At Washington the young women were the center of attraction wherever they went. Through the courtesy of Delegate McGuire the entire party was introduced to President Roosevelt. Miss Florence Johnson, one of the young ladies whose home is at Nowata, is a Cherokee maiden. When this was made known to the president, he grasped her hand the second time and to all said: "I assure you that Indian Territory and Oklahoma are going to get statehood before the close of this session."

Mr. Sturm saidthe eyes of the East are turned this way, and countless numbers of people are only awaiting the announcement that statehood has been granted to come here and help ouild up the new commonwealth.

"Ba-ba, Black Sheep!"

"Grunt—grunt, where's the corn?"

Babes in a Hogshead; or What Mercy Found One Morning in May.

By Annie James.

Little Mercy had a lovely playroom in the attic of her nice, big home; but when the very warm weather of May set in the little girl longed to go out in the open air and sweet sunshine to play. So one morning, when the weather was unusually fine, she decided to explore the big back yard that held the stables, cowsheds, pigpens and chicken-coop to see if she might not find a new spot in which to arrange her playhouse.

She had not "nosed" about long when her pretty blue eyes fell on a great hogshead which was lying upon its side and which—to Mercy's joy—was empty. "The very thing," she exclaimed, "in which to fix my playhouse! I'll run and tell mamma all about it and ask her permission to bring my dollies and playthings here. Why!" she went on, as she admired the vast proportions of the hogshead's round interior, "it is a real house, with sides, floor and roof. Even when it rains everything will be safe from getting wet in here."

Then, full of enthusiasm over her new discovery, Mercy hurried to the house and ran into her mamma's room, exclaiming: "Mamma, I'm going to move into a big barrel that lies down beside the carriage-house and where the sun shines all the time and where the chickens and pigs run around very friendly—if—if you will let me, mamma dear."

And, of course, mamma said "yes, indeed," as she laughed at her little Mercy's plan to live in a "big barrel," for she knew it was a hogshead that Mercy meant. And, of course, mamma helped Mercy to carry her household goods and family of dolls to the new abode, where soon everything took on a "living" aspect. On the floor of the hogshead was spread a rug for a carpet, and away back in the closed end a bed for the dollies was set up, beside which was put the dolls' bureau, holding dollies' clothes. But, owing to the smallness of the hogshead—after Mercy would introduce her own little body into it—some of the furniture was set in the yard about the hogshead's door, and Mercy played that part of her house was a porch.

The next day after Mercy had moved into the hogshead the neighbors from a farm adjoining came to spend the day visiting with Mercy's mamma and papa. To Mercy's delight they brought with them the dearest boy baby, who was just learning to walk. To her playhouse Mercy was allowed to lead the little fellow, where he seemed to be highly pleased with everything he saw. He sat inside the hogshead and cooed and crowed, clapping his chubby fists with all his might to demonstrate his glee. And when a stray piggie ran by and said "grunt," he laughed and laughed and mocked the piggie by saying "grunt, grunt."

"Oh, you precious 'ittle sing!" exclaimed Mercy, laughing indulgently, as she hugged the jolly fat fellow to her breast, much to that young gentleman's objection, for of hugging he got too much from his own parents, and he remonstrated against outsiders taking such a liberty. "Oh, you dearest baby!" went on little Mercy, stealing another hug, and this time a kiss also from the kicking baby. "I'd give anything for a little brother like you. Really, I wouldn't mind if I had a baby sister, too. I wish mamma and papa would get two babies like you—only I would like one to be a girl. Then when one was asleep or cross I'd have the other one to play with. My, wouldn't that be fine?"

Mercy stood speechless with surprise.

And the baby boy nodded his head and said "Goo-goo!" which Mercy knew meant yes.

But when evening came the company went home, and then Mercy realized the difference between a baby and dolls. "I'm tired of dolls that can't laugh and say 'grunt, grunt' and 'goo-goo,'" she complained that night as her mamma was undressing her for bed. "I want real live babies to play with me in my big barrel, so I do."

"Wouldn't one baby do?" asked mamma, smiling. "Just one dear little baby boy or girl?"

"Well—one would be better than none," admitted Mercy. "But if I could have my way I'd have two."

Then she said her prayer, and after asking God to "bless papa and mamma and all my dear relatives," she paused a moment, then added: "And please, dear God, send me a baby to play with me in my big barrel; or, if you can spare another one I'd like two—a boy and a girl."

The next morning as soon as breakfast was over Mercy ran down to her new playhouse. As she turned the corner of the carriage-house a pretty young woman, with a thin, pale countenance, came walking toward her. She smiled sweetly at Mercy and said: "Little girl, is your mamma in the house yonder?" pointing toward Mercy's home, a beautiful big farmhouse at the top of the hill.

"Yes'm," answered Mercy, her eyes full of inquiry. "If you want to see my mamma, go to the dining-room door. She is still at the breakfast table, and so is my papa, too."

"And you, little girl, will you look after my precious ones there?" waving a hand toward the side of the carriage-house, "for I am too weak and tired to carry them up the hill, so have left them in a little nest I found there." Then the pretty young woman went on up the path leading to the house while Mercy stood watching her and wondering.

"Who can she be?" Mercy asked herself. "Well, I like her, for she has blue eyes like mamma." Then, remembering that the young woman had asked her to look after something she was not strong enough to carry up the hill, Mercy began to look about for the discarded burden, whatever it might be. But as nothing not belonging to the barnyard was to be seen Mercy ran on to her playhouse, the big hogshead, whose open end looked in another direction from where she had been searching for that which the strange woman had left.

"Wonder if dollies slept well last night," she was saying to herself, as she stepped round in front of the hogshead. Then she suddenly stopped, gave vent to a loud exclamation and clasped her hands in surprise. "Babies! babies!" And, sure enough, there in the hogshead lay two babies—babies the same size and looking exactly alike, save that one's hair was parted in the middle and pronounced its sex a girl, while the other had a cute little curled "rooster" on top of his pretty head. Both babies were sound asleep, lying side by side on the rug that carpeted the hogshead.

And Mercy stood speechless with surprise, her heart swelling with joy and thanksgiving. "Just what I wanted," ran through her mind. "Two babies—a boy and a girl."

But only a minute went by, when down the hill came the delicate young woman and Mercy's mamma. And then Mercy heard the whole story; how the young woman—mother of these lonely babies, who were twins (think of it—twins!)—had been working as cook on a big ranch a few miles away; how she had been taken ill and had been sent to the hospital in the town, five miles distant; how, on the previous day, she had been pronounced well and had been discharged from the hospital and sent out into the world with her two babies and not a cent of money. All she asked was a place where she might work to earn food and shelter for herself and babies, but so far she had been turned away from every place where she had applied, for no one seemed to want her little ones—just a year old—to bother them.

"Oh, mamma, say yes!" cried Mercy, running to her mother and taking her hands. "Let us keep them here—I want the dear little twins to play with me in my big barrel."

"Of course, we will keep them," said her mamma, with tears in her sweet, motherly eyes, as she looked pityingly on the dear little babes asleep in the hogshead. For Mercy's mamma had heard from the poor young mother the story of her husband's untimely death in a mine explosion six months before, and how after that the poor woman had been obliged to go to work to support herself and babies till the terrible illness, from which she had just recovered, had thrown her on charity.

"There's light work in my home for you, when you have grown strong enough to do it," said Mercy's mamma, in a sweet, soothing tone to the young woman. "So you may cheer up and be happy, for here shall be your home—yours and your two lovely babies—as long as you want for one, and that will be till your boy and girl have got old enough to provide you with another."

"And I'll have what I prayed for—two babies—real babies—to play with me in my big barrel!" cried Mercy. "And I'll teach them to say 'grunt-grunt' and 'goo-goo,' and ever so many cute things. Oh, I'm so happy to have found these sleeping babes in the barrel."

And the babies' dear, thankful mother as well as Mercy's mamma laughed at the little maid's happiness and rejoiced with her.

Teeter Totter.

Lay a board across a log,
Then up and down you go;
A boy at either end the board
To rock it to and fro.
Teeter-totter,

Bread and water;
Oh, what jolly fun!
Teeter-totter,
No fun better
For each little one

Heigh—High!

Heigh—high! Way up to the sky!
Rock-a-by Baby—
Yes, rock-a-by.

Cradle is deep, cradle is snug,
Lies little Babe like a bug in a rug.
Blue eyes are peeping,
Now they shut tight,
Baby is sleeping
Kiss him good-night.

Heigh—high! Way up to the sky!
Rock-a-by, Baby—
Yes, rock-a-by.

FLORENCE MAY.

Little Tobias or How Dog Sense Saved a Family

By Maud Walker.

Tobias was his name. Although he had had no name, except "you dog!" till one day Willie Clarke found him wandering in the streets and whistled to him in a friendly way. Then the little stub-tailed, lop-eared, shaggy four-footer ran after Willie, barked a "how-do-you-do, little man," and wagged his little stub-tail to demonstrate his joy at being noticed.

And Willie fondly patted him on the head and gladly allowed him to follow. "You are a fine fellow," said Willie. "And if you don't belong to anyone you may come home with me and I'll own you." To which the little unkept stray barked his willingness to become Willie's property henceforth, and trotted along at a respectful distance behind.

"Now, sir," resumed Willie, inclined to be talkative (as any normal boy is when in the company of a dog), "I must give you a name. I wonder what would suit you, anyway?" And Willie looked at his new possession as if expecting a suggestion from him. But the only response was another wag of the stub, which was a poor excuse for a tail, and a sharp, happy little bark. But just at that minute Willie happened to glance up and saw a little bakeshop where he was in the habit of buying raisin cake, and where a genial little old man, by the name of Tobias Tumble, held forth. As this same Tobias always gave Willie such good measure for his money Willie now conceived the idea of doing the good little baker the honor of naming the stray dog after him. So, turning to the little dog he said: "Fellow, your name is Tobias from now on. Understand? Tobias—plain, good Tobias. An' if you are as good a dog as Tobias Tumble is a good baker—well, I'll have no kick coming, so I won't."

An so that little shaggy, stub-tailed, lop-eared pup became Tobias. And from that day his troubles as well as his happiness began.

When Willie walked into his own home, with Tobias at his heels, his mother exclaimed: "Why, child alive! Where did you get that horrid little dog? Don't bring him into the house; take him out quickly, for you may be sure he is full of fleas!"

"But, mamma, dear," began Willie, intending to plead Tobias' cause, when up from among several cushions on the couch sprang old Tabby, the great gray cat that was the pet of the Clarke household, and who had undisputed rights over all other small animals that might be brought there.

"Spit!" went old Tabby, and her back arched and her tail fluffed up to an enormous size, resembling the long fur boas worn by ladies in cold weather. "Spit! spit!" she repeated, her eyes blazing as they took in the four-footed newcomer.

"Bow-wow!" replied Tobias, frisking about and seeming in the gay, good humor to tease old Tabby. "Bow-wow! bow-wow!"

"Oh, dear, c. ld!" cried Willie's mamma, who was a nervous woman, "take that pup out quickly or he'll get into a fight with Tabby and injure her. Why did you ever pick up such a rough-looking, half-starved animal, anyway?" And Willie's mamma ran and opened the door that Willie might lead the dog out.

"Well, I don't see why old Tab has to always boss things," murmured Willie, as he reluctantly walked out into the back yard with Tobias at his heels. But once outside he forgot his trouble and began to make plans for Tobias' future. There were yet more serious objections to be met with in the form of his father and the cook, particularly the latter, who Willie stood in awe of, for through her indulgence only could he obtain food for Tobias.

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do today, Tobias," confided Willie as he sat on the back steps with his new comrade beside him. "I'll put some of my dinner in my pocket and sneak it out to you. Then, when it gets dark I'll take you in the cellar, where you may sleep on the old rug tonight. Tomorrow—if I can get up the nerve to do so—I'll talk your case over with mamma, and ask her to talk it over with papa. Then, if mamma and papa can get up the nerve to talk it over to old Tabby and the cook, I guess you'll be fixed for life. Till then you must be a good doggie and not make a fuss in the cellar, for no one must know you are down there."

Then Willie went down the street to play with some other boys and to show Tobias off to them. Unlike Willie's mother and old Tabby, these companions admired Tobias greatly, and the little dog was the wonder of the hour. "He looks hungry, Bill," exclaimed one little boy, calling attention to Tobias' thinness, "ain't he had nothin' to eat?"

"Not since I got him," said Willie. "I was afraid to ask cook for anything for him, so I guess he'll have to wait till dinner, when I'll sneak some of my victuals for him."

"Aw! He can't wait till then," declared another sympathetic admirer of poor Tobias. "Here, I've got four cents; let's go down the block to that meat market and git him a bone to chew."

This met with Willie's approval and to the meat shop the crowd went, Tobias, unsuspecting the good thing in store for him, following behind. At the shop the four pennies were proudly laid on the counter, while the owner of so much wealth pointed to Tobias as he gave his order to the jolly fat butcher behind the counter. "A good, juicy bone, with some bits of meat you don't want, for the dog, if you please, Mr. Meatman."

"Sure, kids; here's a dandy bone, with plenty of meat on it," said the butcher, handing out a huge joint, with enough meat on it for half a dozen dogs. "I like to see boys good to their dawgs, fer they're most deservin' critters, they be." And to prove his words the good butcher tossed in another little bit of meat.

Down behind the barn in the rear of Willie's home Tobias had the first real meal he had been blessed with in many days, and it is quite certain that Willie's enjoyment in watching Tobias eat was quite as great as the hungry dog's enjoyment in satisfying his appetite. After Tobias' meal it was thought best to let Tommy Arthur take him home and keep him till dark, when Willie would call in the alley for him. It was agreed that Tommy should hide Tobias in an old, unused buggy shed back of his house, and keep an ear open for Willie's whistle about 8 o'clock, the hour when Willie thought it would be safe to lead Tobias to the cellar of his own home.

Tommy appeared in the shadows leading Tobias.

As good luck would have it, Willie's parents had company that evening, and, of course, they did not keep their eyes on their little son after the company arrived, which was at 8 o'clock. Excusing himself from the parlor, Willie hurried down the street to Tommy's home, ran 'round into the alley behind the house, and whistled. Almost immediately Tommy appeared in the shadows, leading Tobias, who wagged his stub tail almost off in his delight at seeing Willie.

After a whispered consultation between the boys regarding Tobias, Willie said good night to Tommy and took his pet slyly home, where he crept into the cellar and put him to bed on the old rug. When told to lie down the little dog gladly obeyed, for the truth is he was very, very tired after weeks spent as a homeless tramp, picking up any scrap he could with which to lay his hunger, and sleeping on any doorstep till driven away by a rough voice crying "Get out, you dog!"

So he found the rug soft and comfortable, and he at once yielded to the desire to sleep—and sleep soundly.

About 10 o'clock the cook came in from a gay evening spent with friends. As was her custom, she went down into the cellar to see that the windows were securely bolted. But tonight she satisfied herself that all was safe by stepping down on the third step from the top of the stairs, lighting a match and looking hurriedly around at front and back windows. "Locked as tight as a Dutchman's mouth," was her comment. Then she tossed the burnt match below and returned upstairs.

About 10:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Clarke were awakened from their sleep by a loud barking and scratching noise coming from some source downstairs. "Why, what on earth can that be?" exclaimed Mr. Clarke, leaping from bed. "It sounds like a dog in the house!"

"Oh, I wonder if Willie brought that stray pup in!" said Mrs. Clarke, also getting up. "Now, I forbade him having that dog in the house this morning when he brought it home. If he has—"

But the loud barking and frantic scratching on the cellar door which led into the kitchen drowned Mrs. Clarke's voice and cut off further words. Mr. Clark ran into the hall and downstairs to find what the trouble was. In the kitchen he met cook, who was coming from her room wrapped in a blanket. Just as Mr. Clarke was on the point of asking her how a dog came locked up in the cellar, she cried out: "Smoke, sir! There's a fire some place!"

Mr. Clarke also detected the odor of smoke and ran to the cellar door, opened it and out dashed Tobias, followed by a cloud of dense smoke.

"Quick, Susan, call your mistress and Willie! There is a fire in the cellar. Then come and help me," cried Mr. Clarke, running downstairs. But to Mr. Clarke's relief he found that the fire was only a smoldering of the old rug, which had caught fire from the bit of match that Susan had thrown down from the cellar steps half an hour before. But in another minute the whole thing would have been in a blaze, and as it lay just in front of the kindling and coal bins Mr. Clarke shuddered as he contemplated in his mind the terrible thing which might have happened. As he threw water over the burning rug he said to himself: "No matter where that dog came from nor how he got in here he saved the house from burning, and maybe saved our lives as well; for had the kindling caught with us all asleep upstairs on the second floor!"——

"Oh, there is that dog!" exclaimed Willie's mother as she ran, all excited and half-clad, into the kitchen in response to Susan's summons.

"I know, mamma, it's my fault," began Willie. "I didn't mean to disobey you, and meant to ask you and papa tomorrow to let me keep the little fellow, for I"——

"Indeed you shall keep him, son," said Mr. Clarke, coming up from the cellar and overhearing Willie's words. "Had it not been for the almost human presence of mind of that little dog the house would now have been in flames. He has saved the house and maybe our lives as well."

Then, with grateful tears running down his cheeks, the happy Willie got on his knees and put his arms about Tobias. "I knew you wasn't a common dog," he whispered.

Read Character by the Nose

The physiognomists tell us that a person's character may be read by the shape and size of his nose. The Roman nose pronounces its owner an adventurer and a person of indomitable will-power. A straight nose—not too high between the eyes—denotes a serious and energetic temperament, and its owner may usually be relied upon. A cleft nose shows great benevolence and sincerity. A long, thin, curved nose denotes a vain, ironical, often witty and clever person, and sometimes is seen on a poet, preacher or shrewd business man. A fleshy nose is the mark, usually, of cruelty and domination. Both Catherine the Great of Russia and Elizabeth of England had curved, fleshy noses which bespoke their cruel and selfish natures.

Very small, short noses denote people of mediocrity and usually belong to the silly, egotistical class. Very thin, open-nostrilled noses denote the cruel, grasping and often dishonest character.

Long, well-formed noses, rather prominent, are the most desirable, as they denote a well-balanced mind. The little, "cute," turnup nose is a mark of idleness, frivolity and selfish vanity, without any depth of character to offset the weaknesses it so plainly advertises.

Building a Pigeon House.

Every normal boy loves to have a few pigeons about the barnyard, and no normal parents will object to their boys' satisfying this natural taste for such choice, pretty fowls.

And such pretty pigeon-houses may be built of old lumber and knocked-up packing boxes, the boy being his own carpenter. These little houses should be built a proper distance above the ground, but not too high to be easily reached by the boy who is attending to the rearing of the fowls. It is a good plan to build, say, a four-room house. This will accommodate four pairs of pigeons. And be very careful in buying your pigeons to know that they are mates, for pigeons are very particular in the matter of choosing companions, and when once mated they cannot be induced to change their affections.

Of course, you must have boxes, about 15 inches square, for nests. In these boxes you will place the terra cotta nest pans, which are trifling in cost, being had for about five cents—or less—each.

Twice a day in summer put fresh water in the pigeon-house, for pigeons love pure, fresh water, and their health depends upon having it. Once every morning cleanse the vessels holding the water, for otherwise they would soon accumulate dirt and become unwholesome.

Feed your pigeons ordinarily cracked corn, wheat and millet. During their breeding time it is well to add some Canadian pease to their diet. Their meals should occur three times a day, like our own, breakfast at 7 or 8 o'clock, dinner at 12 or 1 o'clock and supper at 5 in the evening.

Plenty of gravel and grit must be supplied also, the ground-up oyster shells, charcoal and salt being a fine "digester" for them. All over the floor in their house sprinkle gravel and sand, and some might be kept in the yard about their quarters.

As pigeons love bathing—and need it—you must supply a bathtub—a shallow pan for their house. Keep this filled daily with fresh water.

If you would have success attend your efforts at pigeon raising you must study the matter carefully and take the greatest pains with your work. Like every other undertaking, it requires time and attention, with plenty of common sense, to raise pigeons, and the boy who does not possess these qualifications would better not attempt it, but leave the work to his more industrious and willing brother.

Irish Humor.

"And, now, Mrs. Sullivan," said the counsel, "will you be kind enough to tell the jury whether your husband was in the habit of striking you with impunity?"

"With what, sir?" queried Mrs. Sullivan.

"With impunity," repeated the counsel.

"Well, he was, sir, now and thin; but he struck me oftener with his fisht, soir."

An excited orator during the Civil War exclaimed: "We have taken Atlanta; we have taken Savannah; we have taken Charleston; we have taken Petersburg and occupy Richmond, and what remains for us to take?"

An Irishman in the audience cried out: "Let us be afther takin' a drink!"

Enigma.

I am found in a jail,
I belong to a fire;
I am seen in a gutter
Abounding with mire;
Put my last letter third,
And it will be found
I belong to a king
Without changing my sound.

The Sad Fate of the Picnic Pie.

A jolly picnic crowd went out
In the green wild wood one day,
When all the world so smiling bright,
For the time was the merry month of May.

All the morn was blithely spent
In gathering blossoms bright;
In wading streams, in climbing hills
And making squirrels take flight,

Or listening to the wild birds' song,
While they rested in some nook,
Where branches bent to shield the sun
From a laughing, babbling brook.

Then noon came on, the luncheon hour,
And baskets were brought out,
While little maids, like busy bees,
Spread the snowy cloths about,

And set the picnic dinner forth—
A most appetizing treat—
While every boy and girl did come
And seat themselves to eat.

Now, in that crowd, so blithely gay,
Was a boy so hungry that
He ran right to the picnic spread
Nor heeded where he sat.

But down he dropped, in starving mood;
Then quickly rose to cry:
"Oh, mercy me! My, mercy, oh!
I've sat in a pumpkin pie!"

MORAL.

Now, children, profit by this tale,
And let not your appetite,
At picnic gay, in month of May,
Put you in such a plight.

For he who calm and cautious is
Gives himself no cause to cry,
But eats his lunch in ease and joy
And winds up with the pie.

VICE ADMIRAL KILLED BECAUSE HE REFUSED TO GRANT MEN A HOLIDAY

Commander of Port of St. Petersburg Stabbed by a Workman

Who Crept Up Behind and Plunged Dagger in Back.

Russian May Day is Generally Celebrated by the People.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—Vice Admiral Kuzmich, commander of the port, who was very unpopular with the workmen, was assassinated here today by workmen whose May day demonstration he had attempted to stop.

The admiral was killed at the new admiralty works, a government institution where most of the 2,000 men employed there reported for work at 5 o'clock this morning. They wanted immediately to march out in a body and celebrate the Russian May day but finally agreed to work till 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The admiral, however, made a speech to the men, saying that he could not agree to their leaving work at 2 o'clock, and the matter was left open. At about 9:30 a. m., according to an officer who was at the gate of the works, the admiral was emerging from a small shop in the works when a workman who had been concealed around the corner of the building leaped on Kuzmich from behind and drove a long dagger into his back. The admiral fell forward on his face, which was badly cut by stones, and died immediately. The assassin fled into a large forge where he was lost among the men employed there. The works were promptly surrounded by troops and police, but the search for the murderer was unavailing, his comrades professing ignorance of his identity.

The police say it is evident that the assassination of the admiral had been planned in advance. The dagger which was found on the spot was concealed in a round stick, like a sword cane.

Among the workmen are many sailors and revolutionists. Kuzmich had a bad reputation among the workmen, being regarded as hard and despotic.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—The workmen of St. Petersburg today made an imposing showing in their May day celebration. Practically every factory, mill and shop in the city was idle, over 200,000 men joining the demonstration. Early reports from the interior showed that work generally was suspended in the provincial cities of Russia proper. While the leaders here professed their intention to avoid collisions, the radical element, which is boycotting parliament, determined to celebrate the day with manifestations, and the men out of work decided to parade in the industrial sections early in the day, with flags, bearing inscriptions, reading: "Liberty and work for those out of work." The gravest fears were entertained that the day would not pass without bloodshed. The chief of police posted notices that no manifestations would be permitted, large reserves of police, armed with rifles, were massed in the industrial quarters, and detachments of infantry and cavalry, though they were kept out of sight, were posted at strategic points.

Shortly before noon came the news that Vice Admiral Kuzmich, the commander of the port, had been assassinated at the new admiralty works, as a result of his attempting to force the employes to work all day, instead of celebrating May day.

TWELFTH ANNUAL MEETING

Of the Mohonk Lake Conference on International Arbitration.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 14.—The Mohonk Lake Conference on International Arbitration will hold its twelfth annual meeting at Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 30-June 1. Hon. John W. Foster, ex-secretary of state, will preside, and among the principal topics of discussion will be the approaching Hague and Pan-American conferences. Among those who will take part are Edward Everett Hale, Cardinal Gibbons, Senators Heyburn of Idaho and Scott of West Virginia; Representatives Bartholdt (Mo.), Littlefield (Me.) McCleary (Minn.), Burton (O.), Norris (Neb.), Wood (N. J.), Waldo and Goldfogle (N. Y.); Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court; State Supreme Court Justices McClain of Iowa, Knowlton of Massachusetts, Moore of Michigan, Elliott of Minnesota, Potter of Pennsylvania and Chester of New York; Former Foreign Ministers C. R. Breckenridge of Arkansas, Bartlett Tripp of South Dakota, Oscar S. Straus and George F. Seward of New York, Samuel R. Thayer of Minnesota and Frank C. Partridge of Vermont; Governor Warfield of Maryland, Lieutenant Governor Jackson of Rhode Island, James Brown Scott of the state department, Leo S. Rowe of the university of Pennsylvania, Rear Admiral French E. Chadwick, U. S. N.; Mayor Jones of Minneapolis, Joseph Shippen of Seattle, Wash., and Drs. Lyman Abbott, William Hayes Ward and Albert Shaw of New York.

Official delegates will also be present from many chambers of commerce and boards of trade, representing among other cities, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Providence, New Haven, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Scranton, Toronto, St. Louis, Nashville, Cincinnati, Denver, Little Rock Portland, Me., Portland, Or., Beaumont, Tex., Wheeling, W. Va., and Honolulu, Hawaii.

INCREASE OF DEFECTIVES

Should be Prevented by a Revision of Marriage Laws.

Varied Topics Discussed by the Charities Convention.

Philadelphia, May 14.—Among the many topics discussed at today's session of the national conference on charities and correction were needy families, defective and difficult boys, industrial training for children, immigration and training for social workers.

The principal speaker on the subject of defectives was Ed. R. Johnstone, superintendent of the New Jersey training school at Vineland, N. J., and chairman of the committee on defectives.

In speaking of the laws for the prevention of the increase of defectives, Mr. Johnstone said:

"A careful revision of the marriage laws in the various states is needed. Elopements, marriages under age, consanguinous marriages, the marriage of people while intoxicated, all need legal restriction and enforcement of the laws. Laws requiring the permanent custody of feeble-minded women at least are needed. We need it to be mandatory to send the defectives to the institutions and the capacity of institutions must be sufficient to work in harmony with compulsory education laws."

Discussing the topic of "Education Before Literature," Thomas M. Balliett, Ph. D., dean of the school of pedagogy, New York university, said:

"What is essential in education or development of the growing child in his early years is fresh air, wholesome food, abundance of sleep, abundance of opportunity to play, opportunity to use his senses upon things which he wants to know and intercourse with other children and with adults whose personal influence is wholesome and uplifting. Reading, writing and arithmetic become of greater and greater importance with advancing years, but they must not occupy the dominant place in the early education of the child which many people of conservative type would assign them."

NEW SKYSCRAPER IN WALL STREET

To Occupy Most Valuable Plot of Ground In World.

New York, May 14.—Wall street is to have a new skyscraper which will enjoy the distinction of occupying the most valuable plot of ground in the world. This is located at the southeast corner of Broadway and Wall street, opposite Trinity church. It will be put up by a St. Louis company at a cost of $300,000, and will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1, 1907.

The new skyscraper will be one of the most remarkable buildings ever constructed. Although it will rise to a height of 220 feet, the foundations will be only thirty by thirty-nine feet. This is the tallest building ever put up on so small a base, and architects have had to give particular attention to utilizing every inch of this space and to bracing the structure against wind.

The interior of the new building will be of steel and bronze finish, but there will be no attempt at ornamentation. Instead of embellishment, the architects have been bent upon making the structure absolutely fireproof. Tenants could not be secured for such a building, which is scarcely more than a huge flue, unless the danger from fire was eliminated. This has been done by specifying that the steel frame shall be thoroughly protected by hollow tile. Every beam, girder, and column is to be surrounded by this unburnable material. Hollow tile is also to be used for all floors and partitions. This is the type of construction that so successfully withstood both fire and earthquake in the recent disaster at San Francisco.

Among other features will be the three high-power elevators so enclosed that passengers will not disturb the privacy of offices as they go up and down. Each floor will contain but one office into which the elevators will open directly.

The price paid for the 1,170 square feet that comprise the site of the new skyscraper was $700,000. This figures out at about $600 per square foot or $4.15 per square inch. In other words this means a value per acre of $26,051,412.40.

Early in the eighteenth century this piece of property was sold for $515. By 1780 it had advanced to $5,000. The next time it changed hands was in 1827, when it brought $18,275. Since then it has remained in the same family until bought by the "No. 1 Wall Street Corporation" on behalf of St. Louis capitalists.

TO INSTALL DUPLEX SYSTEM.

Washington, May 14.—Orders have been issued by Gen. Allen, the chief signal officer of the army, for the installation of the duplex system on the Alaskan cables. The commercial business of the cables has become so heavy that even by working night and day the operators are not able to handle all the business. With the new system the capacity of the cables will be increased about 75 per cent.

COMMENT IS UNFRIENDLY

Over the Approaching Visit of Emperors at Vienna.

Francis Kossuth Publicly Discountenances the Feeling.

Budapest, Hungary, May 14.—Official note has been taken of the unfriendly comment of the Hungarian press on the approaching visit of Emperor William to Emperor Francis Joseph at Vienna and both Premier Wekerle and Minister of Commerce Francis Kossuth have publicly discountenanced it. The premier took the opportunity of an election address at Bruesvar yesterday to declare his conviction that "Austria-Hungary wished to remain an equal factor in the German alliance, which not only was a guarantee of peace, but was the pillar of Austria-Hungary's foreign policy." He further declared that there was absolutely no foundation for the rumors that Germany had in any way interfered in the internal affairs of the dual monarchy, rumors of which largely occasioned the present display of bitterness.

Kossuth expressed the opinion that the comments in the papers did not express the real opinion of Hungary, which thoroughly realized the desirability of the best relations with Germany.

WANTS TO REACH THE BIG FELLOWS

President Stickney Sends a Characteristic Letter to Nelson.

Washington, May 14.—Senator Nelson today had read in the senate the following telegram from the president of the Chicago & Great Western railroad:

"St. Paul, May 12, 1906.—Hon. Knute Nelson, Washington: As you know I am in full sympathy with the main features of the amendment proposed to the interstate commerce act, but I desire to protest against the injustice of the proposed amendment imposing fine and imprisonment on officers and agents of railway companies for allowing rebates. Such penalties could never be inflicted on presidents and high officials of railways of this country who live in New York and do not deal directly with rates, while their demand for more revenue would induce some freight agent on a salary of $3,000 or $4,000 a year to grant a rebate. Make the penalty as high as you please against the railway company. This is the only way to reach the railway officials and grand dukes. The penalty provision was in existence for many years and only one man, a poor freight agent trying to support his family on a meagre salary, was imprisoned.

"A. B. STICKENY."

FIFTEEN MEN INJURED.

Chicago, May 14.—Fifteen men were injured, two of them fatally, by the bursting of a ladle holding fifty tons of molten metal in the converting mill of the Illinois Steel works at South Chicago today.

ADDITIONAL CASUALTIES

In the San Francisco Disaster Wired by Gen. Greely.

Twenty-Seven Dead Not Previously Reported; Many Injured.

Washington, May 14.—An additional list of victims of the earthquake and fire in California is supplied by Gen. Greely, as follows:

"San Francisco, May 7, 1906.—Military Secretary, Washington:

"Sir—Supplemental to the telegraphic reports of the killed and seriously injured, rendered April 21 to 29 inclusive, I have the honor to submit the following list, which includes all other names secured to date of persons killed and seriously injured by earthquake and fire:

"Killed: Charles Dean (body presumed to be), Frank Deshuelo, Ferdinand Grimm, William Hall, Mrs. Annie Ferald (previously reported as Gerald) and child, William Johnson, Edward Johnson, wife, two children and brother; Frank C. Keefe, wife and two children; John Joseph Larkin, Margaret McShea and two sons; James Edward and John Francis (all previously reported as Shay), George Pritchard, Frederick Rauschkolf, Louis M. Rossi, Homer Scott, John Walsh, Cheek Chung, Mrs. J. Ruhe (Santa Rosa), Con Mahoney (previously reported without Christian name), J. B. McIntyre, Margaret Perringer, Adolph Schwering, Mrs. Emily Schwering. Making twenty-seven names not previously reported.

"Seriously injured: M. T. Comstock, D. Crawford, E. C. Egan, Police Captain Henry Gleson, Henry Hopman, Jr., W. J. Hurley, Maurice Jordan, D. Kelly.

San Jose: Died from injuries received—A. Wabarthney, Peter Anderson.

"Seriously Injured: Miss Alta Crowder, San Francisco; Henry Craft, San Francisco; Thomas Dugan, San Francisco; Lena Fleming, Agnews; Miss Melinda Kolet, Agnews; Miss Clara Keen, San Francisco; Mrs. James Morrissey, San Francisco; Miss Muison, San Francisco; Miss Grace Nelson, San Francisco; Miss Maude Ramsdell, San Francisco.

PRINCE GIVES THANKS FOR HIS SAFE JOURNEY.

London, May 14.—Following the precedent established by his father when he returned from India, thirty years ago, the prince of Wales yesterday gave thanks publicly for his safe journey at a service held in Westminster abbey. The service was attended by King Edward and all the members of the royal family now here, a contingent of officers and sailors who accompanied the prince and a large assemblage of the general public. Bishop Potter of New York, was present and sat next the archbishop of Canterbury.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

Washington, May 14.—The president today sent the following nomination to the senate: Postmaster: Wisconsin—J. H. Spencer, Necedah.

SUSTAINS THE STATE

May Refuse to Allow Insurance Companies to Do Business.

Supreme Court Renders Important Decision in Kentucky Case.

Washington, May 14.—Justice Peckham today delivered the opinion of the supreme court of the United States in the case of the Travelers' Life Insurance company versus the insurance commissioner of the State of Kentucky, in favor of the state. The case involved the constitutionality of the state law authorizing the revocation of permits given to foreign insurance companies to do business in the state when such companies remove to the federal courts cases brought against them in the state courts. The court held that such a law covers a right which a state may properly exercise. Justice Peckham said that a state may refuse to permit an outside company to do any business whatever within its borders. He therefore held that the state law is not in conflict with the federal constitution. Justice Day read a dissenting opinion in which Justice Harlan concurred.

MINERS GET AN ADVANCE

Will be Paid Highest Wages Since Commission's Award.

Tamaqua, Pa., May 14.—Commissioner Nell, who was appointed by the anthracite strike commission to compute the rate of wages for anthracite miners, has notified the coal operators that the miners will be paid 8 per cent on the $4.50 basis for the month of May, the average price of coal at tidewater last month being $4.93 per ton.

This is the highest rate at which the miners have been paid since the commission made its award.

THREE THOUSAND LAWS

Have Already Been Enacted by Present Session of Congress.

Washington, May 14.—The files of the index clerks at the state department show that the first session of the Fifty-ninth congress has broken all records in the matter of completed legislation up to this moment. Already more than 3,000 laws have been enacted, which is between 700 and 800 more than in any preceding session up to the beginning of the month of May. The greater part of this mass of law was made up of bills of a private nature and only about 250 of the total enactments were general laws.

SCHURZ IS NO MORE

Well Known Publicist Dies at Early Hour Monday Morning.

Has Been a Prominent Figure in Politics for Many Years.

New York, May 14.—Carl Schurz, widely known as a publicist and former cabinet member, died at his home in this city at 4:35 o'clock this morning. Death was due to a complication of diseases following an attack of stomach trouble, which became acute on Thursday last. In spite of brief periods of seeming improvement, Mr. Schurz slowly failed, and yesterday afternoon sank into a state of coma, which continued until the end. At the bedside were a son, Carl L., and two daughters, Marianne and Agatha; Edward L. Pretorius, Mr. Schurz's business partner, and Drs. Jacobi and Strauss.

Mr. Schurz was 76 years old, having been born near Cologne, March 2, 1829. He published a Liberal newspaper at Bonn and engaged in revolutionary movements there in 1848-49. He had to leave Bonn and fled to Switzerland. He came to the United States in 1852 and settled in Watertown, Wis. He was defeated as Republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Wisconsin in 1857. He was United States minister to Spain in 1861 and resigned to enter the army rising to major general in 1863. After the war he was the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, founded the Detroit Post in 1866 and was editor of the St. Louis Westliche Post in 1867. He was temporary chairman of the Republican national convention in Chicago in 1868. He was a United States senator from Missouri in 1869-75. He was secretary of the interior 1877-81; editor of the New York Evening Post, 1881-4. He was one of the leaders of the Independent movement in 1884. He supported Cleveland for president. He was also an author of considerable note.

TABAH IS EVACUATED

Turkish Troops Get Out by Order of the Sultan.

Constantinople, May 14.—Tabah has been evacuated by the Turkish troops by order of the sultan.

The porte's reply on Friday to the British note agreed to the evacuation of the Tabah and to the appointment of a commission for the delimination of the boundary, but it was couched in such terms as to make it not acceptable to Sir Nicholas O'Connor, the British ambassador, and he has insisted on complete satisfaction before the expiration of the limit set by the British note. It is fully expected that this will be accorded.

BRITISH COMPANY

Would Take Over the Mutual's Policyholders' Interests in England.

London, May 14.—An important development has taken place in connection with the interests of British policyholders of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. Last week the North British and Mercantile Insurance company proposed to take over the New York Mutual Life's holders' interests on the payment of the same premium they are now paying, without further medical examination, and with liberal privileges and an immediate participation in the profits of the company. This was found to be practicable with regard to policies representing $45,000,000 and subject to immediate full surrender value. With regard to unmatured policies the North British and Mercantile company declared it was proposed to negotiate for these on liberal terms.

D. C. Haldeman, former manager in London for the Mutual Life, submitted the proposals to a committee of holders, presided over by Lord St. Oswald, and this body resolved unanimously to support them. Mr. Haldeman will join the North British and Mercantile company as joint manager of its life department.

MOODY AND ALLISON SILENT ON CONFERENCE.

Washington, May 14.—Attorney General Moody and Senator Allison conferred with the president today on the situation that has arisen concerning the railroad rate bill in the senate. On leaving the executive office Mr. Moody said that he would make no statement in answer to that made by Mr. Tillman in the senate Saturday; that if any statement is made, it will come from the president. He would not say, however, that such a statement is to be made.

Four Magazines of Cartridge Company Blown to Atoms.

People Panic Stricken and Run From Houses Fearing Earthquake.

None Killed But Every Window in City is Shattered.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 14.—Four magazines in the testing grounds of the Union Metallic Cartridge company, in the East side, exploded at an early hour this morning, the concussion shaking the whole city and causing great alarm among many persons, who believed that there had been an earthquake. Windows were shattered, and in many houses crockery fell from shelves, but no serious damage was reported. There were two explosions, with but a second's interval between, and a large amount of powder was destroyed. None of the company's buildings were damaged. So far as known no person was hurt.

Following the explosion many persons, clad only in their night garments, fled to the streets, believing that the earthquake recently predicted had taken place. Many women became hysterical, and it was some time before they were reassured.

The four magazines which exploded contained 25,000 pounds of powder each. None of the other buildings of the cartridge company was damaged and the four adjacent magazines were unharmed. The cause of the explosion is not known. Most of the plate glass windows in the city were shattered, and the isolation hospital, a small structure half a mile away, was wrecked. A panic occurred among the inmates of the town farm, but no one was hurt.

The full force of the explosion was felt in the city proper and apparently there is not a single large pane of plate glass left in the business buildings. As for private residences few escaped without broken windows. The damage seems to be confined entirely to broken glass, and already the Union Metallic Cartridge company has given notice that property owners will be compensated for damage of this nature. Immediately after the explosion the people of Bridgeport seemed certain that an earthquake had visited them and the scenes on the street were quite exciting, hundreds of residents fled out of doors in their night clothes carrying a few belongings. Mothers carried their crying infants and men ran frantically about making inquiries. The pandemonium, however, lasted but a short time as word quickly went about that there had been an explosion. These people, however, continued in a nervous state for several hours, being in fear of further explosions. The city was early flooded with inquiries from other places for particulars of the disturbance, which had even more resemblance to an earthquake than locally. From all parts of the state came word that the shocks were felt with force enough to awaken people from sound slumber.

Eastport, L. I., May 14.—Two distinct shocks coinciding in time with the Bridgeport explosions and so violent as to send almost the entire population of this village into the streets in their night clothing, were felt here today. Houses were jarred, dishes rattled, beds shook and almost every sort of domestic animal set up a racket which lasted half an hour.

New Haven, Conn., May 14.—Two shocks from the Bridgeport powder explosion were felt in this city very distinctly. Windows rattled, and in some houses dishes were shaken from shelves. It was at first thought here that the shocks were caused by an earthquake. The force of the explosion was felt in many parts of the state.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN ITALY ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Paris, May 14.—The innocence or guilt of the most beautiful woman in Italy, who is charged with theft, is the question which has set half of Italy at loggerheads.

Nina Bucci is fair, tall, with a mass of golden hair, large blue eyes set in a face of faultless lines and a cultured mind. Her beauty a few years ago so affected a young painter that after having been refused her hand he went insane.

After a short married life with Signor Jacobini, the nephew of the late cardinal secretary of state, she eloped with Signor Agostini, who deserted wife and children.

The runaway couple went to Como, where they took rooms at a large hotel. A few days after their arrival some valuable jewelry disappeared from the rooms occupied by a lady guest. Nina took an active part in the search for the jewels and insisted on the matter being reported to the police.

The police watched Nina closely and at Cernobbio had her trunks searched, with the result that the missing jewels were found in one of her trunks and she was at once arrested.

Nina declares that she is innocent and maintains that some unknown agent of her revengeful husband placed the jewels in her trunk. A valet traveled with her, and he may turn out to be the villain of the piece.

The trial, which is going on at Como, has attracted attention throughout Italy and the whole country is divided into two camps, one stoutly maintaining the innocence, the other the guilt of this most beautiful creature.

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers tonight and Tuesday; rising temperature; easterly winds.

"The remarkable development—we may say perfection—of ready-for-service attire solves the clothes problem and permits people of limited salaries to dress as well as their employers," observed Sherlock Holmes after a pull at his weed. "It was, of course, only a question of time when science would remove the burden of excessive charges and give the people at large custom tailor quality at clothing store prices. Now that it has been done we'll see better dressed communities."

The Alfred Benjamin & Co. correct clothes at $20 to $30 have given the high price custom tailors more trouble in explaining "why" than any other make.

WEST DULUTH

WILL TRY CASTING

Rod and Gun Club to Start New Contest Next Sunday.

Daughters of Norway to Celebrate Thursday—Kirmess Wednesday.

The West Duluth Rod and Gun club held a shoot yesterday afternoon at its grounds at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west. In spite of the heavy wind which was blowing some good scores were made, but generally speaking the conditions were distinctly unfavorable for a good shoot.

Next Sunday afternoon, in addition to the shoot, a casting contest will be held. Capt. Holmberg will this week lay out a casting court, according to established rules and the members of the rod department of the club will practice casting. This will become a regular feature of the club's meets this summer.

There are some good anglers in the list of members and it is believed that some good casting will result from this practice. Nothing like it has been held in Duluth for years and it is believed it will be taking.

DAUGHTERS OF NORWAY

Will Celebrate Native Lands' Day of Independence on Thursday.

Next Thursday evening a celebration of the Norwegian Independence day will take place at Victor hall, under the auspices of Edda lodge No. 15, Daughters of Norway. An excellent program of patriotic speeches, recitations and vocal and instrumental numbers has been prepared.

The committee having the affair in charge consists of Mesdames L. J. Nordheim, Louis Hanson and P. A. Lund, Miss Winniss and G. Mobroten. The committee has prepared the following program for the occasion:

KIRMESS WEDNESDAY.

Numerous Dances and Drills Are of Exceptional Merit.

The kirmess which will be given at Great Eastern hall, next Wednesday night, for the benefit of Holy Apostles Episcopal church, is expected to be an event of more than ordinary interest. Prof. Speedy, who is training the large class which will take part, says that he has never seen a more pliable and easier taught group of young people than he has encountered here. About 100 or 125 will take part, including young women and men and boys and girls.

The kirmess will be quite spectacular, and will abound in beautiful costumes. There will be sveeral flag drills, which are said to be positively bewildering, and a Yankee Doodle drill, with the goddess of liberty enthroned, is said to be an especially beautiful affair. The flower dances are also said to be of extraordinary merit, but the feature, the dances of all nations, is claimed to be really the most beautiful of all. Prof. Speedy says that in the French court dance the young people taking part show more than ordinary grace, and preserve a fine dignity. Included in the dance of all nations are the Mikado dance, the Scotch reel, the Irish jig and a cake walk.

The baby dance, representing the story of the old woman who lived in a shoe, is said to be very fetching, and besides that there will be a wooden shoe dance, a Spanish tambourine dance and numerous others.

The kirmess in short, it is claimed, will be the greatest event which has yet been attempted in West Duluth.

INJUDICIOUS OFFICER.

Patrolman Gulberg, in plain clothes and without a star, will probably leave alone any husky specimens of manhood when he thinks they should be arrested hereafter. He was in plain attire Saturday when he grabbed one John Benson, on Central avenue, and started to shake the man from side to side.

Benson did not know it was a "cop," and resented what he believed to be an assault. Therefore, he threw Gulberg to the ground, and started in to hang the slumber hook on the patrolman's jaw, until Patrolman Johnson interfered and saved Gulberg from a trouncing. When the matter was explained to Judge Cutting, in police court, the judge dismissed Benson.

West Duluth Briefs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brewer will leave tonight for Barrows, Saskatchewan, Canada, where Mr. Brewer will run a locomitive for the Red Deer Lumber company this summer. They will return in the fall.

W. H. Sweet, station agent at West Duluth, will leave next Sunday for an extensive trip to California and other parts of the West. He will be absent for some time.

Stewart McDonald has returned from Minneapolis.

Fred Wade and Hugo Jacoby returned this morning from Rocky Run, where they had fairly good luck trout fishing.

Frank Porconey has sold his gasoline launch to a man in Cromwell, Minn.

Mrs. C. Kaiser and Mrs. J. R. Baggenstoff and daughter of Butte, Mont., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kaiser of West Duluth.

L. A. Barnes, as assignee of the Merchants' bank, bid in the West Duluth and Fond du Lac lots belonging to that defunct institution, put up at sheriff's sale on Saturday. He bid the amount due on them, $1,300.

A house belonging to Wolf Bennil of Proctor was burned to the ground yesterday. Loss is fully covered by insurance.

Miss Allie Glover is quite sick at her home on Fifty-fourth avenue west.

Miss Mabel Merriman of Butte, Mont., is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. R. Abbott of Fifty-sixth and Grand.

The funeral of Mrs. Louise Bjerke took place yesterday from the Swedish-Finnish church, and interment was in Oneota cemetery.

Jewelry repairing—Hurst, 301 Central.

The Norden Sick Benefit society will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening at Victor hall.

Miss Eva Clough, who has been visiting here, has returned to Madison, Wis., her home.

P. E. Anderson has gone to St. Louis to take a job in a box factory there.

The West Duluth Tennis club will meet tonight at the office of L. A. Barnes.

It is expected that the dance and card party to be given at Wade's hall tomorrow night by Euclid lodge, No. 198, A. F. & A. M., will be largely attended from all parts of the city.

LIQUOR HABIT Cured by Orrine, a safe, sure and harmless specific; a simple home treatment; no sanitarium treatment or publicity; can be given without patient's knowledge, if desired. Price, $1 per box; cure effected or money refunded.

WEAKNESS IS EXPOSED

Independent Telephone Co. at Indianapolis Asking Higher Rates.

Confesses That it Entirely Miscalculated on Operating Expense.

Seldom in the history of the telephone business, or that of any other industry, has a more complete expose and analysis of the inside secrets and methods been made than in the case of the Indianapolis Telephone company, the Indiana Independent, whose application for permission to increase its rates was given a preliminary hearing by the Board of Public Works Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Attorneys for the company are "making a clean breast of it." They are basing their application for better privileges on the assumption that they must have them or retire from business.

Lucas B. Swift, attorney for the New Telephone company, which is the concern owning the property operated by the Indianapolis Telephone company, argued for the increase Tuesday morning. He opened his statement by saying that the Bell interests had been in the telephone business in Indianapolis for fifteen years when the new company was organized, but that the organizers of this company could not get at the information which the Bell interests possessed. They were, therefore, not able to understand fully what their undertaking was, he said.

Mr. Swift said that he was free to admit that the "fatal defect" in the management of the company had been that the officers did not make a charge from year to year for the natural depreciation in the plant. Now, he said, the concern was confronted with the depreciation of several years, all to be met at once, and he said the company would have to have additional capital to meet the cost of the improvements.

He said that the officers of the company found in March, 1905, that the company would have to have money, and that after an Eastern concern, making a business of furnishing money to such enterprises, had examined the books of the company and looked over their property, the officers of the company were informed that they would have to have higher rates if they wanted more money. As the result of the troubles of the company, he said, the Indianapolis Telephone company was organized for the purpose of operating the property of the New Telephone company.

"Now, gentlemen," he said, "I shall not contend that these new men from out of the city took this property without a full knowledge of the financial conditon of the company. They took it because they had to take it in order to get the New Long Distance Telephone company, but they took it with the belief that the city of Indianapolis would be fair with them and would not expect them to continue to operate the plant at a loss."

Mr. Swift said that H. B. Sale, former secretary of the company, knew many months ago that the company could not exist on its present rates and that, at a meeting of telephone men at Rochester, N. Y., in September, 1905, Sale said that the company could not continue without an increase in rates. He believed that the people of Indianapolis would grant an increase, he said.

He said that the company had really invested $1,300,000 and proposed to invest $500,000 more if the change in franchise were granted. He said that the estimates as to the prospective actual investment, including this $500,000, would not be on a basis of $1,300,000 and $500,000 but on the $1,500,000. This he said, had been arrived at by deducting $300,000 for the depreciation which had not been met from year to year.

Mr. Swift said that the amount of the net earnings during the last year was $86,627.87 and that the increase by the rates provided in the proposed amendment would increase this to $178,627.87. From this, he said, should be deducted $75,000 a year as depreciation charge. He said that the remaining $103,000 would not be quite 7 per cent on the actual investment of $1,500,000.

Mr. Swift's estimate as to the $75,000 depreciation charge was based upon the assumption that the depreciation would be 5 per cent a year of the total value of the plant.

On the first day of the hearing two expert witnesses were introduced to show the condition of the plant, and give opinions as to the amount of work necessary to rehabilitate it, and the rates necessary to make the business profitable in the future. S. G. McMeen of McMeen & Miller, Chicago, consulting engineers, gave it as his judgment that the present rates of $40 for business telephones and $24 for house connections were not sufficient. On the basis of the invested capital, which he said he understood was $1,300,000, the company should be permitted to charge $54 a year for business service and $32 for private connections to make a reasonable profit, which he placed at 10 per cent.

Where there is a great deal of aerial construction, as in Indianapolis, the depreciation amounts to 5 per cent annually, according to the expert. As business increases, Mr. McMeen said, expenses increase out of proportion to the enlarged income.

"The small exchange has the smallest cost, per subscriber, per annum," McMeen said. "Larger towns require longer average lines, and as the number of subscribers increases, it is possible for each subscriber to make so many more calls, so that the telephone business is peculiar in that increased business does not mean increased profits, unless the income increases proportionately with the additional patronage." Mr. McMeen admitted that the business men who made the New telephone contract in 1898 had not been prudent and looked forward.

Question of Company's Existence.

James T. Kelsey of Chicago, another expert produced by the company, gave similar testimony. Mr. Kelsey gave it as his opinion that the annual depreciation in Indianapolis was $6.50 on each telephone. He said that the new rates asked were necessary if the the company's existence was to be preserved, as he regarded it as being hopelessly lost under the present rates.

Independent telephone service rates in Chicago and Philadelphia are $80 a year for business connections, and in Louisville $48, according to Mr. Kelsey. He said that after an exchange gets 10,000 telephones it is necessary to maintain a training school for operators, which is an added expense. He regarded the local equipment as being in bad shape, and said that the New company needed a new switchboard with a capacity of 20,000 connections which would cost $500,000. Mr. Kelsey also stated that the bigger the business of the telephone company, the less it profits after a certain point is passed on a fixed price for each telephone in service unless a sliding scale of charge is provided.

The board's next meeting has been set for April 26, at which time it is expected that large numbers of citizens will be present to oppose the changes. The Indianapolis newspapers are all against the company's demands. The Indianapolis Morning Star, under the heading, "Let The Contract Stand," editorially said, Tuesday morning:

"The Independent telephone company in Indianapolis came into being under the auspices of popular enthusiasm and confidence, which were the direct product of promises its promoters made and representations they held out. They had examined the systems of other cities; they had explored the situation thoroughly; they came to deliver the people from bondage, and they could do it easily and make money on the rates they offered to accept. Now, after eight years of broken promises and admitted bad management, they ask the public to recoup them for the losses they claim to have sustained.

"If the company is really in sore straits, the fact has been industriously covered up. Not only have profits been regularly drawn, but statements have been periodically issued painting the prosperity of the concern in glowing colors, in order to sustain the stock and justify the dividends. If the plant has deteriorated to the point where replacement is necessary, no hint of the fact has been revealed in these statements or in the company's records so far as appears. Total failure to charge off depreciation throughout a term of eight years in any manufacturing plant is a performance that does not prepossess its managers in popular favor.

"The telephone people came to the city of Indianapolis eight years ago and offered it a bargain. The city accepted, partly as a business proposition, partly in response to an adroit appeal to its civic pride and antipathy toward monopoly. Now, the proposal is that as that bargain has turned out badly for the company, or at any rate as its management has issued, unsuccessfully to the point of menacing its continued existence, therefore the city, as the other party to the contract, should make good the loss or relieve the company from the consequences of its own mismanagement.

"The present owners and managers or prospective buyers cannot come before this community as a new enterprise, seeking to deal on a basis of supply and demand in trade, or a showing of prospective cost and earning power. The new telephone company is a creature of contract entered into on its own terms and under its own promises by the Indianapolis public. If it has lost money while pretending to make it, or if it has underestimated its ability or mismanaged its business, the loss is not fairly chargeable to the people, nor is there any justice in the demand that the public shall make yet greater sacrifices in order to put into securities a value that does not exist in them, or to reimburse the company for earnings diverted to dividends, when they should have gone to betterments.

"There is a right way and a wrong way to safeguard the public interest in such public utilities as the telephone. The right way is not to require the public to contribute a duplicate plant and pay double rates in order to break down monopoly through competition. The right way is for sworn officials of the city to protect the public interests in franchises; to draw them up so that rates and privileges are fair and reasonable, instead of arrogant and burdensome. It is not the duty of the city authorities to enable the Indianapolis Telephone company to make money on its true or on its paper investment. Their duty is to guard the public interests with jealous eye. They are the representatives of the people, not of the company. There is a contract with this company. The city should adhere to its rights under it and not give them away."

The Indianapolis News even more strongly advised the city to deny the New company's requests in the following editorial, Monday afternoon:

"Regarding the application of the Independent Telephone company of Indianapolis for permission to increase its rates the Indianapolis News says:

"The telephone people in asking for a new franchise by which they would be relieved of certain obligations to the city which they freely accepted, and under which they would be enabled to charge higher rates, though they assured us that the present rates were ample, really plead the baby act. They say they did not know; that they miscalculated; that they did not understand the business; and they seek to excuse themselves for their professed ignorance and miscalculation by urging that when they came into the city independent telephone operation was in its infancy. Well, what if it was? Telephone operation was not in its infancy; and 'independent' telephone operation is not a new and peculiar thing, differing in character and methods from the old-established, fully-developed business.

"Men come into the field protesting that they were able to render telephone service at a certain figure. They ask for a franchise and receive it on practically their own terms. There was at that time no mystery or occasion for mystery about the business. It was not in an experimental state. It had been fully developed and was or could be perfectly understood. If men made mistakes in their figuring on the cost and results, the people were in no way responsible therefor. Whatever we do, let us keep the facts clearly in mind. When the new company received its franchise the telephone business was not in an experimental stage, and 'independent' telephone business is no different from telephone business."

—Finance.

Moral: When contemplating investing good money in an Independent Telephone compay, observe if in their annual statement, 7½ per cent has been deducted for depreciation in central office equipment, and 8 per cent for depreciation in outside construction. Electrical experts concede this a fair annual depreciation to a telephone plant.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 14.—In a fire that destroyed the residence of Marcus A. Woodward at Clinton, this county, Saturday night, two children, Margaret, 21 months old, and Marcus, 8 months old, were burned to death. Their charred bodies were found in the ruins. Repeated efforts to reach them were baffled by the flames before which a bucket brigade was helpless. A number of valuable art treasures were destroyed by the fire.

DEER JUMPS OVER BANK

Falls on Railroad Track and Breaks Its Four Legs.

Police Sergeant Shoots the Animal at Ninth Avenue East.

Running down Ninth avenue east, a yearling doe leaped over the embankment on to the tracks of the Duluth & Iron Range road, shortly after noon today, and broke all four of its legs.

The embankment at this point is from twenty to twenty-five feet in height. The deer seemed to be blind with fear at its unfamiliar surroundings, and it made a headlong leap over the embankment, evidently heading for the lake.

It struck on the hard roadbed, and broke its legs.

Helpless and unable even to drag itself away from the rails, the animal was seen on the tracks by some chance passers by, who notified the police department.

Sergt. Fiskett was sent to the scene, and he put the animal out of its misery with a revolver shot through the brain. The officer then dragged the carcass to one side of the track and notified the health department to have it removed.

"The animal was very poor and thin," said the officer. "It looked as if it had been half starved. I couldn't learn how it got into the city, but some people out there said it came down Ninth avenue east. It may have been chased by wolves or dogs.

OCCUPIED LAND SIXTEEN YEARS

Sojelius Store Was Built on the La Panta Lot.

The trial of adverse possession suit, the second this term, was begun today in Judge Ensign's room. The action involved the possession of ten feet of a lot at the corner of First street and Eleventh avenue west.

Adolph Sojelius, who has a store building and sidewalk partly on the disputed ten feet of ground, claims title by right of possession since 1891, when he built his store. During the intervening years he supposed he was occupying his own lot and it was not until this spring that Maria Louisa LaPanta, who owns the adjoining property, employed a surveyor and found that the Sojelius store occupied a strip of her lot.

In Judge Cant's room a jury is listening to the evidence in the alleged timber trespass case of Stephen Harker against George Trader. Harker claims that Trader went on his land in section 31, 52-14 and unlawfully cut timber to the value of $148. He asks judgment for triple the value of the timber.

The personal injury case brought by the heirs of Axel Helstrom against G. H. Lounsberry is still on trial in Judge Dibell's room. Mr. Lounsberry was on the stand all the morning to give testimony in his defense.

Motion to Produce Records.

The Rogers heirs of Michigan, who have instituted suit against the Clark Mining company and others, have filed notice in the district court of a motion to be made at the special term of court Saturday for an order to direct the Leonard Mining company to produce for inspection such books, files, papers and documents as are mentioned in the application. The attorneys for the Rogers heirs will also ask that they be permitted to make such extract from the records as may be desired.

Will Have Hearing.

George Janetta and Joseph Monoski, the two prisoners arrested in connection with the stabbing affray on West Superior street early yesterday morning, were arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of assault in the second degree. They asked for a preliminary hearing, which was set for May 16 at 2 p. m. and their bail was fixed at $250 in each case.

ITALIAN GIRL ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

New York, May 14.—The trial of Mrs. Josephine Terranova, an Italian girl, 17 years old, for the murder of her uncle, Gaetno Reggio, and his wife, in their home in this city last February, began before Justice Scott today. The case is one of the most extraordinary to come before a New York jury in a long time. Mrs. Terranova has confessed that she stabbed her uncle and aunt to death, but declares that she was impelled to do it by a great wrong done to her by her uncle in which she declared he was aided by her aunt.

FLEADS NOT GUILTY.

New York, May 14.—Wilhelm Meyer, arrested here Saturday and who is accused of the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Vogel, whose body was found in a trunk at an express office at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, today pleaded not guilty to the charge and said he was willing to return to Germany to stand trial. Preparations were made to return both Meyer and his woman companion, Sophie Christiani.

STOCKS WEAKEN AT THE CLOSE

Coppers Open Strong But Fall Off Toward Session's End.

Copper stocks were strong at the opening today but weakened toward the close. Some closed under the closing prices on Saturday. North Butte was among these. Spot copper opened 3 pounds, 2 shillings over Friday's price in London and there was some excitement there. The close was 86 pounds 10 shillings, 15 shillings lower than the opening price.

North Butte opened stronger at $94, sold as high as $94.12½ and declined to $90.50, closing at $91.50 bid and $92 asked. Amalgamated opened at $108.50 bid and $108.75 asked, sold as high as $110.25, fell off to $108.50 and closed at $108.62½ bid and $108.75 asked.

Anaconda opened at $270, advanced to $275.50, fell off to $270 again and closed at $217 bid. Butte Coalition was inactive and closed at $33.50 bid and $34 asked. United Copper opened at $64.87½ and closed at $65.50 bid and $65.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $113, sold quite freely at that price and closed at $112 bid and $115 asked.

The Bisbees were about unchanged. Calumet & Pittsburg sold at $28.50 and closed at $28 bid and $28.50 asked; Denn-Arizona closed at $13.50 bid; Junction sold at $25 and closed at $25 bid and $25.50 asked; Lake Superior & Pittsburg sold at $33.75 and $33, closing at $33.50 bid and $33.75 asked, and Pittsburg & Duluth closed at $19 bid and $19.50 asked, after selling at $19.

Black Mountain was inactive and closed at $11 bid, Keweenaw at $11 bid, Warren at $15 bid, Coppen Queen of Idaho sold at $2.25 and closed at ⁄2 bid and $2.25 asked and Ophir Tunnel closed at 17 cents bid and 19 cents asked.

HEARING IN ARSON CASE

James Calhoun Accused of Setting Fire to Neighbor's House.

The hearing of James Calhoun on the charge of arson in the first degree is being held before Judge Cutting in the municipal court this afternoon.

Up to 3 o'clock three witnesses had been placed on the stand by County Attorney McClintock. They were William Bernhardt, Foster Bird and Mrs. Bird.

Bernhardt proved a disappointing witness, and failed to tell the same story on the witness stand that he related to Chief Troyer earlier in the day. He was unable to swear that he had seen Calhoun with an armful of shavings and kindling wood, approaching the Bird house. He would that he had seen a man whom he believed was Calhoun, but that it was too dark to tell whether or not he had the kindling wood.

Bird himself was at church when the fire started, and his testimony was not of a great deal of importance.

Mrs. Bird proved an excellent witness, and told how Calhoun approached the house and demanded to see his wife, who had taken refuge with Mrs. Bird. When he was refused permission to see her, he walked back and forth between the two houses for some time. Mrs. Bird testified that she was afraid to go out and see what he was doing for fear he would kill her, and that she had prepared to defend herself with an ax if he came inside.

She said she heard a noise, and a few minutes later the Bernhardt brothers came and told her that the house was on fire.

The hearing will probably occupy the greater part of the afternoon.

PROMOTER ON TRIAL.

Charged With Larceny in Operation of Ubero Company.

Boston, May 14.—Ferdinand E. Borges, formerly of Indiana, and an alleged promoter of the Ubero Plantation company, was placed on trial in the Suffolk county superior court today on an indictment of many counts charging grand larceny in connection with the operations of the Ubero company. The complainants against Borges allege that losses aggregating $1,500,000 should be sustained. Borges has been in jail for months in default of $75,000 bail. The sum involved in the company's collapse as well as the fact that thousands of individuals were affected centered great interest in the case. The same grand jury which indicted Borges reported a bill against William D. Owen, a former congressman and former secretary of state for Indiana, who was alleged to have been associated with Borges in the promotion of the Ubero company. Owen has not yet been arrested. The counts in the Borges' indictment numbered 126.

The case was called late in the forenoon. A jury was quickly impanelled and Special Prosecutor Chase made a long statement to the jury outlining the state's case.

FIGHT WITH WICKLIFFE INDIANS IS REPORTED.

Vinita, I. T., May 14.—A fight is reported to have taken place between the three Wickliffe Indian outlaws and a posse of deputy sheriffs who have been searching for them since March 11, but it is not credited by the authorities here. Marshal Darrough of this city, under whose direction the posse is working, has heard nothing of the reported fight. The Wickliffes are brothers and are wanted for shooting Deputy Marshal Ike Gilstrap in a desperate fight near the town of Kansas, I. T.

Both Want the Land.

A hearing was held before the land office officials, this afternoon, to determine whether the northeast quarter of section 29-60-21 is more valuable for its timber and stone or for its agricultural possibilities. The contestants are John McDonald, who made application, Feb. 6 last, to enter on the land under the timber and stone act. W. A. Thomas appeared today and entered protest to McDonald's application for entry. Mr. Thomas claims that the land is chiefly valuable for agricultural purposes, and he makes application for a homestead entry.

T. D. BRIEN ARGUES FOR INSURANCE BILL.

Washington, May 14.—A hearing was given today, before the house committee on judiciary, on the bill introduced by Representative Ames (Mass.) to regulate insurance in the District of Columbia.

Thomas D. O'Brien, state insurance commissioner of Minnesota, among others, argued for the bill, saying it was desired that the federal government co-operate with the states in the matter of regulating insurance, and in his opinion the passage of the bill would greatly benefit the states.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Everything Points to Fine Attendance at Wednesday's Gathering.

The St. Louis county good roads convention, which will be held next Wednesday at the Commercial club, will be a big success, if present indications count for anything. It is expected that there will be a large attendance from all parts of the county. A number of interesting papers are to be read, and all of them will be written by authorities on the particular subject under consideration.

The morning session will open at 10 o'clock. Hon. T. W. Hugo, chairman of the public affairs committee, will act as presiding officer and, after calling the meeting to order, will deliver a short address. Mayor M. B. Cullum will deliver the address of welcome, and the advantages of a public highway between Duluth and the Twin Cities will be dealt with by C. A. Duncan, W. E. Culkin, W. B. Silvey, B. Silberstein and W. A. Patton.

The leading paper at the afternoon session, which opens at 1:30 o'clock, will be on "Location, Construction and Maintenance of Common Roads," by G. W. Cooley, state engineer. Other speakers on the afternoon program are A. D. Wilson of the state agricultural experiment station, H. Oldenburg, Carlton; L. B. Arnold of the Iron Range road; A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the experimental station at Grand Rapids; Gustave Scholle, J. B. Gallarmault and Charles Halverson, members of the highway commission; F. B. McLaren, Wrenshall; F. A. Watkins, Carlton; G. F. Goodell, Barnum; George T. McKay, Holyoke.

Governor Johnson is in the East and will be unable to be present.

WORK IN SHIFTS.

Kansas City Journal: Physicians in Germany propose to divide the day and night between them. They object to being subject to the call of their patients at any hour of the twenty-four. The patient is not to be left in the lurch, however. His opportunity to spend his money on medical attendance is not to be curtailed. The German doctors propose, as a matter of simple justice need rest the same as all other human beings, and can do their best work only when they have it, the change proposed seems to be as clearly in the lay interest as in that of the profession.

A SWISS SWEDE.

Boston Herald: G. F. Averill and C. T. Scannell, formerly agents of the American Express company, Boston, were guessing as to the nationality of a porter in the employ of the company. Mr. Averill insisted the man was a Swede.

When questioned the porter answered he was born in Switzerland.

Mr. Averill boastingly said: "I told you he was a Swede."

NO CONSEQUENCE.

Boston Herald: This story of the absent-mindedness of a professor of Phillips Exeter academy is told by Booth Tarkington, the novelist, who was a graduate of that institution.

"This man's wife hastened in to him one morning as he sat in his study marking exercises.

"'Oh,' she cried, 'Oh, I've swallowed a pin!'

"The instructor smiled.

"'Don't worry about it, my dear,' he said, in a soothing tone. 'It is of no consequence. Here'—he fumbled at his lapel—'here is another pin.'"

KEPT ON SMOKING.

Boston Herald: A story is told of the old lumberman and river-driver, William Robinson, more commonly known as "Bill" Robinson, to the effect that once he was driving out from Waterville, N. H., the summer resort, with a party of ladies, and after a time lighted up his pipe.

Turning to the ladies, he said: "Is smoke offensive to you?"

One of the ladies answered up very promptly: "Yes, it is," whereupon "Bill" said: "Wal, 'tis to some," and kept right on smoking.

MOON LUNACY.

Kansas City Journal: How much basis is there for the notion that the moon is a cause of lunacy? In a book recently published in London the author, Basil Lubbock, who is a traveler of experience, says:

Many a time have I hauled a sleeping man out of the glare of the tropical moon for fear of its direful beams, and many a time have I had the like service done to me.

If lucky, one gets off with "moon blindness," or a queer and unpleasant contraction of the muscles of one side of the face, but idiocy, says Mr. Lubbock, is often induced. It is certainly a very old and widespread opinion, though perhaps it has never been adequately tested by science.

NOT HIS HOUR.

Los Angeles Times: A Chicagoan was praising the late Marshall Field.

"Mr. Field was a kindly man," he said. "He spoke ill of no one. And when his opinion was asked of a person, and it was not a favorable opinion, he would express it in such a gentle and quaint way that its sting would be quite lost.

"Once, at a dinner, I praised the conversational talent of a man across the table. I said to Mr. Field:

"'Do you know him?'

"'I have met him,' the other answered.

"'Well, he is a clever chap,' said I. 'He can talk brilliantly for an hour at a stretch.'

"'Then, when I met him,' said Mr. Field, 'it must have been the beginning of the second hour.'"

SENATOR'S HARD JOB.

Kansas City Journal: Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, in conversation with a friend the other day, laughingly observed that if he had any idea as to the amount of work he would have to perform he would never have taken a job as a member of the United States senate. He is compelled to answer, on an average, 125 letters per day.

FOOLED THE GAMBLERS.

Baltimore Sun: A prominent attorney of Baltimore told the following story to one of his colleagues recently of the time when he was in the West, when the gold fever was at its height:

"One of the largest gambling houses in San Francisco was in full swing when in walked two men, one of whom carried a large powder horn. They ambled up to the bar, and the man with the powder horn threw it on the counter and said in a loud voice: 'I'm tired of it all, and shall end it here; but I may as well take my friends along with me.' He then dumped out on the counter a quantity of what looked to be powder. His companion took from his pocket some of the same stuff and threw it into the fire, whereupon black smoke puffed out from the stove. By that time the gamblers looked around and were horrified to see the other one seize the horn and to throw the contents into the stove.

"The whole company, thinking there would be a terrible explosion, jumped to their feet and scattered. With a joyous laugh the two men ran over the tables and scooped in all the money in sight—a goodly pile—jumped on their horses and galloped away.

"To say that the players were incensed when they returned would be putting it mildly. It turned out that it was only black sand that the two 'desperate' men threw on the counter."

The lawyer asked why, when one of these men threw some of the stuff in the stove it created a volume of smoke. The other thought he must have had some real powder in his pocket.

TABLED IN SUCCESSION

Many Amendments to the Rate Bill Promptly Laid Away.

LaFollette Makes Strong Effort to Get His Through.

Washington, May 14.—The rate bill consideration in senate today opened with a request from Senator Daniels to modify his amendment, which was under consideration when the senate adjourned Saturday. Mr. Daniels said he simply wished to perfect his amendment to provide that evidence properly before the commission shall not be duplicated before a court. The amendment, Mr. Daniels says, was intended to meet an evil pointed out by the supreme court of the United States, and prevent the railroad withholding its case from the commission, with the purpose of presenting its evidence subsequently to the court.

Senator LaFollette offered a substitute, which made additional evidence produced before a court available for ten days to the commission, that the commission might, if desired, modify its order. On motion of Senator Hale, the substitute was laid on the table. Mr. Hale then moved to lay the Daniels amendment on the table, which was done without a roll call. Another amendment was offered by Mr. Daniels, making it necessary to bring suits on appeal within thirty days after the ruling of the commission.

Senator Gallinger precipitated a discussion, which developed two opinions regarding the bookkeeping methods prescribed for common carriers. Senators Foraker, Aldrich and Knox held the provision would prohibit carriers, "or any of their officers" from keeping any but the prescribed books. Senators Tillman and Nelson took the view that it did not prohibit any officer or agent from keeping memorandum accounts, nor did it apply to any but interstate carriers. Senator Lodge regarded the provision as one of the most important in the bill. It was intended to prevent secret rebates, and should not be weakened. After several other senators had opposed the amendment, Senator Gallinger withdrew it. Senator Aldrich then moved to amend the provision prohibiting the keeping of any other accounts, records or memorandum than those approved by the commission, by inserting the words, "relating to the business of the carrier," after the word "memoranda."

In offering this amendment, Senator Aldrich declared that under the language of the bill, it would be unlawful for a carrier to make an entry until the commission had been consulted and given its consent. Senator Dryden said that the language of the bill would precent an official making any notes while going over the railroad. The amendment was opposed by Senator Hopkins and was withdrawn by Senator Aldrich.

A new section of the bill was proposed by Mr. LaFollette, providing for an investigation by the committee to ascertain the fair value of the property of every railroad, etc. During the reading the Wisconsin senator said that as an amendment by him was taken as a signal for some one of his Republican colleagues to move to lay it on the table, he desired to have order. At his demand the proposed new section was ordered reread from the beginning and at the conclusion Senator Hale promptly made a motion to table. At the request of Senator Money the motion was withheld while he spoke briefly, supporting the amendment. Before Senator Hale could renew his motion, Senator Spooner said he did not know whether his colleague desired to speak but that if he did he should be permitted to do so. Senator Hale said he thought the senate was ready to vote, but that he would withhold the motion long enough for the author of the amendment to speak.

Senator Clarke (Ark.) objected on the ground that the senator from Maine could not make his motion "with a string to it' and that he could not specify who should speak, whereupon the Maine senator again made his motion to table. Senator Bacon made a point of order that under the consent agreement for the discussion of amendments under the fifteen-minute rule, a motion to table was not in order.

It was ruled that the motion to lay the amendment on the table was in order, but the motion to that end was voted down, whereupon Senator Clarke (Ark.) addressed the senate in support of the amendment.

As soon as Mr. Clarke had taken his seat, Mr. Hale renewed his motion to table the amendment, "as the senator from Wisconsin does not seem to desire to explain it," he added.

"If the senator will permit me," interjected Mr. LaFollette, "I will explain the amendment."

"It is not for me to permit a senator," returned Mr. Hale, who explained that he should withhold his motion, but would renew it as soon as the Wisconsin senator had concluded.

After explaining that he was not aware that any senator could not "foreclose" another from speaking, simply by applying notice of a motion to table, Mr. LaFollette remarked that the senator from Maine had promptly moved to table every amendment he (LaFollette) had offered. "And I will say this," he continued, "with respect to procedure under the special order, that while I remain a member of this senate, there never will be unanimous consent again given to such a proposition, which does not permit of a vote being taken directly upon amendments offered." He then turned his attention to his amendment, making the point that unless the commission has ascertained the true value of railroad property, it could not ascertain what would be a just and reasonable rate.

When he had concluded, Mr. Hale renewed his motion to table the amendment. Upon a roll call, this motion prevailed, 40 to 27.

An amendment was next presented by Senator Foraker, which was, he explained, a modification of Section 8 of the Elkins' act. The amendment on roll call was defeated, 56 to 10.

Senator LaFollette presented an amendment, requiring all roads carrying passengers to install the block system of signals prior to July 1, 1911. In urging the amendment, the Wisconsin senator said the railroads killed last year 10,617 passengers and 48,487 employes. In England during 1903, where double the number of passengers were carried, but the distance traveled only half that in the United States, only one-tenth the number was killed and injured.

VALUABLE PILLOW CASE.

Philadelphia Ledger: The money assorters and counters in the United States treasury were recently startled by the appearance of a remarkable "fat man," who entered the department and told a strange tale.

He said he was an Ohio farmer who did not believe in banks, and so he buried his money in the ground for safe keeping. He had dug it up, and was horrified to find that it was slowly turning to dust, as notes will when long buried.

Panic stricken, he gathered the disintegrated money into an old pillowcase, bound it around his waist beneath his clothes and started for Washington. He traveled part of the way on horseback, part of the way on an Ohio river steamboat, and a part of the way by train. He even slept with it on. The officials of the treasury department found it difficult to make him part with it. He did not want to go with a treasury clerk to a hotel for fear the clerk might rob him, but as it was manifestly impossible for him to disrobe in the office, he had finally to submit.

They got the money at last, and the condition of it was so bad that an expert had to be called to decipher it. So great was the skill of the latter that out of $19,000 the farmer lost only a few hundred dollars.

BRAIN ELECTRIC MOTOR.

Chicago Tribune: The brain as an electric motor is the theme of Dr. Albert B. Atkins of San Francisco's preachments. He says that he has proved by experiment made on a steer that brain action is an electrical phenomenon. His apparatus consisted of two platinum electrodes connected with a long copper wire running to extremely sensitive galvanometers. The electrodes were inserted in two lobes of the brain of a living steer. After the first quiver, caused by the insertion of the platinum points, the animal lay quiet, and yet the needle of the galvanometer was deflected four points on the scale, and remained so for nearly six minutes. Upon further action by the operators immediately the needle deflected six points in the same direction. Then the needle gradually returned to the normal position. Dr. Atkins has previously demonstrated that electric force is developed in the lungs and hearts of animals, and he argues that the mysteries of gravitation can be solved only by attributing it to the electrical action.

UNDER MANY FLAGS.

Tacoma correspondent San Francisco Chronicle: Charles S. Bowie, aged 106, is working as a skidroad builder at Sampson's logging camp, near Shelton. Bowie claims to have been born on Christmas day in 1799. He is small but wiry; has a full head of dark hair; is quick on his feet and alert. He claims to have been a Mason for 84 years.

His father was James A. Bowie, after whom the Bowie knife was named. He was born in Virginia, and his mother was a descendant of the Aztec Indians.

His adventures since joining the navy, when 12 years old, have been as follows: Served on the ship Constelyation; was on the frigate United States when she was shot to pieces by the British man-of-war Macedonian; was aboard the Constitution when she captured the British frigate Java off Brazil; was aboard the schooner Caroline off New Orleans when she was sunk by Admiral Rodney; served under Gen. Jackson at the battle of New Orleans; went to the Mediterranean in the Constitution, under Decatur; fought a duel with Fourth Officer Upser at Gibraltar, in which Upser was killed; was court-martialled and dismissed from the navy; fought eight months under Simon Bolivar; served under Gen. Sam Houston of Texas; joined the British army, served in the rimea; received the Victoria Cross, and draws a weekly pension of £1; came to California in 1858, and later to Puget Sound; traveled overland from California to New Orleans, joining Lee's army; captured at Antietam, but escaped; had part of his tongue shot away at Gettysburg; served in a revolution in Mexico; thence to California and Puget Sound.

LONG'S HAT SNARED.

Boston Herald: The Hon. John D. Long is a native of Buckfield, Me., and the people call him "Johnny" when he returns thither on his annual vacations. A few summers ago, when secretary of the navy, he paid a visit there, and called upon some of his old friends, and among them a widow who had won the appellation of "Aunt" Bridgham in the neighborhood where she lived.

Secretary Long wore a tall hat that day, and when he came into the house, darkened to exclude the flies and the heat, he put his hat, top down, on a table. When he picked it up, after concluding his call, he found that he had placed it squarely in the center of a sheet of flypaper, and the paper was stuck on so firmly that "Aunt" Bridgham was obliged to trim the sheet around the edges of the hat with a pair of scissors, as she would trim a custard pie. Secretary Long left the house with the flypaper adhering to the top of his hat.

"Aunt" Bridgham has a son George, grown up to manhood, who wrote a "poem" on the event, and this is the "poem":

My mother has a mania, but it's not for making pies,
'Tis simply spreading sticky stuff to tangle all the flies;
But I think my mother must have been a little in the wrong
When she spread the sheets of sticky stuff for Secretary Long.
And all she'll say about it, now tho summer's gone, is that
She didn't catch the secretary, but only caught his hat.
But I guess the secretary will open wide his eyes
When again the house he enters where my mother's catching flies.

LET STARS ALONE.

Boston Herald: This is a little story of "Joe" Jefferson that has never before appeared in print.

In the staging of one of his earlier plays a friend accompanied him to a rehearsal, at which a lively disagreement arose between two of the actresses as to the possession of the center of the stage during a certain scene. While the manager poured oil on the troubled waters, Mr. Jefferson sat calmly swinging his feet from the rail of an adjoining box.

The friend could stand it no longer. "Good Lord, Jefferson," he cried, in an excited aside, "this will ruin your play! Why don't you interfere? You could settle matters if you only would!"

Mr. Jefferson shook his head with a gravity that completely veiled the twinkle in his eye.

"No, George," he replied, soberly, "the Lord only made one man who could ever manage the sun and moon, and you remember even he let the stars alone."

"If 'twere well it were done quickly," then it were necessary (in most cases) that it were done in "the Herald want ad. way."

NO APPEAL WAS TAKEN

St. Louis County Now Owns New Courthouse Site.

Money for Awards is Available From Revenue Fund.

As soon as the clerk of the district court attaches to the judgment the oath of the appraisers and their award, and the owners of the eight lots on First and Second streets between Fourth and Fifth avenues west, have received payment, St. Louis county will have absolute title to the courthouse site.

Until the office of the clerk of court closed Saturday afternoon there was a possibility of an appeal from the award for the 100 feet on the corner of Fourth avenue west and Second street, but as no word was received from the owner up to 5 o'clock the papers were not filed.

The county authorities, however, are not depending entirely on the special law for condemnation proceedings in acquiring absolute title to the site. Arrangements are being made with the owners to deed their property direct to the county on the payment of the sums awarded by the appraisers.

Some of the deeds held in the East have been forwarded to Duluth and it is understood that these have been deposited in local banks with drafts on the county for the sums awarded. As soon as the drafts are met the deeds will go into the possession of the board of county commissioners and will be filed.

The final act in the acquisition of the courthouse site, under the special law of a year ago, will be the filing with the register of a certificate from the county attorney which will describe the land and recite the fact of payment of the award. This certificate will give notice to all parties of the county's title to the property, and shall be received as evidence of title in any of the courts of the state.

The way is now cleared, it is claimed, for the building plans for the new courthouse and it is believed that the courthouse commission will hold a meeting in the near future with a view of taking the preliminary steps. The commission met and organized in February but has held no meeting since. When the commission adjourned after organization it was the understanding of the members that no meeting would be necessary until the county had a title.

BARTENDER IS STABBED IN SIDE

Police Are Investigating Free-for-All Fight on Bowery.

Seven men were involved in a stabbing affray, which occurred yesterdaay morning, about 12:30 o'clock, at Seventh avenue west and Superior street.

Two men are under arrest, charged with assault, and the police are searching for a third, but as yet they have been unable to learn the details of the affair.

The victim is Martin Johnson, a bartender, who was stabbed in the right side, and also sustained a cut on the right elbow. The wound is serious, but will not prove fatal, unless some complications arise.

Officers Bradley and Roberg effected the arrest of George Janetta, aged 60 years, and Joseph Monoski, aged 32 years, two Italians, who are suspected of having been responsible for the stabbing. Both deny any knowledge of the affair. Janetta is claimed to have thrown away a knife, when arrested. Officer Bradley heard it fall, and picked it up. The knife is said to have blood on it.

A man wearing light trousers, and without coat or hat, was seen in the crowd during the melee, and the police are trying to locate him. He fled when he saw the police approaching.

Janetta talked quite freely to Sergeant Fiskett yesterday. He stated that he and Monoski were leaning against the incline saloon building, intending to go home, when Johnson came out of the saloon with some friends, and began abusing Italians in general. He is claimed to have turned to Janetta and said, "I can lick any d——d Dago in town," and to have followed the words with a stunning blow on the head. Janetta admits that he was angry, but denies having drawn a knife.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

William Selle, 50 years old, shot and killed his wife, aged 30 years, at Milwaukee Sunday, and after vainly attempting to kill his daughter, shot himself. He entered the house where his wife was living, through a window. She was suing for a divorce.

Four children were asleep in one room at Frank Beattie's home in Eggleston township, Mich., Sunday when the house was struck by lightning. A 4-year-old boy and a 6-year-old girl were stricken blind, but the other two children were not touched.

An audience of 3,000 persons, including about 800 school children, assembled in St. Louis park, St. Louis, Sunday, at the annual memorial exercises before the monument of the German poet, Frederick Von Schiller, commemorating the one hundredth and first anniversary of his death. A feature was the singing by the school children accompanied by a brass band.

The Sunday "blue laws" were enforced to the limit at Kokomo, Ind., Sunday. Saloons, retail stores, newsstands, drug stores and all other houses were closed. It was impossible to purchase a cigar or even a glass of soda water. The livery stables, telephone companies and street car companies were the only concerns who disregarded the order, and it is expected that proceedings will be started against them.

WILL OBSERVE MAY SEVENTEENTH

Norwegians Plan to Give Interesting Program in Flaaten's Hall.

Norwegians in Duluth will observe May 17, the birthday of the old Norway, with appropriate exercises in Flaaten's hall. The program will be given under the auspices of Nortum lodge, No. 16, Sons of Norway, and the principal speaker will be Rev. M. Falk Gjertsen of Minneapolis.

The members of the lodge have selected the following committee on arrangements: J. Thorison, R. Egan, C. Onesi, A. Anderson and W. Eng.

On May 17, ninety-two years ago, Norway shook off Denmark's yoke and formed an alliance with Sweden, which continued until June 7, 1905, when the Norwegians set up a government of their own. The following program has been arranged for Thursday:

Overture—"America," Toban, Flaaten's orchestra; address of welcome, P. Munkeby; song, Zenith quartet; "Greetings From Norway," O. Stenson; song, Miss Olga Prytz; selection, "Memoirs From Norway," Flaaten's orchestra; address, Rev. Falk Gjertsen; selection, "Norse Folk Melodies," Flaaten's orchestra; song, Zenith quartet; song, March, "Sons of Norway," orchestra and audience.

HONG QUANG BURIED.

Is Not Accorded Complete Funeral Service Because He Was Suicide.

Hon Hong Quang, the Chinese launderer, who committed suicide at Tower, May 7, was buried in Park Hill cemetery with scant ceremony yesterday afternoon. The dead man was not honored with the usual Chinese burial service for the reason that he killed himself. He was denied food with which to sustain his body until the end of his long journey to the home of his ancestors.

The funeral was held from Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. Fifteen or so of the dead man's countrymen gathered about his bier and scattered brown paper bits, with holes in them, on the floor. The hearse, the casket and the hacks wherein the mourners rode, were decorated with red, white and black bunting, which serves the same purpose in China that black crape does in this country.

When the cemetery was reached, two mourners threw sticks into the grave and nothing was said. Then the funeral party came back to the city. Some day the body will be taken back to China.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

Waukesha Woman's Suit for Alienation of Husband's Love.

Waukesha, Wis., May 14.—The famous $20,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Charlotte W. White of this city against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Francis L. White, wife of a millionaire Milwaukee real estate dealer, has been settled out of court.

The defendant is the daughter of the late Governor Ludington of Wisconsin, and her son's marriage took place at Waukegan, Ill., on Dec. 11, 1901. The daughter-in-law, in a sensational bill, averred that her husband had been induced by his mother to leave her and despise her.

It is rumored that she will start another similar suit.

YOUNG MAN DISAPPEARS.

Adrian, Minn., May 14.—Leslie Wade, a young married man, disappeared from his home in this city about four weeks ago, and though the most diligent search has been made no trace of him can be found. There had not been the slightest trouble between him and his wife, but he had been despondent for several weeks prior to his disappearance. No reason can be assigned for his action. The young wife is almost distracted with grief.

ATROCIOUS CRIME IS INVESTIGATED IN SIBERIA.

Berlin, May 14.—The most atrocious crime that has occurred in Siberia since the famous case of the brothers Kalaschinkoff is about to be investigated in Tobolsk.

Seven peasants of the neighboring village of Kobulika and three women are about to be put on trial on the charge of sacrificing a number of children in order to appease the wrath of an imaginary god of pestilence.

The Siberian plague had destroyed the villagers' cattle year after year. The village was reduced to poverty and many of its inhabitants were obliged to migrate to the towns.

A local quack who earned a living by making children "invulnerable to the evil eye" advised the muzhiks that "until blood had been shed and a church raised upon it" the village would continue to be visited by pestilence, and, he hinted, even worse terrors. The panic-stricken peasants understood this to mean that a church should be built upon a foundation of human beings, as was done by their ancestors in heathen times.

A man named Glazunoff offered to sacrifice one of his seven children, and his example was followed by the local blacksmith. The two children were killed at night and a rude wooden chapel was hurriedly built over their remains.

When the story became known, the muzhiks from a neighboring village raided the culprits' houses, burned them down and nearly killed the murderers.

On arrests being made it was stated that two other children had disappeared, and it is believed that these also were sacrificed at some earlier date.

WORST ECZEMA DOCTORS EVER SAW

Spread Rapidly Over Body—Limbs and Arms Had to Be Bandaged and Scalp Looked Dreadful—Suffered Untold Misery for Three Years—Better in Two Months

MARVELOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when he was four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. We had all the doctors around us and some from larger places, but no one helped him a particle. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I had to bandage his limbs and arms; his scalp was just dreadful. I used many kinds of patent medicines before trying the Cuticura Remedies,—all to no avail.

"A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I consented, when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time, and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies; the Cuticura Soap helped as well as the Ointment. He was better in two months; in six months he was well; but I gave him the Cuticura Resolvent one year,—using twelve bottles, I think,—and always used the Cuticura Soap for bathing, and do now a good deal. He was four years old before he was well, and his skin became perfectly fair when cured. I give you permission to publish this letter for I am always glad to do good when I can. I think I have told you all there is necessary to tell." Mrs. R. L. Risley, Oct. 24, 1905. Piermont, N. H.

RESORT AT GARDINER.

Northern Pacific Perfects Plans for Park Gateway Town.

Livingston, Mont., May 14.—It is announced that the Northern Pacific railway has definitely decided to erect a large summer resort at Gardiner, the terminal of the park branch, and the point where tourists leave the railroad for the park trip.

It is proposed to erect, in connection with the hotel, a large sanatorium with a capacity for several hundred guests. Hot water from an adjacent hot springs will be piped to the grounds, where large cement plunges will be erected.

Engineers are at work on the location at Gardiner, and it is expected that work on the buildings will begin early in the summer.

WILL TEACH ASTRONOMY TO BRITISH ARMY OFFICERS.

London, May 14.—Practical astronomy will shortly become a part of the education of army officers holding any command.

The army council has decided to establish an observatory at Aldershot, and contractors are now busy erecting the building. The site chosen is the south camp, near the headquarters offices.

When the building is completed a powerful telescope will be mounted and the study of the stars will begin in earnest. The observatory will be in charge of the royal engineers, and it is expected that officers will assemble periodically for instruction.

Astronomical observations are of great importance in warfare by night, and Sir John French has already given it as his opinion that the important military operations of the future will be performed in darkness.

It will be remembered that Lord Wolseley was guided by the stars when he made his famous march to Tel-el-Keber. The number of officers in the service who could perform a similar work with any accuracy is at present comparatively small.

SEQUEL OF ELOPEMENT

In Southern Minnesota is Indictment of Bridegroom and Father.

Mankato, Minn., May 14.—As a sequel of the elopement last January of Frank Sager and Mary Anderson of Fairmont, aged 17 and 15, respectively, young Sager and his father, Edward Sager, have been indicted by the Martin county grand jury on the charge of abduction.

The young couple went to La Crosse but failed to secure a marriage license there. They then went to Winona and were married on the last day of January. When they returned, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Anderson, were irreconcilable, and have remained so ever since. They accused Sager, Sr., of assisting in the elopement.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Frank E. Long company in "Wedded, But no Wife."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"What Women Will Do," Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinees.
METROPOLITAN—Long company in "Among the Hills."

LONG COMPANY OPENS.

Presents "Wedded But No Wife" at the Metropolitan.

The interesting melodrama, "Wedded, But No Wife," was produced at the Metropolitan last evening by the Frank E. Long Stock company, which opened a week's engagement there then. A large audience greeted the organization and found the play to its liking. Miss Nana Sullivan has the role originated by the young star, Selma Herman, and does very well with it. Miss Sullivan has a very attractive personality. Frank E. Long has the principal male role. The other members of the cast have ample opportunities of which they make the most. The specialties introduced between the acts are good.

Another performance of "Wedded, But No Wife," will be given this evening. Tomorrow afternoon, tomorrow night and Wednesday night, the out-of-doors play, "Among the Hills," will be the bill. "Lost and Won" will be given Thursday and Friday evenings and "The Sign of the Crucifix" on Saturday afternoon and night. There will be the usual Metropolitan matinees, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday and no smoking will be permitted.

"WHAT WOMEN WILL DO."

At the Lyceum tomorrow evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening, Holden Bros.' big scenic production of "What Women Will Do," will be given. The play is a new sensational melodrama from the pen of the well known and clever playwright, Harry Jackson. The cast is large. A remarkable shipwreck scene, with a real and life size boat scene to the timely rescue are some of the marvelous effects introduced in the piece.

"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best remedy for that often fatal disease—croup. Has been used with success in our family for eight years."—Mrs. L. Whitecre, Buffalo, N. Y.

CHARGED WITH SETTING FIRE

To Home of Neighbor Where His Wife Had Fled.

Accused of having beaten his wife, thrown her down a flight of steps, and of having attempted to set fire to the house of a neighbor, where she had taken refuge, James Calhoun, a colored porter in a Superior street saloon, was arrested last night by Sergeant Fritz and Officer Cater.

Calhoun lives at 922 Sixth avenue east, and Foster Bird, another colored man, has his home at 924.

According to the story told the police, Calhoun had come home intoxicated, and had beaten his wife, and had either pushed or thrown her down stairs. She went to her neighbor's house and took refuge there.

Calhoun is claimed to have followed her, and Anton, William and John Bernhardt of 610 East Tenth street, claim that they saw him vault the fence between the two houses, and that a moment later a blaze shot up from the Bird home. Mrs. Bird says that he came to the door and demanded admission, and that when it was refused him, he threatened to set fire to the house. He went away, and a few minutes later her neighbors told her house was on fire.

The fire had been started from the rear, where some kindling and dry paper had been thrown under some dry birchwood.

It was extinguished by the Bernhardts after a hard fight, and little damage was done.

The police were then notified, and Calhoun was arrested.

TURNERS TO ENTERTAIN.

Norwegian Society Will Celebrate Seventeenth of May on Thursday.

The Norwegian Turners society of the West end is planning an entertainment in celebration of the Norwegian independence day, to be given at Svea hall, on West Superior street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues, on Thursday night. Speeches, songs, music and athletic exhibitions constitute the program, after which a dance will take place. The committee having the affair in charge consists of Chris Hansen, Andrew Danielson, Theodore Rud, B. Martinsen and J. M. Sveen.

This society has elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: President, Andrew Thompson; vice president, Andrew Kvisgaard; recording secretary, Ingvald Sveen; financial secretary, Chris Hanson; treasurer, G. H. Huseby; marshal, B. Martinsen; and trustee, Hans Caspersen.

Building on First Street.

First street is destined to become one of the principal streets of Duluth. The courthouse, hotel, Elks and big office buildings are some of the new structures to be erected soon. Then there is Mellin & Co., 310 West First street, the big tailors, building the finest garments in Duluth at Medium prices. We save you $10 to $15 on every suit or overcoat. New arrivals of extra heavy spring weights in exclusive patterns from which to select. If we do not please you keep your money.

STEAM AUTO BLOWS UP.

Omaha, May 14.—At a late hour last night a large steam automobile, containing six persons, blew up at Twenty-ninth and Farnum streets, all of the occupants being injured, though none thought to be fatally hurt. The force of the explosion hurled some of the victims fifty feet and broke windows a block away, while parts of the machine were found two blocks from the scene of the explosion.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Headache Powders Supposed to Have Caused Lycett's Death.

Sault Ste. Marie—Headache powders are supposed to have caused the sudden death of William Lycett of the Canadian Soo, who died today. He complained of a headache and went to a drug store and purchased some tablets. Soon after he was taken ill. The coroner is investigating. Lycett was 49, and was employed by the Algoma Steel company.

J. J. O'Neil, collector of water rates, was let out by the board of public works at the Soo, and hereafter the city recorder will be expected to collect the rates. It was a desire to economize that led to Mr. O'Neil's dismissal. It is also the intention to let an assistant engineer at the waterworks go as soon as the chief returns from a vacation trip. The board of public works evidently believes that the Soo is spending too much money on city government and plans to help with the work of curtailing the expense.

Houghton—Five locomotives were practically ruined and the center compartment of the Copper Range railroad's roundhouse here was badly damaged as the result of a fire which originated from an unknown source early today.

Carney—The case against Ole Johnson of Carney, charged with the murder of Emil Johnson in 1901, has been dismissed, there being not enough evidence to hold the prisoner. Johnson was arrested as a result of the suspicions of his wife, who is now suing for a divorce. The only evidence against the man was of the purely circumstantial variety and the fact that the charge on which he was arrested has now been dismissed is not surprising.

Munising—The fishermen who have visited the Addis lakes, in Alger county, since the opening of the trout fishing season have been badly disappointed. Fine trout have been caught, but examination has developed the fact that every one was diseased. The gills are attacked by a small white parasite, which in a short time is said to destroy the fish. A large number of brook trout have been planted in these lakes the past few years, yet the entire finny tribe inhabiting the waters are apparently hopelessly diseased.

ALBENBERG'S

Hunter Block—First Avenue West and Superior Street.

D. E. H., May 14, 1906.

If his back fails to "throw a good front," they size him up as a back number.

Here are the new styles in light weight overcoats: Waterproof, and will make a man look right from any point of view.

Not a month in the year here in Duluth, but this coat is useful—in fact, it's a necessity.

$10, $12.50, $15, $18, $20, $22, $25 and $27, and the best coat in town at any of these prices.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

Larger Question Looming Out of the Fog of Prejudice.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Introductory sovereignty by military occupation of the Philippines went up like a rocket, but it has come down like a stick. Roosevelt recommends that some solution of the problem be found because of the fact that the expense is increasing at an alarming rate.

Bryan proposes that the United States grant the boon of independence. A promise grows stale, flat and unprofitable if unfulfilled. The other world powers, skilled in diplomacy by years of experience, were not slow to call this declaration for Philippine autonomy a sugar-coated lie. Since a Republican administration gave its word and thereby, as some think, its bond, to benevolently assimilate the new colony, times have changed. Human beings are notoriously hard to benevolently assimilate. With land and resources things are different.

Japan was not a factor in the equation at the time the constitution was found to be pregnant. Since that time a suzerain of Asia has been born and recognized as the inheritor of a giant's attributes. Greater Monroeism is the old-fashioned Monroe doctrine afflicted with dropsical swelling. It must have sharp claws if it is to grow as fast as its yellow brother, the Jap-Chink doctrine. The latter is younger, but it comes of sturdy stock and already makes it plain that it intends to keep Asia for Asiatics. The Russian advance was routed so easily as to astonish the world. Yankee human nature is slow to believe that its sea power and military strength would fall down so easily and worship Japanese strategy and marksmanship and endurance. Japa has not abated any of his courage because of this opinion. China is the prize which Japan was in reality fighting for. Results of the first round have prepossessed China in favor of her racial ally. Russia never humiliated China by harassing restrictions against immigration. There are no magnetic attractions for outlanders in Russia. More reputation and honor are in store for the power which will try conclusions with the United States, so far as China is concerned. Having swallowed Russia the temptation to push against the world power of North America, certainly is dangling before the mind's eye of the yellow conqueror. Nothing would give so much prestige to Japan in China as a direct push at the United States. The peacefest at Portsmouth had an irritating episode for Japan in it. Beneath the unruffled exterior of Oriental diplomacy resentment burned fiercely. Events in Northern Manchuria are not shaping themselves according to the terms of the treaty. Russia can be false to her own citizens and therefore can be as false as hell to treaty obligations. It is only piling Pelion on Ossa to delay evacuation of Manchuria now, as it was delayed after the Pekin conference. The American motive measured by the Chinese yardstick does not give satisfaction. Confucius has said somewhere something in Chinese which freely translated signifies that a man or a nation is known by the company which satisfies. Political battledore and shuttlecock with the issue of Philippine independence cannot hide for any length of time from intelligent people the larger question which is looming up out of the fog of prejudice and race hatred. Bryan has done a shrewd thing by focusing public attention on the Philippines. His plan for autonomy for the Filipinos is as sure to fail as free silver. It would be as foolish to expect a grown man to wear a boy's clothes as to expect the United States to keep an impossible promise. Safeguarder of Philipine welfare would be a thankless task for the United States. The weakest kind of an imitation of American liberty in our ex-colony would cause the Oriental mind to set its conviction like a bear trap that the virile yellow form of government is the best on the footstool.

Mayor Asks Council to Investigate Criticisms Made by Kugler.

Council Will Also Consider Bid for Collection of Garbage.

The council will be requested by Mayor Cullum this evening to investigate the criticisms made by County Commissioner Kugler against the system of purchasing supplies by the health department.

The mayor, in a communication to the council, says that the statements are serious if true, and he asks the aldermen to appoint a committee to look into them, and see if County Commissioner Kugler is right.

According to the statements made by Mr. Kugler, the department is paying about 25 per cent too much for its supplies, which means that $1,200 is being wasted.

* * *

The council this evening, will also consider the bid of John M. Root for collecting the garbage and refuse in the city, under the supervision of the health department.

The proposition has the endorsement of the garbage commission, and the committee on drains, sewers and sanitation, to which it was referred last Monday night, will also report favorably on it.

The fact that the bid does not also cover the collection of ashes has caused considerable unfavorable comment, as it would necessitate an additional expense on the part of the householders in having their ashes removed.

* * *

Alderman Wilson will introduce a new ordinance this evening, fixing the width of sidewalks in certain districts of the city.

Under the present system, the width of the sidewalk is fixed when the resolution ordering it, is passed. In this way the width of the walks often varies greatly from block to block. If the width were prescribed by ordinance, the walks would be made uniform.

The ordinance extending the cement sidewalk district, will also come up this evening. It includes London road from Forty-third to Sixtieth avenues east, and also parts of Second street. If passed it will add between two and three miles of street to the district in which only cement walks are allowed.

The increase in the cost of lumber has caused a big increase in the demand for cement walks and a very large portion of the city is now included in the cement walk district.

The mayor's report on the revocation of the saloon license of D. C. Christopher is due this evening. The mayor originally recommended the revocation of the license, but the council committee investigated, and reported that the proprietor of the saloon was not responsible for the gambling that had been in progress there, and received no percentage from the game, and recommended that the license be not revoked. The report was turned over to the mayor and a further expression of wishes asked.

Buying a Watch.

Some people do not realize when buying a watch that they are about to spend their money for an article that should give them service for many years to come if not for the rest of their lives. They will drop into any place that presents the appearance of a jewelry store and allow some inexperienced clerk to separate them from their hard earned cash in exchange for something that has the appearance of a watch.

After a few months of dissatisfaction most of these watches are disposed of at a large sacrifice and another is perhaps purchased with the same unsatisfactory results. Now and then a man with lots of money is able to buy a really good watch but he is compelled to pay an exorbitant price for it in some of the socalled "fashionable stores" where he pays a large per cent for the "name on the box." There is one firm in Duluth where the rich and the poor, the old and the young, the wise and otherwise may go with a feeling of assurance that they will get fair treatment. Harris & Esterly, the Spalding Hotel jewelers, have in the past ten years established a reputation for square dealing that is envied by all their competitors in the city.

For ten years this firm has sold the people of Duluth and vicinity high-grade watches and diamond jewelry at prices far below that which is usually asked for inferior goods by their competitors.

Harris & Esterly carry the largest and finest stock of watches in this city and they are the only firm in Duluth that competes with the large catalogue houses of Chicago. A watch bought in this store can be relied on in every respect as represented; an ironclad guarantee accompanies each and every sale. Every diamond sold by this firm can be returned to them for the full purchase price less 10 per cent at any time. Harris & Esterly sell diamonds as strictly 10 per cent profit. The so-called "fashionable" jewelers will ask you 30 to 50 per cent. Money saved is money made.

ANNUAL TAX SALE HELD

Auditor Sells Property Delinquent on First Monday in January.

Bids Are Mostly for 12 Per Cent of Annual Rate.

The annual tax sale was held today by Auditor Halden at the courthouse. About a dozen persons were present at the morning session during which time nearly all the city property on which the taxes for 1904 and previous years are delinquent were sold. This afternoon the auditor expected to begin with the lots and parcels of lots in Fond du Lac.

Under the law the annual tax sale must be held the second Monday in May and at that time the auditor is required to sell all parcels of lands against which judgment has been entered and which remains unsatisfied for the taxes for the preceding year or years.

The auditor has six days in which to sell the delinquent property, but the list in St. Louis county is usually disposed of in about a day. Each parcel is sold separately and to the person who bids the lowest annual rate of interest, 12 per cent being the maximum rate permitted.

The majority of the sales this morning were made on 12 per cent bids. There were a few instances where the bidding cut the rate to 8 and 10 per cent, and one case where competition was particularly lively and a bid was accepted with an annual interest rate of only 1 per cent. Only one owner appeared in person this morning to bid in delinquent property. Where no person made a bid the auditor was authorized to bid in the property for the state. In a number of the sales this morning the delinquent taxes were only a street sprinkling assessment.

Under the sales made today the purchaser of a tax title will acquire an absolute title if the owner does not redeem within the time set by law. If his title is found void the county will have to refund.

It was expected that the sale this afternoon of property in the county outside the city, on which the taxes are delinquent, would draw a larger number of bidders.

ANNUAL GAIN IS HELD BACK

From Policyholders in Order to Keep Up Emergency Fund.

Milwaukee, May 14.—Assistant Actuary J. C. Crawford of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, was questioned today by the Wisconsin legislative committee as to the dividend factors used in making up the dividends of the company. Mr. Crawford stated that 21½ per cent was obtained from gains from the mortality fund, 12½ was saved from the expense, and 4½ from interest. The annual death losses of the company the witness stated were generally between 65 and 70 per cent of the fund set aside for the purpose. Asked if he had ever known of any company having death losses in excess of the mortality tables, Mr. Crawford said he had. In reply to another question as to why the entire annual gain from the saving in death losses was not distributed among the policyholders, Mr. Crawford said that it was believed this amount should be held back as an emergency fund.

GOOD ALL OVER STATE.

Automobile Licenses Valid in Other Cities Provided Numbers are Shown.

Automobile licenses issued under the new code by the town or city clerk of any municipality in Minnesota, are good in any other city or town in the state, provided the numbers are plainly printed on the car.

A St. Paul touring car arrived in the city this morning, and the police threatened the owner with arrest for not having a license. He claimed that he had taken out a license in St. Paul, but he did not have a number printed on the car, as the law provides. This fact nearly resulted in his arrest, but he succeeded in convincing the police that he had a license. The provision regarding the numbers being printed on the cars, is not strictly enforced in the Twin Cities.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Novel Tetrahedral Kites Used by Dr. Alexander Graham Ball.

This System Would be of Great Value in War Times.

Boston, May 14.—Dr. A. Graham Bell, formerly of Boston and famous as the inventor of the telephone, although he has now reached the age at which most men retire from business activities, is ever energetic in the exploration of new and promising scientific fields.

His latest achievement is found in the introduction of wireless telegraphy by means of kites.

Almost from the date of the invention of wireless communication, scientists, army and navy officials and other interested persons have realized that there might be great possibilities for wireless telegraphy carried on through the medium of balloons or kites as sending or receiving stations, but Dr. Bell is the first inventor to really point the way to a practical utilization of this latest twentieth century invention.

The kites used in Dr. Bell's demonstration are the novel tetrahedral kites which the inventor of the telephone has employed for several years past at his laboratory in Nova Scotia in an attempt to solve the problem of aerial navigation along entirely new lines.

Kites somewhat similar to the tetrahedra kites of the present day are said to have been known to the people of the Orient centuries ago, but it was Prof. Bell, who revived the type and who adopted it to present-day practical purposes, so that he has come to be spoken of generally as the inventor of this unique style of kite.

Dr. Bell's experiments in kite telegraphy have been conducted during the past few weeks at his new experiment station located at Columbia Pike station, Virginia, not far distant from the city of Washington, D. C., where Dr. Bell has his permanent home.

The conduct of the experiments, under the general direction of Prof. Bell has been in the hands of W. F. Bedwin, superintendent of Dr. Bell's Beinn Breagh laboratory near Baddeck, N. S.

The kites, consisting of a small pilot kite followed by the large kite, were in most of the recent experiments sent up a distance of 2,000 feet or more. These kites, it need scarcely be explained, served the purpose of a wireless telegraphy mast, but have the advantage of portability, and can be increased in height or shortened at almost a moment's notice—features calculated, of course, to make the system of immense value and advantage in time of war or under other unusual circumstances.

The kites do not require more than a moderate breeze to elevate them, and in lieu of cord are held by a line consisting of piano wire, which unwinds from a reel as the kite ascends. The kites also carry aloft the telegraph line, consisting of ordinary green electric light cord, to the upper end or receiving terminal, to which it attached 400 feet of antenna wire. The telegraph operator is stationed close by the reel of wire which constitutes the base of operations.

In the tests thus far made wireless messages have been received through the kite stations from the Washington navy yard, a distance of some miles; from the wireless station at Galilee, on the New Jersey coast, near the Atlantic headlands, and from the steamer Bermudian 100 miles out from New York and more than 300 miles from the kites.

In one novel experiment the operator caught the messages through the bodies of two men who stood at the side of the receiving instrument. The men clasped hands and one grasped the telegraph wire from the kite with his free hand while the other held in his free hand the receiving instrument.

Thus far the kite experiments have been confined to the receiving of wireless messages, inasmuch as the station maintained by Dr. Bell on the heights of Virginia does not include in its equipment the necessary electrical apparatus for sending messages.

However, these experiments will be continued by Prof. Bell in Great Britain and ultimately the kites will be used for the transmission of wireless messages across the Atlantic.

The United States weather bureau, which is now projecting an extensive use of kites in connection with its forecasting work, has had a representative present at all the Bell experiments for the purpose of gaining pointers regarding the new discoveries made.

Dr. Bell's kites, with which the present wireless telegraphy experiments are being conducted, are designed to remedy two radical defects in box kites and all other similar flying craft. In the first place the box kite is braced in a horizontal and vertical direction, but not otherwise, so that cross supports have to be introduced in the frame, which increases the weight without adding to the flying power, and at the same time operates as an obstacle to the wind.

Secondly, the box kite has a serious defect in that weight increases with the cube as rapidly as the lifting power does with the square, so that the larger the kite the less it will lift in proportion.

To remedy these unsatisfactory conditions Prof. Bell has been led to construct kites which in each case are made up of cells, each of which presents the form of a triangle, no matter from what side it is viewed. In other words each unit is a perfect tetrahedron and is self-braced in every direction.

Moreover, the lifting power increases at a greater ratio with the increase in weight. The idea of the Bell kite is not only a distinct advance in aerostatics, but is in many respects a distinctly new one to science.

Any number of the tetrahedron cells can be combined to form a kite, and Prof. Bell has already experimented with kites of this kind which have lifted a man weighing over 200 pounds to a considerable height.

Similarly the cells may be grouped in any desired form, just as a house of stone blocks can be built in any desired architectural design. Until recently, however, the inventor had constructed most of his kites in triangular form—that is, in an elaboration of the shape of the tetrahedron cells themselves. In making a kite for wireless telegraphy experiments, however, he struck out on new lines and the new kite is cone-shaped.

The frames of the cells are all covered with red silk, and the material of the frame is of the same light, strong wood that has been employed in the kites previously constructed.

FIRE HOSE FOR POINT.

Board Will Ask Council Permission to Purchase Additional 1,000 Feet.

The fire car which will be used on Park Point will be equipped with hose by the fire department.

The board will this evening request the council for permission to purchase 1,000 feet of new hose. This is a part of the 5,000 feet contracted for several months ago. Only 4,000 feet has been purchased, and this additional order will complete the contract.

The new hose will be used in the central part of the city, and some of the hose that it will replace will be sent to Park Point to equip the new car. This hose is still perfectly sound and strong enough to bear the pressure on the point.

HAS NO FEAR OF LEPROSY

Damien's Comrade on New Leper Mission in Far East.

Father Conrardy on His Way to Serve in China.

New York, May 14.—Father Damien's companion and last comforter is in town. He is the Rev. L. L. Conrardy, missionary priest and doctor of medicine, the one who served with Father Damien among the lepers of Moloki, sat by him in his last illness, gave him the priestly offices at his lonely death and buried him under the tree which had been for more than three months Father Damien's only shelter.

Father Conrardy, on his way from Belgium to the Far East, stopped here in the interest of a new leper mission to be started in Canton, China, a city with 10,000 helpless, slowly rotting victims of the most miserable of diseases.

"You are going yourself among these people again?" he was asked.

"Myself, yes," he replied. "I have the authority of my bishop, recommendations to assistance from the Protestant missionaries, and my experience with Father Damien."

"Ah, if I get the disease," he answered (as if he were simply saying, "Oh, if I catch cold,") "I get it, that's all. We know nothing about the origin of leprosy; we know little about how it is communicated. I did not get infected at Molokai."

Father Conrardy has a long white beard, clear brown eyes, and wears silver bowed spectacles. His skin is clear and taught, as if from careful carbolic cleansings.

"I had no fear in Molokai and was there eight years, one year with Father Damien and seven years after. The lepers indeed were afraid of me, feared to touch me; but I lived with them, nursed them and nothing happened."

He was born in Oregon, of Belgian parents, and he served with Gen. O. O. Howard in his Indian fights—served, that is, as a peacemaker and arbitrator, passing from reds to whites with the trust of both, and finally arranging the terms with the Melheur Indians, known by ranchers as the "sheep eaters."

"I used to be strong," he said. "Half my body left me in Molokai. There I had Asiatic cholera, and of my 180 pounds it took from me ninety pounds."

His talk is straight, direct, with idolms which come from long use of foreign language.

"I had heard of Father Damien. I wrote to him to ask if I could help and he replied. I have his letter here: 'I cry ot you,' it says (almost the last letter he ever wrote to anybody), 'I cry to you from the bottom of my heart to come and help in assistance.' So I went. That was in 1887. Father Damien had been touched with the disease. There were sores on his fingers.

"'If I lose my hands,' he said, 'what can I do? I shall have no use. I shall not be able to celebrate the mass—I shall not be able to administer the sacraments.' He was sad about that—about the mass—and his fingers were going.

"We worked together. Worked, I mean, as man and man together, building cottages, chapels and hospital houses. He built me a cottage himself; he built six chapels. As Stevenson said, he was a peasant, sturdy, capable, energetic, always doing. He dressed sores, attended the ill in the worst cases, gave them in detail the most disagreeable aids, and he joined in making their diversions."

"They had diversions then and amusements, these lepers?"

"Indeed, yes. Some kind women of Honolulu sent us brass instruments for a band. Stevenson, after his visit of eight days—that was after Father Damien had died—sent a piano; his stepson sent a violin. Stevenson taught the Kanaka girls to play croquet; we made the malolets and balls and he played with the girls himself."

Mother Marian had taken Stevenson for a sailor, as he had gone ashore in his yachting suit and cap. Inquired, being then far along with consumption himself, what the danger was of his contracting leprosy. But he stayed eight days and seven nights, and insisted on going among the worst cases, seeing, as he later wrote, "but ends of human beings lying about, almost unrecognizable, but breathing—an ordeal from which the nerves of a man's spirit shrink, even as his eye quails—a pitiful place to visit and a hell to dwell in."

Father Conrardy spoke of the daily life in Molokai:

"We were busy teaching and building. Some food came in packages from Hawaii, a good deal after the government began to assist, but the lepers were taught to raise vegetables. We had to keep them occupied to make the time pass for them. Out of the thousand there were about twenty whites. One was an Irishman, James McMillan."

"Father Damien, who has been described as 'excitable, obstinate, rude and unjust,' Father Conrardy found to be a man who acknowledged errors like a gentleman, was impatient of detail, but showed tireless, great loving faithfulness to the sore and helpless.

"Three weeks before he died," said Father Conrardy, "he said to me, looking at his hands, 'Father, I shall die tonight,' 'Not tonight,' I said. 'Try to live. Perhaps God would rather have you live. Try to live for these people.' 'But with no hands I cannot serve the mass,' he said.

"He had seen the cracks in his fingers open wide and then shut, and he had seen the death progress of too many not to know that when the sores closed it was the end. One night there came trouble with his bowels; he died. We buried him under the tree which had been his habitation the first three months of his voluntary exile. Yes, we put a stone to mark his grave. It says:

"'There is no higher way to prove love for your neighbors than to give your life for them.'"

When Stevenson visited the island Father Conrardy was disabled with Asiatic cholera. "They carried me to the boat in the leper hearse."

"Out in Canton," Father Conrardy went on quickly, "the condition of lepers is fifty times worse than in Molokai. There are 30,000 of them in the province of Canton—10,000 in the city. I want to help 200 of them. Three hundred of them have a preference for me," he said quaintly, "and it would be, oh, very easy to help them greatly. They are not isolated now. They are not taken care of. They are avoided and left alone—no one to feed them when they no longer have the capacity to feed themselves. A jug of water and some rice is placed near them, which they must get as best they can as they lie on their backs.

"We can feed them and can teach those not too far gone how to keep clean and put antiseptics on their sores. We don't expect any fine modern hospital, with its admirable, clean appliances. In this country of America, sometimes, we fix poor persons better than they ever were before but in China all we hope to do is to provide food and make them clean and give them shelter like human beings.

"It will cost only 2½ cents a day each to do this very well. That is, anybody giving $9 a year would be giving comfort to a forsaken wretch ill of a loathsome, incurable malady, terrifying to see. For $7.50 a day we could take care of 300. Suppose I should be fortunate enough to receive gifts of $60,000—that would provide an income which would maintain 800 patients continually. I expect, in this country of the great hearts, to get that amount. It would be put in the Hongkong bank, and the bishop of Hongkong and the American consul there and myself would share equally the responsibility."

HOWARD'S LAST WORDS.

Washington correspondent New York World: In some way the discussion in the Democratic cloakroom turned to the last words of dying men. John Sharp Williams dug up a good many in that remarkable storehouse he keeps in the top of his head, and several others contributed a few.

"I don't know many of the last sentiments of great men," said Representative South Trimble of Kentucky, "but this talk reminds me of the inquest they held over the body of Chad Howard down in my state.

"Chad Howard was mixed up in one of the feuds, and he killed a few of his opponents one day. They arrested him and took him to the county jail, which was a log affair, made with very thick walls and but one window and an ironbound door. Howard was the only prisoner in the jail. One night the jailer came in to keep him company, and they began shaking a friendly game of dice on a box top, with the candle between them.

"After the game had been going on for half an hour, a man who was allied with the other end of the Howard feud came up to the window, put a double-barreled shotgun through and blew off the top of Howard's head. They had an inquest, and the jailer was the star witness. He described Howard's death in minute detail.

"The the coroner said: 'Can you tell the jury what was the last words of the deceased?'

"'Yes, sir,' the jailer replied; 'I reckon I kin. Near's I kin remember the last dyin' words of the deceased was. "Three aces to beat."'"

WHALE FOR BAIT.

Boston Herald: The Hon. Frank E. Batchelder of South Woodbury, Vt., runs a summer resort situated on the banks of Woodbury lake. One afternoon last summer his boarders had congregated on the lawn in front of the house and were telling fish stories, seemingly trying to outdo each other.

Batchelder waited until they had finished, and then said he had an experience while fishing in Canada which would bear repeating. "I had been sitting in my boat for some time," he said, "when suddenly my line and bait were taken down the lake at a tremendous speed. I pulled and pulled, without effect.

"Gracious!" interrupted one of the boarders, "you must have had a whale!"

"No," calmly replied Batcheider, "I was using whale for bait."

THE JURY CHARGED.

Boston Herald: Here is one at the door of Judge Peters of Maine. Having listened for some days to a long, tedious case, the outcome of which hinged entirely upon the unsupported evidence of the two principals in the case, the plaintiff having testified to one thing and the defendant to the exact opposite, it became Judge Peters' duty to charge the jury. He sat for some moments in deep thought, and then began:

"Gentlemen of the jury, if you believe the testimony as offered by the plaintiff, you will find for the plaintiff; if you believe the testimony as offered by the defendant, you will find for the defendant; but if you are like me, and don't believe either of them, I don't know what in h—l you will find."

SIZED UP.

Boston Herald: Throughout the village of Annisquam no greater joker can be found than Thomas S. Pool, an old-time fisherman and a veteran of the Civil war. On being told of the intended entrance into the fishing industry of a firm composed of two young fellows, neither of whom had much money to start with, "Tom" remarked: "I've heern tell of people standin' on nothin' an' pickin' holes in the wind, and, b'gosh, I guess them fellers will come purty near doin' it."

DULUTH REAL ESTATE.

Those who watch the local situation closely cannot fail to note that Duluth real estate, which has long persisted in a price level far lower than conditions warranted, is stirring uneasily, and giving every evidence of starting a climb up the scale.

Such a movement is to be expected, and the only wonder is that it has delayed so long. There is probably not a city in the country today where real estate, viewed in the light of conditions and prospects, is so cheap as it is in Duluth. In spite of an active building demand, in spite of the fact that thousands of people are building homes, in spite of the fact that the commercial districts are broadening out and taking in more and more territory; in spite of these things there has been no particular speculative market, and except in a few locations prices have kept a dead level from which, until lately, they showed no intention of stirring.

Conditions are certainly ripe for a quick advance in real estate prices in Duluth. The town has never enjoyed such prosperity as it is blessed with today. Her prospects were never broader, greater or more certain. More building is in progress and prospect than there ever was before in the history of the city. The development of the water power, which will be completed in a few months, marks the beginning of a new era, when cheap power will bring quick growth to the manufacturing interests of the community. The territory of which Duluth is the capital is developing very rapidly, and thriving towns are located where the wilderness slept untrod only a few years ago.

In these circumstances, real estate in Duluth is ludicrously cheap, but it can't remain so much longer. It is already showing signs of an advance, and when it starts going up, and those who own no lots realize that it is getting away from them, they are likely to go scrambling into a bull real estate market and start a very hurried climb.

Duluth people, so far as possible, ought to own Duluth property and get the benefit of the advance. If they don't buy it pretty soon, outsiders are going to, and local people will have to pay tribute to them.

Now is the time. Get in on the ground floor. Buy Duluth real estate and watch it climb.

REAL REALISM.

A ghastly tale of the encroachment of real tragedy upon mimic tragedy comes from France, where in the little rural theater of Nemours an audience saw a terribly vivid representation of the delirium of alcoholism, which was intensely realistic because it was actual instead of pretended, as the spectators supposed.

M. Chirac, a confirmed inebriate, known to the playgoers of Paris because a few years ago he was an actor of some note, was the artist who made this portrayal. He was picturing a drunkard, in the last stages of the terrible delirium that nature has visited as a punishment upon those who linger too long and too ardently at the shrine of Bacchus. The spectacle was hideous, but it was realistic, and it won unstinted applause.

In the excitement of it women fainted and men grew pale and tense. As the actor was carried off the stage at the end of the frightful scene, men and women all over the house rose to their feet and cheered at the masterly imitation.

Then they waited for the curtain to rise for the next act. The minutes went rapidly past, and still it did not move. The audience grew uneasy, stirred restlessly, and shuffled its feet nervously. Then a hush crept over the house as a pale-visaged manager came to the footlights and announced that the actor was dead; that he had actually passed away in the spasms brought on by his own intemperance, and that the play was over.

It was a curiously tragic ending to a brutal manifestation of dramatic art. Chirac was a player of some reputation, but he chose to exploit the brutal and hideous not only upon the stage but in his own life. He paraded before the playgoers the most revolting scenes, until finally even Paris cast him out, and the police stopped his performances.

Such a ghastly tale carries its own moral. It is not often that the horrible results of intemperance are brought home so vividly to the public, but it seems altogether likely that at best the admiration of the people in that rural audience for drink was not increased. It was a fearful temperance lesson, which most people would rather take for granted than see for themselves.

ARROGANCE.

It is not at all strange that in many congressional districts of the country—likewise in many states with regard to their senators—the humble voters are looking with some amazement upon the creatures they have created by the power of their votes, and exclaiming:

"Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed,
That he hath grown so great?"

The objects of this wonderment are statesmen who have outgrown their constituencies, and who have swollen so mightily in their own esteem that they deem themselves better judges of what the people ought to have than the people are themselves. Their attitude is that of a stern parent, who denies the wants of his child because of his greater knowledge and experience, and forbids him to do as he wishes.

This is right enough in the parent, but wrong in the statesman, who overlooks the fact that he is the child and his constituency the parent, and that he was sent to Washington to do the will of his people, and not to follow his own sweet inclinations, trained by contact with predatory interests.

For instance, as it is well known, there is a movement on foot in this country to add to the postal service a parcels post, a system that is in vogue in most countries civilized enough to have postoffices, but denied to the greatest country in the world by its servants in congress. The chairman of the house committee on postoffices and post roads, Hon. Jesse Overstreet of Indiana, has abruptly and rather insolently denied the Postal Progress League a hearing on its proposition to combine third and fourth class matter at third class rates.

This is not a parcels post. It is a very slight concession to the popular demand for relief from the exactions of the express companies. But it would be an advance, and it would cut into express company profits. So the committee will not even consider it or hear arguments in favor of it, even though the postmaster general in his annual report strongly favored it.

It is this sort of arrogance that is going to retire many members of congress to private life before very long. It is wholly beyond the province of a congressman to slight the wishes of the people in such a manner. It is very coarsely done, and if the congressmen think the express companies are stronger than their constituencies, it is up to the people to show them differently.

A SPELLING BEE.

Among the hordes of new-fangled notions that are being experimented with in the schools, New York is trying one that will appeal to everybody, because it harks back to an ancient custom that awakens pleasant memories of other days. It is nothing more or less than an old-fashioned spelling bee.

Pupils in their sixth year of school, and averaging 12 years of age, in eleven school buildings of New York, are to "spell down" just as they used to do it in the district school that you used to attend. There will be about 2,000 children, and a list of 500 words has been selected and given out to the pupils to be studied. During the week ending May 18 each sixth grade teacher will dictate the 500 words to the whole class, 100 words daily, fifty in the morning and fifty in the afternoon. All the children that misspell less than twenty-six out of the 500 words will be eligible to the class spelling match. May 21 a spelling match will be held in each class, and all those children who are not spelled down during the giving out of the 500 words will be considered class winners. A class score will be made out by taking the per cent won by the entire class on the written test, plus one point for each pupil who has not been spelled down in the oral test.

The best and second best classes in each building will then have a school contest at the morning assembly, May 24. Here the class winners will be pitted in an oral match, and all who are still standing when the 500 words have been given out will be the champions of that building. Some evening in June there will be a grand inter-building contest, to which all the parents and teachers in the district will be invited, and the champion of the two school districts involved will be found.

This is much more elaborate than the old time spelling bee, but it is a safe prediction that the children concerned will learn some spelling. Those who have to do with the output of the public schools these days declare that they don't teach spelling any more, and it is certain that public school pupils do not spell so well as their fathers and mothers did when they had to pore over spelling books by the hour, mumbling the letters in a half audible murmur.

Just to make sure that the pupils learn a little spelling, it might not be a bad idea to try the spelling bee in Duluth.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Cleveland brokers engaged in the lumber business are now making statements that the movement of the commodity down the lakes will not be as heavy as usual this year," said G. L. Pintsch of Cleveland, at the McKay. "Prices on lumber in Cleveland have risen steadily during the last few months, and it has been generally believed that the arrival of shipments from the head of the Lakes would relieve the situation.

"But present expectations are that Lake Superior shipments will not be sufficient to relieve the scarcity in such a way as to reduce prices. Some members of the Lumber Carriers' association, in consequence, are disposed to criticise the action of the executive committee in settling the lake strike. They say that this gives a full season to the lumber carriers, and consequently works against the advances in rates of carriage, which were expected to be among the results of the lake strike.

"Lumber carriers established a rate of $2.50 a thousand from the Head of the Lakes, but they have had difficulty in maintaining a rate of $2.25 a thousand. Lumber carriers say that with the long season of navigation, and the comparatively light movement of lumber, they will be unable to keep the average rates for the year much above $2 a thousand. In view of the fact that it costs $1 a thousand to handle the lumber on and off the boats, you see where there isn't much profit to be made this year in the lumber business."

"San Francisco was noted for its hotels and restaurants," said E. E. Weatherfield of Seattle, Wash., at the St. Louis. "One reason for the magnificence of its hostelries is found in the exorbitant prices that prevailed in the early days of immigration, for rents and edibles and everything that goes toward the making of a home.

"Money was the commonest thing and homes the rarest. For some years there were practically no families, and for years after families began to arrive, the continued high prices of food, servants, buildings and rents made the people patronize hotels to an extent that in any other community would have been deemed nothing short of scandalous.

"In 1899 the American men in California outnumbered the American women four to one. Money was easy and life hard. It took six months to get a bill of goods from New York, the nearest market, by a round-about voyage of about 19,000 miles in a sailing ship."

"It gives a man a lonesome feeling to ride on a train up in this part of the country," said N. F. Ross of Chicago, at the Lenox. "I like riding through a forest all right, but when it comes to traveling all day through a country that has been burned over it is an entirely different proposition. I cannot imagine anything more discouraging to the eye than an extensive stretch of country that has been laid waste by fire. I can remember the time when burnings were a scarcity through the Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota district, and when fine forests were all around. But the lumbermen came, and then the fires, and it was all off.

"It seems to me the United States should take some steps toward the preservation of her forests. Of course, there are numerous reforestration persons in the field now, and the government has undertaken the work to a certain degree, but in no such manner as she should. At the rate the forests are disappearing there will not be any left at all in two or three generations. If care were used in cutting, so that there would be no waste, reforestration steps wouldn't be so necessary. It is a shame the way timber is wasted by the lumber companies.

"The worst waste comes not with the cutting, but with the disastrous fires that follow the cutting. I understand that on government lands now the loggers are compelled to burn all the leavings in the way of cut brush and tree tops. This rule should be extended to all lands where there is growing timber. There wouldn't have been so many forest fires in the past if such a law as this had been put into effect ten years ago.

"In cutting timber it has been the custom of loggers to leave the fallen tree tops and the brush cut in clearing roads where they fell. These tops and brush were scattered thickly over the ground, and with warm weather they became as dry as tinder. Nothing is more inflamable than dry pine needles. It takes but a spark to set them off. The result of this practise of leaving tree tops scattered around in all directions is easily seen. A careless camper or hunter throws a lighted match aside, or neglects to entirely stamp out his fire, and in a few hours a forest fire is raging.

"In nine cases out of ten these fires would amount to little or nothing if it were not for the leavings of the loggers. Fire cannot easily run through green timber, and seldom would do so if it didn't have dry branches, brush and tree tops to feed on. But with these as a start, there is no stopping a forest fire. Before the tops are burned the green timber in that vicinity becomes dry from the heat and catches fire, and the whole forest is laid waste, where it would be hardly injured at all if the loggers had been compelled to clean up as they went."

And No Hysteria About It.

Wall Street Journal: A number of people are proposing Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, for the Democratic nomination for president of the United States in 1908. Dr. Wilson has already written his platform. It consists of one sentence and yet covers nearly the whole field. It was contained in a recent address delivered by the Princeton president. It proposed as a solution for our economic problems the application "of old-fashioned morals to new-fashioned business." That's the whole thing in a nutshell.

THE WEATHER.

Don't say a word about it. Everybody knows that a northeaster is unpleasant, and nobody likes its cold, raw winds and driving rains. But it does no good to talk about it. It will have to blow itself out, and nothing you can say will alter that. The weather man says the present northeaster is likely to hold on tonight and tomorrow, but with rising temperatures, and that there will be showers. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 degs., and yesterday's highest was 42 degs. Says Mr. Richardson of conditions:

"The disturbance that is causing strong northeasterly winds in this section is central over Eastern South Dakota. It is also attended by cool weather and rather copious rains throughout the northwest and most of the Lake region. Some rain also fell over portions of New England states and the southwest. Another disturbance is developing in north Pacific districts causing rain there. The barometer continues high over the Lake region and South Atlantic states with quite warm temperature from Iowa and the Ohio valley southward. Conditions favor a continuance of fresh easterly winds and showery weather in this locality tonight and probably Tuesday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Aladdin.

When I was a beggarly boy,
And lived in a cellar damp,
I had not a friend nor a toy,
But I had Aladdin's lamp;
When I could not sleep for cold,
I had fire enough in my brain,
And builded, with roofs of gold,
My beautiful castles in Spain.

Since then I have toiled day and night,
I have money and power good store,
But I'd give all my lamps of silver bright
For the one that is mine no more.
Take, Fortune, whatever you choose;
You gave, and may snatch again;
I've nothing 'twould pain me to lose,
For I own no more castles in Spain!

—JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

Bryan and the Goat.

Lippincott's Magazine: William Jennings Bryan told the following story on himself:

Once out in Nebraska I went to protest against my real estate assessment, and one of the things of which I particularly complained was assessing a goat at $25. I claimed that a goat was not "real" property in the legal sense of the word and should not be assessed. One of the assessors, a very pleasant faced old man, very obligingly said that I could go upstairs with him and together we would look over the rules and regulations and see what could be done.

We looked over the rules and finally the old man asked: "Does your goat run loose on the roads?"

"Well, sometimes," said I, wondering what the penalty was for that dreadful offence.

"Does he butt?" again queried the old man.

"Yes," I answered, "he butts."

"Well," said the old man, looking at me, "this rule says, tax all that certain property running and abutting on the highway, I don't see that I can do anything for you, good day, sir."

A Lover of the Wild.

Are you a lover? Come!—
A lover of wilding things!
The bee's low, haunting hum
The skyward whirring of wings;

Murmurs of reed and rush
To the rill adventuring by;
Out of the underbrush
The cuckoo's shifting cry;

Bruised sassafras scent;
The sweet-flag's tonic taste;
The wind's cool instrument
Wholly assoiled of haste!

I would take your hand
And lead you into the wild;
There we should understand,
Each like a little child.

And the loving mother-earth,
Wise to the depths of her loam,
She should cry out with mirth,
"Here are my babes come home!"

—CLINTON SCOLLARD.

Feminine Reasoning.

Detroit Free Press: Senator Dollivar was condemning an opponent's argument.

"In such an argument," he said, "the logic of it is absurdly false. It is like the logic of a young woman of Fort Dodge.

"This young woman sat plying the needle one spring morning on the piazza of her pretty little house. A coat of her husband's was in her lap. The husband himself appeared, and she said fretfully:

"'It is too bad, the careless way the tailor put this button on. This is the fifth time I have had to sew it on for you.'"

Accounted For.

Everybody's: Mrs. M.'s patience was much tried by a servant who had a habit of standing around with her mouth open. One day, as the maid waited upon table, her mouth was open as usual, and her mistress, giving her a severe look, said:

"Mary, your mouth is open."

"Yessum," replied Mary, "I opened it."

It was remarked this morning that Mr. Jefferson must be a man of great perseverance and staying qualities to pull the rope so often and so incessantly. Not disputing the lightkeeper's stamina, it may be said that an eccentric on the engine is arranged so as to open the whistle every half minute, and consequently the engine is the only thing that gets weary.

Arrangements are complete for the Bachelors' ball this evening, and about one hundred guests will be present. J. H. Dorner and wife, the famous caterers of Mineapolis, came up this morning to look after the refreshments.

Col Crockett of Arkansas has arrived in the city and will make his headquarters at the Duluth land office, acting in this district in the capacity of land inspector.

Capt. Lloyd received word last night from his son George, who is at Ely Rapids, that the Queen of the Lake would leave for Duluth tomorrow.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Rochester Post and Record: The new "boy mayor" of Milwaukee declares "there has been too much politics and too little business in our municipalities." He must be a wise kid.

Ortonville Herald-Star: It has been asserted that if the Republicans nominate a man of whom he is the least bit afraid, Governor Johnson will refuse to run again. If any one is hustling for the nomination under the apprehension that he is such a man he had better quit and go home.

Crookston Times: Lumbermen, it is said, are asking for lower rates. Those of us who have to buy lumber would like lower rates too.

Austin Transcript: The friends of the protective tariff ought to revise it to meet present conditions. If the people in desperation give control in congress again to the enemies of the system of protection, there will be trouble brewing, sure enough.

Mankato Free Press: A thornless pathway in life would please most people more than the propagation of a seedless apple.

Red Wing Republican: H. C. Goll, who was convicted of helping Bigelow rob the Milwaukee National bank of over a million and a half of dollars, has been given a sentence of ten years in the Fort Leavenworth prison. Bigelow, the principal, in the robbery, received a sentence of only seven years. Justice is still blindfolded.

Stillwater Gazette: The Breckenridge Gazette says "somebody has started a boom for Gen. Funston for president in 1908. How would Jadam Bede do for a running mate?" That would certainly be a funny little pair.

Red Lake Courier: We may have a chance now to see whether the United States government or John D. Rockefeller is the stronger. In the meantime we will all pray that there may be no more Judge Humphreys to intervene.

Lake Crystal Union: It is not hard for the farmer to decide who is his friend in Congress or the United States senate if he will but watch the proceedings. If a member refuses to vote the way that will at least divide the benefit square in the middle he is opposed to your prosperity and favors the combine. Fire him out!

Thief River Falls News: The people are for Jacobson and it is going to cost the corporations a whole lot of money to accomplish his defeat in the Duluth convention.

Windom Reporter: If mothers would think that the measly kid in the next door yard caught his meanness from her own son, mothers would begin to see themselves as others see them.

Rochester Post and Record: The Washington Star says "office seekers a man." More often, we fear, it enlarges his booze displacement.

Preston Times: Eugene Debs is still busy writing incendiary articles in "Appeal to Treason." Between those anarchistically inclined and that other class of anarchists equally dangerous, the Rockefellers, Baers, Aldriches and their ilk, Uncle Sam will have his hands full for the next few years. It is time for wise counsel and brave, considerate action. The next generation will have problems to solve of which our forefathers never dreamt.

The Baseball Madness.

Collier's Weekly: The season is in full swing. That is to say, groups of men are playing games of ball, eagerly watched by thousands, seated on backless boards in a burning sun, and the accounts of these proceedings, telegraphed from Maine to California and from Lake Superior to the Gulf, are scanned by men and boys in every little town upon the map. The hordes who haunt the bleachers one day after another could not be induced to go so persistently to hear the greatest orators now living, or who ever lived, even if a brand new speech were offered every day. The tribute is paid to eighteen physically perfect human animals, selected out of eighty millions, functioning with accuracy and strength in heaven's open air and sun. These youths, mostly Irish in descent and a few years over 20, instead of being farmers' lads, butchers, or manufacturers of brick, are heroes by virtue of their efficiency in the eternal virtues of controversy and play. Nothing more entirely human than a baseball crowd was ever seen. Every close decision against the home team is a robbery, and the umpire who makes it is a thief. It is quietly understood, therefore, that as a rule the home team is to receive somewhat the better of the decisions, to lessen the tendency to gloom and riot, and the gifted historians of the press bend before the accumulated and centered passions of the mass even as the umpires do. That the primitive man still exists nobody can doubt who spends an afternoon watching 10,000 people yell violently for two hours in the effort to help nine employes of one city accomplish more with a baseball than nine employes of another.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man has a mean disposition to give up coffee because he can't get it fit to drink.

When a woman isn't afraid to mention stays before a man it's because he's too old.

Hardly any girl is ever so lucky as to be rich and have curly hair at the same time.

Burglary is a more risky business than politics because sometimes the burglar lands in jail.

Nothing more is needed to prove the natural deceit of a woman than the way she can pretend she is having a good time at a reception.

Monopoly's Grip.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A monopoly has the power to advance its charges as well as reduce them. It may reduce them to head off opposition, and then put them up again when the danger to itself blows over. The only effective way to deal with a monopoly is to abolish it.

BREEZY LINES.

"Oh, yes, you do," retorted Wise.

"No, sir!"

"Oh, yes, you owe an apology to every man who has to listen to you blow."

New York Sun: George III was wondering how the apple got into the dumpling.

"That's easy," replied the court, "but how do you suppose the twenty got tacked onto the III?"

Whereat the unfortunate monarch was only more mystified.

Lippincott's Magazine: Mamma (returning from church)—Why, Willie, take your wheel into the back yard. You must not play in the front yard on Sunday.

Willie (protestingly)—But, mamma, isn't it Sunday in the back yard, too?

Chicago Tribune: Girl with the Lillian Russell complexion—What would you do if an awfully rich man, old enough to be your grandfather, should ask you to marry him?

Girl with the Fay Templeton smile—I presume I should do just what you are going to do, dear. But I'm awfully sorry for Jack. When is it to come off?

Somerville Journal: Mrs. Whyte—Is your husband even tempered?

Mrs. Browne—Well, yes, I suppose so. Sometimes he's even bad tempered.

Philadelphia Ledger: The aeronaut had announced his intention of crossing the Atlantic by a balloon.

"What are your prospects?" asked a friend.

"Fine," responded the enthusiast. "All I have to do is to provide a balloon. The ocean is already there, you know."

Somerville Journal: Of course, even the girl who says enthusiastically "Isn't that dear!" may have a little common sense in other ways.

Philadelphia Ledger: "I'd like to pay you something extra," said the customer, "but see that sign."

He pointed to the printed notice, "No tips must be accepted in this barber shop."

"Whist," said the barber, "that's a tip from the boss, and it's agin the rule to accept it."

New York Sun: Knicker—Primitive men plowed the earth with a sharpened stick.

Bocker—You don't mean to say golf dated back that far?

Philadelphia Ledger: "Put more ginger in this story," said the city editor, handing back the copy.

So the reporter described the cayenne-throwing episode as a pepper and 'sault case, thus winning instant promotion.

In the Wedding Month.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Bishop Olmsted of Colorado was talking at a dinner party in Denver about June weddings.

"June is a lovely month," he said, "and that it should be the month of all months for weddings is a fact easily understood.

"I was amused by the remark a jeweler made the other day.

"The jeweler said that at this season it is a very common thing to see a well dressed, handsome, intelligent looking young man come into his shop and say, in a painfully nervous way:

"'Um, ah, er—ah, er—ha, um——'

"In this contingency the jeweler simply calls to his clerk:

"'Get out that tray of engagement rings, Jackson.'"

Armour and the Early Clerk.

Saturday Evening Post: Charles Tolles, a Detroit man who now has a good position with Armour & Co., went to work in the great Chicago concern in a small place at a small salary.

One morning the late Philip D. Armour got to the works shortly after 6 o'clock. He found Tolles there, plugging away, and he was the only man there, too.

"Do you always get here as early as this?" inquired the gratified Armour.

"Always when you are in town, Mr. Armour," said Tolles, who had heard of the inspection habits of his chief.

Armour laughed, and Tolles got a promotion.

Too Exclusive.

Buffalo Commercial: There is such a thing as being too exclusive. On Saturday the Hotel Cambridge, in New York City, closed its doors. For twenty years its policy has been exclusiveness and avoidance of publicity. Its guests were all of social standing and none could gain admission except through this recommendation. The dining-room was for the use of the guests only, and admission to it from the outside was by invitation only.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

Confronts the Emperor on the Question of Amnesty.

Will be Compelled to Yield or Accept Gage of Battle.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—A crisis over the question of granting amnesty already confronts the emperor, who will be compelled to yield or have to accept the gage of battle. Almost every family in Russia contains a member or relative who has suffered, or is now suffering, for his political opinions, and their demand for the release of all political offenders has fired the imagination of the country. The Radicals in the lower house of parliament insist that a demand for amnesty should be presented to the emperor as an ultimatum. This the moderate leaders and Constitutional Democrats have thus far succeeded in preventing, but if the tide continues to rise they must bow to the will of the Radicals or their leadership will be swept away. It is extremely significant that a strong faction in the upper house of parliament is advocating the necessity for meeting the popular demands. The members yesterday and today in conference under the presidency of Prince Eugene Troubetskoy, discussed this policy. By a large majority and against the protest of the reactionists, under Prince Kassatkine Rostkovoski, it was decided to also make a reply to the speech from the throne at the opening of parliament. Count Witte immediately aligned himself with the Liberals.

In a speech which made a deep impression he advocated the justice and necessity of amnesty for political prisoners. He feared, however, a compromise, declaring it would be folly to open the doors to all. Amnesty should be restricted to those who are not guilty of political murder or robbery.

"If the prisons are opened," he observed sententiously, "my advice to people with property is to gather up what they can and get out of the country as soon as possible."

Count Witte's attitude indicates that he intends to make a bold bid for the liberal leadership in the upper house.

M. Shipoff of Moscow, who is natural leader of the Progressive element in the upper house, wanted the reply to the speech from the throne to go further and include a demand for the revision of the fundamental law, but the majority thought that action in this direction should be initiated by the lower house of parliament.

The utterances of Interior Minister Stolypan and M. Von Schwanebach, controller of the empire, the only two ministers present, were quite liberal in tone, recognizing the necessity for the government meeting the new conditions. The former remarks, including the words "The imperative necessity for the reform of local administrations" were especially gratifying.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

The Estate of Otto Schmidt Will Go to the State.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—State's Attorney J. R. Wineman, special administrator of the estate of Otto Schmidt, is in receipt of a draft from the Travelers' Insurance company of Hartford for $1,750.32, which covers an insurance policy for $1,500, interest and court costs. Mr. Wineman will proceed to probate the estate, and after the costs have been refunded to the county, the remainder will be forwarded to the state auditor, under a law which provides that estates for which there are no legal claimants shall escheat to the state. It was found when Mr. Wineman brought suit against the company that Schmidt had made a statement that he had no living relatives. He was killed in the Great Northern powerhouse at Larimore, and it was found that he carried insurance for $1,500, taken after he had made the statement to the railroad company, and payable in case of his death to his father. German officials were appealed to and they proved that the elder Schmidt had been dead several years. This is the first instance in this state that any estate has gone to the state. At the end of seven years the amount turned back to the state becomes a part of the permanent school fund.

A warrant has been issued in Walsh county for the arrest of John S. Gund, agent for the Northwestern Elevator company at Ardoch, on a charge of embezzlement of grain and cash to a value of about $1,500.

Judge Fisk of the district court has set aside the judgment and granted a new trial in the case of Mary C. Edmonds against the city of Grand Forks. Action was brought to recover damages in the sum of $5,000 for alleged injuries received by falling on a defective sidewalk. A jury awarded Mrs. Edmonds a judgment for $700.

Judge Fisk denied the motion for a new trial in the malicious prosecution case of Campbell vs. Walhood, which comes from Nelson county. Campbell sued for damages for malicious prosecution for the alleged theft of a bicycle, for which he was acquitted, a district court jury giving a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff asked for a new trial.

Regardless of the opinion by Attorney General Frich that that part of the primary law which requires the payment of fees based on salaries received by all candidates for nominations, County Auditor Anderson has announced that he will follow the law, regardless of the opinion, and will collect fees from all primary election candidates.

Candidates for treasurer will pay $48, and the lowest fee will be $1 each for constables and justices of the peace. Candidates for state senate will pay $30 each and candidates for the legislature will pay $10 each.

Dickinson—Fire Saturday caused nearly a $6,000 loss on the J. C. F. Parker store and stock and the City Bakery store and stock. Damage to the Parker store will be nearly $1,000, fully covered in the Underwriters' of New York, and his stock of groceries was damaged about $3,000, covered in the Queen, Hanover and Northern. The building will be repaired at once.

The fire department did well to keep the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings and from doing more damage to the property where the fire started, as it had a good start before discovered.

J. F. Merry, charged with fraud in locating homesteaders, had his hearing put over until the 28th.

Lidgerwood—At the preliminary oratorical contest between high school pupils, Floyd House won first place, with Tina Kacourek second and Rex Movius third. The state contest will be held at Grand Forks on the 18th.

Minot—W. B. Walker, who taught school near Kenmare, has been arrested at Balfour on complaint of a postoffice inspector on a charge of sending objectionable matter through the mails.

Sturgis—William McCracken was at the bottom of a shaft in a mine when the cage came down, striking him on the head and breaking his neck.

Devils Lake—Harry T. Potts, a St. Paul business man, died on Coast Train No. 4 near Knox. He was ill but a few minutes. Dr. W. D. Jones of this city, who was on the train, was summoned, but nothing could be done for the sufferer. The remains were removed from the train at Devils Lake and embalmed and sent to St. Paul.

Oakes—John Sharp, wanted at La Crosse, Wis., on a charge of forgery, has been arrested here. He returned without a requisition. He had been working near here as a farm hand.

Forbes—A creamery has been established here, with E. Mayhew as manager. This town is the terminus of the Great Northern extension from Ellendale.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—Mrs. Margaret Wilder, aged 59, was killed in a windstorm here Friday night.

She went to her farm, about eighteen miles away, and remained in a small hut there all night. About 9 o'clock the wind blew the house down and the woman was caught by falling timbers. It is believed she was instantly killed.

The body was found about noon on Saturday by a daughter, Mrs. E. F. Bodle, who went there to learn the cause of her mother's detention.

Mrs. Wilder was well known in this section. She had a son at St. Paul and another at Enderlin, N. D. No other fatalities are reported.

Salem—E. P. Waller, who conducts a country store at Center, ten miles northeast of Salem, was held up at 11 o'clock at night and robbed of $29 that was in the till; also a gold watch.

Two masked men in cowboy attire and with three revolvers did the job. They missed a $5 bill that was in a rear apartment of the till. The robbers knew Mr. Wilder had more money, but could not make him reveal its hiding place, even though they threatened to shoot him if he did not tell them. He had about $200 in bills in his hip pocket, which the robbers missed when they searched him. No clues have been found to the robbers.

Groton—Twenty-five years ago this spring, this town was laid out and a movement is now on foot to celebrate the silver anniversary in a public demonstration. It is proposed to utilize the regular monthly "bargain day" given by the merchants so that the old settlers for miles around can participate. A program of sports, speeches, music and other attractions is planned.

The new city council organized by electing Alderman T. Strong, president, and Alderman J. C. Wolfe, vice-president. The mayor's appointments were confirmed.

BAD FIRE AT GULFPORT.

Gulfport, Miss., May 14.—The plants of the New Orleans Naval Stores company and S. Shorter & Co. were totally destroyed by fire yesterday, six acres occupied by the Rosin yards, warehouses, commissary and storage rooms being swept by flames. The fire is supposed to have originated in loose hay in the commissary. The loss was about $400,000, with insurance of about $300,000.

TWO GIRLS DROWNED.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 14.—Rosie Davis and Kate Walter, both about 18 years old, were drowned yesterday at Clark's Landing on the Mullica river by the upsetting of a sailboat. Frank Sharp and Henry Gries, who were with the girls, state that the rudder became unfastened as a sudden squall overturned the boat. They say the girls were caught under the boat. The men swam ashore.

OLIVER COMPANY MACHINE SHOPS

At Bovey Have Started Operations — More Stripping Tracks.

Bovey, Minn., May 14.—Master Mechanic Downing opened up Friday what will be the busiest place in all the Oliver Iron Mining company's works, the company's shops. Everything had all been in readiness four days previous, with the exception of the belts, which did not arrive until Thursday. The beltings had no more than arrived than workmen were busy putting them in place, and now a few wheels are turning. The shops are divided into the machine shop, a department for blacksmithing and for carpentry work.

Joseph Carson, one of the Oliver company's foremen, has a large crew of men at work putting in a stripping track between Shaft No. 2 and the main stripping track, about one-half mile from the dumping ground, and about one mile in length. The track will go under the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway nearly back of the machine shops, and makes a 16-foot cut through the hills back of Plummer's camp.

If the weather is good, in two weeks work at camp 2 will be completed which will finish the railroad construction work of C. J. Johnson. Camp 6 is expected to be through by Tuesday, and work at camp 7 has been completed. One hundred and twenty men are still employed pushing the work. The big bridge was getting along nicely until the piling reached the creek, when it was found necessary to put in 50-foot piling. This is delaying the work some, but the bridge will be completed in about three weeks.

The new Woodman lodge is certainly coming along very rapidly. Since the camp was installed last week twenty-four new members have been secured by Organizer E. E. Hulin. The next meeting will be on May 22.

The Modern Brotherhood of America, Coleraine Lodge No. 324, met last Tuesday evening. Six new members were initiated and the following officers were elected: Mrs. Showalter, president; Mrs. St. Peter, vice president; Charles Heath, secretary; Charles Smith, conductor; Mr. St. Peter, watchman; Fred Reed, sentry.

The Duluth Brewing company's building will be completed by Contractor Decker in about three days. The new hotel is a fine building, and has twenty excellent and large rooms. It will be opened about June 1 by Mr. Breen of Hibbing.

The Oliver company is doing much street work in Coleraine. Most of the streets have been grubbed and ditched, and a large crew of men are now at work on Cole avenue, which is a continuation of the new country road. It is rumored that the site east from the schoolhouse will be used by the Oliver people for a location for a $40,000 office building.

Fortunate Missourians.

"When I was a druggist, at Livonia, Mo.," writes T. J. Dwyer, now of Graysville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong today. I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest Cough and Cold cure and Throat and Lung healer. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

NATIONS WILL PARTICIPATE.

Twenty-Five Powers Accept Invitation to Jamestown Exposition.

Norfolk, Va., May 14.—Among the powers which have accepted the invitation of the United States to take part in the ceremonies at the Jamestown exposition, next year, are Russia, France, England, Cuba, Costa Rica, Santa Domingo, Switzerland, Venezuela, Mexico, Guatemala, Haiti, Belgium, Japan, China, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Brazil, Turkey, Sweden, Norway, Ecuador, Peru and the Argentine Republic.

Great Britain will be represented both by its army and navy, and the lord commissioners of his majesty's admiralty convey the assurance that they will be happy to send an exhibit of naval interest.

Switzerland's reply was unique. "We have the honor to inform you," said the president of Switzerland, "that as Switzerland possesses no navy or standing army, she will be unable to take part in this festival, except by means of a delegation. We will, therefore, instruct our envoy in Washington to represent us at the chief festival of May 13, 1907, and eventually on ulterior occasions."

Switzerland afterwards decided to erect a building on the grounds for the accommodation of her visiting citizens.

SERIES GOES TO HIBBING

White Sox Drop Last Two Games to the Miners.

Duluth and St. Paul Pitchers Responsible for the Defeats.

Thanks to the services of Pitcher Ferguson of the Duluth team, and Pitcher Disch of the St. Paul American association team, Hibbing was able to capture the last two games of the series with Duluth, winning the Saturday game by the score of 4 to 2 and the Sunday game by the score of 3 to 2.

On Saturday, Ferguson was simply invincible. Freeman, the star Hibbing twirler, was unable to perform, and Ferguson was loaned to Manager Brady. He had his team mates guessing at all stages of the game, and allowed but six scratch hits. He issued no free transportation to first, and struck out seven men.

Nornstrom was hammered freely in the first two innings; he was replaced by Pool, who pitched gilt-edged ball, allowing but six hits in the remainder of the game. Had Pool been in the box in the first two innings, it would have been the prettiest kind of a pitchers' battle between him and Ferguson. Pool did not allow an earned run in the last seven innings, and he brought in Duluth's only two scores with a home run hit over the fence in the eighth. On the whole, the little southpaw covered himself with glory. The score by innings:

Hibbing .....0 2 1 0 0 0 0 1 x—4	12	5
Duluth .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2	6	3

* * *

Yesterday's game was a pitchers' battle between Kirck for the Duluth team, and Disch, a St. Paul American association club pitcher, who was brought to Hibbing for the occasion. Krick pitched superb ball, allowing but six hits, and he was given perfect support in the field, not an error being chalked up against the Duluth team.

It was a case of too much Disch, however, and the St. Paul man allowed the Sox but four scattered hits. Disch also lined out a three base hit which gave the Hibbing team the deciding score.

One of Duluth's runs came in the second when McCormick drove the ball over the fence. The right fielder scored again in the fifth, when he singled, went to second on a sacrifice, and came home on another safe hit.

Ludwig put up a sensational game in center field, getting six put outs, three of which were made after long runs.

Adams, the new catcher, caught three runners at second.

CASS LAKE DEFEATED.

Deer River Baseball Team Won by Score of 10 to 0.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass Lake baseball team played their second game of ball yesterday against the swift Deer River team and lost by the score of 10 to 0. The Cass Lakers were handicapped by the absence of three of their best men. Ferrel did the twirling for Cass Lake and pitched a great game, allowing only three hits and striking out eleven men. His support, however, was weak, especially during the first two innings when the Deer River team scored five runs, mostly due to errors. Catcher Fleming of Cass Lake was hit by the ball in the early part of the game and retired. He was replaced by Beaudeau, an Indian, who played a good game. The Cass Lakers made several long hits, but they all appeared to fall directly into the hands of the fielders.

Chase for Deer River, a new man to the fans, pitched a good game, allowing only three hits and striking out seven men. He was well supported by every man on the team. The game on the whole was an interesting exhibition of ball and had the full Cas Lake team been present there is little doubt but that the score would have been a close one. Cass Lake has a return game scheduled with Deer River for Sunday next and then the full Cass Lake aggregation will be on hand and a close contest may be looked for.

DISPUTE OVER WHERE TO PLAY

Reason Why Duluth and Nelson-Dewey Did Not Meet.

Those interested in Duluth high school athletics are incensed over an article which appeared yesterday in the Superior department of the morning paper regarding the reasons why Duluth did not meet Nelson-Dewey of Superior as scheduled last Saturday. The article stated that Duluth was evidently afraid to meet another aggregation of swift jumpers after their defeat by Blaine last Wednesday and so refused to play, and also insinuated that the game would be declared forfeited to Nelson-Dewey, making two defeats for the locals and none for the Superior teams.

Manager Stalker's story, however, is quite different. The trouble began when the game with Blaine a week ago had to be postponed on account of rain until Wednesday. The first arrangement was that the Wednesday game should be played in Duluth, so Manager Stalker, realizing that the financial end would not be benefitted by having two games in one week on this side of the bay, arranged with Nelson-Dewey to play in Superior.

As Blaine afterward expressed a wish to play the first game on its home grounds Duluth agreed, and Stalker, wanting to follow the original schedule as closely as possible, attempted to arrange to have the Nelson-Dewey game played on this side.

After several ineffectual attempts to reach the manager by phone, he saw Manager Hard of Blaine at the game Wednesday and asked him to notify Nelson-Dewey of the change. Hard promised to do so, but the matter evidently slipped his mind, or other reasons prevented him from attending to it.

Thinking the matter definitely settled, Stalker made all arrangements for the game, had tickets printed and engaged the Athletic Park for the contest. Saturday morning she was surprised at receiving a phone from Nelson-Dewey asking him if the local team was coming to Superior. He replied in the negative and told of the arrangements he had made for the reception of the Superior team in Duluth. The Bugville manager at once began to talk of forfeited game and flatly refused to meet the local agregation on this side of the bay.

The Superior teams play on an open field, which costs them nothing, they get no tickets printed, and they have practically no expenses incidental to the games. The Nelson-Dewey management had called the game for 2:30, which left them plenty of time to get their men together and reach Athletic Park by 3:30, when the game was to have been played, and in fact the only plausible reason for their refusal was a reluctance to run up against a team of Duluth's caliber.

Mork Team Wins.

The Mork team defeated the Oak Halls yesterday afternoon in a game played on the grounds at Thirty-second avenue west, by the score of 18 to 5. Anderson, who pitched for the losers, was wild and ineffective, and the Mork men found him easy picking. Arnie Olson of the Mork team had two two-baggers to his credit, and Catcher Piering a home run.

Too Windy for Marksmen.

The high wind and unfavorable weather conditions discouraged the trap shooters yesterday and only a few of the members of the Central Gun club were present on the grounds. None of the trophy events were pulled off, and those present contented themselves with some practice shoots.

Evils Resulting From Constipation

How This Trouble May Be Readily Corrected

You are drowsy, heavy, loggy, lack energy—every exertion is an effort—your head is not clear and it is hard to think, you have a full and oppressed feeling in your stomach and bowels—all your limbs and body ache—in fact, life seems hardly worth living under such conditions. Ask yourself, "Do your bowels move regularly?" If you feel as above your answer will be "NO"—that is the cause of your troubles. If not properly corrected this condition will lead to much more serious disorders of the blood and body due to the poisons in the waste matter which should be promptly carried off. And it seems so foolish to suffer when Nature has provided her own wholesome and certain remedy in the pure Mineral Laxative Water—HUNYADI JANOS—from the famous Springs in Hungary. ½ a tumblerful of this wonderful water drunk on arising in the morning (slightly warmed for best results) will give you within an hour a delightfully pleasant and copious movement. This will clear your head, sharpen your appetite and make a new man of you. Try it and see. At all Druggists.

PROMINENT DOGS ELOPE

Canine Lovers Connected With Hotels Disappear From Their Haunts.

Owners Much Surprised When Truth of Situation Comes Home.

On the heels of a tale involving suicide by a prominent West end dog comes one to the effect that two canines which have been connected with local hotels in the capacity of watchers, have eloped.

"Joker," a lady dog employed at the St. James hotel, disappeared simultaneously last week with "Fritz," a gentleman dog, affiliated with the Esmond hotel in the West end at the time of his disappearance.

Their owners did not know that they were even engaged and were at a loss to explain their disappearance. They happened to mention to each other that they had lost dogs and when they recalled the animals were of opposite sexes, the elopement theory presented itself at once.

The dogs left no clews to their whereabouts and evidently intend to spend their honeymoon for from the sound of master's voice and from the eyes of the rest of the world.

The Esmond hotel man is not altogether pleased with the situation. If the lovers return, he will insist upon Mrs. Fritz resuming her old position, not feeling disposed to support two dogs. He is anxious to have Fritz return, however, as he filled a responsible position at the Esmond and his loss is keenly felt.

"Joker" was one of the best known dogs along Superior street. Although she had a nasty temper when aroused, as some jealous rivals know to their sorrow, she was generally liked. The news of her elopement with the West end gentleman comes as quite a surprise to her host of acquaintances.

LEG CRUSHED BY SWITCH ENGINE

Seven-Year-Old Boy is Victim of Sad Accident.

In an accident which occurred Saturday afternoon in the Northern Pacific yards, Edward Copeland, the 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Copeland, suffered the loss of his right leg, and the big toe on his left foot.

The boy was sitting on the tracks just south of the Lake avenue viaduct watching some workmen repairing a wagon. A switch engine was at work near him, but the boy paid no attention to it, thinking it was on another track. It was close to him, before he saw his danger, and he sprang to his feet to get out of the way, but slipped, and his right leg was caught under the engine.

The prompt action of Michael Gleason, proprietor of the saloon at 204 Lake avenue south, probably saved the boy's life. Mr. Gleason arrived on the scene a moment or two after the accident occurred, and procuring a rope, tied it tightly about the boy's leg above the place where the wheel had pased over it, to stolp the flow of blood.

The boy was then taken to St. Luke's hospital, and the leg amputated.

The boy's father is one of the proprietors of the Club restaurant, and he lives at 214 Lowell block. The boy has always been of an adventurous nature, and four years ago he fell from the fourth story of the Lowell building to a pile of bricks, and escaped without injury.

ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Indianapolis Business Man Caught While Getting His Mail Here.

While inquiring for his mail at the posioffice, Charles M. Case, a well-dressed man about 40 years of age, was arrested yesterday morning by Detective Frank Schulte, and is being held for advices from Indianapolis, where he is wanted on the charge of embezzlement.

Case admitted having been in business in Indianapolis, and expressed a willingness to go back and face the charges against him, without extradition. He denies that he is guilty of any crime.

According to the story told to the police, he was in the real estate business with Edward H. Rentsch, having put $2,000 in cash into the business. He says that the latter was dishonest in his dealings, and that in an effort to save part of his $2,000 he had drawn the firm's balance of $750 at the bank and had come to Duluth, intending to go into business here.

CARMACK DEFEATED.

Former Governor Taylor Will Become Senator From Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., May 14.—Former Governor Robert L. Taylor has been nominated in the Democratic primaries for United States senator over Edward W. Carmack, present incumbent, by a majority of from 15,000 to 20,000 votes. The legislature, which meets in January next, will elect Taylor to the senate, his term beginning March 4. Carmack retired after having served one term in the senate, before which he was a member of the house from the Tenth Tennessee district. His home is in Memphis.

THOMAS YORK

Becomes General Superintendent of Swan River Logging Company.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—After many years of service with the Swan River Logging company, Thomas York has been promoted from the position of an under superintendent to the general superintendency.

Mr. York began his duties Saturday. He succeeded J. F. Kilburn, who has been general superintendent many years. He resigned because personal business demands more of his attention.

The position is one of great responsibility, carrying with it the direction of a large number of logging camps in St. Louis, Itasca, Beltrami, Cas sand other counties of Northern Minnesota. The company, which has its headquarters here, is one of the largest logging firms in the state.

A BIT OF PERSONAL HISTORY

The marvelous result that our corset department shows this year—a result unequaled at any time in our corset history—we must attribute to the kind of models promoted this season. The lion's share of our thought has been expended on two makes of corsets——one boned with the best quality of whalebone, the other with a Rust-Proof metal—the first, LA VERA, classed as our specially fine whaleboned corset; the second, RUST-PROOF, the best in design and quality possible to put into popular and medium-priced corsets. Both makes are most reliable for shape—unequalled for wear—and both are equipped with the famous "Security" Rubber Button Hose Supporters.

We invite your most critical examination.

RETURN FROM THE WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crosby Visited California Points.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crosby have returned from a Western trip, during which Mr. Crosby visited the Copper Queen mine of Idaho, the mines in the Bisbee and Butte districts and those at Chiricahua.

At the time of the earthquake in California, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby were at Pasadena. They saw many Duluth people at the coast, and on the way home met Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stone at the Grand canyon.

Mr. Crosby says that mining and development work at Bisbee is being carried forward with vigor.

MORE EXAMINATIONS.

Federal Civil Service Board Offers Positions June 6.

The United States civil service commission has announced a few more examinations for June 6 besides those already published. The new ones are:

For the position of assistant agriculturist at $1,000 per year in the bureau of plant industry.

For draftsman in the land office service with one vacancy each in Arizona, Nevada and Wyoming and four vacancies in Idaho, and for the filling of other vacancies in the land office service. This place pays $4 a day.

THE GOOD THINGS OF EARTH

Are Not All Far-Fetched.

That our American forests abound in plants, the roots of which possess the most valuable medicinal and curative virtues, is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of our age. Even the untutored Indians had, by intuition and experiment, discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race on this continent. This information, crude though it was, imparted freely to the friendlier of the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots and herbs.

It is no longer thought necessary that a medicinal agent, in order to be good and useful, must have been brought across the ocean or that "being carried seven times across the Sahara Desert on the backs of fourteen camels" makes it the more valuable.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most of our obstinate and most fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and, in confirmation of this firm conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of leucorrhea, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines had failed.

Both these world-famed medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots, found in our American forests. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each of their wrappers. They are both made of such native, medicinal roots as have received the strongest endorsement and praise for their curative virtues from the most prominent writers on Materia Medica in this country. What is said of their power to cure the several diseases for which they are advised may be easily learned by sending your name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little booklet which he has compiled, containing copious extracts from numerous standard medical books, which are consulted as authorities by physicians of the several schools of practice for their guidance in prescribing. It is FREE TO ALL. A postal card request will bring it.

You don't have to rely solely upon the manufacturer's say-so as to the power of Dr. Pierce's medicines to cure, as with other medicines sold through druggists. You have the disinterested testimony of a host of the leading medical writers and teachers. Send for this copious testimony. It can be relied upon to be truthful because it is entirely disinterested.

From the little booklet above mentioned, you will learn what a marvelous curative action Stone root, one of the prominent ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, exercises over the heart and its diseases, especially those valvular affections which are attended with difficult breathing, smothered sensations, palpitation or irregular heart action. Dr. Paine, author of Paine's Epitomy of Medicine, considered Stone root specific in these cases, and cites bad cases cured by it in his extensive practice. Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of Dr. Pierce's "Discovery," is also a valuable heart tonic, as is also Black Cherrybark, another ingredient. You will also learn that the eminent Drs. Hale, Ellingwood, Johnson, Hare, Coe and others recommend Golden Seal root, and several of them Stone root, Queen's root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark for bronchial, throat and lung affections attended with hoarseness, persistent cough, night-sweats and kindred symptoms indicating approaching consumption. All these agents are faithfully and fully represented in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and it can be confidentially relied upon to produce their combined curative effects, not only in the above mentioned affections, but also in all catarrhal diseases, no matter whether affecting the nasal passages or other regions of the body.

In nasal catarrh, while relying on the "Discovery" as the best constitutional remedy known to medical science, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy should be used to cleanse the nasal passages. Together they constitute the most thorough and effective course of treatment which can be employed for the cure of that troublesome disease.

No other medicines sold through druggists for like purposes, have any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's, and, in consequence, none are so largely prescribed by physicians who know what they are made of and that their composition is of the best ingredients regardless of cost. Send for the little free book now.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" must not be expected to produce miracles. While it is especially suited for the cure of all chronic, lingering coughs that are curable, it is not so effective in acute colds and coughs unless slippery elm mucilage, flaxseed tea, solution of gum arabic, or other mucilaginous demulcent be drank freely in connection with its use. Nor must the "Discovery" be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages. In its early stages it will stay its progress and often effect a cure if its use be persisted in for a reasonable length of time. Send for the little book noted above and learn what those most eminent in the medical profession say of the ingredients out of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are made and thereby learn why they cure obstinate diseases.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in glass vials, tightly corked, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are cathartic. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels.

A good medical book, written in plain English, and free from technical terms, is a valuable work for frequent consultation. Such a work is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in plain English, or Medicine Simplified. It's a book of 1008 pages, profusely illustrated with wood cuts and colored plates. It is given away now, although formerly sold in cloth binding for $1.50. Send 21 cents, in one-cent stamps, to pay for cost of mailing only for paper-covered copy, addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.; or 31 cents for an elegantly cloth-bound copy. It gives over 200 prescriptions for the treatment of acute and chronic ailments.

SMOOT WILL KEEP SEAT

In the United States Senate, From the Present Outlook.

Utility of the "Fireless Cooker" in Field Operation Shown.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee on privileges and elections of the senate expects to vote upon the question of the right of Senator Reed M. Smoot of Utah to continue to occupy his seat on Friday next. This case has been pending for three years and scores of witnesses have been brought from Utah and Idaho to tell what they know, or imagine, about the "Mormon" church.

Up to the present time the total expense of the inquiry has been between $22,000 and $23,000. That sum, however, does not include the printing bills nor the attorneys' fees paid by the protestants or Senator Smoot himself. As it is understood ex-Senator Carlisle received a fee of $10,000 and ex-Congressman Taylor a like amount, it is safe to assert that the total cost of the inquiry to all parties concerned will approximate between $50,000 and $75,000.

As to the outcome only one thing is certain and that is that the report of the committee will not recommend the "exclusion" of Mr. Smoot. Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee, and Senator Dubois, the most active opponent of the Mormons, favor the adoption of an "exclusion" report. That is they hold that it is within the power of the senate to declare a seat vacant by a majority vote. To expel would require two-thirds. Not a sufficient number of senators are willing to support the Burrows-Dubois plan for the very good reason that the establishment of such a precedent might lead to the arbitrary use of power by a majority when the senate is nearly equally divided, politically.

It is generally believed that it will be impossible to secure the votes of sixty senators to expel Mr. Smoot. Indeed there is a growing belief that not even a majority can be depended upon to so vote. Mr. Smoot has made many friends since he first took his seat three years ago. He is a gentleman of affability and integrity, who has done more for Utah than any one of his predecessors since the state was admitted. Even his worst enemies do not claim that he is not a man of high moral character, but he is a "Morman" and that is enough to damn him in some quarters. There are in congress today Jews, Quakers, Catholics, several denominations of Protestants and two members of the Mormon church. But the religious affiliations of none of them are considered reasons for disqualification, except in the case of Senator Smoot, and the indications are that he will be permitted to serve out his term.

For some months past Gen. Sharpe, commissary general of the army, has been engaged upon experiments with "fireless cookers." That is to say, the commissary general is trying to find some means of supplying men in the army with hot meals when away on a long march without the necessity of making a fire. He seems to have succeeded in this laudable purpose by the adoption of a device in which heat started over an ordinary wood fire can be retained for sufficient time to ensure the thorough cooking of food without further contact with fire. How well he has succeeded is shown by the following extracts from a letter written by Capt. M. S. Murray of the commissary department to the commissary general:

"Sir: In compliance with your letter, I have the honor to inform you that a test was made with the fireless cooker yesterday, to show the utility of the cooker in field operation.

"Fire was started at 5 a. m. in an open trench, and after preliminary preparation of food all articles were placed in the utensils of the fireless cooker. At about 6:15 everything was over the fire, and at 7:15 the cooker was packed. The following articles, sufficient for eighty-five men, were prepared: Roast beef, macaroni and cheese, creamed potatoes, pork and beans, suet pudding and coffee. The breakfast for the detachment of bakers was prepared over the same fire and during the same time that the articles for the fireless cooker were prepared. The breakfast consisted of fried potatoes, beef steaks, fried bacon and coffee. By the time breakfast was over, the cooker was ready to be placed on wagon and ready to move with a command. No extra utensils had been gathered, but everything intact. Seven sticks of cordwood, all small pieces, were used in the preparation of both the breakfast and articles for the cooker. At 9:00 p. m. the cooker was opened and the following temperatures were taken: Roast beef, 166 degrees; macaroni and cheese, 187; creamed potatoes, 174; pork and beans, 186; suet pudding, 165, and coffee, 172. Everything was perfectly done. It will be observed that the temperatures are higher in this test than others; this is owing to the fact of all utensils being full of material.

"I can unhesitatingly state that the fireless cooker has proven to be a success, and I feel that were I equipped with a few pans for frying purposes I would be perfectly contented in starting out in field service that I would be able to feed an organization in first-class shape under service conditions, and that the men of the organization would be very contented and satisfied.

"The use of the fireless cooker would eliminate the necessity of securing a large quantity of wood for cooking purposes. In fact, there would be no wood necessary in the evening for preparing the dinner, as the dinner and breakfast could be prepared in the morning with about one-fourth of the wood now required by an organization for a day. Wood could be carried from one camp to another in an escort wagon for the next day's cooking. This will do away with the necessity of purchasing wood for cooking purposes at the various camps on a long march. The work of preparing the dinner on the arrival in camp under present system, which is, to say the least, a very trying ordeal for the cooks, especially during inclement weather, will be eliminated. After a long day's march a hot meal is furnished at once from the cooker to a tired and hungry organization by simply opening box and serving. Should it occur that the cooker is not required for use during the day for any meal, and that prospects for a dry camp at night are evident, the boilers of the cooker could be utilized for holding water and it will be kept much cooler in the cooker than in any other way.

"The fireless cooker would be an excellent means to supply hot food to troops in a line of entrenchment, where the lighting of fire is prohibited. The fireless cookers could be charged at the cooking tent, we will say about two miles to the rear of the firing line, during the night or early morning, transported in wagon up to line of intrenchments and passed along to various organizations and they could at any time decided upon during the day be opened up and a good hot meal ready."

GETS $27,000 A YEAR BUT DEMANDS $12 PENSION.

Cleveland, May 14.—If you had an annual income of $27,000, but were unable to do manual labor, would you ask Uncle Same to give you a pension of $1 a month because of your incapacity to toil with your hands?

If you wouldn't you are not so anxious for money as is Dr. E. E. Beeman, whose claim to fame is that he used to make chewing gum, and who now demands that the United States government raise his pension from $8 to $12 monthly, because "of total incapacity for manual labor," despite the fact that he receives $27,000 yearly in dividends.

OLD SORES OFTEN LEAD TO CANCER

Whenever a sore or ulcer does not heal and shows signs of becoming chronic, it should arouse suspicion, because many of these places lead to Cancer. It may appear as an ordinary sore at first, and is given treatment as such, with some simple salve, wash or plaster, with the hope that the place will heal, but the real seat of the trouble is in the blood and cannot be reached by external remedies, and soon the sore will return. After awhile the deadly poison begins to eat into the surrounding flesh and the ulcer spreads rapidly, becoming more offensive and alarming until at last the sufferer finds he is afflicted with Cancer. Cancerous ulcers often start from a boil, wart, mole or pimple, which has been bruised or roughly handled, showing that the taint is in the blood, perhaps inherited. Another cause for non-healing ulcers and sores is the remains of some constitutional disease or the effects of a long spell of sickness. S. S. S. goes down to the very root of the trouble and cures so thoroughly that there is never any sign of the trouble in after years. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. the place begins to improve, the discharge gradually grows less, the inflammation leaves, the flesh resumes its healthy color, and soon the sore is well, because every vestige of the cause has been removed from the blood. Book on sores and ulcers and medical advice without charge.

I was suffering greatly from a cancerous ulcer on my left breast, which had begun to eat, and at times would discharge very offensive matter. I knew the trouble was hereditary as an only sister, my mother and two of her sisters died of Cancer. I am fully satisfied I would have gone the sameway but for S. S. S., which cured me.

TO TAKE UP OLD BONDS

The County Will Retire $91,000 Bonds on Jan. 1, 1907.

They Represent Final Settlement of Aid to First Railroad.

St. Louis county will have a nice little bond settlement to make the first of next year, the first of any importance for some years. The settlement in question will be the payment of the $90,000 bonds that represent practically the final step in wiping out the indebtedness incurred way back in 1869 or 1870, when the county, to aid the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railway company, then building from St. Paul to Duluth, had a $150,000 bond issue, at a rate said to be 8 per cent.

In those early days the county was a long way from possessing the wealth that it now claims, and 8 per cent bonds were a pretty heavy burden, so much so that in 1877 a special law was passed by legislature authorizing St. Louis county to issue bonds to settle its indebtedness at that time, and to provide for a levy and collection of taxes to pay the same.

This law provided for a second bond issue and the redemption of the old Lake Superior & Mississippi railway bonds, on the basis of 50 cents on the dollar, that is, the holders of the original $150,000 railway bonds had to accept in lieu $75,000 worth of bonds, payable Jan. 1, 1907, at 6 per cent. The county had an outstanding indebtedness at that time to care for that brought the total bond issue of 1877 up to $91,000, which will be paid Jan. 1, 1907.

To meet this indebtedness the county has at the present time only $60,000 in the bond sinking fund, and action will be necessary by the county board in the way of an advance levy before the first of next year to take care of the bonds.

The matter has already been discussed to some extent by the commissioners, but it was decided best to defer action until the semi-annual meeting of the board in July, when a levy will probably be made for the balance of $30,000.

The bondholders would, it is believed, be entirely willing to have them extended, for 6 per cent bonds are generally regarded as a pretty good investment of these times, but the county is in a much better financial condition than it was in the '70s, and the bond interest is as good to the taxpayers as it is to anybody else, so the bonds will be retired when their time expires. It is understood that the bonds would have been retired some years ago had the bondholders been willing to have surrendered them.

Deputy County Auditor L. A. Marvin says that he can just remember when, as a boy, he saw his father, Luke Marvin, then county auditor, and E. G. Swanstrom, who was chairman of the board of county commissioners, attach their signatures to the old original railway bonds.

Mr. Swanstrom was afterward in the state senate when the special act was passed to redeem the old bonds with others, at 50 cents on the dollar.

RICHEST GIRL IN WORLD TO MARRY

Bertha Krupp, With $5,000,000 Income, Won by Physician.

Berlin, May 14.—Miss Bertha Krupp, wealthiest woman in the world, heir to the German ironmaster, whose annual income is $5,000,000, is engaged to be married.

The name of the man who has won her affections is being kept a secret. One report is that her fiance is a royal prince, while another story has it that a poor physician won her. The latter theory is given credence.

The kaiser, who takes a great interest in Miss Krupp's career, is shortly to visit the Krupp residence at Essen, and the betrothal will be celebrated in his presence, with a festival, according to the German custom. The name of the chosen husband of the heiress will be kept secret until that time.

Miss Krupp is 20 years old and is owner of the Krupp gun works at Essen, Germany. She holds practically all of the $40,000,000 capital stock of the Krupp works, besides other wealth, amounting to $35,000,000 more, which her father left her. She has an annual income from the Krupp works alone of $2,400,000.

The young woman has already given great sums to charity and is planning other philanthropic work for the benefit of her workmen and the poor. She is expected soon to make her formal debut in Berlin society, under the special protection of the kaiser, who was a close friend of her father.

Miss Krupp was said recently to have expressed ideas in regard to matrimony which her relatives regarded as "impossibly romantic."

One of the declarations made was that her husband, whoever he be, would have to come and live in the factory town of Essen, as she would never consent to leave the town where, she said, her life work lay in bettering the condition of Krupp workingmen and their families.

MAY FACE GRAND JURY.

Town Clerk and Supervisors of Hilman, Minn., in Trouble.

Little Falls, Minn., May 14.—M. M. Meyers, clerk of the township of Hilman, and I. W. Drivers and A. O. Mohler, members of the board of supervisors of the same town, may be obliged to face the grand jury at its meeting to answer to a charge of misusing the public funds entrusted to their care as officers of the township.

These three, together with C. F. Taylor, another member of the board, were arrested and brought to town on a complaint sworn to by William Geier, which charged them with misusing the road funds.

Their preliminary examination was held Thursday and Taylor pleaded guilty to the charge, and as it appeared that so far as he was concerned there was no premeditation, he was let off with a nominal fine of $1.

The other defendants refused to say anything about the charges against them, and the county attorney moved to dismiss the case. He will now bring the matter before the grand jury for its investigation, he says.

WILD RIDE OF A BABE.

Child Rides Eight Miles on Cross Bars Between Cars.

Wykoff, Minn., May 14.—Four-year-old George Kuster took one of the most amazing rides in railroad history. For eight miles, traveling at forty miles an hour and over one of the roughest bits of road bed in Minnesota the child was carried, absolutely unhurt, clinging to a cross-rod between two box cars and under the coupling, his feet resting on the brake beam. When rescued the boy was laughing.

George's extraordinary ride began here, where he escaped from his father, Prof. George Kuster, and crawled beneath a freight train. A few minutes later the train pulled out. When the train disappeared it was found the child also had vanished.

Between Wyckoff and Fountain, the next station, eight miles away, there is a steep down grade and a rough roadbed. Over these eight miles the child was whirled, resting between the cars, where he had ensconced himself in the Wykoff depot, and saved by some extraordinary chance from falling to death on the ties beneath.

At the Fountain siding the train came to a standstill, and George, in the best of humor with the world, was found by Conductor William Plummer. The child was not even scratched and his white dress scarcely soiled.

BROKE UP IN A ROW.

Chicago, May 14.—A meeting over which John Alexander Dowie presided at Zion City, yesterday afternoon, was broken up by a number of followers of the opposing faction, assisted by several outsiders, and before the crowd dispersed a free fight occurred.

Dowie was addressing the audience, numbering about 600, and made the statement that the overseers of the Voliva faction were thieves and robbers. At once a number of those in the audience were on their feet, shouting, "No, no, you are the robber; why don't you pay your debts?" The disturbance became so violent that Zion guard was sent to restore order. The guard took hold of an old man, who was loudest in his demands on Dowie, and this was the signal for the fight.

A dozen men seized the guard, and were about to drag him down the aisle, when Gladstone Dowie and Deacon Arrington mounted the platform and called upon the audience not to create a disturbance and to take their seats.

After quiet had been restored, Dowie again attempted to proceed with the meeting, but he was jeered and called "traitor" and "robber" until he dismissed the audience.

SENATOR CARMACK LOSES NOMINATION.

Nashville, Tenn., May 14.—Practically complete returns from Saturday's Democratic senatorial primaries show that Former Governor Robert L. Taylor was nominated over Senator Carmack by a majority of approximately 9,000. Taylor carried seventy-five of the ninety-six counties but in many of them the vote was very close and Carmack's majority in Shelby, his home county, was very heavy.

Full returns from the Democratic congressional primaries in the Fourth district change the result as announced Saturday night. Cordell Hull of Jackson county, is nominated over James T. Miller and Mouxsne G. Butler, present incumbent, by 450 plurality.

CHANDLER'S STATEMENT

To Tillman From the President is Produced in Writing.

Conference Held at White House Until Late at Night.

Washington, May 14.—Senator Tillman, who Saturday made a statement in the senate covering the details of his and Senator Bailey's negotiations through ex-Senator Chandler with President Roosevelt, regarding the rate bill, last night made public a portion of a written statement made to him by Mr. Chandler. It is largely a repetition of the first part of his statement in the senate.

It covers, however, that portion where Mr. Tillman quoted Mr. Chandler as saying that the president had stated that he had come to a complete disagreement with the senatorial lawyers, naming Messrs. Knox, Spooner and Foraker. Regarding this statement Senator Lodge subsequently said he was authorized to call it an unqualified falsehood. Mr. Chandler referring to the president, said in his written statement:

"He said that he had been much troubled by the advocacy of an unlimited court review by some of the lawyers of the senate—naming Senators Knox, Spooner and Foraker, as trying to injure or defeat the bill by ingenious constitutional arguments—but that he had come to a complete disagreement with them. He made this point emphatic by repetition."

The statement given out by Mr. Tillman follows:

"Senator Tillman said yesterday that on Saturday, May 5, he insisted on having from ex-Senator Chandler a written statement of the various conferences by the latter in connection with the plan of the president to control the railroad rate legislation by alliance with the Democrats of the senate, and Mr. Chandler gave him such a statement made prior to Saturday, May 12, and signed by Mr. Chandler. Mr. Tillman said he would give out a portion of that statement relating to the interview of Mr. Chandler with the president on March 31, which had become a subject matter of dispute, but would retain the remainder for use in case any other parts of his statement in the senate on Saturday should be denied.

"'On Saturday afternoon, March 31, 1906, a friend of mine came into my office and told me of the White House conference of that day, in which an understanding as to a limited court review had been reached with Senator Long and others, and he told me that the president wished to get into communication with the Democrats and would shortly ask me to come and see him. While he was talking, a messenger boy arrived with a letter to me from Mr. Loeb, as follows:

"'The White House, Washington, March 31, 1906.

"'My Dear Senator Chandler: The president requests me to say that he would be glad to have you come to the White House to see him at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Will you please let the bearer know whether you can come?

"'I told the messenger that I would be there.

"'At the time and place appointed the president said to me that he wished through me to get into communication with Mr. Tillman, Mr. Bailey and other Democratic senators. He stated his purpose slowly and carefully, and in exact substance his statement was this:

"'That he had reached the conclusion that the best plan for railroad rate legislation was to expressly grant a court review, but to distintly limit it to two points: First, an inquiry whether the interstate commerce commission had exceeded its authority; and second, an inquiry whether the constitutional rights of the carriers had been violated. He said that he had been much troubled by the advocacy of an unlimited court review by some of the lawyers of the senate—naming Senators Knox, Spooner and Foraker, as trying to injure or defeat the bill by ingenious constitutional arguments—but that he had come to a complete disagreement with them.

"'He made this point emphatic by repetition; said that he would go thus far and no farther, and that his decision would be unalterable. He declared that he wished to ascertain whether there could be united action in the senate among the friends of the bill, or that it could be surely passed without injurious amendments, and he named various Republican senators, who, he thought, were true friends of the bill, but said it would take nearly all the Democrats to carry the limitations and defeat all obnoxious provisions.

"'After the president had made his statement, I replied that I had reason to believe that most of the Democrats in the senate would sustain his limitation of court powers, but that I was sure that Mr. Bailey and Mr. Tillman would insist upon coupling with the limitation some restriction upon the power of the courts to issue injunctions against the orders of the commission.

"'Before I had finished my statement on this point, the president interrupted me, saying that I need not explain further because he was warmly in favor of some such restriction.

"'That evening I saw Mr. Tillman and told him what had occurred.'"

Senator Tillman's statement in the senate was the principal topic of callers at his apartments yesterday. The senator had a number of callers at his apartments, among them were Senator Bailey and ex-Senator Chandler. Mr. Chandler has been urged to send out a statement over his own signature regarding the denial by Senator Lodge of the accuracy of the president's quoted remarks in reference to Senators Spooner, Knox and Foraker. He declined, however, to be brought further into the controversy, saying he would let the matter rest on the statement made public by Mr. Tillman.

Senator Lodge called at the White House last evening and took dinner with the president. Subsequently Secretaries Root and Taft arrived at the White House and joined the president and Senator Lodge.

Senator Lodge and Secretaries Root and Taft remained with the president until late at night. At the conclusion of their visit, none of the parties would discuss the visit and all of them declined to answer any questions regarding the subject under discussion.

O'SHAUGHNESSY MAKES DENIAL

Of Bechtel's Charge That He Accepted a $5,000 Bribe.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—The Pioneer Press prints a statement from Former Insurance Commissioner John A. O'Shaughnessy, who was charged by W. F. Bechtel in the testimony given by the latter at his trial for misusing the funds of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, with having accepted a bribe of $5,000 to suppress an unfavorable report regarding the condition of the company.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy makes emphatic denial that Bechtel paid him $5,000 or any other sum for suppressing the report, which, he says, the records of the insurance commissioner's office show was on file months before the time Bechtel alleges he paid for its suppression.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy says that the bribery charge has never been made outside of a courtroom and that he has not had a chance to meet it except in the public prints. He says that he asked to be allowed to be a witness at the recent trial of Mr. Bechtel but that the prosecuting attorney refused, on the ground that he did not wish to have the real issue obscured by the introduction of the alleged bribery. Mr. O'Shaughnessy alleges that the Bechtel charge against him was inspired by revenge, as the latter held him responsible for the investigation which culminated in Bechtel's resigning the presidency of the insurance company.

GAPON'S BODY

Found Hanging on a Nail, Says a St. Petersburg Story.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—The mystery of the fate of Father Gapon apparently was cleared up yesterday by the discovery of a corpse, which has almost positively been identified as that of the former priest, hanging in the upper chamber of a lonely villa in the summer suburbs of Ozerki, Finland. The villa was rented, April 8, for the summer, and a deposit paid by a man from St. Petersburg, whose identity is unknown to the police. After visiting the house several times in company with a young workmen, he disappeared, April 11, taking the key with him.

The proprietress of the villa, alarmed at the non-appearance of the tenant, notified the police, who entered the house. Breaking down a door, they were confronted by a body, in a long coat, hanging from a nail, the feet touching the floor.

Decomposition of the face made positive identification difficult, but the features resembled those of Gapon, and the clothing corresponds with that worn by the missing labor leader. As the usual symptoms of strangulation were absent, it is conjectured that the man was killed elsewhere and his body brought to the villa on the night of April 10. This would agree with the date of the execution of Gapon, given in information to the secret police, and with the death sentence of the former priest, as announced in recent dispatches from Berlin.

This evening the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian association will be held at the association rooms, and Miss Belle Jeffrey of Minneapolis will be the speaker of the evening. Miss Jeffrey has been general secretary of the Minneapolis association for the past thirteen years, and this will be her first official visit to the local association. Her address will be upon the work of the association in South America, and general extension work. It has been decided to send a general secretary for this country to the Southwestern continent, to enter the work this fall, and the Minnesota and Pennsylvania associations are to be responsible for her first year's salary. Miss Jean Batty of Pennsylvania is the secretary to go, and it is thought that the work in the home associations will prosper because of help extended unselfishly toward the country without this help for its young women.

In addition to Miss Jeffrey's talk, the routine business of the annual meeting will come up. Six board members are to be elected, and the opening of the building fund mite boxes will take place. A light supper will be served at 6 o'clock, and an informal social hour will follow. An especially large attendance of the members at the annual meeting, at 7:30 o'clock, is desired.

* * *

The third annual May morning breakfast of the Young Women's Christian association will be held tomorrow morning at the association rooms, on West Superior street. The members, with their brothers and their cousins and their uncles and their husbands, are invited to breakfast there any time from 7 to 9 o'clock. Presiding at the tables will be Mesdames C. C. Cokefair, W. S. Horr, Mary E. Rogers, R. E. Denfeld, W. J. McCabe, E. H. Williams, G. H. Claypool, H. B. Sutherland, F. G. DeGroat and W. G. Hegardt.

Events of Interest.

A delightful affair was given Saturday evening at the home of Miss Berry of 12 Chester terrace, at which Miss Eva Worden was the guest of honor. She was presented with some pretty gifts of china plates. Miss Worden's marriage will take place at Minneapolis in June.

* * *

Mrs. F. J. Griffith was the guest of honor at an afternoon at bridge today, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Spring of Park Point.

* * *

The series of talks which are being given at the devotional meeting of the Young Women's Christian association upon Sunday afternoon are most interesting and helpful. The speaker is Rev. M. S. Rice, who will continue to speak Sunday during May. His subject yesterday was "The Ready World," and next Sunday afternoon he will speak on "The One Who is to Take the Message to the World."

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER.

California cherries, 50 cents a lb.

New potatoes, 4 pounds for 25 cents.

Green peppers, 5 cents each.

Hamburger steak, 12½ cents a lb.

When a petulant housewife decides to serve hamburger steak to an unprotected family, it is a sure sign that her inner feelings are in revolt, and are taking expression in the way least liable to detection. No woman with love and cheerfulness and consideration and tenderness in her heart will deliberately plan and execute a hamburger steak for people she really cares for. But there are times when one simply must express one's self, and this sort of steak is far better than a shortly delivered personal opinion of those dependent upon your plan of meal arrangement. Know, then, O Man Who Pays the Bills, the lady of your choice and fondest care has some grudge against you, nine times out of ten when she chooses hamburger steak for your delectation.

California cherries are in the market, and as yet are not the tempting, luscious looking things that later in the season make the most rigorously brought up person forget the eighth commandment, in all its brevity and conciseness. A person who is strictly within the moral law in all other things, who would never think of coveting his neighbor's house or wife or copper stock, will plan to steal cherries without a qualm.

Bridal Chests Again Used for Robes

Without a trousseau box or wedding chest to hold all their dainty garments, few brides nowadays consider their wardrobes complete. Yet they do not select the proverbial cedar chests that their grandmothers of a hundred years ago thought necessary. Instead, the majority of them, especially those in the smart set, like the ones made from mahogany or oak with a dark, dull Flemish finish. A few walnut wood boxes are desired, but lack the popularity of the other two kinds. Practically none of the light woods, bird's eye maple, etc., are used, probably because the first chests were dark colored.

Unlike the old time cedar chests that were as simply made as possible with four plain sides, a top or lid to match, and no decoration, not even metal handles or a lock and key these modern ones are quite elaborately ornamented with hand carved designs, massive handles and occasionally heavy brass locks, with chains.

Some of them are even fitted up like small chiffoniers, with one, two or three drawers, while others have trays divided into compartments and curiously shaped, to hold certain kinds of wearing apparel. There is still another development of the wedding box that is partitioned off into sections the depth of the chest.

With all these up-to-date improvements a trousseau box of today resembles but little the old-fashioned ones that have been treasured and handed down as heirlooms in many families. They were always thought to be particularly valuable, because they protected the clothing from attacks by moths—the pungent scent of the wood being objectionable to moths—and for that reason no other kind of wood was selected.

This theory, according to a well known furniture dealer, has been entirely exploded, and now chests are bought because of the beauty of the wood from which they are made, or for the handsome hand work used in ornamentation.

Though the average chest bought now is not any more expensive than the old cedar ones that were made by hand, the hand carved boxes in mahogany and Flemish oak run up into large figures, especially those that are fitted with compartments. Naturally, there are women who still want to buy cedar chests and are astonished to find that they no longer are considered extremely valuable and can be bought for from $5 up—of course, not hand made ones—while the least money that will buy a small Flemish oak chest that is perfectly plain is $20.

Practically the only points that are now the same between the new and old are the lines on which they are made, for the oblong shapes are still used. The simplest kind of a chest has a tiny border of beading around the edges to relieve it from severity, and instead of resting flat on the floor like a box there are small feet, plain to harmonize. But that, incidentally, saves it from looking, as one woman said, "Exactly like a tool box."

The carving used on these chests is centered on the front panel and on the lid, and in design is either floral, a wedding wreath surrounded with dainty bunches of lilies of the valley, or a copy of an old time wedding procession, where flowers and fruits are shown in abundance and are showered on the happy bride and bridegroom.

Chests fitted with compartments are quite expensive, and one in which there was a long tray to accommodate skirts so that they would not have to be folded, with another one in which there was a box for hats, laces, ribbons, shoes, etc. A third one for waists, wraps, etc., in mahogany, costs $150. Wedding boxes, made up of three drawers, range in price from $50 up, according to the kind of wood and the decoration, while the other new style box, with compartments reaching from the lid to the bottom, can be bought from $45 upward.

Practical Method of Cleaning Wall Paper

Wall paper accumulates not only dust, but actual dirt, and the condition very frequently saddens the heart of the housewife when she is unable to have her walls repapered. But when the spring housecleaning is in progress, if she follows these hints, she will have the pleasure of seeing her walls look 50 per cent brighter and better, and, in some cases, rendering them quite clean.

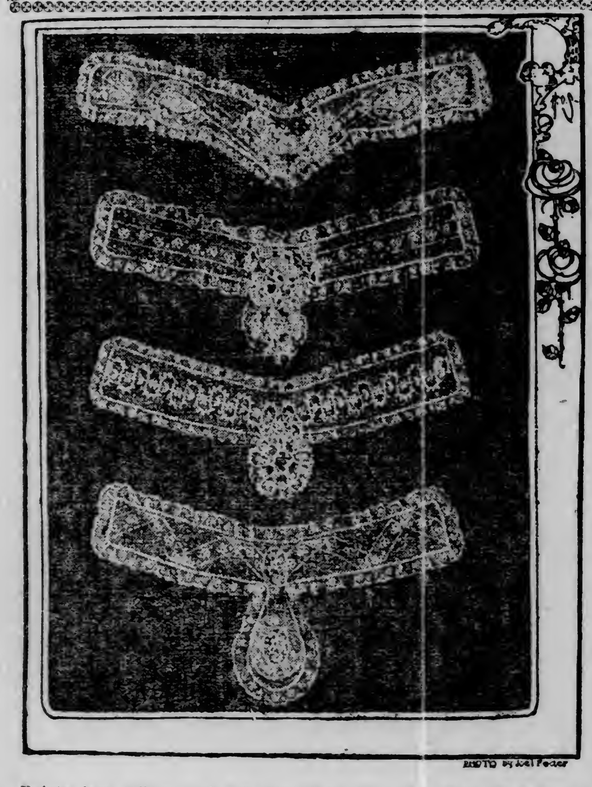
Make a mop of strips of some soft cloth, cheese cloth is the best, fastening it to an old broom handle. With this brush the paper thoroughly, ceiling and side walls. This can be done also throughout the year, thus ensuring a greater degree of healthfulness to the family and keeping the paper in prime condition as well.

In addition, mix whiting, powdered cornstarch and Fuller's earth in equal quantities, dip the mop into the powder and scrub the walls well with it. Next shake every bit of powder possible from the mop and cover it with a damp flannel which is perfectly clean. With this go over the walls thoroughly, sweeping with long, straight strokes. Be sure that the flannel is only damp, for if wet, it will leave a mark. When it shows soil, remove and cover again with a fresh one.

A method which finds much favor not only with amateurs but with professionals is the use of stale bread crusts. Often paper can be thoroughly cleaned by rubbing lightly with bread crusts, the dirt rolling off with the crumbed bread. In order to cleanse a larger space at a time and do the work more evenly it is a good idea to cut the loaf lengthwise and rub until the surface is soiled, then slice off a piece and continue until it is used up.

If there are grease spots on your paper, mix a little Fuller's earth with ammonia and cover the spots with the thin paste, allowing to dry on. When removing the paste use a stiff brush, which will generally be effectual. French chalk is an invaluable remover of grease spots, not only from wall paper but from fabrics as well. Fill a gauze bag with powdered French chalk, hold it over the spot and press with a hot iron, the grease being almost immediately absorbed by the chalk.

Dainty New Lace Collars to be Worn With Summer Waists



Dainty lace collars made of sheer net, with insertion motifs and edging, will be smart for afternoon and evening wear this year. They are much more elaborate than those popular last season, and are consequently more expensive, for the very finest of imported laces are used on a net background.

Fortunately for women who are unable to buy costly neckwear, the styles of these new ones are quite simple and can be easily made at home, once the net is shaped to fit the neck of the wearer. The decoration added by appliqueing Valenciennes lace or even pieces of filet is comparatively simple. Attaching the tabs in front for a finish, either by cutting away the net and inserting a handsome pattern to the bottom of the collar proper is the most difficult part of the making.

Around the edges at top, bottom and both ends a pretty narrow piece of Val. insertion should be ruffled on so that it gives a small ruching effect that is becoming to most any shape face.

To prevent these stocks from being flimsy, and to hold them in place and give body to the sheer materials, a small silk covered flat or round piece of featherbone should be sewed to the top and bottom and attached to the ends.

A MURDERER'S MASQUERADE

By Edgar Fawcett.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

While a visiting physician at the Z— asylum for the criminal insane, I found myself more and more attracted by one particular case—that of the young earl of Thornbourne. I believed (and other fellow-practitioners, too) that Lord Thornbourne was utterly blameless for the deed he had done.

It had made an immense talk two years ago. Left at an early age under the guardianship of his maternal uncle, the celebrated chemist, Holme Dyott, he had never liked this kinsman, and frequent quarrels had occurred between them. During one of these (as evidence on the trial brought out) Mr. Dyott had struck his nephew a terrible blow on one temple with the butt-end of his riding whip. The earl, then about three-and-twenty, was unconscious for two days. Afterward a long illness had ensued. He had recovered for a certain period (about six months in all), and then his mind began to fail him. No one but certain servants at Thornbourne park, in Devonshire, had known of his uncle's brutal blow. (I except, of course, the inevitable gossip between themselves and folk in the near village).

The physicians who attended Lord Thornbourne were told by Mr. Dyott that his nephew's wound had resulted from a mis-step while descending one of the stairways of his residence. They never thought of disbelieving this. Mr. Dyott's reputation was flawless. His fame as a chemist of exceptional power had grown greatly during the past ten or twelve years.

At the trial, it will be remembered, witnesses made us aware, for the first time, that Lord Thornbourne's quarrel with his guardian had been brought about by the former's avowed intention of marrying Margaret Boyce. This girl, though the daughter of a small neighboring farmer, had received a fair education. She was also strikingly pretty and graceful. To Hubert Wyndham, earl of Thornbourne, and possessor of several titles besides, the idea of marrying Margaret privately had been repellant in the extreme.

On recovering from his illness, the earl, as I have said, seemed for six months to be in a wholly normal state of health. Between himself and his uncle (who still resided at Thornbourne park) relations of distant reserve existed, though they often dined in one another's company, and now and then drove out in the same carriage.

Meanwhile Margaret Boyce had vanished. Early one June evening she had left her father's house, and had never been seen again. It was clearly understood, and much gossiped about the village, that she had suffered fiercely from the tidings that Lord Thornbourne was in peril of death. While he lay unconscious she had disappeared. Her father had caused a wide search for her, but without the faintest tangible result.

A fortnight after Lord Thornbourne's second and final collapse the murder had been committed.

The earl had crept into his uncle's library and stabbed him, with great suddenness and dexterity, three times in the back. His weapon was a long, slender knife—an Oriental family relic.

At the third blow, with great cries, Mr. Dyott had fallen. When the nurse, horrified by these sounds, entered the library, he had found the elder man in his last throes, if not already dead. Lord Thornbourne, with his face distorted by impish leers and his tremulous lips chattering wild things, crouched in a corner of the room.

I never saw Lord Thornbourne until I met him at the Z— asylum. He had some slight ailment which I had been requested to relieve—a throat trouble, rather obstinate, though by no means serious. At first our conversations were brief, and of a kind purely professional. He then appealed to me as a singularly handsome man. After my second visit to him I said to a brother physician that there could scarcely be a doubt of his present sanity.

"Not a doubt," came the reply; "he's as sane as we are."

"Then, why—?" But I paused, and we exchanged glances.

"A life sentence, you know," said my listener.

"Ah, true," I reminded myself, audibly. "And he bears well the thought of it."

"Yes. Do you notice that peculiar look of sadness on his handsome face? Examine it a bit closer and you will find a curious resignation there."

I did examine it closer, and agreed with this judgment. Gradually we became in a way intimate. I felt myself touched at first with the poignant pity for him. This man (who had done a frightful murder while completely irresponsible for the act) must live out the rest of his life in dreary durance! The thought of it all fretted me like an eczema. I had almost made up my mind to present myself in person to the home secretary, whom I had known years ago fairly well as a co-disciple at Harrow. And one morning, while I was with my patient, an unwonted impulse to express this feeling (though I am usually what is termed a self-contained person) took me, as it were, with great lack of ceremony quite by the throat.

Something stopped me dead short, however, after I had got through three or four sentences. A hardness came over the delicate features; the soft brightness of the eyes lessened, faded.

"Perhaps the home secretary might do something, doctor. He is a sort of remote cousin to us Wyndhams. But, no! I don't want his—his ticket of leave. I really don't."

He sighed a little as he spoke, and I can see now, though I did not see then, that I thoroughly missed the meaning of the sigh.

"But you are still so young."

"I am a thousand—in hideous experience. And liberty? With my notoriety it would be only a burden."

"Don't call it experience," I ventured, with sympathy given full rein. "Your mind was not then as now. You—"

He interrupted me by a gesture slight and brisk. It acted on me like the tap on a marble table.

"My mind was gone once, that is all. It came back after my long illness—it came entirely back."

Of this I did not believe a word. He might be sane now, but of all authorities on his mental condition he himself was undoubtedly the worst. Still, while his ice-blue eyes held me, set in that lean, pensive, colorless face—the face more of an ascetic than of a criminal maniac—I felt chills among my veins.

"You don't mean—you surely don't mean," I essayed, "that you were of right mind—when you let yourself go—afterward?"

He drew his figure well up, glancing right and left. Fro an instant he had the air to me of some one suspicious about eavesdroppers. Then he gave a laugh of soft scoff, his tense pos relaxing.

"Why should I care now?" he muttered. "They've tried me. They can't try me again."

"No; they can't try you again."

"When that unspeakable blackguard struck me that brutish blow, it was because I told him I would marry Margaret Boyce in the most public way. The long coma that followed was broken by a dull consciousness, during which I would lie for hours in bed and realize all that had passed. Forgive Dyott I could not. Hate him I felt that I always must. Revenge myself upon him? Well, the thought of how and when made my feeble brain feebler, and protracted by physical inaction and convalescence for weeks All this time I knew myself to be merciless in his hands. I mean, as regarded her. I knew that he was capable of any act in the way of permanently dividing us."

"You—don't mean," I faltered, "that—he could—possibly—have—"

"Killed her? Yes; I do mean just that. I mean that he did kill her."

"Good God!" escaped me.

"There, in that laboratory—near the library, where I killed him. * * * He made it all plain to me—by innuendo, yet unmistakably. In the laboratory, as I well knew, he had many deadly drugs. Margaret, while I was lying at death's door, had stolen to see him with utmost secrecy and caution. She had written him that she would come—and how. He met her at a certain gate (you don't know Thornbourne, or you'd understand just where), and they went together to his special wing of the house, entering by a sort of semi-private door. There a long interview took place; he admitted it. But she told him she would never give me up till I bade her to do so. She was a gentle girl, but with a spirit that could be roused. He must have roused it. Afterward she felt faint and staggered to a sofa. He offered her something to drink. She took it."

"He told you this?"

While I grasped the words my companion nodded.

"He made it plain. He didn't put it as I put it. Recollect, he had lost his head. I had driven him into a fury. For myself, I think I was more mortified and torture-stricken then, than angry. Besides, I felt incredulous, too. I told him that he was lying. But if not, I added, he should be held to strictest account. Slain people leave their corpses behind them. Thousands of pounds would be spent in finding Margaret's body. 'It cannot be so far from where we now stand,' I said. 'Oh, it shall be found—be sure of that.' My hand was on a bell-rope while I spoke. I meant to summon the servants than and there. * * * But I had pricked him into the last spasm, so to speak, of wrathful folly.

"'Stop!' he said, with a kind of frog in his throat, and his twitching face ghastly. 'Do you remember that big mastiff, Dagmar, which we suspected of madness here at Thornbourne about three years ago, and which you yourself ordered shot? Do you remember how I had her body brought to my laboratory for purposes, as I then stated, of examining the true state of her brain, a la Pasteur, and finding out whether or no rabies had really caused her sickness? Have you forgot my professional pride as a chemist when I afterward brought you into the laboratory and showed you a small heap of fine, white ashes, hardly larger than two ordinary handfuls? Dagmar was a very big dog, even for her breed and sex. You were astonished when I informed you that this was all that was left of her, and threw the ashes out of an open window for the breeze to scatter them. I had no great self-admiration in the matter. Other chemists, less distinguished than I, have accomplished the same sort of tremendous annihilation; but I wanted to test my own powers, and I did test them. That's all.'

"With this he walked instantly from the room. I sprang after him as the door closed. Then a great giddiness came over me and I sank into a chair. Perhaps I swooned—memory is misty, right here. Anyway, when my faculties cleared I had, somehow, the most curious feelings. I seemed no longer a man; I had become a vengeance. Hence that second lapse of mind—so termed. It was no lapse at all; it was a long, shrewd masquerade. I let myself apparently slip back into the old idiot state. Do you ask why? The murder is my answer. But I could have 'stayed sane,' you will say, and killed Holme Dyott just as surely. True; yet, then, there would very probably have been the scandal.

"Your guardian's crime was a black one, Lord Thornebourne. But now, when you have so usparingly avenged it, I—I cannot doubt that grief (perhaps the sharpest remorse) must tinge your days."

"Grief? Remorse? I grudge every hour as it passes. I'd kill him over again a thousand times in each twenty-four. It was for this I feigned craziness. I didn't want them to hang me. That might have meant only an eternal blank, and if so it will come soon enough. Too soon, too soon," he added, with a sort of fiery plaintiveness. "Just to go on thinking it all over and over—how I stabbed him when he believed himself safest from me—how he saw the scanty in my face, and understood (at the moment he dropped) the whole ruse I had practiced—just to think this all over and over, I say, means for me such mighty consolation! Twenty lifetimes could not give me enough of it!"

Here, with hands tensely clasped, he dropped back into his chair. Then, by slow degrees, his hands fell toward either side of him, his chin fell upon his breast. "Margaret, Margaret!" I heard him murmur.

COUNCIL AT VIRGINIA

Of Order of Good Samaritans to be Organized.

Virginia, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. A. Fider of Duluth, deputy imperial organizer for the order of Modern Samaritans, is in the city working to establish a council here. He has already secured thirty-eight applications and the outlook is that a council of large proportions will be organized. He expects to get the council in working order some time during the present week.

A proposition has been made that the new school to be erected in the Southside addition this summer be named the Johnson school in honor of Governor Johnson of Minnesota. The idea is meeting with much favor and it is probable that the building will be so designated.

While the people of Virginia are mostly Republicans all recognize the sterling personal attributes of the present Democratic executive of the state.

John T. Ahrens and E. C. Strauss will depart tomorrow for a visit to Green River, Utah, where they recently purchased fruit lands.

Victor Kapponen has a crew of men at work putting in the foundation for the new Finnish Temperance society hall.

C. F. Ahlstrand, formerly manager of the Finnish Mercantile company, and Jacob Paul, formerly of the grocery firm of Paul & Kela, will depart with their families tomorrow for Green River, Utah,' where they will engage in the business of fruit farming. A. deNohle has purchased the Ahlstrand home at the corner of Central avenue and Walnut street.

August Tiesse, superintendent for the Virginia Brewing company, will return today from Chicago, where he has been looking after business matters for the company.

Mrs. J. H. Fleming is visiting relatives at Hinckley, Minn. She will return home this week.

J. P. Chalmers has been chosen as representative to the grand lodge U. A. O. D., which meets at Duluth in June.

S. C. Connors has sold his restaurant business to David Dewey and has resumed his former occupation as engineer of the plant of the Virginia Light & Water company.

Mrs. J. A. Friedman and five children have arrived here from San Francisco, where they lost their property in the fire, and will visit for a time at the home of Mrs. Friedman's sister, Mrs. B. M. Lippman.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Lippman, M. Segal and Ben Gordon went to Duluth to attend the wedding of Miss Rose Levin and Henry Lippman of McKinley, which occurred yesterday.

William Johnson has been appointed manager of the Finnish Mercantile company to succeed C. F. Ahlstrand.

B. M. Lippman has purchased the Archibald residence on Pine street.

Mrs. W. A. Hall is erecting a building in the Southside addition to contain four flats for rental purposes.

D. Davis of Port Huron, Mich., is here with the purpose of opening a first-class restaurant, providing he can secure a suitable location.

Frank Hughes has returned from Rochester, and reports that his brother Henry, who was operated on for appendicitis, is improving nicely.

The funeral of Arthur Eaton, who died here Friday of consumption, took place yesterday from the M. E. church. The local Odd Fellows, of which order deceased was a member, turned out in a body. Eaton resided at Two Harbors and followed the occupation of camp cook. He was a single man.

The family of Mr. Rabittaille, foreman of the Virginia Lumber company's new mill, arrived here Friday from Cloquet and are domiciled in the Fay flats.

TWO FATALITIES.

Miner Killed by Dynamite Explosion---Homesteader Drowned.

Virginia, Minn., May 14.—The premature explosion of a dynamite blast at Lincoln mine Saturday resulted in the death of Martin Jeddowski and severe injury to Andrew Buk, who may die. He is too severely hurt to give a definite account of the accident, but says his partner was in "too big a hurry." The injured man is at Lenoont hospital. Both were 30 years old and neither was married.

The body of Jacob Mattson, a homesteader, was brought to Mesberg's morgue Saturday night from his claim near Camp No. 6 on the Duluth, Winnipeg & Rainy Lake road. The unfortunate man lost his life by falling into a well or pit in which there was a few feet of water. Debris at the bottom of the hole held him so that he could not extricate himself. Some men from the railroad camp found the body Saturday. It had evidently been in the well several days.

OUR TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

Outside of Argentina and Brazil is Not Very Large.

Washington, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trade of the United States with South American countries other than Argentina and Brazil is not large. The total imports from all South America in 1905 were $150,000,000 in value, and of this $115,000,000 worth was from Brazil and Argentina, leaving from the remaining South American countries but $35,000,000. The exports to all South America in the same year were valued at $57,000,000, of which $34,000,000 was to Argentina and Brazil, leaving a balance of but $23,000,000 to all other countries of South America. Thus, the total trade of the United States with South America in 1905 was $207,000,000, of which $150,000,000 was with Argentina and Brazil and but $57,000,000 with all the remaining countries of that continent.

Omitting further consideration of the trade with Argentina and Brazil, which have been already discussed in detail by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, it may be said that of the $35,000,000 worth of merchandise imported from South American countries other than Argentina and Brazil, $11,000,000 was from Chile, $3,000,000 from Peru, $2,500,000 from Ecuador, $6,500,000 Colombia, $7,000,000 from Venezuela, $2,000,000 from the Gulanas, and $3,000,000 from Uruguay; while with Paraguay and Bolivia, interior countries having no ports on the seacoast, the trade statistically visible is infinitesimal. On the export side, the shipments of the year 1905 were: To Chile $5,500,000, to Peru $3,500,000, to Ecuador $1,725,000, to Colombia, 3,500,000, to Venezuela $3,225,000, to the Gulanas, $2,500,000, and to Uruguay $2,000,000.

The countries lying on the northern coast of South America give a fair proportion of their commerce to the United States, but those on the Western coast, however, but a small proportion. Venezuela, lying on the northern coast, sends to the United States 36 per cent of its exports, and takes from the United States 36 per cent of its imports. Columbia, having a frontage and port on the Caribbean, and thus direct access to the markets of the United States, sends thereto 54 per cent of its exports and takes therefrom 34 per cent of its imports. British Guiana, also on the north coast, sends 23 per cent of its exports to the United States and takes therefrom 29 per cent of its imports. Dutch Guiana and the Dutch West Indies adjacent thereto send 28 per cent of their exports to the United States and take 15 per cent of their imports from this country. Ecuador, which, although having a Western coast frontage, is also near to the markets of the United States, via Panama, or our Pacific coast ports, sends 26 per cent of its exports to the United States and takes 25 per cent of its imports from this country. With the more distant South American countries, however, conditions are materially different. Peru sends but 9 per cent of its exports to the United States and takes but 18 per cent of its imports from this country; Chile sends 17 per cent of its imports from this country; while Uuruguay sends us but 4½ per cent of its exports and takes from us but 8½ per cent of its imports.

The countries at the north of South America give greater share of their trade to the United States than do those countries lying at the south, whether on the Atlantic or the Pacific frontage. Taking all the South American countries fronting upon the Caribbean sea, and combining them with Ecuador, which is also much nearer to American ports than those of any other country, the total imports are $37,000,000, of which about 30 per cent is taken from the United States. The remaining South American countries import about $400,000,000 worth of merchandise annually, of which they take 12 per cent from the United States.

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, postmaster at Riverton, Iowa, nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For twenty years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters; which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." ALFONSO'S MARRIAGE

Question of Accomodating Guests in Madrid Bothers Officials.

Sixteen Royal Princes With Numerous Suites to be Present.

Madrid, May 14.—The ministry of foreign affairs is beginning to be seriously occupied with the question of the accommodation of the special embassies which will arrive in Madrid for the royal wedding. The matter is rather a difficult one, as there are no hotels in Madrid capable of lodging persons of high rank.

For this reason large private residences will be furnished for each embassy, and each will be provided with its complement of servants and carriages. Senor Moret is giving his personal attention to this matter, and is anxious not to overlook the most minute detail. It is estimated that the accommodation of each embassy, not including carriages, will cost the treasury $20,000.

Princes who are nearly related to the Spanish royal family will live in the palace, the others being received in the residences of members of the aristocracy, which will be placed at the disposal of the government, or in official buildings such as the ministry of war or the ministry of the interior.

Furniture manufacturers find their stocks exhausted by the demands which have been made upon them. Large orders have been sent to Paris and London.

There is a project on foot, if the orange trees of Seville, Murcia and Malaga are in bloom at the time of the wedding, to spread an enormous carpet of orange blossoms at the entrance to the church, and it is not improbable that the whole of the route followed by the procession will be carpeted with flowers.

In the royal stables the greatest activity prevails over the preparation of liveries, harness and the gala clothing of the horses which will take part in the procession, and needless to say, the tailors of Madrid are overwhelmed with orders for new uniforms. Already numerous visitors, including, of course, many English people as well as some Americans, have arrived, and some difficulty is experienced in finding rooms, as the hotels are fully booked.

Up to the present the list of the special missions which will attend the wedding is hardly complete, but it is known that sixteen royal princes with numerous suites will be present, and will be entertained at the palace of El Pardo. The latest news is that a special embassy will be sent by the sultan of Morocco.

Progress is being made with the preparation of the Church of San Geronimo for the wedding ceremony. Special stands are being erected for the accommodations of the invited guests, the chancel being reserved for the royal family, princes and members of the court.

According to reports received here, a number of Spanish residents in Argentina are sending over a wedding gift for Princess Ena, and it is being brought over by a special commission.

Among the ladies of the aristocracy meetings are being held to arrange their participation in the festivities. It is believed that they will decide upon a procession in which descendants of historical personages, dressed in costumes from the time of Pelayo to that of Ferdinand VII, will parade before Princess Ena, and thus present to her eyes a picture of the ancient glories of Spain.

It is no exaggeration to say that the one subject which is occupying the minds of all classes in Spain is the approaching royal marriage.

The populace of the capital have not yet seen the bride, their future queen, so their opinion of her beauty is reserved. It will be expressed after her arrival.

It was noted that on arriving in England Princess Ena walked before her mother. This is regarded as an act of erroneous precedence as well as a blunder in tact, though it has been suggested that her mother may have been responsible for the positions assumed. But here, until she is queen consort of Spain, she has no English rank except as the daughter of her parents, and though the little assumption might have been intended to gratify haughty Spanish pride, the grandees of Spain are far too erudite in heraldry not to smile at such a mistake.

Whether this German princess—for such she certainly must be, taking rank as she does from her father—will be happy in the austere etiquette of a Spanish court remains to be seen. Unless from the start she insists upon breaking through the antiquated barriers of their restrictions, many there are who say that here future career will be blighted.

The service at the king of Spain's tablo at the Escurial is as follows:

8 a. m.—Breakfast; tea, coffee, chocolate, milk, rolls and cold meat.

11 a. m.—Luncheon with the ministers of state; soup, two entrees, joint, vegetables, sweets and fruits.

4 p. m.—Tea or Spanish wine, cakes and sandwiches.

7 p. m.—Dinner; two soups, two entress, two joints, vegetables, ices, sweets, fruits, Spanish wines, champagne.

9:30 p. m.—Tea; wines, cold meats, cakes and dessert.

At GIDDING'S

"The Mark of Distinction"

¶ A simple statement that one store's goods are better than another's, carries no conviction with it.

¶ Our faith in the surpassing excellence of our Suits, Gowns, Coats, Wraps and Skirts is ably sustained by strong evidences of character in the garments!

¶ We invite you to examine these clothes—to test, to compare them with the best that competition affords either in this city or elsewhere!

¶ Note the quality of the goods, the appearance, cut and style, and we are assured that you will grant that the clothes we sell are in a distinct and superior class of their own! Yet,

¶ Our prices are no higher than the usual store asks for the ordinary kinds—more often not as much!

¶ Take as an instance our present values in Tailored Suits—where could you possibly get such beautiful garments—made with such care, for so little!

¶ Under regular conditions we should be compelled to ask you a fourth more for them.

¶ Certain trade conditions (such for instance as the San Francisco earthquake) make it possible to pass along to you garments of the higher sort at a fourth to a third less than you ordinarily would expect to pay.

¶ Then too, we've reduced in price many lines which for one reason or another we cannot reorder—these will also be on sale tomorrow!

WHEAT HAS GOOD TONE

It Closes Stronger in Most of the American Markets.

Flax is Weak and Closes Lower in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 14.—Despite the fact that the world's shipments of wheat were nearly 2,000,000 bus, larger than the estimate, and showers in the Southwest, wheat was stronger in most of the American markets today. Reports of damage and light receipts in the Northwest aided good buying in keeping the market firm. The July option was stronger in every American market except New York and Winnipeg.

The May option closed unchanged in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅜c higher in Chicago, Minneapolis and New York, and ½c higher in St. Louis and Kansas City. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth and St. Louis, ⅛-¼c in Chicago and Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and Winnipeg and ⅝c up in Kansas City.

Corn was unchanged in Chicago, ¼c lower in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅜-½c higher in Chicago.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week of last year were as follows:

	WHEAT.
	Past Week.	Previous Week.	Last Year.
America	2,752,000	1,872,000	1,695,000
Russia	4,848,000	3,416,000	3,136,000

Total	4,028,000	4,379,000	3,416,000

Car receipts at Duluth were 16 against 2 last year, and at Minneapolis 125 against 158 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 141 against 161 last year. Chicago received 13 against 2 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 222,000 bus, last year 239,000 bus. Shipments 386,000 bus, last year 378,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 316,000 bus.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 2,495,000 bus, and is now 25,936,000 bus, against 24,170,000 bus last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 560,000 bus, last year 185,000 bus. Shipments 297,000 bus, last year 346,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 36,000 bus. The visible supply of corn decreased 1,081,000 bus, and is now 2,801,000 bus, against 6,103,000 bus last year.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market except for a slight flurry at the opening. May wheat opened ½c higher at 82⅜c, advanced to 82⅝c and declined steadily to the close, which was 82¼c, unchanged from Saturday. July wheat opened unchanged at 82⅝c, advanced to 82⅞c at 9:40, declined to 82½c at 9:45, rallied to 83¼c at 12 and declined steadily to the close, which was 82¼c, a gain of ⅛c over Saturday. September wheat opened ⅛c higher at 79⅝c and closed unchanged at 79½c.

Flax was quiet and weaker. It was ⅝c lower in Antwerp and ¾c off in London. Some flax was sold in the local market to go abroad. May flax opened ½c lower at $1.17, advanced to $1.17⅝, declined to $1.16½, rallied to $1.16⅝ and closed at $1.16½, a loss of 1c from Saturday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.18½, advanced to $1.18¾, declined to $1.17½, rallied to $1.18 and closed at that price, a loss of ¾c from Saturday.

September flax opened ¼c lower at $1.18¼ and declined to the close, which was $1.17½, a loss of 1c from Saturday. October flax sold as high as $1.16¼ and closed at $1.15¾, a loss of ⅝c from Saturday.

May oats and oats to arrive and on track were ⅝c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Free Selling by Pit Traders Causes Easiness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 14.—The wheat market opened easier today on free selling by pit traders. The chief causes of the decline at the opening were lower cables, larger world's shipments and showers in the Southwest. Following the early decline, the market rallied quickly on a good demand from commission houses and the market became firm. Reports of damage and small receipts in the Northwest were the bullish factors. July opened ⅛c to ⅝c lower at 80⅝c to 80¾c and sold up to 81½c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 154 cars, against 244 cars last week and 163 cars one year ago.

July advanced to 81⅝@⅝c. Later the greater part of the gain was lost on profit-taking. The close was firm with July ⅛@¼c higher at 81@⅛c.

The corn market was steady on a fair demand by commission houses. July opened ⅛c lower at 46c and advanced to 46⅜c. Local receipts were 80 cars, with 13 of contract grade.

The high market for July was 46⅜c. The close was steady with July ⅛c higher at 46⅜c.

The feeling in the oats pit was inclined to be bullish and the market was firm. Offerings were light and there was no early news calculated to effect the market. July opened unchanged at 31⅝c and sold up to 31⅞@⅜c. Local receipts were 81 cars.

The provisions market was quiet and steady. The tone of the hog market was firm. July pork was unchanged at $15.45. Lard was up 2½c at $8.09. Ribs were a shade lower at $8.77½.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat—The close of last week rather indicated a loosening up of the congested conditions which had existed in wheat for some time. This together with very much larger world's shipments, cables this morning, and the Liverpool market half cent lower, induced a moderate drive at prices on first trades. Less than ½ cent was taken from the July price when strong local leaders very promptly stood all the offerings and forced the market into a strong position again. The high point of the present bull campaign was touched in May wheat today, although the gains in all months at the close were quite moderate. The trade for the time being is more influenced by local conditions and home crop news than by any foreign outlook. Attention is for favorable weather with showers for most of the winter wheat states, but the trade is kept sentimentally bullish by the reports coming in of lower conditions in Missouri, Kansas and some of the states east of Missouri. With the short interest in May still unsettled, some adverse crop reports coming in each day, we are bound to have a good trading market in wheat.

Corn—There is a big "if" in front of the corn trade. If the country follows the planting season by very general offerings of corn, such as to create a large movement to this market, then the stocks in the July and September corn are certain to have the best of it. This they are counting on with great confidence. Large receiving interests have advices from shipping sections, however, which claim that such a movement of corn, for a time at least, will be in great demand, chiefly by Southern buyers. The small visible decreased by over 1,000,000 bus today.

* * *

Chicago Tribune: Weather conditions are becoming the important influence in the wheat market. The season of crop uncertainties is changed and the weather will play a large part in deciding the crop. A little over a year ago the Gates deal in May wheat went to pieces in April because there was no incentive for the farmer to carry $1.20 wheat into a new crop, the result being that farmers and millers began sweeping their bins and handpicking their wheat to make as much as possible for delivery on May contracts. This year there is a more favorable backing down for the owner of May or old crop wheat, although there is also the certainty that if the old grain gets far above the new crop level there will be a much larger total available supply than was obtainable a year ago. The area of the 1906 winter wheat crop has been officially fixed at 241,000 acres less than was harvested last year, and the condition of the area left is 1½ points behind the May condition of last year's crop, which was nearly 10 points higher than its condition at harvest. The natural vicisitudes of the crop are just ahead.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Sold Off Rather Sharply From Early Advances.

Closing Was Rather Heavy and Showed Fractional Net Losses.

New York, May 14.—Prices of stocks at the opening today started higher than last week, with large dealings in some of the speculative favorites. Anaconda rose rapidly 4½; International Pump preferred gained 1⅞, and Copper, Brooklyn Transit, Locomotive and Ontario & Western gained large fractions.

The upward movement was arrested for a while by a sudden drop in St. Paul from 170 to 168¾c. The fact that the stock weakened on only a few transactions disconcerted the bulls, and there was considerable realizing of profits. Subsequently the advance was resumed, but the market soon became "spotty," with the metal stocks conspicuously strong. Among the important gains were Lackawanna 5½, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Copper, Smelting and Locomotive 1½ to 1¾, and Reading, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, Cleveland, C., C. & St. Louis, Ontario & Western, Central of Jersey, Lead and United States Realty 1.

The excited market for copper metal in London helped the rise of 2¼ in Amalgamated Copper. Smelting gained 3, National Lead 2½, and Anaconda 7. There were gains in Lackawanna of 7½, Great Northern preferred 2¾, Ontario & Western 1¾, Wabash preferred 1⅝, Baltimore & Ohio 1½ and Illinois Central, Wisconsin Central and Manhattan a point. Railroads as a rule did not move widely, and dealings in them were restricted. Bonds were firm at noon.

Reactions reaching 1 to 1½ occurred in some of the metal and standard stocks that were prominent in the forenoon rise. Reading was marked nearly 2 points up to 132¾. Around this figure Reading weakened and lost about half its rise. Northern Pacific extended its advance to 3 points. Northwestern and Norfolk & Western also gained a point each.

The bidding up of selected stocks ceased in the middle of the afternoon and the market became heavy all around. Early advances were largely received or wiped out and a considerable number of leading stocks were from below Saturday's closing. International Pump dropped 2¾, Atlantic Coast Line 1½, Colorado Fuel 1¼ and New York Central, St. Paul and Union Pacific 1 or more.

The downward drift of prices continued and only the copper group retained any part of the earlier advances. Delaware & Hudson sold 1¾ under last week, Union Pacific and Sugar ⅝, St. Paul, Central of Jersey and Chicago Union Traction pfd 1½, Pennsylvania and Louisville & Nashville 1¾; Reading and Consolidated Gas 1¼ and New York Central, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie first preferred, People's Gas, Republic Steel and Smelting preferred about a point. There were slight rallies on covering by room shorts, but the closing was heavy.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There seemed nothing to warrant a break, except an over-bought condition of the market. A reaction was overdue, and places the market in a healthier position. Some further setback should not be surprising, but think good stocks should be picked up on further reactions. Money continues easy. Crops, earnings, etc., will bring the market to a higher level.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market at the opening was strong and showed improvement. Amalgamated Copper was the feature and traders bid it up. The balance of the market followed and prices held very firm. Copper, which had been strong, broke sharply and the rest of the market declined. Traders took profits and the weakness continued until the close. We do not expect to see this reaction go very far, as general conditions are favorable and money is becoming cheap.

* * *

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market showed a great deal of irregularity today. There was a distinct reactionary tendency all through the list and stocks sold off rather sharply from early advances. From early in the day sharp advances were made by Amalgamated, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Anaconda and Smelters. In the latter reactions, these stocks all went off sharply, and stocks like Union Pacific, St. Paul and the Steels also declined materially. As a rule stocks closed rather heavy in tone and showing fractional net losses.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 15.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1@3 points and during the first half hour worked up to a net gain of 3@4 points on buying by Liverpool and New Orleans and a little bull support. There was continued selling for scattering long account and some pressure from the local bears owing to the favorable weather, so that orders were pretty well divided and fluctuations were very narrow during the middle of the morning, although the undertone seemed firm and prices held at about the best point.

Spot cotton closed quiet, 5 points higher; middling uplands, 11.95; middling gulf, 12.20; sales, 4,864 bales. Futures closed steady; May, 11.41; June, 11.39; July, 11.20; August, 11.02; September, 10.74; October, 10.59; November, 10.69; December, 10.70; January, 10.74; February, 10.75; March, 10.77.

Chicago Live Stock.

Chicago, May 14.—Cattle—Receipts 30,000; market steady to 10c lower. Beeves, $4.15@6.20; cows and heifers, $1.85@5.35; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.85; Texans, $4@4.70; calves, $4@6.45. Hogs—Receipts 35,000; market slow, steady to strong; estimated tomorrow 24,000. Mixed and butchers, $6.40@6.65; good heavy, $6.55@6.65; rough heavy, $6.30@6.40; light, $6.35@6.60; pigs, $5.90@6.35; bulk of sales, $6.50@6.60. Sheep—Receipts 28,000; strong. Sheep, $4.15@5.75; lambs, $4.75@7.50.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The cut in the dividend on Parrott and the bad news on Atlantic affected the whole market, and in spite of a strong opening the liquidation was heavy all through the list for most of the day. North Butte declined easily from 94 to 90⅝, and the rally at the close was rather feeble. We believe that stocks sold around this level can be bought back within a few days at a profit.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The Anaconda Standard says today: "The North Butte company has added three more claims to its already large group, the Adirondack, Lynchburg and John Emmet being the last to be taken in out of the wet. The amount paid for the Lynchburg was $100,000."

Dividends Deduced.

New York, May 14.—A quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share was declared by the directors o the Parrot Silver & Copper company at a meeting held in Jersey City today. This is a reduction of 25 cents a share as compared with the dividend for the previous quarter.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, May 14.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $159,221,175; gold, $61,164,724; gold certificates, $37,771,670.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

YOUNG MAN IS FINED.

Used Employer's Money, Claiming He Meant to Replace it.

Percy R. Passage was this morning fined $50 and costs with the alternative of a sixty-day jail sentence, by Judge Cutting, on the charge of petty larceny.

The young man is claimed to have embezzled a sum of money amounting to about $25 from his former employer, the Grand Union Tea company.

He explained to Judge Cutting that he had been working on commission, and had failed to pay his expenses. He used some money belonging to his employers, intending to replace it, and had gone to Minneapolis, where he secured another situation. When arrested, he explained his troubles to his new employer, and his position is being held open for him.

The original charge was grand larceny in the second degree, but this was reduced to petty larceny, and the young man entered a plea of guilty.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

Boston Herald: One of the veteran lawyers of Burlington, Vt., is A. V. Spalding. One day when he was trying a case in the Chittenden county court he called as a witness a stylishly dressed young man who parted his hair in the middle, a practice that used to be regarded as indicative of a "dude." The young man, however, gave his testimony in a plain, straightforward manner and resumed his seat.

When the argument came to be made by the counsel opposed to Mr. Spalding, reference was made in a peculiarly cutting manner to the foppish-looking witness who parted his hair in the middle.

On rising to reply, Mr. Spalding said: "I fail to see how the fact that this young man parts his hair in the middle has any bearing in this case. He certainly has a right to part his hair in the middle, and he parts it exactly as my brother on the other side does his, only," he added, pointing to the perfectly bald head of the opposing lawyer, "he doesn't part it quite so wide."

SENATOR'S TELEPHONE.

Boston Herald: Years ago, when telephones were still a novelty, a farmer from the outskirts of Manchester, N. H., came to town one day and called on a lawyer friend of his, now United States Senator Henry E. Burnham, whom he supplied with butter, and who had had a telephone recently put in his office.

"Need any butter this morning?" asked the farmer.

"Well, I don't know," answered the lawyer. "Wait a minute. I'll ask my wife about it."

After speaking through the 'phone, he went on: "No; my wife says no."

The farmer's face was a study for a moment. Then he broke out with: "Look a-here, Mr. Lawyer, I may be a 'rube,' and have my whiskers full of hayseed, but I'm not such a darned fool as to believe that your wife is in that box!"

RUSHING FOR DULUTH

Big Fleet of Boats Pass Sault Bound for Here.

Cargoes Freely Offered —All Tugs in Commission.

It is expected that tomorrow morning and afternoon the first part of the rush of boats from lower lake ports will reach Duluth. The passages at the Sault during the past twenty-four hours indicate that and scores of orders for the disposal of arriving vessels are on the slate at the tug office of the Union Towing company. Only three tugs have been put in commission since the end of the marine strike—the Zenith, Record and Excelsior—but tomorrow most of the tugs at the Head of the Lakes will be put in for the arrivals are expected to come thick and fast.

This will be the first time that business in the harbor will have seemed to be alive since the strike was declared. Many more boats are still hung up at lower lake ports waiting to be unloaded and it is expected that some of the fleet to arrive tomorrow will get back to Lake Erie before a large number of the boats still there will have discharged their cargoes.

Ore and grain cargoes are quite freely offered because there have been comparatively no vessels on tap to carry what has been available, and the ore trains are coming in pretty thick now. It is expected that in the course of about ten days the freight traffic will have about assumed normal proportions and the vessels will have became scattered advantageously. Just now there is a block below and one threatened here.

HURONIC DAMAGED.

Strikes Just Before Entering Canadian Canal at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Canadian passenger steamer Huronic, bound down with a general cargo of merchandise, struck just before entering the Canadian canal. Several plates on the starboard side are damaged. The collision bulkhead and three forward compartments are full of water. The steamer has a load limit and will have to lighter before she can proceed.

WAGE CONFERENCE

Held Between Marine Workers and Lake Carriers' Association.

Cleveland, May 14.—Following the agreement reached Saturday between the dock managers and the longshoremen a wage conference was held today by the representatives of the Tugmen's union and the Great Lakes Towing company. Firemen and scoopers and representatives of the Lake Carriers' association also conferred. It is expected that agreements covering work for the present season will be made with the several unions without delay.

LAUNCHING NEXT SATURDAY

Steamer Earling to Drop in at Superior Yard Then.

Big freighters are still dropping into the water and will for several months more from time to time. Saturday afternoon another big package freighter, belonging to the Rutland Transit company, was launched at the Cleveland yard of the American Shipbuilding company.

Next Saturday the bulk freighter E. J. Earling, which is being built at the yards in Superior, will be launched and it is likely that the event will be quite elaborately celebrated. H. H. Oakes of Detroit will be owner of the new steamer and she will be ready to sail within a week after her launching, as she is well on toward completion now.

A week from next Saturday the bulk freighter Sir Thomas O'Shaughnessy, owned by Charles O. Jenkins of Cleveland, will be launched at the Wyandotte yards.

DEEPENS THE CANAL.

Canadian Government Makes Improvements at Sault Passage.

The Canadian government is deepening the upper entrance to the Canuck canal at the Sault. It is now 18 feet at low water, but will be made the same as the lower entrance, 21 feet 5 inches. Contract has been let to extend the south lower entrance and the south upper entrance 800 feet. The government has also purchased a considerable block of land alongside the present canal with a view of constructing a wider lock whenever it is necessary to do so.

There are at present a number of vessels on the Great Lakes which cannot pass through the Canadian lock, which is only 60 feet wide, and the government is expecting to make plans to overcome this deficiency before long.

THE SIEMENS ARRIVES.

Completes First Round Trip-Has Been on Dry Dock.

The big steamer Siemens arrived in this harbor yesterday morning and will load ore. This completes her first round trip. Since she left here last spring she has been on the floating dry dock at the Ecorse yards and had quite extensive repairs made. Her injuries were received while trying to pull the William E. Corey off the rocks at Gull island last fall. Twenty-nine bottom plates and about fifty frames were removed from the Siemens at the Ecorse dry dock and one-third of the plates were replaced by new ones, the remainder being rolled and put back.

The Siemens is the largest boat which has been put on the floating dry dock, and much interest was felt in marine circles in the experiment. After the Siemens was placed over the blocks of the dry dock it took one hour and forty-five minutes to raise her. After that time the dock was dry and in fifteen minues more the damage had been located. The dock can accommodate 600-foot ships it is claimed, and seems to be a great success.

No Grain Cargoes In Sight.

Chicago, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vesselmen who had hoped for some grain business after the strike uncertainty had passed were somewhat disgusted today when they could not find a cargo. Steamers now in commission are being sent for ore, as there is no grain to be had.

RAILROADS

LABORERS FOR ST. PAUL

Twin Cities Acknowledge Duluth to be a Labor Center.

Come Here for Men to Work in the Railroad Yards.

Even the Twin Cities have been forced to acknowledge Duluth as the labor center of the Northwest. Saturday the National Employment Co. sent a crew of twenty-seven men to St. Paul to work in the railroad yards there, and today a second crew of twenty-five men was sent to the Saintly City for the same purpose. Laborers could not be obtained in either St. Paul or Minneapolis. Last week a Minneapolis agent was in the city trying to collect a crew, on account of the scarcity of labor in the Twin Cities.

It is not because there is not a lot of work in and around Duluth to keep the men busy that there is a surplus from which St. Paul and Minneapolis may draw. The men have come to recognize Duluth as the leading labor center, and come here to seek employment in the city rather than go to the larger cities. Employment in the city is always the easiest kind to find men for, and when St. Paul is obliged to send outside for work of this kind it is a sign that she is pretty badly off in respect to the labor market.

ORE TRAINS ARE BUSY.

Shipping From Mines is Fast Resuming Its Former Proportions.

Ore trains on both the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and Duluth & Iron Range roads are beginning to be run with frequency again. As soon as the marine strike was settled, the open pit mines began some shipping and now the boats are beginning to arrive from lower lake ports, where they were tied up.

By the middle of this week, shipping from the mines on both ranges will be going full blast again and the men who were forced into idleness by the strike, will all be at work again.

TO EXTEND TO CHISHOLM.

Important Improvement Planned by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad will extend to Chisholm this summer, and engineers and surveyors will be at work along the line within two weeks' time, it is understood. W. A. McGonagle, vice president and general manager of the road, and General Superintendent Kritter visited the range town last week and announced that work would be begun at the earliest possible moment.

The officials are said to have picked out two routes, one from the Glen mine, about a mile south of the town, and the other from the Chisholm mine, at the west end of Longyear lake, where the depot would be erected.

Through Sleeper to Montreal.

A through sleeper between Duluth and Montreal will be put in service by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road about June 1. New cars are now being built for the South Shore, and as soon as they are completed they will be put on this run. They will be larger than the sleepers now being used by the South Shore, and will be lighted throughout by electricity.

From June 1 to 4 the South Shore will sell first-class round-trip tickets from Duluth to Boston for $25, with a thirty-day limit. The annual spring and summer excursions over the road to Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo will begin June 8. The annual St. Anne de Beaupre excursion will be run in July.

Will Meet New Boat.

When the new Canadian Pacific steamship "Empress of Britain" arrives in Quebec on her maiden trip this week she will be met, among others, by Max Adson, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road; J. D. Morrissey, general agent in Superior; A. J. Perrin, general agent in Duluth, and E. A. Lindgren, general immigration agent, all of whom leave over the South Shore this evening for the East.

A number of railroad men from lines allied and connected with the Canadian Pacific will also be in Quebec on the day of landing. The "Empress of Britain" is one of the new fleet of boats belonging to the Canadian Pacific & Atlantic Steamship company. She cost $2,000,000. A reception will be given on board the big passenger vessel.

Will Extend Line.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota road, which now has fifty-four miles of main line and forty miles of branches in operation, all in Lake county, will build ten miles of main line and twenty-five miles of branches this season. Surveys have been completed for an extension of the main line to a point within twenty miles of Gunflint lake, and the ten miles to be built this year will carry the line to Schauff lake.

Business Good in Dakota.

F. J. Gotz, city ticket agent for the Northern Pacific, has returned from a trip to Fargo, Grand Forks and Crookston. He says business is good in the Minnesota and Dakota towns, in railroad circles as well as in other lines. Seeding is well along west of Fargo, but in the Red River valley it is still too wet for much seeding to be done.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

Boston Herald: In the little village of G——, on the South Shore, a post-office was established some twenty years ago. The postmaster appointed was old Capt. "Bill" Thomas, whose qualifications for the position were a credited knowledge of the three R's and his ownership of the local store. He was very proud of his new position but felt its responsibility keenly.

A summer resident one day having occasion to send a postal card written in French to a friend in Paris was surprised to see the postmaster take it and adjusting his spectacles, attempt to read it. Being unable to do so, he turned rather sharply to the sender and asked if the postal was "all right."

The gentleman rather indignantly replied: "Why! what do you mean?"

"Well, you see," said the captain, "I ain't able to read it very well, being written in some foreign tongue, so I'll have to take your word for it. You see, I'm accountable to Uncle Sam for everything that goes through the mail."

TRANSFERRING THEIR POLICIES

Holders in Mutual Life Are Going Into British Company.

London, May 14.—The British policyholders of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York are being organized into rival camps. Those following the plan outlined by the "protection committee," headed by D. C. Haldeman, the former London manager of the Mutual, today flocked to the office of the North British and Mercantile Insurance company, where they filled out papers, transferring their policies to the British concern. Mr. Haldeman, with part of the old staff of the Mutual company, were kept busy all day long directing the policyholders how to take the necessary steps. They are receiving hundreds of applications by mail, the offices having the appearance of a large bank on a day of a popular loan. Mr. Haldeman claims to have a majority of the large holders on his side, and expects the smaller ones to follow their lead.

The scheme for the transfer of the business to the North British company was sprung suddenly. The arrangements were only completed late Saturday night, and were not published till this morning, giving Mr. Haldeman a day's advantage to communicate with his clients.

C. H. Duncan, superintendent of the foreign department of the Mutual, who succeeded Mr. Haldeman in the London office of the company, did not hear of the plans until this morning, when he immediately cabled to New York, and is awaiting a reply before opening a campaign to hold the business. He promised that the campaign will be an active one. Mr. Duncan anticipates that many holders will continue as policyholders of the Mutual. He is satisfied that the reports of the independent investigator, who recently visited New York, which were published in London, have convinced numerous holders that it will be to their advantage to retain their policies in the American company.

DIMPLES TO ORDER.

Places in New York Where You Can Get Them.

New York Sun: Are you a dimpled beauty, and if not why not? Dimples are the style and you must have them.

"They are carrying this dimple business to excess," said a pretty girl, with more than her natural supply of the commodity. "I have dimples in my cheeks, a dimple in my chin, and now I must have dimples in my knuckles.

"Dimples mean youth; old people do not have them. Also, dimples mean buoyancy and spirits.

"Dimples mean that you are well fed and enjoy life, and they mean that you are popular; and dimples mean success.

"All the professional beauties of the year have them. Last year it was curly hair; this season it is dimples. In a day they seem to grow them.

"Dimples, by the way, mean innocence. You don't expect a suted woman of the world to have them. Dimples mean a bubbling sort of joyousness, and on that account, if no other, they are desirable.

"Everybody wants to look young and bright, and with the proper amount of dimples this will be the result. Dimple yourself if you want to look young.

"To acquire dimples is something of an art. I went to France for my chin dimple, and came back to New York for my cheek dimples. Cheek dimples, by the way, are as quired, while the chin dimple has to be made.

"I got my chin dimple in Paris by the dimple surgery process. They take your chin and massage it until it is numb; then they slightly freeze it, just enough to destroy sensibility. Then they inject something which might be cocaine; and, with a quick touch of a pointed knife, they sever a muscle, and there you are. It takes only a few seconds, and when your chin heals you have a dimple which is really only a scar.

"Making the chin dimple is a regular business in both Paris and London. There are beauty shops where this dimple is made exclusively, and here you see women awaiting their turn to get the cleft chin.

A friend of mine went to London to get her chin dimple put in, and here they do it quite differently. They make the dimple by actual pressure upon the tip of the chin, the bloodless method, it is called.

"It began in this way: The prettiest American duchess in London, a bosom friend of the princess of Pless and a close friend of the queen, desired a dimpled chin. Her face would have been perfect were it not for her chin, which was square and ugly. It was a blemish upon an otherwise faultless countenance.

"Going to her husband the duchess said: 'I am going to have an operation performed upon my chin. I want to have a dimple cut in it.'

"'Impossible,' said the duke, 'I shall not allow you to do so.'

"'But I insist,' said the duchess, 'and it shall be done at once.'

"The duke stormed and won and the duchess was obliged to abandon her idea. All the same, she got her dimple.

"'Going to a great beauty specialist, she told him her plight.

"'You shall have a dimpled chin,' said he, 'and it shall be done without the knowledge of the duke.'

"Thereupon he picked up a blunt instrument and pressed it into her chin. The result was a dent. Again he pressed it into her chin. This time the dent remained longer. The skin was not broken, yet there was a little dent in it.

"'Take this instrument home,' said he, 'and apply it to your chin. Hold it gently, pressing it into the chin for fifteen minutes three or four times a day, pressing it always a little deeper. Pretty soon you will have a dimple that will be a dimple; one that will stay in.'

"The duchess did as she was told and the dimple grew. Inside of three months she had a pretty chin, as youthful and cleft as that of a girl of 15. It was a simple and very effective method. It cost nothing and was not a great deal of trouble.

"The cheek dimple is the one that is desired by most people and a very easy dimple it is to acquire. Nearly all children have deep dimples in the cheeks, but as they grow older these dimples disappear. Dimples at 20, wrinkles at 40 is the rule.

"Now, with dimple surgery brought to its highest state of perfection, it will be a case of dimples at 40. The reason one's pretty dimpled cheeks disappear early is a simple one, although it is not always understood. It is a case of missing teeth, and as the teeth go the dimples go also and the face falls in at the cheeks.

"There is a beautiful woman who was loveliness itself except for her cheeks which were hollow. One cheek was thinner than the other, making her face crooked.

"'Go to a cosmetic dentist,' advised someone.

"To a cosmetic dentist she went.

"'Your face is crooked because you have lost your back teeth,' said he, 'and being a beauty dentist, I shall refuse to treat you unless you will allow me to supply that missing back tooth.'

"The woman consented, and the result was magical. Her face rounded out, and into her cheeks there began to creep dimples.

"Thin faces never have dimpled cheeks. To make dimples it is necessary to fatten up your face, and this must be done by diet and a flesh food.

"A good food for making the face fat is milk. Cereals, with good cream, will plump out the cheeks and make them pudgy and youthful. Then the skin must be filled up with skin food.

"Skin food is the greatest thing in the world for thin faces. I massage my skin food into my cheeks once a week, which is often enough to keep them plump.

"I steam my face lightly with hot water, taking care not to burn the skin. Then, while it is hot, I massage the skin food into my cuticle. The result is that I have plump, pink cheeks.

"I do the same with my hands, which I am obliged, however, to exercise quite a little. I am getting a row of dimples along my knuckles which is a very pleasant change from a set of knuckle bones such as I have had for the past few seasons.

"To exercise my hands, I sit down by the window with the cool breeze blowing over my fingers. That is a queer idea, is it not, that the hands need air? But they certainly do.

"They are encased in gloves so much that they actually grow yellow for lack of fresh air, so the London beauty doctor told me. He said he had women who seldom or never exposed their bare hands to the air, and as the hands are full of muscles they grew old and knotted.

"To exercise your hands sit down in front of the window and open your fingers wide. Close your hands and open them and keep on doing it for some time. It will do your fingers a world of good.

"There must be method in your exercise. If you are a piano player you can sit with the palms of your hands together, then with the backs of them pressed together. This will exercise the muscles of your wrists.

"If you do not play the piano you must stretch the fingers as though you were playing an octave, and you must move each finger separately. Hands get still very early in life and the knuckles come up hard and ugly.

"To make dimples in the knuckles take your hand and massage it along the line of the knuckles, rubbing in some skin food and almond oil. Occasionally immerse the hands in sweet oil, holding them in the oil for five whole minutes.

"Then cultivate the dimples. Don't close your hands too tightly and don't get into the habit of showing your knuckles. Of course never pull your fingers to make the knuckles snap. Dimples come if you coax them; they are never impossible, but you must encourage them.

"Dimples in the shoulders and elbows are harder to get. The dimpled elbow comes by eating certain fattening foods, but the dimpled shoulder takes a little bit of surgery.

"The food that makes dimples in the elbows is of the semi-liquid sort. Try cereals, puddings, chocolate and cocoa preparations and all kinds of custards and ices. These make dimpled arms, though they do not necessarily spoil the figure."

THE COMPANY'S SHARE.

Los Angeles Times: Lancia, the noted chauffeur, crossed the Atlantic to New York on La Gascogne, and one night in the smoking-room of the steamer he said:

"Your American railroads are superior to ours. The trains go faster, the cars more luxurious, and the management is wiser.

"I like your system of excess checks—those checks, each worth a dime, which you give on your railroads to passengers who, having no tickets, pay cash fares. At first these checks angered me. I did not like them. But a conductor, with a good-natured smile, illustrated their use with a story.

"He said that on a little railway in the South they do not use excess checks. A friend of his, riding on this railway without a ticket, paid his fare in cash—a matter of four or five dollars.

"The conductor took the money and counted it, and then, very carefully, he put part of it in his coat pocket, and the rest in the hip pocket of his pantaloons.

"'Why,' said the passenger, 'do you divide the money that way?'

"The conductor with a frown replied:

"'The company's got to get something, ain't it?'"

CONGRESSIONAL TALK.

Kansas City Journal: The official stenographers of the house have reported for the first four months of this session about 2,775,000 words, with the session perhaps a little more than half over. There is a busy, talking time to come, however, and the full bill will probably be about 6,000,000 words for the session. That is outside of the committee hearings, which will be more than half as much additional, so that the house will have sent to the printing office as the talk that has been made, or to its members while at work on the floor or in the committee rooms, approximately 10,000,000 words. The senate will easily double that, if it does not exceed it, although the senate often sits only four days a week, while the house is always busy at least five days, and sometimes sits on Saturday. That will be a round total of 20,000,000.
